Texas Democrats Team Up With Ike

McCarthy Winner In Wisconsin

Says Voters Back Aims

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, controversial star-center of the national presidential campaign, won a smashing primary election victory yesterday which he said endorsed his Communists-in-government drive.

The Republican senator's chief opponent, Len Schmitt, bitterly conceded McCarthy's renomination to a second term with the comment that in time Wisconsin voters "will recall their support of McCarthy in this election with shame."

The vote was one-sided. Late returns showed McCarthy, 532,852 to Schmitt, 130,439.

Sen. other states also held primary elections yesterday. They were New Hampshire, Vermont, Minnesota, Washington, Arizona, Colorado and Utah. Virtually all incumbents were re-elected.

As voters were being tabulated in these elections, the two presidential candidates engaged in a long race verbal duel.

GOP candidate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said in Indianapolis that his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, was "using every trick in the book to get himself off the hook of the present administration's record."

Eisenhower called on voters to end government by "fear-mongers, unskilled doctors and bar-faced ideologues." Today the general headed for New York to prepare for a swing through the Midwest. He planned to visit Washington en route.

Stevenson, in San Francisco, stood solidly behind the foreign policy of the Truman administration. The Illinois governor then headed for Los Angeles, planning a whistle stop appearance en route.

The big news today, however, was the McCarthy sweep in Wisconsin. The militant senator called his victory an endorsement of the people "of my campaign to rid the government of subversive forces that would destroy it."

McCarthy's victory will pit him in November against either Thomas Fairchild or Henry Reuss, Democratic candidates. The outcome of their race was still undecided early today, although Fairchild was leading.

Mental Patient . . . Deranged Son Kills Father With Knife

GALVESTON (AP) — A shocked, horrified woman college professor watched her son stab his father to death here.

The 27-year-old psychiatric patient, found exhausted yesterday by the knife-carved body of his father, faced an examining trial today.

Detective Chief W. J. Burns said a charge of murder had been filed against Frank Deupree Jr.

Frank Deupree 53-year-old vocational agriculture instructor was stabbed and hacked at least 25 times with a butcher knife.

Burns said the son, a Navy veteran who has been under psychiatric care at John Sealy Hospital here since 1949, was being kept under armed guard at the hospital.

Young Deupree's mother, Mrs. Irene Deupree, told police she found her husband and son fighting on the second floor of a rooming house yesterday afternoon. Her son had a knife, Mrs. Deupree's statement said, and the elder Deupree was covered with blood.

When officers arrived they found the father dead and the son unconscious beside the body.

Mr. Deupree, professor of home economics at Southwestern University, Georgetown, said she and her husband had been in Galveston about a week visiting the son, an outpatient at John Sealy.

Mrs. Deupree said she left the room a moment, heard screams, and rushed back to see the two men scuffling.

Other theaters among the Great White Way — and in London's West End — dimmed their marquees at curtain time in a silent tribute to the English girl who touched theatrical heights on two continents.

Did Ike Say Bad Word?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Somebody used a cuss word during the radio broadcast of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's political speech in Indianapolis last night. Many listeners thought it was the general.

Eisenhower wasn't available for comment, and his aides weren't talking about the incident.

A half dozen reporters and two radio technicians later played back a tape recording of the speech in an Indianapolis radio station. They agreed unanimously it was Eisenhower's voice saying: "Damn it."

However, Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star and the Indianapolis News and an active Eisenhower supporter, disagreed. Pulliam, who was sitting close to Eisenhower, said a radio technician spoke the words.

It happened as a burst of applause interrupted the speech of the Republican presidential nominee, Eisenhower was speaking with the aid of a teleprompter. The aside, as the newsmen heard it on the tape playback:

"Go ahead! Go ahead! Go ahead. Yah, damn it, I want him to move up."

TEXAS POLITICS — Gov. Allan Shivers, top, emphasizes to Democratic National Committee member Wright Morrow his stand concerning party troubles and the possibility of his supporting Eisenhower as the state Democratic Convention gets underway in Amarillo.

Dam Officials Meet To Consider Project

Officials from 12 Texas cities and towns to be served by the proposed $85,000,000 Canadian River Dam were converging on Amarillo this morning to hear what steps have to be taken on setting up a legal water district.

Gov. Allan Shivers U. S. Senator - select Price Daniel and George Mahon have stayed over from Tuesday's state Democratic convention to attend the meeting.

A firm of Dallas attorneys Duma's Huguenen and Boothman has been employed by the Canadian River Water User's Assn. to set up the machinery for organizing the districts.

Money for the dam is to be lent the district by the federal government and repaid by revenue derived from the sale of water by the different cities.

A Case For The Primitive Man
ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — The very process of becoming civilized may have made man more constitutionally prone to certain types of cancer, rheumatoid arthritis, asthma and possibly certain forms of mental illness, a Johns Hopkins scientist says.

Dr. Curt P. Richter told the American Institute of Biological Scientists Tuesday it may have been that as man changed from his primitive, hard-fighting status to a state of highly secure domesticity, changes occurred in his adrenal and sex glands — possibly making him an easier victim to certain ailments.

Party Asks Shivers To Stump For GOP

AMARILLO (AP) — The organized Democratic party of Texas has marched lock, stock and barrel into the camp of Dwight D. Eisenhower and the Republicans.

They also made certain that other Texas Democrats — thus far unorganized — could vote for Adlai Stevenson on the general election ballot in the usual Democratic column.

The Democrats who holed themselves hoarse in convention yesterday caucusing and hooting Stevenson, President Truman and administration policies, fulfilled the pledge made by their leader to win seats in the National Convention at Chicago.

Gov. Allan Shivers had promised to do all in his power to put Stevenson's name on the ballot as a Democrat and he did. Then with the governor's blessing the convention gave every Democrat in Texas the green light to join the Eisenhower forces that have high hopes of carrying Texas this year.

Most areas touched by Tuesday's golden rains were not among the sections hardest hit by Texas' two-year drought. But the weather station of the KFDN transmitter reported that .32 of an inch had fallen by 11 a.m. today. Outlying spots received on-and-off showers during the night and early morning.

Mercury reached a high Tuesday of 86 degrees and dropped to a low last night of 61. Late this morning the temperature was 65.

The weather bureau promised rain for most sections of the state Wednesday and Thursday.

The rain would have done more good a month or two months ago — but it looks as if the weather were trying to make up for lost time in some sections of Texas.

Palacios Wednesday had received more than eight inches of rain in two days. Rain in that southeast Texas town totaled 5.46 inches Tuesday and 2.74 inches the day before.

Elsewhere the rain ranged from good showers to bare trickles.

Heavy scattered showers were reported in East and Central Texas, two of the sections troubled most by the multi-million dollar drought.

Motorists With No Stickers Will Have To Dodge Officers
A small majority of Gray County residents will have to dodge state highway patrolmen this week according to a final check on the number of auto safety stickers made by the Sept. 6 deadline.

Of approximately 11,000 vehicles—trucks trailers and cars — to be inspected at least 12,193 have been checked and now bear an official safety sticker.

The remainder, according to Capt. Edward Burchell of the Department of Public Safety, Amarillo will be given tickets and may be fined from $1 to $200 for operating on state highways without stickers.

A new check on all cars will be made before April 1, 1953, deadline for new license plates Burchell said. Inspectors for the new stickers will probably begin about the first of November and present stickers will be good only until the April deadline.

Auto inspection is not anew law. Burchell explained that a new way of enforcing an old law. Safety stickers are only a means of telling highway patrolmen a car is safe for public highways.

This has always been a law Burchell pointed out but there are not enough patrolmen to enforce it properly. Stickers serve only as an aid. He urged all operators to consider the inspections as a help to keep his car safe for travel rather than "grat set up by the state."

Work On Budget
County commissioners went back to work this morning on the 1952 budget but had not arrived at a total figure by noon. Upon completion of the budget a date for the public hearing will be set by the commissioners. Most departmental budgets have been entered, but estimated expenditures on road and bridge maintenance are still incomplete.

'War Of The Roses' Opens In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm are sued to take a courtroom stage today in their divorce and separation suits.

The trial combines Miss Holm's suit for divorce — for which adultery is the only ground in New York State. Reportedly as much as half a million dollars alimony is at stake.

Jack Porter Says GOP Will Win In Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — State Republican leaders today hailed the Texas Democratic convention's endorsement of Dwight Eisenhower as swinging the state definitely into the Republican column.

National GOP Committeeman Jack Porter and State Executive Committee Chairman Alvin Lane predicted an easy majority for Eisenhower in the Nov. 4 election.

Porter said the majority would run "about 63 per cent" nationwide.

He said the Republican campaign would be coordinated with efforts of Democrats for Eisenhower.

There will be no friction between Republicans and Democrats for Eisenhower in this state, Porter said at a press conference preceding the meeting of the State Republican Executive Committee here today.

Porter also foresaw a two party government in Texas within two to four years if Eisenhower is elected.

"Until now we have been in the position in this state to have conservative sentiment divided. When the conservative people work together as I'm sure they're going to in this election the barrier will be broken down," he said.

Burglars Take $100 From Local Store

At least $100 in cash was taken from the C. R. Anthony Department Store by burglars early Tuesday morning, police reported today.

Chief of Police J. B. Connor said police and management were still checking today to determine whether the thieves stole any merchandise.

The burglars climbed a telephone pole behind the store and got in through their air conditioning system after failing to use a sky-light they broke open.

Inside the thieves went to the cashier's desk and took about $100 in cash. They also rummaged through lay-away parcels, breaking them open and stripping the contents over the floor. Merchandise on counters was also pushed around, Connor said.

Lane Drops Suit Contesting Race

GALVESTON (AP) — Wabriton County Sheriff T. W. (Buckshot) Lane has dropped his suit to have himself declared winner of the Ninth Congressional District race instead of Rep. Clark Thompson.

Already, the State Democratic Convention at Amarillo had certified Thompson as the winner by a 252-vote margin.

Despite Its Shortcomings, Hank Feels Honesty Is Best

By HENRY McLEMORE
 CUERNAVACA, Mexico — Honesty is the rarest of all virtues. Pure, unadulterated honesty is as rare as a chicken that can ride a bicycle with no hands. Women tell other women that their hats are lovely, and men tell other men they actually don't know how glad they are to see them.

Children are taught dishonesty from the day they are born. Under the guise of tact, a little girl will tell another little girl that she looks pretty while knowing that she looks awful.

All of this leads to my living in Cuernavaca. I am supposed to like the church bells that ring in the morning, but honesty makes me admit that I wish they wouldn't ring. They clang, clang, clang. They even do worse than that. They bang, bang, bang. I don't like the way they sound.

This is a fruitful city, and flowers grow with hardly the touch of man. I am quite sure that if you stuck a broom handle into the earth it would produce buds.

Birds bark all around my house. A man is supposed to like the sound of birds, too, no matter if the birds are plain noisy. False honesty causes the average man to comment on the sweetness of low birds sound, even though it runs him crazy. It is my solid belief that men don't like the way birds sound. I have never heard a bird trill as sweetly as a clarinet, or lift his little voice as high and lovely as a trumpet.

There is nothing more honest than being honest. I insist that it's better to be a live soda jerk than the dearest president that ever lived. How much better it is to be a living failure than a dead success.

Honesty makes me admit, too, that all who praise those who have passed on wouldn't swap places, but you'd never know it by reading what they say.

I'm growing a garden. Anthony Eden grows a garden and loves to spend his Sunday afternoons patting and patting petunias. So does Mr. Churchill, and I call Mr. Churchill Mr. Churchill because he is the very nicest man this century has known. I don't like to grow flowers. That's honesty. Nothing wears me out any more than digging holes in the ground and planting slips of seeds.

To be an all around fellow one must do that sort of thing. Nothing gives a man more standing than to work in the garden. So help me, a man gains in stature if he comes home from work, slips on some old clothes, and looks happy in a garden.

I couldn't be honest and say like that sort of thing. I would much rather take a shot at the birds that sing, or spend my evening watching a gardener do the flower job, then relax.

Such an admission on my part will gain me no popularity. For every man who feels the way that I do there are thousands who can't wait to get home from work and fill the bird bath with water, dig around the flowers, and come in to dinner tripping, happy, and filled with the feeling of a job well done.

Tomorrow I'll go out and garden. I won't want to buy. I don't think I'll have the right to vote unless I do.

Red Youth Fouls Up

MOSCOW (AP) — The youth paper Komsomol Pravda says there is a liar living in Rostov so adept at falsehoods he has managed to: dodge the draft, accumulate three wives and acquire various plush jobs that suited his fancy.

The paper said the miscreant, identified as Revold Krylov, did all these things through the following deceptions:

Lying about his past he managed to get three wives without going through the formality of divorce.

Telling military authorities he was a graduate of Novorossiisk Polytechnical institute, he got himself exempted from military duty.

Giving various versions about his background, he got positions as literary critic on a newspaper, expert in an electric clock factory and leader of a group of pioneers into new territory.

The pay-off came, Komsomol Pravda said, when he claimed he was a member of the Komsomol Young Communist League. This led to the investigation that unmasked him.

Long Arm Of The Army Gets Longer

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J. (AP) — The long arm of the Army is getting longer.

Regardless of where or when it occurs, on this post or 1,000 miles away, on or off duty, an auto accident involving any Fort Monmouth man can get him in trouble here.

Depending on the seriousness of the mishap and the degree of his responsibility, the man enlisted or officer may even find himself facing a court martial.

In fact, at Fort Monmouth there have already been 18 courts martial in the past three months.

As a result, wherever they drive, the Fort Monmouth boys are going more carefully these days. Everyone at this Signal Corps center knows the "old man" isn't fooling.

The crackdown on careless driving began shortly after Maj. Gen. Kirk B. Lawton took command of Fort Monmouth and its 11,000 men last January. He expressed concern that more than 10 per cent of New Jersey's auto accidents were occurring in the shore area around this post. A great number, he found, involved military personnel.

In March, Gen. Lawton called a conference of civilian and military traffic enforcement officers. He ordered refresher courses in safe driving at the post. He set up a "road-school" near the motor pool and drivers had to gauge their distances carefully in backing and tuning between owa of railroad ties.

But the accident rate involving Fort Monmouth personnel did not go down enough.

So the commanding general set a quota of 27 accidents involving military personnel at fault for the month of May. The quota was exceeded and Gen. Lawton, noting that many of the mishaps occurred between midnight and dawn, made all companies, except those which had no accidents, subject to a midnight bed check.

For June, Lawton ordered the monthly quota cut to 15, five for each 10-day period. But by June 5, post personnel had their seventh accident. The next night, Lawton called a formation of all personnel below the rank of captain. He imposed a three day ban on pleasure driving among all ranks below captain. No officers above lieutenant had been involved in auto accidents.

In the last three months, Fort Monmouth men have had a total of 64 traffic violations. Most of these received relatively mild penalties, like restriction to the post.

But 16 went before a court martial. The most serious offense, involving a hit and run accident, brought the guilty man six months at hard labor. He was busted from corporal to private and fined two thirds of his pay for six months.

Several other drivers, who had fallen asleep at the wheel, also were given six months, busted and fined.

McLemore Decides Modern Art A Good Patch For Leaky Roof

CUERNAVACA, Mexico — I less, that picture'll be worth ten times what it is worth today," he told me to look at the colors in it.

"Have you ever seen such exquisite blending of colors?" he asked.

"Never," I replied. And I meant it. It had all the shades of a very black eye—you know, the purple blending with the black, the black running into the pale orange, and the pale orange, holding hands with the blue.

Now this sort of painting is not unique to Mexico. It is even more common in New York and Paris. It takes a strong man, indeed, to enter the Museum of Modern Art in New York with anything stronger to drink than a glass of water.

The last time I was in the Modern Museum of Art — and I only go there to restore faith in my sanity — I saw a picture prominently displayed which showed a white line drawn on a white piece of paper. It was called "White on White."

It didn't belong to the Museum. It was a loan. I can imagine why the owner of such a creation would be willing to lend it. For fifty years. Or a hundred.

I am not sure where I am going to hang my Mexican picture, "Grapefruit Hugging Its Aunt at Sundown." I have an idea, though, that I will wait until there is a leak in the roof and use it for a patch.

Film On Processing Shown To Jaycees

Two new members of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce gathered with 33 "regulars" at the weekly meeting to view a color film titled "American Harvest."

But the movie was only partly agricultural in content. With vivid shots of all sections of the nation, it explained the process by which raw materials are made into finished products which — it emphasized — "all of us could afford."

Newcomers to the outfit are Clayton Noblitt and Marvin Bowman.

Upcoming on the agenda for future meetings, it was announced, are talk by a Clarence representative Sept. 20 and a discussion Oct. 14 of how a stock brokerage house operated by a man from Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner and Bean, Amarillo.

NEW YORK (AP) — An "honest thief" paid off Tuesday.

A letter came to the saleslady, Mrs. Bertha Romano, Tuesday. There was $30 and a note, signed "Your friend."

"Sorry I couldn't return it sooner," the note said.

SIX OUT OF SEVEN FOR POLIO—Infantile paralysis, which has been epidemic in 10 states, and which may take a higher toll across the nation than the 1949 onslaught of the disease, has stricken six of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pehl, of San Antonio, Tex. Peak of this year's epidemic is expected to be reached in the near future, and further attacks are expected to diminish rapidly with the coming of the heavy frosts. Union Papers Used To Crack The Whip

Consolidation of the Desert News and Salt Lake Telegram into the Desert News - Salt Lake Telegram was announced recently. The move was attributed to the "ever-increasing cost of producing newspapers during these inflated times." As a result of the merger the morning Tribune and the afternoon Desert News - Salt Lake Telegram will be published in one plant.

Pampans will recall a similar step taken in Amarillo last year when the afternoon papers, the Times and Globe, were consolidated into the Globe-Times. The papers are now being published under one roof together with the morning News.

Thus in both Salt Lake City and Amarillo the newspapers serving the city are being published from one plant. Such an arrangement was made a couple of years ago in Fort Wayne, Indiana, and has been in action for some time in such cities as El Paso, Texas, and Albuquerque, New Mexico.

In 1951 the St. Louis Star Times, an evening paper, was purchased by the other evening paper, the Post Dispatch, leaving St. Louis with the evening Post Dispatch and the morning Globe Democrat.

In 1951 also, the Oakland Post Inquirer folded leaving the City of Oakland, California, with one newspaper, the evening Tribune.

For some years past such cities as Kansas City, Missouri, and Omaha, Nebraska, have had morning and evening newspapers under one ownership, and Akron, Ohio, has been served by one newspaper, the evening Beacon-Journal.

The economic facts of the newspaper business have led these and other cities to either one ownership or one publishing plant.

The costs of publishing newspapers today are such that few cities can support two or more newspaper plants.

It is true that some 13 newspapers have been started in recent years by the Typographical Union but none of these have been on a paying basis and their purpose is indicated by Woodruff Randolph, President of the Union when he was asked, "How do we know other publishers pay any attention to the competition we have established?" Mr. Randolph's answer was, "By their actions and negotiations, and their remarks against the officers responsible for the policy. How many more would have picked a fight we cannot say, but we believe many."

In other words, when negotiating a contract with a newspaper publisher today the Union, in order to obtain its terms, uses the threat of a strike and in addition to that the threat of establishing a competing newspaper. And according to Mr. Randolph the latter threat has prevented "many" publishers from actions which he calls picking "a fight."

Cities in which the Union has established papers in order to use this threat of competition against other publishers in Union negotiations include: Colorado Springs, where the Free Press could not exist without its subsidy from Unitipyo, Inc., a subsidiary of the Typographical Union; Trenton, New Jersey, where the Trentonian is being subsidized in the same manner; Texarkana, Tex.; Monroe, La.; Meriden, Conn.; Springfield, Mo.; Charleston, W. Va.; Beckley, W. Va.; Huntington, W. Va.; Jamestown, N. Y.; Hamilton, Ontario; Allentown, Pa.; and Miami, Fla.

The closing up and consolidation of newspapers in larger cities than these are evidence of the fact that the Unions' newspapers are not operated as business propositions but are operated and established to serve Union ends and as an additional club to hold over publishers' heads when Union negotiations are underway.

Help On Both Sides

Housewives may get an ego-boost from an imaginary advertisement printed in a current magazine: "Help Wanted: Domestic: Female: All cooking, cleaning, laundering, sewing, meal planning, shopping, chauffeuring. Care of children. Salary at employer's option. No time off."

Comments the magazine: "No woman in her right mind would answer that ad, but Mrs. Average American Housewife has the job anyway." Before we get to feeling too sorry for ourselves, let's dream up another ad.

"Help Wanted: Male: Must be willing to sign lifetime contract. If contract broken must pay whatever law demands. Yard work, small house repairs, discipline of children, permanent escort, some help with household chores. Should have automobile and must be able to provide shelter. No salary."

Putting it that way, no man in his right mind would answer such an ad but the Average American Husband has the job anyway.

If we're going to look at marriage from such a business-like point of view, at least let's look at it from the husband's angle as well as from the wife's.

That will keep us from feeling sorry for ourselves. Sure, women give up a lot for marriage. So do men. Sure, the contribution that wives makes to marriage is often overlooked and taken for granted. But just as often the husband's contribution is taken for granted, too.

"How Sick Is Socialized Medicine?"

Dr. Melchior Palyi had a very interesting article in the June 16 Freeman magazine on the subject of "How Sick Is State Medicine?" Dr. Palyi surveyed the British national health scheme for the Freeman magazine. The article has been reprinted in a 24 page pamphlet and can be had for 10 cents by writing to Dept. PB of The Freeman, 246 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

I want to report for a couple of days what Dr. Palyi found about socialized medicine in England and some of his conclusions. His points out that less than three years after the National Health program in Britain had been adopted on July 5, 1948, the British Ministry of Health announced (Dec. 1, 1950) that 553,577 people (100,000 in London alone) were on the waiting list for hospital beds. He goes on to say: "Some 40,000 beds almost 10 per cent of the total number — were closed due to shortage of nurses. More may have to be closed in consequence of economy measures."

As to the quality of medical performance in industrial centers, the doctor has primitive equipment and little help, but is burdened with 3,000 to 4,000 and even more registered patients. This means three minutes or less for a consultation during which he should diagnose and advise, make out ever-increasing number of prescriptions, write letters to specialists and hospitals and fill out many kinds of official forms (all without recompense). Besides, he has to keep extensive files, squabble with authorities, participate in endless committee meetings, etc.

Dr. Palyi seems to believe that the doctors are partially to blame for bringing on socialized medicine. He says:

"There is no opposition in Great Britain to the principle that the cost of medical care should be shared amongst the community. The plain fact is that medicine has advanced so far and so fast in the last 50 years that the cost of an illness is more than the average person can afford. This statement does not come from Communists or Socialists or ignorant crackpots. It is a recent announcement of the august British Medical Association. The spokesmen of the doctors went on elaborating their position, which is the popular one in Britain (and beyond):

"When medical care becomes too costly for the average citizen two alternatives lie before us. Either the full range of modern diagnosis and treatment can be provided only for those who are able to pay for them, and the remainder must accept second-class medical service; or some system of sharing the cost of medical care throughout the community must be devised. The former alternative is practiced in other parts of the world, but the latter is preferred in Britain. . . . This has brought great mental relief to very many homes, and much sickness and disability which otherwise would have been endured in silence, have been treated and corrected."

"By paying lip-service to the egalitarian (equalitarian) philosophy, the doctors incur a large share of responsibility. No medical scheme could work if they refused to cooperate. Yet the medical profession has always betrayed its own cause by welcoming the introduction and subsequent expansion of socialized schemes or by taking a defeatist attitude of non-resistance."

Then, later on in the article Dr. Palyi says: "As the spokesman of the British Medical Association, after having endorsed the free-for-all idea, . . . Our legislators planned the National Health Service on too high a plane. They forgot the imperfections of human nature, and they devised a scheme which requires a high degree of responsibility, self-restraint, and a higher sense of public duty in both doctors and patients, than the British people possess."

"The assumption that the pursuit of self-interest is an imperfection of human nature and that human nature can be remade or manipulated is part of every 'planning' philosophy, of every 'socialism' in particular. In reality, the elimination of the 'pay' motive fosters the very force which it is supposed to overcome. Misjudging not only the economic, but also the moral nature of man, it breaches the psychological dams which hold back individual greed."

DIFFERENT TYPE OF DOCTORS

Then he remarks: "Traditional standards of medical service are still adhered to, more or less. But where will this system lead? There will be, this explains an unhappy English doctor, . . . an entirely different type of man going in for medicine — our future doctors will be small-minded little men with civil service mentalities, and their main concern will be keeping on the right side of their administrative superiors, the correct filling of forms, watching the clock and passing the buck."

Then Dr. Palyi observes: "The end result must be a decay of curative medicine. There is little scientific or emotional satisfaction in standardized procedure in which quick action is what matters, and submission to the patient's greed is all that brings even a bare subsistence. Professional standards must inevitably deteriorate. The general practitioner must have time to do his work properly, the British Medical Association points out, 'to make thorough examinations as he sees necessary, to consult specialists. . . His professional time must not be encroached on more than is absolutely essential by non-medical work.' He must not be forced to abbreviate his treatment of each case to a routine, to abandon clear thought and accurate observations. And he must have . . . free time for professional reading, attendance at postgraduate courses and other professional meetings, and for investigation and research in his own practice. All of which gets lost when the doctor is obliged to turn, in effect, into an overworked and underpaid clerical."

National Whirligig... Demos Confident 'Mess' Probe Can Be Staved Off Till Nov. 4

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Although several grand juries in scattered sections of the country are hearing evidence of alleged dishonesty as a result of Congressional investigations, Democratic Party and Capitol Hill investigators, still hold office with the full approval of the man in the White House.

Meanwhile, only a former Kansas City bootblack crown of Gen. Henry H. Vaughan and a few Internal Revenue officials have so far paid the penalty of violating the law.

The highrups who failed to detect these crooks, in the face of warnings from their own investigators, and Capitol Hill investigators, still hold office with the full approval of the man in the White House.

POLITICAL — It is true that legal technicalities, the law's slow-moving machinery and the inability to locate key witnesses to block punishment of the guilty, or even grand jury inquiries, but there are indications that political influences on behalf of postponement operate.

President Truman's hostile attitude toward Capitol Hill investigations, which was shared by former Atty. Gen. Tom Clark, now a Supreme Court justice, and former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, is largely responsible for these political-legal delays.

United States district attorneys and their staffs, who hold office under presidential sufferance, take their cues from their patrons, the president and the attorney general.

Had Morris or any successor been empowered to establish a central agency at Washington, with headquarters in a few other key cities, to follow up congressional revelations promptly and effectively, federal prisons might now have many distinguished names on their guest list.

Although Truman now denies the existence of a "mess," it is generally overlooked that his naming of Morris months ago constituted a confession that a house-clearing was needed.

Morris was naive and amateurish, and unfit for the task. But there was nothing to prevent Truman from selecting a more qualified substitute, and he dared exposure of the incompetent and the corruptible in a presidential year. Instead, he picked McGrath, Philadelphia politician.

EFFECTIVE — Non-political lawyers serving with congressional investigating committees point out that here is an effective procedure for fingering federal officials, if there were any disposition to expose the dishonest and the lackadaisical. Incidentally, both the Capitol Hill investigators and their legal staffs are largely of Democratic faith and affiliation.

Inasmuch as most of the alleged offenses in the Treasury, Agriculture, Maritime Commission, Defense and other federal agencies involved acts of omission or commission at Washington, the easiest way to prosecute would have been to create a "blue ribbon" grand jury at the Capital, with prominent lawyers from outside to present evidence.

METHOD — Another method would have been to indict certain high officials for a "conspiracy to deprive the United States of their services," in that they were negligent or actually involved in questionable practices.

But such an unthinkable process would have spotlighted such men as Justice Clark, former A. G. McGrath, Secretaries Snyder and Brannan, Theron Lamar Caudle, former Internal Revenue Counsel Oilphant and several former RFC members.

In one way or another, all these notable must accept responsibility for the Washington scandals.

It appears to me that the entire controversy has been brought about by the commissioners from the south side standing for what they believe to be as a fact, not for the people as a unit and for a fair distribution of the taxes which no man can truthfully say has been distributed evenly and justly.

I have no desire to indulge in any part of the personal name calling and mud slinging that has been going the rounds but merely want to point out to the attention of the people the facts as I see them.

Fair Enough.... Margaret Truman Took Three Armed Guards On Europe Trip

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

How strange it is that the beloved little man of the people, the common man personified, Harry S. Truman, goes in such terrible fear of the people, surrounded by armed guards from the Secret Service, whose initials "S. S." are darkly reminiscent of Adolf Hitler's evil corps of personal guards, and often by tight cordons of uniformed city policemen with big revolvers and sagging ammunition belts.

This new attitude of presidents began to be manifested in the second term of Woodrow Wilson, a Democrat but a haughty fellow with contempt for the personality of man.

Taft was a jovial fat man who carried the normal convoy of Secret Service men but plainly was friendly to the people and was conscious of affection flowing from them to him. He was the first President I ever saw. They released all the school children in Chicago that day and they had a great mass of adults lined Michigan Avenue as he rode up from the I. C. station, smiling and waving without the slightest fear of us.

Wilson went into his royal phase on his triumphant tour of eastern France and Belgium and his magnificent progress to London to be the guest of the King and Queen after the war. He and his wife were no less royal than their hosts in the splendor of their presence and she of course evoked harsh comments on her airs and manners from the common herd both in England and back home.

Indro Montanelli, a journalist of the Corriere Della Sera of Milan, pinked this situation with a phrase in his five description of Eleanor Roosevelt's pompous humility at the reception arranged for her by the Pandit Nehru, a faker of the same stripe as his guest.

"I kept my eyes open," Montanelli wrote, "to see how one acts when presented to the King and Queen of democracy."

In Chicago, on the night of Adlai Stevenson's nomination, the concluding episode of a debauch which deeply hurt the pride of America, President Truman's "security measures" were terribly brutal. The people were herded off at gunpoint at though a wild revolution were imminent.

Some of them probably were his own countrymen who even they were just fans in a scuffle with the aristocracy, such as it be, would regard Danny Kaye as a social lion. Truman was a "celebrity" and a few thousand loitered in East 57th Street in the main entrance of the Blackstone in order to catch a glimpse of a little man hurrying from the marquee to his car, surrounded by his "living wall." Balbo Street from Michigan Avenue to Wabash was blocked off at its ends by uniformed Chicago cops, a rugged type with big service pistols exposed and reserve ammunition in their belts. In the Blackstone lobby there were more cops and more men of the American President's body guard.

There were, by my own incomplete count, 35 more policemen than there were in the main entrance of the Hilton Hotel across the street. Who was afraid? Why was he afraid? Was he afraid of the people?

I saw Mussolini and Hitler both on public appearances and their body guards were paid for not out of the gate, but out of the taxes of the common man. Her Secret Service detail worked around the clock and once, in Boston, when I was in the same hotel, the tax-paying guests quietly resented the impudence of the detail and the state police augmented the S. S. detail and jammed the quiet passages and the elevator cars. Why all this display of muscle and small arms? Many of the guests were elderly. On the average they were 60 years old and even to remark to Miss Truman that they disapproved her conduct. The suggestion that one of them might strike her, much less try to kill her, was grotesque.

In London on great occasions when the royalty ride by in an open gold coach the guards are out in their shakos and beautiful dress uniforms, but their muskets are empty for their presence is a display of national honor, implied by the noble robes of their regiments and of mutual confidence between the people and the King and Queen being exposed to the aim of any sniper.

But Margaret Truman, the plain home spun, combed American girl, took three American armed guards wherever she went in Europe, at great expense to the American people, as her last fling before her father's severance from the payroll and that $50,000 untaxed bonus. These fellows pushed the people around and around and around and their denials can be ignored. Their manners are rude and rough, a development fostered by Roosevelt's royal manner. They are the king's henchmen. Huey Long had a guard of his own drawn from the state police. He openly called them "my thugs-men."

The Emperor Roosevelt caused the Army to organize in secret a special royal regiment of foot to patrol his estate at Hyde Park during the war. They were all at least six feet tall and were to patrol his estate at Hyde Park during the war, and were a parade outfit. But the duty was degrading and a bore and discipline and morale were not good. Three of these guardsmen ridiculed their outfit after the war but the army did all it could to suppress the fact at the press and radio ignored the whole affair. The majority were well pleased. However menial their duty, it was preferable to fighting.

Clearing House

Articles for this column are preferred to be 300 words or less in length. However, longer articles may be printed.

I have noted with interest the letters both pro and con on the subject of changing the city charter and wish to add to the list by expressing my views relative to the change.

It is quite evident that the sponsors of the change have forgotten their American history which relates very vividly the Boston Tea Party and many other incidents leading up to the Revolutionary War. The basic cause of the Revolutionary War was taxation without representation, and I have never heard anybody deny that as a fact, yet the promoters of the charter change are advocating just the same thing that our founding fathers fought to rid America of.

If the charter is amended to permit the election of all city commissioners at large the more elect all commissioners and therefore a program of taxation will be created.

I have no desire to indulge in any part of the personal name calling and mud slinging that has been going the rounds but merely want to point out to the attention of the people the facts as I see them.

It appears to me that the entire controversy has been brought about by the commissioners from the south side standing for what they believe to be as a fact, not for the people as a unit and for a fair distribution of the taxes which no man can truthfully say has been distributed evenly and justly.

Bid For A Smile

The judge glowered on the prisoner standing before him. Judge—Have you anything to say before sentence is passed? Prisoner—Just this, your honor, I'm sorry to hear that you're going to be the second of those I've ever been charged with. And you know quite well my first conviction was wrong.

OUR TOWN

by Wanda Campbell

Full meetings for local women's organizations got underway this week with outstanding programs planned by two groups.

Mrs. Lyle Albright, wife of the Church of the Brethren Pampa Art Club meeting earlier this week. They were in British West Africa over a year, and Mrs. Albright had opportunity to study primitive art work of the natives. Mrs. Albright explains that the natives are not interested in art "for art's sake" but their interest is in everyday living. In the display of items from the Bura tribe in Nigeria, were cooking utensils as well as ivory carvings. Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Albright traveled over 1000 miles inland and encountered many tribes, speaking many dialects. The influence of missionary work is evident in some tribes, but many still live as they have lived for countless years. Mrs. Roy Chisum is the art club president. The club plans other outstanding programs with emphasis on some phase of art.

Mrs. Edgar Henshaw, wife of Rev. Henshaw of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, will present the program at the Council of Church Women meeting Friday. Rev. and Mrs. Henshaw visited the Leprosy village after receiving special permission from health officials, and her program will be an informative, up-to-date discussion of a disease dreaded since early Biblical times.

These two organizations are grateful for the time Mrs. Albright and Mrs. Henshaw take to share their experiences with interested local women. They are especially grateful because they realize what a busy life a minister's wife leads.

Dinner In Seitz Home Honors N. C. Visitors

Grace Friend:

Readers of The News are invited to send their problems to Grace Friend. Letters not published will be answered personally if stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Writers must sign their names although they will not be printed without the writer's permission.

Dear Mrs. Friend:

I read your column every day and enjoy it very much. I would like an answer to my little problem as soon as possible. This is it.

Our friends who have been married several years have just bought their first home. They have invited us to a housewarming.

We have never been to a housewarming and we are wondering if

It is customary to bring a gift for the home. It's doubtful if we will be able to attend as it is out of town. In that event as we supposed to send a gift anyway?

Mrs. L. J.

Dear Mrs. L. J.

Housewarming gifts are optional. If you are fond of the people and want to give them something for their new home, then by all means do so whether you go to the party or not. If you don't want to send them a gift, just don't.

Usually when housewarmings are planned by friends of the family the group takes a gift towards which each guest has contributed. When the hosts plan the party a gift is expected.

DUTCH DOORS

Dear Grace Friend

I enjoy reading your column. You surely do give sensible answers.

This question is different. I would like to have Dutch doors made out of a glass door but I don't know where to go to see about it. Can you tell me?

Mrs. S.

Dear Mrs. S.

I should think that any good building contractor would give you the advice you seek. Look in the yellow pages of your telephone directory for the names of those in your vicinity.

Schoolboys Open New Season With Big Slate This Week

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF, Associated Press Sports Editor

The legions of schoolboy football in Texas this week will have more than 250 games to play in the four divisions fighting through to state championships.

Opening the wild and furious week will be a scrap at Dallas Wednesday night between Adams Baytown, the team that fought son Dallas and Highland Park, both top-rated teams in Class AAAA.

There will be a smattering of games Thursday night but the high school football season will be a melee at Baytown in which

Harvester Coaches Assemble "First" Team For First Time

The Pampa Harvester football coaches put together what will probably be their first string offensive squad this season for the first time yesterday.

The display game during a 90-minute head-banging session after the Harvesters had been over early Monday because of a disappointing showing on the practice field.

On yesterday's offensive team were Boy Holder and James Phipps at ends. Both up from juniors and good pass receivers though not too big. The tackles were a pair of seniors, Richard Quilla and Buddy Cockrell, returning squadsmen. Cockrell is one of the three lettermen. At the guards were Bill Phipps and Alton Lynn. Phipps, a senior, is up from the B squad while Lynn is a sophomore who was squadman the last half of the '51 season. Tommy Sells, 200-pound letterman and senior, was at center.

Now, for the makeup of the backfield, which has had to be completely overhauled and renovated by backfield coach A. N. Noone. Running in the fullback slot of the T formation was squadman David Enloe, a senior. He was flanked by Ed Dudley at left halfback. Dudley, a junior letterman, was mentioned on the all-district defensive team last year. At the jumping straight from the junior high team, Harold Lewis, a speed demon, strong runner and great athlete, Lewis led the junior high league in scoring last year.

The quarterback post was manned first by J. N. Wright, a junior up from the B squad. He was later spelled off by Reggie Mayo, switched from a Harvester

Gassers Take First Of Series, 15-1 All Three Battlers Win; Seitz Honored With New Car

BORGER (AP) — The Borger Gassers aren't going to slide into the West Texas - New Mexico League play-offs. They intend to win their own way in. Jim Cain pitched the Gassers past the sixth place Pampa Oilers, 15-1 here last night to record his tenth win of the season against a single setback.

Ted Gardner, who lasted just three innings and gave up six hits good for ten runs, was charged with the loss.

Cain was in trouble nearly every time getting Cain a safe cushion. They tagged Gardner for four runs on three hits in the first and in the third they made a single hit. Three walks and a passed ball good for another four runs.

Tonight the Oilers close out their 1952 campaign with a twin-bill against the Gassers. The first game will start at 7 p.m. Max Molberg, veteran righthander and the most consistent pitcher on the team this year, will be shooting for his twentieth victory. The Borger starters remain questionable with the Gassers still not certain of a playoff berth.

Reliever Bob Volav had a little more luck against the Gassers when he allowed five runs the rest of the way in after Gardner was derrickered with none out in the fourth.

Depending on what happens tonight, the two may have to make up either one or two games Thursday, as decreed by league President Ray Winkler in event playoff berths are involved.

Telephone work is a family affair for the Kinseys of Dallas. D. W. Kinsey (second from left) started it when he went to work for the telephone company back in 1898. Now retired, Mr. Kinsey has seen two sons follow in his footsteps—Harrell (left), with 20 years' service, and Dan (second from right), 10 years with the company. Latest Kinsey to become a telephone man is Ronald (right), Dan's youngest son who has more than a year of service.

ONE FAMILY—six telephone careers

TWO MORE THIRD GENERATION KINSEYS are now making a career in the telephone business. Dan's sons, Dan Jr. (left) and Richard (right), heard so much at home about the advantages and opportunities in telephone work that they applied for jobs as soon as they were old enough. Both are telephone installers, and, at present, are on leave from their jobs, serving in the United States Air Force.

FUTURE "VOICES WITH A SMILE"? There's good reason to believe the number of Kinsey telephone careers will grow. Harrell Kinsey's daughters, 13-year-old Sandra (left) and 9-year-old Karen (right), expect to follow the Kinsey family tradition as operators. Collectively, the Kinseys look back with satisfaction on more than 80 years of telephone work—and look ahead to many more.

WHY HAS GENERATION AFTER GENERATION of Texas families like the Kinseys chosen life-long careers in the telephone business? To begin with, it's important and interesting work—this job of supplying the world's best telephone service. It is an up-from-the-ranks business with good pay and plenty of opportunity for ambitious men and women to get ahead—the kind of career telephone people urge their children to carry on.

Texarkana Cops Win Over Tyler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The good right arm of Jodie Phipps which has made Texarkana a top contender every year in the Big State League got the Bears off to a running start Tuesday night in the opening round of the circuit's playoffs.

Phipps hurled four-hit ball as Texarkana whitewashed Tyler, 5-0, and went ahead one game to none in the best four-of-seven game series.

This was the only game of two scheduled that was played. Austin at Temple was called off because of wet grounds.

Tyler trailed from the first inning forward as Texarkana opened with a one run first inning off Gale Pringle, Tyler's 2-game winner.

Austin goes to Temple tonight with Al LaMacchia of AUSTIN scheduled to face Hugh King on the mound.

Texarkana and Tyler play again at the East Texans' park with Ray Yochim or Tince Leonard to pitch for the Bears against John Muir.

Dallas, Sports Win Openers

By CHARLEY ESKEW, Associated Press Sports Writer

Any resemblance between the regular Texas League race and last night's first round playoff games is strictly accidental and not according to the form chart.

Dallas, the regular pennant winner that is way down the list in club batting, tore a page from Oklahoma City's book and produced a volume of 20 hits, good for an 11-6 victory.

Defense proud in Fort Worth was embarrassed on misjudged fly balls that led to Shreveport's 3-1 victory.

Both victors led their best-of-seven game series one game to none. The teams remain at the same Dallas and Fort Worth stands again tonight.

Two of the league's winningest and stingiest hurlers got involved in Dallas' victory. All-the-way winner Dave Hoskins, who copied 2 triumphs, was shelved for 12 hits by Oklahoma City. His All-Negro duel with Bill Greason, who had a 9-1 mark, failed to develop.

Dallas rapped Greason out in the second inning after four walks and two singles and Bob Bundy's three-run double. The Indians went ahead 4-3 in the third but Jim Atchely lost that to a two-run fourth-inning spree. He took the defeat.

Shreveport, collecting eight hits scored one time in the first inning and twice in the second off Roy Face. Fred Racewski was in trouble only twice, yielding the lone Cat run in the fourth inning on a single and Al Brancato's double and in the seventh, without damage, he spaced five hits.

Fort Worth errors led to all the Sport runs. Face fanned 10 and confronted only two extra batters until he was relieved by an eighth-inning pinch-hitter.

Phillips Captures PWGA '52 Crown

AMARILLO — The Phillips Country Club Ladies Golf Association retained the championship of the Panhandle Women's Golf Association for the second straight year here yesterday. The final tournament of the year was played at the Amarillo Country Club.

Pampa, who held the lead at the end of the first meeting of the season, dropped down to finish in fourth place behind Ross Rogers and the Amarillo Country Club, who finished second and third respectively. Huber, of Borger, was last.

Phillips finished with a winning total of 2866 strokes, while Ross Rogers had 2900, one stroke ahead. The Amarillo Country Club, Pampa had a 2957 total.

Orpha Mitchell of Pampa was the low net shooter in yesterday's final competition, with a 62.

Mrs. Chet Robertson of Amarillo had low gross for the day, with an 80. Jean Duenkel, of Borger, was the Pampa ladies' gross for the Pampa ladies' 88, while Floy Heath had low net, 73.

The group selected new officers for next season with Kay Spearman of Huber being named president. Miriam Leuders of Pampa was selected as vice-president; Floy Hath of Pampa, secretary-treasurer; and Joe Crawford, Amarillo, as publicity director.

Ten Pampa ladies took part in yesterday's meeting. In addition to those already mentioned, Marge Austin, Nola Faye, Myrtle Pringle, Fern Parker, Mayla De Howell and Miriam Leuders were present.

Where Are The West Point Cribbers? - 4 Records Prove They're Not Athletic Bum

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—A West Point officer called the Army football players who were accused of cribbing "a bunch of athletic bums." Their records at civilian institutions hardly seem to bear him out.

Tramp athletes generally don't major in engineering, the toughest course of all to mix with collegiate football. Nine of the 37 who will enroll again this fall are carrying full engineering programs. Only one, Bill Fowler of Missouri, is enrolled in the traditional physical education course most football players take.

And in his case it's legitimate. Bill wants to be a coach.

Men like Elmer Stout of Oklahoma A. & M., J. C. Kimmel of Houston, Jim Peyton of West Virginia and Bob Haas are top-flight football players and competent engineering students at the same time.

Stout was a prominent pick for linebacker in the pre-season All-America teams of 1951. The hard action as an offensive fullback, too, for the Aggies.

Why did he pick Oklahoma A. & M.? Stout's home is in South River, N. J., into the hometown of 1951 Cowpoke fullback John Brabko, an outstanding student as well as football player.

Both Stout and Lew Ziegler, West Point tackle who also will play regular at A. & M., are the antithesis of athletic bums," say Aggie officials. "They're quiet, serious-minded youngsters."

They got in solid with their mates by serving as scrummage fodder for last year's varsity.

Kimmel is an above-average mechanical engineering student at Houston. The six-foot, two-pound defensive tackle, a regular at West Point and a potential All-America, is from nearby Tyler, Tex., and has a full athletic scholarship. He works part-time off campus as a electrician.

At West Virginia, they call stocky Jimmy Peyton a "other Bob Ward" (Maryland's 51-year-old American guard). Coach Art Lewis

Thoroughbred Racing Set For Best Year In History

NEW YORK (AP)—With a fall term of racing yet to come and figures far from complete, a preliminary survey of attendance and betting at the nation's major tracks today showed a fantastic year in the nation's racing sport gain as compared with 1951.

The biggest parimutuel betting window hit record proportions. An unofficial Associated Press compilation from the 24 racing states discloses that betting is up at every one of the tracks, by from 8 per cent to 67 per cent, year in the nation's racing times came in 1946 when the mutual machines handled $1,830,247,455. Last season the AP nation-wide survey showed $1,629,239,777 wagered, an increase of 17.01 per cent over 1950.

Attendance totaled 24,302,020 in 1951, a gain of 6.01 per cent over 1950, and revenue to the states reached a record $99,927,423.

Track officials give various explanations: 1—the crackdown on illegal bookmaking following the Kefauver committee hearings; 2—an increasing public confidence in the sport through efforts of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau to rid racing of the crooked element.

The upsurge was indicated for the nation as a whole when the Florida, California and Louisiana winter tracks did a land office business. It is carried through to the Northern tracks.

Bowie, which raced its spring meeting at nearby Laurel, Md., posted a 47 per cent boost in attendance, and whopping 67 per cent jump in mutual play.

Atlantic City, still operating, reports attendance up 3 per cent, betting up 29, broke all records, handling up 17.7 per cent, attendance 8.5 per cent.

Chicago tracks reported big gains over 1951, with Washington Park's betting up 28.5 per cent, had plus 20 betting, attendance and gate, plus 16. Arlington up 18 per cent.

Hollywood Park Calif. closed its season with betting up 16 per cent, deal Mar on the West Coast is breaking records. Wagering at Golden Gate Fields, Calif. was up 37, attendance 37 per cent.

Narragansett Lincoln Downs, Suffolk Downs, Rockingham in New England report boosts up to 18 per cent in betting, 12 in attendance.

Kentucky looks forward to a fall betting increase after a 24 per cent boost at Keeneland and 17 per cent at Churchill Downs.

Florida, which has posted three new $100,000 stakes plus several of the $50,000 variety, looks for another big winter as does Santa Anita, and Fair Grounds, New Orleans.

Six foot three, 221-pound Ors of Huntington, W. Va., is the first string offensive center and a high-honor student in the School of Commerce. Shockey, a Pittsburgh area boy, gave up football for geology, with the Mountaineers losing 222 pounds of tackle (and a size 18 neck).

Phil showed such proficiency in his studies he became a lab assistant during his first semester. Haas was the starting center for the West Point T-attack in 1950 and may move into the line this season. Tulsa's publicity did same job for Tulsa's split-T. Phil was on campus until four months after he arrived. The Akron, Ohio, pivot is taking the toughest course there, petroleum engineering.

Rowkamp is the key to Missouri's football success, this fall. The Marietta, Ohio, transfer was converted to fullback by split-T founder Don Faurot after being a defensive end at West Point. He's 6-1, 200 pounds. For company he has ex-squad Don Maccey of Malden, Mass., who's also noted for his proficiency at hockey.

Odessa, Midland Win First Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Standout pitching performances enabled Odessa and Midland to take the lead in the Longhorn League play-offs in first round games Tuesday night.

Odessa, the straightaway champion, rocked Artesia and backed the seven-hit hurling of Carlos Villarreal with a 15-hit spurge. The Odessa won over the fourth placers in spite of five errors.

Runner-up Big Spring chipped in four miscues to Midland's cause and lost, 5-4, despite a three-run uprising in the ninth.

Eddie Acome had a five-hitter going until the ninth when he yielded five more. He stayed to pick up the decision on a ten-hitter.

Villarreal gave up a run in the second inning as his mates erred three consecutive times, however, Odessa picked up the lead, 2-1, in the bottom of the second inning on singles by Bill Cearley and Felix Castro and two walks. Then Cearley gained the marginal run for the Oilers in the third on a one-run homer.

Despite handing over 15 raps, Mike Rodriguez stayed the route in losing.

Midland ran ahead, 5-1 behind Jason's pitching until Pat Stacey, Juan Visteur, Al Costa, Al Valdez and Bert Beaz all hit safely to narrow the margin to 5-4 in the ninth. A double steal with Baes heading for second to end the rally, Manny Tames throwing out the runner at the plate.

Twenty-five game winner Gil Guerra dropped the decision when he gave up four raps and three runs in two innings. Midland collected seven.

Pauls Valley Downs McAlester

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)—Pauls Valley bats boomed out an 8-2 win over McAlester last night in the first game of the best-of-seven Sooner State League championship playoff.

The Raiders, who led the league for a good portion of the season, ended up second. The Rockets finished first.

Bob Reitz, a converted outfielder, handcuffed the league-leads with three hits.

Durocher Collects Third Suspension

NEW YORK (AP)—Leo Durocher started serving his third suspension of the season today as his New York Yankees prepared to face the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second of their three-game series.

The latest suspension is a two-day vacation handed to the 191 manager National League President Warren Giles for the baseball incident in the New York Brooklyn game of Monday afternoon.

Durocher was held responsible for Monte Kennedy throwing at Joe Black but the suspension was for a warning by the umpires. Leo also was fined $100. Other Giants fined were Kennedy and Larry Jansen, who hit Billy Cox with a pitch in the ninth inning and was ordered from the game by plate umpire Lee Ballantyne. Kennedy was fined $50 and Jansen $25. Because of Jansen's excellent record, his fine was remitted.

Durocher was forbidden to direct his club in today's and tomorrow's games. Each time the Pirates ace the opposition, Leo has been suspended twice before by Giles, once for the shoo-kicking episode with umpire Bill Stewart in Philadelphia June 29 and the other time for his near fist fight with umpire Augie Donatelli Aug. 17 at the Polo Grounds.

In a lengthy telegram to Giant officials, Giles said Kennedy was fined because it was believed that he threw deliberately at Brooklyn batters.

"Under the provision of a bulletin sent to all clubs dated Aug. 5, Manager Durocher must be held accountable but this is not intended to imply that he gave any instruction to Kennedy to deliberately throw at any batter. On the contrary, it appears he Durocher did exercise some control of the situation by voluntarily removing Kennedy from the game after he was warned by the umpires."

Kennedy did not hit anybody but drew a warning for two inside pitches to pitcher Black. Another Kennedy pitch sent Gil Hodges to the dirt in the seventh. Jansen hit Andy Patko and Cox, and Hoyt Wilhelm hit Hodges. The latter incidently spiked Giant second baseman Billy Rigney, inflicting a wound in the calf of the right leg that required five stitches.

Stengel Absent As Yankees Lead Cut

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"I won't talk, I won't talk. See Casey Stengel tomorrow."

That's all coach Jim Turner had to say as he escorted a reporter and photographer out of the New York Yankee clubhouse last night.

The thing he wouldn't talk about was the Yanks' 5-4 loss to the St. Louis Browns just a few minutes earlier. Turner had been acting manager for the ailing Stengel during the game.

Turner wouldn't let the players talk to the newsman about the weather, let alone the defeat. The room wasn't too gloomy, but it was quiet.

"I can't talk for the club," Turner said. "I'm not the manager. Casey Stengel will be happy to see you at his hotel tomorrow afternoon."

Stengel is suffering from a thorough to St. Louis catcher-pitcher infection in the stomach. Clint Courtney's thigh that lost the game. The bases were loaded and the score tied at the time—the last of the ninth. Courtney proudly showed off a bruise from the ball in the Browns' dressing room.

"That's an easy way to win a ball game," he said.

Courtney said Dick Littlefield, with his seventh hit pitching, really beat New York.

He didn't do as well as in two batters against Chicago, but he was facing a harder-hitting club.

One New Coach For Irish Teams

Shamrock has back two of its three-man senior high coaching staff of 1950 and 1951's championship teams. But a gaping hole remains where H. W. "H" Calan, line coach, departed to become head mentor of the scrappy Leora Pirates.

Again at the helm is Scott McCall, head coach, whose football savvy has the respect of the entire Panhandle. The fiery Irish coach, a graduate of T. C. U. in 1937, was an all-state halfback for Masonic Home of Port Worth in 1932.

McCall coached in Oklahoma and came to Shamrock as assistant coach in 1939. Two years later he became Wellington head coach and in 1942 was an ensign in the navy.

Returning to Shamrock in 1946, the canny McCall piloted six grid teams prior to this season and three of them—1947, 1950 and 1951—racked up bi-district crowns. The others were second in their loops.

McCall, who concentrates on the backfield, is known as a man who pulls rabbits out of hats, as when he threw a pass for the extra-point at Perryton man who pulls raitts out of hats, as when he threw a pass for the extra-point at Perryton last fall to save the conference title when the ball was as wet as an ocean.

Clarence Morris, assistant coach is an end-specialist. At Perryton he was an all-regional end in 1939 when the Rangers were titans of Panhandle football. Later he was an all-conference end at East Texas State college, Commerce. He has produced two all-state ends, the last being Van Pennington.

win over rookie Mike Fornieles. Successive homers by Cliff Maps and Joe Ginsberg in the last half of the 11th gave Detroit a 4-3 victory over Boston, dropping the Red Sox into fourth place.

Cincinnati and the Braves swapped snouts in their twilight twin bill in Boston. The Reds Harry Perkowski bested Max Surkont, 2-0, after the Braves' Warren Spahn had taken a 3-0 hurling duel from rookie Joe Nuxhall.

Taft Unchanged In Thinking By Defeat

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Taft can afford to be calm about the kind of support he gives General Eisenhower. He is one of those fortunate men who no longer has to be troubled by ambition. He has abandoned hope for the one job he desired above all others, the presidency. It is unlikely Eisenhower, if the general wins, could offer Taft any other spot he likes as well as his present job in the Senate.

No other job would give him such a forum for his views and opinions, which he likes to express. And he has a following which shows his views.

His Senate job — he was elected in 1950 to a six-year term — is safe for another four years. He is 63 now.

The fact that the majority of the Republican party, as represented by delegates to the National Convention, turned him down in favor of Eisenhower doesn't necessarily mean the majority doesn't share his views. It may have chosen the general because it thought he had a better chance of winning in November, although the party has turned Taft down three times now — in 1940, in 1948 and in 1952 — for a crack at the presidency.

This does not seem to have made even a slight dent in his thinking. He has indicated in no way that he has changed. And he knows he represents the thinking of many Republicans who might have preferred him as a candidate.

For two weeks now at least there has been increasing talk — on an on-again and off-again basis — that he was going to confer with Eisenhower, who has apparently been anxious to have him campaign vigorously. Several times, without committing himself to any promises of beating the bushes for the man who beat him in Chicago, Taft said he wants to talk with the general to learn his views and what he'd do if elected.

This hesitancy of Taft's leaves the door open for him to decline such a speaking tour if he doesn't hear from Eisenhower what he wants to hear.

If Taft stays out of it and Eisenhower wins, the general's supporters will, it seems sure, try to topple Taft from his present position of Republican leader in the Senate.

If Eisenhower makes commitments to Taft and then goes on to win, with Taft's help, Taft would be in a better position to keep his Senate leadership post.

Hold-Up Play Is Very Dangerous

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

We hear so much about the hold-up play, but sometimes we overlook the fact that a hold-up can be a fatal mistake. It is almost as important to know when not to hold-up a suit as it is to know when to execute this every important play.

When West opened the seven of diamonds in the hand shown today, South made the mistake of holding up dummy's ace. East won with the queen of diamonds and returned the suit to dummy's ace. Thus West's long suit was established in the first two tricks.

South needed at least two club to make his contract, so he immediately tried the club finesse. This had the great merit of getting the agony over quickly. West took the king of clubs and the rest of his diamonds to defeat the contract.

South should have won the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds, since this was one of the standard positions in which an expert does not hold up. Whether East dropped the queen or the ten of diamonds the suit would be blanked. Declarer would immediately try the club finesse, and West would win with the king.

BEATTY CIRCUS ELEPHANTS — A specialty of the Clyde Beatty Circus, to be sponsored by the Pampa Shrine Club at show include Clyde Beatty (Mr. Circus) and his wild animal act; elephants, commanded by young ladies. Other highlights of the Recreation Park next Monday, is a trick routine of a group of Con Colleton, tight-wire artist; the Flying Harolds, acrobats, and the Erikson Troupe. Performances are scheduled for 3:30 and 8 p.m.

Ticket Sale For Clyde Beatty Circus Begins Today in Pampa

Advance ticket sales for the Clyde Beatty Circus will be sponsored in Pampa by the Pampa Recreation Park which began officially today with announcements of locations where tickets may be bought.

Quentin Williams, chairman of arrangements committee, said tickets are available at Modern Pharmacy, Tom Rose Ford House, Leder's Jewelry, Zales Jewelry and Pampa Office Supply.

It was pointed out that the Shrine Club is given twice as much profit on tickets sold in advance as those sold at the gate. Only general admission tickets will be sold until Monday at 8 p.m. when reserve seats go on sale in the lobby of the Combs-Worley building.

Proceeds of the circus will be used by the club in its work for crippled children. All Shrine members are being made to make it an annual appearance. Performances are scheduled for 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Schools in Pampa are to be dismissed at 3 p.m. that day.

Persons unable to get to town Williams said, and have tickets to buy tickets may call 2404, delivered either Friday or Saturday.

This is the second year the Shrine Club has sponsored the show on tour, in Pampa and plans are being made to make it an annual appearance. Final arrangements were made at a meeting of the club Monday evening. At that time, the group also heard reports from committee chairmen on planning activities during 1952-53.

Fish Pay Off For Farmers

By BOB BOSSON
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — An unusual crop rotation plan of which fish is a major product is paying dividends for rice farmers in Arkansas' famed Grand Prairie section.

As a result, practically every rice farmer in Lonoke County has become a fish farmer, too. It came about this way:

Rice lands in this section must be rotated every third year and even then unwanted red rice often begins to take over the fields. A Lonoke County farmer who had been raising minnows and goldfish for bait in an old rice field discovered his yields increased sharply when he put the field in rice again.

That event on the E. H. Nixon farm started an investigation and the new fish farming industry. The nearby White River produces some of the best commercial fish — buffalo, catfish, drum and other freshwater species — in the Central United States.

So each spring, when commercial fish prices are low, rice farmers buy huge lots of live or "rough" fish averaging about five pounds each. The fish are transported to the rice farms in aerated trucks and dumped into the flooded fields.

Although there usually is enough natural food in the rotated fields for the fish, they are fed when necessary much like a cattle farmer fattening steers on pasture.

Then in the hot summer or midwinter months, when fish prices are high, the farmers drain the ponds, walk in pick up the overgrown fish and haul them off to city markets.

Glenn Bailey, one of the first fish farmers in the area, says this system helps White River fishermen who have trouble finding a market in the spring. It helps to stabilize the price of fish.

Approximately 5,000 acres of rice reservoir lands in Lonoke County now are in fish farms.

Dunlap Grabs Top Batting Average

DALLAS (AP) — Grant Dunlap, Shreveport first baseman, held the Texas League batting championship today. Dunlap wound up with an average of .333 compiled on 154 hits in 462 times at bat. Second was Babe Martin of San Antonio with .329.

Harry Elliott of Shreveport got the most hits with 204. Joe Frazier of Oklahoma City and Elliott tied for the lead in doubles with 48 apiece. Jim Greengrass of Beaumont led in triples with 5. Harry Heisel of San Antonio in home runs with 3. Russ of Oklahoma City in runs batted in with 20 and Joe Kopee of Shreveport in runs with 36.

The base-stealing title went to Bill Hunter, Fort Worth shortstop, with 24.

The News Presents . . . The Little Merchants

Carl Nunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Nunn, 312 N. Christy, is today's presentation in the carrier staff of the Pampa Daily News. Carl begins a new route Friday when he starts delivering to residents on Terrace, N. Starkweather and Garland, just south of Louisiana Street.

For the past nine months he has served customers on W. Foster and W. Kingsmill from Somerville to the ends of the streets and S. Hobart from Francis to the railroad tracks.

Carl is in the eighth grade at junior high and says he likes school pretty well, especially math — and the lunch hour.

He doesn't participate a great deal in school athletics but he plays the cornet in the junior high band.

Carl wants to be an engineer when he gets out of school. He likes movies about adventure and

Rockets To Go 500 Miles Up And 1,000 Miles Out By 1957

CHICAGO (AP) — Navy rocket researchers have forecast that rockets will probe 1,000 miles into space in five years.

By that time, they told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers convention, single stage rockets may be expected to reach multi-stage rockets, 1,000 miles.

A multi-stage rocket is one with more than one power plant. As the fuel in one section is exhausted, the section drops off and the fuel plant of the section ahead is cut in.

The researchers are Milton W. Rosen, head of the rocket section, and Richard B. Snodgrass, physicist, of the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington.

In a paper prepared for the meeting, they said the higher altitudes will be made possible by improvements in motor efficiency and weight efficiency. Single stage rockets fired by American scientists have reached a height of 136 miles and a small WAC Corporal rocket shot from the nose of a soaring German rocket V-2 has been credited with going 250 miles high.

The researchers disclosed that the newer Viking rockets can be guided by radio from the ground. These rockets are equipped with a radio command system which will turn the rocket toward the center of the testing range if they become erratic and threaten to go off course and travel outside the range boundaries.

Scientists could cut off the power of rockets by radio before, but could not guide their flight from the ground, the scientists said.

"This technique has made it possible to obtain photographs of the earth, solar spectra and cosmic ray emulsions from the highest altitudes, obtainable," they said.
