The longest of all of the scheduled routes, and probably the longest taxi run in the world, is to Sufertopol and Yalta in the Crimea.

The distance from Moscow to Sufertopol is about 300 miles. Zis taxis cover it in about two days. The fare for one adult is $25.50, which is the equivalent of $52.12 at the official rate of exchange. Many Russians are willing to pay the price for the relative speed and comfort of the journey.

Long distance taxi travel is popular with other groups. It is extremely convenient for persons traveling to good-sized cities not extremely far from Moscow. For instance, take the city of Vladimir. This is an important industrial center, about 120 miles east of Moscow.

An inhabitant of Vladimir who wishes to come to Moscow for the day finds the Zis taxis the most speedy and convenient method of transport. During the day one leaves every few hours on the three-hour trip to the center of the capital. The charge, higher than for a bus or by train, is justified by the greater speed and convenience. Requests For Constitutional Convention Slumps Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventeen states have asked that a national convention be called to amend the Constitution but no one knows how to go about it.

Legal experts for the House Judiciary Committee have reported after intensive research that no one knows how to put on a constitutional convention, and urged Congress to consider legislation clearing up the question.

All 21 amendments have been adopted under one constitutional procedure. They were proposed by Congress and ratified by three-fourths of the states.

The Constitution provides that Congress must call an amending convention upon petition of two-thirds of the state legislatures—32 at present.

This method has never been used. But now several states have proposed it in petitioning for an amendment that would restrict Congress taxing authority to 25 per cent of incomes, except during a national emergency.

Six states later cancelled their petitions by other resolutions—Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. The experts said the law is silent but they thought states should be allowed to change their minds.

Maryland's petition was approved only by the House of Delegates.

Scramble For Steel Is On

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — The scramble for steel is on despite government plans to parcel it out among users.

Fears that allocation may force further plant shutdowns in the next few months were widespread. Layoffs won't end with the strike.

Defense plants are to have top priority on steel. Then come the scramble among the many defense-supporting industries.

The steel industry has a plan, approved by the government, to allocate the metal but many users are bound to be pinched more or less seriously.

In the next six weeks all tinplate made is to be of the vegetable and fruit crops won't be lost.

Auto makers are seeking steel ingots they can have mills convert into sheets for them. Detroit fears that in an attempt to keep all industries going at least in part production the government may funnel too much of

Boy On Death Bed Wishing For Mail

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Odell Hall, 10, who has selected his burial clothes because he knows he is dying, wants some mail.

Odell's only desire is for letters and post cards, especially the "pretty kind," his mother said in an appeal for mail.

Mrs. C. R. Hall said her son has been sick for nine years with a heart condition. She and Odell are living in a small town in the mountains of Kentucky.

The chemical industry, in the midst of a $1.2 billion dollar expansion program, says steel shortages are already crippling it. Some construction will have to be stopped for lack of steel, industry spokesmen say.

The electric power industry says steel shortages and allocations will scuttle its expansion program for this year, and may hinder its reaching its goal for 1953.

The railroads also worry about delivery of the locomotives and cars they have on order. Ironically enough, they are faced with a new demand for cars brought on by the steel strike.

But these large users of steel are all tied in, directly or indirectly, with the defense program and can hope for some priority aid.

Critical Eye Needed

To obtain a real analysis of the 1952 Democratic platform it would be necessary to reprint column after column of direct refutation after a working basis for discussion had been decided upon.

And once a working basis has been decided upon there really is no basis for discussion of the New Deal platform. To enter into a discussion with a New Deal proponent of the platform is to be launched into a sea of emotionalism in which logic and reason are drowned. To attempt to discuss the program as outlined in the platform is like trying to measure a given tract of unit of measure.

Over and over again the platform boasts about some particular program of socialism and blithely admonishes those who oppose socialism that the program is not socialistic. That's all. Just take our word for it. You're not losing your freedom and we're not trying to change the traditional liberties of America into a form of slavery without calling it socialism. We've said it and that's all there is to it.

It appears obvious that the Democratic party through the last 20 years has promised everything that could be promised. Thus, for this campaign, there are no new promises of note. Since they couldn't think of anything more to promise as vote-getters, all the committee on platform could think of was to promise more of the same old stuff.

What is not mentioned in the platform is that all of the special services and handouts of the Democrats must be paid for. Nor did the platform point out that all of the "social progress" must be paid for by government, which is non-productive, through taxation which must come from the people being socialized.

Nor is there any mention made of what happens to the workers who are doing the producing when one man is penalized in order that government may give a hand-out to another. We suggest that our readers read with a critical eye. We suggest that the readers find for themselves the various steps to a more socialized nation, keeping in mind that all of the promises of the platform which pledge special handouts and services beyond the protection of the lives and property of the citizens of the country.

We suggest that the reader take as his own platform the simple statement: "No special privilege for anyone," and see if the Democratic platform can live up to this approach to government. If emotionalism is disregarded and the platform is read with such an analytical eye it will be quickly recognized that all that the party has promised is more and more expansion of the New Deal - Fair Deal program that is rapidly taking us down the road to complete socialism and ultimately to a form of communism that the party professes to hate.

When Should The State Protect You?

The belief that the state should protect an individual from being injured under all circumstances is one of the primary causes of the growth of the totalitarian or welfare state.

One could prove by that line of reasoning that an individual must be protected from his own errors and that no individual was free to make mistakes or to experiment or to learn by trial and error, because when he erred he injured everyone else.

This same line of reasoning causes the government to try to regulate competition. Most people believe that a man is injured when someone else takes his customers from him by giving a better service for less money.

Employees in the printing trades have received substantial wage increases recently.

The Nation's Press

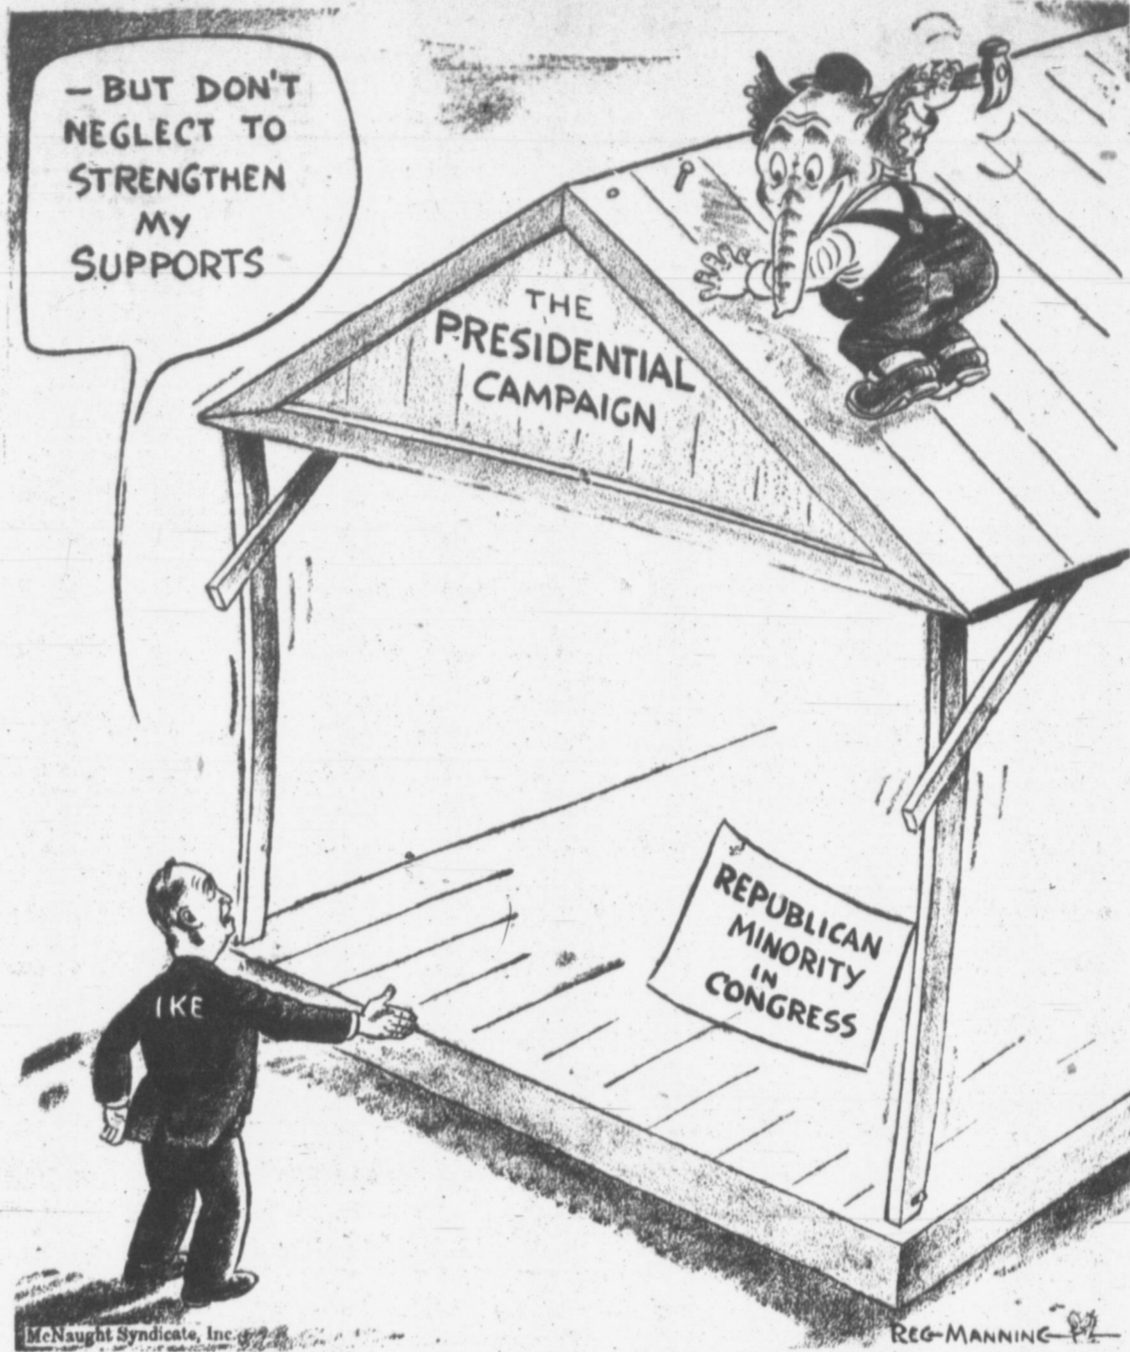

FOOD FOR THOUGHT (Printing Industries' Bulletin)

It is well to remember that a wage increase in certain workers is simply a transfer of funds from certain persons to other persons.

The conclusion that wage increases to a group stimulate business and promote the general welfare is so possible that it is almost universally accepted.

Substantial wage increases are good business for business because they assure a larger market for their products; substantial wage increases are good business for labor because they increase labor's standard of living.

National Whirligig.. Young Leftist Faction Moving Toward Control Of Democrats

By RAY TUCKER

CHICAGO — Although Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt preserved a nominal neutrality during the convention struggle here, "the first lady of the world" is in complete sympathy with the attempt of so-called Rooseveltian liberals, labor sympathizers and freshmen politicians to drive Dixie Democrats out of the party permanently, and to supplant veteran professionals with a younger and more leftist faction.

When she was nominated here only twenty years ago — a short period in American politics — many of them had not reached their voting age.

It is quite possible, although they have as tremendous vitality and comeback power as Barkley himself, that organized labor and certain racial minorities suffered a crippling setback in this effort to shove their ideas down the party's throat.

Graybeards — Although forecasts can be fatal in this turbulent year, we may be approaching the day of the breakup of the "one has political shay" which F.D.R. and Eleanor Roosevelt fashioned out of a nation's distress and misery in this same city in 1932.

In short, the 1952 convention may result in a realignment and reorganization as eventful as that banner of Eleanor's husband. That would be high drama and irony.

DARING — Nothing was settled permanently or fundamentally at Chicago. The conflict will become even more acute during the next four years, if the Democrats should remain in power.

NEOPHYTES — When her husband was nominated here only twenty years ago — a short period in American politics — many of them had not reached their voting age.

RETRAIL — The motley leaders of pressure groups who saw a chance to "use" this interregnum and inter-party faction were quite as inept — lobbyists and agents for the CIO, the Railway Brotherhoods, the Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Down South Tax-Spend Program Is Not The American Way To Prosperity

By THURMAN BENSING Southern States Industrial Council Nashville, Tennessee

Let's think a moment about prosperity. There is one thing about prosperity of which we can be quite sure — we all want it! And we should remember, especially during this election year, that no political party has any monopoly on the desire for prosperity and that any claims to the contrary are false on the face of them.

On the other hand, one might work hard, save his money, use good judgment in his investments, and prosper greatly therefrom — while at the same time giving full value received for the prosperity thus acquired.

As we think on these things from the national viewpoint, we can only reach the conclusion now held by many people that the so-called prosperity we presently have is a false prosperity.

Let's think a moment about prosperity. There is one thing about prosperity of which we can be quite sure — we all want it! And we should remember, especially during this election year, that no political party has any monopoly on the desire for prosperity and that any claims to the contrary are false on the face of them.

And we should remember, especially during this election year, that no political party has any monopoly on the desire for prosperity and that any claims to the contrary are false on the face of them.

ently have is a false prosperity. Many facts indicate it. We know that we have the most overvalued debt of any nation in history and that it is again on the increase.

We know that for 18 of the last 21 years our federal government has lived beyond its income.

We know that the attempt of our government to spend its way out of the depression during the '30s never did succeed and that only gave the appearance of succeeding through the advent of the Second World War.

We know that our prosperity, so-called, since the end of that war has largely been based on additional smaller scale wars and preparation for larger scale wars.

We know that we now have an inflated dollar, worth only about half the dollar of fifteen years ago.

We know that high taxes are destroying much of the initiative and incentive of the people to work and invest and produce.

In view of these facts, the only conclusion we can reach is that we no more have prosperity now than the man who borrows the bank or the man who borrows all his cash on his property.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JOELAN, M.D.

The number of people who inquire concerning bursitis raises the question as to whether this painful disorder is increasing in frequency, and there are many of them. Arthritis, on the other hand, is an inflammation of the lining of the joints.

Bursitis is inflammation of the lining of those small pockets or spaces which lie near the joints. And there are many of them. Arthritis, on the other hand, is an inflammation of the lining of the joints.

There are bursae in other places — all of which have perfectly proper scientific names and any of them can become inflamed.

As in the two forms mentioned, the most common cause of bursitis is injury — either by repeated small injuries or from one big one.

He Couldn't Resist! Hank Makes A 'Contribution' To Mexico's Fire Department

By HENRY McLEMORE
HUICHUYAYAN, Mexico — With the peso pegged at 8.35 the American dollar goes a long way here south of the border. And the nice thing is, that it goes a long way for other things than out-and-out staples, such as food, lodging, tequila, and souvenirs.

For proof, consider what happened to me today.

I was whizzing along the Pan American Highway toward Mexico City when I was halted by the most impressive individual who ever stopped me from whizzing along.

He stood squarely in the middle of the highway, a rifle at port arms, mustachios at attention. He was dressed in a uniform which would have brought gasps of admiration from the late but not lamented Hermann Goering of the Third Reich.

The uniform was of whipcord, snowy white, and was relieved only by epaulettes as golden as a showing-off sun, two giant pistols which rode the gentleman's hips like lethal surfboards, and boots which appeared to have been carved out of a slab of old mahogany.

"What have I done to deserve this honor?" I asked myself. "I do not know President Aleman, nor am I acquainted with the president-elect, Senor Ruiz Cortines. Why, out here on a lonely stretch of the highway, should I be greeted by what must be a six-star general?"

And it was a lonely stretch of road. With my bifocals on, I could not detect a single sign of human habitation. Miles and miles of arid plain, populated by nothing more animated than cacti, with mountains standing in the far distance.

When the Field Marshal (he must have been all of that) poked his head in the window on my side of the car I bowed as well as a plump man can

Corrine Calvet Says American Women Not Honest With Mate

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It all started when I asked Corrine Calvet about her feud with Zsa Zsa Gabor.

The French girl and the Hungarian have been tossing mild insults back and forth at each other, but they have been getting less mild. Miss Calvet said she is consulting her lawyer about some of her adversary's recent remarks.

That brought up the question: "How do you get along with other women?"

"Not too well," Miss Calvet remarked on the "Powder River" set. "I like men better, and they seem to like me."

She qualified that a bit: "I get along well with European women, because we understand each other. European women are honest with other women; there is no sham about them."

"But I do not fare so well with American women. They believe all the legends about French girls, and they think I am going to try to take their men away from them. How ridiculous!"

"I think American women are not as open and above-board as Europeans. And that is why divorce is such a problem in this country. The women do not let their future husbands know what they are getting."

She cited the old story about the man who thought he had married a perfect beauty. "But

Education Gets The Bird, Literally

CLEVELAND (AP) — Education at Johns Carroll University is getting the bird — literally.

The bird, a pigeon, was found in a weakened condition two weeks ago two Latin students. They nursed him back to health in their dormitory room.

Since that time, the pigeon has made their windowsill his home, and follows roughly this schedule:

Breakfast, mostly peanuts, at the school cafeteria; lectures from classroom windows until noon; lunch, more peanuts; stunt flying practice, dinner, peanuts again; and finally, a ringside seat at bull sessions in the cafe-teria.

Contributions for our Fire Department gratefully received. We pledge our cooperation in case of fire.

What Fire Department? The Fire Department of what city? As far as I could see, there was nothing in sight for miles and miles that could possibly burn.

But the words, "We pledge our cooperation in case of fire" were too much to resist, so I shoved two pesos through the slot.

What a fool I would have been not to have given two pesos, all of 24 cents, to the mysterious

... the CLEAN kitchen — of Course it's Electric!

Yes, and it's a completely clean kitchen, too. Walls and curtains spotless and bright, free of grease and grime. Wallpaper or paint keeps looking lovely longer—that keeps redecorating costs down. Your pots and pans—and the range elements themselves—always bright and shiny.

Yes, there's a clean—spotlessly clean—way to cook. Of course, it's electric.
