Crash Fatal To 19, Survivor Says Plane Hit Air Pocket

WASKOM, Tex., May 18—UP—The lone survivor of a Delta-Chicago and Southern Airlines DC-3 that crashed in a wooded area near here Sunday killing 19 persons said Monday the plane seemed to hit an air pocket shortly before the disaster.

"I had fallen asleep in the rain," Mrs. Hazel Cox, 21, of Panama City, Fla., said "the plane evidently hit an air pocket and it woke me up. Just after the plane seemed to hit the air pocket, it seemed to be shuddering. Then I saw some flames. I don't seem to recall whether it was lightning or fire."

The accident occurred shortly after noon Sunday six miles west of this little East Texas town on the Louisiana-Texas border.

Crashes in Pine Forest—The pilot, co-pilot and hostess and 18 passengers, including a two-month-old baby, were killed when the plane, enroute from Dallas to Atlanta, crashed and exploded in a heavy rain and hail storm in swampy pine forest.

Mrs. Cox was reported Monday by hospital attendants to be "getting alone fine" but the extent of her multiple injuries has not been determined. X-rays were being taken. Her husband Air Force S. Sgt. J. W. Cox, said she may not have a broken leg, but it's badly bruised.

Civil Aeronautics Authority and Civil Aeronautics Board investigators worked under searchlights early Monday to learn the cause of the accident.

Everything Reported Normal—The pilot had checked with the airport at Marshall, Tex., 20 miles west of where the plane crashed, and reported everything normal. He radioed the control tower at Shreveport 20 miles east of the crash scene about 15 minutes before the crash and asked for landing instructions.

The plane was scheduled to make a routine landing at Shreveport. The tower gave the pilot instructions but heard nothing more from him.

The DC-3 sheared the tops from trees for some 400 yards. The plane burned to a skeleton except from the door to the tail.

The path through the forest was littered with the victims' belongings.

Mrs. Cox was taken to Kahn Memorial hospital at Marshall with a broken leg and head injuries. Physicians said she also may have broken ribs.

Woke From a Nap—She told Dr. Roger Harmon that she woke from a nap as the plane clipped the tops of trees, rolling over and over.

"Mrs. Cox said she had fallen asleep—it was raining heavily," Harmon said. "When she woke up, the plane was going over and over. She was in a puddle with a man who was dying. She saw the flames... heard people screaming."

Her husband, Air Force S. Sgt. J. W. Cox of Panama City, Fla., has been sent to Jackson, Miss., enroute to Camp Kilmer, N. J., from where he was to go overseas. Mrs. Cox was flying from Albuquerque, N. M., to Jackson for a final visit.

"It was her first trip in a plane," Cox, who was flown to Mars' after the crash, said. "I thought it would be a very nice trip for her."

Harrison will confer again Tuesday with the delegation before returning to the Allied truce camp at Munsan for the resumption of Panmunjom Wednesday of truce talks, now in recess.

Harrison called the recess last Saturday "for administrative reasons" and said the delegation horns with Communist negotiator on final disposition of prisoners of war who do not want to go home.

There was some speculation that the United States wanted to see Great Britain, since Prime Minister Winston Churchill had endorsed with reservations, the eight-point truce plan submitted by the Communists and rejected by Harrison on advice from Washington.

Pampa's clean-up drive got underway today in Ward 4 as four trucks, manned by four men each, began going through alleys to pick up trash, old lumber, throwaways and other old junk house holders wanted to get rid of.

Although "some of the alleyways were muddy, the trucks were able to get through without too much trouble," Cruce said.

The drive in Ward 4 ends Tuesday. Wednesday—the trucks will move into Ward 3 for two days, and then on into Wards 2 and 1, where they will spend three-day each.

Truce Talks In Secrecy

Murder Victim's Body Being Retrieved By Scotland Yard

LONDON, May 18 —UP—Scotland Yard grave diggers Monday dug up the murdered body of Mrs. Beryl Evans, wife of a man sent to the gallows on testimony of John Christie, self-confessed "Notting Hill stranger." The exhumation officials went to gloomy Kensington Borough cemetery in suburban Chiswick at 4 a.m. and removed Mrs. Evans' coffin within two hours. Ten-foot-high screens around the strangled woman's grave hid the diggers. Police patrolled the cemetery throughout the night to prevent newsmen and photographers from witnessing the exhumation. Police took the coffin away in a police ambulance. Mrs. Evans and her small daughter, Geraldine, were strangled in a tenement house in the shabby Notting Hill section of London in November, 1949. Husband convicted Her husband, Timothy, was convicted of the double-act and hanged after swearing that Christie, his landlady, had killed the woman and child. Christie's testimony in which he denied Timothy Evans' allegations was the prosecution's strongest evidence against the defendant who had confessed to the crimes and then repudiated the admission. Christie again was connected with the Evans case last March when four bodies were found entombed in the floors and walls of his apartment in the same "murder house" where Mrs. Evans and her daughter died. Wife Was Victim One of the victims was Christie's 50-year-old wife whose body was found beneath the flooring. Partly-clad bodies of the three other women had been hidden in an alcove under the kitchen sink and covered with gaily colored wallpaper. Each of the women had been strangled. Scotland Yard also found two skeletons in the tiny garden at Christie's house. Christie was captured one week later and was reported to have confessed. He will be tried for murder next month.

Auxiliary Set For Poppy Day

Poppy Day will be observed in Pampa and throughout most of the nation Saturday, the day before Memorial Day. Mrs. M.E. Roche, poppy chairman of the Kerley-Crossman Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced today. On that day, she said, everyone in the city will be asked to wear a memorial poppy in honor of the dead of the two World Wars and the Korean conflict. Crepe paper poppies, made by disabled veterans of the three wars, will be distributed on the streets throughout the day by volunteer workers of the Auxiliary and cooperating groups. They are replicas of the wild poppies which grew in the World War I battle cemeteries in France and Flanders, Mrs. Roche said, and have thus become the memorial flower for America's war dead. In exchange for the poppies, the Auxiliary will accept contributions for its work for disabled veterans and for needy children of veterans who are largely supported by these contributions. All monies collected will be used by the American Legion Auxiliary to aid disabled war veterans during the coming year, according to Mrs. Al Lawson rehabilitation chairman of the unit. ### Rogers Sees Probe In Subsidy Matter

A congressional investigation into why government subsidy how much and why, will soon be asked for by Rep. Walter Rogers, Pampa, it was learned this morning. Rogers said he expects to introduce the resolution within the next few days requesting a full investigation and a "definite" marking of the subsidies enjoyed at the expense of the American taxpayer. The information was disclosed in the Pampa congressman's weekly newsletter to newspapers of his 18th Congressional District. The most difficult problem at present is finding out the exact amount of the subsidies, who gets them and why, the congressman said. "It is time... this information is being given to a dollar and cent standpoint. It can then be determined which are justified and which should be reduced or abolished," Rogers declared.

Pampa Club Will Sponsor Exhibit Of Texas Fine Arts Association In Library

Senior Class Honored At Shamrock Banquet

SHAMROCK (Special) — The senior class of Shamrock High School transplanted a little bit of Ireland to the American Legion Home last week to use as a background when they entertained the seniors of 1953 with a banquet and reception. The senior class colors of green and white were emphasized in decorations at "The Fairy and Shamrock Party." Magic Irish harps of white styrofoam tied with bows of green maline stood in the center of floral arrangements along the tables. Tall white tapers in green containers cast a glow of light to illuminate the setting.

As guests entered, they came through an archway entwined with flowers, and flanked with tall white tapers of flowers.

One receiving line were Miss Virginia Whelley, junior class sponsor, and the class officers, James Earl Turnbow, president; Johnnie Hartwick, vice president; Sharon Lawler, secretary; and Katherine Kivall, treasurer.

During the dinner hour, Gene L. Field played piano selections. Programs were miniature "Books of Memories" decorated with green Irish harps. The menu consisted of St. Patrick's beef, barley soup, paddy's pig, Shillalah, Emerald Isles, Shamrock, River Shannon and Dublin's delight.

The invocation was given by James Henderson. Gratitude for those who aided in preparations for the evening was expressed by Mrs. Wheeler. "Welcome to Erin" was sung by Killarney Colleen, wearing the native costume of Ireland. Pam Tidal gave a reading, "The Magic Harp," which was followed by "Irish Airs" by DeWayne Beatty, Billy Ryan, George Hendricks and James Henderson.

The public is invited to attend the showing of the Texas Fine Arts Association exhibit sponsored by the Pampa Art Club. The display will start Wednesday and be shown for two weeks in the City Library.

The exhibit will also include water colors and prints.

Prize winners in this show include Devoress' "Waterfall," Erwin Johns Clark of Dallas is one of the featured artists in this exhibit. Clark, a lawyer by profession, paints for the pleasure of it. He points out that he has had no formal training except a three month's course in life drawing. ### Thursday Fine Arts Club Has Final Meet SHAMROCK (Special) — The final meeting of the Thursday Fine Arts Club year was held in the Dixie Cafe Dining room with Mrs. Walter Pendleton Jr. as hostess.

Mrs. Pendleton presented a cash member with a corsage of sweet peas, the club flower, before dinner was served.

Mrs. Pendleton was also in charge of installing the new officers. Mrs. Cabot Brannon was installed as president, Mrs. Bedford Harrison, vice president; Geraldine Howard, Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Joel Gooch, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Harry Clay, parliamentarian.

Shamrock Students Entertain Mothers

SHAMROCK (Special) — First grade youngsters of the South Ward School under the direction of Mrs. George Close, honored their mothers recently with a tea. The little folks presided in their school room with the boys in the receiving line and girls pouring tea.

The tea table was laid with a cloth of lace over blue. A yellow and blue theme was carried out in the centerpiece arrangement of daisies. Punch was served from an antique berry bowl, which is more than 100 years old.

Each mother was presented a corsage by her child. Mrs. O. B. Harvey Jr., Mrs. Mary Bledsoe and Mrs. George Robinson and Mrs. Louise Burrell, teachers in the school were special guests.

McCurlley-Stacy Vows Exchanged

SHAMROCK (Special) — Miss Frankie McCurlley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle McCurlley of McLean, became the bride of Michael Stacy of Oklahoma City, recently.

Vows were exchanged in the First Baptist Church of Shamrock, Rev. James O. Todd officiated at the single ring ceremony. The church altar was decorated with tall white baskets of gladioli, white stock and fern. Lighted tapers in floor candelabra formed an arch.

As guests assembled, Mrs. Cabot Brannon, organist, played a prelude of wedding music, and accompanied Mrs. Bill Hood of White Deer as she sang "Always" and "Because." For the professional Mrs. Brannon played "The Bridal Chorus" by Wagner and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional.

Candles were lighted by the ushers, Vernon Tarbet and Weldon McCurlley of McLean, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Marshall Steward of Leola, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of net over taffeta in a melon shade. It was designed with a strapless bodice and full skirt. She wore a stole of net and carried a colonial bouquet of blue carnations.

Miss Tetta McCurlley of McLean, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of pale aqua. Styled along identical lines as the dress worn by the matron of honor. Her colonial bouquet was of pink carnations.

C. I. Pettit of Pampa served the bridegroom as best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a bridal gown of white net over taffeta. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice in a strapless style edged with tiny roses of pink and blue net attached to the full ballerina length skirt. She wore a net stole and a small off the face hat. A shower of satin ribbon fastened the gardenias and rosebuds she carried atop a white Bible. Immediately following the wedding, the couple left for a trip to Missouri, Arkansas and other points east.

They will make their home in Amarillo where the bridegroom is associated with Western Electric. The bride has been associated with Southwestern Bell Telephone Association in Shamrock.

Beavers bear litters of two to six young once a year in the late spring.

Sound Off By A Leaguer

In the works for the Pampa League of Women Voters, is a plan for broadcasting city commission and other meetings of our public service groups in which citizens have a vital interest. The benefits of such programs are reciprocal. Our officials are often aggrieved at the public's lack of interest in the huge amount of work necessary to keep a city, a county, a school or a hospital running smoothly. On the other hand, taxpayers citizens would often be more amenable to reason in the extra fund department, if they were made fully aware of the why and wherefore of such needs. Our city and county officials, including school and hospital boards, practice the open door policy, which is precisely as it should be. But of what benefit to them or to us, if we take no interest in what is, after all, our business also.

Our radio chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Chalmers, has been busy on another project of interest, namely a 15-minute broadcast of a panel discussion on "Citizenship, A Christian Concern" led by league president, Mrs. H. H. Hahn. This will be announced at a later date. This program was given by a group of Pampa Leaguers at Panhandle recently.

The Pampa League of Women Voters is prepared to furnish capable speakers or panels for any meetings on any subject in the field of government, book reviews included. Mrs. H. H. Hahn, 814 N. Somerville, or Mrs. W. L. Campbell, Star Rt. 2, Pampa, may be contacted for information.

Additional board members of the league, not heretofore announced are Mrs. Glenn McConnell, representative to Council of Clubs, Mrs. L. M. Hicks, chairman of the nominating committee, and Mrs. J. W. Edminster, chairman of Scrapbook Committee.

He'd Like To Slug Authors ... Test Questions About Man's Grade As Husband Vex Henry

By HENRY McEMORE

It gives me no pleasure to raise my pen against those who make their living by the pen because there is a kinship between us. I know what a tough battle we are in, but there comes a time when a man's convictions are thicker than his wish to do right by his brothers. So today I want to flail out, swing from the floor, at those men and women who devise those questions to test a man's grade as a husband.

You know the sort of quiz I am talking about. If you don't, here is a sample, with each correct answer counting ten. A score of a hundred makes a husband more perfect than a nightingale singing while perched on a lotus bud. A score of ninety makes a husband as perfect as a politician's promises. If he scores only eighty his wife has a right to complain, and the poor breadwinner who racks up a seventy has no reason to fuss if his dearly beloved scampers home to mama.

1. When your wife cooks a breakfast that a tractor couldn't digest, do you tell her off or do you smile and say, "My pet, I love you?"

2. When you come home late and find her crying because she has backed the car into the side of the garage, do you hit her over the head with the nearest object at hand, or do you say that the only reason you bought the car was to test her femininity?

3. When you get your shirts full of starch three weeks in a row, after having told her for ten years you didn't want a n y starch in your shirts, do you throw her out of a window, or do you ask her forgiveness for not having been up at dawn to mow the lawn, put the coffee on, wash the dog, and fend off three bill collectors?

4. Do you mind her hanging her washing on the shower curtain rod, or do you tell her she had better find another place to play laundry — or else?

5. Do you tell her she should be more careful with her stockings, and not get a run every time she puts on a pair, or do you jump up and down with joy at her inability to perform what is a fairly simple task?

The quiz usually runs to ten questions, but name me a husband who doesn't know that he has failed after answering four or five.

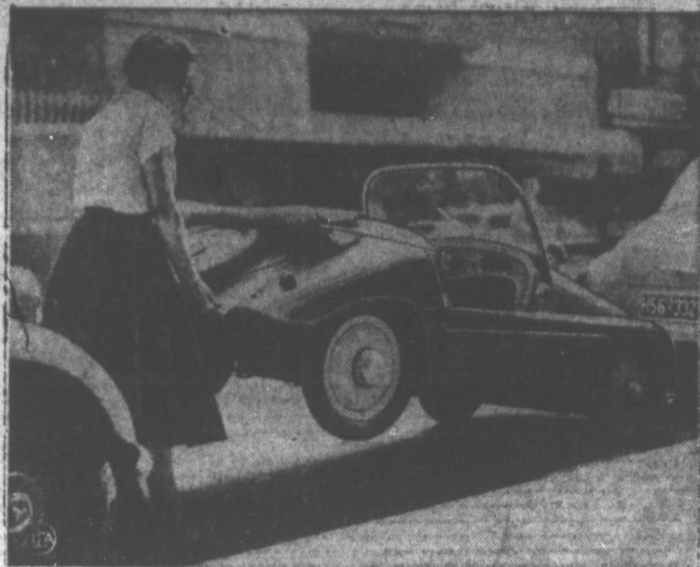

A man can't win.

He pictures himself as a Bluebeard, a Henry the Eighth, or that fat article thrown out of Egypt not so long ago.

This hurts his morale. He begins to doubt himself. He begins to believe he has no right to live on the same block with his wife, much less in the same house. He gets an, "I am a bum," complex.

How I would like to meet, face to face, in a dark alley, the husbands who all down and think up these test questions. How I would like to slug them, and leave them writhing in pain.

Or, better, still, I'd like to take them home, deposit them on their doorsteps, and let them answer to their wives as to why they came home in such a condition.

KISS PARKING BLUES GOODBY—Almost every driver at one time, or another, has wished that he could pick his car up and set it down neatly in a tight parking space. This wish can come true for the owner of the "Kleinwachter," now on display in Frankfurt, Germany. Weighing only 300 pounds, the tiny two-seater is easily lifted into its berth at the curb.

Egyptian Dancer Tells Plan To Divorce Texas Playboy

By GERALD ARATHOON

CAIRO, Egypt, May 18—UP—Belly dancer Samia Gamal said Monday she wouldn't "hang out of a window" her reasons for wanting a divorce from Texas playboy Sheppard (Abdullah) King III.

But the sultry one-time favorite dancer of Egypt's exiled former King Farouk said that if her husband makes unbecoming statements about her at his home in Houston she will retaliate "and how!"

Samia announced Sunday she wanted to break up her 18-month marriage because of all the things King "did to me since our marriage." She declined to describe the alleged mistreatment.

"At the present stage it just wouldn't be decent if I made the reasons public," she said. "Besides, I don't think that should be necessary at all. But if Abdullah makes unbecoming statements at his and I will retaliate and how!"

(King, who called the news that Samia wanted a divorce "ridiculous," said at Houston that he would leave by plane Wednesday for Cairo. "It's a very peculiar thing, I got a wire from her when she arrived in Cairo. She said she missed me and wished I were there. I can't understand something like this.")

Samia said she had received a cablegram from King.

"Abdullah said in his cable he can't stand being away from me any longer," she said. "But I can't head back 'much better you don't come. I'm not going back with you. You know very well what you did to me since our marriage."

King and Samia were married Nov. 29, 1951, in Cairo following a 12-hour courtship that started in Paris when he saw the shapely redhead wriggle through her "virgin of the Nile" dance.

The 29-year-old Texan took the name "Abdullah" and became a Moslem in order to marry Samia. He obtained a second divorce from his wife Gloria whom he had married twice.

Samia said she would ask King for a divorce when she sees him in Cairo.

"And if he does not give it to me, I still won't go back with him," she said.

Walt Disney Fears 3-D Fad To Fizzle

HOLLYWOOD, May 18—UP—Walt Disney unveiled the first cartoon in three-dimensions today—but in the next breath said he thinks 3-D might be a fad that will fizzle out.

Disney has led the cartoon field from Mickey Mouse to his full-length animated stories such as "Peter Pan." Now he's beat the other cartoonists to the punch with the first "depthie" drawings.

He hopes to put Donald Duck and the rest of his cartoon family in 3-D—providing the idea lasts that long.

"Nobody has the answer yet about 3-D," said Disney in his office. "I don't think even the public knows."

"How many more we make depends on how long the theaters run them. If the novelty holds up, we'll make more. We have some more 3-D cartoons in the works now, but we don't know whether the novelty will last long enough for even those to get into the theaters."

"There's a nuisance to wearing the polaroid glasses, and people won't go now unless there's a good story. We won't do a full-length feature in 3-D that would take too long to get out."

Disney's entry in the 3-D merry-go-round is "Melody," the first in a new cartoon series called "Adventures in Music." The characters are his familiar birds and animals. But the backgrounds are more stylized, in the manner of his vigorous competitor, UPA, which made "Gerald McBoing Boing."

The system used in a 3-D cartoon is similar to that for a live 3-D movie, including two strips of film and two projectors. The viewer sees depth and perspective, but the cartoon characters look only as the animators draw them.

"This isn't new to us," Disney went on. "We've had a little research project on 3-D since 1940."

"Recently some 3-D cartoons of just abstract designs made by a Canadian were released, but 'Melody' is the first true cartoon with a plot and characters."

Disney's animators are also busy drawing a cartoon for cinemascope, one of the wide-screen systems that does not require the audience to wear glasses.

"We're keeping up with the times," he smiled.

This tot has a good time trying out a sleeping-dog rocker made of fiberlass plastic, which manufacturers say is unbreakable.

Commiss Talk Peace, But Maintain Big War Machine

By PHIL NEWSON

United Press Foreign Analyst

The Reds talk "peace," but there is no sign yet of any dismantling of their enormous war machine.

Red industry beats out more swords than plowshares, and the youth of Russia and Red-dominated Eastern Europe learn to pull the trigger before learning the virtues of the straight furrow.

The Communist organization, which rules by minority, depends on force to keep itself in power. Much of its strength inevitably must be directed against its own people. So the existence of a massive war machine is not necessarily proof of aggressive intent against the rest of the world.

However, it does not seem the hand-maiden of peace and the steady build up of Red armed strength seems especially out of line with the Red "peace offensive" and the simultaneous reduction of

'White' Blood Transfusion Leaves Indian Lady Confused

NEW YORK, May 18—UP—A little lady named "Little Lady" who is postmistress at an Arizona trading post in the heart of the Navaho reservation shook her head sadly Monday at the thought that she is no longer a full-blood Navaho Indian.

"I was a full-blood Navaho until I had an operation a month ago," she said. "They gave me a transfusion of white man's blood. Now I don't know what I am."

She grinned and added, "Maybe it would work better the other way. If white man got some Navaho blood, he'd slow down. In New York they are doing things so fast. If they would slow down, there would not be all this nervous tension."

Azhani Pehlakal (the first name means "Little Lady" in Navaho) came here to dramatize the first translation into Navaho of the full New Testament, a work which has been underway for 10 years.

She is on the staff of the Presbyterian mission in Ganado, Ariz., and she and her husband, a Navaho whose Anglicized name is Karl Dalton, helped translate a portion of the gospel according to St. John.

The book of John starts, "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and that comes out in this in Navaho: 'Saad Jilini et ho deesadi hojho, saadoo saad et God yi ho, also saad et God at em.'

The Wycliffe Bible translators did the job on the Navaho translation, in co-operation with several missionaries and Indians who worked street after line to get it just right.

Auto Exhibit Proves There's Nothing New In Engineering

DETROIT, May 18—UP—The axiom that "there's nothing new in engineering" was borne out this week when General Motors Corp. sent its "parade of progress" on a tour of the United States.

Practically every item among the 26 major exhibits can be traced back to a day before Detroit was even a log fort held by a few French settlers.

The modern caravan of science opened its nation-wide tour at Dayton, Ohio, where early visitors reported they were "informed," "entertained" and even "inspired."

But Charles J. McCuen, GM vice president and general manager of the research laboratories division frankly admitted there was "nothing new" under the big top in the show's dozen "futurline" exhibit cars.

"Almost every modern development can be traced back either to some crude apparatus of an imaginative inventor or to the recorded speculations of some men far ahead of their times," McCuen said.

"Other developments have sprung from accidental discoveries of investigators searching for something far removed from the objective they attempted to attain."

The same day he made that statement a Detroit tool firm announced discovery of a new lubricant-coolant for industry resulting from tests aimed at the solution of an industrial problem.

Field engineers were looking for a way to prevent red hot chips in auto parts grinding operations from gumming the cutting lubricant. Their new formula turned out to be a soft pastel blue in color and machine operators doing close work were happy to find that it reduced eye strain.

"For centuries it has been known that pastel blue is easy on the eyes. Still no one had thought of using it as a color in industrial lubricants."

One of the exhibits in the GM parade of progress is a motor which converts sunlight into enough electricity to spin a small wheel.

"It actually does little more than illustrate the principle that sunlight contains energy," McCuen said. "Nature knew the principle before the beginning of time. But some day an alert engineer will discover a way to convert solar energy efficiently directly from the sun for everyday utility purposes—perhaps even to operate automobiles!"

Ike Wants Extension On Excess Profit Tax

Favors Reduction Of Income Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 19 - President Eisenhower told Republican congressional leaders Tuesday that he wants the excess profits tax on corporations extended to next Jan. 1.

Mr. Eisenhower also told the GOP congressmen that he is willing for a 10 per cent tax cut on individual incomes to go into effect Jan. 1 as scheduled.

The excess profits tax is scheduled to expire July 1 unless Congress votes to keep it in effect.

Mr. Eisenhower and his congressional leaders discussed the tax problem at a 90-minute White House conference and also went over the radio speech that President will deliver Tuesday night on taxation, the budget and national security.

The 30-minute speech will be broadcast on all major networks at 9:30 p.m. eastern time. Chairman Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) of the Senate Armed Services committee and Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the House Armed Services committee discussed the White House conference with reporters.

Both he and Short said Mr. Eisenhower will express a desire for continuation of the excess profits tax six months beyond the present expiration date and will agree to a 10 per cent cut on individual income taxes as scheduled.

Both he and Short said Mr. Eisenhower will also come up with three other tax categories, but White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty stopped him when he started to list them.

Hagerty said the President wanted to keep some things for Tuesday night.

Open Stoves Kill Couple

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., May 19 - An elderly Gainesville, Tex., couple was found dead in a mountain cabin Monday near Green Mt. Falls, Colo., 10 miles west of here. Their deaths were attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning.

El Paso County Coroner William Joss identified the couple as Ernest S. Cunningham, 69, and his 67-year-old wife, Joss said they had probably been dead since last Friday night.

The two bodies were found Monday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff James Warren. He said he found "all three gas stoves turned up as high as they would go and all the windows shut tight."

Mrs. Cunningham's body was found sprawled at the door of the cabin. Her husband's body was found in the bathroom, Warren said.

The two were reported to have arrived at the cabin last Wednesday afternoon. They were staying at the cabin owned by Elmo M. Cumes of Dallas while their own was finished nearby.

Sheriff Norman Short and Joss agreed the two must have gone to bed without opening the windows. The Cunninghams are survived by two daughters, Miss Lillian Cunningham of Colorado Springs and Mrs. Russell Teague of Fort Worth, Tex., and a son, Dr. E. S. Cunningham Jr., also of Fort Worth.

Tidelands Bill To Be Signed By Ike Despite Protests

WASHINGTON, May 19 - President Eisenhower's mail is running heavily in favor of a veto of the controversial "tidelands" bill, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

He said the President has received around 1,200 letters and 1,500 cards regarding the bill - almost all urging him to disapprove it. The spokesman said the similarity of language in many of the cards indicated the correspondence was "not spontaneous" but was the result of an organized campaign.

The White House has already announced that the President will sign the measure into law sometime this week. Originally, the signing had been set for Monday but it was postponed until later in the week because several sponsors of the bill wished to attend the signing ceremony.

SHIGERU YOSHIDA resumed in Japan

Yoshida Is Re-Elected

TOKYO, May 19 - Progressive Premier Shigeru Yoshida was re-elected by the House of Representatives Tuesday and won the right to form his fifth postwar cabinet and his fourth government in a row.

The 74-year-old Liberal party leader defeated Mamoru Shigemitsu, Progressive party president and wartime foreign minister, by a vote of 204 to 116, on the second ballot.

Yoshida was returned to office when nearly one-third of the legislators abstained from the voting in the hostile lower house.

There were 77 blank or invalid ballots. Sixty-nine representatives, mostly leftists, did not even vote.

Left and right wing Socialists either abstained or cast blank votes on the deciding second ballot rather than support either of the two conservative candidates.

New Atomic Blast Best Of The Series

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 19 - The Atomic Energy Commission finally set off the "finest" ninth shot of its current test program Tuesday morning just before dawn.

It turned out to be one of the most brilliant of the series. The explosion - postponed four times because of excessive radiation and unfavorable weather - burst with a brilliant glow shortly after 6 a. m. est.

It lit up the sky over Yucca Flat, 65 miles northwest of here, at 6:04 a. m. with the most brilliant flash seen for any lower explosion in the current test series. The sky remained light with an ever-changing color pattern for several seconds.

The AEC announcement said "a nuclear device was detonated on a 200-foot tower."

More than 60 experiments were conducted for weapons development and for military and civil effects purposes," the AEC said. "Included was the exposure to radiation of antibiotics for the food and drug administration."

The commission also disclosed 12 B-50 bombers were flying over the atomic proving ground at the time of the explosion, as part of the Air Force crew-indoctrination program. A total of 47 aircraft took part in various phases of the test.

Driver Hospitalized After Auto Collision

A Pampa cab-driver, whose vehicle collided with two parked cars early today, was reported in "pretty good" condition late this morning in a local hospital. He suffers from shock, but otherwise is uninjured.

Freddy Pierce, 20, of 535 S. Ballard, was headed south on Gray, some 100 feet south of Maple, at 5:40 a. m. today when his car collided with vehicles owned by Lewis Colmen and George Washington, both of 814 S. Gray, according to city police.

No citations were handed out, police continued. Damages were estimated at $300 to Pierce's car, $300 to Colmen's and $25 to Washington's.

SQUALL KILLS ONE

Rampant Weather Hits Texas Coast

By UNITED PRESS The raging Sabine River pushed out Tuesday over the lowlands and a record crest near the Texas Gulf Coast where Monday a fierce squall killed one man and injured two persons at Galveston.

As 65-mile-per-hour winds and the vicious thunderstorm released a torrent of flooding rain at Galveston and all along the coast, the swollen, raging Sabine, forming the Texas-Louisiana border line, poured over thousands of acres of Texas timberland.

The flooded river was 15 to 20 miles wide from Newton to Orange, Tex. The U.S. Weather Bureau said the river, which refused to recede to its normal level after it flooded two weeks ago, would crest at the highest level in history at Bon Weir and Deweyville, in Newton county this week, probably Wednesday.

Earlier Monday, a tornado passed over Tilden, 75 miles south of San Antonio, and knocked over two or three frame houses, but there were no reported injuries. Tilden, 75 miles inland from Nueces Bay on the Gulf Coast, lay within the perimeter of the giant squall line.

Never Touches Ground Witnesses said the funnel over Tilden apparently never touched the ground and it whirled side-wind, rather than the twister it self, demolished the houses. Five inches of rain deluged the town.

The man killed at Galveston, Arthur Allen, 35, and the two persons injured were members of a construction crew working on a $300,000 seawall extension project along the island city's beachfront.

Allen was killed, Galveston police said, when a timelikeer's shack was blown over the seawall on the beachfront.

Cabot said he bought the holdings and has since been continuously occupied in the development of carbon black.

Samuel B. Cabot died in 1906 and his plant is being operated by his eldest son. According to Cabot, "It has grown and is prosperous."

"Man flying" has been one of Cabot's main interests the last 50 years, he said.

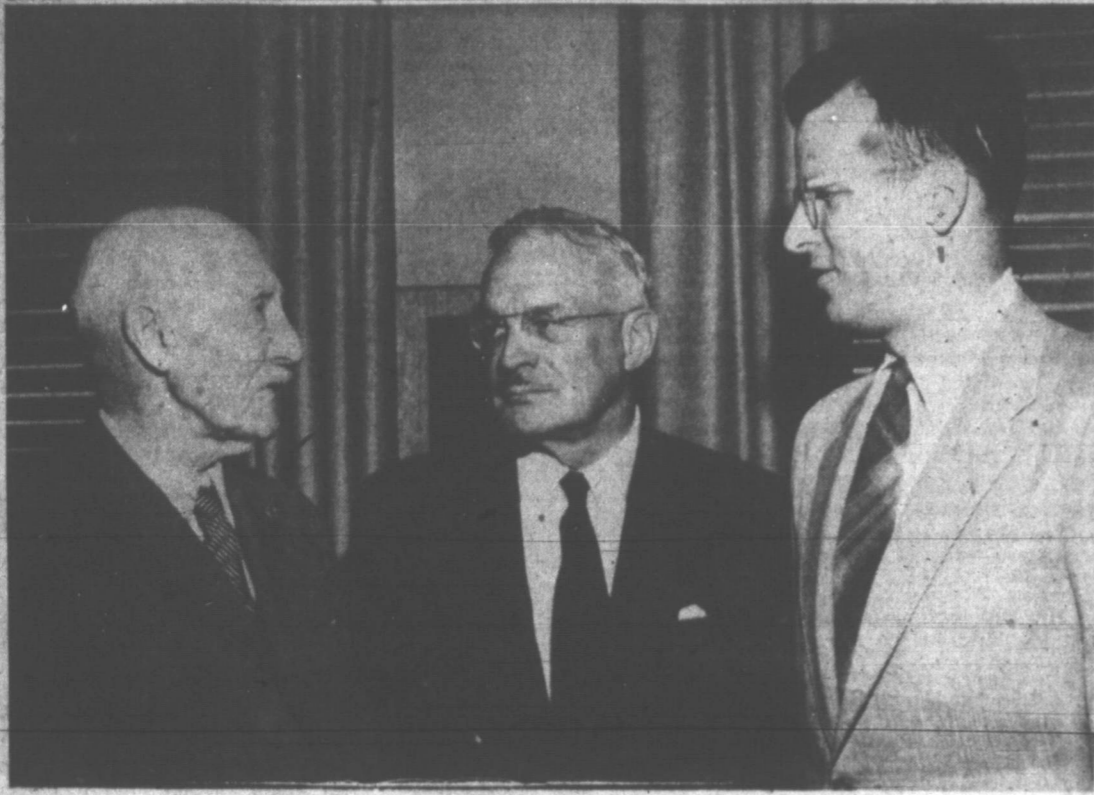

He explained he began learning aerobatics at 54 and at 57 was awarded the gold wings of a naval aviator. And his interest in flying is mirrored in two of his sons, he said, Jim and Tom, who were both Army aviators during the World War I.

"I was Navy myself," Cabot said. "Mrs. Cabot has an ornament consisting of gold wings on top and two silver wings below," he said with a grin, depicting husband and sons' activities during the war.

"Jim was in Europe, over Verdun, when the Armistice was signed," Cabot continued. "And Tom was in Texas teaching student flying."

Since 1928, Cabot went on, he has been either an active president, vice president, or honorary president of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

And, he said, "My name has (See CABOT, Page 2)

DR. GODFREY L. CABOT began winding up a visit to the local plant and Pampa today with talks to employees and officials, a dinner and luncheon. Shown here, the 92-year-old president and founder of a vast carbon black industry chats with Ralph Bradley (center), immediate past vice president and treasurer of the company and Cabot's son-in-law, and John Bradley (right), grandson, and senior chemical engineer. Also in Pampa with Cabot was Louis Cabot, new vice president and treasurer, and George Luby, one of Cabot's assistants.

Koreans Stop 2 Red Attacks

SEOUL, May 19 - South Korean infantrymen Tuesday turned back two Communist attacks on Allied positions, killing an estimated 241 Chinese as fighting erupted anew on the 155-mile Korean battlefield.

Sabrejets went aloft but met no resistance after knocking 12 Russian-made MIG-15s and probably a 13th, from the skies Monday.

Waves of Chinese attacked South Korean positions on Snipper's Ridge and near Heartbreak Ridge, originally wrested from the Communists with heavy Allied casualties.

Both Chinese attacks Tuesday were battalionsized or better - almost 1,500 men.

Communists got into trenches of the Ninth ROK Division at Snipper's Ridge and after two hours of "intense hand to hand fighting," retreated - under pressure from South Koreans.

A reinforced Chinese battalion hit at main Allied positions southeast of Christmas Hill, near Heartbreak Ridge, but the 20th ROK Division drove them back after an eight-hour battle.

ROK snipers reported 54 Chinese killed at Snipper's Ridge and estimated at least 17 more died. Enemy casualties in the Heartbreak Ridge fight were 95 counted dead and 75 more estimated killed.

In the air, double-duty Sabrejet bombers waged a daylight assault on a Communist troop concentration and frontline artillery positions.

Shamrock Couple Invites Byrnes

SHAMROCK, (Special) - A green top hat and an invitation to head a group of distinguished guests to be honored by Shamrock next March 17 was given Governor James F. Byrnes at Columbia, South Carolina, this month.

Mrs. H. B. Hill extended the invitation on behalf of Mayor B. O. Douglas of Shamrock during a visit with the governor.

The visit was the climax of a motoring jaunt which carried them into 14 states. In addition to the hat and invitation, they presented Governor Byrnes with a copy of the 1953 St. Patrick's Day edition of the Shamrock Texas. The Governor was impressed with the invitation and told his Irish visitors he would give it serious consideration although he could not make a commitment this far in advance.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill drove in the state of Mississippi, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Arkansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas. They traveled 4,400 miles, and were gone two and one-half weeks.

Mother Kills 3 Children, Self

ATLANTA, Ill., May 19 - UP - Authorities said Tuesday they believed a mother, who hated her young son, put the torch to the boy, two other children and herself in a murder-suicide plot.

They quoted the grief-stricken father as saying the woman "hated the sight of the little boy" because his birth had been difficult and he was delivered by Caesarian section.

The charred bodies of Mrs. Esther Pauline Foley and her children, Michael Lee, 5, Mary Lou, 3, and Frances Gale, 10 months, were found in a burned garage and tool shed near their farm home Monday.

HE WAS IN THE NAVY Cabot Founder Earned Wings As An Aviator At Age Of 57

By DOLORES DAVIS Pampa News Staff Writer One of the "grand old men of the petroleum industry," Godfrey L. Cabot, president of Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., who is in Pampa visiting the local plant, today announced his final retirement plans. "Oh, yes," he said, "I shall retire in my grave."

Until that time, Cabot, 92, founder and active head of the vast corporation, will remain "continuously occupied" with the industry he founded 65 years ago.

According to Cabot, his beginning in the carbon black business began with an association with his brother, Samuel B., an industrialist with a plant in Boston producing paints and varnishes.

In the mid 1880's Godfrey L. became interested in the chemical aspects of carbon black and for a

Legislators Drop Teacher Pay Plan

AUSTIN, May 19 - UP - Three members of the House of Representatives abandoned a "with regret" Tuesday an effort to obtain Texas school teachers a compromise $306 annual pay raise, dependent on the constitutional validity of a state tax law now under court attack.

At the same time, House Speaker Reuben E. Senterfitt of San Saba angrily accused the "school lobby" of denying teachers any kind of salary boost by refusing to stand.

The 33rd Texas Legislature entered the final week of its regular session Monday. Lawmakers previously voted to adjourn May 27.

Backed House Plan Reps. Frank Crain of Victoria, Frank Carpenter of Sour Lake and Ben Gussing of Kingsville backed the House plan calling for a $306-a-year hike in teachers' pay, conditional on funds becoming available if the courts declare the contested natural gas gathering tax constitutional.

But Monday the three lawmakers said they felt "there is no possibility" of reaching a compromise on the teacher pay question. Their proposal earlier failed of House adoption by a small margin.

Frank Dial To Be Sworn In As City Commission Member

WARD 2 was still without official representation on the City Commission this morning despite the day of Frank Dial over Dale Pinson.

The commission lacked a quorum to make an official count of the ballot and swear in the new commissioner.

Ward 2 City Commissioner W.B. (A) Neel was called to Mineral Wells this morning where his brother is seriously ill. City Manager B. H. Cruce reported, leaving only Ward 1 Commissioner Gene Fatheree and Mayor Tom Rose Jr. attending the meeting.

Commissioner W. D. Varmon is still in Annapolis, Md., where he has been visiting his son.

Dial, by five votes, nosed out Pinson in extremely tight voting yesterday as only 175 - less than 25 percent of the qualified voters - turned out to the single polling place.

Peace Offensive Hurts - Ridgway

WASHINGTON, May 19 - UP - Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told Congress Tuesday the Russian peace offensive has hurt European defense.

The Allied supreme commander in Europe told the Senate Foreign Relations committee the Soviet peace offensive has had "a recognizable adverse reaction on certain segments of public opinion" in Western Europe.

He said some Europeans, lulled by the Soviet Union's peace gestures, now want "to put off the evil hour of decision" on defense problems. He called this "a perfectly natural reaction."

Warning against any letdown now, Ridgway said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's 1953 program will leave NATO "short of the minimum requirements to resist a determined Soviet attack."

As he did before the House Foreign Affairs committee Monday, Ridgway testified that European defenses are inadequate. He urged approval of the administration's $8 billion foreign aid program for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The Skellytown youth who flipped his car over three times and ended up 30 feet from the wreck - unconscious - was reported in "fair" condition late this morning in Highland General Hospital.

LOOK AT "CREEPY!" - That's what Harold Fuller, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fuller, 813 E. Francis, seems to be asking his father who is holding the other baby alligator, which goes by the name of "Sleepy." Bought for $5 each at the Reptile Gardens, Sarasota, Fla., the one-year-old reptiles have another trip yet in store for them - probably to the Oklahoma City zoo. "Fascination" is the reason Mrs. Fuller gives for bringing them to the Panhandle. (News Photo)

Wheat Production Data Asked By PMA

A second request from the Production and Marketing Administration to wheat growers in Gray County to report wheat acreage and other related data for the years 1951-52 was made today by Miss Evelyn J. Mason, administrative officer.

"We have been instructed by the Secretary of Agriculture to obtain certain information from farmers and start preliminary work necessary in case production and marketing controls are required for the next wheat crop," she said.

Deadline on the information has been set for June 1, she stressed, and we must have the information to compute accurate and fair allotments for everyone producing wheat if controls are applied.

Acreage allotments or marketing quotas for the 1954 crop are not definite, she continued, but the indicated wheat supply is such

Air Force Builds New European Defense Plans Around Secret Weapons And A-Bomb Aircraft

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Last spring, under top secret conditions, the U. S. Air Forces whole 49th Air Division, consisting of B-45 bombers and Republic F-84G Thunderjet fighter-bombers, took off from its home base at Langley Field, Va., and flew to fields in England and Germany.

It was a permanent move unprecedented in speed and size, involving about 3500 men, 125 combat aircraft and many transport planes.

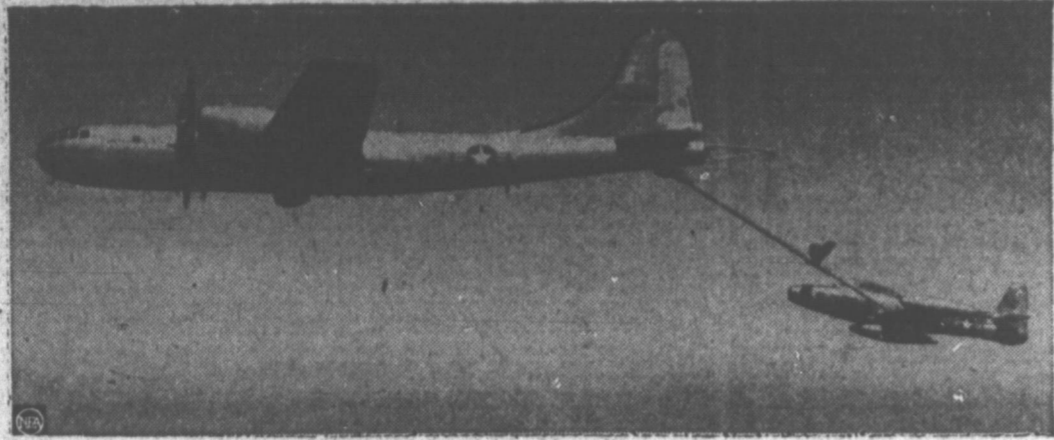

The Air Force now reveals that this unique shifting of the nation's air strength is the key to a revised concept of the defense of Western Europe.

Its significance, Pentagon spokesmen admit, is a major part of the background for Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' announcement that new secret weapons could buy a much better defense of Western Europe for less American foreign aid dollars.

Dulles' statement is further amplified and explained by an Air Force announcement at the recent open atomic test at Yucca Flats, Nev., that both the B-45 and F-84G are now capable of delivering improved small A-bombs.

The bold decision to move the 49th to Europe has paid off, thanks to improvement in this new weapons system made by both the Atomic Energy Commission and the Air Force since then.

Constant tests, practice maneuvers and improvements in the use of the F-84G have steadily improved its ability to carry atomic weapons to distant targets, the Air Force now claims. Operating over the exact area where it might have to go into combat proved a big help. And the mere presence of the division in Europe has helped bolster morale of the other Western European countries.

The F-84G has proved such a good aircraft for its A-bomb-carrying role that it is in popular demand by all the Atlantic Pact countries. The Air Force admits that nine of these nations now have more than 1000 Thunderjets in operation in Europe. And they are in addition to those being flown by the U.S. Air Force.

The AEC's progress in improvement of the A-bombs which can be carried in F-84G's was recently stated by James H. Doolittle, the famed Tokyo raider, after watching one of the big blasts at Yucca Flats. He said:

"For security reasons, I cannot disclose the yield of the nuclear device just tested. But I can say that rapid progress is being made by this country in improving atomic weapons and the means of delivering them in many types of planes. And I can remind you that more than a year ago it was stated publicly that the U. S. had developed bombs several times as powerful as the one dropped on Nagasaki during World War II.

Thus, the new secret weapons which are buying better European defenses for the democratic countries, according to Dulles, for less money, are more efficient, small atomic bombs which can be carried swiftly to their targets by jet fighters and light jet bombers.

The smaller packages for A-bombs also make possible the Army's 280-mm. atomic cannon. In addition, the Navy can carry atomic bombs in some of its carrier-based planes. And the Air Force's goal is to take all of its fighter and interceptor planes, as well as its bombers, capable of carrying atomic bombs.

The net effect of this increased atomic striking force, according to Pentagon spokesmen, is the need for fewer ground troops.

Stop Thief!

CONCORD, N. H. — UP—A local 5 and 10 cent store reports a new kind of shop-lifter — a brown cocker spaniel. When the cry, "stop thief," rings through the store, clerks look for the dog first. His latest foray almost yielded a box of toys. Previously, his taste ran to toy trains.

Ridgway Plea Provides Lift For U.S. Foreign Aid Program

WASHINGTON, May 19 — UP—The testimony of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway provided a much-needed lift Tuesday for the administration's $5.8 billion foreign aid program.

Several economy-minded members of the House Foreign Affairs committee indicated they might go a little easier on cuts after they listened to the North Atlantic commander Monday.

Chairman Robert B. Chipfield (R-Ill.) predicted that the group would limit its cutting to economic aid for the most part, leaving the administration requests for various kinds of military assistance pretty much alone.

Ridgway warned against any "substantial" cuts in President Eisenhower's request for $5.8 billion in new foreign aid funds while the Allied defenses in Europe still were "inadequate."

He went before the Senate Foreign Relations committee Tuesday morning and administration officials were hopeful he would be just as persuasive.

Other developments:

TAX SCANDALS

The name of former Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder is expected to come up next week in the House investigation of several corporation tax cases. Members of the Ways and Means subcommittee investigating tax scandals said evidence in the subcommittee record indicates Snyder helped corporations get favorable tax settlements.

Republican congressional leaders were called to the White House to get a preview of the tax proposals President Eisenhower will lay before the nation Tuesday night in a country-wide radio broadcast.

Republican and Democratic congressmen agreed that a $400 million cut in atomic spending ordered by Mr. Eisenhower will not curtail A-bomb production but will slow development of atomic-engineered planes, aircraft carriers, and civilian power plants.

DEFENSE BUDGET

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee called Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson for testimony as it opened hearings Tuesday afternoon on the administration's controversial defense budget.

White House mail is running heavily in favor of a veto of the controversial "tidelands" bill which the President has promised to sign.

WHAT'S COOKING IN GRAY COUNTY HD CLUB WORK

By HELEN DUNLAP Gray County HD Agent

A program in the City Club Room will be presented in combination with the observance of National Home Demonstration Week on Monday, May 25, at 8 p.m. The home demonstration club women of Gray County are planning to have a dress revue, showing the work they have done this spring in advanced dress making. The club women, their children and friends will model clothing, which the women have constructed since January first. They will model dresses and suits made of the new cottons woven from cotton, rayon or blended fibers. The garments are types, which can be used for various occasions, such as treet, party, evening, sport and work.

Mrs. Ernest McKnight, a member of the Bell Home Demonstration Club, will be the narrator. A paper is now being written depicting the highlights of the fifty years of Extension Work in Texas. Texas has the honor of having started the work of Extension. The severe damage caused by the Mexican cotton boll weevil is responsible for the origin of Extension Service in the United States. The first demonstration farm was that of Walter C. Porter at Terrell, Kaufman County in 1903. The purpose was to show a better method of farming. The results were so successful that the federal government passed the Smith-Lever Law in 1914, which established Extension work in the state.

The growth of Extension Service during the fifty years is shown by the one man beginning to 729 people now employed by Texas Extension Service. The majority of these workers are county personnel, who are jointly supported by the counties, state and federal governments.

A candle lighting service will close the program on Monday night. A number of the home demonstration club women will take part in this service with candles representing the different channels through which they work. It includes such an expansion, or working with groups and individuals not represented in home demonstration clubs, and 4-H work, including the work with the young people.

This program to see some of the worthwhile home demonstration clubs, will have charge of the candle lighting service. Mrs. Ed Murphree presented the highlights of the extension service throughout the fifty years of its existence. The public is invited to attend this program to see some of the work being done in Gray County.

Pressure From Grain Trade Forces Issue On Inspection

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Efforts to make the U.S. grain trade sub-mitted to rigid inspection for insect dirt are apparently headed for considerable relaxation. The original Food and Drug Administration enforcement order, scheduled to go into effect July 1, has now been postponed indefinitely to work out a compromise.

While few consumers can understand what objections there could be against inspection to prevent contamination of the raw materials going into their food products, the political and business forces opposing this move are exceedingly powerful.

The case has developed a sharp conflict of interest between Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in which Food and Drug Administration operates. Department of Agriculture has a selfish interest in that its Commodity Credit Corporation may have title to as much as 50 million bushels of wheat by July 1. If this COC wheat were submitted to inspection, some of it might be found buggy or filthy. It would then have to be sold at a loss of from 60 cents to a dollar a bushel. This loss would be on the taxpayers.

In addition, to this, Department of Agriculture has the interest of the grain producers, elevator operators, dealers and millers to protect. Congressmen from the grain-producing states are in this corner, too.

The resulting pressure which this that there have been some demand multi-billion-dollar industry has five grain handlers. On the other side will be two representatives for the firing of Food and Drug Commissioner Charles W. Crawford and Deputy Commissioner George P. Larrick, who has headed the grain inspection program. Both are Civil Service officials.

Would Shift Inspection
The main purpose of the grain traders now seems to be to get the point of food and drug inspection shifted from carload lots moving into grain terminals to the actual flour mills and cereal food processors.

Over the past four years, Food and Drug Administration has been carrying on an educational campaign among bakeries and has a cabinet-rank department. Then it was pointed out that removing these distinguished career government officials, with high standard of technical proficiency, might create another explosion like Secretary of Commerce Singular Weeks' effort to fire Dr. Allen V. Astin as director of the Bureau of Standards. So the idea was dropped.

Secretary Hobby has therefore been backing Food and Drug Administration. She has asked Congress to give the organization power to make factory inspections, which a federal court recently said the pure food laws did not authorize. Also, Mrs. Hobby has supported Crawford and Larrick on the grain inspection business—a degree—though she has been charged with failure to back them up on a tough decision.

She got the Department of Agriculture to agree on a 15-member committee which will study the whole grain inspection issue. Her hope is that the committee will come up with a realistic decision which the grain trade will accept and which will also protect the consumer.

The committee, however, is charged with having shipped as heavily stacked in favor of the grain trade. It will have two representatives of the Department of Agriculture, four grain experts from the land grant colleges, and relief shipments to India.

For Mrs. Hobby: Years Of Man-Sized Jobs

By PATTI SIMMONS
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Self-styled Oveta Culp Hobby, the administration's No. 1 Washington glamor girl, was once a not too pretty bookworm.

The new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare not only used to shun party - going but trailed far behind her beautiful older sister in popularity with the boys.

Almost three decades of hard work and an assortment of man-sized desk jobs stand between the stay-at-home teen-ager and the go-getting, 48-year-old cabinet member. Her husband reports she "has always run her house by remote control from wherever she is. She trains the servants so well in the beginning that they know just what to do."

"My wife, and former Governor Hobby of Texas, is a very efficient woman."

OVETA CULP HOBBY: Her hats are more conservative now.

This pint-sized package of executive ability has delivered on top-rung titles like parliamentarian for the Texas House of Legislature, chief of the women's section of the War Department's public relations bureau, first director of the WACs and editor and publisher of the Houston Post. It's easy to see she would hardly have had time for much cooking and sock darning.

When the big, slow-talking Texan William Pettus Hobby married Oveta Culp in 1931 she was 29; he close to 50. Today she holds a flat full of honorary degrees, although she never actually finished college.

Capitalites who knew Oveta as the trail-blazing, gray-haired Army colonel say she's changed. Brunette-dyed, she appears younger, is more attractive and has even taken to dressing more conservatively, especially in the millinery department.

It was a hat that one newspaperman described as "sharp even if it did look like a howl turned upside down" which helped Secretary Hobby hurdle her first press conference the other day.

She tagged most of the press gals by their first names and tossed a loaded question back at one columnist who inquired if she would work for the Republicans in the next election. A Democrat, Mrs. Hobby cracked: "When you asked that question you knew I wasn't going to answer it." Friends say her humor is always spontaneous.

In the throes of an especially difficult decision former co-workers reveal Mrs. Hobby is likely to turn to a pocket-size prayer book she usually carries with her. By the time she was 13, Oveta had read the Bible through three times.

The Culpes raised their six children Baptist and Oveta's brother, the Rev. Evetts Culp of Aspermont, Tex., is a Baptist minister. Mrs. Hobby has since become an Episcopalian.

Back in Houston in the Hobby's big, three-story, English-style house a staff of three servants are for son Bill, a reporter on the Post, and Mr. Hobby, who plans to divide his time between Houston and Washington. Sixteen-year-old Jessica attends a finishing school in Virginia.

Let Him Help You, Too ... Henry Resumes Helpful Hints Under Pressure Of His Public

By HENRY McLEMORE

Several years ago I occasionally did a column entitled, "Helpful Hints to Harried Householders." Within the past six months or so quite a few requests that I revive this column have come in from readers, and in their letters they told me of problems they hoped I would be able to solve.

So, as a public service I am going to oblige.

Q. My daughter-in-law, who lives with us, has a pet armadillo which we are nearly as fond of as she is. But I have never found a satisfactory way of removing its tracks from the carpeting and rugs. Any suggestions?—Mrs. R. C. L., Grand Rapids.

A. Why would you want to remove them, Mrs. R. L., even if there were a way, which there isn't? The few armadillo-tracked rugs I have seen were exquisite, the tracks serving to enhance the beauty of the pattern. Consider yourself lucky in having a daughter-in-law who owns such a pet.

Q. As an anniversary gift my husband bought me a second-hand roulette wheel and table. Since we, as well as our friends, frown on gambling, do you know of any use we could make of the roulette wheel?—Mrs. L.V.C., Columbus, Ga.

A. I certainly do. You have the makings of the most unique Lazy Susan imaginable. Picture the 38 grooves of the wheel filled with jams, preserves, jellies, olives, nuts, and mints. What fun you'll have spinning the wheel and trusting to luck for your share of the chow-chow.

Q. My husband has the untidy and annoying habit of shaking the ashes of his cigarette in the cuffs of his trousers when an ash tray isn't handy. Do you know of a way I could break him of this?—Mrs. G.T.T., San Diego.

A. Although I often do this myself, I agree that it isn't a very attractive habit. I am quite sure you can cure him by sprinkling his trouser cuffs with gasoline before he goes to work in the morning and when he returns at night. The amount of gasoline you use depends on how much you care for him.

Q. When my wife's mother passed on she left us, among other things, the pink iron flamingo which had stood on her lawn for half a century. We live in a small apartment and are puzzled as to what to do with it. Would certainly appreciate any suggestions.

A. V. E. O., Philadelphia.

Q. You could sell it, for one thing. Iron flamingos are not being made what they did a few years back, but as you got yours for nothing, anything you get will be in the nature of gravy. If you feel that you must keep it for sentimental reasons, I suggest that it be used for thumping on the floor when the family below makes too much noise.

Q. I don't like to admit this, but my husband likes to waltz in bed. As we share a double bed I live in mortal fear of being stabbed or getting my throat cut. Please help me.—Mrs. L.W.S., Bloomington, Ill.

A. You have but one recourse. Take up fencing and practice in bed.

Q. Is there any safe way of removing gooseberry stains from a wedding veil that belonged to my grandmother, and which my daughter wants to wear when she is married in June?—Mrs. R.C. Miami, Fla.

A. Soak overnight in boiling water and then press between two lily pads.

Betty Reynolds Graduates At U-T Moose Association Holds Joint Meet

A Pampa girl, Miss Betty Jeanne Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Reynolds, 434 N. Starkweather, will be one of four University of Texas students graduating May 30 with a BS degree in aeronautical engineering. The other three graduates are boys.

In all the university will be turning out 151 engineering students in the various phases of the engineering profession.

With nine credits toward her master's degree, Miss Reynolds plans to remain on at the university in Austin working in the Defense Research Laboratory, working on aerodynamics and continuing her studies until she receives her master's degree.

Leaving Pampa Senior High School at the end of her sophomore year, Miss Reynolds attended and graduated from Ferris Hall (Amarillo); Newman and Charlie School for Girls in Illinois in 1947.

Members of the Texas Panhandle Moose Association met last night to discuss mutual lodge problems in the Pampa Moose auditorium, 403 W. Brown.

Representatives from four of the five Panhandle lodges attended the first of these monthly meetings. No officers will be elected since the association at present is made up of two representatives from each lodge.

Harold Newman, governor of the Pampa lodge who sat in on the meeting, invited the out-of-town Moose lodges to help celebrate Pampa lodge's 4th birthday at 9 p.m. Friday when a birthday ball will be held.

Those attending last night were: Dr. C. L. Hopper, Borger; Noel Cudd and B.L. Graham, Clarendon; Bob Stout and Durwood Dean, Amarillo; Newman and Charlie Webb, Pampa.

OUR FIRST NATIONAL FLAG—First raised in Williamsburg, Va., on May 15, 1776, after the Virginia Convention adopted an independence resolution, this flag will fly in Williamsburg until July Fourth as part of the annual prelude to Independence Day observance. ## Welcome, Chief

Dr. Godfrey L. Cabot, 92-year-old founder and president of Godfrey L. Cabot, Inc., Boston, is in Pampa for a brief visit with local officials of the company he heads. We want to take this occasion to welcome him to our town and express the wish that his stay here is profitable and pleasant.

Known by his employes as "The Chief," Dr. Cabot flew here yesterday from Tulsa where Saturday he was one of seven men honored by the International Petroleum Exposition for outstanding contributions to the industry. He was named the "Grand Old Man" of the gas-branch of the oil business.

From a modest beginning, the Cabot Co. grew to its present stature under the guidance of "The Chief," a rugged individualist and one of the pioneers of industrial America. In the latter part of the 19th century when the company was founded, the social revolution presently under way in America had not been dreamed of and industry was developed under a system of free enterprise by men with courage and vision who were willing to invest their capital in the future of the United States.

Dr. Cabot was one of these men and the far-flung operations of the Cabot Co. attest the soundness of the profit and loss system under which his company prospered.

Again we say, "Welcome, Chief."

A Look At Isonomy

Had a good look at the isonomy lately? Odds are you haven't, because there hasn't been too much of it in recent years. "Isonomy" is a very old Greek word, even older than "democracy." It means "equal laws for all men."

It's the egg that grew into democracy, the idea that a country should be ruled by impartial laws, not by men. Historically, it was developed before the republican form of government was first tried back in ancient Greece.

The result of isonomy, or equal laws, is to give the citizen freedom from the whims of a ruler who might change his mind from day to day, or from person to person, about what is legal and what is not.

Our American government, with its separation of the law-making Congress, the law-interpreting courts, and the law-administering President, was shaped around that principal by the men who wrote the Constitution.

The founding fathers were a little too trusting, however. They didn't think there ever would be so many laws that a prosecutor could pick his victims and choose his laws.

They can, though, and that's government of men, the very thing that was to be avoided.

In the last half-century, and particularly the past twenty years, rule-by-law in many fields has been thrown out the window — because there are so many laws.

The Congress, the bureau, and the agencies have spewed out such a tangle of law, rule, regulation, and other restrictions that often a whole crew of lawyers can't tell if a certain activity is legal or not.

"The government can find some charge to bring against any concern it chooses to prosecute," is the way a former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Lowell Mason, described the mess.

And that is not isonomy.

Salvaging the good laws from the welter of red tape and frustrating contradictions will be a long, difficult, sometimes unpopular job for Congress. But it must be undertaken and when it is finished, we'll be close again to the ideal of all times, equal laws for all men.

Lie Urges Surrender

Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations, sang his swan song in a worldwide broadcast. The theme of the piece was that the UN and the United States should surrender on a cardinal point in the dispute with Soviet Russia.

Lie's key sentence: "It is not possible to foresee a Korean settlement except in relation to other Far East issues, and there can be no settlement unless the People's Republic of China (Mao Tse-tung's Red usurpers in Peiping) is a party to it."

Thus, the Lie advice to the so-called free world is to recognize Red China, just as F. D. Roosevelt recognized Red Russia in 1933, and hand it a seat in the UN General Assembly if not on the Security Council.

The UN amounts to little, in and of itself. But admission of Red China to the organization would give Mao the same sort of world prestige as Roosevelt's recognition gave the then tottering Stalin back in '33. Reds bid over the world could and would brag that they had bludgeoned the UN into backing down on this key issue, and had humbled the mighty United States in the process.

Such a step, too, would start the decline of Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalist Chinese Government on Formosa. It would be only a question of time before the big strategic island would fall to the Communists, who would turn it into an unsinkable aircraft carrier located just about midway between Japan and the Philippines.

The whole development would be a resounding and deadly defeat for us in one of the most important phases of the cold war.

If the United States buys this Trygve Lie bill of goods, it seems obvious to us that the United States will be a historic sucker, and will be asking for further defeats.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Why Tax Supported Schools Result in Poorer Jobs Rather Than Better Jobs

In the last issue I was explaining why tax supported schools were bound to produce poorer jobs rather than better jobs.

I do not want to leave the impression that we can have good jobs without education. Education is absolutely necessary if we are to have better jobs. And by education I mean an understanding of both moral and physical laws. While tax supported schools might teach physical laws, they cannot teach moral laws, and an understanding of physical laws without an understanding of moral laws will undoubtedly lead to a violation of these moral laws. And a violation of moral laws creates confusion, ill will and hate and one discriminatory law after another.

Real education, of course, is bound to include both moral education and an education in physical laws. The reason tax supported schools cannot teach moral laws is that they are violating the Coveting Commandment and the Golden Rule, and of course it would be embarrassing for them to teach something that was contrary to what they were practicing. Besides that, it is very difficult for any man to teach what he doesn't understand. And public school teachers do not seem to understand that the Coveting Commandment and the Golden Rule apply to individual whether they are acting as individuals or whether they are acting as agents for society, or the state or the majority. Thus they teach by example that men, when they represent the government, can do things that are immoral for an individual to do and have them become moral and in agreement with the Golden Rule when they are done by agents for the majority or any tyrant.

The last article explained that any such belief is bound to result in long periods of unemployment, labor union legislation, tariff walls, immigration quotas, progressive income taxes and inheritance taxes, drafting soldiers and one war after another.

We would be in all these foolish ways that we have been in if people didn't believe that when men are elected to office they have a right to draft their neighbors to go to war when they will know that they as individuals have no such moral right. If the majority of people didn't believe as is taught in public schools that an agent for the government or a subdivision of the government could do things that are immoral for an individual to do and have them moral when done by the state agent then we would not draft soldiers and we would only go to war when people would become soldiers on a voluntary basis. That would keep us out of a lot of crazy wars and let people devote their time and energy to developing understanding and to production.

Contrary to Christian Teachings. The belief in tax supported schools is in effect contending that we can get moral results from immoral acts and that we can get love and voluntary cooperation from compulsion. But nowhere did Jesus ever contend that we could get good results from bad acts. Remember He said:

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

And the kingdom of heaven and his righteousness certainly include obeying the Golden Rule. He did not tell us to disobey the Golden Rule and that we would prosper — materially or spiritually.

Remember He also said: "Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?"

Remember He also said: "Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit."

He didn't say that a bad tree — a violation of the Golden Rule — bringeth forth good fruit. And remember St. Paul said: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

And when we are in tax supported schools a violation of the Golden Rule and the Coveting Commandment, we are bound to reap covetousness, envy, hate and ill will. And production cannot grow and develop and benefit mankind when men do not have good will in their hearts and are not willing to supply their own wants on a voluntary basis rather than by compulsion.

No Standard of Right. It seems that people who believe in tax supported schools have completely discarded a method of determining right from wrong or good from bad. They invariably use objectives to determine whether a thing is bad or not, rather than the means. And we cannot get good results from evil means.

One reason why I am convinced that tax supported schools are a violation of the Golden Rule and the Coveting Commandment is that I have never found any school board member, any superintendent of schools or any Protestant preacher holding a pulpit who would attempt to answer questions for $50 that would tend to show that tax supported schools are in agreement with the Golden Rule.

It is because I believe that when we violate the Golden Rule we cannot get production and thus have less to divide up in wages and profits — and profit is nothing but a wage for efficiency — that I am bound to take a stand against anything that I am convinced prevents men from having better jobs.

A Rose By Any Other Name—

National Whirligig... Demo Split To Be Highlighted At Washington ADA Meeting

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON — The seemingly irreconcilable split between the conservative and Democratic wings of the Democratic Party will be highlighted when the Americans for Democratic Action hold their annual convention within a few blocks from the White House next week and it will be the first formal assembly of opposition elements since the 1952 election.

The leftist ADA-ers have insisted on sounding their new war cry against the protests of hard-headed advisers of all factions. They have rejected suggestions that it is too soon to resume partisan warfare, in view of the Republicans' brief period of office holding. They will not listen to warnings that this action is premature, will be the star performers of the intra-party differences.

Since it was this group which tried to ride roughshod over the Southern section at Chicago last summer, the name of no distinguished Democrat from this area appears on the program as participant or speaker.

On the contrary, such down-with-Dixie figures as Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Walter Reuther, CIO president, will be the star performers. All three are politically anathema to the South.

NOT LISTED — Significantly, the agenda does not list the appearance of Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, Stevenson's spokesman, or Harry S. Truman himself, or even Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the 1952 vice-presidential nominee.

In his official call for this sixth annual convention, ADA Chairman Francis Biddle criticizes and challenges the position taken by many Democratic conservatives toward President Eisenhower's domestic and foreign programs. The former attorney general's indictment reads like a paraphrase of Truman's whistle-stop denunciations of Eisenhower in last fall's contest.

"RULE OF BUSINESS" — In what seems like an attack on proposals for economy, a more businesslike system of government, elimination of Communist federal services — a more balanced structure of defense at home and abroad, the Philadelphia lawyer says: "There are those who, under the banners of 'economy' and 'getting the business man back on his feet' more than an hour, assume that his train would be on time. Finally he strode angrily to the ticket window."

Businessman — Why didn't you tell me that the rate when I asked you an hour ago?

Agent — Look here, mister, I ain't paid to sit here and knock the railroad.

These photos that saves you make me a new one each year older.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Ulcers of the stomach, of which there are two main varieties, are usually classed among the chronic disorders. Much has been learned about this interesting condition over the past years. Among other things, the undesirable effect of nervous strain and emotional upset have come to be increasingly well-recognized.

In all likelihood, the nerves are not the only cause of ulcers, and there are certainly other influences which are important once they have developed.

Certainly ulcers tend to come back and the symptoms get worse whenever a person has a serious strain or shock. This fact has been recognized by doctors for a long time, but there was not much which they could do about it. Even now the victim of a stomach ulcer can probably do more to help himself by trying to avoid excitement, anger or other emotional upset than the doctor can.

Many treatments have been and are being used for ulcers. Almost all of them are aimed both at the stomach itself where the ulcer lies and at the nervous cause.

In most cases of ulcer of the stomach, there is an increased amount of acid present which irritates the ulcer and delays or prevents its healing. Most treatments, therefore, try to get at this excess acid and thus allow the ulcer a better chance to heal.

One of the most common treatments consists of frequent feedings of small meals alternating with milk and cream and alkalis or other substances which decrease or neutralize the acids. Certain gelatin-like substances called mucins have a similar effect because they are supposed to coat the area of the ulcer and protect it from the irritating acid in the stomach.

Fair Enough... FDR's Grandfather Engaged In Illegal Opium Trading—Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

For your information, I present a letter from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to Fred S. Ewell to Fred Florence who was, at that time, Oct. 7, 1950, an employee in the home of Gen. George Marshall, and my comments on some points contained therein. Her letter was a reply to one inquiring why she never took steps to refute my disclosure of the fact that Franklin D. Roosevelt's grandfather, Warren Delano, the old windjammer from Fairhaven, Mass., had been an opium smuggler in Canton, China, and, in fact, had been implicated with the British in their opium trading. He was waged for the purpose of thrusting the drug on the degraded Chinese common people in defiance of a law laid down by their emperor to break them of their addiction. Accordingly, he declared opium to be contraband.

Like our attempt at prohibition, this reform produced a smuggling traffic very much like our own. Warren Delano sailed on this opium row in his own ships. No mention ever was made of the fact until I chanced upon it and verified this interesting gap in the history of a family which, one way and another, has been the most interesting in our history.

Under her frank as the widow of a President, on the letterhead of Val-Kill Cottage, Hyde Park, New York, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "Has it occurred to you that Mr. Pegler writes just in order to get people to answer him so he can keep on writing? Labor and the Roosevelts are his favorite subjects. If he began answering everything he says, we would never be able to stop."

"A long time ago, my husband told me it was better to ignore attacks of this kind. There is always some tiny bit of truth which you have to explain, and by the time you have explained, everyone has forgotten what you showed up as untrue. My husband felt it was better not to enter into a discussion with people who were trying to bait you into giving them more material to write on."

"To give you an example. In the past when my husband's grandfather, Mr. Warren Delano, was in China, practically all the nations of the world traded in opium. None of us believed that Mr. Delano ever knowingly did so because all the records in the family speak of his being a tea-merchant and al-ways, until my mother-in-law died, the Chinese family from whom Mr. Delano bought tea, kept sending tea every year to show the devotion to the old traditional friendship between the two families. There is no record that we can find that leads us to believe that my husband's grandfather..."

"My husband thought of me as a slimy snake and slimy snakes slide to cover very quickly. He is highly insured against libel, so it makes no difference to him whether you bring a libel suit against him or not.

"The kind of things he says are very difficult to prove or disprove in many cases; so it is very much better to ignore him and it makes him so angry.

"Very sincerely yours, (signed) Eleanor Roosevelt."

I have cited documentary proof that Warren Delano did trade in opium in Canton. He joined the English when they were beleaguered by the emperor's troops in Canton and the basic cause of the siege was the defiant continuation of the opium traffic by foreign devils who would stoop to anything to make money. One contemporary comment by an American naval officer spoke of this as a "vicious" traffic.

The horrible effects of opium on the addict in the advanced stages were as well known then as they are today. It is beside the issue to say that Delano was a tea-merchant as, in fact, he was, because that does not preclude another interest in opium. It is equally evasive to say that "practically all nations" traded in opium because the traffic was abhorred by many honorable men at the same time. Prostitution is worldwide but American ethics do not endorse it. And this nation, as a nation, did not traffic in opium.

"Black-birding," the illicit importation of African captives for slavery, also was a prosperous traffic of American and British shipping companies, usually under false registration and with professional impostors aboard bearing the nominal title of captain to take the responsibility in case of capture.

There is abundant material on this and the opium traffic in the libraries of Boston and New York where I made my studies and unless it has been fished to obliterate a shameful record, there is proof in the archives of the State Department. I found no evidence that Delano engaged in "black-birding."

Mrs. Roosevelt's self-serving statement that "there is no record that we can find" has no value at all.

Admiring Neighbor — My, I'm glad to hear that your son is on the college football team. What position does he play?

Proud Mother — I'm not sure, but I think he said he is one of the draw-backs.

That is something special all by itself.

She has concealed many facts which tarnish luster of members of this family even when she has admitted that she was telling the truth.

She is a master of the devious, irrelevant, confusing pretense of honesty. Moreover it is barely conceivable that old Delano had at least the decency to be ashamed of his guilt and therefore took pains to leave no evidence in the family archives.

When the real book is written, and I announce my determination to do that formidable job, the Roosevelt myth will be dispelled from the minds of all intelligent persons who honestly approach the subject. The opium episode in the life of Roosevelt's grandfather will be significant only because of the pretension of the truth by infatuated historians of the time that will disclose the immoral influence of the Roosevelt administration on the whole Western World. F.D. Roosevelt was not guilty of his grandfather's crime against humanity. He has enough to atone for.

Not that my own emotions are important, but I volunteer that I am pleased to learn that Roosevelt hated me.

It is a satisfaction to be able to look the world in the eye and say I have never stooped so low as to earn Franklin D. Roosevelt's approval or his widow's.

LOOKING SIDWAYS

Every now and then someone enchanted with the sound of his own voice gets up in a meeting and peppers the community with a few bilious words concerning the cultural depravity of television. The flood of crum plays, the anarchy and the low level of comedy all come in for an oral pasting that is thorough and articulate. The only thing wrong is that such critics seem to have only one ear.

The truth is that television is out besting the bushes and the woods in search of palatable cultural material and will thank aloud the man who brings in an educational or cultural idea that isn't a bore. The trouble with most critics is that they are scattering bors and people won't listen to them. Bishop Sheen is a notable exception and his discourses on human ethics have become a national "must" without regard to any single appeal to any single faith or creed. There is another I feel like writing about him because for 26 weeks, as of yesterday, he has been making the all-time Best Seller a piece of his creature, fascinating and compelling. Instead of a religious guide, My hero today is William Bush Barr, Dean of the University College of Arts and Science at New York University, who brings readings from and explanations of the Bible to TV each Sunday morning for 15 minutes and makes the writing everyone recognizes as great even greater.

When it comes time to pass the medals for good deeds made pleasant — a feat of magic all by itself, incidentally I suppose they will have to go to Columbia Broadcasting System, which accepted the show when Warren A. Kraetzer, coordinator of radio and TV at NYU, suggested the Baer program. Mr. Kraetzer heard that CBS wanted an educational show that made sense and wouldn't drive audiences away. He suggested Mr. Baer's explorations of the Bible as literature acceptable to men of all faiths, from Buddhist to Shinto to Protestant to Hebrew to Catholic. The Bible is literature and presentation of it as such seemed sensible and valuable to Mr. Kraetzer. It also, fortunately, seemed valuable and interesting to CBS. The result is now half a year of the program.

Few people turning their receiving sets to Mr. Baer ever turn him off. Some do, of course. Some would turn off anything that didn't have energetic clowns, fast-shooting guns and screams in the dark. But the records show that Mr. Baer's audiences have increased steadily for 26 consecutive weeks, and so has the appreciative mail he and CBS receive each Monday and Tuesday after the Sunday show.

What does Mr. Baer really do? Well, he selects a section from the Bible and reads it. He doesn't intone it or stand in awe of it or treat it as something too holy for human attention. He treats it as fine, stimulating writing of a historic nature. He has maps behind him and when references is made to a locale which might be wilder some listeners he walks over to the maps and quietly points out the spot plus its surrounding terrain. He makes you feel that Antioch, for example, was a place of considerable historic interest before it became a place of religious interest. He wages to the locale a sense that people lived there, led averagely interesting lives and helped make a community. Time rolls away.

That makes sense. It humanizes events that have become clouded because too many approach the Bible as a totally religious document, whereas it is equally a magnificent history book. He has led — not taught — thousands to re-examine the Bible and its contents in simple terms.

The show is called "Our Goodly Heritage." He makes you aware that it is indeed a goodly heritage, and in 26 weeks he has not for one moment been a bore.

That is something special all by itself.

Will British TV Prove Equal To Rich Coronation Rituals?

"MUFFIN, THE MULE"—a wooden puppet, is one of the two top attractions on British TV. Prince Charles is an ardent fan.

TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Special Correspondent
LONDON — (NEA) — Will British television prove equal to what Billy Rose describes as "the greatest spectacle of our times" — the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth II? And will the Coronation do for British TV what the Kefauver hearings and the Chicago political conventions did for its American counterpart?

Already there is a TV sales boom. Nearly 600,000 new TV sets were sold in the past year to boost the number sold in the past year to the British Isles beyond 2,000,000.

But it will take more than a ceremony in Westminster Abbey to put British television on the map as a going cultural and entertainment concern. Despite a 10-year jump on its U.S. rival, British video is still in its infancy, compared to American television.

A wooden puppet called "Muffin the Mule" and a pale carbon copy of "What's My Line?" (of which the British pay royalties to the U.S. owner) are the top attractions of British television today.

What's wrong with British television? Nine out of 10 of its critics will give "national ownership" as the answer. National ownership has cut off commercial sponsorship which also would finance its costly productions. National ownership has left it dependent upon license fees yielding a paltry $12,000,000 a year as its sole means of finance.

In turn, the TV set owner is hobbled with a purchase tax and restrictions on installment buying, but he must pay $6 a year in license fees for the doubtful privilege of viewing a succession of "amateur nights."

Aside from a scattering of daytime women's and children's programs, British Broadcasting Corporation-TV offers three hours of viewing time each night. There are no alternative programs.

Its defenders argue that BBC-TV has deliberately sacrificed alternative programs, its top priority of American television, in favor of national coverage. They point with pride to the fact that television is available to 78 per cent of the population, with the remaining 12 per cent to be brought within the range of its transmitters.

The suggestion that there be more daytime TV is viewed with horror by the august London Times, which sees such a plan as an "insidious form of modern lotus-eating." On the other hand, a Daily Express survey showed that more than 50 per cent of readers polled wanted commercially-sponsored TV.

British video's all time peak audience so far was recorded for the telecast of King George VI's funeral, seen by 20 million viewers. His daughter's Coronation this June will wipe out that record.

be a sharp curtailment in maintenance, operation and rehabilitation of existing facilities . . . and a sharp curtailment in developing natural resources."

Rogers noted that while the committee made this slash for home use, "citizens are being asked to contribute $6 billion for foreign aid."

He said much of this money is used indirectly — to develop the natural resources of those foreign countries. He added he could not "reconcile the development of natural resources in other countries while at the expense of permitting ours to go unattended."

Rogers Claims Economy Cuts Reduce Construction Budgets

The big cuts in federal spending reported out of Washington are coming more out of construction budgets than out of administrative budgets. Rep. Walter Rogers, Pampa, said this week.

Citing the Interior Department and Bureau of Reclamation as an example, the Pampa congressman slashed $202 million off the budget estimate of $607 million. Of this $58 million came off the Bureau of Reclamation budget, and $90 million of that represents curtailed construction and rehabilitation while the general administration expenses accounted for another $1 million. The cut means there will

TV Commercials
COLUMBUS, — UP—Dr. Kenneth Dameron, professor of business organization at Ohio State University, said a study conducted in the Columbus market area showed 19.5 per cent of the viewers said they "usually" fail to give attention to TV commercials. Of the rest 41.25 per cent said they "sometimes" do not pay attention, 18 per cent checked "seldom" and 15 per cent, "never."

Going And Coming
SHELTON, Neb.—UP—Mrs. Don Smith was understandably confused when her husband met her at the Denver airport. He had driven her to her plane in Grand Island, Neb., a few hours earlier. After putting his wife on the plane, Smith flew to Denver in a private plane when a friend offered him a ride. The commercial airline had to make two stops en route, while the private plane flew straight through.
