PEDC holds hearings on EA, cameras

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Economic Development Corporation held public hearings on two proposals this week and forwarded them to the Pampa City Commission for further action.

The first of the hearings Thursday concerned a maximum amount of $35,000 per year for The Entrepreneur Alliance Incorporated for a project to help existing and new retail businesses.

The second concerned a grant for $21,208 from the PEDC to the City of Pampa to purchase 10 surveillance cameras for Pampa parks. The governor's office would match that amount for a total of $42,416.

The city will have to approve the grant on two readings and the PEDC will have to wait 60 days before paying the $21,208, explained PEDC President Gary Sutherland.

The PEDC grant of $21,208 is dependent upon the city receiving the $21,208 grant from the governor's office.

Tips for having a safe and happy Easter weekend

THE PAMPA NEWS

Easter is a time for celebration, family fun and, of course, goodies for the little ones.

Every spring, kids' eyes across the country light up with visions of decorating Easter eggs, outdoor egg hunts, marshmallow Peeps and visits from the Easter Bunny.

It's a fun-filled holiday, to be sure, but it's also important to keep kids safe and sound while they enjoy their Easter activities.

Keep these tips in mind when planning a safe, fun Easter weekend:

- To steer clear of choking hazards, young children (under the age of 5) should not be given small candy. Be sure to give out age-appropriate candy and keep an eye on young children at all times.
- Toys with small or detachable pieces are also choking hazards, so again, take care when handing these out to small children.
- Be mindful of allergies; some children have allergies to food products like peanuts that can be

DOC to use bull barn as emergency media center

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

In the event of an emergency at the prisons near Pampa, the Texas Department of Corrections will use the Clyde Carruth Pavilion at Recreation Park for a media communications center.

Gray County commissioners agreed to a request by TDC officials Thursday to allow officials to use the bull barn, officially known as the Clyde Carruth Pavilion, as a media center in emergencies so long as there was nothing happening at the barn. They noted it would be difficult is a livestock show was in progress.

As part of their emergency planning, prison officials from the Rufe Jordan and Bill Bates Units east of town are lining up plans for where the media could come for information as well as families of prison officials or families inmates could gather.

Prison officials said the pavilion would be used in case of damage to the prison system by a natural disaster or other problems such as a riot.

In other business in their first meeting of the month:

- The commission agreed to a request from Paul Lloyd, president of the airport advisory board, to notify the Texas Department of Transportation the county was willing to consider building a new terminal at Perry Lefors Airport.
- Lloyd said that the Pampa Economic Development Corporation had shown an interest in the project and that there was matching grant money available from TxDOT for such a project, but since the airport is owned by the county, the commissioners would need to support the project.
- Lloyd presented a general plan for the new terminal that had been drawn up by Pampa engineer Ron Nelson.

The plans were for a 3,000 square foot terminal building made of steel and masonry with some covered parking. It would replace the terminal that's at the airport now.

The estimated cost of a new terminal and parking as planned would be a little over $500,000, with the state funding as much as half of the project.

Lloyd said that TxDOT would review the proposal and would meet in May in Austin to discuss the plan as well as other projects across the state.

Nation posts largest jobs gain in three years in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy posted its largest job gain in three years in March, while the unemployment rate remained at 9.7 percent for the third straight month.

The increase in payrolls is the latest sign that the economic recovery is gaining momentum and healing in the job market is beginning. Still, the healing is likely to be slow, and most economists don't expect new hiring to be fast enough this year to rapidly reduce the unemployment rate.

The Labor Department said employers added 162,000 jobs in March, the most since the recession began but below analysts' expectations of 190,000. The total includes 48,000 temporary workers hired for the U.S. Census, also fewer than many economists forecast.

Private employers added 123,000 jobs, the most since May 2007.

"It's just the beginning of a rise in private hiring that will help sustain the recovery," said Stuart Hoffman, chief economist at PNC Financial Services Group. "They're not big numbers, but they're welcome numbers."

Still, there are 15 million Americans out of work, roughly double the total before the recession began in December 2007. More Americans entered the work force last month, which prevented the increase in jobs from reducing the unemployment rate.

The economy began recovering in the middle of last year, but is only now showing modest job gains.

"It is still disappointing that it took roughly nine months before we started to see any meaningful rebound" in jobs, Paul Ashworth, senior U.S. economist at Capital Economics, wrote in a note to clients.

The stock market was closed for Good Friday but stock futures edged up in an abbreviated session of electronic trading. Dow Jones industrial average futures rose about 0.3 percent.

Interest rates rose in the bond market after the report. Investors often sell Treasuries and favor riskier assets like stocks and commodities when the economy is improving.

Manufacturers added 17,000 jobs, the third straight month of gains. Temporary help services added 40,000, while health care added 37,000. Leisure and hospitality added 22,000.

Even the beleaguered construction industry added 15,000 positions, though that likely reflects a rebound from February, when major snowstorms may have kept many construction workers off payrolls.

Perry receives threat from anti-government group

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Gov. Rick Perry's office is confirming it received a threatening letter from an anti-government group that's calling for removing governors from office.

Perry spokeswoman Allison Castle and the Texas Department of Public Safety confirmed Friday that a letter arrived from the group Guardians of the Free Republics. The group says it wants to "restore America" by peacefully dismantling parts of government.

Texas officials won't say when the letter arrived. They're not releasing any other information except to say the DPS has opened a criminal investigation.

This week, dozens of governors received letters saying if they don't leave office within three days they will be removed, according to federal documents obtained by The Associated Press.

very serious. Be sure to check with parents before handing out chocolates or other candies that may contain nuts or other allergens.

• If decorating Easter eggs to put around house, remember that eggs quickly spoil if not refrigerated properly before and after you decorate them. Hard-boiled eggs left out for several hours should not be eaten.

• If you are planning to eat the eggs you dye, make sure that you only use food-grade dyes. Keep these eggs refrigerated until they are ready to eat. Don't eat eggs with cracked shells or eggs that have been out of the refrigerator for more than two hours.

• During indoor egg hunts, do not hide eggs near electrical outlets, hard to reach areas and household chemicals.

• For outdoor hunts, set up a boundary so kids aren't wandering off or exploring places that are unsupervised or may be unsafe.

• When hiding eggs outside, choose clean hiding places and avoid areas that pets or other animals might visit.

• Speaking of pets, be mindful of them, too! Remember that our four-legged friends can sometimes be overly inquisitive; keep that in mind when placing your eggs.

money would come from in the county's budget, Lloyd explained that no commitment of funds would be necessary until the project was approved by TxDOT in May.

County Judge Richard Peet said he thought a new terminal would have a positive impact on the county and the City of Pampa.

Peet said that if the city is interested in the project, it might be a project that the city and county could work together on.

In the end, the commission voted to proceed with the project for the time being.

• Sheriff Don Copeland opened bids on new video equipment at the jail.

Top of Texas Video of Lefors bid $27,000; M15 Security Solutions of Wichita Falls bid $76,000; Guardian Security of Lubbock bid $39,000, and Idea Com of Amarillo bid $30,000.

Because of the variance in the bids, the commission asked the sheriff to check the specifications and return with his recommendation at their April 15 meeting.

• Judge Peet told the commission that renovations are set to begin at the county annex on U.S. Highway 60. The cost of the renovations is expected to be recouped, he said, through rents from the agencies renting space at the annex.

• Gray County AgriLife Extension Agent Brandon McGinty told the commission that the rainwater collection system for the Clyde Carruth Pavilion was proceeding and they had permission from the City of Pampa to use city land north of the pavilion for their water collection system.

Plans are for the collection tank to be buried there. McGinty said there might also be some landscaping around the collection system.

• Peet told the commission that he had invited Pat Bagley of the Gray County Appraisal Board to come to the April 15, commission meeting to explain why some tax collections had to be returned.

The county, Peet said, is to return about $33,000. Pampa Independent School District is to return about $60,000. Lefors is to return as $7,000.

A total of $109,000 is to be returned from the various taxing entities, Peet said.

• Peet also said that he had been notified by TxDOT that would be spending about $2.4 million to replace a highway bridge near Lefors and that Texas 273 at the bridge could be closed while repairs are made.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Hugh," and I have been married 16 years. We generally have a good relationship, with few arguments. We seldom participate in activities that don't include each other.

Three years ago, I was hired to work in the office of a manufacturing facility. The majority of the workers are men. Although Hugh denies it, I suspect he's uncomfortable about it.

When I participate in company events for employees only, he becomes jealous and rants that it isn't fair for spouses to be excluded. Once in a while, my co-workers and I go out for drinks after work. When I'm asked to join them, Hugh goes on the offensive, demanding to know all the details. He then calls my cell phone repeatedly until I get home.

I'm hurt that he finds me and my associates so untrustworthy. He has met the people I work with and has seen that they're all friendly and happily married. I encourage him to do things on his own with his friends, hoping he'll see that I trust him and will return the favor. What can I do to improve the situation? -- PULLED IN TWO IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR PULLED IN TWO: Have you talked to your husband about his behavior and how it makes you feel? If not, you should. But please understand that short of quitting your job and going to work in a convent, you can't improve the situation. The problem is your husband is insecure. Only he can fix that, which would first require his admitting it. Sad to say, he may not even be able to admit it to himself.

This is a difficult time to go job-hunting, so I don't advise it. But in the meantime, please do not make his problem your own. Accept that he has a problem, but don't allow it to jeopardize your work relationships.

DEAR ABBY: Is it OK to have sex when you're a guest in someone's home? I say no, but my husband feels the host knows we're married so it's not inappropriate. I think it's rude and shows a lack of respect for the host.

Would you please settle this once and for all? When we stay with friends, we end up fighting during our vacation. -- UNCOMFORTABLE IN TEXAS

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: For a married couple to make love when they are houseguests isn't rude or disrespectful, provided the pictures don't fall off the walls and there are no complaints about noise from the neighbors. However, if the idea makes you uncomfortable and unable to relax and enjoy the intimacy, then you and your husband should vacation in a hotel where you can expect to have more privacy.

DEAR ABBY: How do I stop my shoes from squeaking? I have a pair that I love, but they squeak so badly it drives me crazy. Everyone can hear my shoes when I am walking. Can you help? -- NOT THE OLD SOFT SHOE

DEAR N.T.O.S.S.: According to the book "Haley's Hints," a way to solve your problem is to pierce the soles of your squeaky shoes four or five times with a darning needle at the ball of the foot.

If that doesn't do the trick, "place the shoes in a solution of salt water at room temperature, just so the soles are covered. After soaking for 15 minutes, dry them off and place the soles in boiled linseed oil overnight. The next morning, remove the shoes, dry them well and your finicky footwear should be completely silenced!"

Today in History

Today is Good Friday, April 2, the 92nd day of 2010. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 2, 1917, President Woodrow Wilson asked Congress to declare war against Germany, saying, "The world must be made safe for democracy." (Congress declared war four days later.)

On this date:

In 1513, Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de Leon landed in present-day Florida.

In 1792, Congress passed the Coinage Act, which authorized establishment of the U.S. Mint.

In 1860, the first Italian Parliament met at Turin.

In 1865, Confederate President Jefferson Davis and most of his Cabinet fled the Confederate capital of Richmond, Va., because of advancing Union forces.

In 1932, aviator Charles A. Lindbergh and John F. Condon went to a cemetery in The Bronx, N.Y., where Condon turned over $50,000 to a man in exchange for Lindbergh's kidnapped son. (The child, who was not returned, was found dead the following month.)

In 1974, French President Georges Pompidou died in Paris.

In 1980, President Jimmy Carter signed into law a windfall profits tax on the oil industry. (The tax was repealed in 1988.)

In 1986, four American passengers were killed when a bomb exploded aboard a TWA jetliner en route from Rome to Athens, Greece.

Ten years ago: More than 600 people set out on a five-day, 120-mile protest march to Columbia, S.C. to urge state lawmakers to move the Confederate flag from the Statehouse dome.

Education finance a complicated issue

BARRY HAENISCH
Superintendent, PISD

Recently I read an article online penned by another Texas school superintendent regarding school finance. It was well written and an excellent and easy to follow explanation. This week I am going to summarize it and provide some local figures and examples.

Most of us have just finished with our federal income tax return and have paid the taxes on our homes, so taxes are on our mind. The largest part of my property tax bill went to pay school taxes, and I will bet yours did, also. As a result, you most probably think that local property taxes make up the majority of the revenue that Pampa ISD receives each year.

The reality is that money to operate our schools comes from a combination of local and state tax dollars that is determined through a complex, and often confusing, system of funding formulas. The current formulas, which contain over fifty variables, including some from the 2005-2006 school year, eventually produce the amount of revenue each district is entitled to on a per student basis.

It sounds fair and equitable and easy to understand. Higher property values create more revenue; more students produce more revenue. Unfortunately, that is not exactly how it works. As local tax payers' tax burden increases each year, the local schools receive little or no benefit. The additional dollars do not flow to the school district, nor do they flow to the classroom, nor do they end up in the teachers' pay checks. Most of the money generated from higher school taxes ends up in the state's general fund.

A good way to view school funding is to look at it as a large bucket that contains the total local and state revenue to which the school district is entitled. First, the local school district puts in the money generated by local taxes. Then the remaining space is filled with state dollars. So as your property values increase, our tax dollars increase. But our bucket does not get bigger. The state simply reduces the amount of money that they are putting in our bucket. As the value on your home increases, we collect more taxes locally, but that does not translate into more money for our school children. It results in more money in the state's general fund.

What happens if the amount of money collected locally causes the bucket to overflow — like it does for our neighbors in Miami, White Deer, and Canadian? The state "recaptures" the excess, but that is another story.

With our current system, the size of our bucket is determined by applying the actual formulas or by funding at what is called "the hold-harmless target revenue level". Hold harmless means that if the formulas result in less money than a predetermined amount for each district, the local schools get the greater of the amounts. The problem with both the formulas and hold harmless is they result in different sized buckets in every community.

There are 1,029 school districts in Texas, and the average revenue for schools is $5,443 per weighted student. Target revenues, however, range from $3,879 per student in Red Lick ISD to $13,086 per student at Westbrook ISD. Only 308 school districts in the whole state have a target revenue of $5,443 per student, which is the state average.

The Pampa ISD has a target revenue of $5,019 per student which ranks in the bottom 30 percent of the state. In other words, 70 percent of the districts have more money per child to spend on educating their students than we have in our community. If the Pampa ISD were funded at the state average target revenue, the result would be an additional $1.5 million per year in revenue. That amount of money would allow us, as an example, to reduce the size of our kindergarten classes by one-half and employ an additional seventeen teachers throughout the district to increase educational opportunities for all of our school children.

Every school district in the state is held to the same high accountability standards because we, local school districts and the state, are dedicated to seeing that no child is left behind. However, through no fault of their own, too many students are asked to compete and succeed on a playing field that is tilted in the wrong direction.

America is one of the very few countries that provide opportunities for a free and appropriate public education for all children. It is expensive, but it is the only hope that our country has for a bright future. The Pampa ISD, its Board of Education and its staff, are mindful of our duty to our taxpayers and to the children we educate.

Barry Haensch is the superintendent of the Pampa Independent School District.

Kitchen fortunes seem to be changing with age

MARTHA RANDOLPH CARR
CaglePost.com

My culinary skills have always left a little something to be desired. I lack that instinctive element that tells a good cook to add a little more salt or just a little rosemary or even just how long to cook a chicken breast.

My son, Louie, who at least survived enough to get to adulthood, still loves to tell his friends about the fried chicken breast that was neatly charred on the outside and raw on the inside. He poked a fork in the chicken's side and blood came out. I got out the bread and peanut butter.

He uses a tone of voice usually reserved for tales of being tortured by generally malicious people. I was trying to make something tasty, not instill nightmares. When I tell point that out he rolls his eyes.

When I was living in New York, I took cooking classes at the Whole Foods store down in the Bowery that were taught by visiting chefs from restaurants in Manhattan. The dishes were relatively simple to make but were beautiful to look at and tasted like we all knew what we were doing.

However, even then I kind of goofed. There was an incident with the fish baked in banana leaves when I forgot to add any salt. The dishes were then distributed for eating in no particular order. An older man looked up, disappointed, after his first bite and said, "Someone forgot the salt." The curse continued.

I tried a soup that had only three ingredients and watched the pot, stirring occasionally. Somewhere in between the stirring I still managed to burn the soup and every bite had a certain crispy taste to it.

I became legendary as the girl who could follow a recipe and come out with a different dish every time. When potluck lists were made, I was automatically given the task of bringing the roast chicken because I could get that, already made, from the local grocery store.

Once I was given fruit salad and went by Sam's Club the night before and picked up a frozen bag of fruit salad. Who knew it would take more than a day for the bag to defrost. All of the fruit bits had a nice, frosty crunch to them.

I come by my lack of cooking skills honestly. My mother, Tina who managed to get five children to adulthood, may have had some of the same challenges. My mother faithfully reads this column in her local Florida newspaper and clips each one. So let's just say she was one of the first to buy in bulk the Chef Boyardee pizza in a box, the first instant dinner of its kind, and would say with a lot of enthusiasm, "Look kids, you can do it yourself!"

There was also a famous clear Jello and tuna with peas and carrots recipe, which is probably all I need to say about that one.

However, things may be inexplicably changing. I asked Louie to give me a crock pot for Christmas and a couple of dishes have turned out okay. I even attempted a chicken with garlic that turned out so well, Louie looked up in amazement and said, "You made this?" I understand why he was baffled. It was not only cooked through, it was really good.

My success with the crock pot has encouraged me to get a recipe book and friends have been sending me recipes they've spotted. I'm on a roll of sorts.

This is one of those rules of getting older than no one really tells you. Yes, there are some things that you may not be able to do very well anymore, or at all, but suddenly there are some new talents that emerge to replace them. There's always this balance thing going on that only requires us to keep trying new things. I may get older but I only grow stale if I stop seeking out something new to learn. More adventures to follow.

You have unusually high energy this year. If you are focused, you can accomplish nearly anything. Detach and look at the big picture. Travel and education could play a significant role in your choices. If you are single, you could meet someone quite unusual. Doors open as you learn more about a different lifestyle. If you are attached, the two of you need to detach from right and wrong in discussions. Through acceptance, you will discover the richness of your bond. SAGITTARIUS always presents a different view.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
***** Use frustration to energize you. Once you get going, you could be close to impossible to stop. If you can take off for a day trip, do. Recharge and gain a perspective. A sense of tranquility leads to new perceptions. Tonight: Take in a movie.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
***** Relax on an individual level. When you focus on someone, he or she feels very important and cared about. A new warmth energizes the dynamics. Use your intuition with a loved one. Tonight: Add a touch of romance.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
***** Others seek you out. Forget thoughts of a quiet Saturday off doing your thing. Bend like a weed with events and invitations. You enjoy yourself with friends most of all. A difficult person overwhelms you. Tonight: Just not alone.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
***** Clear out errands, go to the gym or squeeze in some exercise. Make yourself more comfortable in your daily life. Stop and check in with an older relative or friend. He or she could be quite happy to see you. Tonight: Keep it easy.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
***** Make sure you honor what you want. The child in you comes out when dealing with a loved one. No sign knows how to enjoy him- or herself better than you. Do just that, and you also will make a lot of people happy. Tonight: Discuss a trip in the near future over an exotic dinner.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
***** You might want to rethink plans, especially if they take you away from home. You need some downtime. A partner could be quite caring once he or she realizes the issue you are dealing with. Opening up helps you clear your mind. Tonight: Your home is your castle.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
***** Make calls, visit with a neighbor and catch up with others in general. Others seem to be more dominant than in the past. A friend, probably a male, could be very assertive. Practice being assertive, too, in your unique Libra way. Tonight: At a favorite haunt.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
***** Be aware of the extremes you can go to. Spending easily could get out of control. Be aware of the long-term ramifications of your actions. You might want to get some extra work done or clear out a project. Your imagination creates great plans. Tonight: Treat a loved one to a good time.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
***** News from a distance could get you going. Make calls and reach out to key people. Perhaps it is time to plan a trip; make sure that it is a trip for pleasure. A family member goes out of his or her way for you. Tonight: Paint the town red!
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
***** Take some much-needed personal time. Ask yourself what you really would like to do. Whether it is going to a flea market or to a movie, indulge. You work very hard, and it is time to let go and nourish yourself. Tonight: Happiest close to home.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
***** Whether you are shopping or at a game, you will be happy as long as you have people around you. Return calls and touch base with a dear friend. You might overindulge and go a little haywire at the end of the day. Tonight: You are the party.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
***** Dote on an older relative or friend. This person is delighted by your company. Treat him or her to a late lunch and/or a fun mutual pastime. You could be overwhelmed by everything that is on your plate. Know that you can handle it. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.
