Chamber set for Fri. Prayer Breakfast

75¢ Daily • Weekend $1.50

ARNIE AURELLANO editor@thepampanews.com

The public is invited to this year's Chamber of Commerce Prayer Breakfast, which will be held at 7 a.m. on Friday at the Chamber's M.K. Brown Room.

The breakfast, according to Chamber of Commerce President Pat Montoya, has taken on added significance in recent years with the impact of Sept. 11.

"We trv to have one every vear around 9/11," said Chamber President Pat Montoya. "We were doing it prior to 9/11 as a time for the community to come together and meet in prayer for the businesses in the community overall. Then 9/11 happened, so it's just kind of been combined. It means much more to us now."

With much of Pampa and Grav County's population having friends and family members serving in the military, Montoya said that the breakfast is also a way to send our thoughts out to the men and women protecting our freedom.

"We've all had people in the military who have passed on in the wars, and we all know people who

AFTERNOON*RUSH* Hermine weakens but heavy rain continues

Woman runs over, kills husband

HOUSTON (AP) - Authorities say a woman intentionally ran down her husband with her car and rolled over him several times, killing the man.

Harris County sheriff's deputies said they found the car Monday night with the woman still behind the wheel and her husband under the vehicle.

Authorities tell the Houston Chronicle a wrecker had to lift the car to free 29-year-old Donald Wesley Holmes. He was pronounced dead at a hospital.

Deputies say witnesses reported that the couple was having marital problems and had been arguing.

April Holmes was jailed on a $50,000 bond facing a murder charge. Online records had no information on an attorney

The Houston area had a similar case in 2002, when Clara Harris ran over and killed her husband after confronting him with his mistress.

Man drowns near San Antonio

FLORESVILLE (AP) — Authorities say a man apparently drowned in a part of the San Antonio River known for dangerous currents.

Lt. Jesse Evins of the Floresville Police told the San Antonio Express-News that the body of 23-year-old Manuel Williams was found Monday morning near Floresville State Park.

Evins says Williams, of Stockdale, and a girl accidentally fell into the river about 5:30 p.m. Sunday. He says park visitors heard the girl's cries and rescued her.

Crews searched for six hours Sunday night before resuming the search Monday. Evins says they found a body believed to be Williams about 25 feet downstream from where he was last seen.

Floresville is about 30 miles southeast of San Antonio.

Fried Frito Pie takes food prize

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Fried Frito Pie is the winner of the biggest food prize for this year's state fair.

The battered and fried blend of chili, cheese and Fritos won the Best Taste award Monday at the sixth annual Big Tex Choice Awards. Prize winners usually attract long lines from fairgoers.

Concoction creator Michael Thomas says he and his Billy Daves and Roy Wells - that were the first EMTs in partners spent six months experimenting with different batters, chilis and chips.

Fried Beer won the Most Creative award. It will be served this year along with the Deep Fried Frozen Margarita.

The fair runs Sept. 24 to Oct. 17.

Jeffs set for extradition

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Utah judge will ask Warren Jeffs to sign a waiver that would extradite the polygamous church leader to Texas to face criminal charges.

Jeffs refused to sign a similar warrant in June and his attorneys have said they will fight extradition.

Jeffs is the 54-year-old head of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The southern Utah-based church practices polygamy in arranged marriages that have sometimes involved underage girls.

Texas authorities have charged Jeffs with bigamy, aggravated sexual assault and assault related to alleged incidents with girls at a church ranch near Eldorado. Jeffs is scheduled to appear at a 1 p.m. hearing Tuesday in 3rd District Court before Judge Terry Christiansen.

RAYMONDVILLE (AP) Hermine weakened Tuesday but continued dumping heavy rains on a northern crawl through Texas, barely holding on to tropical storm strength but leaving behind a path of widespread power outages and landslides in Mexico.

Hermine continued dissolving just south of San Antonio and was expected to be downgraded into a tropical depression later Tuesday. Most of south Texas woke up to few signs that a tropical system had swept through, aside from scattered downed trees and power lines.

As when Hurricane Alex lashed the same flood-prone Rio Grande Valley in June, there was a feeling that Hermine Hermine dumped between 5 inches to a foot of rain after crossing into Texas late Monday. The storm made landfall in northeastern Mexico with winds of up to 65 mph (100 kph), arriving near the same spot as Alex, whose remnants killed at least 12 people in flooding in Mexico.

But unlike Alex, which swiped Texas then plunged southwest into Mexico, Hermine was felt in more places.

"This is going to be much more of a memorable storm than Alex," National Weather Service meteorologist Joseph Tomaselli said Tuesday.

Raymondville won't forget Hermine anytime soon. The rural farming town, about 20 miles off the Texas coast, began cleaning up early Tuesday without power after Hermine ripped the roof off a roadside motel occupied by terrified guests who say they fled for safety in the nick of time.

Two dead as soldiers fire on car

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) - Soldiers opened fire on -a family's car at a military checkpoint in northern Mexico, killing a 15-year-old boy and his father, authorities and relatives said Monday.

Javier Trevino, Nuevo Leon state lieutenant governor, 'said soldiers apparently shot at the car when the driver failed to stop at the checkpoint Sunday on the highway connecting the northeastern city of Monterrey to Laredo, Texas. But the boy's mother and uncle said the family had just passed a military convoy when the soldiers opened fire. Patricia Castellanos, a 45-year-old tamale vendor, said they were returning to Monterrey after visiting her sister in the town of Salinas Victoria. Castellanos said she and her husband were traveling with their teenage son, their 24-year-old daughter, their son-in-law and their two grandchildren, ages 8 and 9.

The 15-year-old, Alejandro Leon, was shot in the head and back and died at the scene. Castellanos' husband, bricklayer Vicente Leon, was struck in the back and died at the hospital.

Baby dies in van crash

HILLSBORO (AP) - A six-month old baby girl was killed when a van carrying a family lost control on Interstate 35 in central Texas and flipped over several times, injuring 13 others.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokeswoman Lisa Block says the accident happened Monday around 2 a.m. north of Hillsboro.

Block says troopers think a tire blowout caused the van to lose control.

The girl who died has been identified as Evelyn Kate Garcia

DPS officials say the van was pulling a trailer and the passengers told authorities they were traveling from Dallas to Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, for a family reunion and 'a mission trip.

DPS spokesman Lonny Haschel said Monday afternoon that of the 13 taken to area hospitals, five had been treated and released. The rest were in stable condition.

Nev. candidate touts speedy fix

CARSON CITY, Nev. - One Nevada gubernatorial hopeful sees a speedy fix to Nevada's budget crisis. Nonpartisan candidate Eugene "Gino" DiSimone believes people would pay for the privilege to drive up to 90 mph on designated highways - and fill the state's depleted coffers DiSimone calls his idea the "free limit plan." He estimates the plan would bring in $1 billion a year.

First, vehicles would have to pass a safety inspection. Then vehicle information would be loaded into a database, and motorists would purchase a transponder.

After setting up an account, anyone in a hurry could dial in, and for $25 charged to a credit card, be free to speed for 24 hours.

The Nevada Highway Patrol isn't keen on the idea, say--ing it would lead to increased injuries and traffic deaths.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 7, the 250th day of 2010. There are 115 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 7, 1940, Nazi Germany began its eightmonth blitz of Britain during World War II with the first air attack on London.

On this date:

In 1892, James J. Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan to win the world heavyweight crown in New Orleans in a fight conducted under the Marquess of Queensberry rules.

In 1907, the British liner RMS Lusitania set out from Liverpool, England, on its maiden voyage, arriving six days later in New York.

In 1927, American television pioneer Philo T. Farnsworth, 21, succeeded in transmitting the image of a line through purely electronic means with a device called an "image dissector."

In 1977, the Panama Canal treaties, calling for the U.S. to eventually turn over control of the waterway to Panama, were signed in Washington by President Jimmy Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos.

In 1979, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network (ESPN) made its cable TV debut.

In 1996, rapper Tupac Shakur was shot and mortally wounded on the Las Vegas Strip; he died six days later.

Ten years ago: A jury in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, awarded $6.3 million to a woman and her son who'd been attacked by Aryan Nations guards outside the white supremacist group's north Idaho headquarters. (The verdict forced Aryan Nations founder Richard Butler to give up his compound and the group eventually withered away.)

Five years ago: Police and soldiers went house to house in New Orleans to try to coax the last stubborn holdouts into leaving the storm-shattered city. U.S. troops in Iraq rescued American businessman Roy Hallums, who'd been held hostage ten months.

One year ago: Three British Muslims were convicted in London of plotting to murder thousands by downing at least seven airliners bound for the U.S. and Canada.

Ten tips on following midterm elections

On your mark...get set...demonize and define!

Labor Day marks the political season's unofficial start in a country where the REAL political season is actually 24/7 and closer to some 300 days a year (minus holidays). Get ready to read a lot of spin, ideology-anchored analysis aimed at promoting partisan fortunes, and polls that will influence the conventional wisdom perhaps some voting. 1. Both parties want you to have selective amnesia: Republicans are working mightily to shift blame for the ailing economy on the Democrats and to get voters to forget about the Bush administration's role. Democrats are pointing to Bush and downplay or spin disappointing results from their own policies. This is akin to how both parties blamed each other for the 9/11 attacks when history shows both parties were negligent on terrorism. 2. The mainstream press loves narratives: Key narratives are the declining fortunes of the Democrats and Obama and far out Tea Party movement candidates. Comments and events that fit within this narrative will get more prominent play ---which influences later coverage. 3. Watch independent voters: If it looks as if the Democrats are starting to halt or reverse independent voter defections, it may mean the party is stemming political bleeding.

Chicagostyle politics: Chicago's If Mayor Richard Daley polilike ticked Obama, Daley would have wound up Dog Catcher (if that). 5 The main increased.

9. Follow a solid pollster: Gallup finds minority and young voters are tepid on the Democrats and that anti-Democratic sentiment is fueling a seeming upcoming GOP tsunami. If this came from an ideology tainted pollster I would shrug.

10. Be skeptical of ideological analysts: Forgo getting worked up by political predictions issued by ideological political prognosticators such as the entertaining Dick Morris, whose predictions have sometimes been to accuracy what a banana split is to dieting. Follow a reliable political crystal ball reader such as the University of Virginia's Larry Sabato. Sabato predicts a virtual rout for Democrats on Election Day. He analyzes from the standpoint of political science, not political cheerleading or partisan propaganda to bolster one side and/dr discourage the other.

PEDC supports Lifetime Recovery Centers

The Pampa EDC met on Tuesday August 31, 2010 and voted in support of Lifetime Recovery Centers of America's plans to open their first rehabilitation center and their corporate offices in Pampa. We are pleased to be supportive of businesses that

GANDELMAN stream media is increasingly circumvented: GOPers Jan Brewer, Sarah Palin, Rand Paul and Sharon Angle are avoiding the mainstream media and communicating through social media and friendly ideological interviewers such as Fox News' Sean Hannity. This means they're not being held accountable or fact checked. Preaching to the choir can be successful if choir members are in the majority in voting and nonchoir members decide not to show up. It's about shoring up the base and it's working

White calls for cut in tourism spending

AUSTIN (AP) — Gubernatorial candidate Bill White has found at least one multimillion dollar program Texas can do without: commercials and advertisements promoting Texas.

The Democrat recently said he would ax money for such advertising as one way to save the state money.

"There are certain things we ought to take a machete to." he said when asked which programs could be eliminated. "The advertising budget right out of the governor's office has gone up from about $6,000 in 2001 to $22 million-plus today.

"We can't afford that."

White, the former mayor of Houston, is running against Republican Gov. Rick Perry, who appeared flummoxed when told about his opponent's comments.

"He actually said those words?" Perry asked. "There is no governor's advertising budget."

That is true, but when pressed by The Associated Press to provide more details, White's campaign produced a document showing the tourism office, which is under the governor's office, spent more than $22 million last fiscal year for advertising services for Texas tourism and marketing.

The money came from a fund established by a 1994 law requiring one-half of 1 percent of the state's hotel and motel tax revenue to go to "media advertising and other marketing activities" to promote Texas tourism. The tourism fund is expected to bring in about $60 million over the next two years.

The money, intended to lure tourists to the Lone Star State, is used for television commercials and print advertisements touting the state's many attractions. Lately, the advertisements use the motto "Texas, it's like a whole other country.'

Perry has already proposed cutting millions from the program to help close the state's $18 billion budget hole. The tourism office budget would be reduced by $6 million over the next two years as part of the governor's savings drive. He has asked state agencies to submit proposals for cutting their budgets by 10 percent.

Still, Perry's campaign defended the tourism spending. "I think there are many people in the travel industry in this state that would be very offended by Bill White's call to get rid of that fund," Perry's campaign spokesman Mark Miner said. "It shows a complete lack of understanding (of efforts) to create jobs, to bring people to this state to spend dollars in Texas. It makes no sense."

Rare texts on display

CANYON (AP) — Some of the world's best known texts will be on display in a Panhandle museum over the next three months.

The Amarillo Globe-News reports that rare materials are on loan to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum from the Remnant Trust, a public educational foundation with a collection of about 1,100 rare, archive quality pieces.

An official of the foundation said most works are close to the original printing.

Texts ranging from St. Augustine's "Confessions" to Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address to a 1791 edition of the King James Bible now are on display at the museum. More are scheduled to arrive in October, including the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Service agencies face aid deadline

GALVESTON (AP) - It wasn't too long ago that Lucy Rangel-Click was embarrassed to let people see her house. After Hurricane Ike, she had only about $14,000 in federal assistance to replace the drywall and siding, fix the floor and repair the roof.

Replacing the walls and paying for her living expenses ate up that cash, leaving the lifelong Galveston resident with a blue tarp roof, a warped floor and an ugly exterior.

Work crews recently arrived at her house to finish the repairs, thanks to funding from a Social Services Block Grant managed by Catholic Charities. "It looks better," Rangel-Click said. "It doesn't look like an eyesore anymore.

Unless Congress takes action soon, the relief Rangel-Click and 59 other Galveston County residents are getting won't be available for the many more who are living in houses damaged by Ike.

Catholic Charities is one of 60 agencies that received about $36.8 million in federal aid to provide Ike-related services, including social service care, transportation assistance, mental health care, health care and home repairs.

In many cases, lead agencies like Catholic Charities, the University of Texas Medical Branch, Lutheran Social Services and the Gulf Coast Center serve as the funding conduit to smaller sub-agencies to provide aid.

FALLING

DEAR

DEAR ABBY: My best friend of 30 years, "Andrea," and her husband decided not to have children. They are happy with their dogs and cats.

She recently adopted a 10-year-old rescue dog and changed the dog's name to "Monique." Abby, Monique is my daughter's name! When I asked Andrea why she changed the dog's name, she said it is because no one in her family has that name. I am hurt that she would name her dog after my daughter, her godchild — so much so that I no longer wish to speak to this woman. How do I get past this? - MONIQUE'S MOM IN COLORADO

DEAR M.M.: I understand your feelings, but I hate to see a friendship of 30 years go down in flames because of one (albeit huge) lapse of judgment on Andrea's part. It appears she just loved the name. Avoid having your daughter and her dog in the same room at the same time, and you'll spare both of them from confusion. And remember, your Monique will have the name much longer than the dog will. This, too, shall pass. DEAR ABBY: I have an old friend, "Erika," who, when we were working together, was my superior. My problem is Erika will, from time to time, ask me questions seeming not to know anything about the subject. However, as I begin explaining whatever it is, she'll then say something that indicates she really is well-versed in the matter and knows more about it than I do. I end up feeling blindsided, stupid, and like I have been set up. Why does she do this? And how can I avoid falling into this trap? Erika seems so sincere when she asks a question. - FALLING FOR IT

The deadline for the agencies to spend that money is the end of September. Catholic Charities had about $3.45 million for its housing repair program in Galveston County from the $10.45 million granted. Houses in the program thus far are split evenly between the mainland and island, officials said.

Red tape, state regulations and compliance rules delayed the start of the program. Because it took so long for the money to become available, volunteer and nonprofit groups that swarmed the county after the storm had to return home, so Catholic Charities turned to local firms to get the repairs done.

Harold Fattig, southern regional director for Catholic Charities, said the group turned to Galveston-based Sullivan Land Interests, one of the primary contractors for the city of Galveston and Galveston County Disaster Housing Rebuild and Repair programs. Sullivan tapped Rawlins Residential Builders and other local subcontractors

Unlike the city of Galveston and county housing programs that are focused on making major repairs or building new houses, the Catholic Charity housing program focuses on smaller jobs. The group is restricted from spending more than 25 percent of a house's pre-Ike appraised value for the repairs.

Fattig said the focus has been to seek out those "blue roofs," referring to tarps that were supposed to be temporary covers. Many still are in place almost two years after Ike made landfall.

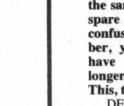

"Many of those homeowners are senior citizens who just don't have the money for basic repairs," Fattig said. 'And they aren't used to asking for help. They don't realize they are eligible for benefits.'

Fattig said a community survey by the Mainland Children's Partnership found more than 200 blue roofs in Texas City, La Marque, Hitchcock and Dickinson. While many homeowners need help, they might not get it unless Congress approves an extension of the Sept. 30 deadline for spending those funds.

a long and happy life, and had been finally released from chronic pain.

How do I answer these criticisms? I have given the reasons I have given you, but no one wants to accept that response. I'm tired of being told how I "should" show emotion at a funeral. Is what I feel or show really anyone's business but my own? - STOIC IN COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR STOIC: No, it's not. And furthermore, funerals can be such wrenching events that sometimes emotions become mixed up and mourners -- rather than crying -- have been known to break into giggles and laughter. Because few people who have suffered a significant loss are at their best while they are grieving, please try to forgive these presumptuous individuals for their comments.
