New antique mall makes Pampa debut

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

Local treasure hunters will now have a new stop on their shopping excursions after Friday's grand opening of the Sparrow's Nest, Pampa's newest antique shop.

The Sparrow's Nest has 70 spaces offering antiques including clothing, jewelry, candles, coins, knives and furniture.

Cindy Crawford, proprietor of the mall with her husband Bob, said a variety of people have a variety of booths in the new mall.

"We have 4,500 square feet in the front," she said.

The building, the old Pampa Hardware Building at Cuyler and Kingsmill, has a total of 7,000 square feet, Crawford said, but only the front half is open.

Plans call for expansion into the back of the building, she said.

New panel to deal with bird, lines

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

The Gray County Commissioners Court today created a sub-regional planning commission to deal with the question of power lines and endangered species in the county.

"Let me make it understood," County Judge Richard Peet to the commission today, "that Gray County wants the transmission lines."

He said the project is important to the county, but everyone needs to understand what's involved in the transmission lines going through the county.

The commission had asked that the lines be routed around the habitat of the lesser prairie chicken, fearing that the route that was proposed and eventually selected split the habitat and might trigger the listing of the ground-dwelling bird under the Endangered Species Act.

Last month, however, they learned that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has already started procedures that are expected to culminate in listing the Lesser Prairie Chicken as endangered or threatened. The bird presently is a candidate species and does not enjoy any protection under federal law.

Peet said the commission would meet in the county courtroom Monday with Cross Texas Transmission, who is installing the power lines.

In other business:

- The commission today also approved a resolution regarding an indigent defense fund grant. Peet explained that this is a resolution that has to be updated annually.
- County Auditor Elaine Morris said the county is eligible for a $15,000 grant this year.
- The commission also approved COMMISSION cont. on page 3

Pennsylvania to sue Cabot for contamination

DIMOCK, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania's top environmental regulator says the state will sue a Houston-based drilling company unless it agrees to pay nearly $12 million to extend a public water line to at least 18 residents whose water wells have been contaminated with methane gas.

Environmental Secretary John Hanger accused Cabot Oil & Gas Corp. on Thursday of renegeing on its promises to the residents of Dimock, a small town in Susquehanna County, where tainted wells have raised concerns nationwide about the environmental and health consequences of gas drilling.

"We have had people here in Pennsylvania ... without safe drinking water for close to two years. That is totally, totally unacceptable. It is reprehensible," Hanger told a news conference packed with residents and media. "We're going to take decisive action now because we cannot possibly wait any longer."

Hanger blames the methane contamination of the Dimock aquifer on faulty Marcellus Shale gas wells drilled by Cabot. The company vigorously denies responsibility for the pollution. It took out a newspaper ad and released a 29-page rebuttal document this week in which Cabot's chief executive officer, Dan Dinges, lambasted Hanger and his agency for "political pandering" and abuse of authority.

Dramatic evidence of the methane contamination — residents lighting their tap water on fire — was broadcast this summer in "Gasland," the Josh Fox documentary on HBO. The film highlighted environmental concerns about natural gas drilling in the Marcellus Shale and other rock formations around the country.

Dimock is not alone in dealing with methane water contamination. Just 35 miles southwest, in Wilmot Township, The Department of Environmental Protection says at least six residential wells were found earlier this month to be tainted with methane believed to be caused by Oklahoma City-based Chesapeake Energy Co. drilling. Clean water is being supplied to those residents, officials said.

County

Commission of Texas last month approved the route. Cross Texas Transmission has also filed a request with the Public Utilities Commission for a right-of-way from the proposed substation west to Carson County, according to the Gray County Judge Richard Peet.

The proposed power lines would connect electricity-producing wind farms in the panhandle to the electric grid downstate.

Gas prices down in Texas, nation

IRVING (AP) — The average price of gasoline in Texas dropped slightly to $2.55 this week.

The weekly AAA Texas price survey released Thursday said the average price of a gallon of unleaded regular dropped by two cents across Texas. The national average also dropped 2 cents per gallon to $2.69, staying well above the Texas average.

The auto club said the market is still recovering from a major pipeline disruption and the reopening of two pipelines in the Midwest earlier this month. Retail gas prices fell as crude oil prices increased.

The cheapest average price in Texas is San Antonio at $2.50. The most expensive gas is in Amarillo at $2.67. Both are two-cents less than last week.

GE launches fracked H₂O recycler

TREVOSE, Pa. (AP) — General Electric Co. is launching a mobile device aimed at helping natural gas drillers recycle water used in a controversial gas drilling process known as hydraulic fracturing.

The truck-sized, transportable device would cut down on both the amount of fresh water used and wastewater currently trucked long distances for disposal.

The company's mobile evaporator would allow natural gas producers to reuse some of the millions of gallons of water used to extract natural gas from dense shale deposits deep underground through the so-called "fracking" process. Water is mixed with chemicals and sand and pumped at high pressure thousands of feet below the surface to create fissures in the rock and release the gas.

Fracking uses a large amount of fresh water and produces billions of gallons of wastewater annually.

Prison official's trial to Lubbock

LUBBOCK (AP) — The trial of an ex-Texas youth prison official facing charges he sexually abused teenage inmates is set for February in Lubbock.

John Paul Hernandez, the former principal at the Texas Youth Commission's West Texas State School, has been charged with two counts of sexual assault and nine counts of improper relationship between an educator and a student.

The charges stem from allegations of oral sex with students during 2004 and 2005 while Hernandez was at the facility in Pyote.

The Odessa American reported Thursday that the facility closed this summer.

In April, Ray Edward Brookins, a former assistant superintendent at the school, was sentenced to 10 years in prison for sexually abusing a then-18-year-old inmate in 2004.

The case eventually led Texas lawmakers to order an overhaul of the system.

More of Gulf reopened for fishing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Another chunk of the Gulf of Mexico has been opened to fishing after seafood tests and surveys found no oil contamination threat.

The 5,628-square-mile area is just west of the Mississippi River delta and about 75 miles south of the BP well that spewed millions of gallons of oil into the Gulf.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said no oil or sheen has been seen in the area since Aug. 6.

Federal officials said about 26,287 square miles of federal waters remain closed. That is about 11 percent of the Gulf. At the height of the spill, about 37 percent of federal waters in the Gulf were closed, or 88,522 square miles.

NOAA administrator Jane Lubchenco said the seafood in the newly reopened area is safe to eat.

DA to probe bullied teen's death

HOUSTON (AP) — The Harris County District Attorney's Office will be looking into what led to the suicide of a 13-year-old Houston area boy whose parents say had been relentlessly bullied at his middle school the last two years.

Asher Brown's parents said Friday they hope justice will be served by the investigation.

The parents claim that school officials ignored their pleas to help their son.

The Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District, where Brown's school was located, has said no one reported the eighth-grader was being bullied.

Brown fatally shot himself on Sept. 23 in his family's home.

His stepfather said Brown had been ridiculed by students because he was small, a Buddhist and didn't wear designer clothes. Brown was also accused of being gay by fellow students.

Mayor killed on $6,000 hit

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Mexican prosecutors say two men arrested in the killing of a small-town Mexican mayor killed the man over a land dispute in a $6,000 contract killing.

Nuevo Leon state Attorney General Alejandro Garza y (ee) Garza ruled out the involvement of drug gangs that have been blamed for the assassination of many other mayors in Mexico.

Doctor Gonzalez Mayor Prisciliano Rodriguez was gunned down Sept. 23 along with an aide. He was the fourth mayor killed in northeastern Mexico in a month.

Garza y Garza said the two detained men confessed to killing the mayor over a land dispute. He said an uncle of one of the two suspects hired them a week before the assassination, asking them if they "wanted a little job." The uncle remains at large.

Man says drugs in buttocks not his

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — When sheriff's deputies allegedly discovered a bag of marijuana and cocaine between a man's buttocks, they say he gave a quick explanation.

Manatee County deputies say Raymond Stanley Roberts told them "The white stuff is not mine, but the weed is."

Deputies stopped the 25-year-old Wednesday in Bradenton for speeding. Officers say they smelled marijuana and searched him. That's when they allegedly found a bag of marijuana between Roberts' buttocks.

Officers then discovered another bag in there; the report says it contained 27 pieces of rock cocaine.

The Bradenton Herald reports Roberts was arrested for drug possession and has bonded out of jail. The person who answered Friday at a phone number listed for Roberts said it wasn't his.

songs quickly, and always encouraged me to lead other girls in group singing.

From a small Brownie to my adult life, I still lead others in song. It did help that my family was musically, talented but it all enhanced my decision to major in voice at WTAMU.

I also excelled in camping skills, and here I am today the Director of Outdoor Education for our council. I'm still directing Girl Scout Camp Kiwanis every summer and loving it.

Girl Scouting is all about developing leadership

Dear Patients of Hough Pediatrics,

As many of you know, we have felt the need to move closer to our family for some time now. It is with mixed emotions that we must announce that the time has come. We have shared so many great memories with the people of Pampa and will always cherish them. We would like to thank Pampa Regional Medical Center, the other medical providers in town and especially our patients for making this a wonderful period in our lives. The Hough Pediatrics office in Pampa will close on October 15, 2010.

We will only be seeing sick visits during October as we will be using up our stock of immunizations.

To obtain medical records we ask that parents call and let us put your name on a list. Because we have thousands of medical records we will copy them on the weekends and have them available the next week. By law, the legal guardian must sign for the patient's records for us to be able to release them.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Oct. 2, the 275th day of 2010. There are 90 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 2, 1985, actor Rock Hudson died at his home in Beverly Hills, Calif. at age 59 after battling AIDS.

On this date:

In 1780, British spy John Andre was hanged in Tappan, N.Y. during the Revolutionary War.

In 1835, the first battle of the Texas Revolution took place as American settlers fought Mexican soldiers near the Guadalupe River; the Mexicans ended up withdrawing.

In 1869, political and spiritual leader Mohandas K. Gandhi was born in Porbandar, India.

In 1944, Nazi troops crushed the two-month-old Warsaw Uprising, during which a quarter of a million people were killed.

In 1950, the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles M. Schulz, was syndicated to seven newspapers.

In 1958, the former French colony of Guinea in West Africa proclaimed its independence.

In 1967, Thurgood Marshall was sworn as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court as the court opened its new term.

In 1970, one of two chartered twin-engine planes flying the Wichita State University football team to Utah crashed into a mountain near Silver Plume, Colo., killing 31 of the 40 people on board.

In 1990, the Senate voted 90-9 to confirm the nomination of Judge David H. Souter to the Supreme Court.

Ten years ago: In his first public address since a disputed election, Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic branded his opponents puppets of the West. (A wave of unrest aimed at driving Milosevic from power swept Yugoslavia, and the government responded by arresting dozens of strike leaders.)

Five years ago: A tour boat capsized on New York's Lake George, killing 20 elderly passengers. Playwright August Wilson died in Seattle at age 60. Actor-comedian Nipsey Russell died in New York at age 87.

One year ago: The International Olympic Committee, meeting in Copenhagen, chose Rio de Janeiro to be the site of the 2016 Summer Olympics; Chicago was eliminated in the first round, despite a last-minute in-person appeal by President Barack Obama. A man accused of stalking ESPN reporter Erin Andrews and secretly videotaping her inside her hotel room was arrested at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. (Michael David Barrett later pleaded guilty to interstate stalking and was sentenced to 2 1/2 years in federal prison.) Marek Edelman, 90, the last surviving leader of the ill-fated 1943 Warsaw ghetto revolt against the Nazis (not to be confused with the above-mentioned 1944 uprising), died in Warsaw.

Today's Birthdays: Country singer-musician Leon Rausch (Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys) is 83. Retired MLB All-Star Maury Wills is 78. Movie critic Rex Reed is 72. Thought for Today: "There's one way to find out if a man is honest - ask him. If he says 'yes,' you know he is crooked." - Groucho Marx (born this date in 1890, died in 1977).

"It's official: The Roberts Court has provided a bigger stimulus to the economy this year than the Fed."

America sees big gulf between rich, poor

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — A Wall Street adviser leaves early for work to avoid panhandlers at his suburban train station. In coal country, a suddenly homeless man watches from a bench as wealthy women shop for dresses. A down-and-out waitress sits glumly on her stoop across the street from a gleaming suburb. A freshly elected politician loses his day job.

They're the faces of a census report released this week showing that the gap between the richest and poorest Americans is wider than ever.

The recession technically ended in the middle of last year, but the numbers can't tell the whole story. The census report translates to stories of impatience, resignation and hopelessness for those who are living it across the country.

It's the story of Roy Houseman, who, having barely finished celebrating his election to the City Council in Missoula, Mont., was laid off. It's the story of Ashleigh Dornier, an unemployed Detroit resident who has a car but no money for gas or insurance. It's the story of John Morgan, a financial adviser who avoids interaction with the poor in the gritty New York suburb of Mount Vernon.

And it's the story of Charles Fox.

Fox, 68, has claimed a bench on High Street in Morgantown, W. Va. It's tucked between a pizza shop and a gelato stand he can't afford to visit. Beside him are two black trash bags stuffed with his belongings.

He had a home until last month, when a fire burned down one of the last cheap motels in town. Now he sits in the morning sunshine, worrying about the approach of winter.

"I ain't found no place to live yet," he says, staring down at the sidewalk.

Morgantown's metro area has the largest gap between rich and poor in the 50 states, the new census figures say. That's partly because it's a college town, and the number of students is growing rapidly, along with the low-paying jobs that support them.

College towns also have highly paid professors, researchers and doctors. And they're a landlord's market: Fox, who was spending $450 a month on rent — three-quarters of his monthly disability check — says he can't find a room for under $1,000 a month.

He used to work in a coal mine, but a blocked artery in his leg makes walking and standing — and holding a job — difficult. At night, he finds a bunk at a packed homeless shelter.

"I sit up here on the street in the daytime and just wonder, 'Where am I going to go?'" he says. Tears fall as he adds, "Sometimes I go two or three days without anything to eat."

Across the street is Coni & Franc's, where blouses go for $100 and gowns for thousands. But owner Constance Chico Merandi says she deals with the homeless and working poor, too.

There's a sale table with $10 shoes, and sometimes Merandi, 51, pulls an already discounted dress from her sale rack and lets it go for less to a woman dreaming of a wedding gown she knows she can't afford.

"It's just part of living and coexisting here," she says. "We realize we have to do something."

Meanwhile, Fox sits on his bench and waits for his luck to change.

"You ain't got a chance anymore in this town," he says. "You really don't."

John Morgan, a financial adviser on Wall Street, goes to work earlier some mornings to avoid panhandlers at the railroad station in Mount Vernon, a struggling city of 68,000 bordering the Bronx.

He has no interaction with other residents, including the poor — and doesn't want any.

Warily eyeing a man begging commuters for "train fare," Morgan says, "This guy hits me all the time. At first I gave him a dollar or two and now he sees me coming."

Morgan, 64, is a widower who lives alone in a condominium apartment. He and his wife raised a family in a house in neighboring Pelham before moving two years ago to one of Mount Vernon's more pleasant neighborhoods.

"I don't have anything to do with Mount Vernon," Morgan says. "I shop in Pelham. I go straight out to my house on Long Island on the weekends. I've never spent a weekend in Mount Vernon."

As Morgan spoke, police patrolled the downtown train station, where a missing-woman flier hung.

He has his doubts about the statistics revealing a wider gap between rich and poor. The data showed that the top-earning 20 percent of Americans — those making more than $100,000 each year — received 49.4 percent of all income. The bottom 20 percent took in just 3.4 percent of income.

"Things aren't good out there," he says. "I think the rich are getting poorer and the poor are staying poor."

Ashleigh Dornier was getting by, she says, until job losses in and around Detroit stunted business at the restaurants where she hustled for tips to augment her lower-than-minimum-wage pay. Around the same time, her boyfriend began bringing home less money as home improvement work dried up.

Now she's unemployed and they have to live on the $1,000 per month he earns and "a lot of help from family," Dornier says, sitting with her 2-year-old daughter on the stoop of their rented home.

They have no telephone. They have a car, but they can't afford to put it on the road.

"We don't have money for car insurance or even gas," says Dornier, 25. "My boyfriend rides his bike back and forth to work."

Their home on Detroit's far east side is across the street from one of the affluent communities known as the Grosse Pointes.

Jon Gandelot, 67, lives and practices estate planning law in Grosse Pointe Farms, where fancy homes sit serenely on professionally manicured lawns, just blocks from some of Detroit's worst neighborhoods.

Gandelot holds little hope for a recovered Detroit, where the unemployment rate is approaching 30 percent. Driving through the city to go to his suburb is "like day and night, but it has been this way for 30 years," he says.

"Detroit has always had promises of a renaissance. It just never comes to fruition," says Gandelot, an estate planning attorney.

Dornier says she knows her high school diploma doesn't count for much in this economy, and she doesn't resent her wealthy neighbors.

"I don't hold any hard feelings toward them," she says. "I wish I could be in their situation."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Jake," dumped me two years ago. Since then, we have tried to remain friends. He texts or calls to check up on me, tells me he misses me, calls me pet names and recites lines from my favorite movies.

Although I appreciate Jake's efforts to stay friends, I'm confused because he was the one who broke off our relationship. He has said in the past that letting me go is something he will always regret, but he hasn't made an attempt to get back together.

Abby, I feel that Jake is stringing me along. I enjoy our friendship, but in my heart I'll always want more. I can't shake the feeling that he still loves me. At what point should I just give up and let go? — LEFT HANGING IN HOUSTON

DEAR LEFT HANGING: How about right now? But before you do, tell Jake that this "friendship" has prolonged the pain of your breakup, that what you feel for him isn't platonic -- and you will always want more. If he does still love you, it will be his opening to declare himself. However, if he doesn't, then for your sake, cut the cord, because you won't be free to find someone else until you do.

DEAR ABBY: I was married in Las Vegas six months ago in a quickie wedding so my husband could put me on his health insurance. I used my late grandmother's ring for the ceremony, assuming that "Harry" would buy one for me shortly. It still hasn't happened, and he makes it very clear he doesn't intend to. Harry claims we don't have any money. However, we are buying a house, and he constantly spends money on his hobbies.

I am starting to regret the whole package -- not having a real wedding, no ring, no proposal. I am so resentful I am considering ending our marriage over it. I need to know if there's a way to fix this. — RINGLESS IN RICHMOND, TEXAS

DEAR RINGLESS: When most mature couples marry, they have gotten to know each other well enough to know if their values and priorities are similar. Apparently, you and Harry tied the knot so quickly there wasn't time for that to happen. A way to "fix this" would be through marriage counseling -- provided you and Harry are willing to spend the money that way. Please suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: After my wife's funeral, many of our friends returned to the mortuary to collect the flowers they had sent. Some of them were very rude, insisting that because they had sent them, the flowers belonged to them.

This has upset our daughter, who was in charge of sending thank-you notes. Now she doesn't know who sent what because we were too distracted to look at the cards on the flowers. Is this something new, or are those people just rude? — WIDOWER IN LIVINGSTON, MONT.

DEAR WIDOWER: When flowers have been sent -- whether for a birthday or for an occasion like a funeral -- they are no longer the property of the sender. They belong to whomever they were sent to. What your "many friends" did was insensitive and rude.

As to what your daughter should say in her thank-you notes, I suggest a short message to those who signed the memorial book at the funeral service: "Our family thanks you for attending Mother's funeral, and for your compassion during this sad time. Your thoughtfulness is deeply appreciated."

Corpus Christi.

Best man was Tanner Ray of Lefors. Groomsmen included Keenan Lott and Dennis Sprouse, brother of the groom, of Lefors and Heath Lowe of Littlefield, Texas.

Ushers were Bobby Sprouse, brother of the groom of Lefors, and Cory Jackson and Drake Jackson, brothers of the bride of Amarillo.

Musicians and vocalists included Johnny Woodard of Lefors and Roy and Charlotte Livingston, uncle and aunt of the bride, of Canadian.

The bridal escort consisted of Cory Jackson and Drake Jackson, brothers of the bride of Amarillo, as well as Steven Livingston of Stinnett, Tony Livingston of Winters and Josh Jackson of Pampa, all cousins of the bride.

Chris Webb of Dayton, former pastor of First Baptist Church of Lefors, officiated the ceremony.

The bride's gown and veil were made by her grandmother, Judy Livingston. The gown was constructed of tissue taffeta, accented with lace, sequins, and pearls.

Flowers for the wedding and reception were designed and arranged by Bailey Jackson, sister-in-law of the bride. Bailey also registered the guests.

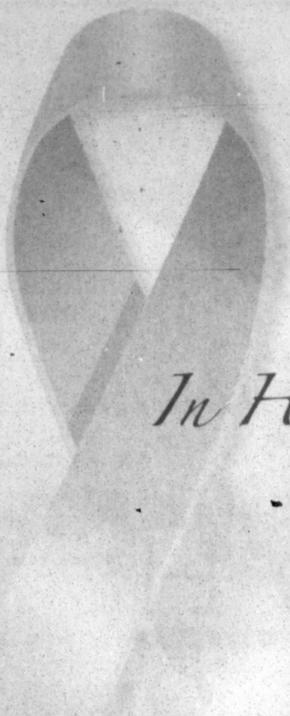

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Lefors Civic Center. Beth and Ken Miller, Karen Reeves, and Janice Livingston served as host and hostesses. Jennifer Sprouse, sister of the groom of Virginia and Amanda Daugherty of Knox City served at the groom's table.

After a honeymoon cruise to Mexico, the couple resided for the summer in Lefors. They recently moved to Canyon to attend school at West Texas A&M University.

Tigers maul Harvesters, winning streak ends at two

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

For the third time in four games, the Pampa Harvesters visited someone on their Homecoming night.

Unfortunately for the Pampa, the Tiger faithful had plenty to celebrate, as their team shut out the Harvesters 57-0 Friday in Snyder.

The Harvesters also played at Randall's Homecoming September 10 (a 69-28 loss) and at Vernon's last week (a 25-14 win). The loss ends a two-game winning streak for Pampa and is the first time the Harvesters have been shut out since 2004, when Palo Duro beat them 24-0.

Head coach Heath Parker said that it's hard to find positives when you get beat so soundly, but the team did have its opportunities.

"We had three red zone trips in the first half and couldn't get the ball in," Parker said. "They recovered a kickoff on a good high kick and that took a possession away. If we were able to score those three times it would have been a one- to two-score game."

The Tigers outgained the Harvesters 496-142. Snyder had 278 yards rushing to Pampa's 58 and passed for 218 yards to the Harvesters' 84.

The Tigers jumped out early, with 21 points in the opening quarter. Keenon Ward threw a 55-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Taylor. Ward expanded the Tigers lead with his legs on an 81-yard touchdown run. Kelson Garcia finished the first quarter scoring with a five-yard run.

In the second quarter, Ward ran for his second touchdown and threw his second touchdown pass to Brandon Davis. Garcia scored two touchdowns, Garrett Smith scored on an interception return and Xavier Malone got the Tigers other score.

Pampa has a bye next and opens district at Borger October 15. Parker said that is when the games will really count.

"We happened to be put in a district with three games," Parker said. "Every game is going to be huge. We play the Borger Bulldogs first. We have two weeks to prepare and I will be shocked if it's not one heck of a football game there in two weeks."

Patriots rout Lefors; first losing streak since 2008

aglover@thepampanews.com

The night started gloriously for the Lefors Pirates as they crowned their new homecoming king and queen.

That, however, was about the only thing that went right for Lefors, as they lost their second in a row 51-6 to the Amarillo San Jacinto Patriots Friday at Shaw Field.

This is the first losing streak for Lefors since 2008 when they lost at McLean and lost at home to Happy back to back.

Head coach Joey Czubinski said he was frustrated with the result after preparing all week in practice for the game.

"We knew exactly what they were going to run," Czubinski said. "We worked on it all week in practice and had it broken do. They do exactly what we thought they were going to do. We didn't make plays."

Senior defensive back Cody Hess said they knew we had to play strong.

"No one stepped up tonight," Hess said. "We should do better than that."

Sophomore Colten Helfer said they weren't able to do anything on offense.

"We said it all week in the locker room that if we don't come out strong we will be fighting out of a hole," Helfer said. "What do we do? We are in the third quarter in a bigger hole than we ever could get out of."

The Patriots struck immediately with Aaron Vallance completing a pass to Miller Brock, who took it the rest of the way for a 40-yard touchdown on the first play from scrimmage. The Pirates first possession ended on a Spencer Nicholson interception on the second play of the drive. Brock carried the Patriots again rushing for 43 yards and ended the drive with a two-yard run that put San Jacinto ahead 12-0.

Lefors had to punt on their next possession and the Patriots took advantage. Brock caught a 20-yard pass and had a 12-yard run. Vallance finished the drive with his second touchdown pass to Aaron Glawe and after the one-point run, the Patriots held a 19-0 advantage.

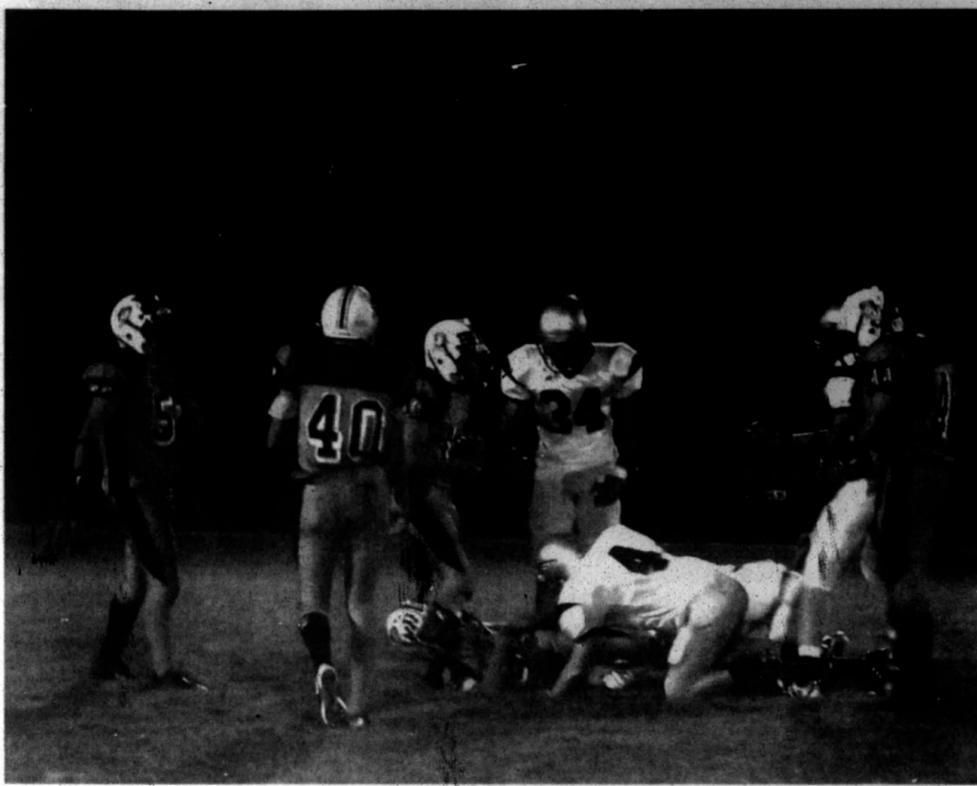

Czubinski said they didn't make plays defensively.

"On the first play we had a guy right there," Czubinski said. "I was thinking cool he's on it. He breaks a tackle and runs, we're like what in the world. We knew that Miller kid is their lynch pin and we knew that and we worked on that all week long. There were key moments in the game we needed a stop and didn't get it."

The Pirates got on the board late in the first quarter and it would be their only score of the game. Senior running back Joey Johnson finished an eight-play 42-yard drive with a three-yard touchdown. Nicholson completed a 21-yard pass to Junior Dennis Sprouse on fourth and 13 from midfield for the only pass completion of the game. It only took San Jacinto four plays to respond to that score. Josh Garcia scored on a 30-yard run as time expired and Vallance completed a one-point pass to Glawe to put the Patriots ahead 26-6 after one.

In the second quarter, the Pirates offensive woes continued, running 14 plays for negative eight yards and turned the ball over twice. Nicholson threw his second and third interceptions which would result in 12-points for the Patriots and widen their margin to 38-6. Garcia scored two touchdowns in the quarter and San Jacinto led 44-6 at halftime needing only seven points to invoke the 45-point mercy rule.

In the third quarter, Lefors held the Patriots in check, only allowing 25 yards. The Pirates gained 77 yards but failed to score on their first two possessions of the quarter. Czubinski said if his team would have started the game like they played in the third it would have been more competitive.

Colten Helfer is brought down by the Patriots Austin Bussell in the second half Friday. The Pirates were dealt their second straight loss 51-6 for their first losing streak since 2008. Lefors is 4-2 this season.

"If we would have played offensively and defensively in the third quarter the whole game, we would have been 6-6 going into the fourth quarter," Czubinski said. "For some reason that first half, guys tried to force things, get behind and start panicking."

Nicholson completed one pass out of 12 for 21 yards and threw four interceptions. Helfer led the team in rushing with 70 yards on 17 carries. Johnson rushed for 34 yards and scored one touchdown. Sprouse caught the only pass for 21 yards. The junior receiver also rushed for 10 yards on three carries.

Vallance completed eight of 10 passes for 186 yards and four touchdowns. Brock led the team in rushing with 167 yards and two touchdowns. The senior running back also caught three passes for 115 yards and scored one touchdown. Garcia rushed for 65 yards, caught two passes for 52 yards and scored three total touchdowns.

The Pirates (4-2) visit Groom Friday to close out non-district with a rematch of their district clincher. Helfer said they will start to regroup with an 8 a.m. practice today.

"Come back Saturday morning, run it out of us," Helfer said. "All week we practice offense and defense till we are a team."

Czubinski said their next game won't be easy and that they will have to step up.

"They got one of the best spread backs around in Jacob Torres," Czubinski said. "They have a solid starting six. We knew that going in. If you don't win games like this, you don't deserve to play on. We need to regroup and get better."

AREA ROUNDUP

Miami Warriors (5-1) 62 Lubbock Harmony Tigers (0-6) 6, Miami

The Miami Warriors game went as expected against the first-year Lubbock Harmony Tigers with a 62-6 homecoming victory Friday in Miami.

Head coach Jack Graves said he was able to play a lot of his younger players. Coach said juniors Cole Booze, Kade Morse, David Mejia and sophomore Jacob Green had good games. The game was the Warriors homecoming and Graves thought his team focused well.

"At the start we didn't know where we were," Graves said. "After the opening kickoff we were able to play some football. There is so much going on during homecoming week, all week long. By the time Friday comes you've had enough."

The Warriors have a bye next week and will visit Byers October 15 for their final non-district game.

McLean Tigers (5-1) 92 Fort Elliott Cougars (1-4) 66, McLean

The McLean Tigers faced a tough fight from the Fort Elliott Cougars but avoided a letdown game with a 92-66 victory Friday in McLean.

Head coach David Jurado said it was good fight and a long game.

"Cory McLaughlin is the best running back I've seen so far, he's tough to bring down," Jurado said. "For awhile it was looking like a shootout and whoever had the ball last was going to win."

Jurado said the game turned their direction towards the end of the first half.

"Right before the half we got a stop and scored to go up by two scores," Jurado said. "Then we inside kicked it and got another score before halftime."

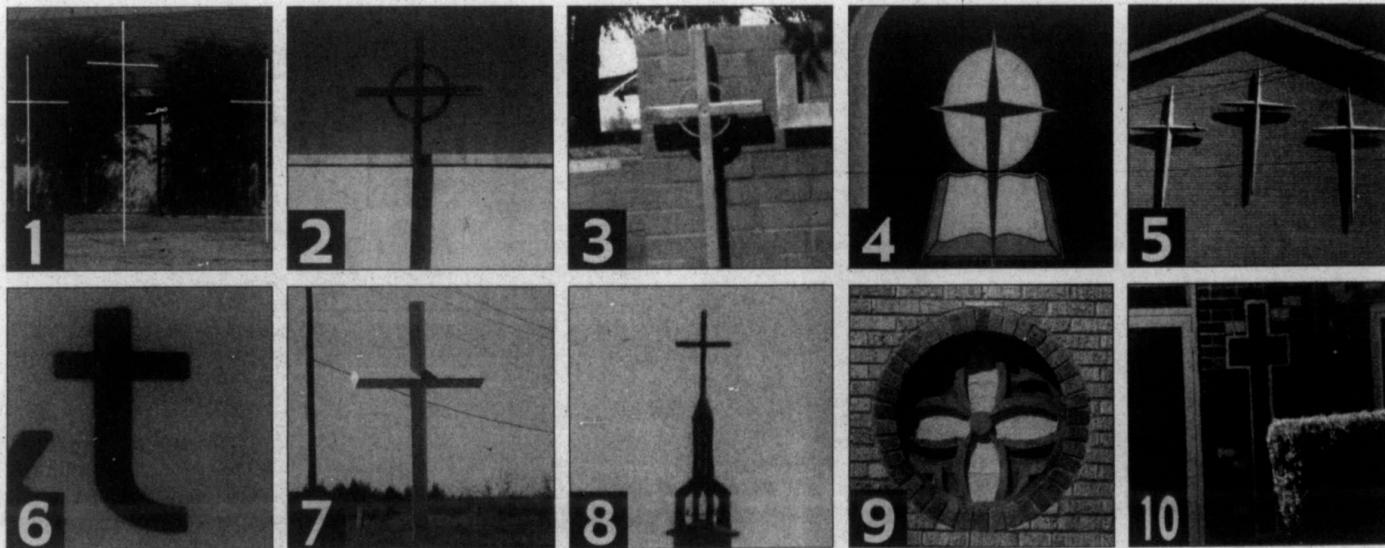

Jurado said his running backs Clay Crockett and Tanner Cadra got some good carries and scored a couple of touchdowns. Quarterback Jordan Herring threw for a couple of touchdowns. The Tigers have a bye next week and open district with Kress in McLean October 15.

White questions Perry's donors

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrat Bill White is questioning whether campaign contributions influenced Republican Gov. Rick Perry's appointments to state boards, in light of a report released Thursday that says 21 percent of his donations have come from appointees.

More than $17 million of the $83 million Perry has raised since 2001 during his governorship came from people he appointed to state boards, commissions and agencies or their spouses, according to the report by the nonprofit Texans for Public Justice.

White, after a Houston news conference on energy efficient homes, spoke about the report and said it cannot be a coincidence that so many Perry donors are appointees.

"Did campaign contributions in any way influence decisions on board appointments?" White said. He asked how it can be that "the very best talent in this state is confined to members of one political party, people who are required to have some political loyalty to Rick Perry. ... That defies imagination."

Perry spokesman Mark Miner said the governor bases his appointments on qualifications and experience. "It shouldn't be surprising that many of them share the same philosophy and goals for the state," he said.

Texas doesn't limit how much people can donate to a gubernatorial campaign, and it is legal for an appointee to donate.

Miner said White is being hypocritical because as Houston mayor he appointed one of his donors to chair the board of Houston's public transit agency, which has since been found to have violated federal procurement laws.

"Bill White needs to be held accountable in that situation," Miner said.

The Federal Transit Administration said in early September that Houston's Metropolitan Transit Authority violated federal laws in how it awarded two contracts for its new light-rail lines and that it must rebid the contracts. Houston Mayor Annise Parker blamed Metro's former leaders, who were put in place by White.

White has said he didn't have anything to do with procurement at the agency. His spokeswoman, Katy Bacon, said Perry's campaign is trying to distract from the report on Perry's donors.

The Texans for Public Justice report is one of several the Austin-based group has published that have been critical of Perry and his practices as governor. This report said that from 2001 through June 2010 Perry's campaign received slightly more than $17 million from 921 of his appointees or their spouses.

White said if he is elected governor he would appoint people from both major political parties and that he would limit appointees and their spouses to contributing no more than $10,000 per election cycle to his campaign.

Parties recalibrate strategies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats have all but written off at least three Senate seats — in North Dakota, Indiana and Arkansas — and at least six House seats in Tennessee, Louisiana, New York and elsewhere as they embark on a final-weeks advertising push to minimize congressional election losses.

Emboldened by their prospects, Republicans recently threw $1.3 million into West Virginia in hopes of winning a Senate seat that was long thought out of reach. It was the GOP's latest move to expand a playing field already heavily tilting its way.

In the one-month dash to Election Day, both parties are zeroing in on races they have the best chances of winning, recalibrating strategies and shifting advertising money by the day. The state of play could change repeatedly between now and Nov. 2.

Democrats are especially worried about House districts in the economically troubled Midwest, and their chances of picking up GOP-held Senate seats have dwindled.

In the final stretch, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has reserved at least $52 million to run TV ads in more than 60 districts, nearly all held by their own party. The National Republican Campaign Committee has set aside at least $27 million in airtime for nearly 50 districts.

The disparity is misleading.

Democrats consistently have had a cash advantage, but GOP-allied groups have weighed in and advertised in crucial contests for weeks.

The latest details emerged from campaign documents obtained by The Associated Press, as well as from interviews with more than a dozen Republican and Democratic operatives with knowledge of advertising plans, polling and strategy. All spoke on the condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss details publicly.

Control of Congress and the outlook for President Barack Obama's agenda is at stake this election. Some five dozen or more House races are competitive, mostly for seats now held by Democrats. Republicans need to win 40 to take control. Of the 37 Senate races, about a dozen are close. The magic number for the GOP is 10.

★★★ Your style might add to another's discomfort. You might be wondering about the why and how of a situation. A partner or close associate tries to supply answers to your questions. Tonight: Clearing out errands and some paperwork.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Stay on top of your game. Understanding will evolve to a new level if you allow your imagination to wander. Your creativity emerges in a meeting, allowing greater give-and-take. Tonight: Adjust your plans around a friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Keep communication flowing. You might wonder which is the best approach. The unexpected occurs when taking a stand. Be willing to flow and understand. An association could feel like a weight. Tonight: Happily heading home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Deal with each individual directly. Keep talking with others on a one-on-one level in order to accomplish a clearing. A leap to better understanding can happen if another person lets go of a conviction. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Your trusting nature might interpret another's motives quite differently from what is really going on. Leave room to be wrong. Focus on data and facts in the late afternoon, when making a mistake is less likely. Tonight: Treat yourself well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Manage your need to root out a problem on a deep level. Through observing and watching what someone might put on your plate, you will gain. Mid-afternoon, you decide to be more verbal. Tonight: Let creativity flow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Use the daylight hours to the max. You might not be pleased with everything that comes up. Certainly, you have the ability to read others. A meeting could be revealing. Tonight: Go within and think through a decision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Others often are envious of your natural status and style. You might not be able to handle a personal matter as soon as you wanted to. Others seem to need a lot from you. Make it your pleasure! Tonight: Surrounded by people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Keep reaching out for new answers and different solutions. You could find a family member adding pressure when you cannot even discuss or think about a personal matter. Take the lead in a key event. Tonight: Out late.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Work directly with one person at a time. Your attention and concern are appreciated. Be careful dealing with a money-related matter. Without realizing it, you could be walking into a situation that appears to be one way but is really another. Tonight: Put on a good movie.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

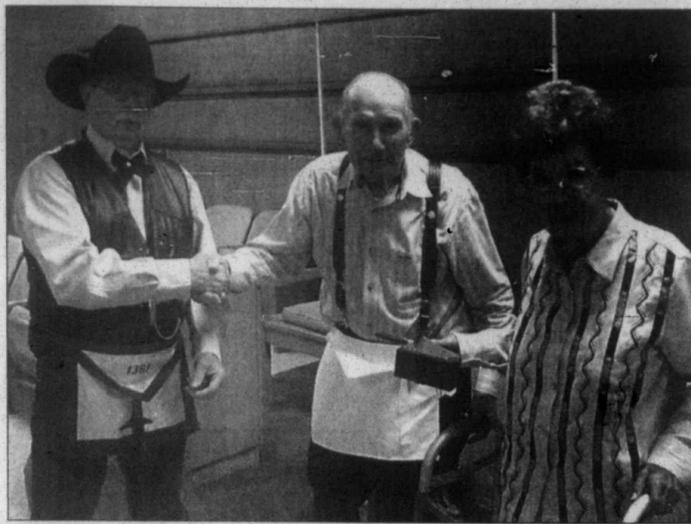

★★★★ Others have strong opinions. Creativity helps you juggle different demands. The unexpected from an associate or dear partner could force you to question what is going on. Tonight: Listen to another person's opinions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Dive into what you must do in order to lighten up the moment and allow a little more free time later. Others seek you out, or a meeting becomes a social happening. You want to be free in order to be spontaneous. Tonight: Listen to suggestions first.

with THE PAMPA NEWS in St. Louis

Grandma (Ellen Tyre of Pampa) took granddaughters Kierstyn and Mycaela Colpetzer, ages 11 and 10, to St. Louis recently and The Pampa News went with them. The top photo was snapped as they boarded a paddleboat for a cruise down the Mississippi River. The photo below is of Mycaela and Kierstyn as they headed to the Arch ("The Gateway to the West") to ride to the top of the 630 feet tall monument. Mycaela is a 5th grader at Lamar Elementary School and Kierstyn is in 6th grade at the new Junior High. Mom is Lorelei Tyre-Ramirez, a nurse at Pampa Nursing Center, and great-grandma is Eleanor Tyre. Said Ellen: "As a kid living in the midwest, my family went to St. Louis often, since my dad was a huge Cardinals fan. We watched the arch being built, as well as the new stadium! What a treat it was to introduce my grandkids to that great city and White Castle hamburgers."

Photo courtesy of Clarendon College Men's Basketball. The Clarendon College men's basketball team recently volunteered at Community Care Center in Clarendon where they helped serve food and drinks during a birthday celebration. The team also visited Mrs. Jayne Starnes' First Grade Class in Clarendon where the team read to groups of students. The team volunteers throughout the year at various locations in and around Clarendon. Among the volunteers were (above, from left) Coach Weatherred, CJ Swift, Devon Lemmons, Barry Johnson, Derrick Bull, Aandre Bryant. Readers included Bernard Stiggers (above left) and Quay Johnson (left).
