MRS. FRANCIS SEEKS TREASURER'S OFFICE

I will be a candidate for the office of County Treasurer of Runnels county, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries this year.

I have been serving you for the past two terms in this capacity and during that time I have remained on the job and put forth every effort to render the best possible service to the people of this county. I am willing for my record to be examined in any way by any voter who is interested in the kind of service I have given in this office.

I believe that my experience in this office for the past 3 years is a strong reason why I should be re-elected. I know that the time spent in the office has made me more capable of attending to its duties.

During the time between now and the first primary I will see many of the voters personally, however, I must continue my work and it will be impossible for me to be away from the office much of the time. In this first statement I ask that you give me your sincere consideration and if possible your support for the place I seek. If elected your treasurer again, I promise to continue to render service of which no one can find fault.

Respectfully,
MRS. W. A. FRANCIS.

DEATH CLAIMS C. E. WOODROW AT HIS HOME HERE

HAD RESIDED IN WINTERS FOR PAST 35 YEARS.

Death claimed C. E. Woodrow, 69, pioneer of Runnels county and resident of Winters for the past 35 years, at his home Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. He had been ill of pneumonia and other complications for more than a week.

Funeral rites held from the residence Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, were conducted by Rev. Willis P. Gerhart, rector of the Heavenly Rest Episcopal church of Abilene, assisted by Rev. J. W. Joiner, pastor of the local Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the Main street cemetery beside the grave of Mrs. Woodrow who died in 1931.

Native of Missouri, Mr. Woodrow was born September 22, 1867 at Springfield, and came to Texas while a boy locating in Runnels county in the Old Content community east of Winters, where he was engaged in ranching and operated a gin for several years. He established the first steam laundry here and figured prominently in the rapid growth of Winters. As a contractor, he erected many of the business buildings, homes and one of the ward school buildings. He also was the contractor for the erection of structures in Ranger, Eastland and Graham. He had made his home in Winters continuously since 1900, with the exception of a few years he lived in Ranger, during the oil boom there.

Mr. Woodrow was gifted with a kind and friendly disposition and his devotion to his family was a marked attribute of his character.

Surviving are five children, Weldon and Bennie Woodrow of Los Angeles, Calif.; Howard, Norma Faye and Ruth Woodrow, all of Winters. Three grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. W. P. Hawkins of El Paso and Mrs. R. D. Foster of Joplin, Missouri, also survive.

Commissioners court, in session last Monday, failed to call an election to legalize the sale of 4 per cent beer in Runnels county, because signatures of qualified voters on the two petitions submitted were insufficient in number.

LOCAL MEN MEET WITH FARMERS IN NEARBY SECTIONS

SOME PLAN OF PRODUCTION CONTROL IS FAVORED.

Approximately 125 farmers have gathered in three nearby communities for the purpose of discussing the situation brought about as a result of the Supreme Court's action on the AAA recently, according to the report of J. M. Williams, vocational agriculture teacher in the Winters school. These meetings have been attended by Williams and C. L. Cooke, local ginmer and county cotton committeeman.

Thirty-two members of the Victory council voted for a continuation of some plan of production control, without a dissenting vote being cast.

The Crews Agricultural Council voted 100 per cent for some plan of control, fifty members being present.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION

Rep. Horace B. Sessions

SESSIONS SEEKS RE-ELECTION AS REPRESENTATIVE

Horace B. Sessions was in The Enterprise office this week and stated he would seek re-election as Representative of the 92nd District from Concho, Coke and Runnels counties and issued the following statement:

"I appreciate the votes I received in Winters and Runnels county electing me representative on the 24th of last August. In asking for your vote for my first regular term as representative of the 92nd district, I submit my candidacy on the basis of my business and executive ability to hold the job, and my public and private record and my standards of moral conduct.

"The short time I have been in the legislature leads me to condemn the delay and dilatory tactics of many members. I was present every work day of the two sessions last fall and tried to work as earnestly and efficiently as carrying on the business of the state of Texas as I would in my own business.

"My limited experience there has taught me that the fight between the true welfare of Texas and the selfishness of special interests is an endless struggle. Their powerful lobby on the outside and their own hirelings in the legislature itself endanger honest representation of the people's representatives make a close and intelligent study of every question in order to be fully informed on questions of public policy. If legislators would ask state departments for information instead of lending ear to the song and dance of the paid lobby, there would be fewer laws too weak for the strong and too strong for the weak, and less domination of legislation by extreme wealth and men of large political power.

"Space will not permit it here, but in the next few weeks I will submit to the voters my platform and declaration of my principles of government, regarding taxes and taxation, schools and education, roads and highways, conservation of natural resources, capital and corporations, security for the aged, and penal and public institutions. I fully realize that campaign pledges and promises mean nothing unless supported by a man of honesty, integrity, breadth of vision, soundness of judgment, legislative and executive ability, backed by stability of character and a record of achievement that inspires public confidence.

"I expect to carry my campaign to the voters in a clean, honest and straightforward manner and hope to meet every voter in the district by July 25.

"I ask your support toward the common ideal that public officers render service in the interest of the welfare of the people of Texas. To that end I earnestly solicit your support for representative and pledge the best in me, thus giving back to the people the benefit of the experience that has been given to me.

Joan Crawford is Superb in "I Live My Life," One of the Year's Biggest Hits Coming to the Queen Theatre

VIVID TALE OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE IN ARGENTINE IS PORTRAYED IN "HI GAUCHO," SHOWING TODAY-SATURDAY.

Joan Crawford brings a new kind of picture as well as a new leading man to the Queen Theatre this week with her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "I Live My Life" beginning Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock. Combining music with swift, exciting action without sacrificing the appeal of one or the other is successfully accomplished in the new romantic Argentine musical, "Hi, Gaucho," now showing with the adventurer-singer, John Carroll, in the leading role. One of the gayest and yet most exciting comedy dramas, involving both the theft of hearts and of costly jewels, will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday in "The Goose and the Gander." Side-splitting comedy, gripping drama and delightful romance are skillfully combined in the amusing picture, "His Family Tree" to be the feature attraction Thursday night only.

"I Live My Life"

A bored society girl meets a hard-boiled archaeologist at work on the exotic Greek isle of Naxos. That they should fall in love, is inevitable. Following her to New York, he finds a different state of affairs. She is wealthy and he is penniless. She likes city life and he hates it. When her shrewd grandmother offers him several millions as well as the vice-presidency of the firm, he is sorely vexed. Joan Crawford and Brian Aherne play the leading roles in the picture, supported by Frank Morgan, Aline MacMahon, Eric Blore, Fred Keating, Sterling Holloway and Hedda Hopper and others.

"Hi Gaucho"

Blending romance and action into a splendid whole, this new screen musical, presents a faithful picture of warm-blooded, reckless life in the Argentine during its pioneer days. The background of the picture is highly colorful. The romance is motivated by a gaucho and an aristocratic senorita. The first meeting of the youthful hero and heroine, their dance together, serenades, balcony scenes and a kidnapping add to the love interest of the colorful film, which is balanced by exciting chases, bucking horses, stage-coach hold-ups, arrests and battles. John Carroll, new screen "find," plays the romantic lead with Steffi Duna as his opposite. Rod LaRocque also has a prominent part.

"The Goose and the Gander"

Kay Francis, stately and beautiful plays the part of an ex-wife whose millionaire husband had fallen for the wiles of a pretty blonde, married her, and then attempts to flirt with his first wife. Kay seeks revenge and manages to get the husband to visit her and at the same time maneuvers wife number two and an escort, bound on a philanthropic trip to a mountain resort, all under the same roof. Accidentally a gentlemanly jewel robber and his "moll" also are sidetracked into the lodge. There follows a series of episodes that are most exciting and at the same time uproariously funny. George Brent plays the role of the friend who is persuaded by the blonde wife to take her to a mountain resort. He enacts his role convincingly even when put in most embarrassing situations.

"His Family Tree"

The story is built upon the unexpected arrival from Ireland of Patrick "Bosun" Murphy, played by James Barton, to visit his son. But times have changed his son, whose name is now "Murfee," posing as an aristocrat. The son is also in the midst of a campaign for mayor. The wife hides the old man in the attic and insists that his presence be kept secret. But the story of Charles' real lineage leaks out, and threatens to spoil his race for office. Murphy jumps into the ring and swings the election to his boy.

LYRIC THEATRE

Although "Heir to Trouble," showing today and tomorrow, is as unlike a musical as any picture could be, there are qualities of beauty and simple sentiment in the plaintive cowboy songs that are sung on the occasion of the death of one of the cowboys. In sharp contrast to these haunting scenes are the hilarious contraptions, in the manner of Rube Goldberg which Ken Maynard devises to permit his horse to take care of the baby in his absence. Joan Perry, a comely young new comer to the film firmament gives an admirable and skillful performance in the leading feminine role. Maynard, as usual turns in a splendid job.

STANDARDS . . . elevated My venerable friend, Elihu Root, now past 90, is still an optimist. He said the other day that in his own long lifetime, he had seen such a progressive elevation of moral standards, especially in international relations, as to furnish proof that the world is growing better. He pointed particularly to the worldwide indignation over Italy's attempt to seize Ethiopia.

I think that is broadly true in all human relations. I am not as old as Mr. Root, but I am old enough to remember when no voices were raised in protest against any of the injustices perpetrated by the strong upon the weak in almost every field of human action. We have come a long way out of the age of brutality in my time.

Sometimes I think, however, that we have come into an age of sentimentality. What the world needs is neither brutality nor over-entenderness, but even-handed justice.

FISH . . . and war

One of the things we are learning is that nothing can happen anywhere in the world without in some measure affecting everybody else in the world. Who would have guessed that Italy's military expedition against Ethiopia would have brought distress to the fishermen of Labrador? Yet that is just what has happened, according to Dr. Grenfell, the famous Labrador medical missionary.

The other nations of the world have shut off Italy's credit. Italy has been the chief market for the fish caught off the Labrador Coast. Fishing boats from the Mediterranean were catching fish off Labrador for the Italian market before Columbus discovered America. Now that market is closed to them because Italy can't pay for the fish.

One of the reasons why people are more concerned now than ever before over wars and other dislocations of international relations is that we understand more clearly how interdependent we all are.

NEWS . . . liberty

If I had to express in one word the most powerful influence working toward world understanding and human justice, I would say "news." In my newspaper work in the past 45 years I have watched the growth of knowledge and understanding through the wider and speedier distribution of news from all the world to all the world. Nothing approaching the great network of newsgathering machinery and news distribution which exists today was even imaginable in my journalistic apprentice days.

America is away ahead of all the rest of the world in the freedom of its news channels. Most of the politicians and governments who seek to impose their wills upon their peoples begin by trying to suppress or distort the news. I often wonder if Americans realize that we owe our individual liberties, which are greater than those of any other people, to the freedom which our Constitution guarantees to the press.

MURDER . . . editor

They killed Walter Liggett in Minneapolis the other day. Liggett had a newspaper in which he was printing the truth, as he saw it, about crime and politics. He was making it too clear to the people of the North-West that organized crime cannot flourish without the protection of politicians.

Politicians in Minnesota attempted to clamp a censorship on the press some years ago. They passed a law authorizing the suppression of news which some official might regard as dangerous—to the politicians. The Supreme Court of the United States declared the law invalid. That left the politicians and their criminal allies no means of suppressing the news except by killing the editor. Liggett is the second editor killed in Minneapolis in a little over a year.

It is a safe assumption that anybody who tries to suppress news has something disgraceful to conceal.

SKIJORING . . . thrill

Up our way, in the Berkshires, we are hoping for snow. We haven't had enough of it yet to utilize our ski slides. The ski trains, which all the railroads are running into the New England mountains, are not doing the business they did last year.

All over the East the Scandinavian sport of "skijoring" has taken possession of the young people of both sexes who crave outdoor sport even in mid-Winter. I haven't tried it myself. Like other accomplishments calling for physical skill, one has to start young at skijoring. But even an older man can get a kick over watching the youngsters come down the side of Bear Mountain at a mile a minute—and sometimes take a header into the snow.

Come up and try it sometime.

FINAL INSTALLMENT

Hiram Morris was too sick to be moved. The doctor pronounced it pneumonia and for Rose and Jim they commenced a period of sleepless anxiety. He moved her into his cabin and tried to force her to take some rest, but as for him he did not remove his clothes and scarcely closed his eyes for nearly a week.

Then Mr. Morris died. He had muttered almost constantly; the last words they heard him whisper were those of his favorite prophecy, "Some day I'll land in the pay."

There followed the customary melancholy preparation and formalities. There were still a few women left on the creeks near by and these did what they could for Rose.

It was Rose who selected a burial place, upon the north "rim" of the creek — a high bench that paralleled the bottom and that looked out across the tundra towards the open sea. It was a spot that in winter was sheltered from the icy blasts; in summer it was brilliant with wildflowers, lush with tender grasses, and fragrant with blooms — a pleasant place for a gentle, broken old man to sleep. Other hands were ready to dig the grave, but this was a labor that Jim Rowan reserved for his own.

In due time he began it. Fortunately, the rim was well drained and, once he had picked thru the thin crust of autumn frost, the gravel was dry and he made good progress. He had finished his melancholy task and was about to climb out of the pit, when he noticed a peculiar reddish tinge to the gravel beneath his feet. He took a heaping shovelful of it, and descending to the creek, he stamped a hole through the ice and idly "panned" it on the shovel blade.

He was engaged thus when young Hayward and two of his men approached. Jim rose and leaned upon his shovel handle. He supposed these were the first arrivals for the funeral, but Hayward explained:

"I came up early to have a word with you, Rowan."

"I thought you said about everything, the other night," Jim told him. "I'm not in any humor to—"

"Oh, I was drunk! I made a fool of myself. Now that I know who you are, I've come prepared."

Jim stared incredulously at the speaker; harshly he inquired: "You don't mean to say you intend to start something today?"

"Certainly not. I came up to serve notice on you. I've learned how you met Mr. Morris and came out here, and I understand why you came. But Rose doesn't understand. She doesn't know you're The Michigan Kid; she thinks you're just the old friend of the family, her little playmate from the home town. She doesn't know it was you that offered forty thousand dollars for this claim."

"Right. She doesn't know any of those things. I suppose you intend to tell her."

"How do you figure a man would behave?" Jim asked. "Of course it's all hearsay with you, but I'm curious to know."

Hayward flushed. "Never mind that line of talk. I came to give you a quiet word of warning but if you want to get nasty, why, just write your own ticket. I'm ready to take you on now, or later."

"I see. That's why you brought help."

The speaker's color deepened. "Listen, Rowan! I know what happened to that Englishman, Thompson. He didn't have any friends with him; the witnesses were all your friends. I've heard about a lot of your other fights, too—if you can call 'em that—and I've had a dozen warnings to lay off of you, so I provided my own witnesses. Now here's what I've got to say—after the money, you duck!"

"And what will happen to you?"

"I'll attend to that. She has friends enough to see her thru."

"If I don't duck, I suppose you'll tell her I'm a gambler and that I offered to buy her father's claim for ten times what it's worth. That certainly shock her."

"Oh, you had a reason for that offer—more of your 'Michigan's luck', probably! I understand you did most of the panning. Funny about that luck of yours, isn't it? Funny how everybody loses when they play you. You were crooked in Dawson and you couldn't even play straight with Rose and her father. It's perfectly obvious why you came out here in the first place. Hell! Men like you ought to be shot for looking at a girl like her!"

"Well, Hayward, I'm not going until I get ready."

It was a dismal travesty of a funeral that occurred late that afternoon. A clergyman and a half dozen of Mr. Morris's acquaintances had driven out from town, but even including them, there were not twenty people who followed the pine box as it was carried across the thin autumn snow and up to its resting place.

Rose was a brave but a pitiful figure. During the final depressing rites Jim Rowan's heart bled for her. He it was who let fall the first shovelful of earth. When the grave had been filled in he saw that Hayward and the clergymen had taken her back down to the cabin.

Jim had secured a team with which to drive the girl in to town, and while the visitors were bidding her good-bye he went to his own shack and began putting his few belongings together.

He was mystified when he could not lay his hand upon the little leather case with the old newspaper portrait of Rose, for that was about all that he really cared to take with him. He looked everywhere for it before he finally gave up the search.

Rowan had refused Hayward's warning to leave, but not because he expected Rose to reconcile herself to his past, not because he now retained the faintest hope of ever realizing his dream, but because there was something yet to be done, and, moreover, because it was not his nature to come or to go at any man's bidding.

He was interrupted in his task by the girl herself. She came to his door and with her she brought Hayward.

"Jim," she began. "Mr. Hayward has been trying to tell me something—"

"What? Already?" A flame leaped into Rowan's eyes as he turned them upon the Bonanza foreman.

"Yes, already! It's best to have it out and over with," the latter declared, doggedly.

"I asked him to say it before you, Jim if—if he insists upon saying it at all."

"I merely started to tell her why she couldn't afford to have anything further to do with you," the visitor announced. "I tried to tell her that I love her and want her to marry me; that I'll give her a home and end all of her troubles—"

"What was it you said about Jim?" the girl insisted quietly. Hayward told her; frankly, brutally he repeated what he had previously said. Jim listened in silence.

"Is it true?" Rose turned a strained white face upon The Michigan Kid.

"Most of it is. Now that about killing of Thompson, of course. He shot himself because he had lost company money."

"Rose, will you let me take you to town?" Hayward asked, earnestly.

Slowly the girl shook her head. "Jim has arranged to drive me in, I'm sorry you didn't wait a while before—I've had a good deal to bear." When the young man scowled at Rowan and opened his lips to protest, she smiled faintly. "I'll be perfectly safe with him. The Michigan Kid hasn't been accused of killing women, has he?"

"Very well. I'm sorry, too, that it had to come at a time like this. But I thought it best. I'll see you tomorrow, Rose. Forgive me if I've been rough. It's only because—"

The speaker stammered, choked, then he turned and went out into the chill twilight.

When the crunch of his footsteps had died off Rose inquired, simply:

"Why did you do it, Jim?"

Rowan answered carelessly: "Oh, I'm just naturally a bad sort, I guess! No great amount of character. I wanted money, and gambling was the easiest way to get it."

"I don't mean that. Why did you come out here with father, the way you did?"

"Well now, I'm not sure that I can explain unless it was because of that hunch I told you about." Jim managed a splendid assumption of sincerity. "We gamblers play hunches, you know. And say, it just proves there's something in them."

"A mighty queer thing happened today, Rose. I didn't mean to tell you yet, but your father was right. There's pay on this claim!" said Rowan.

"Please don't let's talk about that."

"But, Rose listen! While I was digging up there on the rim the gravel looked good. I took some of it down to the creek and tested it I can't begin to guess what was in it, but it was rich. You're a rich woman. There's no mistake. It wasn't a 'prospect,' it was big pay, coarse gold!"

For a while the girl sat silent, then abruptly she hid her face in her hands.

"Oh! The pity of it!" she cried. "After he had worked so long and endured so much! Poor father! So patient, so gentle, so old—!" Tears stole through her fingers.

"He told us he would land in the pay and we wouldn't believe him. But I know he's glad, for it was you he wanted it for, not himself, and everything has come out just the way he would have had it. I—I'll bet he's happy at last."

"Michigan's luck still holds good, doesn't it? Half the claim is yours, Jim."

"Pshaw! That 'partnership' arrangement was a joke. I've got money, lots of it. I could have made things a good deal easier for him and for you, but I didn't dare. No, Rose, it's all yours, and you have nothing to worry about any more. You need not pay any attention to what Hayward said, unless you want to. I know you like him and—he's a mighty nice boy. He has courage and he loves you."

"But, Jim, I don't love him. I don't even like him, any more."

"Then that's that!" Rowan declared, heartily.

"I love somebody else." The girl lifted her tear-stained face. "I'm in love with a boy from our old town. I think I must have cared for him ever since I was a little girl. And I've been in his thoughts, too. He has carried my picture constantly—"

"Well, well! That's certainly nice." Jim could think of nothing else to say.

"He's an unselfish boy. He did a great deal for father. I think he'd give his life for me. And yet he has never said that he loves me. I had to find out by chance."

"Rose!" All the reserve, all the counterfeit cheerfulness of The Michigan Kid, fell away. It was Jim Rowan, the Dover boy, who stared at her with working face, and exclaimed in a voice suddenly grown hoarse, "You—found that picture!"

"Yes; that night when I was looking for medicine. How long have you had it, Jim?"

"Ever since the day you graduated. I've always loved you, ever since I was a ragged kid and you drove by in your wicker pony cart. Rose dear, it was because of you that I gambled. I wanted money. I think I'd have killed to get it—almost. I went through hell. Then when I had my money and had found you I went through hell again because—well, because of the hell I'd been through. I—I'm not much of a man. I'm afraid you've made a mistake—"

Jim did not finish, for the girl held up her arms to him and said, quaveringly, like a weary child:

"Take me, Jim. Please! I'm so tired!"

So it was that The Michigan Kid's luck held through to the finish.

"That Smith boy, who used to work for you, wants to hire out to me. Is he steady?"

"Steady? If he was any steadier he'd be motionless."

Grandma. "Doesn't that little boy swear terribly?"

Little Grandson. "Yes, m, he sure does. He don't put no expression in it at all."

Barber. "Your head is sadly in need of a shampoo, sir."

Hardware Dealer. "Yes, and your house needs painting, but I don't nag you about it."

Girl. "Could you fix me a dose of castor oil, so the oil won't taste?"

Druggist. "Certainly. Won't

"Wounds," Their Symptoms, How To Treat Them

BY J. M. WILLIAMS
A wound may be defined as any break in the skin or mucous membrane of an animal. As the result of a wound, there is usually a destruction of tissue as well. Four distinct kinds of wounds, with clean cut margins; (1) lacerated wounds, with flap-like tears; (2) punctured wounds, with small round openings; (3) contused wounds, with the tissues bruised from contact with a blunt instrument.

and inability to chew or swallow the food.
The treatment of wounds consists first in stopping the hemorrhage, then the removal of foreign bodies, and finally the dressing of the wound.
Hemorrhage is normally stopped by the formation of blood-clot, but when this natural process is not sufficient, artificial means of control must be employed. These consist of the following:
1. Tying the bleeding vessel. For this purpose, silk or catgut should be used. A pair of small forceps will be useful in locating the wounded vessel so it may be tied.

CITY DOES NICE WORK ON MAIN STREET CEMETERY
Under the supervision of water superintendent Henry Sanders and R. H. Boone, and a crew of workmen, nice improvements on the Main Street cemetery have been made.
The city worked out a plan whereby delinquent water payments could be paid by labor on the cemeteries.
Trees have been topped and the entire plot thoroughly cleaned and put into excellent shape. The new addition to the present cemetery has been levelled and made ready for use.
The Enterprise has had several occasions to criticize the untidy appearance of our cemeteries and we heartily join the entire citizenship in complimenting the nice work that is being done.

Jones Chevrolet Company Co-operating With Manufacturer in Scrapping Cars
How the Chevrolet Motor Co. is cooperating in the war for traffic safety by staging a $1,000,000 old car scrapping program was described today by Otis Grisham, of the Jones Chevrolet Co., upon his return from an all-day meeting at Dallas, Texas, conducted by Mr. H. C. Howard, Zone Manager of the Dallas Zone.
"Chevrolet's old car disposal program," said Mr. Grisham, "is by far the most aggressive thing of its kind undertaken to date."

Smith called in the Hensley home to visit the sick kiddies Sunday afternoon.
Mr. and Mrs. Luther Smith and children spent Saturday night and Sunday in the Hamner home.
Lewis Mozelle and Marion Elgin Hensley are on the sick list this week.
Luff Harding, Luther Smith and Jack Tackett made a business trip to San Angelo Wednesday.
Mr. and Mrs. T. P. McCasland were out to the community club Friday night. We are always glad to have neighboring visitors.
Mrs. Mason spent the week-end in Winters.
Shannon McWilliams is on the sick list, threatened with "flu."

For a limited time, under the Chevrolet plan, dealers will be reimbursed at a fair figure for every dangerously old motor vehicle taken in trade and scrapped. Since the program is in effect throughout the whole country, a tremendous reduction in the number of such cars on the highway is certain to result.
Besides providing for the scrapping of worn automobiles, the Chevrolet plan has a cooperative feature whereby the factory and the dealer set up a fund for salesmen who do an out standing job on used cars this month. The fact that so many good used models have been taken in trade on new 1936 Chevrolet has boomed dealers used car business, enabling Chevrolet to break all records for November and December, while new car sales records were also hitting new high marks. The purpose behind the present plan is to maintain this fast movement of used cars, thus keeping the decks cleared for maximum new car selling.
Heavy advertising outlay in 1936, with the emphasis, as always on newspapers as the backbone of the entire program, is a major feature of Chevrolet's plans, Mr. Grisham said. "During December, he explained, "the Chevrolet Motor company made extensive use of newspaper space in selling used cars. The fact that the sales eclipsed anything heretofore accomplished in Deember has strengthened the conviction of the advertising department that the choice of a medium was wise."

Among the points of interest brought out at the meeting in Dallas was the fact that Chevrolet is already making use of the new manufacturing facilities installed in 1935 at a cost of $25,000,000. The output for this month is 110 units, and the condition of market, over the country as a whole, forecasts equal or greater production for February, Mr. Grisham said.
SINGING AT MILES
There will be a big Song Festival at Miles Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4:30 at the Miles Methodist church. The Jennings-Low Male Quartet of Winters and other quartets will appear on the programs. Stamps new 1936 song book, Harbor Bells No. five, just published, will be used in connection with other song books. A big crowd and many singers are expected in attendance from San Angelo, Ballinger, Winters, Rowena, Wingate, Norton, Bronte, Hatchel, Maverick, Mereta, Veribest, Harriett, and other towns and communities. The public is cordially invited to attend.

PRAIRIE DOGS BEING ERADICATED ON BIG SCALE IN RUNNELS

A squad of five men, under the supervision of J. E. Boog-Scott, Jr., U. S. Rodent Control Specialist, started a prairie-dog poisoning drive on the largest single area of prairie-dog-infested land in Runnels county on Monday, January 13th. Mr. Boog-Scott stated that he expects to use at least 1500 pounds of poison on the acreage already signed up. More than 500 pounds of poison will also be used in the next few days by landowners who are doing their own work.

Under the plan being followed by Mr. Boog-Scott, the landowner pays for the poison used and the labor of the crew of men working under him. There is no charge being made for Mr. Boog-Scott's services.

Landowners having prairie-dog infested land are urged to make arrangements for poisoning now,

THE EUROPEAN WAR OUTLOOK

The whole world was shocked when the news came out that France and Great Britain had drawn up a "peace" agreement between Ethiopia and Italy which if carried out, give more than half of Ethiopia to Italy as a reward for its unprovoked attack upon a peaceful and almost defenseless nation.

It is to the credit of the peoples and the statesmen of most of the other nations of Europe that they denounced the proposal almost with one voice. The people of England were stirred to indignation against their government. The outcome of this fiasco may easily be a far more serious international situation than has so far developed.

Ever since the Great War, the position of Great Britain has been that of guardian of the peace of Europe. She has held that position because, in spite of everything, the rest of the world believed in England's good faith. Now, of a sudden, that confidence has been dispelled by the present British government's own act.

It will take a lot of explaining, and years of time, to rebuild the world's confidence in Britain's national honor. Doubtless the explanation will be that to give Mussolini what he wanted was the only way to avert the actual outbreak of war on the Continent of Europe. But all the present indications are that the inevitable conflict has been hastened, rather than retarded.

Coming on top of the failure of the League of Nations to settle the quarrel between two of its members, and the breakdown of the London Naval Conference the failure of England to stand up for the rights of Ethiopia against Italy's aggressions has thrown all Europe into a fresh frenzy of nationalism. And that, the keenest observers of European affairs believe, can lead only to war, and that not long delayed.

Germany alone, of all the European powers, is happy over the present situation. The United States of America is lucky to be so clear of "entangling alliances" that we can look on with a fair degree of unconcern—for the present.

UNEMPLOYMENT

It is quite clear that nobody has any exact information of the number of employable persons still unemployed in the United States. That is, the number who would take jobs if they were available. To the claim that there are still eleven million industrial workers unemployed, the reply has lately been made, based upon Government statistics, that at no time, even at the peak of prosperity, did industry ever employ more than nine million persons, and as there are now more than seven million on industrial payrolls, the unemployment in that field cannot amount to more than two million.

In one sense, of course, all of the persons on relief are unemployed. But it does not follow that all of them were employed before they went on relief. In the best of times there have always been five or six million persons without jobs, either because they preferred not to work or they were unable, for various reasons, to attach themselves to

POLITICAL EDUCATION

A careful statistician has figured out that it would cost $0,000,000 dollars to conduct a nation-wide campaign of political education that would reach every voter in the United States. Nothing like that amount is likely to be spent this year, but the indications are that both major parties will spend more money than ever before, between now and November 9.

The largest amount of money ever spent in a political campaign in America was in 1928. The Democrats spent a shade over seven million dollars that year and the Republicans about nine and a half millions. This included both the national and state campaigns and those conducted by independent groups.

There were 36,772,695 votes cast in that year, so the average amount spent on each voter's political education was somewhat under 50 cents. That was not, of course, taking into account the thousands of meetings, debating groups, and gatherings which were addressed by volunteer, unpaid speakers on behalf of one party or another.

The United States spends about three thousand million dollars a year on its educational system. If one-hundredth of that amount were spent on political education it would cost but 30 million dollars a year.

Someone has put forward the brilliant suggestion that the cost of political campaigns ought to be borne by Government appropriations, state and Federal, apportioned among the parties in proportion to the number of their voters of the last previous election. In some respects that might be an improvement over the present system of raising funds by private contributions. That will not happen this year, but it is apparent that the voters of the nation are going to be exposed to a more intensive campaign than ever before.

payrolls. A large proportion of these have always been recipients of charitable relief, and it is impossible to imagine a situation in which there will not be a very large number of people who will depend for subsistence upon the generosity of public or private relief organizations.

In the meantime, however, more people are going back to work every day and the outlook is hopeful for a job within a year or so for everybody who is willing and able to work.

Cotton Crop Brings 376 Million Dollars More Than in 1932

Farm Value of Cotton

Highlights of Cotton Adjustment in 1936

1. New contract covers 1936-37-38-39
2. Adjustment will be from 30 to 45% of base acreage
3. Individual bases determined by producers and county committees
4. Adjustment payments not less than 5 cents a pound
5. Food, feed, and soil building crops on adjusted acres

FIVE salient features of Cotton adjustment in 1936 are shown in the above illustration. In addition to covering four years and reducing the acreage in cotton in 1936 by 30 to 45 per cent of the base acreage, the contract provides for a single adjustment payment of not less than five cents a pound on the average yield of lint cotton on the acreage withheld from production. At a rate of five cents a pound, the average payment would amount to approximately $8.60 per acre, which approximates that paid in 1935 and is slightly more than was paid in 1934.

On Texas Farms

From two rows planted in her garden, Thelma Rosseau, garden demonstrator for the Wood Glen girls' 4-H club in Rusk county, gathered 17 bushels of beans, 350 pints of which she canned. According to Thelma the large yield was due to the fact that the ground on which they were planted was covered with well rotted barn-yard fertilizer early in January and then plowed deep and allowed to stand until the first of March when it was thoroughly cultivated and planted.

D. A. James has doubled the carrying capacity of the pastures on the Bennett Ranch in Jackson county which he has seeded to Dallas grass. Fall seeding with about 10 pounds of seed per acre has proved most satisfactory. And a good sod is developed about a year earlier if it is sown in a field following a row crop rather than in the native sod.

In a recent radio address which R. M. Gibson of the Alanreed community in Gray county made over the Farm and Home Hour of KGNC, he said in part:

"If anyone had had any doubt about the value of terracing and contour rows for the prevention of wind erosion, all doubt would have been removed had they been on my farm this spring. All of the unterraced farms around me were blowing—and my place was not blowing at all with the exception of some of soil blown on the place from neighboring farms was sifting about a little. While the unterraced farms were being blown away, my farm was being built up with their best soil."

Franklin—Nearly four times the average community yield of corn per acre is the 1935 record of Harwood Whittington, Robertson county 4-H club boy, according to V. L. Sandlin, county agricultural agent. Harwood produced 56.4 bushels of yellow dent corn and 1,000 pounds of pea hay on one measured acre of sandy land, while the community average yield of corn was a little less than 15 bushels per acre.

The second highest yield in his vicinity was 17 bushels per acre.

Spacing his rows 60 inches apart, using good seed planted thick in the drill, the use of 300 pounds of commercial fertilizer, proper cultural methods, and the planting of field peas between the corn rows are the factors enumerated by Harwood in accounting for the unusual amount of feed produced.

Gail—A net profit of $205.22 on 108 white leghorn hens was made during the past year by Nolan von Roeder of Borden county, according to Cline E. Morris, county agricultural agent. Von Roeder had a total income of $262.36 and the total feed cost was $57.14. The hens produced 1531 dozen eggs at a feed cost per dozen of 8.7 cents. Von Roeder credits his success to his practice of getting his baby chicks from a reliable breeder, the feeding of plenty of good feed and a balanced ration, the use of a warm hen house free of all parasites, and good management.

Crane—A coyote poisoning campaign that secured excellent results in Ector, Andrews and Crane counties last spring is to be repeated on a wider scale this winter, according to H. L. Atkins, Jr., county agricultural agent. In the previous drive, 9,000 baits were distributed over the three counties and more than 200 coyotes were reported killed. This campaign calls for 20,000 baits.

The low price of furs last season caused trappers to lose interest in catching coyotes, Atkins reports, resulting in an unusually large increase in numbers with attendant increase in the losses of calves.

"Eight or 10 calves saved will offset the cost of the 20,000 baits," Atkins said, "and as one cowman has reported the loss of four calves out of 60 due to coyotes it is evident that a rapid and extensive campaign must be waged if huge losses are to be avoided."

Crowell—Fifty-four feet of shelving has been added to her cellar by Mrs. C. H. Broomer, farm food supply demonstrator for the Good Creek home demonstration club in Foard county, in order to provide room for her supply of canned food, according to Miss Myrna Holman, home demonstration agent.

The shelves were made wide enough to hold two rows of jars and are about ten and one-half inches apart. They were made from one by fours, a small crack being left where the two boards were fitted together. This was not large enough to interfere with the placing of jars but did allow for ventilation.

The wood ceiling of the cellar was whitewashed, and the walls were covered with pasteboard and whitewashed. The lime cost 30 cents and the lumber for the selves cost $2.65, making the total cost $2.95.

Falfurrias—A mattress costing only $3.20 cash for 10 yards of eight ounce feather ticking and 15 cents for thread and mattress cord has recently been made by Mrs. Elmer J. Rupp of the Flowella home demonstration club in Brooks county, according to Miss Louise Hogue, home demonstration agent. The mattress was made from 50 pounds of white home grown cotton. It is 59 by 82 inches.

Valuing the mattress at $20 which is the valuation placed by a mattress factory on a similar one, Mrs. Rupp has a profit of $16.75.

Waxahachie—A front lawn with a ditch washed across it has been transformed into a level lawn sodded with bermuda grass since last February by Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Johns of Ellis county as a part of their yard improvement plan, according to Miss Irma Ross, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Johns is yard demonstrator in the Sims Home Demonstration Club.

"We put several wagon loads of dirt on the lawn and leveled it, then transplanted the bermuda grass in rows. Now it is almost solid," Mrs. Johns said. A

RAMBLING 'ROUND NEW YORK with HUGH KENNY

Lorgnettes and monocles and Rolls Royces paraded up to the Metropolitan Opera house last week to the opening of the new season. Flashlights, jewels, opulence were the order of the evening. And the house was sold out in advance to the tune of $16,000 box office receipts.

Hansel and Gretel was greeted by piping cheers from an audience of children at the Metropolitan's matinee on Friday. The name of its composer always shallow ditch was necessary between the road and the lawn for drainage, so the yard was given a smooth even slope and sodded to the road. In addition to making the yard more attractive, the grass prevents washing and helps to keep down the weeds.

strikes me as almost as amusing as the opera—Englebert Humperdinck.

A rumor that goes the rounds is that one of the major film concerns in Hollywood is having a play written from a successful movie. That would be the first turn of the worm in that direction, and quite a reversal of the usual procedure.

It's something—of a shock to walk along 42nd Street near Fifth Avenue and see the stores of practically Lilliputian dimensions there. Specialty shops, there are several that can't be more than six or eight feet wide and ten or twelve feet deep—just big enough to hold shelves of silk stockings, a proprietor and a customer—or at a squeeze—two or three.

On the site of the old Wendel home where penny-pinching was always the order of the day has risen one of the most artistic of modern buildings to house the store of some other small change artists—a five, ten and twenty-five cent store.

HOW DOES BAGLEY BETTER COTTON AND THE QUALLA VARIETY COMPARE?

At Experiment Station Tests at Which They Were Both Tested During the Same Year.

We have just been handed a Test Report, published by Mr. H. Conrads, in which he singles out two Varieties of cotton—BAGLEY and Qualla—showing tests made at Experiment Stations covering the same years on these two Cottons. To our knowledge, this is the first time any Breeder ever printed and singled out ONLY two Cottons for comparison. Why did Mr. Conrads single out BAGLEY BETTER COTTON only, when there are numerous other varieties included in these Tests? We think that this act undoubtedly shows that BAGLEY BETTER COTTON is gaining customers through QUALITY and PURITY and NET RETURNS PER ACRE. We have a small Pedigreed Acreage, compared to that of some Breeders, and we have purposely kept it small in order to give our Friends and Customers seed of unequalled QUALITY and PURITY. THE NUMBER of Farms planting BAGLEY PEDIGREED COTTONSEED have increased over 100 per cent.

We are giving you below the results of EXPERIMENT STATION TESTS as received by us, from the different Stations covering these Cottons in the same years. Here are the figures; you can make your own tests in your field if you care to do so. We would be glad for you to plant the two Cottons side by side, under the same condition, so that you may see for yourself the BETTER qualities of our BAGLEY BETTER COTTON.

The Results of These Tests Are Given Below as Shown By Reports From the Stations and Experiments Listed.

A comparison is well-worth the FULL details, as to PRODUCTION, STAPLE, LINT TURN-OUT, Per Cent of FIVE LOCK BOLLS, and Number of BOLLS PER POUND.

Williamson County Makes Cotton Study

(Taken From March 15th, 1934 Issue of FARM & RANCH)

	Years From Breeder	Staple	Lint Turn-out	Lint Per Acre
BAGLEY	1-2-3	15-16	38.28	291
Qualla	1-2-3	15-16	37.31	238

In the above test it will be well for you to note BAGLEY'S higher production per acre, and higher average lint turn-out. Always figure in DOLLARS and CENTS per acre.

Experiment Station, Lubbock, Texas

1929-32 period at Lubbock, Texas, showed the following results:

Years	Lint Per Acre	Staple	Percent Five Lock Bolls	No. Bolls Per Pound
BAGLEY 1929-32	291	15-16
Qualla 1929-32	272	15-16
BAGLEY 1934	32	14-16	60	102
Qualla 1934	28	13-16	40	127

Again you can plant Bagley Better Pedigreed Cottonseed and be ahead in Dollars and Cents per acre. You will note that in 1934 the production per acre was very low on account of the drought at Lubbock.

Experiment Station, Beeville, Texas

Year	Lint Per Acre	Staple	Lint Per Cent
BAGLEY 1931	185	31-32	36.30
Qualla 1931	122	15-16	35.81

Lint per acre, Staple, Lint per cent, are the all important characters in producing a Money-making crop. BAGLEY COTTON is bred for greater returns.

Experiment Station, College Station, Texas

Year	Lint Per Acre	Staple	Percent Lint	Percent Five-lock	No. Bolls Per Lb.
BAGLEY 1931	202.3	1"	39.2	72	65
Qualla 1931	189.7	1"	39.0	60	64
BAGLEY 1934	212.0	15-16	43.0	73	70
Qualla 1934	196.0	15-16	42.5	64	73

Bagley is still leading in production, lint-turn-out, per cent of five-lock bolls, according to the above test.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 9.—The 74th Congress which has just convened for its second and final session is trying to pick up the loose threads of its unfinished program and tie some of the knots more securely, while considering what is required in the way of new legislation.

A great deal of the action of this session will be taken with one eye on the Supreme Court. If all of the laws of the last two years whose constitutionality has been challenged could be passed on by the Supreme Court at once, it would save the Senators and Representatives a lot of time and worry.

As Congress met there was a long list of measures on which there has been no final adjudication by the High Court. Most eagerly awaited was the decision on the AAA. Secretary Wallace has a bill already prepared to offer to Congress in the event that the Supreme Court rules that the processing taxes are illegal. It is the firm intention of both the Administration and of Congress to continue benefit payments to agriculture, whether the funds are derived from processing taxes or from some substitute form of excise taxes, or are merely paid out of general revenues.

There is a general agreement, among those who keep a close eye on effects of Washington's actions upon business trends, that there will be an increase in the buying of farm products following the Supreme Court's decision, whichever way it goes.

Await Many Decisions
A more important Court decision will be that on the Guffey soft coal regulation act. The expectation is that this will be held unconstitutional, on the ground that the tax imposed upon coal producers who do not conform to the terms of the law is a penalty rather than an excise tax. It was on exactly that ground that the Supreme Court some years ago declared the Child Labor Law unconstitutional.

Uncertainty as to the Court's ruling on the Guffey Act is expected to delay action by Congress on other regulatory measures affecting business.

The Supreme Court also has before it questions of the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Act, the Social Security Act, the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the Railroad Pension Act, the PWA Slum Clearance program, the Potato Control Act, the Tobacco Control Act and the Bankhead Cotton Control Act. Some of these will be passed on between now and June, some will not get to the point of a Court ruling until Autumn. Therefore it is possible there will be no clearcut Constitutional issue of which either party can take advantage in the coming presidential campaign.

Amendments Up Sleeves
It is known that a dozen or more members and Senators have Constitutional amendments up their sleeves ready to offer if the Administration should decide it were worth while to put up a fight at this time for the liberalization of the Constitution in the direction of giving broader powers to the Federal Government to regulate industry, but it now seems questionable that any of these amendments will have sufficient weight behind it to get very far.

Much more concern is being expressed over old age pensions than on any other one question. The Social Security Act, which provides for a contributory system of old age pensions, to be paid out of a fund provided by taxes on employers and employes, does not meet the widespread demand for immediate pensions for every person over 60 or 65 years old.

Pensions provided for in the Social Security Act are not big enough to please either the Townsends or the even more radical element which is putting on pressure for old age pensions payable immediately out of general funds; also too many people who want pensions right now will have passed on to their final reward long before they could possibly be beneficiaries of the Social Security Act.

The feeling openly expressed on Capitol Hill is that something must be done and done quickly about old age pensions on a bigger and faster scale. It is entirely unlikely that anything like the Townsend plan of $200 a month for all aged persons will be voted, but the pressure group of Townsend Clubs which have been organized all over the country has more voting strength behind it than even the Bonus. Its method of organizing and its tactics are very similar to those of the old Anti-Saloon League.

Just before Congress met, the Townsend organization demanded expressions from all members of Congress and announced that it had 39 pledges of support, 14 replies from members who said they had not yet made up their minds, 2 who declined to answer and only 5 who stated that they were definitely opposed to the project. And that was only the first fruit of the early pressure which all of the members are beginning to feel.

Long Session Forecasted
The president is said to have expressed the desire, if not the belief, that this session of Congress will adjourn by Easter. It can be set down right now as a fact that nothing of that sort will happen. The boys will stay in session until the nominating conventions and perhaps after that. There are too many political issues coming up in this most political year since 1932, and every member and almost every Senator feels that he has to make the best of this opportunity to strengthen his position with the voters of his district or state.

Senator Borah's open and avowed candidacy for the Republican nomination has focused attention on his record in respect to the New Deal. On the 17 major New Deal bills Mr. Borah has supported the Administration 11 times and has been lined up with the Republican Party six times. And on that record rests the opposition from within his own party of which former President Hoover is the Spearhead.

"THE NIGHT HE TOOK HER TO THE SENIOR HOP AT THE COUNTRY CLUB — AND HE COULDN'T START THE CAR TO GO HOME, AND THE GANG HAD LEFT HIM FLAT, AND THE LAST LIGHT IN THE CLUB WAS ABOUT TO BLINK, AND IT WAS FIVE MILES BACK TO TOWN — OH BOY, WOTTA MESS!"

MODERN WOMEN
by CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS

President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Two women are officially working on the great social problem of liquor control in the states. Mrs. John S. Sheppard of New York is a member of the New York State Liquor Authority and Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson of Cleveland is a member of the Ohio Liquor Control Board.

A third Nobel Prize was awarded to the famous Curie family of France recently when Mrs. Frederick Curie—Joliot was given the Nobel prize in chemistry. Both her father and mother were previous recipients of this honor.

Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida, the first United States woman citizen to serve as Minister to another country, returned to Denmark early in December saying that she was hurrying back to her post at Copenhagen to enjoy a real Christmas. Evidently our Madam Minister likes her post at Denmark's capitol.

The November election returns in New York state showed that many women were elected to office: Miss Jane Todd, to the State Assembly; Miss Ruth Taylor, Commissioner of Public Welfare in Westchester County; Miss Margaret Engert to a similar post in Sullivan County; Mrs. Flora Hofstetter, County Treasurer of Herkimer; Mrs. Elinor K. Herrick, Supervisor of Madison County; Mrs. Mary Livingston, Supervisor of Westchester County.

Choice of Writing Paper
Ruled or highly scented paper should not be used for letters or personal notes.

It is not good form to use gold edged paper. The address stamped in black or dark color in plain letters at the top of the first page of paper is suitable for all members of the family. The telephone number may be put in small type under the address or in the upper left hand corner with the address in the center.

Coats of arms on paper or envelopes are never used unless one has an inherited right.

Conservative writing paper should always be used by a man. Plain, white or grey or granite paper of medium or large size and stamped with his address or his initial is in good taste.

Smaller paper for notes or correspondence cards, cut to size of envelopes are used but postal $8.03 for growing and selling them. This left him a profit of $39.90.

John Foley, another Proctor 4-H Club boy, made a net profit of $38.05 on his acre of melons. John Foley flat broke his land in February about 10 inches deep then checked off his rows 12 by 12 feet each way. He used about two and one-half tons of manure. He planted his melons about May 1 and gave them a cultivation every week. He applied a dollar's worth of nicotine dust to keep down the insects.

On August 1, John Foley sold 250 melons that averaged between 40 and 66 pounds and received 12 cents per melon. The second selling of 150 melons averaging 40 pounds each brought 10 cents each and the last load of 180 melons averaging 35 pounds each returned six cents per melon.

His 580 melons off of one acre brought John a total of $55.80. The cost of growing the melons amounted to $17.75 which left him a net profit of $38.05.

Sufficient postage should always be placed on your letters. Your friends should not be compelled to pay postage on the letters you write. Enclose a self addressed envelope when writing to strangers about your own affairs.

It is proper if one desires, to eat the lettuce upon which a salad is served.

When calling upon a young lady it is never proper to blow the automobile horn to announce one's arrival.

The omission of the title Miss on the visiting card of an unmarried woman is not correct.

In serving people at dinner, dishes are always removed from the right and served from the left. In removing dishes from the table at the completion of a course it is never correct to place one upon the other. Each dish must be removed separately.

Try CARDUI For Functional Monthly Pains

Women from the teen age to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Crit Haynes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had head and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

THE HOUSE OF HAZARDS--

--By Mac Arthur

The 1935 edition of "Taxes and Tax Trends," written by Katherine A. Frederick, secretary of the Department of Government of the National League of Women Voters, urges unification of our tax system. Miss Frederick suggests the establishment of a co-ordinated tax system for the nation, based on sound equitable planning rather than on "haphazard tax-grabbing."

An experiment is being conducted at the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University by Miss Flora Rose, director, to develop techniques to help people grow up. Most of the ills of the world, Miss Rose believes, are due to the fact that so many adults remain children emotionally. "It is of no use for colleges to turn out brilliant babies," she said; "no use for graduates to achieve intellectual maturity unless it is accompanied by social maturity and emotional stability."

It's smart to be careful.
