BANNER ICE CO. DEMONSTRATES REFRIGERATORS

METHODIST W.M.S. WAS SPONSOR OF THE SHOW.

Fifty-one ladies were present Tuesday afternoon at the American Legion Hall for the demonstration of the new Air-Conditioned White Seal refrigerators which was presented by the Banner Ice Company. One fifth of those present requested free demonstrations in their homes.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church sponsored the demonstration and received ten cents for each person present.

Mrs. Bennett of Abilene, educational director for the Banner Creameries, was introduced by Morey Millerman, local manager. She gave some interesting observations concerning what should be expected of any refrigerator. She emphasized the fact that cold alone is not enough and told why it was necessary to have moist air so that the foods would retain their natural moisture and flavor; moving air, so that the gases and odors that the foods give off would be carried away; pure air, so that the foods would be supplied with an abundance of fresh, pure air at all times; cold air, in order to prevent growth of bacteria. She also brought out the fact that uncooked food is made up of living cells, and that it actually breathes, just as a human breathes. She pointed out that the four air conditions noted above are absolutely necessary for proper preservation of foods. Another point brought out in this connection was that covered dishes in the refrigerator actually stifle foods in their own gases and odors instead of allowing them to pass off, and the foods to be supplied with fresh, pure air.

Mr. Martin, sales manager of the Banner Creameries, after a brief preliminary talk, showed moving pictures with accompanying sound effects, which illustrated very graphically the advantages of modern ice refrigeration.

At the close of the demonstration refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by Mrs. Bennett with several of the Methodist ladies assisting.

Shirley Temple Proves Irresistible Foe in "The Littlest Rebel" Which Comes for Preview Show Sat. Nite

BETTE DAVIS AND FRANCHOT TONE ARE LOVERS
IN "DANGEROUS," FEATURE BOOKED FOR TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

As the tiny confederate who surrounds the Yanks with smiles—astounds them with songs and defeats them with dances, Shirley Temple returns to the screen in "The Littlest Rebel" which comes to the Queen Theatre Saturday at the midnight preview, also Sunday and Monday. Vivid and spine-tingling, Columbia's "Too Tough to Kill," showing today and tomorrow, is one of those excellent action dramas blended with a real romance that makes the picture grand entertainment. Franchot Tone, Bette Davis and Margaret Lindsay are featured together in "Dangerous," showing Tuesday and Wednesday. Because of her magnificent performance Bette Davis was awarded the Academy award for her fine work in the picture. "F Man" with Jack Haley and Grace Bradley, will be featured Thursday.

"The Littlest Rebel"
Shirley Temple is ably supported by a cast which includes John Boles, Jack Holt, Karen Morley and her old tap-dancing friend, Bill Robinson. Shirley plays her first great dramatic role in this screen feature. The story is adapted from that ever popular play, deals with happenings in Virginia during the Civil War. After Shirley's father, John Boles, is called to fight for the Stars and Bars things go from bad to worse with his family. Loyal servants help to keep the family together, but when their home comes into the line of fire, Shirley and her mother, Karen Morley are forced to flee. The delicate Miss Morley succumbs to the rigors of war and in a tender and affecting scene, Shirley and her father are reunited. He faces trial and possible execution when he is captured by Jack Holt, a Northern officer. The incidents that follow make the show one of the best of the year.

"Too Tough to Kill"
When cave-ins, explosions, landslides and earth quakes occur with too frequent regularity on the project Victor Jory as John O'Hara, is put in charge of the project. At the same time Ann Miller, a beautiful and competent newspaper reporter, played by Sally O'Neil, is sent to the construction camp by her paper, which is supporting the project to discover what is holding back progress. When she discovers that the chief assistant is planning to murder a group of miners working deep in the mine and kill Jory as well in the catastrophe by exploding a charge of dynamite in order to stop work on the project, it is Miss O'Neil who races into the tunnel to save the miners and the man she realizes she loves.

"Dangerous"
It is the dramatic story of a beautiful and brilliant actress who wrecks the lives of those who love her by her own selfishness and ambition. Finally her own life is wrecked, but she is rescued from the gutter and again proceeds to ruin those with whom she comes in contact until she is awakened to the wrong she is doing in a startling and unusual climax. In the cast with Bette Davis in the role of the actress are Franchot Tone, Margaret Lindsay, Alison Skipworth and John Eldredge. Because of her excellent work in the picture Miss Davis was given the Motion Picture Academy award for the best performance of the year.

"F-Man"
A moderately-entertaining film dealing with G-Men and their activities from a comedy angle. Jack Haley, soda-jerker in a small town, checks out for the city with ambition to become a G-Man. Through his repeated attempts to get into the department he is ribbed by the gang and finally goes to work in a drug store. His girl friend from the small town comes to the city and finds him there and comedy situations develop with him trying to explain that it is in the line of duty. He becomes tangled up with a public enemy, finally being responsible for his capture and everything is okay. Lots of laughs. A chase finish wherein Haley trails the bandit in a taxi with a flock

Prosperity Depends on Sound Agricultural Program, Says Jack Shelton

College Station — "Business men and farmers and ranchmen have a common problem in finding the way to restore agriculture to a paying basis, because as the president of the Galveston Chamber of Commerce so well pointed out in a recent speech 'Civilization begins and ends with the plow and so does prosperity.' Prosperity not alone for farm and ranch families but for the families of men engaged in commerce, industry and other occupations," said Jack Shelton, vice director of the Texas Extension Service and state agent in charge of men's work, in a recent interview.

"No one wants class legislation for the farmer—the thing which affects him affects every agency which sells to him or touches him in any way," Shelton said. "The farmer does not want class legislation nor any unfair advantages for himself either. All that he has ever asked for is an opportunity to produce and market on an equal basis with industry."

"We have been thinking a lot about the new agricultural program as we have been able to catch details of what Congress has been considering. The job is going to be to apply it to local conditions as they are found throughout the State so we have been studying how it could be applied to the Panhandle where the great wheat lands are located; how to apply it to the Plains where cotton and grain sorghums are important crops; how to apply it to the Blacklands—the central cotton belt; how to apply it to East Texas and how to apply it to the Rio Grande Valley."

"As I understand it," Shelton said, "It is just a question of developing a good sound agricultural program in each region and on each farm. Nothing will be required except the application of those practices of soil utilization and conservation which have become recognized as the best for Texas."

"Farmers themselves should have a large part in applying this program. They will know their local conditions and they will know not only the general regional conditions, but special conditions applying to individual farms."

"It is fortunate that there is a great deal of experimental information available to aid in establishing any new agricultural program which may be offered. There are 17 experiment stations placed in strategic positions over Texas, many of which have worked for a long period of years. They have accumulated much tested information which is going to be of great value in establishing what is proper land utilization and conservation," Shelton said.

LYRIC THEATRE

"The Eagle's Brood," featuring William Boyd and Jimmy Ellison, showing today and tomorrow at the Lyric Theatre is one of the younger veterans of the film industry.

An exciting red blooded fast moving outdoor drama, it pictures the rip-roaring experiences of Hopalong Cassidy in the lawless town of Hell Center in the adventurous days of the old West. Cassidy is cast in the role of peace deputy, whose job is to bring law and order and wipe out the lawless gang that rules the town. Riding the range one day, he is caught in quicksand and is rescued by a notorious bandit. In return for saving his life, Boyd, who enacts the role of Hopalong, then sets out to keep his promise and find the bandit's lost young grandson.

IN MEMORY OF M. L. MITCHELL

We loved him Lord, and you took him away,
But we all hope to meet him some glad day,
His chair is vacant and we miss his voice,
But when we think how long he suffered, we should rejoice,
That his body is free from suffering and pain,
And all our loss is to his gain.
Grieve not dear mother and children, too,
He's paid the price we all must do.

I cannot say, and I will not say,
That he is dead—he is just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered in the unknown land,
And left us dreaming, how very fair,
It needs must be sincere he lingers there,
And you, Oh, who the dearest yearn
For the old time step of the glad return,
Think of him still as the same,
I say
He is not dead—he is just away.

On Texas Farms

Waxahachie—An orchard consisting of 145 trees has recently been planted by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bearden of Ellis county, according to Miss Irma Ross, home demonstration agent. The fruits include peaches, pears and plums, and Mr. and Mrs. Bearden have selected the varieties so that they will have fruit ripening from May to October. The dewberry patch planted several years ago contributes to the variety of fruit products also.

Palo Pinto—Twenty-four grape cuttings of one year's growth containing 8 to 10 buds have been set out during the past month by Nathalie Walker, farm fruit plot demonstrator for the Graford 4-H Girls' Club in Palo Pinto county. Nathalie cut off the cuttings one-fourth inch from the bottom bud and one-half to one inch from the top bud, tied them in a bundle and buried them upside down in the ground four inches deep. They were left there about a month. The purpose was to seal the ends over so that the cuttings would take root better when they were put out than if they had just been cut and put in the bed.

Falfurrias—Twenty-eight Brooks county 4-H club girls have planted tomato seed in paper cups filled with soil or in small wooden boxes in order to January, the girls were given a demonstration on the mixing of soil, preparation of soil for seed, planting, selection of varieties and subsequent care. Each of the girls planted enough seed to have at least 50 plants, which is the co-operators' goal for the year. Two varieties were planted.

Jefferson—L. V. Bowen of Marion county started selling milk from four grade cows five years ago. Through the depression he managed to make a living, improve his herd, and add 20 cows, some of which are pure blood, according to John H. Erickson, the county agricultural agent.

By the use of high quality bulls Bowen has improved his herd so that many of the young cows produce from 15 to 20 percent more milk than their mothers and average higher in butter fat. An abundance of roughage is produced on the farm, and in addition a pit silo is filled for winter use.

While Bowen is a tenant farmer, he has greatly improved the pastures and meadows on the farm and cuts and puts up several thousand bales of hay each season.

Fairfield—"I am feeding 150 goats, 20 head of cattle and 30 hogs on the silage that I put in my trench silo last fall, and they are doing far better on it than on any other roughage I have ever fed," says Jim Sessions of Freestone county, according to J. W. Richards, Jr., county agricultural agent.

Sessions dug the silo last fall and stored a 12 acre crop of hezari in it. He states that the total cost of this feed did not exceed $1 per ton. This included the cost of growing the feed, building the silo, and storing the feed.

At the first club meeting in Mount Vernon—Nine dollars worth of Korean lespedeza sowed broadcast over a 10 acre bermuda grass meadow in 1935 increased the profits in hay by $45 on the farm of W. J. Morris, Franklin county farmer, according to W. N. Williamson, county agricultural agent. The ground was prepared by cutting in one direction with a disc. After sewing lespedeza the disc was run the other way.

An excellent stand was obtained and the meadow yielded 30 bales of hay. Morris prices this mixed hay at 15 cents a bale more than ordinary bermuda hay. He is preparing to plant 15 acres this year.

Clarksville—Seventy-four Red River county farmers are pooling their orders for fruit trees this year, with an average of 30 trees per order, according to C. M. Knight, county agricultural agent.

Farmers in this county have been buying together for the past several years and have found that they can get trees at a cheaper price; they can have trees inspected before buying; and they can get proper information on caring for their orchards.

The trees will be delivered as soon as the weather permits. Plans have been made by the county agricultural agent to hold

FLOODS . . . everywhere

It almost seems as if there wasn't a river east of the Mississippi that didn't go on a rampage in the past two or three weeks. Such puny efforts as man has made to keep the waters under control seem rather ridiculous.

Naturally, I have been thinking of floods I have seen. In 1889, when the ice coming down the Potomac made a dam out of the railroad bridge at Washington, all the lower part of the city was flooded. My brother and I got hold of a boat and rowed up and down Pennsylvania Avenue from the Treasury to the foot of Capitol Hill, in and out of the hotels and railroad stations.

I have seen the Mississippi river 65 feet above normal at St. Louis, the Ohio at Cincinnati up to the third story of buildings on the streets along the river. I saw all South Florida under water in the winter of 1925-26. I have seen our New York and New England rivers in flood so often that I have come to expect it every year or two.

CONTROL . . . Arthur Morgan

The most effective job of flood control that I know anything about was done in the Miami River basin in Ohio, after the disastrous flood that began on Easter Sunday, 1913. I've never seen it rain so hard for so long, even in Florida, as it rained all over Ohio, Indiana and Illinois that day.

The state of Ohio and the cities and counties in the Miami Valley determined there should be no more floods there. They spent $32,000,000 of their own money—and this year, with rain and snow conditions even worse than in 1913, there was no flood in that part of Ohio. The man who engineered that job was Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, now head of the Tennessee Valley Authority, which is, among other things, a flood-control project.

Turn a dozen Arthur Morgans loose on the nation's flood problem, give them a free hand and a few billion dollars and the flood menace could be removed in a few years.

REBUILDING . . . the blessing

One effect of the floods in the thickly-settled East is bound to be an immense amount of rebuilding. Bridges and dams will have to be replaced, factories and other buildings repaired or replaced. It will take countless millions of dollars to set things to right. Steel and concrete will be used where wood answered before. That will make more business and employment for the "heavy" industries and naturally a lot of work for artisans in all the construction and building trades.

This will be real employment.

F. F. A. Items

Seven members of the F. F. A. chapter accompanied by our vocational teacher, Mr. Williams, will go to Stephenville Friday, April 3rd to compete in the Area Future Farmer Judging contests. Winters will be represented with teams in Dairy Judging and Soil Conservation. Members of the third year class have been selected to compete in the Dairy contest while first year boys were picked for the Terracing team. The contest will be held Saturday, April 4th, and the boys will return either Saturday night or Sunday morning. Members of the two teams are as follows: Dairy Judging: George Brown, J. B. Guy, D. B. Collinsworth, alternate. Terracing: Gerald Proctor, Ellis Lee, Merle Proctor, Franz Belitz, alternate.

Officers of the local chapter attended the District F. F. A. meeting at Abilene last week. Eight boys were initiated as Future Farmers at this meeting. Morris Cooke, local F. F. A. member, and former president of the chapter, received his Future Farmer degree.

Calves being fattened for the Texas Centennial V. A. show were dehorned this week. The boys were assisted by our vocational teacher. Some of our F. F. A. boys are planning to purchase registered gilts in the near future. We want gilts that will farrow in time to feed out the pigs for the Centennial show next November.

The chapter has run 20,000 yards of terrace lines the past month. Terraces have been constructed on approximately two thirds of the total lines run while the remaining lines will serve as a guide for contouring rows.

Mrs. L. LeRoe and her father, D. R. Lewis of Whitewright and Mrs. Lee Wilborn and baby of Austin, came yesterday for a few days' visit in the home of Mrs. R. B. Mack. Mrs. LeRoe is the mother of Mrs. Mack.

on work that must be done and that is better for everybody concerned than "made" work. It seems to me that the floods may turn out to have been a blessing in disguise, by taking up a lot of the slack in industrial employment.

BRIDGES . . . the doctor

The old-fashioned covered bridge, of which quite a number survive in the East, have always fascinated me.

The early settlers "housed" in their wooden bridges to keep the roadway free from snow and ice. It didn't matter so much if a horse or wagon slipped sideways off the highway, but a loaded wagon on a slippery bridge could easily go through the guardrail into the river.

One of my boyhood memories is of a flood that washed away the flooring and superstructure of an old covered bridge near my home. Our village doctor had been sent for on an emergency call, across the river, but could not get out until long after dark. He saddled his horse and rode off through the rain. Not until after he had crossed the river did he learn that the bridge was "out."

A miracle? No, just an accident. The sure-footed horse happened to hit one of the 18-inch "stringers" that were all that was left of the bridge, and walked across in the dark like a tight-rope performer!

FIRE . . . wet hay

I am watching now for reports of fires in barns, along the river valleys where the flood water has gone down. They all ways follow when hay in the barn has been thoroughly soaked, unless it is spread and given a chance to dry out.

Spontaneous combustion from the heat generated by damp hay in the bottom of the mow started scores of barn fires in northern New England after the last big flood we had, nine years ago. Not all of the fires were spontaneous, either, an insurance man told me, though proof to the contrary was hard to establish. Few companies write flood insurance policies, and few farmers would pay for them, anyway. But they all carry fire insurance.

Some day, in a more perfect world, perhaps we will all live in houses as fireproof as were the caves of our ancestors, and to build a barn of wood will be a jail offense.

SYNOPSIS . . . A luxurious five month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls . . . These characters are aboard the ship; Macduff, dour Scotchman, singer, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, runaway wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul . . . NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

The Red Sea stretched like a velvet carpet under a sky studded with stars. "Venus!" said Jenny, looking upwards. "I always know it because of its translucence, and it seems so much closer to the earth than the others. I used to watch it and now I'm seeing it near Aden with you!"

She clung to the rail, her figure enveloped in a dim blue haze. She listened to the swish of the boat, through the water, and watched its trail of foam. The funnels rose like black towers, pouring a stream of smoke into the night. It was hot in a smooth and milky way. She threw off her wrap and clutched over the river at Little Oaks, ed at her throat. Peter slid his hand along the rail and caught her fingers.

"Strange, isn't it?" Jenny whispered.

"Why strange?"

"I feel as if we were all alone in the night and very far from everyone. I'm rather afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

She shuddered and pressed close to his side. There were moments when she was alone in all the universe, when there was no aid, no communion, anywhere, but how could one convey this sense of isolation, even to the man one loved? She sank to a deck chair and lay looking up at the stars. For an hour they seemed to be racing through foam under a canopy that reached to infinity.

"What a fine sense of exhilaration one gets on the top deck!" said Peter, turning from the rail to look at the silent Jenny. "But I wish we were having a roaring storm; this is so tame. I like the fury of the sea. You have never been in a real storm, have you, Jenny?"

"No, never. I wonder if I should mind."

"I think you wouldn't like it, for you're not attuned to wildness. Your mind and your body are passive."

He bent over her till her hair drifted across his mouth, with a sharp fragrance. Her face was part of the night. For a moment he thought her a perfect stranger—so shadowy and remote! What did she dream of all the time? Why could he never reach the core of Jenny's thoughts? Why did she shut him out? He looked down the dim corridors of the future and wondered if he had made a mistake in taking her from her husband and home. Half of the time he was forced to comfort and reassure her, and she paid for a moment of rapture with hours of futile regret.

She turned to him suddenly, her voice edged with pain. "You are thinking of the future, aren't you, Peter?"

"I was thinking of you."

"I know—the two of us together. How do you think it will be—afterwards, when all this is over?"

"This won't come to a sudden stop, Jenny. Our happiness will continue."

"It's peaceful here tonight, but I'm afraid of what time will do to us, Peter."

"Rubbish! You're carrying your troubled self too far from home."

Clare and Johnny went pacing by. Peter turned his head to watch the sweep of the figure in violet chiffon. Her shoulders swayed as she moved; she held her chin like a bird in flight. He was now abstracted, puffing at his cigarette. Jenny's voice was crossing his thoughts.

"I'm hypnotized by the sea, Peter. It's like a song in my heart, rhythmic and never-ending. Look at the queer glow on the horizon!"

"You never know what you are going to encounter in this region. I've seen the Red Sea churned like a mass of foaming devils, and again as calm as a pane of glass. But it's not a patch on the China Sea, which is always an ugly sight."

They went down to their state room, and Jenny emerged slowly from her taffeta.

"You make me think of a white peony," said Peter, as her ruffled frock fell to her feet, "so pale, so dreamy, so fragile, as if each petal would drop off with a breath." He kissed her neck and behind her ears; he ran his fingers down to her slender wrists. "And your skin is as soft as a peony petal, and your eyes are as blue as the sea at noonday, and I love you very much!"

He caught her in his arms and Jenny's head drooped against his chest with fluttering eagerness. He kissed her throat and the blue lids of her eyes and then her mouth. The color stirred slowly in her creamy cheeks and her lips grew scarlet and full.

"Peter, I adore you," she whispered, dragging herself from a deep abyss to meet his love with her own pale ardour.

"But, my dear, you're so far away." Peter's lips were against her mouth. "It's like calling a ghost back to my embrace. I feel, when I possess you, that you're perched, on a distant mountain, looking on. Darling, wake up! Love me as I love you."

Jenny heard his words in a dream. Why did he bother to talk? It was true what he was saying—she was remote, alone on a mountain-top. She could see the bluish line of his half-closed eyes, and his hair damp on his brow. Why did she feel so soothed instead of the stinging pain of love? She was drifting now on calm waters. It seemed as if she were back in the duby on the Nile, and she felt that she must be swooning.

"Jenny! Jenny darling! Where are you? Oh, my love!" Peter was calling to her from a long distance, pain in his voice. She could hear the swish of the water outside the porthole. The light of the moon lay wan on the floor of their stateroom. Jenny's eyelids lifted. She was back from the distant places and was holding Peter in her arms. How she adored him! He was breathing gently and dropping off to sleep. She stroked his face like a mother with a child. "Jenny darling!" he murmured through sleepy lips. She lay in a trance, hour after hour, her eyes fixed on the pencil of moonlight that pierced the porthole.

Five days later the Marenia steamed into the wide, flat harbour of Bombay. The Apollo Bunder, gateway to India, rose magnificent against a fleckless stretch of blue. A heat haze shimmered over the waters, and small craft sped like white-winged birds to their destinations. Angela stood on the top deck and watched the city taking shape at the water's edge. Far to the left she could see a fringe of green—Malabar Hill, overhanging Bombay.

The ship heaved and turned to a peaceful anchorage. A tender came puffing importantly to her side. When the boat ceased throbbing at last, Angela's ears continued to drum, a faint echo that would not leave her.

The chief officer came strolling up to her side.

"Good-morning, Mrs. Wynant."

"Good-morning, Mr. Charlton."

"Well, it's India at last: I must confess I like it as little as any country I know."

"I like it, nevertheless."

"You should see it in a typhoon, with the water breaking against the Bunder."

but was popped surreptitiously into the sack for futher use.

Angela sauntered under her parasol, alive to the drama around her. When she had had enough, she took a car and drove to the Towers of Silence. There from the Hanging Gardens, she could see the roofs of Bombay, flat and white, stretching along the ocean front. The Marenia was a dot in the distance.

Angela thought of Lovat. What could she get him that would interest him at all? Something for his own adornment would please him most, although it was difficult to pick up suitable gifts for a smart young man-about-town. She sighed and noticed that Peter had walked into the lounge with Clare. He looked more bronzed than ever in his white rajah suit. She was radiant in cream-colored silk, a few shades lighter than her tanned skin. There was no sign of Jenny. They found a quiet corner under the palms and ordered drinks. Peter leaned over the table and talked hard to Clare, whose lashes fluttered as she listened to what he said. He was so absorbed that he had no eyes for anyone else in the lounge.

Johnny walked into the lounge and glanced in the direction of Peter and Clare. He seemed agrieved, and Angela, watching him, felt a little sympathetic as he stood uncertainly at the door. At last he came over to her table and drowned his pique in one cocktail after another. A flush crept up on his face as he kept his gaze on Clare, who was chatting in the most intimate way with Peter.

"Where's the lovely Mrs. Rumford today?" he enquired, like one who must torment himself.

"I haven't seen her at all, Angela told him. "I was the only one of our lot to come ashore on the tender."

"Perhaps she overslept—like me."

"Oh, cheer up, Johnny! Things are not so bad," Angela remarked, staring at his clouded face. Her attention wandered around the room. There was Macduff, staring into space, and high-hating the world with the aid of a stiff drink. And here came Jenny, straying into the room with her usual lost air. Her expression in a mirror as her glance rested on Peter and Clare was tinged with a flush of surprise, and she looked like a bird that has been winged. She moved straight over to the table, dragging a long white scarf behind her.

"Peter, I overslept. I'm sorry you didn't waken me."

He sprang to his feet. "You looked so exhausted, Jenny so I just let you sleep. You didn't mind my coming on without you, did you? I was going back to get you for luncheon."

"Not a scrap, Peter. Good-morning, Mrs. Langford."

"Hello, Mrs. Rumford! What a gorgeous shade of green you are wearing! It's just like turf, and suggests a lawn in this dusty part of the world."

Clare's voice was flattering, but Jenny shrank from the personal note. She regarded her as an absolute stranger.

"Well, I'm lunching with Johnny," said Clare, lightly. "I must be getting along." Then, turning to Peter, "You win."

"We'll have to discuss it again," he said, freezing his voice; but Jenny was inattentive.

Clare strolled over to the other table. "I'm famished for lunch," she announced, "I want some curry, Johnny. We're entering the area of starvation now."

"Sorry, I'm lunching here with others."

He was staring at her with a tragic air. Secretly Clare hoped that he wouldn't cut his throat or jump into the ocean. Stupid infant, she'd teach him a lesson. She leaned over and purred. "All right, Johnny; it doesn't matter a bit. I want to go back to the boat in any event, and look up Mr. Charlton. So long. Hope you enjoy your curry."

"Damn!" muttered Johnny, and let her go.

All afternoon, the Marenia lay peacefully at anchor, with most of her passengers ashore.

They were shopping and seeing the sights.

Joan had slept all day, and wakened just in time to have her cocktails before dinner. She was going to remain behind because she knew that Dick would not be leaving the boat.

Three hours later she was coming out of the bar when she saw him making for his stateroom. She knew that she was not supposed to go near his quarters; that nothing would offend him more. It was hard to forget the sizzling words he had tossed at her for breaking in on him the night she had been so drunk that she had tried to rip off her frock in the bar-room.

SPEAKING OF FLOODS by A. B. Chapin

THE RED CROSS ON THE JOB

Calamities such as the disastrous floods which have swept over the northeastern part of the United States are in the particular field in which the American Red Cross functions. Hardly had the first news of these flood disasters appeared in print before the Red Cross was on the job. It is an army of relief that is always mobilized.

The duties of the Red Cross in emergencies like this cover every means of relieving human suffering. It provides shelter for the homeless. It feeds the hungry. It furnishes medical care and nursing aid for the sick. It looks especially after the welfare of the child victims of disaster. It finds clothing for those who need it, financial help to tide over the crisis for those whose resources have been suddenly swept away. It fills a place into which no other agency quite fits, in a spirit of helpfulness as broad and as free as humanity itself.

To meet such calls, always sudden, the Red Cross must keep its resources for relief always liquid. When the need for its help covers such a broad area as the present need does, it has to draw heavily upon its stores of supplies and of cash, and to call upon all men and women of kindly spirit toward their fellow beings in distress to contribute in money what all cannot give in service. The Red Cross is a voluntary organization. Its work in the field is almost entirely done by unpaid workers. It has no subsidy or appropriation from the Government, but carries on entirely by the aid of contributions.

The Red Cross is calling now for contributions to meet the cry for aid from the flood-stricken regions. It is the part of good citizenship as well as of goodwill toward those who suffer, for everybody to respond to the call, and give all he can.

A THOUGHT FOR EASTER

From the beginning of time, men have hailed the coming of Spring as the resurrection of the earth from the death of Winter. Long before the Christian Era began, every religious cult celebrated in one way or another the returning season of growth and sunshine, with its promise of life beyond the grave. If the dead trees and grasses could so demonstrate immortality, why should man alone die to rise no more?

In a few days the whole Christian world will join in testifying, on Easter Sunday, to its faith that death is not the end, that life goes on forever, in new and unknown but more glorious forms, that we earth-bound plodders can no more imagine than can the maple tree of the wistaria, shedding its scarlet robe of Autumn under the killing breath of Winter's frosts, imagine the glory of the Spring-time garments of green which it will wear in its new life.

The belief that this is true, that there is a life beyond death, a life of release from toil and sorrow for such as truly believe and strive to live up to their belief has been the most powerful force in the history of our modern civilization. In this faith men have found a common tie

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Faragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

of mutual service for the common good. All of the concepts of duty, honor, self-denial, self-respect and loyalty upon which great nations have been founded derive from the faith which is the very root and heart of Christianity.

Let no one say that the faith of our fathers is outmoded, that it no longer has its old power to inspire our lives. We are living in troublous times, and those of little faith are crying aloud that the old truths have failed, the old beliefs are dead. But even as they scoff, Spring brings her perennial symbols of the eternal life. And this coming Easter Sunday millions upon millions of believers will meet to testify anew to the truth that their faith is a living faith, that it still rules the hearts of men.

MODERN WOMEN

by CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS

President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

When I was in Hawaii this winter a unique honor was accorded me which I want to share with every reader of this newspaper. I was the first woman for whom a demonstration of anti-aircraft guns was ever given by the 3rd Battalion, 64th Coast Artillery Regiment at Fort Shafter. Only Vice President Garner and Secretary of War Dern have been similarly honored in recent years. I wish every citizen of the United States could visit our Island Possessions and see how other Americans live.

There are more "firsts" for Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross than for almost any other woman in official life. She was the first woman Governor of Wyoming, the first woman director of the United States Mint, and the first woman to have her likeness on a medal struck by the Mint.

Novel occupations greet the eye in glancing over a list of those in which some of the 5,600,000 women wage earners are engaged in Great Britain. There are chimney sweeps, blacksmiths, piano tuners, farm bailiffs, stock brokers, and harbor officials, among others, according to Mrs. Oliver Strachey of the executive committee of the Women's Employment Federation of London. It is harder to find employment for women of education than for those who follow some of these odd callings, Mrs. Strachey says.

In Haapsalu, Estonia, knitting is an art, not a fad, and the women of that country do such remarkable work with their needles that they send exhibitions to foreign countries and many of their finest handiwork are owned by royalty. Recently there was an exhibition of their knitting in this country.

One young woman who is making good in a brand new type of job is Miss Doris Pringle who has been made a radiogram messenger on a transatlantic liner. She is a graduate of the University of Southern California, has been a stenographer, and is now making regular voyages.

How many people know that a woman in the national capital directs the Division of Press Intelligence for the United States Government. From Miss Sue White I learn that Miss Katherine C. Blackburn of Connecticut holds this important office and that her work with the Committee on Public Information during the World War must have inspired her to undertake the Administration job.

Dr. Florence May Morse of Los Angeles is the first woman in the United States to hold the

NEW FARM PROGRAM LAUNCHED IN TEXAS

College Station — Base figures used in the 1935 AAA program in Texas will be used in the 1936 farm program being set up under the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, according to a statement issued here by Jack Shelton, Vice Director and State Agent of the Extension Service.

In preparation for putting the program into effect the Extension Service staff spent two days studying the plan for the Southern Region as explained by R. H. Rogers, senior agricultural economist from the planning division of the AAA who flew here in company with A. L. Smith, former chairman of the Texas Cotton Allotment Board. Smith has been in Washington for the past two weeks helping to work out details of the new program as they affect Texas and the other Southern states.

Following the conference at College Station, Extension agents in the counties will be called together in group meetings at convenient points in their districts and district agents will lay the general plans for organization and soil conservation before them to take back to their farmers.

At meetings in the counties the county agricultural agents will explain the terms of the Act and the proposed organization to be set up under it. Election of committees of farmers to administer the work will be the next step.

The organization will begin with a "community" committee of three members who will represent approximately 500 farmers. Committeemen from all communities will constitute a county board from which a county committee will be elected to have special responsibility for administering the Act in the county.

"Every farmer in Texas will have an opportunity to hear the Act explained and to cooperate in making the new farm program a success," Shelton stated. "It is their program, it was passed by Congress at their urgent demand, we believe that they will want to understand it very fully and that they will want everybody else to understand it too, because the old saying that 'what you are not up on, you are apt to be down on' is still true."

Shelton further emphasized the fact that the old program and the organization that went with it are completely out; that this is an entirely new set-up; that it is a soil conservation and soil building program.

"The blowing sand in the air right now and the floods which have made thousands of people homeless in cities and towns as well as on farms give a rather dreadful emphasis to the fact that America is fifty years late with a soil conservation program, but better late than never, I think we will all agree."

BRUCE BARTON Says

WHOLE TRUTH UNKNOWN

I do not know just whom Thomas Love Peacock had in mind when he wrote the following lines:

... Not a scheme in agitation for the world's amelioration has a grain of common sense in it—except my own.

As I look back over the years I see a long procession of gentlemen and ladies, each of whom was absolutely sure that the whole truth had been privately committed to his or her care. In the paragon where I grew up were frequently entertained foreign missionaries. They were mostly hearty eaters, and they were on fire with zeal, impatience, and a considerable measure of intolerance. They knew exactly what ought to be done. The world should be saved on a big scale and immediately. This was the great call. Everything else was unimportant.

Following them came the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League. The only important menace to the country was drink. All others were subordinate. Anybody who was trying to build a hospital or contribute in any other way to social welfare was merely wasting time. Banish drink and, presto, all other human problems would automatically begin to solve themselves.

Then came the social settlement era. Ardent young men and women, following the inspiration of Jane Addams, left their pleasant dormitories to dwell among the poor. By this sort of sacrifice and service, and in no other way, could the spectre of poverty and social injustice be removed. The Single Taxers belonged to the same generation. Woman Suffrage was the next Promised Land. And finally came the War to End All Wars.

I write this record in no spirit of discouragement. I am a believer in progress and, I hope, a worker in the vineyard. Almost every reform movement has some truth, none has all. And progress is slowed up whenever zealots are sure that no other program "has a grain of common sense in it . . . except their own sense."

"LITTLE SAINTS" ANNOY

One day in Mexico City I had an hour's conversation with General Alvaro Obregon, who at that time was expected to succeed General Calles as President. Something was said about the difficulties between the church and the state, and the general said: "The common people of our country have a saying which contains much wisdom. They say: 'It is the little saints who annoy the Lord.'"

General Obregon did not succeed to the Presidency. An assassin's bullet cut him down only a few weeks later, but I always have remembered that remark, not as applying to the Mexican

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

"What's in a name?" asked the poet. "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But we moderns learn that names can be very, very important, and the swanky New York restaurants are finding the value of a name in the newest fad for Florentine dishes. Pick up almost any menu card in the better restaurants and you are sure to find Florentine this and Florentine that . . . chicken saute Florentine, mushroom Florentine, and even artichokes Florentine. And what do you suppose it means. Nothing less than spinach! Greens are vitally important in the diet at this time of the year when our resources of health are depleted from the long confinement of winter and the blustery weather of spring. And no vegetable is more essential to the spring diet than spinach. Fortunately the chefs know a great many nice ways to let us have our spinach rations pleasantly. And the Florentine dishes reveal all the magic of a new name. Try this Chicken Saute Florentine: One chicken, two and a half pounds; one-half pound spinach, one glass dry white wine, salt, pepper, one-quarter pound butter. When almost cooked add spinach that has been washed and thoroughly drained, also the white wine. Cook ten minutes, or until the spinach is done, and serve very hot.

"Don't expect too much of cosmetics," is the advice of a famous beauty expert. "Creams and lotions are designed to supplement, not substitute for, natural functions," she says. "If you are thin, nervous, not eating sufficient food, and a well-balanced diet including the necessary fuel foods as well as vegetables, don't expect a cream applied to your skin externally to take the place of nourishment from within. It may surprise you to find that eating more butter, sweet cream, cooked cereals, meat and fish, milk and eggs will not only help you to gain weight but will also make an improvement in your skin. Look to your health first."

Greeting cards especially designed for the various members of the family circle are widely in vogue this Easter. They range from formal missives to sprightly booklets illustrated with casual line-drawings. Husband and Wife, Father and Mother, Aunt and Uncle, Brother and Sister, all have their special cards, including not only designs for the adult sender, but also designs of juvenile appeal, for the youngsters to send Daddy and Mummy.

A handy and quickly prepared parsley garnishing may be kept in store and used when there is no time for more elaborate garnishes. Take a handful of clean fresh parsley and place it in a moderate oven for a short time. Then rub between the hands till it powders and store it in an airtight glass jar. It will keep its bright color for some time and always be ready for use.

Patent leather is going to be very popular this year. You'll be wearing it on your head, on your feet and even on suits and dresses. And if you rub this shiny leather with a clean cloth dipped in glycerine occasionally, it will keep it from drying and cracking.

Describing the new love technique of college students, a university professor tells the following story: "There was a campus couple down at our school who were just as much in love as any one, only they didn't know it. They were trying to be blasé about it. The boy sent a note to the girl. 'Did I ask you to marry me last night?' She replied, 'I told someone I'd marry them, was it you?'"

Outbreak of Flu Among Baby Chicks is Alarming to Poultry Raisers

A very serious outbreak of Infectious Bronchitis, or commonly called "Flu," is causing severe losses among baby chicks in the Winters territory, according to reports from J. M. Williams, Vocational teacher. "If the death rate continues as it has the past two weeks, the number of chicks raised this spring will be less than half the usual number," continues Williams. The mortality among chicks is high. In some cases, every bird may die before the disease can be checked. Older fowls are less apt to succumb from the attack and will usually recover without much loss if proper treatment is administered. The disease is highly contagious to all ages.

The principle symptom in affected birds is a rattling in the throat, accompanied by wheezing and gasping for breath. The gasping is caused by an obstruction in the windpipe, which is formed from canker or a blood clot. Smaller birds may die within six or eight hours after the first symptoms are noticed while mature fowls may live a week or even ten days.

The following treatment is recommended by Dr. R. C. Dunn, head of the department of veterinary medicine, A. & M. College: Obtain a respiratory antiseptic from your druggist, containing the following ingredients: Formalin, 1 part; Glycerin, 2 parts; and water, 7 parts. Apply this in your house three or four times a day in the case of chicks and twice a day with mature fowls. Do not use any medication in the feed. The birds may refuse to eat and matters made worse. Comfortable quarters should be provided and very strict sanitation practiced. All drinking and feeding utensils should be thoroughly disinfected each day. Clean drinking water should be placed in wooden or earthen vessels and made antiseptic by adding one-third teaspoon of Permanganate of Potash to each gallon. Sour milk should be given to regulate the action of the bowels and keep them open. All affected birds should be isolated as soon as symptoms appear.

All efforts should be put forth to prevent the disease if possible. Poultry houses must be disinfected, all droppings destroyed, and the top soil around the yards turned under. The germ which causes the disease may live for years in the soil. Therefore the only means of preventing your chickens from taking Influenza is to practice strict sanitation and keep birds in comfortable quarters.

Visitors to Texas during the 1936 Centennial celebrations will be exempt for a period of 90 days from the state's new laws, providing that motor car drivers must be licensed.

Recipes And Menus

Denton, April 1. — Cheese as well as fish comes into prominence in the Denton season.

Certainly we cannot overlook a food which can be bought in such a variety of flavors and used in as many different ways, not to mention that it has the food protein and mineral elements of milk in concentrated form. Only a few suggestions for the use of this popular food can be given here.

Cheese on Soups: Press any moist, yellow cheese through a coarse wire sieve. It comes out in tiny cylinders. Sprinkle a tablespoonful on top of a bowl of hot cream or vegetable soup to add to its appearance and taste. Any remaining cylinders may be kept indefinitely in a closed jar in the refrigerator and may be used to top dishes.

Creamed Cheese Cubes on Toast: Cut pimento or plain cheese in cubes and drop into thick cream sauce and serve on thin slices of hot toast. Do not let the sauce boil after the cheese is added.

Asparagus Croquettes: 1 medium can asparagus, 1 C thick white sauce, 1 C cracker crumbs, 1-4 pound grated American cheese, 1 egg. Drain asparagus (save liquid for soup.) Chop fine and mix with 1 cup thick white sauce slightly seasoned with nutmeg. Add the cracker crumbs and cheese. Mix and shape into small croquettes. Dip each in cracker crumbs, then egg, and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat until a golden brown. Remove and drain on brown paper. Serve garnished with parsley and redpepper rings.

Cheese With Rice and Mushrooms: 1 C rice, 7 oz. cheese, 1 medium can mushrooms, 3 T fat, 1 T flour, milk, 1 t. brown sauce, salt. Cook rice in briskly boiling salted water until done. Drain in a sieve, let cold water run through it, then put in top of double boiler to keep hot until ready to use. Place a round piece of cheese in a double boiler to heat through. Drain

A full stomach does not appease a hungry soul.

You can't get away with it, with God!

The mushrooms and brown in butter. Add flour and blend well. Add cold milk until it boils to a heavy creamy consistency. Add the brown sauce to color and salt to taste. Arrange the dry, hot rice in a dish, turn out the round slightly melted cheese on top, and pour the mushroom sauce over all.

Tomato-Cheese Souffle: 3 T butter, 4 T flour, 2-3 c. condensed tomato soup, 1 c. cubes of American cheese, 3 eggs, 1-4 t. salt, 1-8 t. pepper, 1-3 c. milk. Melt butter, add flour and stir well. Add tomato soup and milk and stir until smooth. Add the cheese cut in pieces and cook over hot water until cheese is melted. Cool and add the beaten egg yolks, salt, and pepper. Fold in gently the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven at 325 F. until a silver knife comes out clean. Serve at once.

For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lufe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Theford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, April 1.—Maybe there wasn't any politics in Senator Byrd's resolution for a Senate Committee to investigate the New Deal and find out how many of its agencies can be dispensed with—and then, again, maybe there was. Senator Byrd of Virginia, though a Democrat, has been one of the New Deal's most vigorous critics. But if he had any political motive in mind the President proved himself just as good a politician, by appointing his own committee to make its own investigation and to cooperate with the Senate Committee.

At any rate, the New Deal is going to be investigated. The three men named by the President, Louis Brownlow, Charles E. Merriam and Luther H. Gulick, all have fine records of unselfish public service, though none of them has ever been active in politics. Not one of them has ever done anything to suggest that he could be influenced by political considerations to distort or suppress the truth. It seems probable, therefore, that before long, probably before election, the most thorough study yet made of the governmental set-up in Washington will be ready for public inspection.

Floods and Forecasts

The recent floods have played strongly into the hands of the advocates of public works. Look for a large number of projects for flood control, dams, reservoirs, and dikes throughout the devastated regions.

The heavy rainfalls, coming on the heels of the severest Winter in many years, have revived Governmental interest in the weather. It has just been disclosed that the Federal Weather Bureau has been for a long time exploring the possibilities of a long-range weather forecast, and believes it is getting close to a workable method of foretelling whole seasons, months ahead.

It is easy to imagine how valuable it would have been to everybody if the recent severe Winter and this Spring's heavy rainfalls, or last Summer's drought, could have been predicted months in advance.

While the Weather Bureau doesn't hold out any hope of being able to begin long-range weather forecasting for some years yet, nevertheless, it is issuing occasional bulletins and reports on the subject. Anyone who wishes to study the efforts that are being made can receive these bulletins free.

Lobby Investigation

Nobody has yet figured out any political angle on the flood situation. It is seemingly about the only thing in Washington that has no political angle at this time. The activities of the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee, of which Senator Black is chairman, is searching the telegraphic files of more than 1,100 individuals and corporations in the hunt for evidence against lobbying, is beginning to have decided political reactions.

Nobody knows exactly what the Committee has uncovered, since only one or two of the telegrams, which it has had copied, have been made public.

There is a good deal of guessing going on, and many members are receiving letters from back home expressing indignation, if not alarm, over this invasion of what some of the home boys have heretofore regarded as confidential communications.

Nobody is talking much in public about the dissension inside of the Ways and Means Committee over the proposed new tax bill. It is an open secret, however, that there are very sharp differences of opinion as to what ought to be done in the matter of taxing corporate reserves, differences which are far from being confined to party lines.

It looks now as if the House Committee would hold a perfunctory hearing, introduce a perfunctory bill and leave the real job of examining the whole situation and drafting the final legislation up to the Senate Finance Committee.

Those WPA Charges

With the approach of a Presidential campaign criticism of the Administration, then in power, naturally becomes more vigorous. The alleged political activities of W. P. A. administrators, brought into the limelight by the charges of Senator Holt, of West Virginia, is one of the attacks.

Senator Holt accused the W. P. A. in his home state of all sorts of political scoundgery, a charge promptly denied by his colleague from W. Virginia, Senator Matthew D. Neely, as well as by the W. P. A. administra-

SCHOOL DISTRICTS TO VOTE ON BONDS

Qualified voters of the consolidated, Harmony, Crews and Content common school districts will determine whether $15,000 in bonds will be issued for construction and equipment of a school building in an election called for April 11 by Paul Trimmier, Runnels County Judge. The three former school districts recently voted approval for consolidation.
