Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

The Winters High School Band and Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Robert Gans, climaxed a most successful year Thursday night (May 14) with their annual spring concert in the High School auditorium.

This department of Winters High School has experienced a complete and satisfying year, returning to Winters from several contests this year with many high honors and awards. The band's performances have attracted the attention of people all over this section of the state. And Winters has received much valuable publicity because of the band's excellence.

Just as important, however, is the fact that not only do band members shine on the drill field and in musical competition; their conduct away from home has been exemplary and has reflected the type of training they have been receiving. These little reports filter back to the band members' home town and should be received with a great deal of pride.

There is promise of a continuance of the quality of the Winters band, too. Director Gans has been training future band members in the lower grades, and says that although there are about 70 members of the band this year, in a couple of years musicians coming up from the lower grades should swell the ranks to about 100.

It looks as if the mustache growing to publicize the Rodeo in June is gaining popularity day after day. Several men have joined the ranks of the foliage growers this week, and there is a promise of more and more to come.

The Western Committee of the Round-Up Association, which produces the rodeo, has set aside a goodly amount to be used for prizes in the contest. B. G. Owens, chairman of that committee, said there will be three places awarded in the contest. The committee pointed out that full beards would be happily accepted as entries, and that carefully cultivated mustaches are especially encouraged.

We'd like to see the contest take on big proportions, because there are a lot of publicity possibilities connected with such an idea. And leave us face the facts: the more publicity the rodeo gathers unto itself, the more successful it will be.

We decided to join the mustache growers, so left the upper lip unshaven for a couple of days to see if we could do it. Then we shaved it off to get an even start with some of the other entrants—and was almost excommunicated by some of the growers.

There are no set rules on how the facial decorations should be trimmed or otherwise cultivated. The rodeo producers are just encouraging the contest, and some most desirable prizes will be offered. So if you have a wisp of mustache or beard, you might just win a nice prize come rodeo time.

See you at the razor blade counter right after the Rodeo in June.

Think we've got this lawn mowing business down to a fine art. Waited until the grass was ankle deep before rolling the mower out of the garage (after we'd used up every excuse we could think of to put off the execution as long as possible.) Then fate smiled again, because a gas line was broken, and had to be repaired, and the mower tuned up—all of which took several days—fortunately—and offered another reprieve.

When we picked up the mower after it had been repaired, we timed the event exactly. Got about half the yard mowed, and ran out of gas. When we came to town under orders to get more gasoline, happily ran into some friends who suggested a coffee break, and by the time we had returned to refuel the monster, the sun was down.

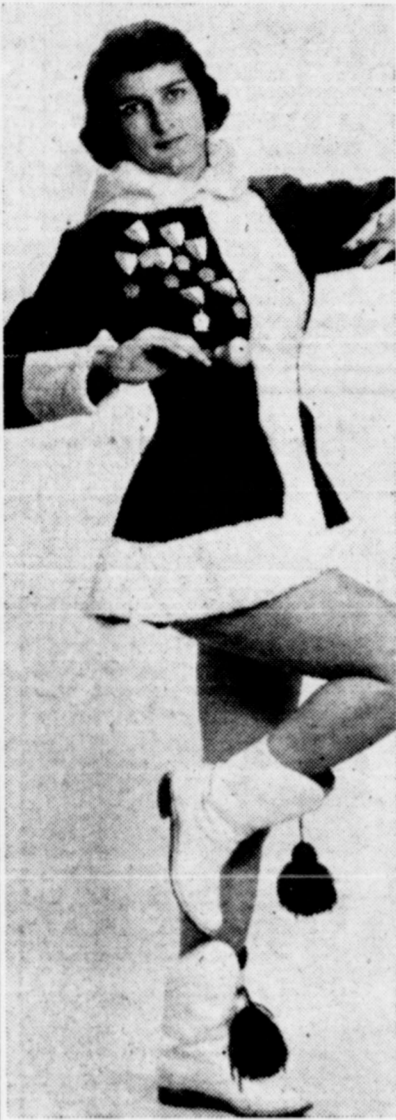

Then a convenient shower and a hurried trip out of town one evening prolonged the agony a while longer.

Not exactly lazy; we just don't like to interfere with nature's growing processes.

Some of these days, when it quits showering at the right time, we'll finish the other half of the yard—if we can find the mower in the fast growing grass (on which we have spread a rapidly-acting fertilizer.)

Band Twirlers and Officers Named At Tuesday Meeting

By BILLY LYNN LITTLE

A female band captain? Never! They said it couldn't be done—and like a famous cigarette manufacturer, the Blizzard Band proved it could, as they elected Ernestine Scott Band captain for the coming school year.

Other officers elected Tuesday were David Smith, band lieutenant, Cecile Nitsch, band sergeant, and Billy Lynn Little, band historian.

Miss Scott has sat second chair in the clarinet section this year. She is co-editor of the Annual, and president of the FHA. She has been in the band since she was in the fifth grade.

Smith, who will be a junior, plays baritone, and also started in the fifth grade.

Miss Nitsch is the junior class representative to next year's student council, assistant business manager of the annual, and has served as secretary of her sophomore class this year.

Little will be serving his fourth year as historian.

These officers, along with twirlers, were to be presented at the annual spring concert held Thursday night at the high school auditorium.

Next year's twirling staff will be headed by drum major, Nancy Roberts, and feature twirler, Nellie Lacy.

Assistant drum major will be Nancy Benson, and Dianne Buckner is to be rank corporal.

New twirlers are Pamela Bedford and Lynann Kruse. Alternate twirlers will be Tamala Gans, and Bobby Howard.

Gans also appointed librarians for next year. They are Sue Lindsey, Barbara Gerhart, and Pat Wood.

The band elected next year's sweetheart at the Tuesday meeting. All senior girls were in contention, the outcome is being kept a secret, and the winner will be announced at a football game next fall.

State Capitol Highlights:

Legislators Will Have Only Short Breather Before Special Session

By VERN SANFORD

Senators and Representatives will have only a brief breather between regular and special sessions of the Legislature. Gov. Price Daniel announced that lawmakers would convene again, the first of next week.

Big question around the Capitol now is how many special sessions will be needed to solve the state's tax problem.

Since the lawmakers failed, during their 120-day regular session, to erase the $65,000,000 deficit and balance the budget for 1960-61, that chore will be number one on their agenda. And most observers think it will take at least two, and maybe more, 30-day special sessions to iron things out.

Only matters specifically offered by the Governor may be considered during a special session of the Legislature, and all legislation started during the regular session must start over, practically from scratch. Revenue-raising proposals will have to be introduced again in the House, heard in committee, etc., before they can go to the Senate.

year or two—under a House-passed bill.
Bill would grant a teacher's certificate good for one year to any bachelor's degree holder, whether he had had teacher training or not. Certificates could be renewed twice. After that, the applicant would have to take 12 semester hours of teacher education.

Miss Maud Isaacks of El Paso, herself a teacher for many years, sponsored the bill. Professional educators were divided on the merits of the plan.
Some said it would increase qualified personnel; others, that it would attract to Texas the misfits and ne'er-do-wells in "all the freshwater colleges" in the nation.

PLOUGHED UNDER
In the final days of a session, there usually isn't time to revive a bill that gets pushed aside. Among the bills whose setbacks were interpreted as death for this year are these:

Milk import regulations, sponsored by Sen. Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo. House supporters could not muster the two-thirds majority to take the bill out of order. Proponents said the restriction on milk brought across the state line was needed for health reasons. Opponents called it a trade barrier that would raise the price of milk.

Broadening the common purchaser oil law, by Sen. Hazlewood. Senate refused to take up the bill which would require pipelines to provide connections to new fields or transport the oil to market by truck.

Ban on Sunday auto sales, by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas. It passed Senate, but House refused twice to take it up.
Ban on nudist camps, by Rep. James Truman of Gober. Senate passed, but House refused to call it out of committee. Committee had referred it to the Attorney General who said it would be legal.

HIGHWAY ZONING
Both houses moved quickly toward passage of a bill to protect smaller roads from heavier truck loads.

Governor Daniel asked for such regulation when he signed the bill to increase permitted truck loads from 58,420 to 72,000 pounds.

Proposed bill would allow the State Highway Department to zone state highways and farm roads for lighter truck loads and gives same authority to County Commissioners for county roads.

INSURANCE QUESTION MARKS
Whether the State Board of Insurance should operate full-time or part-time was an issue expected to carry over into the special session.

House made its preference clear by putting full-time salaries in the House appropriations bill and by passing a bill specifically providing for a full-time Board.

Senate version of the appropriation bill provided for what would amount to about one-third time salaries ($5,000 a year) for Insurance Board members. Many senators opposed a full-time Board in addition to a full-time Commissioner when the Department was re-organized two years ago. Since then, they have been angered because the Board retained William A. Harrison as Commissioner after the Senate had disapproved him.

Since no conference committee was appointed to adjust differences between the two houses' appropriation bills, it was obvious the insurance hassle could not be resolved in the regular session.

TOURIST BILL PASSES
The much discussed and battered bill to permit the state of Texas to advertise its tourist advantages finally was approved by both houses of the Legislature before adjournment of the regular session.

As passed, the bill puts into effect the constitutional amendment approved by a close margin by the voters at the election last November. It differs in one important respect, however. It does not provide that industries shall match state funds—which was the sales pitch that was used to effect passage of the amendment by Texas voters.

Designated to handle the program is the Governor, the Chairman of the State Highway Commission, and the Chairman of the

In the Runnels Soil Conservation district, level closed end terraces are a valuable asset to conservation farming. The primary purpose of terraces in this area is to hold the water on the land until it has been absorbed by the soil.

The photograph above shows some newly constructed level ridge type terraces used in the Runnels Soil Conservation district. There were 488 miles of these terraces constructed in the District last year.

The success of terracing depends primarily on maintenance and management. Neglect of the ter-aces and result in erosion of the field. In keeping terraces in repair, the most important operation is proper plowing. All farming operations should be with and not across the terraces.

Terraces constructed from the back side are gaining favor with many farmers in the Runnels Soil Conservation district. This type of terrace is built by taking all the soil from the lower side to construct the ridge. This allows a better distribution of water and when properly constructed, 50 to 70 feet is leveled on the lower side of the ridge.

With Spring Comes Tornado Danger

"For most Texans, no time of the year is quite as pleasant as spring. It is of small wonder, when you consider the beauty of Bluebonnets, Dogwood and hundreds of other typical Texas flora.

"But, along with these signs of spring," J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, says, "we can be quickly distracted by other signs of spring—particularly tornadoes.

"Because this is the time of year when these violent and spectacular storms of nature are most likely to visit us."

Musick pointed out that there isn't really much a person can do to insure himself of complete safety when a tornado is around, unless he happens to be near a cave or underground excavation.

But the safety expert did list a few precautions a person might take that will lessen the danger or serious injury when a storm is in the area, they are:

1. If in open country, move at right angles to the tornado's path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

2. The southwest corner of the lowest floor, or basement, offers the greatest safety at home. People living in brick or stone houses should seek other shelter, preferably in a storm cellar or the basement of a frame house. If time permits, electricity and fuel lines should be shut off.

3. If at school or in an office building of steel reinforced construction, stay inside, away from windows, near an inside wall on a lower floor.

4. Businesses and industrial plants should make advance preparation in case a tornado strikes. Employees should know where they can go for the greatest protection.

5. KEEP CALM! It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone who showed me so much kindness while I was in the hospital—Dr. Griffin, the nurses, Spill's Ambulance drivers, and all who helped in so many ways. I've enjoyed, so much, the flowers, each card sent me, and each visitor. Each has warmed my heart and again made me thankful for friends and neighbors. Mrs. Odas Claxton 1tp

Health Letter

You're 16, and just when you wanted to look your best you break out with a new crop of pimples. Discouraging? Yes, but not a permanent tragedy.

In nine of ten cases acne will disappear without treatment by your mid-20's. But why wait, when you can do something about it now?

The most important thing is to wash your face with soap and warm water at least three times daily. Why? Because at your age oil glands are often over active and tend to clog pores. Result: Pimples and blackheads.

So it's just common sense to wash often to rid your skin of excess oil and dirt and to help remove the plugs. Cosmetic cleaning creams, incidentally, are not nearly as effective as soap and water. In fact, some of them make acne worse by plugging up already clogged pores.

Your trouble might be particular items of food. So unless you are sure they do not cause flare ups, you physician will probably suggest that you watch out for: Chocolate in any form such as candy, cookies, cake, ice cream sodas, sauces, cola drinks. Instead, stick to vanilla or fruit flavored sodas and soft drinks, white cakes and cookies.

Nuts, especially peanuts and peanut butter, are capable of causing skin eruptions. Sharp cheeses won't help your acne either, but cream or cottage cheese are usually okay.

Shellfish or salt water fish, and melons can be aggravating to acne.

Woolen clothing next to bare skin might cause your neck or back to break out. If so, the solution is simple—don't wear wool except as an outer garment.

The bromides in cold pills, nerve medicines and sedatives cause skin difficulties for some people. So can iodine in cough syrups and table salt.

Following the rules of good health—getting plenty of exercise and sleep, eating nutritious meals, and drinking plenty of water—will help you get rid of unsightly acne.

Don't expect the blemishes to disappear overnight. If you follow these suggestions for three or four months and your acne hasn't improved, your family physician, or a specialist he will recommend, will probably prescribe internal and external medicines for your particular case.

So between you and your doctor, you have a much better than even chance of having a clean, clear complexion in time for the first big dance of the new school year next fall. It's well worth working for.

"Fort Massacre"

The first production of the new Walter Mirisch Company, "Fort Massacre," a CinemaScope-and-color spectacular of Indian wars in the 1870s starring Joel McCrea, will be the next attraction at the State Theatre through United Artists release. Joseph Newman directed this based-on-fact story of a U. S. Cavalry "lost patrol" in the great Southwest Desert.

The film was made on location in New Mexico in the desert and canyon country some 30 miles north of Gallup.

There is no "Fort Massacre" in America's western history, although much of the picture is based on an actual incident. The name was appended to an abandoned old Piute Indian cliff dwelling carved out of a mountainside a century ago. Here the remnants of the cavalry patrol fight their last bitter battle against the Apaches.

"From the Earth to the Moon"

Today's headlines flashing the news of rockets-to-the-moon are reflected on the screen in one of the timeliest motion pictures of this generation. The front page film, "From the Earth to the Moon," based on Jules Verne's spectacular forecast, arrives Saturday only at the State Theatre. Joseph Cotten, George Sanders, Debra Paget and Don Dubbins are starred.

Verne's story, regarded as sheer fantasy in the Victorian era, deals with the launching and spaceflight of an enormous projectile. Rivalry between the craft's inventor, Cotten, and George Sanders, financier, brings a threat of disaster to the enterprise. Suspenseful romantic twist to the action is furnished by Miss Paget, seen as a stowaway on the fabulous moon-missile.

"The Journey"

"The Journey" reunites Deborah Kerr and Yull Brynner, the stars of "The King and I," in a drama and love story taking place in 1956 near the end of the unsuccessful Hungarian revolt.

An Alby Picture for MGM in Metrocolor, filmed entirely on locations in Vienna near the Hungarian border, the picture presents a stirring emotional drama of persons involved in the courageous anti-Communist fight and depicts the fears, hopes and problems of a busload of neutral citizens seeking to escape from Hungary. It is also the story of one of these neutrals, a beautiful Englishwoman, and her relationship with the arrogant and unpredictable Russian officer who holds the fate of the travelers in his hands.

Robert Morley and E. G. Marshall play co-starring roles, with the supporting cast featuring Kurt Kasznar, David Kossoff and Marie Daems, and with Jason Robards, Jr., making his film debut. Based on a screen play by George Tabori, "The Journey" was produced and directed by Anatole Litvak.

"Farewell to Arms"

David O. Selznick's eagerly-awaited CinemaScope, De Luxe Color production of Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," a Twentieth Century-Fox release which will premiere Thursday and Friday at the State Theatre, tells the story of the romance of an American ambulance driver and a beautiful English nurse against the backdrop of war in the Italian Alps. The monumental film presentation stars Rock Hudson, Jennifer Jones and Vittorio De Sica and includes a feature and supporting cast of international talent.

Combining the proven ability of Director Charles Vidor and tempered with the genius of Producer Selznick, this Hemingway story of the difficult love of Lieutenant Frederic Henry (Rock Hudson), American serving in the Italian Ambulance Corps, and Nurse Catherine Barkley (Jennifer Jones), an English woman, has retained all of the scope and the power of the book, often called the best war novel of contemporary writing.

Moving against the authentic backdrop of Hemingway's beloved Italian Alps and the beautiful plain cities of Northern Italy, where the famous author himself saw service during the First World War, the film will show how these two young lovers strive to find a place for their love in the seething world around them.

Considering the details that have been packed into this epic film by Mr. Selznick and the blending of these top stars, thousands of extras and the breathtaking beauty of Italy, "A Farewell to Arms" seems sure to be considered one of the great pictures of all time.

"Looking for Danger"

Huntz Hall and the Bowery Boys, a madcap combination that is always good for plenty of laughs and side-splitting action, kick over the fun traces again in their latest comedy, Allied Artists' "Looking for Danger," that opens Saturday at the Fiesta theatre.

Allies.

The boys get into one hilarious scrape after another as they infiltrate the Nazi lines, are chased by a major portion of Field Marshal Rommel's forces and eventually are captured in the sultan's palace and marked for execution. Everything turns out all right, of course, when the remainder of the Bowery Boys hear of their comrades' predicament and blaze to the rescue.

Bobcat With Five Kittens Taken

A bobcat with five unborn kittens was killed in the hills west of Austin, March 17, according to the Director of Wildlife Restoration, Game and Fish Commission. The servation Service technician.

Many conservation practices are being carried out in the Runnels Soil Conservation District to maintain fertility and prevent soil erosion. Some of these practices are: Contour farming, Crop residue utilization, stubble mulching, terracing, cover cropping, waterway development, diversion construction, strip cropping, crop rotation, pasture planting and range re-seeding.

bers about two, although three and four in a litter is not uncommon.

Van Lohman, an old trapper for 40 years, killed the cat on the Schultz Ranch at the head of Cypress Creek near Lake Travis. This is not the first time such a large litter has been reported in Texas; however, five in one litter is very, very rare in any state.

A bobcat with six unborn kittens was reported killed in Refugio County on August 1, 1946. Another female, which was reported to have killed thirty lambs between April 19 and May 2, 1944, was reported trapped in Culberson County. This cat had been suckling five kittens, all of which were captured later. Other states have reported finding litters of five or more.

In His IMAGE

How small man seems, compared to a mountain or even a tree. And yet, how great is his potential! Man can fashion a tree into a chair, a boat, or a house. And he can, if he wants, tunnel through a mountain.

Man has been created in God's own image; he has been given dominion over the earth and over all other creatures on the earth. Among the many gifts which God has given to man are intelligence, initiative and will power. But the use of these gifts must be motivated by the love of God if man is to be rewarded with peace and happiness.

Down through the ages, the Church has been teaching man that the misuse of intelligence and power brings on sin and self-destruction, while love-motivated use of God's gifts brings joy, peace of mind and salvation.

Church attendance, prayer and worship will help anyone understand the proper relationship between God and man.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

EMERGENCY TILLAGE

Emergency tillage is used to provide protection to cropland subject to severe wind erosion when planned conservation measures are inadequate.

Some of the equipment being used for emergency tillage in the Runnels Soil Conservation District is chiseling and rotary hoe.

Glen Green, local Soil Conservation Service technician says that for emergency tillage to be effective, the following conditions must exist: clod forming soil must be within reach of the equipment being used or sufficient moisture be present to cause clods to form. If one of the above conditions does not exist, then listing should be done.

Emergency tillage operations should generally be at right angles to the prevailing winds. Tillage should be done at speeds of 2 to 4 miles per hour.

Work Going On At Cape Canaveral Very Important and Impressive

Babson Park, Mass. My last few days in Florida were spent at Cape Canaveral, which is located on the East Coast of Florida some 150 miles south of Jacksonville. From here the tests are being made of the various intercontinental missiles, by which World War III, if it ever comes, will be fought. I understand there are three other "proving grounds,"—in Alabama, in Arizona, and on the Pacific Coast.

Leading Corporations Producing Missiles

These missiles are contracted for by the Department of Defense with various important corporations such as the Douglas Aircraft Company which builds the "Thor," the Northrop Aircraft company which makes the "Snark," the Martin Company which builds the "Titan" and "Vanguard," General Dynamics' Convair division which constructs the "Atlas," Boeing Aircraft which is building the "Bomarc," and the Chrysler Corporation which makes the "Jupiter." These companies compete for the best engineers, metallurgists, and other scientists. Such specialists are not under the bureaucratic restrictions of government workers, hence can be paid higher salaries. The work is under the able direction of General Donald N. Yates.

I was much impressed with what I saw, including the launching of three of these missiles. They vary in length from twenty-five to sixty-five feet, each divided into three stages, and cost from $1 million to $1.5 million each. Of the three launched while I was there a section of one failed to ignite, and only the first section went into the air. A second missile blew up into a thousand pieces. But the third was successfully launched and traveled 1500 miles, striking the ocean very close to its target.

Tracking These Great Missiles While at Cape Canaveral, I was briefed, together with the Honorable Paul H. Spaak, Secretary

General of NATO, by some of the more important officers on how these missiles are tracked. (I was warned not to ask any questions.) The proving course was between Cape Canaveral and Ascension Island off the West Coast of Africa, which I saw on my trip last year. The course covers several islands in the Atlantic, between which are stationed U. S. ships. Thus, the missile is constantly in sight, so that not only can its speed be observed, but the nose cone can be located when it comes to the end of its arc. Within these cones are important data and the intricate machines which process such data and log the results. I am sure we will be able to build and put into production intercontinental missiles that will go over 1500 miles and hit a target with an accuracy of within one mile. They will be shipped to launching stations in Italy, France, England, Norway, and other nations, with the purpose of annihilating enemy cities within thirty minutes after the first nuclear missile or bomb fired at the U. S.

Netting Ban Again Faces Game Group

The question of the closing of Galveston and Trinity Bays to all netters will come up again Friday, April 24, at the regular quarterly meeting of the Game and Fish Commission, it has been announced by the executive secretary.

An order was issued last fall closing all of the bay waters to commercial netters. Commercial fishermen obtained an injunction to prevent its enforcement on technical grounds.

When the question comes up again Friday it is expected there will be a number of both commercial and sports fishermen in Austin to testify for or against the order.

The waters had been closed after sports fishermen protested the use of seines and nets. The Commission has the authority to regulate these waters.

Chevy pickup pulls through "bottomless" pastures to keep stock fed!

At the Hall Bros. Dairy Farm, Montgomery, Ala., they say this 4-wheel drive Chevy will go anywhere to keep stock fed—even through hub-deep muck that makes it a fight all the way. And yet after a full year of it—no mechanical trouble of any kind!

That Chevy pickup may not win any beauty awards (till it's cleaned up). But it's sure walking off with the top prize for dependability. And that's standard Chevrolet procedure. Put a Chevy truck to work and it keeps on working until you say quit. Not before. We aren't claiming that every Chevrolet truck is turning out to be a miracle-worker and averaging 100,000 miles before a valve job. (Even though some are going 150,000!) You're sure to find, however, that you can't buy more truck dependability at any price. And that's borne out by the fact that more truck owners put their faith, and their payloads, in Chevrolets than in any other make. Take your load and schedule figures to your Chevrolet dealer. He'll specify the best way to handle both and save in the bargain.

Last week I started to write a column about the various natural baits. By the time I had finished with the earthworm I had run out of space. Must have been a long worm.

But I'll say one thing—it's difficult to say too much about the worm as a fish bait. Properly used, it will lure fish—not only bream, for which it is commonly employed as an enticement—but catfish, bass, and most other fresh water varieties.

I made a guess that the minnow was the second most popular natural bait.

As with earthworms, the minnow runs into hundreds of varieties, and fish will eat them all. Generally speaking, fish like best the bait that's native to the area, which means that the spottail minnow is the Texas favorite.

In the spring it's no trick to catch spottails in a net or trap. They are near the surface and easily seen in clear water. They like swift water with a rocky or sandy bottom, for the spawning season.

Let me remind you now, however, that there are all kinds of local laws about capturing and transporting Texas minnows. So check with your game warden if you propose to take a large quantity and move them across county lines.

In off seasons—that is, when the minnows are deep and can't be readily taken, you save time by buying Mexican, Oklahoma and Minnesota minnows from the bait shops.

Some fishermen don't like these minnows, for one reason or another, but my experience is that fish will strike them all, or any of them. Frankly, I don't think that when a fish is hungry, he stops to look up a minnow's pedigree.

To catch minnows, the seine is an ancient and still effective article, the use of which is too familiar to be explained here.

A more recent tool is the drop, or umbrella type net, which is handy because one man can use it. I've seen commercial baitmen take thousands of spottails out of streams with this kind of net. There are various kinds of minnow traps. All are effective when placed in a good spot where minnows live, especially when baited with cracker crumbs. When you fail to catch minnows by these methods, there's always the tackle and bait shop.

Wherever you get your minnows, the big problem is to keep them alive and transport them to your favorite fishing hole. That may be many miles from where you live.

In cold weather, this is not much of a problem. But when the hot summer sun boils down, your minnows will start to turn belly up if not handled properly.

Your best bet is to use the so-called "porous" bucket. It allows a certain amount of breathing, or aeration, in the water. Keep the top on. Minnows will live a long time in this kind of bucket. In case of doubt, drop in a few ice cubes. They give off oxygen as they melt.

One caution about porous buckets. Never dip one into the water. If you do, it will lose its breathing ability. From then on, you might as well haul your minnows in a lard can.

When you select your minnows keep in mind the kind of fish you will seek on the current trip. It goes without saying that big minnows are for big fish. Small minnows are for small fish.

If you are after crappie you want minnows about two inches long or less. If bass is your game—white or black—the minnow might be between two and three inches long. If you're going to bait a trotline with minnows, the biggest ones you can get are the best.

I use a medium-sized minnow. The little fish can't take a big minnow, but a big fish will take a smaller minnow. Using a two-inch bait, you stand a chance to get anything that comes your way.

Now, how do you hook your minnow?

Hold a minnow in your left hand bottom side up. Take the hook in your right hand. Insert the hook just where the gills come together and pull upward and outward, so that the point of the hook emerges between and forward of the minnow's eyes, missing the middle of the head.

For a long time, I hooked minnows through the back. That is, behind the dorsal fin and just deep enough to miss the backbone. The minnow stays alive that way. He is free to swim around if you give him some latitude in the way you rig up.

But, I have reached to conclusion that the best way to hook a minnow is through the lips. This method permits you to give the minnow a more natural action when you lift your rod. The minnow moves forward, head first, when pulled in. Such a method also permits the minnow to stay alive for a long time.

Artificial lure manufacturers strive to get the action of a wounded minnow. But here you have the real thing. You're offering the fish a real, live, wounded minnow.

You wounded him when you strung him on the hook. This kind of bait is about the most attractive of all to a fish.

Absence of weight will give the minnow more freedom to be natural. It will increase his charms to the fish. If you use a lead weight, use a small one and place it two or three feet above the hook.

If you should get caught in the rocks, or brush, and you are using a light wire hook, such as an Aberdeen, you will discover that the wire hook will give enough to let-

Woodpecker Taps Spring Calls On Trees and Posts

This is the time of year for the woodpecker with all its sound effects to appear, according to an article in the March issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine. There is a beautiful color cover of a pileated woodpecker on the magazine, done by Anne Marie Public of Arlington.

The lead story was written by Edgar Kincaid, Austin ornithologist, and illustrated with a picture by Allan D. Cruikshank of the National Audubon Society.

"In the spring woodpeckers frequently do a lot of rapid pecking that produces a maximum sound and a minimum of chips," Mr. Kincaid writes. "This is called drumming. Their sounding boards are hollow trees, metal roofs and other 'loud' surfaces."

He says the male woodpecker's drumming serves the same purpose as a turkey gobbler or a songbird's song; it warns other males of his species to stay away and welcomes a female to come and share his territory.

Among other interesting features of the March issue are a picture on "Pointers for Quail"; an article about Texas roadside parks, an unusually interesting piece about freshwater eels; an educational feature for school children; a hiking story and maps showing the location of fishing markers along the Gulf Coast.

you pull free more readily than you could with a stiffer hook.

Keep the minnow moving.

To begin with, if he is a free swimming minnow (no lead weight attached to him) cast him out where you think he will drift down into bass territory—then give him slack and let him swim. When your line shows that he has reached bottom, or some other refuge, lift the rod so as to move him slightly. Pretty soon, by the direction your line is leading, you can locate him.

Lift the line again, gently, to give him a natural action. Keep working him your way, even though you think he may not have reached the spot you thought the fish might be. You could be wrong. Work him in slowly, adjusting your sights, and cast again.

IT'S THE LAW—IN TEXAS

Many people have the impression that a lawyer can tell them with finality what the law is in any and every fact situation. Few realize that in many instances the lawyer, like the doctor, can only give his expert opinion on a particular set of facts.

There are some fact situations, which arise repeatedly, where the law is well settled, and the lawyer can state with considerable conviction the exact rule of law applicable.

However, in many situations, the lawyer, after studying the statutes and the court decisions that are applicable, can only give his best judgment as to what a court would hold the law to be as applied to the particular set of facts presented to him.

How does a lawyer learn how to advise clients on legal questions? First, he must have had six or seven years of academic education. In Texas this means at least three years of college work and three years in a recognized law school. Because the community at large has an interest in the qualifications and conduct of members of the bar, these minimum educational requirements must be met before examination for admission to the bar may be taken.

During the three years of formal legal education, the law student attempts to read, digest, reconcile and understand from 10,000 to 20,000 separate cases, statutes, and monographs. He must draw from these an understanding of basic legal principles, of processes of legal reasoning, of methods of fact and legal investigation, and of court procedures which bring relief to clients.

In both counseling and litigation, a lawyer must draw upon a wealth of precedent which he has attempted to store in his memory in order to apply one or more principles of law to the fact situation presented by his client. Ordinarily, many legal principles and rules of statute or decision are involved in even the simplest situation. Too, the problems raised by various clients, like fingerprints, are never exactly the same.

After searching his memory, the lawyer will usually check the pertinent rules and precedents. These are found in an ever-increasing volume of statutes with which modern legislation seeks to regulate many aspects of our life, and in the decisions of the courts, boards and bureaus.

Almost every problem presented to a lawyer required research in the statutes and law books before a proper answer can be given.

Therefore, you will not receive an immediate answer to your problem from your lawyer, unless it is of the most elemental type. Your lawyer should, and you should give him time to, form his opinions from the authoritative statutes and decisions. You should also understand that, due to the constant fluctuations in our laws, he will sometimes be able to give you only an informed opinion rather than an absolute statement of the law applicable to your situation.
