Roger Babson Says—

Expected Dip In Auto Sales In 1967
May Be Laid To More Imported Cars

Babson Park, Mass. Some executives of our own U. S. Automobile Manufacturing Big 3—General Motors, Chrysler, and Ford—have admitted that they expect another dip during 1967 in total output, which would mean the second consecutive year of lowering sales. Executives of firms importing foreign cars express no such doubts. Almost unanimously they predict that 1967 will be the second successive record-breaking year for their products. Does this mean a greater swing toward the purchase of foreign cars; and, if so, what is behind the switch in trend?

Basis For Divergent Predictions
The question may well have more than one answer, probably a number of answers. But the essential fact is that statistics already provide a reasonable basis for the contrast between the pessimism of domestic producers and the optimism of foreign car dealers. Taking November figures (latest available), it may be seen that foreign car sales have risen an impressive 18 per cent over those of a year ago. This compares dramatically with a decline of 7 per cent in domestic new car sales over the same period.

While it is true that foreign car turnover represents only about 8 per cent of the total market, there is something arresting about the fact that practically all the leading importers are chalking up gains while all our biggest producers are registering declines. If it were a matter only of restlessness or watchful-waiting on the part of the consumer public, there is no reason why both domestic and foreign auto sales should not reflect the same weakening tendency.

Magnet: Smaller, Cheaper Car
As in the case of residential construction, tight money undoubtedly is having some adverse effect on the demand for larger, more expensive cars. The lowest-priced model made in this country is now the Rambler American, which goes for $2,073. But look at the price range for foreign models: eight out of the ten biggest-selling imported cars can be bought for less. And there are a couple of score of other foreign makes also below the Rambler American price range, even though not among those best known to the public.

In other words, the U. S. producers have once again out-priced themselves. This happened for sales, capturing more than 10 per cent of the total market. At that time, Detroit recognized its lack of models at the lower end of the price scale and moved in with its "compacts." These caught the popular fancy to a considerable degree, but gradually became larger and more expensive.

Now it appears that the situation has come full-circle: If a buyer wants a small, inexpensive car, he can do best, he is convinced, in the import field. Will The Trend Long Continue?

The momentum carrying sales of foreign cars upward increased notably, and there is reason to believe that it will persist for some time to come. It is not, for example, purely the lower original cost that is helping the market for imported autos. When a family needs a car primarily for use by the housewife in shopping and for another short haul, the woman often prefers a vehicle that is light, maneuverable, cheap to operate, and easy to park.

Then there is the question of glamor. If a man could easily afford a Cadillac, he is often as likely to buy himself instead a Mercedes-Benz or a Jaguar. The exotic flavor has appeal, and this has been partly instigated by our own effort to popularize the "sports car" image in such models as the Mustang, which caught on remarkably quick. But, now, to be really different, many buyers feel that the foreign car is the thing, whether for economy purposes or for the kind of show-off of style found in the Jaguar.

Question is: Will Detroit try again to lure some of this market with new, small, inexpensive sports models? Best guess is that the domestic auto makers won't, unless foreign-car sales once more move well above 10 per cent of the market. Importers will be watching.

Deductions On Tax Returns Include Various Items, Fees

Union dues, employment agency fees, alimony, and certain other expenses may be included among itemized deductions on Federal tax returns, said Ellis Campbell, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue for northern Texas.

Also deductible are ordinary and necessary expenses in connection with the production or collection of taxable income and the management of property held for the production of taxable income. This includes amounts spent for a safe deposit box for taxable securities, investment counsel fees, income tax counsel and assistance fees, custodian fees, clerical help, appraisal fees for establishing amount of casualty loss, etc.

Divorced or legally separated taxpayers making periodic payments of alimony or separate maintenance under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance, or under a written separation agreement entered into after August 16, 1954, or under a decree for support entered after March 1, 1954, may deduct such payments.

A partial list of additional items of expense which are considered personal and therefore not deductible are: travel to and from work; losses from sale of personal residence, family auto, etc.; home repairs and insurance; attorney fees for preparation of a will; safe deposit box for personal effects; fines and tax penalties.

Documents 5109, which furnish more detailed information on this subject, may be obtained by dropping a post card to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 1600 Patterson Street, Dallas, Texas 75201.

The easiest way to sell that "white elephant" of yours is to advertise it in The Winters Enterprise Classified Column.

The boys and coaches Hibler and Grissom maintain a high standard of good sportsmanship and great Blizzard spirit. They are persistent they never stop trying to win. Yet, when they do lose a game, they accept the defeat as good sportsmen should and persist to win.

We of the Gale staff salute you, Blizzard coaches and players.

World Day of Prayer Set For Friday At Methodist Church

"Of His Kingdom There Shall Be No End" is the theme for the World Day of Prayer set for Friday February 10. Women of Winters Lutheran, Methodist and Presbyterian churches will meet at the First Methodist Church at 2 o'clock, to observe the World Day of Prayer.

The Lutheran Ladies will be in charge of the program with Mrs. Walter Kraatz and Mrs. Walter Spill as leaders. Assisting on the program will be Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer, Mrs. Jerry Holle, Mrs. H. L. Frick, Mrs. Robert Gerhart and Mrs. Erwin Ueckert.

The first services of the World Day of Prayer were held in the Tonga Islands in the South Pacific. Since the observances in these islands, Queen Salote Tupou led her people in the preparation and carrying out of the services.

In 1965 Queen Salote died after ruling for 47 years. A few months before her death she completed the World Day of Prayer service to be used around the world on February 10, 1967. The theme and nature of this service is most appropriate to come from this real woman of strong Christian faith.

Everyone is invited to attend this special prayer service.

SAVINGS—SECURITY—SUCCESS—

There is a definite relationship between these three words. In countless cases, security is gained, and success is attained — through saving.

Saving is not doing without the things you really want. It is the surest way to get them. After you start to build a reserve fund, you will weigh values with greater care. Less money will slip away for things that do not count. Things you most desire will be yours — when you want them.

To be able to save is, in itself, a success — and one that will likely lead to bigger successes. Make 1967 a year of financial progress. Build up a substantial reserve in an account at the bank. Your business is cordially invited.

"Bang, Bang, You're Dead!"
Combine two of filmdom's top comedy stars, one of Hollywood's newest and most glamorous "beauties," top character actors and one of the most suspenseful "cloak and dagger" stories ever written for the screen and you have American International's "Bang, Bang, You're Dead!"

The result is an unique spy thriller, with chills interspersed with belly laughs to make for unforgettable motion picture entertainment. The prospect is all the more exciting when the comedy stars involved are Britain's Terry-Thomas and America's Tony Randall, while the glamour gal is the sex-sational Senta Berger.

Co-starring in the wide screen color thriller, showing Friday night and Saturday afternoon at the State Theatre, are well-known character actors Herbert Lom, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Gregoire Aslan and John Le Mesurier. An additional element is the fact that the suspense tale was filmed on location in exotic, and mysterious Marrakesh in French Morocco — a city as comparably colorful as Casablanca, Algiers and Tangiers.

The story concerns a plot to control a key United Nations vote, with the stakes world power and two million American dollars in cash. The suspense concerns the identity of a spy courier who carries the money, the transfer of top secret documents in payment of same and the efforts of counter-agents to steal the money and upset the plot.

In "Mister Buddwing,"
In "Mister Buddwing," MGM has made a gripping, emotionally tense and unforgettable motion picture of Evan Hunter's best-seller novel, "Buddwing," with James Garner in the most dramatic and demanding role of his career playing the title characterization of a man in a state of shock, who undergoes a desperate search for his identity.

"Way... Way Out"
"Way... Way Out" is a comedy which is just that! A 20th Century-Fox production in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color — the comedy shows Saturday night, Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre with Jerry Lewis heading a cast which includes Connie Stevens, Anita Ekberg, Robert Morley, Dick Shawn, Brian Keith, Dennis Weaver and Howard Morris.

is an authentic, future projection into activities taking place in 1989 on the moon. It depicts things which have become commonplace by that time but which are mind-staggering today. Producer Malcolm Stuart and art director Hilyard Brown were determined sets would be realistic, not just futuristic and fantastic to cause comment and provide laughs. Humor is provided by the story situations and Jerry Lewis' interpretation of them.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

Omar Burleson, M. C.
17th District, Texas

It is approximately 1800 miles from the center of the 24-County Seventeenth Congressional District of Texas to the Federal Treasury in Washington where funds for the Great Society are stored.

To get there, however, requires quite a few detours. In some cases it is by St. Louis; Billings, Montana; Fort Worth; Dallas; Denver; Tulsa; Omaha; Chicago; Detroit or Kansas City.

These places are the regional outposts of the Federal bureaucracy, and many of them—like Sears and Roebuck and Montgomery Ward—offer competing brands of Great Society programs, wrapped up in different packages and sold on different terms.

For local officials dealing with this Governmental maze it is like running an obstacle course with no certainty of ever reaching the end of the track. If he is plagued with a water problem he may be sent to the Farmers Home Administration in Temple or to the Federal Water Pollution Control Commission in Kansas City, or to the Community Facilities Administration in Fort Worth, or to the Economic Development Administration in Detroit, or to the State Capitol, or to Washington or to some other place or agency. It is a bewildering, frustrating road to travel.

All over America, Governors, Mayors, City managers and State Legislators are complaining bitterly of what ought to be a fairly simple task—getting the money the Congress has voted to build the Great Society and using that money to the best advantage locally without so many "guidelines" the ends of which are held in Washington.

"Creative Federalism" is a phrase now being often used by the Administration, which actually means "cooperation" between the many layered bureaucracy in Washington and its counterparts in the State and local governments.

It really is a simple concept and crucial to the social objectives and political success of the many new programs provided by Congress during the last two or three years.

It was easy enough in 1965 and 1966 to vote billions for education, health, welfare, urban renewal and poverty wars, but unless those billions buy what they are supposed to buy, and unless they get down to the people they are supposed to help, what is the purpose of them?

As these programs now operate, the money must pass through a governmental apparatus so vast and so complicated it defies description. It is made up of nearly 100,000 separate units of government, ranging in size from the local sewer district in a Texas town to a vast highway running the length of Appalachia. It employs millions of people in hundreds of bureaus, agencies and departments in offices scattered half way around the earth from Guam to the Virgin Islands.

The question is being constantly asked, "Is it possible to unite them in the kind of a single-minded national effort the Administration envisions, and is there any organizational set-up which can really function efficiently to do the job?"

It is now obvious that these questions have got to have answers, and affirmatively, if all these plans are to bear fruit and if the billions committed are to have any meaningful impact on the life of America.

There is talk of reorganization. Governors are fed up with rules, regulations, guidelines, delays and unmet promises, and some are demanding that they be given the money without Federal interference. The idea of a tax rebate to the States is catching on. Because of the weaknesses in the present system, the idea may gain a lot of momentum unless corrections are made, and made soon.

Marksmen in a competitive pistol-shoot make the sport look ridiculously easy.

But a person who has never fired a handgun can't seem to hit the side of a barn even when all doors are shut!

Handgunning is one of the most demanding of all outdoor sports. But it also is one of the most fascinating.

Tin-can plinking with a pistol is a relaxing way to spend an idle afternoon in the wide-open spaces. But precision pistol shooting requires the utmost in concentration. A man who hits the target regularly forgets all his personal and business problems. And that is about as good a back-pat as you can give any sport.

One of the best pistol shots in the business is Billie R. McElroy. He's the special firearms instructor who teaches every Texas peace officer to shoot. The Texas Department of Public Safety employee also is a topnotch competitive shooter.

Here's his step-by-step guide to learning to shoot a handgun: Grasp the gun firmly in the shooting hand with the grip seated against the heel of the hand. Barrel should be a prolongation of the wrist and forearm. Your hand should be high on the grip with the middle finger under the trigger guard. Hold the grip firmly but not so tight as to cause tremors.

Placement of the feet should be relaxed and comfortable. If you are not at ease you will be forcing your shots to go in an unnatural position.

Take a stance about 45 degrees from the target, extending your arm toward the target.

Shooting hand should be fully extended toward the target, wrist and elbow locked. Other hand should be placed in your pocket in a relaxed position. Shooting arm should be slightly higher than your other arm and shoulder. But not strained into a higher position.

Your body should be erect, but not stiff. Muscles should be relaxed with the weight of your abdomen falling solidly on your lower trunk. Weight should be evenly distributed on both legs.

Sighting itself consists of two distinct phases: sight alignment and sight picture.

Sight alignment is when the front sight is centered in and level with the top of the rear sight. This is accomplished by looking at the front sight. The back sight and target will be fuzzy.

Remember, if you see the target clearly you are not looking at the front sight. Therefore, you cannot ascertain whether or not you have correct sight alignment. Any error in sight alignment will be multiplied by about 150 with the target 25 yards away.

You will not be able to hold the handgun on target, which is sight picture. But with proper grip and stance you will be able to keep proper alignment while firing.

Sight picture is sight alignment plus the target. Some shooters prefer to aim so the bull's-eye is resting right on top of the front sight; others like to center the sight on the target. Personal preference should dictate your choice.

Ideal situation is to be able to press the trigger straight to the rear without disturbing correct sight alignment and sight picture. Mastery of this difficult feat should not be attempted until fundamentals of grip, stance and sighting are completely understood and practiced. This will avoid developing bad shooting habits.

Release of the hammer to fire the handgun should be accomplished by a steady, even pressure on the trigger. Even when the sights move away from the target, the pressure should be maintained. As the sights return to target, added pressure is applied until the hammer is tripped. This can be practiced by "dry firing"—snapping the empty gun until the habit of slowly building up pressure will not disturb the sight alignment and sight picture.

Breath control also is important. Breathing will tend to throw you off target. Before sighting on the target, get the correct sight picture and start applying proper trigger control. Then draw a medium breath and align sights. Next, take a shallow breath and cut it off in the throat, get the correct sight picture and start applying proper trigger control. Firing should occur within about five seconds.

Don't expect any miracles in the beginning. Accurate pistol shooting requires concentration and practice. Perfection only comes after hours of dry firing followed by actual blasting at a target.

Ben Barnes Due Third Term If Wants To Serve

By—Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

Following views by Sam Wood, Capital Correspondent for the Austin American-Statesman and other publications of the Pentress group of News-papers, Inc., present a very comprehensive picture of the rule change adopted by the Texas House of Representatives.

Here's what Mr. Wood, a longtime student of State government operations, has to say: Speaker Ben Barnes, whose House lieutenants say he can have an unprecedented third term as speaker if he wants it, will leave his stamp on the Legislature for years to come even if he decides to seek greener pastures in the 1968 election year.

Under the rules change adopted by the House Wednesday, Barnes will name membership of the 25 permanent House committees at the close of the current session. Thereafter, except for the rules and House administration committees, future speakers will be limited to filling vacancies.

Normal attrition would take the Legislature through at least six and possibly eight regular sessions before the committee majorities appointed by Barnes would be dissipated.

The extensive rules changes sponsored by Speaker Barnes are one of a series of steps moving the Legislature toward a permanent status similar to that of Congress. Following will be proposed amendments to the Constitution authorizing annual sessions, higher annual salaries for members of the House and Senate, and substantial annual salaries for the speaker and lieutenant governor.

Gift Tea For Margie Ann Kraatz Given At Lutheran Church

Honoring Margie Ann Kraatz, bride-elect of Lee Roy Chaney, a seated tea was given recently in the parlors of the Lutheran Church.

Mrs. H. L. Frick registered guests in a white leather bride's book.

In the receiving line was Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer who introduced the bride-to-be and her mother, Mrs. Walter Kraatz.

The tea table was laid in imported white linen—with lace inserts, over pink, centered with an arrangement of rose and pink flowers in crystal bowl. Mrs. J. A. Henderson and Mrs. George Pruser, Sr. alternated at the silver coffee service. Other appointments were of silver and crystal.

Mrs. August Strocker, Mrs. Erwin Ueckert and Mrs. Herman Snill arranged the gifts and Mrs. E. E. Thormeyer played soft music as the guests gathered.

Mrs. Walter Spill presented Mrs. Robert Pruser who gave an appropriate reading. Mrs. Spill also presented the gifts to the honoree.

Others assisting with hostess duties were Mrs. Ellis Ueckert, Mrs. F. O. Deike.

Approximately forty-five attended.

RETURNED HOME
Mrs. John Sowders and daughter, Johnita returned Thursday to their home in Arlington after spending a few days visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Yates.

FROM WICHITA FALLS
Miss Marie Hill returned Sunday to her home in Wichita Falls after a week end visit in Abilene and with her mother, Mrs. George C. Hill and other relatives.
