Violence heightens in Bosnia; 4 dead

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Sniping and shrapnel killed four people and wounded seven in Sarajevo on Tuesday as increasing violence on battlefields around the country spread to the besieged capital.

The dead included three children, hospital officials said. Five children were wounded in the fighting, the heaviest in central Sarajevo in nearly six weeks.

It was too early to say who was responsible, but Bosnian Serbs have threatened to avenge battlefield losses by tightening their grip on Muslim-held Sarajevo. The Bosnian government army said it would retaliate for Tuesday's attacks.

Pools of blood stained the pavement in front of Sarajevo's main Kosevo hospital as staff rushed to attend the wounded.

Possible AIDS-related protein discovered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Scientists say they have discovered a protein that may activate the AIDS virus in the body and cause it to develop into AIDS.

The discovery by University of Pennsylvania scientists could lead to treatments that might enable infected people to put the human immunodeficiency virus on hold indefinitely. They still would carry the virus but might not contract the fatal disease itself.

HIV-infected people can be healthy and live for years before the virus attacks the body's immune system.

A protein isolated from a gene in HIV carriers appears to tell infected cells when to start reproducing the virus, the researchers said in an article published Tuesday in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Nava Sarver, one of the chief scientists in the AIDS division of the National Institutes of Health, said the study is interesting but very preliminary. Usually, studies such as study chief David Weiner's that are conducted in the laboratory do not hold up when tested in bodies, she said.

Teen-agers arrested in dead cousins case

DALLAS (AP) — Police have arrested two West Dallas teen-agers in the shooting deaths of two 16-year-old cousins whose bodies were dumped near Mountain Creek Lake.

Antonio Saenz and Elpido Estrada, both 17, were both being held Tuesday in lieu of $500,000 bond each.

Both are charged with capital murder in the deaths of Ralph Bustos of Lancaster and Thomas Bustos of Dallas.

"We're still working on the case to see if there are more people involved," Dallas homicide Sgt. Bobby Little said. "It's not over."

Police were still trying to piece together the events that led from Thursday to Sunday, when an anonymous caller told police the boys had been "executed" at the lake and their car torched.

However, detectives did say the boys were shot in West Dallas and dumped several miles away in a grassy field near the lake.

Bush becomes second GOP governor

DALLAS (AP) — George W. Bush, the eldest son of the former president, Tuesday became only the second Republican to be elected Texas governor since Reconstruction.

Bush, 48, handily defeated Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, one of the nation's most visible incumbents.

"I think the difference was my desire, my burning desire, to make changes in education, juvenile justice and welfare," Bush said. "I think Texans caught wind of that."

The charismatic Richards, who lost despite solid job approval ratings in pre-election polls, remained silent at an Austin hotel.

Herspokesman, Chuck McDonald, didn't concede but said a Richards loss would be a sign of the state turning more conservative. "If that's the will of the voters, then we have to respect that," he said.

Michael Turner, president of University Democrats at Texas Tech, said, "My first reaction was, 'Thank God the Texas governor position is the 48th weakest constitutionally in the U.S.'"

"The governor here has hardly any power," he said.

Since 1874, the only other Republican to gain the governor's office was Dallas oilman Bill Clements. He was victorious in 1978, lost in 1982, then won again in 1986.

Richards hadn't lost an election since entering public life with a run for Travis County commissioner in 1976.

Vote returns from counties showed Bush winning substantial support across the state.

"The people of Texas recognized that less government is best for business and Texas," said Robert Beach, president of College Republicans at Tech. "He had a vision for Texas that motivated people to go out and vote."

Bush called his win "a rather significant victory. ... And I believe it will give me a chance to have some political capital ... to make necessary changes for Texas."

An exit poll of voters conducted outside precincts around the state found Bush's anti-crime and education reform messages played well, while Richards' criticizing his lack of political experience failed to strike a significant chord.

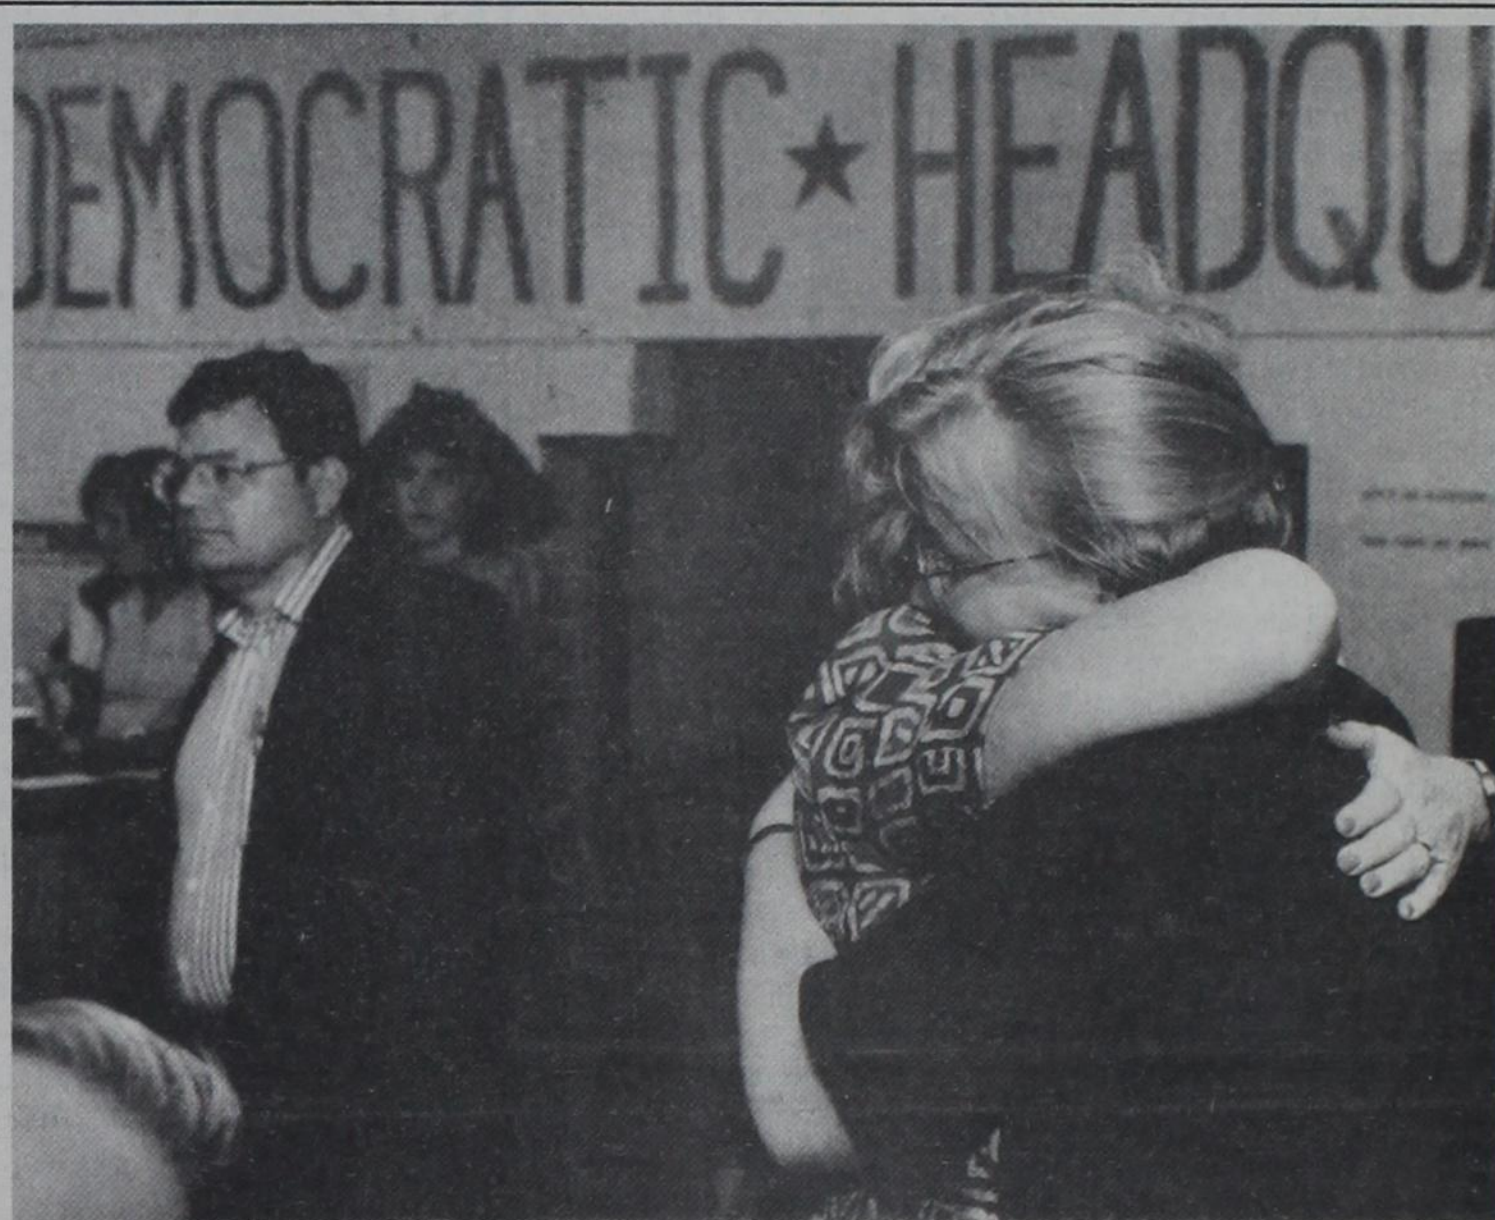

The poll was conducted by Voter News Service, a cooperative of the four television networks and The Associated Press. It also found that voters didn't give Richards much credit for the state's robust economy or her record of building 75,000 new prison beds.

The survey showed that Bush also enjoyed the support of more men than did Richards, and that he won the backing of his father's base of support.

Richards, 61, was no stranger to close elections. She defeated Republican oilman-rancher Clayton Williams by fewer than 100,000 votes in 1990.

Bullock strikes gold for second time

DALLAS (AP) — Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, arguably the most powerful officeholder in Texas, effortlessly won his second four-year term Tuesday over Republican Tex Lezar.

"This election is not so much a victory for me as it is a victory for Texans who want their problems solved without partisanship or gridlock," Bullock said. "I am grateful to the voters of Texas for placing their faith in me. ... It's time to roll up our sleeves and go to work."

With 41 percent of precincts reporting, Bullock had 62 percent compared with 38 percent for Lezar.

"I want to congratulate (Lt. Gov.) Bullock. He's every bit as tough a politician as we all thought he was," Lezar said. "But on a night when the Republican Party has taken control of the governorship of Texas ... I can't be anything but delighted."

The lieutenant governor presides over the Senate, makes committee appointments, sits on several key boards and committees and controls the flow of legislation in that chamber. It is one of the most important political jobs in the state.

But the race was probably the least eventful of the campaign season.

Bullock, 65, took off from campaigning from late September through October to recover from heart bypass surgery.

After winning numerous endorsements, even from Republicans, and securing opinion poll leads of 40 percentage points over Lezar, Bullock said he would rest for the balance of the campaign on doctors' orders.

Lezar, meantime, attacked President Clinton, hoping for a Republican sweep prompted by dissatisfaction with the president's policies.

He also reminded voters that Bullock advocated a state income tax in 1991.

But Bullock abandoned his income tax stand and was instrumental in pushing through a constitutional ban on such a levy unless approved by the voters.

Bullock first was elected to office in 1957, when he served one term in the Texas House.

He then went into private law practice but returned to state government in 1967 as an assistant attorney general and as an aide to the governor in 1969. He was secretary of state in 1971-72.

In 1974, he was elected to his first of four terms as state comptroller.

Lezar, 46, was a speech writer for Richard Nixon and served as chief of staff to Attorney General William French Smith under Ronald Reagan and as an aide to former Texas Secretary of State George Strake.

Hutchison nabs office

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In a night dominated by Republicans, Kay Bailey Hutchison retained her senatorial seat by defeating Richard Fisher in Tuesday's election.

Hutchison captured about 76 percent of the vote.

Tammy Hecht, executive director of the Lubbock Republican Party, said she was pleased with the outcome of the Hutchison-Fisher race.

"We are very excited and we think Texas is headed in the right direction," Hecht said. "I think this will show that we will have a stronghold in the Senate."

Jean Anne Stratton, district clerk-elect, said she thought the Senate race would be closer, but said she was thrilled the race was as wide open as it was.

"I think this race will send a message that we don't want any rights taken away, especially private property rights," Stratton said.

Lubbock Democratic Party chairman Mark Harmon said he was proud of the Democratic candidates.

"Every Democratic candidate in Lubbock started with a 17 percent disadvantage because of straight-ticket voting," he said. "Many candidates fought back and many won."

Harmon said the Republicans must correct what they criticized about the Democratic-controlled government.

"If the Republicans keep up their bad habits, the Democrats will be celebrating in four years," he said.

Air Force ROTC conducts 24-hour vigil for POW/MIAs

BY TERRI LOWRANCE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Tech Air Force ROTC honor guards from the Sabre Flight Drill Team will keep a 24-hour post at Memorial Circle Friday as part of a nationwide vigil to bring attention to American Prisoners of War and for military officials Missing in Action.

Opening ceremonies will begin at noon with a speech by James Reckner, Tech associate professor of history.

"There are currently 147 Air Force ROTC host units nationwide," said Grant Potts, public affairs officer for the Arnold Air Society. "All 147 units are participating in the vigil."

The Lewis C. Ellis Jr. Squadron of the Arnold Air Society, an honorary service organization comprised of Air Force ROTC and academy cadets, will host the vigil, Potts said.

Society members conduct service projects that serve the disadvantaged and children of their communities and promote awareness about POW-MIAs, he said.

Members of the Sabre Flight Drill Team will keep a 24-hour guard in front of Memorial Circle, similar to the guards at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington, D.C., said Michael Frazier, Arnold Air Societ Squadron commander.

Candles will be lighted for POW-MIAs and literature about them will be distributed.

The first vigil was sponsored 14 years ago by a group of cadets from the Lewis C. Ellis Jr. Squadron at Tech who wanted to recognize prisoners of war or soldiers missing in action.

Members kept a 24-hour vigil in Memorial Circle to honor those soldiers, Frazier said.

Lewis C. Ellis Jr., a B-24 pilot from Lubbock who enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II, was shot down in his plane over Germany in 1944 and will be honored during the vigil.

Ellis was a junior business administration major at Tech when he joined the Army.

"The purpose of the vigil is to create awareness and to remind people that freedom is not free," Frazier said.

The things we do for an education

Registration. You know what it means. It's that grueling process in which every student at Texas Tech has to endure. With the limited number of classes that are offered in certain departments within this university, some students are forced to get up early and stand in line before registration begins. In the years that I have attended Texas Tech, I have never had to wait more than twenty minutes in line. Last week, that all changed.

Normally, graduate students are allowed to register before anyone else. While I'm thinking to myself, "I've got plenty of time to register," a friend of mine asks me what classes I'm taking. I respond by telling him that I have two education courses, EDCI 5310 and EDSE 5305, along with a couple of classes in the history department. My friend then informs me that those two education courses fill up within one hour of registration, and he suggests that I get up early Thursday and arrive at the University Center at around 5 a.m. You've got to be kidding. Five o'clock in the morning? It's still dark. My grandmother doesn't get up that early!

Needless to say, I got up at 5 a.m. Thursday morning. I put on a pair of sweats and walked up to the University Center. To my surprise, I found that 24 people had the same idea I had or were trying to enroll in the same education class. Visions immediately came to my mind. Either I was having déjà vu of when I was in high school — waiting for U2 "Joshua Tree" concert tickets, or I was witnessing new material for a McDonald's Super Bowl, dedicated-two-sports-fans commercial.

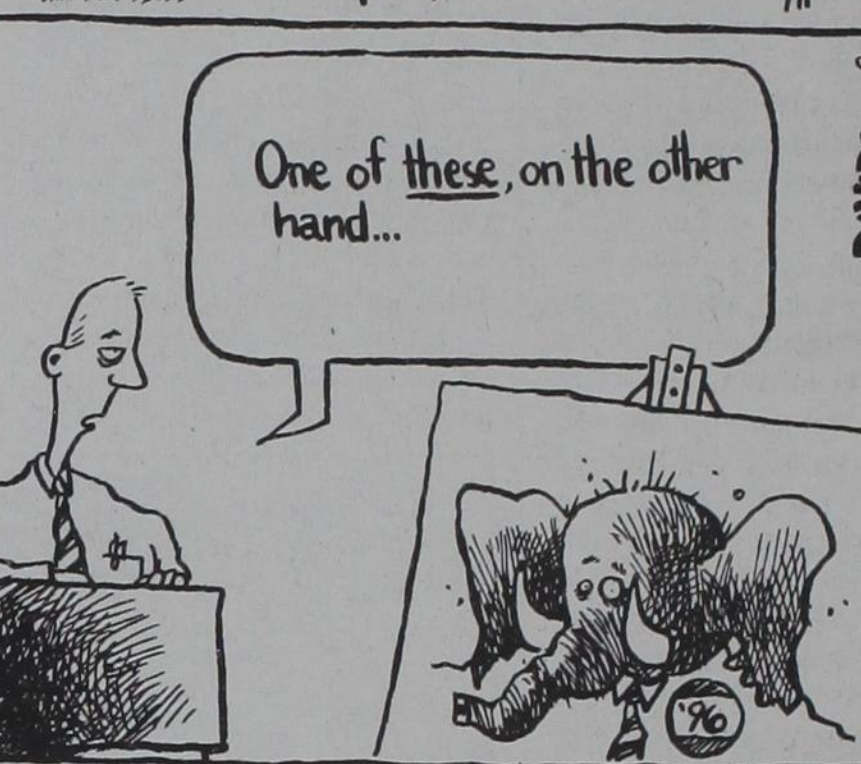

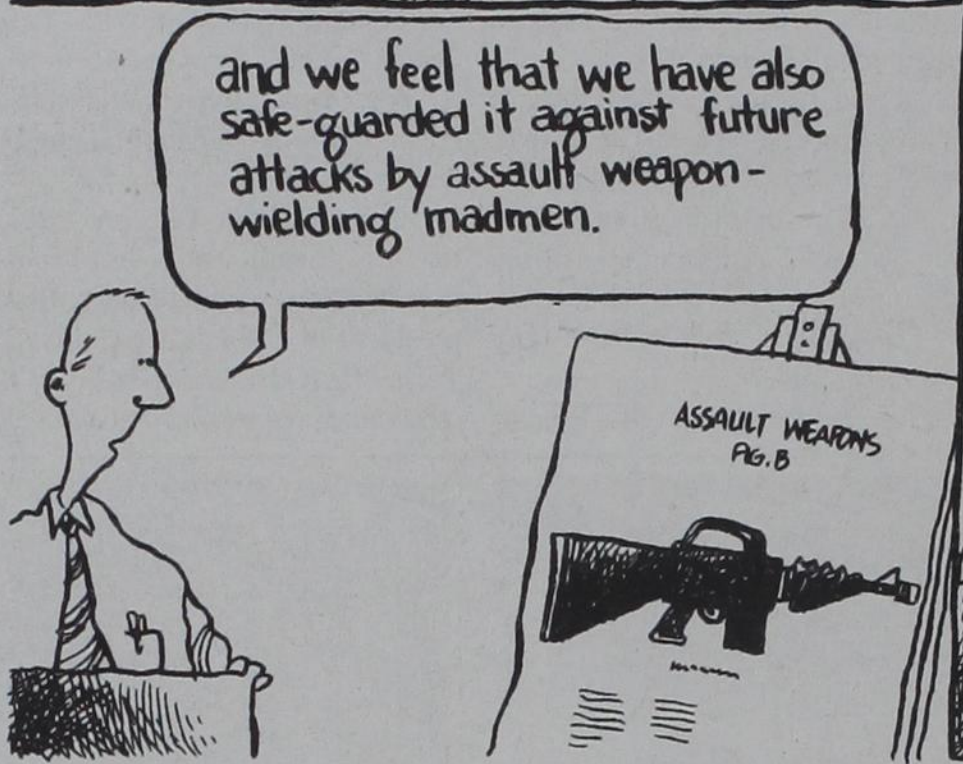

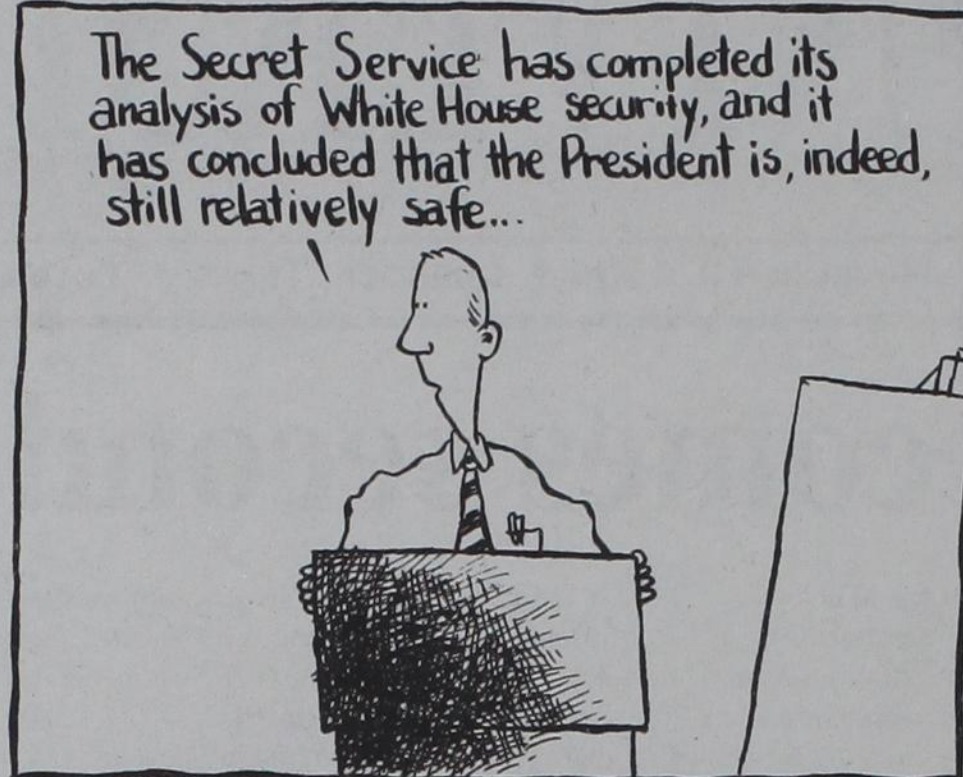

At six o'clock, the University Center opened, and I went inside to again position myself in line. Luckily, I had purchased a newspaper, a large cup of 7-11 coffee and brought two U.S. News & World Report magazines (I was behind a week). After reading about Tech's chances of going to the Cotton Bowl, Dick Motta's high hopes of trying to rebuild the Dallas Mavericks and Democratic Party hopefuls in 1994 (well, two out of three ain't bad), I looked at my watch. It was 8 a.m.

By this time nature called, and afterwards I went to get a cup of French Vanilla coffee. As I walked back to my place in line, I was stunned. Here's what I saw: Starting from the Coronado Room, the registration line went west all the way down the hallway, turned around, and came back the opposite direction, turned right to the University Courtyard, turned left past the UC offices and ticket office, turned right past the Student Association, weaved down the faded-blue carpeted stairs, through the UC Courtyard, past the 35 cent Pepsi machines (I miss drinking Diet Coke), through the open double doors, and ended at the Cox Cable/Tech Express counters. Wow! There were more than 200 people waiting in line, all with the same expressions on their face — similar to those of a former vice-presidential candidate — "Who am I? ... Why am I here?"

Like the Sargasso Sea, some students sat and others stood waiting for their time to register. Soon they would meet "Direction Guy." You know who I am talking about. That guy who points you to the appropriate open computer terminal. What kind of qualifications does a person like that need? Count higher than 35 and have better than average dexterity with your hands? If the job has a dental plan and other additional employee benefits, sign me up right now!

I look forward to the day when students at this university can watch ESPN, relax on the couch and register for classes by phone. Unfortunately, "Direction Guy" will be out of a job.

RA acted selflessly organizing trip

To the editor:

I would like to publicly thank Tom Hilbun, the resident assistant for first floor, west in the Sneed Residence Hall. Tom selflessly gave his time and effort to plan a great camping trip for our floor. Tom is the first resident assistant during my four years to use the money given to the floor by the residence hall to further the friendship, responsibility and education of our community. Tom, thank you for a job well done.

Animal testing, research not only option

To the editor:

I would like to respond to some comments made in The UD Monday by an individual regarding animal rights and animal rights activists. First of all, you stated that only wild animals deserve protection, implying that domesticated animals do not deserve protection. I agree that wild animals should be protected, but not at the exclusion of all other animals. Do you condone the unnecessary pain and suffering of farm animals through factory intensive animal farming techniques? What about domestic violence against domestic animals? I believe that both wild and domestic animals are capable of feeling pain, suffering and misery which entitles them to equal consideration.

Secondly, you implied that animal rights activists do not care about humans. This issue has already been addressed in letters in The UD, so suffice it to say that your generalization that we care more about animals than humans is an ignorant one.

Thirdly, you made yet another generalization about animal rights activists in your statement which suggests that we "would go out to a restaurant and order steak." Wake up, bud! Not everybody eats steak. I am a vegetarian and proud of it, however, one does not have to be a vegetarian to care about animals. I find your attempt to CREATE this alleged discrepancy in animal rights philosophy to be a weak one at best.

Last but not least, you made it clear that you are in favor of animal testing on the basis that it serves humanity. Animal rights testing aside, I would like to point out the fact that animal testing is highly inaccurate, which has resulted in increased ill health and loss of life in some people because of improper treatment based on erroneous findings from animal research. Also, it is no secret that there are alternatives to animal research that are more accurate, which, therefore, would better serve humanity.

Paul Hill not representative of pro-lifers

To the editor:

From what I gathered in Mr. Brook's letter, anyone who disagrees with him and disapproves of homosexuality is obviously clueless and utterly ignorant, and you have never been out of Lubbock, West Texas or Texas for that matter.

No matter how many names you call me, I refuse to stoop to your level. "Name-calling journalism" has no business in a university paper.

The passage about ACT UP is not an opinion, but a fact. "ACT UP, a gay rights group, disrupted a mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City, stomped on the Holy Communion and threw condoms in the air." It is a fact, something with real demonstrable existence, and the Drama of Democracy has a picture to prove it. Where is the disrespect? And where is the hypocrisy? I found this bit of information not in a Republican publication, but my political science textbook written by George McKenna. Mr. Brooks, I was wondering how you found out George McKenna's party affiliation is the Republican Party. Did George tell you? From reading the textbook, I can say with conviction that it has been objective.

Mr. Brooks, correct me if I am wrong, but someone told me you are the president of Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Students? Is it true that there are only 25 students in your organization out of 25,000 Tech students? How come you haven't informed us of this?

Pascarelli stated, "It is no more acceptable to blame the entire gay population for this action than it is to blame all pro-lifers for equally hypocritical murders of 'abortion doctors.'" This is a legitimate claim if it had facts to back it up; however, Pascarelli did not provide us with any. If you have proof, I will stand corrected. Until then, I stand by my statement. Simply calling me disrespectful and hypocritical is not much of an argument. I will prove your argument that Catholic pro-lifers are not responsible for the actions of the man who killed an abortion doctor. Pascarelli was referring to Paul Hill, the man who shot abortion doctor John Britton and his bodyguard, John Barrett. I do not support his actions, however, Paul Hill is not a Catholic and should not be associated with Catholic pro-lifers who pride themselves in nonviolent civil disobedience.

I researched and found in the Oct. 3 New American that Hill is an excommunicated Presbyterian pastor. As a child, Hill was deeply involved in the drug culture. In 1973, he was born again and worked as a Presbyterian pastor. He was then kicked out of the Presbyterian church for preaching "justifiable homicide" of abortion doctors. Paul Hill is clearly by no means representative of the Catholic pro-life movement or the pro-life movement as a whole. Yet, the liberal media has portrayed this radical as a leader which he clearly is not. Ninety percent of the media elites believe a woman has the right to an abortion (Drama of Democracy 405). Paul Hill is their tool to smear the Catholic pro-life movement.

Free press exists even on Tech campus

To the editor:

I cringed when I read the letter to the editor by Matt Otwell. Ignorance is embarrassing, but at the college level, it is scary.

Sorry to disappoint you, but this is America, 1994. I don't know if you have ever taken American history or a political science class, but freedom of the press exists in this country and has a place on this campus. Benji Nickens getting arrested was legitimate news. Why would anyone expect the editor and the staff of the campus newspaper to ignore this story? Do you honestly expect The UD to be intimidated by the greek system and overlook that someone holding an important IFC leadership position broke the law?

Personally, I don't want to live under a rock and have The UD editorial board decide what is "safe" for me to read, a la communist Russia. I don't want a newspaper that prides itself on solely printing such exciting stories about the new computer network in the College of Education.

Kudos to The UD for their hard work delivering the news to the students at this university.

How many times has Kristie Davis reiterated that letters to the editor and the editorial page are OPINIONS? How can anyone suggest that The UD only prints "liberal" viewpoints when we've had to read Eric Sanchez editorials for the last few years?

In fact, it seems that this year is the only year that The UD has attempted to form a balanced editorial page. Before Kristie Davis became the editor of this paper, I do not ever recall being able to read editorials by both William F. Buckley Jr. and the chairman of the Lubbock Democratic Party.

Yes, the greek system works very hard, has received countless national recognitions and has accomplished a great deal for Texas Tech as well as Lubbock philanthropies. In fact, I feel that the greek system at Tech is so respected that the Benji Nickens incident doesn't even reflect poorly on the system as a whole.

I agree that it often seems that greek accomplishments go overlooked by our newspaper, but not to the extent Otwell suggests. I hope Otwell realizes that the majority of the student body is not greek and there are many worthwhile organizations on this campus that go unrecognized. Unfortunately, elitist attitudes like Otwell's make the entire greek system look like ignorant whiners.

As for Otwell's accusation that The UD glorifies homosexuality and other "liberal" issues which most students at Tech could care less about, I hope the rest of the student body is not as apathetic as you about the social and ethical issues facing our country today.

I think your idea is great — why don't you publish a newspaper that is devoted to the "pros" and accomplishments of the greek system? I won't be reading it. I live in the real world, not in Siberia, circa 1975. I'll keep reading The UD for the news. Somehow, I don't think the cheerleader propaganda you suggest will have too much substance.

Doctor values time spent with Tech students

BY SUSAN OSBORNE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Kriengkrai Chung, Texas Tech Student Health Services physician, has been serving the Tech student population for more than 15 years.

"I like to work with students," Chung said.

Chung is from Bangkok, Thailand and attended school there, he said.

"There (are) a lot of sick, poor people in Thailand," he said. "I always wanted to help people."

Chung said he knew at an early age he was interested in medicine. "I would play doctor as a child," he said.

Medical school curriculum in Thailand is similar to curriculum in the United States but with one exception, Chung said.

"Internships in Thailand are assigned, and often you find yourself in remote areas treating many illnesses," he said.

Chung said he first heard about the Texas Tech School of Medicine through a Texas physician.

Harlan Willis, a family doctor, encouraged Chung to attend medical school at Tech.

"I was informed to come over here and do my residency at Texas Tech from a missionary doctor," he said.

Willis has since returned to Texas and practices general surgery in Brownfield, Chung said.

"He (Willis) was a very good example for me," he said.

"He is a very competent doctor." Chung began his residency program at Tech in 1975.

His work duties involved seeing patients at different facilities, he said.

Chung made his rounds at South Park Hospital and Medical Center and Highland Medical Center, he said.

Chung completed medical school in 1977.

He came to Student Health Services in 1978.

"At first I was interested in going into surgery, but I decided on internal medicine," he said.

"I like to treat everything."

Providing quick, acute health care is Chung's aim in his everyday working experiences, he said.

Working with students has its advantages, he said.

"Students seem to get well, and they don't have a lot of medical problems," Chung said.

Chung has returned to Thailand many times for family matters, he said.

"I plan to return home, but my family is here, and my son is young," he said.

"I would like to retire there, if I am not too old."

Women Studies Council plans memorial scholarship for McHaney

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The creation of a scholarship for the late Jeannine McHaney, former assistant athletic director, was discussed Tuesday at the Texas Tech Women Studies Council meeting.

The council approved a contribution to the Jeannine McHaney Scholarship, which will be given to a female student studying sports administration.

Council members also discussed storage of exit interviews when female faculty or staff members are terminated, resign or retire from Tech.

Gwen Sorell, coordinator of the Women Studies Council, said the council interviews women and asks about their experiences at Tech.

This interview session helps council members improve the environment for female employees at Tech, Sorell said.

"One problem we have is when we interview these people, they may say things they don't want other people to know," she said. "We promise these people that we will not release these interviews."

Interviews are stored at Tech's Southwest Collection, she said.

"When we interview these people we ask the people if we can store their interview in the Southwest Collection because we want to keep the confidentiality of the interviewee," Sorell said.

If a woman does not want her interview filed in the Southwest Collection, the document will be kept in the Tech Women Studies office.

The council also discussed plans for the All-University Conference on the Advancement of Women in Higher Education.

Gail Platt, conference coordinator, said the conference will feature Carol Tavis, author of "The Mismeasure of Woman."

"Tavis will speak on why women are not the inferior sex, superior sex or opposite sex," Platt said.

The conference is scheduled for March 1995 and will feature a mentoring group session discussing women in higher education.

Forum to focus on managing stress

BY AMY OSMULSKI
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Students interested in learning leadership qualities and meeting people in leadership positions can attend the final two workshops of the 1994 Tech Development Network Workshop Series.

Today's workshop, "Dealing with Burnout: Effective Stress Management," will be presented by Eileen Nathan, associate director of the University Counseling Center, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the University Center Mesa Room.

"It is the time of the semester when people feel they have over committed themselves with obligation, exams are piling up and they are feeling overwhelmed," Nathan said. "This can definitely lead to a great deal of stress."

Nathan said she plans to talk about how stress can be managed with self-care techniques.

The Nov. 16 workshop, "When Leaders of Today Meet Those of Tomorrow," will consist of a panel of speakers from different departments. The workshop will begin in the UC Mesa Room at 3 p.m.

Panel members will consist of representatives from the Dean of Students Office, UC Activities, the Counseling Center, PASS Learning Center, the Multicultural Center, the Career Planning and Placement Center and the vice president's office.

Beth Taylor, UC activities specialist, said Student Organization Services offers leadership seminars every year, but this is the first time they sponsored a panel.

"We wanted to offer the students the opportunity to meet these people, and get to know them," Taylor said.

Faculty recognized for MBA-HOM program

Professors in Texas Tech's College of Business Administration were honored at a reception Monday to celebrate the recent accreditation of a master's of business administration-based health organization management program.

John Blair, professor of business administration management and immediate past director of the HOM program; Grant Savage, associate professor of business administration management and current director of the HOM program; and Jay Wheeler, chairman of the HOM program in the Texas Tech School of Medicine were honored.

The MBA-based HOM program is now accredited by Accrediting Commission for Education in Health Services Administration, a national accrediting board. The joint program in the college is now one of 11 programs in the nation to receive accreditation. About 100 people attended the reception.

Engineering Speaker

Rudy Phillips, a recruiter from Archer Daniel Midland, an engineering firm, will discuss employment and internship opportunities at 7 p.m. today in the petroleum engineering building, room 120.

Phillips will come to Tech in conjunction with Tech's Minority Engineering Program in the College of Engineering.

Republicans pleased with election results

BY JARED PARCELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Across the United States, the Republican Party fared well in the general elections Tuesday night.

Texas was no different as George W. Bush defeated Ann Richards in the governor's race. Texas also gained seven Republican seats in Congress.

Scott Mann, Republican County chairman for Lubbock County, said Bush's goals were the difference in the race.

"Bush had a vision for Texas which motivated people," Mann said.

Tammy Hecht, executive director of the Lubbock County Republican Party, said unfulfilled promises by Richards hurt her chances for re-election.

"She made a lot of promises that were not fulfilled," Hecht said. "People were unhappy with her and she was out of touch with the general public."

Robert Beach, Texas Tech College Republicans president, said he also was pleased with Kay Bailey Hutchison's win against Richard Fisher for U.S. senator.

"We are very pleased with the results," Beach said. "I don't think Fisher got the Democratic help he needed."

Beach said blatant politics against incumbents often motivates people to vote.

Promises by President Clinton, which people were not happy with, resulted in a change in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, Hecht said.

"People were displeased with Clinton," she said. "Many people were not happy with the health care reform bill."

Mann said he can see a political change in the United States.

"The country is moving toward a conservative philosophy," he said. "That is obvious in the changes in the government tonight."

Beach said a change in American citizens' feelings toward themselves also helped the Republican Party.

"People are now saying 'I'd rather take care of myself,'" Beach said.

Mann said he was ecstatic about voter turnout throughout the United States.

"I knew it was possible if we identified the voters," he said. "This happened, not only in Texas, but throughout the nation."

Hard work by Beach and several other Texas Tech students paid off and helped the large voter turnout in Lubbock County, Mann said.

"Beach was the key to this whole thing," he said.

"Tech students had a tremendous effect and were an integral part to the voter turnout in Lubbock County," Mann said.

Sowder replaces Ware as Lubbock District Attorney

BY CHRISTY EVERETT AND NY LYNN NICHOLS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Republican Bill Sowder triumphed with 74 percent of the vote in the Lubbock Criminal District Attorney's race defeating Democrat Clay Abbott Tuesday night.

Sowder said he believes Tuesday's results were almost anticlimactic compared to his win last March in the Republican primary against incumbent Travis Ware.

"It is not as exciting as last spring," Sowder said. "I am excited at the opportunity to lead the law enforcement effort in Lubbock County."

Abbott said he believes the numbers for Democratic candidates were about the same.

"I am not taking it personally," he said. "I have grown to enjoy Sowder's company, and I am happy for him."

Texas Tech College Republicans Secretary Cameron Graham said the candidates' relationship and conduct made for a more honest election.

"There was no mudslinging," he said. "The public had the opportunity to see what the two men were really like."

Sowder said he plans to hire new employees in the District Attorney's Office.

"I want to make changes in personnel in the DA's Office, the way personnel is structured and other law enforcement agencies," he said.

Abbott said he plans to apply for a position in the District Attorney's Office in the next week.

"I am hoping there will be a position available," he said. "I will send him a resume in a couple of days," Abbott said.

Graham said Sowder's stance on crime helped him win.

"He had the full support of the Lubbock Police Department," he said. "He is really concerned about putting criminals in jail and seeing they get some type of punishment."

"With (Governor-elect George W.) Bush's win, who is tough on juvenile crime, he'll have support in Austin, from the top."

Cameron also said Sowder's down-to-earth appeal to voters helped in his victory.

"Sowder is a man of integrity, of honesty," he said.

Tech College Republicans member Lisa Marbach said voters can relate to the district attorney-elect.

"People in Lubbock see Bill Sowder as one of them," she said. "He is someone who can accomplish what the average citizen wants for this county."

Sowder said, "I am ready to roll up my sleeves and get to work. I think that's what people expect from me."

Signs of the time

More than 50,000 Lubbock County voters took advantage of their Constitutional rights by voting for their preferred candidates.

Republicans proved successful Tuesday by ousting many Democrats from U.S. House and Senate seats.

Tech graduate student elected commissioner

Republican Texas Tech graduate student Gary Schwantz claimed victory against Democrat Lloyd Gardner in the Lubbock County commissioner 4th Precinct election Tuesday night.

Schwantz's win was a small portion of what Republicans across the nation celebrated last night.

"I'm excited and I'm loving it right now, but I was really pleased with the turnout," Schwantz said. "We campaigned hard and we walked a lot of blocks and we had a lot of help."

Schwantz garnered 69.71 percent of the votes to win the election.

He emphasized creating coalitions with the 4th Precinct community during his campaign, Schwantz said.

"I'm looking forward to starting the job," he said. "But it's time now to begin the job, because really campaigning was not the real job."

Schwantz said he is ready to begin his job and is anxious to learn the day-to-day operations.

"I'll be working a lot with Alton Brazell to learn from him," he said. "It's just time to reinforce what I've learned."

Schwantz said he is presently pursuing a doctorate degree in home economics education at Tech. Schwantz said he was surprised with the outcome of the race said wonders if Tech students supported him.

"I don't know if Tech students knew about me being a Tech student," he said. "But it would be interesting to see the break down of the precinct voting turn out."

Gardner said he had no comment after the final election results were announced.

Montford retains seat

BY BRENT SPRAGGINS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas State Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, retained his seat in Austin with a landslide victory over Val Varley by more than 60 percent.

"He is an experienced legislator," said Mark Harmon, Lubbock County Democratic Party Chairman.

"He has a well-established reputation here in Lubbock County," he said.

Montford will begin his fourth term in the Senate as a Democrat, representing a county that is considered predominantly conservative.

"I don't think it's appropriate to characterize Lubbock County as conservative — many of its values are liberal," Harmon said. "For example, Lubbock County is pro-choice."

Montford's only opposition in the race was local lawyer Varley.

Republican County Party Chairman Scott Mann said Varley's loss may be contributed to a misrepresentation of his views printed in a local voters' guide.

Thornberry defeats Sarpalius

(AP) — Incumbent Democratic Congressman, Bill Sarpalius of Amarillo, was beaten by Republican Mac Thornberry, an Amarillo attorney making his first race in the 13th District, which stretches from the Panhandle east along the Red River.

"He got beat much worse than I thought he would," said Michael Turner, president of the Texas Tech University Democrats. "I thought he would win. He was beaten deci-

Scott Mann, Lubbock Republican Party Chairman, said Thornberry will go to Washington with an agenda for change.

"We are ecstatic for all the Republicans who have won," he said. "We are ecstatic for Mac."

"All the mud and lies didn't stick on the man who had character and dignity and deserved to win it," Mann said.

Robert Beach, president of Tech's College Republicans, agreed that Thornberry will make positive change.

"Mac is a great guy," he said.

Write-in candidates make mark in election

tion. "I've heard that one a lot," he said.

Though Ryan is a real person and not a cartoon character, he still could not take the governor's seat if he garnered the majority vote for the position, Pearson said.

"You have to be a declared write-in candidate for your vote to count," he said.

Potential write-ins must file at least 60 days before the general election, Davidson said.

They also must pay the filing fee designated for the office they are seeking, she said.

Pearson said in Lubbock's history only once has a write-in candidate successfully defeated his Republican and Democratic opponents.

W.D. Rodgers beat contenders in the 1966 mayoral election, Pearson said.

Rodgers was urged to declare his candidacy because civic leaders were unhappy with the two other candidates, he said.

Lubbock County voters found a write-in slot for the County Surveyor position Tuesday.

Robert L. Smith was the only declared write-in candidate for the position, though several other names were filled in the blank, said Doris Ruff, the chief deputy Lubbock County clerk.

"There were people who thought they could write down any individual, but there was only one declared candidate that could win," she said.

Names included Hugo Reed, Don Duck, Barney and several commercial surveyors, Ruff said.

County Commissioner James Kitten said the surveyor is not budgeted any money from county funds.

"It's not needed," he said. "Private surveyors can do the job when needed."

It would take a public vote to cut the office, which is included in the Texas Constitution, Kitten said.

Pearson said Smith wants the non-paying position to use the title in advertisements for his surveying business.

Campaign proves successful for Rep. Jones

BY AMY OSMULSKI
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Incumbent State Rep. Delwin Jones, R-Lubbock, overtook his Democratic opponent Craig Tounget in Tuesday night's election.

Jones, who has spent 14 years in the Texas Legislature, said he was excited about winning his re-election bid.

"I really felt comfortable running again, and I think it has been a very good race," he said. "I really worked hard trying to keep the campaigning clean."

Jones said his experience, routine campaigning and endorsements helped him win.

"I think my routine campaigning, including mailings, television spots and one-on-one contacts were very helpful," he said. "I stood outside and shook hands with 700 people Tuesday."

He said endorsements of news organizations, like the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, strengthened his voter support and chances for re-election.

"I have a strong reputation in the community and my long-term name identity was critical," he said.

Jones said he believed a major issue in the campaign was that his opponent was a Democrat, but Tounget chose not to reveal that in his political literature prior to the election.

"My opponent gained a lot of blind support, but when the voters got to the polls and saw who he was running against, many of them changed their minds," he said.

Jones said his experience has worked for him, but believes Tounget was a worthy opponent. Tounget said he thought he had a better margin than other Democrats in the election, but there was too much Republicanism to overcome.

"Too many people blindly voted straight Republican without thinking about it," he said. "They did not consider the candidates and the issues."

Tounget said his campaign tried to focus on the ineffectiveness of his opponent.

"He (Jones) just wasn't doing a good job, and we tried to show the public what was going on," he said. "He wasn't getting out there and voting for Texas like he should."

'Channel Disco' unites sitcom scenes

BY TARA McQUEEN
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

It may not be the tale of a fateful ship, but you will see tropical islands and sitcom friends in the musical drama, "Channel Disco."

The Cactus Theatre will host a myriad of scenes from "The Love Boat," "Gilligan's Island," "I Dream of Jeannie" and "Oprah Winfrey" beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Mitch Calhoun, a junior theater major from Brownsboro, wrote, produced and directed "Channel Disco."

"I put this production together for our generation," Calhoun said. "We are labeled as Generation X because we watch TV and don't go to the theater. It's time for things to change, and the theater needs to do the changing."

He said the theater needs to meet the needs of younger generations.

"We are an event," Calhoun said. "This is a show with a lot of audience participation."

"Channel Disco," Calhoun's second production, consists of comedy, music, dance and video.

"This musical is made for the MTV generation," Calhoun said. "We like lots of video. We go from one thing to the next."

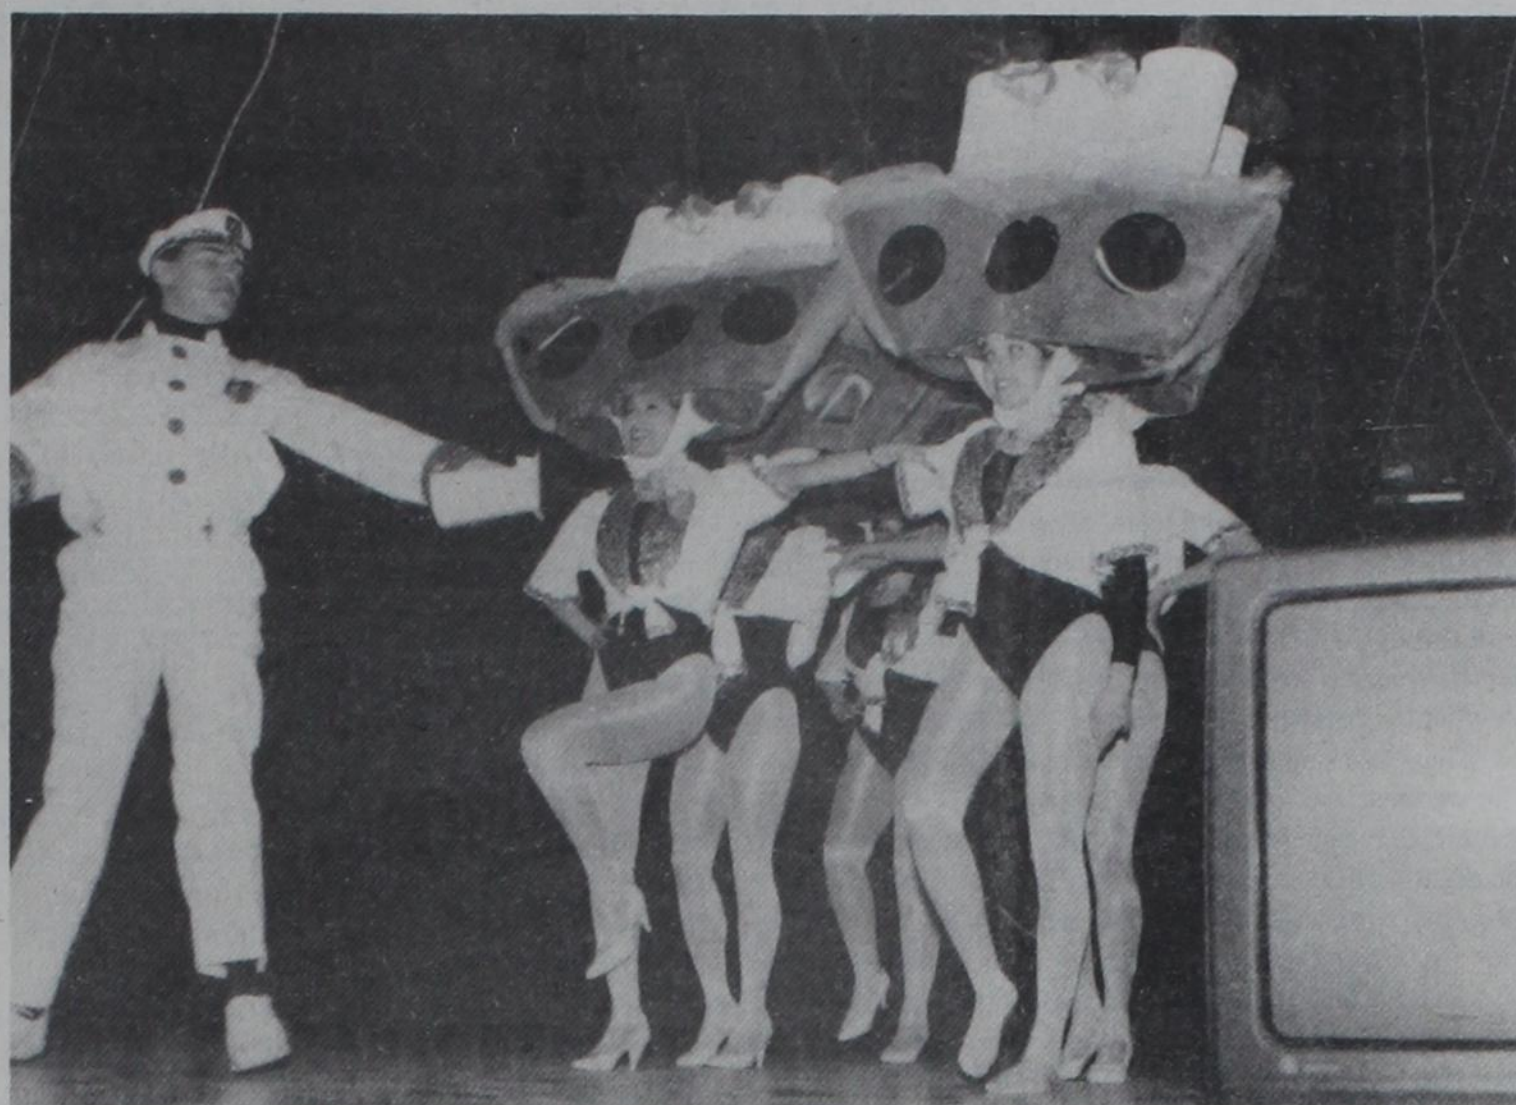

"I wanted to have a show about TV and have videos on stage."

The show follows the lives of two average Americans and how TV affects them, he said.

Calhoun said his production deals with the commercialism, absurdity and silliness of TV.

Calhoun said he loves directing.

"I have crazy ideas," he said. "I don't enjoy writing, but I love directing and writing is the only way to get the ideas out."

He said the entire cast consists of Texas Tech students, with the exception of one dancer who is in junior high.

Lila Booker, a sophomore English education major from Lockney, plays Jeannie from the sitcom "I Dream of Jeannie."

"Channel Disco" is a collaboration of a bunch of TV show characters," Booker said. "There is Jeannie, Gilligan and Oprah."

The production is very random, like a farce of TV, she said.

"Channel Disco" is a collage of different acts, scenes and different numbers," Booker said.

"It is constantly moving, there are no breaks. It is the theater of the absurd."

Booker said "Channel Disco" is a farce on how much TV audiences watch today.

It shows the outrageousness of TV, she said.

"This production is something different that is cheap and fun," Calhoun said.

Calhoun said the underlying message of his production is to stop watching so much TV and start getting out there and doing and living.

Tickets for "Channel Disco" can be purchased at Select-A-Seat or at the door for $5.50 for Tech students and $7.50 for others.

The production runs Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m.

'Frankenstein' actress searches for strong roles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Helena Bonham Carter accepted a role in "Mary Shelley's Frankenstein" after Kenneth Branagh assured her she wouldn't be just another damsel in distress.

Carter plays Elizabeth, Victor Frankenstein's adoptive sister and love interest. Branagh is the star and director.

"Kenneth assured me that we could create a strong character out of Elizabeth. He showed me only a structure of the role at first, and I accepted in a leap of faith," she said in a recent interview. "He wanted to make the love story a greater part of the overall piece, and he kept his word."

The 27-year-old actress has been looking for roles that depart from the delicate image she created in films such as "A Room With a View" and "Howard's End."

"I have been turning down a lot of offers to play ingenues because I would rather start playing women," Carter said. "What I've done in the last 18 months has really helped."

Director makes museum from Monroe's house

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The next project by Michael Ritchie, director of such movies as "The Candidate" and "Fletch," will be making a museum out of the house where Marilyn Monroe died.

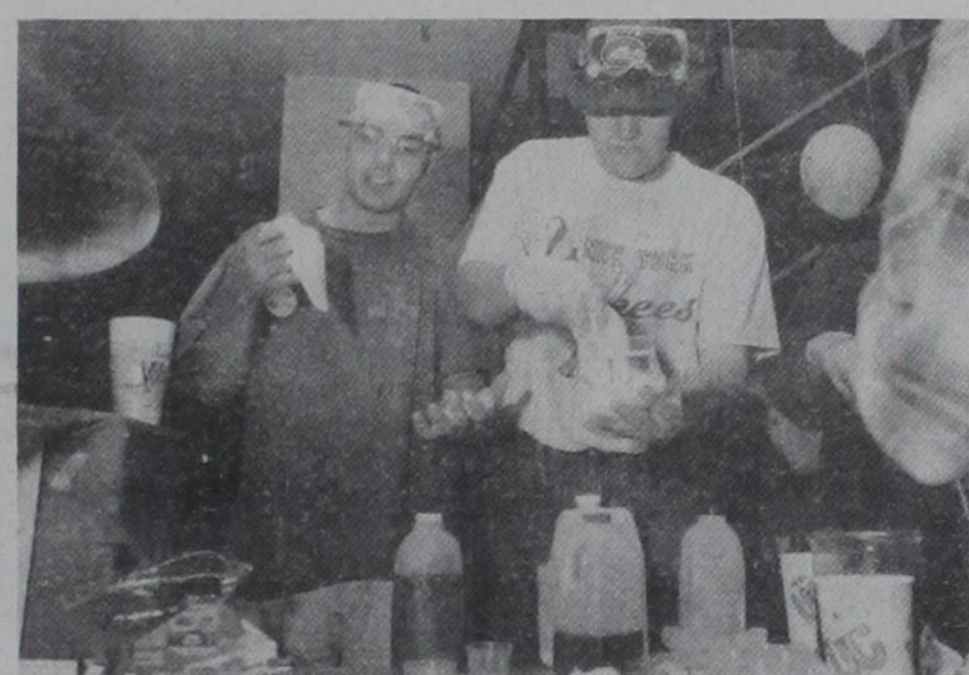

"I'm very much a preservationist," said Ritchie, who bought the secluded four-bedroom home in September for a price he wouldn't disclose.

"It is an important piece of Hollywood history."

In a telephone interview Tuesday from New York, Ritchie said he couldn't elaborate yet on his plans to open the house to the public.

He denied a report that he would probably demolish the house to build a home.

"Marilyn fans should rest easy," he said.

Spikers close out home schedule with UTA

BY JESSE MALDONADO
The University Daily

There is an old saying "The Buck Stops Here," and it has certainly stopped for the Texas Tech volleyball team as it confronts Texas-Arlington in the Red Raiders' final home match of the season at 7 p.m. today at the Student Recreation Center.

This will be the last home match for senior setter Ginger Carter, who has been under head coach Mike Jones' guidance since her arrival at Tech. In her career as a Raider, she has had many highlights, including the breaking of both of the school's assist records. Jones said he is disappointed to see Carter leave the Raiders.

"It will be her last home match as a senior, and I know for her, it will be a special thing, and I hope it is for all the players," Jones said. "She's the only senior we have. She has put a lot of time and effort in our program. It will be tough having her leave, and it's always hard to replace seniors, but when you have had someone be your quarterback for three years and run the show for you, it will be a difficult loss for us. We'll see if we can play a good one for her, considering it's her last match at home."

The Raiders enter tonight's match coming off a loss to Baylor last week. Tech's spikers are 4-5 in SWC action and 13-13 overall. The Lady Mavericks currently hold a 8-17 overall record and have a 0-4 record against SWC opponents.

Even though the Raiders hold a 7-2 advantage over the Lady Mavericks, Jones said he has seen a lot of changes in the UTA program.

"They're an improving team, they have a lot of young players that are playing now," Jones said. "They've gone through a period of readjustment with their coach. She has a better handle on what they can and can't do."

"They're a much improved team. The weekend we lost to North Texas in three, they beat North Texas in five the night before our match. They're a lot better team than we saw the last time we played them."

As a team the Raiders offense has a .154 hitting percentage. In addition, they also have converted on 1,1210 kills of 3,713 total attacks. Leading the offensive scheme is the duo of Carter and junior middle blocker Jill Slapper.

Slapper leads the team with a .242 hitting percentage and has 244 kills out of 632 total attacks.

"I think any time we can get a win right now — it will bring up our confidence," Jones said. "This is important going into Texas and the SWC tournament. I just think that the players will come out and play to win it for themselves, and that is important by itself."

After a four-match road trip, Jones said Monday at his weekly press conference that the season has been "like Jeckyl and Hyde," simply because of a rough road schedule.

"We just have to go day by day," Jones said about the type of attitude the team must carry for the remaining matches left in the season. "Right now it's been the hard part of the season for us. With all the travel the kids are very concerned about their classes, and that has put a lot of stress on them. So right now we just have to go day by day."

League, players agree to continue labor negotiations

TORONTO (AP) — A day after a seven-hour negotiating meeting, hockey players and owners decided to meet again Thursday.

While the sides didn't make any announcement, an agent, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said

Tuesday the parties had agreed to go back to the table.

The site, he said, has not yet been determined.

But the fact that talks will continue, he said, was encouraging.

Still, with no prospect of a season in sight, Toronto Maple Leafs captain Doug Gilmour said he's leaving Sunday to play in Switzerland, and the Vancouver Canucks announced staff cuts, laying off two employees. The Calgary Flames, New Jersey Devils, Dallas Stars and Winnipeg Jets already had made layoffs.

The lockout, in its 39th day, already has led the league to cancel 14 games from each team's schedule. A total of 215 scheduled games have been missed.

Until then, fans will have to be satisfied with exhibition hockey.

The NHL Players Association has organized a four-team tournament starting Thursday in Hamilton, Ontario, with proceeds going to Ronald McDonald children's charities.

Holtman treasures only year of Division I soccer

BY JARED PARCELL
The University Daily

Senior forward Amy Holtman, who lives for the sport of soccer, made her mark on the women's soccer team this season, her only chance to compete in Division I.

Her name will be etched in the record books twice, first as the player with the first assist and then as the first to score on a penalty kick.

Holtman assisted on freshman midfielder Julie Clement's goal for the first soccer in Tech history as Tech defeated Hardin-Simmons 5-0 in that game.

HOLTMAN

Holtman said the most memorable game she played in was the 3-1 loss to Texas A&M Oct. 9. She said she believes that game was a stepping stone for the Red Raider team because it was ahead 1-0 at one point.

"We played a really good game, but lost," Holtman said. "That, I think, says a lot for our program because they are a good team who just beat SMU this past weekend."

The team will continue to build for the future by recruiting during the remainder of the fall and the spring semesters. Holtman said the team will be a lot stronger next year because of the opportunity to find recruits.

In the TCU contest Sept. 15, a match that finished deadlocked 1-1 after two overtime periods, Holtman scored on Tech's only goal on the penalty kick.

Head coach Diane Nichols said her senior leadership helped her overcome pressure.

"She never missed a penalty kick, going three for three," Nichols said. "She was able to put the ball where the keeper wasn't. As a senior I think she was able to handle the pressure."

Holtman said it was an honor to be in the record books, but she was simply happy to play in Division I this season.

"They are lucky this year because Coach Nichols wasn't hired until the summer last year, and it didn't give her much of a chance to recruit," Holtman said.

Holtman, an exercise and sports science major and English minor from Katy who will graduate in May, said she wants to attend graduate school at Tech.

She said she wants to get a master's degree in sports administration and eventually move on to a career as an athletic director.

"Texas Tech women's soccer has a great future," Holtman said.

Thomas enjoys last season, hopes for more

BY BRYAN ADAMS
The University Daily

For 18 seniors on the Texas Tech football team, Saturday's game against Southwestern Louisiana will be the last home game of their college careers.

Senior free safety Bart Thomas, who returned after a year off to play with his brother Zach, is one of the players who will have his last hurrah at Jones Stadium in front of a Family Day crowd.

"This last game is definitely a motivational factor," Thomas said. "Even though we don't know much about the team we're playing, playing in front of the hometown crowd will be great."

Thomas said he probably couldn't ask for a better senior year than the one he is having.

The 4-4 Red Raiders, if they win the remaining three games on their schedule, will, at least, have a share of the Southwest Conference championship for only the second time since the Red Raiders entered the league in 1960.

The only other time the Red Raiders had that honor was a co-title with Houston in 1976.

"It has been a good senior year," Thomas said. "I think I've done all right this year. Everybody has room for improvement. If we just play well and try to win out the rest of our games, I think we have a good chance."

Should Tech win the rest of its games and Rice loses or ties one of its remaining games against Baylor and Houston, then the Red Raiders will make their first appearance in the Cotton Bowl as the SWC representative.

Tech's only appearance in the

THOMAS

Cotton Bowl came in 1939, the first-ever Cotton Bowl.

"We only have control of our own destiny," Thomas said. "I certainly hope Baylor beats Rice, but we're not in control of that."

Thomas, who has been at Tech for five years, sat out 1993 to devote more time to his family. He said he has a lot of memories in his Raider career.

"I think that two-week span of beating Baylor and Texas is probably the memory that will stick out the most," Thomas said.

"I was thinking about those two games ever since the beginning of the season. Playing with Zach has been good, too. I don't think I would have done anything differently. I guess that depends on if we win the Cotton Bowl. I would've wanted us to beat Rice this year."

Thomas, an exercise and sports sciences major, said he plans to graduate and pursue a career in coaching.

"I'm probably going into coaching and teaching on the high school level," Thomas said. "It will probably be somewhere in the Texas Panhandle."

Thomas is one of two starters in the secondary who is playing his last season of college football. Tech also loses all four starting defensive linemen to graduation.

"We'll be really good next year," Thomas said. "Especially our offense. We have a lot of good young guys coming back. On defense, they're losing some good guys, but the guys playing back-up now are good players. They'll be pretty tough next year."

Thomas said that when he is not playing football or spending time with his wife, Jill, and daughter, Taylor, he has little free time.

"Away from football I guess I'm just doing schoolwork," Thomas said. "I like to play golf a little bit, too."

Harper's knee injury not as severe as earlier feared

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys got good news from their medical staff on Tuesday: injuries suffered by wide receiver Alvin Harper and offensive lineman Derek Kennard weren't as bad as earlier feared.

Harper, who landed awkwardly trying to catch a pass as the half ended in Monday night's 38-10 victory over the New York Giants, was thought to have torn a left knee ligament. Owner Jerry Jones said he was worried Harper was gone for the season.

However, an MRI examination on Tuesday showed a sprain to the outside ligament of the knee. Harper was listed as doubtful for Sunday's game in San Francisco, but it wasn't a season-ending injury.

"I'm thrilled," said quarterback Troy Aikman. "It's the first good injury news we've had around here in a long time. There's no question there was a big sigh of relief around here."

Harper was on crutches and the Cowboys will work with rookies Cory Fleming and Willie Jackson this week in preparing for the 49ers.

"This is a very positive development," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "It's just the opposite of what the doctors told me last night. We think now that Alvin will be back soon, maybe this week. Maybe we can put Oral Roberts out there on the tower and get Alvin healed."

Harper was the Cowboys' best receiver this year. He caught a touchdown pass against the Giants, his sixth of the season, a career high.

"Alvin has been just great and we need him," Switzer said. "He's such a great leaper, you can just toss the ball up to him."

Two Aggies earn SWC Player of Week honors

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A quick start by Texas A&M against Texas got a bigger reaction out of the Aggies defense than it did from quarterback Corey Pullig.

"To see them score once, then come back and score again, really got us going," linebacker Antonio Armstrong said.

Pullig's reaction: "We always try to get up quick in a big game and make it easy for our defense."

This time, they were very successful.

Pullig completed 6-of-6 passes for 101 yards and a touchdown in the first quarter. Pullig ignited A&M to a 34-10 romp over UT and earning himself The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the week honors.

The Aggies' defense took the comfort of a 14-0 first quarter lead and bashed the Longhorns.

One of the biggest plays was a 48-yard fumble return for a touchdown by end Brandon Mitchell, the AP's SWC Defensive Player of the Week.

The Aggies had a 24-0 halftime lead and stretched it to 34-7 in the fourth quarter.

"I felt we kept a balance in the offense in the first half," said Pullig, who finished the day 13-of-21 for 161.

"That enabled me to do some other things. I don't think we've really mixed it up that much before."

Pullig is 127-of-213 passes on the season for 1,616 yards and 11 touchdowns.

For his career, the Aggies are 22-3-1 when he starts.

The only quarterbacks who won more games for A&M are Kevin Murray (25-6-1), David Walker (25-9-0) and Bucky Richardson (24-6-1).

Mitchell, a sophomore from Abbeville, La., got every lineman's thrill with the first touchdown of his college career.

Rockets stay unbeaten with win over Cavs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 21 points with 12 rebounds, seven blocks and six assists as the Rockets won their third straight game, spoiling Cleveland's regular-season debut at new Gund Arena.

Fitness/Wellness Activities

Aerobic instructor applications due

Students interested in auditioning for SRC aerobic instructor positions should note that applications are due Thursday in the Fitness/Wellness Center.

Getting to the meat of the matter

Is meat okay to eat? Do you wonder what kinds of meat are the best choices to make in the grocery store? Find out the answers to these and many other questions at the seminar 4 p.m. Thursday in SRC 201.

The Student Health Services registered dietitian will explain how necessary meat is to the diet and how to make good meat choices. No registration is required, Rec Center membership is not required. For more information, call 742-3828.

Exercise a little charity

In conjunction with the "You CAN Share Program," the rec center will be collecting canned food. The aerobics classes will use the cans as part of their aerobic workout in classes tomorrow and Saturday.

Users are encouraged to put food in the boxes located in numerous parts of the Student Recreation Center and Aquatic Center. As the weather turns colder and the holidays approach, exercise a little charity and share with the less fortunate.

Cholesterol screening next week

Physicians urge all adults to know their cholesterol and other lipid profile numbers. The rec center provides a complete lipid profile twice a semester at a very reasonable cost. It costs $8 for the total lipid profile and an additional $2 for those who also want a glucose screening.

Rec center membership is not required. Cholesterol and glucose screening will be held 6:30-8:30 a.m. Nov. 17. Please register by calling 742-3828 by Nov. 16. Be responsible for your health, take the time to learn your lipid numbers.
