BALLINGER WINS FROM MILES, 4-1

A sensational home-run by John Gurley in the second inning with two on bases brought the Ballinger team out of the game with Miles in Fair Park Thursday afternoon with a victory of 4 to 1.

The game was featured by effective hurling and remarkable fielding on the part of both teams. Dalton Mathis pitched for Ballinger, and Bauman was the moundsman for Miles.

MENARD MAN CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

MENARD, June 15.—James L. Barham, 29, former bookkeeper in the First National Bank here, is recovering from an alleged suicide attempt occasioned by apprehension of embezzlement of $15,442, to which charge it is said that he has confessed.

Barham had been in the bank three and a half years, coming here from Fort Worth. His bond at the bank was only $5,000, made by a bonding company. He had previously lived in Kansas City, and his parents now reside in San Angelo.

He had been taking the money over the period of his employment, keeping a dummy set of sheets and juggling the books. Shortly after bank examiners took the books in charge this week, Barham is said to have left a note for his wife saying that he was trapped and was taking the best way out. Physicians saved his life after he had taken strychnine, it is said.

A charge of embezzlement was filed against Barham in federal court at San Angelo. He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by a justice of the peace here.

NEW ATLANTIS THEORY IS ADVANCED BY GEOLOGIST

(By International News Service)

STOCKHOLM, June 15.—A new theory of the "lost continent" of Atlantis has been advanced here by the well-known geologist, Professor Arvid Hoegbom, of Upsala, who maintains that the land is not to be sought in Africa or off the Moroccan coast, as many have believed, but in the North Sea.

Geologists have ascertained that there was a land connection between England and the Netherlands at one time. Prof. Hoegbom believes that thorough investigation will prove that this land-link is the "Atlantis" that history has made famous.

CURTIS NOMINATED G.O.P. VICE-PRESIDE

(By International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, June 15.—Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, was nominated candidate for vice-president on the Republican ticket at 2 o'clock this afternoon by acclamation, after other candidates for the nomination withdrew from the race.

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—It will be Hoover and Curtis.

This Republican ticket for 1928 appeared virtually certain half an hour before the national convention met at noon today to complete its work.

Powerful delegations from New York and Pennsylvania caucused solidly for Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. Coupled with Kansas and Middle West strength, this appeared sufficient to win for Curtis the vice-presidential nomination.

Herbert Hoover is understood to have given the convention a free hand in naming his running mate. However, he limited the acceptable list to about a dozen names.

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—Senator George H. Moses called the sixth session of the Republican National Convention to order at noon sharp, but had considerable difficulty in bringing to order the delegates who were caucusing informally on the floor.

New Jersey spokesmen announced that its 31 votes would go to Senator Curtis on the first vice-presidential vote, and that their candidate, Senator Edge, would second Senator nominating speech for Senator Charles Curtis. Senator Moses was huddled with Senators Smoot. After conference minutes, Borah stepped down from the platform. "It's all over."

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—Herbert Hoover today called for a vote of appreciation for the honor conferred upon him, and selected by fellow countrymen shall give the best within advance the moral and welfare of all our people and uphold the traditions of the public party so effectively exemplified by Calvin Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Replying to telegraphed congratulations from President Coolidge, Secretary Hoover today wired: "I am greatly touched by your telegram. During the last several years you have given me the greatest remitting friendship, and my greatest hope is that it will continue to sustain me in this task. Your high sense of duty and your devotion to public service will be before me as an inspiration."

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 15.—President Coolidge, spending his summer vacation here, today wired congratulations to Herbert Hoover on his nomination for the presidency.

"You have been nominated for the most important position in

4-H MEMBERS
VISIT AT CISCO
MODEL FARM

Forty-five club members of the county, headed by C. W. Lehmburg, county agent, and Mrs. Lara Hollingsworth, home demonstration agent, made an all-day inspection trip to the R. Q. Lee model farm at Cisco Thursday.

The motoreade left Ballinger at 8 o'clock, and was joined at Winters by the members residing in the northern section of the county. Reaching Cisco at 10:15 o'clock, the group spent the remainder of the morning inspecting the model farm. The system of terraces and the plan of crop rotations on the farm were especially stressed by the county agent.

The early part of the afternoon was devoted to livestock judging by individual club members. Two classes of Jersey cattle, one class of hogs, and one class of poultry were judged. County Agent Lehmburg closely supervised the livestock judging program, as he is planning to enter teams in the contests at the A. & M. College short course.

The club members were guests of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce at 3 o'clock, at which time they enjoyed a recreation hour motorboat riding and swimming in the lake. Dinner was spread picnic style at the big dam.

The Ballinger and Winters cotton oil mills offered $15 in prizes, first prize $10, and second $5, for the best essays on the trip by club members. First prize was augmented $5 by the Cisco Chamber of Commerce.

H. W. Lynn, manager of the Ballinger oil mill, and the manager of the Winters plant, each provided a car for the trip.

A special livestock judging team to compete in the short course contests is being trained at Miles, Mr. Lehmburg announced, and members of the team are Will Wright, Fred Edwards, Melburn Wright, and James Wright.

the world," the message read. "Your great ability and wide experience will enable you to serve our party and country with marked distinction. I wish you all the success your heart could desire. May God continue to bestow upon you the power to do your duty."

Mrs. Coolidge also wired congratulations to Mrs. Hoover.

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—The new dynasty of Republican leaders who have taken hold of the party are endeavoring today to pick a running mate for Herbert Hoover, nominated for the presidency on the first ballot last night.

Numerous conferences between leaders were held last night but they failed to develop identity of the choice. Governor Frank O. Lowden's bitter valetictory, when he withdrew his name from consideration last night because he could not stand on the platform adopted, is causing apprehension among the leaders.

It is feared that Lowden's action will have a great bearing on agricultural region votes.

In the session last night, Hoover received 837 of the 1084 votes cast, with 545 necessary for the choice. Other votes were distributed as follows: Curtis, 64; Watson, 45; Dawes, 4; Coolidge, 17; Norris, 24; Hughes, 1; Goff, 18; Lowden, 74.

Chairman Moses declared Hoover the Republican nominee for president. Governor Paulen of Kansas moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and the motion was seconded by the Oklahoma delegation. Then Chairman Moses put the question and the nomination was made unanimous officially, although there were some "nos" from the Wisconsin delegation.

Hoover stands on a platform built around the Coolidge policies, promising farm relief without mention of the equalization fee, and pledging strict enforcement of the prohibition law.

Meeting of the convention last night was merely one of ratification, for Hoover for many hours had held a sufficient number of delegates to overwhelm all opposition.

BOSTON, June 15.—Governor Alvan T. Fuller, whose name was mentioned in connection with the vice-presidency on the Republican ticket, declared today: "I'm not a candidate for any office."

Supporters of Governor Fuller inaugurated a campaign for his nomination as soon as Hoover's victory was generally conceded. Fuller indicated no reason for his preferring not to be considered a candidate.

Captain Trainor's Girl

By WILTON SPEAR

(Copyright)

IT WAS in Capt. Jimmy Trainor's stateroom that Hilary Brook first saw the girl's picture. It was in a gold frame, that encircled the laughing face, with its large eyes, cloudy mist of short hair and perfect throat. Hilary glanced at the picture again and again and then looked long at the tall, slender form of the captain with a sharp, handsome face and trim, small, black moustache.

"Is that your wife, captain?" asked Hilary who had not known him very long.

The captain shook his head: "My wife died ten years ago," he murmured. "You are looking at that picture—that's my girl—my very best girl."

"Indeed?" remarked Hilary, rather surprised. "She is beautiful, captain. I congratulate you."

The captain stared at him for an instant. "Thank you," he said dully.

A week later they landed and went their ways, Capt. Jimmy Trainor going to his home near the ocean while Hilary Brook went to New York city where his business was located. Captain Trainor was now retiring from his seafaring life, and because a legacy recently inherited made it possible for him to remain ashore and engage himself in the affairs of his real estate holdings, sometimes time dragged heavily upon the man who had spent such a busy life. To him one day came his charming daughter, Leslie.

"Father," she said, sitting down on the top step of the porch and lifting lovely gray eyes to his, "I met the most charming man today—"

"What was his name?"

"Hilary Brook."

"I know him, Leslie."

"Some one at Mrs. Alison's began to introduce us when he smiled charmingly and said 'Captain Trainor has told me about you—I saw your picture,' and as Mrs. Alison went away, he added, 'Please permit me to wish you happiness.' I murmured thanks—and since then I have been wondering!"

The captain threw back his head and laughed. "He was staring at your picture so much that I told him that it was my girl, never thinking that he would take it any other way than that it was my daughter. We must have him out here some day—fine fellow."

Leslie Trainor was silent, for her meeting with Hilary Brook had made a deep impression upon her. She had many admirers and was as popular as she was beautiful. She cherished a saying of her lovely mother when she was a small girl: "When you love, Leslie, love surely, truly, because love lasts forever." Perhaps that was why at twenty-two Leslie Trainor had never really loved any man excepting her father. And now this vision of Hilary Brook haunted her, stayed with her.

"Is this love?" she asked herself one day, and blushed hotly.

After that she met Hilary several times but as he seemed to avoid her, Leslie tried to forget him. She had put him in back of her thoughts and was very gay and young, when suddenly Brook went back to the city again. It was some weeks afterward that Captain Trainor went to the city on business and ran across Hilary Brook at his club.

"Why don't you come out and see us sometimes?" asked the captain. "Leslie says she met you around at places in our neighborhood."

"Thank you, I will come out some time," said Brook rather vaguely. "I met your fiancée—she is more lovely than her picture."

The captain stared owlishly at him. "Come out soon Brook, make a definite date."

So Brook rather reluctantly promised to come out the following Saturday for the week-end, and Captain Trainor was amused when he asked if Captain Trainor was married yet.

"No," said the captain heartily, "indefinitely postponed, Brook."

Brook's coming was a surprise to Leslie. She had been sitting on the front veranda, facing the sea with wistful hazel eyes on the far horizon, when she heard a pleasant voice that was rather familiar, and there stood Brook in his gray clothes, his face rather grave and troubled.

"Is Captain Trainor at home?" he asked her.

"I believe he is in his study. Won't you sit down?" In response to her ring, a maid servant came and went and a moment afterward Captain Trainor was shaking hands with his guest.

"Have you met my daughter?" asked Captain Trainor, and in another moment Brook was leaning over Leslie's trembling hand.

Brook lifted his head, threw back his shoulders and faced the captain.

"When you showed me that picture, captain, you said it was your best girl—and I really thought you meant your fiancée—I did not know that you had a daughter," he bowed to Leslie, his face all of happy light.

"She is the only girl I shall ever have," said the captain simply, and then he looked at Leslie and found her looking at him with a sweet tremulous smile.

That is the way it happened that Hilary Brook married Captain Trainor's girl.

Scientists to Get Petroleum From Soft Coal

By Burl A. Ely
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, June 15.—The recent announcement that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the German dye trust known as the I. G. Farben Industrie, were about to establish an experimental station jointly in this country for the purpose of developing the process of manufacturing synthetic petroleum from coal, was characterized as "somewhat mystifying" by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology in an interview here today.

Dr. Baker, who organized the first International Conference on Bituminous Coal, which was held at the Institute in 1926, recently returned from Europe where he has been engaged in preparations for the second International Coal Congress to be held at Carnegie Tech next November.

The announcement of the joint experimental station was mystifying, Dr. Baker stated, insofar as there is confidence that the supply of natural petroleum is sufficient for many years. This, he said, is general and certain.

Look Far Ahead

Presumably, however, Dr. Baker said, the Standard Oil Company is looking far into the future and is preparing itself for any eventuality.

"There is a possibility," he added "that its plans for research and its engagement with the German company have to do with studies other than the liquefaction of coal."

"However," Dr. Baker went on, it would seem that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey does not propose to be caught napping, and the establishment of a great research plant may be taken to indicate that the Standard Oil interests have reached the conclusion that the oil industry needs the help of scientific men.

Coal to Oil

"The American public first became aware that it was possible to turn coal into petroleum at the time of the first Carnegie Coal Congress in 1926 when Dr. Friedrich Bergius, the German scientist, read his paper on the hydrogenation of coal," Dr. Baker stated.

"The war stimulated very greatly the efforts to find a substitute for natural petroleum."

It was not until after the war, however, that the production of synthetic petroleum actually got underway to any extent. The German dye trust took over the Bergius patents, modified them some and at the present time the production of synthetic petroleum is being carried out on a large scale.

The manufacture of the new product and the further development of the process is now in the hands of Dr. Karl Krauch, a director of the dye trust, according to Dr. Baker. Dr. Krauch will come to the United States next fall and will be one of the speakers at the second International Conference on Bituminous Coal next November.

Shots Fly While Fred Thomson Hangs in Air

Suspended in mid-air in a tiny bucket, while pot shots are taken at him, is not the pleasantest situation Fred Thomson finds himself in his latest Paramount production, entitled "The Sunset Legion," showing today and Saturday at the Palace Theatre. To make this uncomfortable situation all the more enjoyable to Thomson's enemies, a chance shot breaks the cable, and Fred comes tumbling down, only to save himself in such a manner that goes to make up this latest endeavor of the western star one of the best he has ever done.

"The Sunset Legion" is strikingly different than any previous success of the western star. He plays a dual role, and the contrast serves to brighten up the picture no little. As the Whitting Cowboy, a nondescript character of the plains, Thomson gives cause for many laughs, and as the Black Masked rider, he gives the audience all it seeks in the way of thrills.

Silver King, if it can be said, also plays a dual role, although this is not made known in the picture. As the nondescript cowboy, Thomson rides Silver King into the mining town playing a jews harp. Now and then Silver King pauses to do a regular equine Black Bottom. As Thomson could not perform the tricks he is called upon to perform in the picture with any other horse, a suit of black cloth was fitted to the horse.

ENERGY EQUAL TO 10,000 TONS OF COAL WILL COST 1 CENT

CHICAGO, June 15.—Ten thousand tons of coal, enough to heat an ordinary home for 500 years, for a penny.

That this will become a reality is indicated by the work of Prof. William D. Harkins, of the University of Chicago, who was recently awarded the William Gibbs gold medal for research achievements.

Prof. Harkins' experiments have indicated that some day scientists may be able to convert one pound of chemically manufactured hydrogen, costing one cent, into enough energy to heat an ordinary house for five hundred years, and equal to the burning of ten thousand tons of coal.

RAY, FORMER CITIZEN ELECTED BY DRUGGISTS

John B. Ray, general manager of the McEmore-Bass Drug Company of Abilene, and former employe of the City Drug Store here, was elected second vice-president of the state druggists' association at the convention in Abilene Thursday. Mr. Ray resided here a number of years prior to moving to Abilene, where he became a stockholder in the firm with which he is now connected. Knox Pittard of Anson was elected president of the organization.

Three local drug stores were represented by one or more delegates during the convention. The Ballinger representation included F. M. Pearce, Howard Faulkner, John A. Weeks, Geo. P. Holman, Russell Seitz, Frank Reese, Felton Davidson, R. W. Earnshaw, and Homer Sykes.

A distinct honor was paid John Weeks Earnshaw, 8-month-old grandson of John A. Weeks, when he was elected honorary member of both the drug travelers' association and the retail druggists' association. He is the youngest member of the associations of the state.

"It was the most orderly convention that I have ever attended," said John A. Weeks, who has been a member of the Texas association 29 years. "Not only did the Abilene druggists do all in their power to entertain the delegates, but also the Abilene Chamber of Commerce and the citizenship of Abilene spared no efforts in extending a most cordial welcome to the assembly. It is my opinion that it was as successful a convention as was ever held."

Principal speakers at the various sessions were Dr. J. W. Hunt and Judge Stinson of Abilene, and Charlie Coombs, ex-mayor of Abilene. "The Hired Hand," of WRAP fame, and "The Mayor of Eskota" were also present.

More than 1,000 registered for the convention, the largest representation in the history of the organization, with the exception of a convention held in Dallas a few years ago. More than 300 drug salesmen also registered. The attendance this year was far in excess of the average convention.

The daily programs of the meeting were carried out in their entirety. Two banquets with an attendance of more than 1,200 were provided, and two dances, one at the Hilton Hotel and the other at Lytle Beach.

Druggists from the most remote points in Texas were present, the prize for the delegate coming the longest distance going to an Edinburg druggist, who drove 585 miles for the convention. Beeville, Beaumont, Texarkana, and El Paso were also represented.

Hon. Samuel C. Henry, secretary of the National Association of Retail Druggists, with headquarters in Chicago, made several professional lectures during the regular sessions of the convention. Mr. Henry is probably the best known drug man in the nation, and much valuable information was presented in his talks it was said.

The ladies' auxiliary of the association was entertained throughout the convention by Abilene members of the auxiliary. The entertainment program of the auxiliary included rides over the city, luncheons, and bridge parties.

Chief contenders for the 1929 convention were Fort Worth and Waco. The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce contributed materially to the success of the Abilene convention, and offered 3,000 hotel rooms in the heart of the city for the next convention. Houston made application for the 1930 meeting. The executive committee will compare applications, and rule on the convention city for the coming year at some future date.

Prizes aggregating approximately $1,000 in merchandise were contributed by various drug supply manufacturers of the nation.

OLD FRENCH SOLDIERS ASK GOVT TO PROVIDE TOBACCO ALLOWANCE

(By International News Service)
PARIS, June 15.—Just one last smoke before we fade away.

This is the plea of veterans of the war of 1870. The old soldiers, who call themselves veterans of "the last before the last war" have petitioned the ministry of war for a tobacco allowance.

"We're not particular," the petition says. "The cheapest pipe mixture will do, just soldiers' tobacco."

Some time ago an $8 pension was proposed but subsequently forgotten in the more pressing problems of the "last war."

The ministry of war has referred the petition to the ministry of finance.

WEDDING BELLS

Miller-Sledge
The marriage of Miss Nettie Routh Sledge and Charles S. Miller was solemnized at eight o'clock Thursday morning in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Sledge, on Broadway, in the presence of relatives and close friends of the young couple.

A large window in the living room had been banked with ferns and stately white lilies in tall floor baskets and it was here the marriage vows were taken with Rev. Alvin O. Rue, pastor of the Eighth Street Presbyterian Church, officiating, using the impressive ring ceremony. Daisies and sweet peas also adorned the rooms.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Ruth Holliday sang "I Love You, Truly," with Miss Dorothy Chancey playing the violin obligato, accompanied by Mrs. Otwell Layton of Fort Worth.

The bride and groom entered unattended to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. During the ceremony, Mrs. Layton and Miss Chancey softly played Lange's "Flower Song."

The bride was looking especially lovely in a new blue suit with smart accessories in harmonizing tones with corsage of sweet peas and rosebuds with maiden hair fern.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller left immediately after the ceremony in their car for El Paso, Artesia, and Carlsbad Caverns. They will return in ten days or two weeks and will make their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller are both members of prominent Ballinger families and were born and reared here, where they have made hosts of friends to wish them well.

NATURE OF PHIL COLEMAN CONCERT

Forest R. Rees, manager, and Joe Wood, assistant manager, for the celebrated singer, Phil Coleman, who will appear at the Palace Theatre next Tuesday night, were in Ballinger Thursday finalizing arrangements for the concert.

Mr. Rees mingled with prominent citizens in order to ascertain certain points which would be considered in staging a Phil Coleman concert here. He decided to place the admission price at seventy-five cents general admission instead of asking an amount too high for the expectancy of having a packed house for the great singer. Finding the general desire of the public to favor the selection of songs which are somewhat well-known in musical circles in Ballinger, Mr. Rees said that Mr. Coleman will sing as his opening number the prize song "Neptune," by Stanley Gordon, which was the song by which Phil Coleman won the Royal Gold Medal. In "Neptune" Mr. Coleman will be forced to sing a B flat below low C. Other heavy numbers will be "The Heart Bowed Down," from the opera Bohemian Girl, also the "Evening Star," from Tannhauser. These two are rated as the best believed of operatic heart songs. The remaining songs will be such as "The Trumpeter," "Annie Laurie," "On the Road to Mandalay," "Loch Lomond," and Harry Lauder's popular "I Love a Lassie." There will also be several of the sea type songs, such as "Roll On, Thou Deep and Dark Blue Ocean," "A Thousand Leagues," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." As final encores the more popular songs will be given. While Mr. Coleman often uses the great arias from grand operas, and includes foreign languages in his songs, it was thought advisable to sing his entire concert here in English.
