

Summer program helps migrant students keep up

By RICK WHITE

Georgia Pena has been surprised by the success of Project SMART, a summer school program for the children of migrant workers.

Bouncing from school to school during the harvest season, migrant children have difficulty keeping up at school, said Pena, director of special programs for the Muleshoe Independent School District.

"This gives them a constructive place to go while their parents are working, as well as furthering their learning," Pena said. "We're trying to keep the kids caught up."

Between 40-50 children a day attended the month-long program held at DeShazo elementary school.

The federally-funded program is a joint effort between the MISD and the Texas Education Agency Migrant Education

"We expected a surge at the beginning, and then it would drop off," Pena said. "But it hasn't. Many of the kids didn't miss a day."

Because of the unexpected numbers, the program was understaffed and had to rely heavily on volunteers like 72-year-old Josie Baca, who like the students, rarely missed a day.

Baca quickly became a student favorite because of her old-fashion, grandmotherly way.

"It's been beautiful to

KING OF THE HILL

■ Volunteers backbone of community theatre

Toni King remembers playing in the sandbox as a kid.

The sandbox has just gotten a lot bigger.

King, who this week turned eight truckloads of sand into a reincarnation of the sand hills, is one of dozens of behind-the-scene volunteers that have made "Keepers of the Legend" a success.

The outdoor musical, written by local author Paula Paul, begins its third season Friday at the Muleshoe Heritage Center.

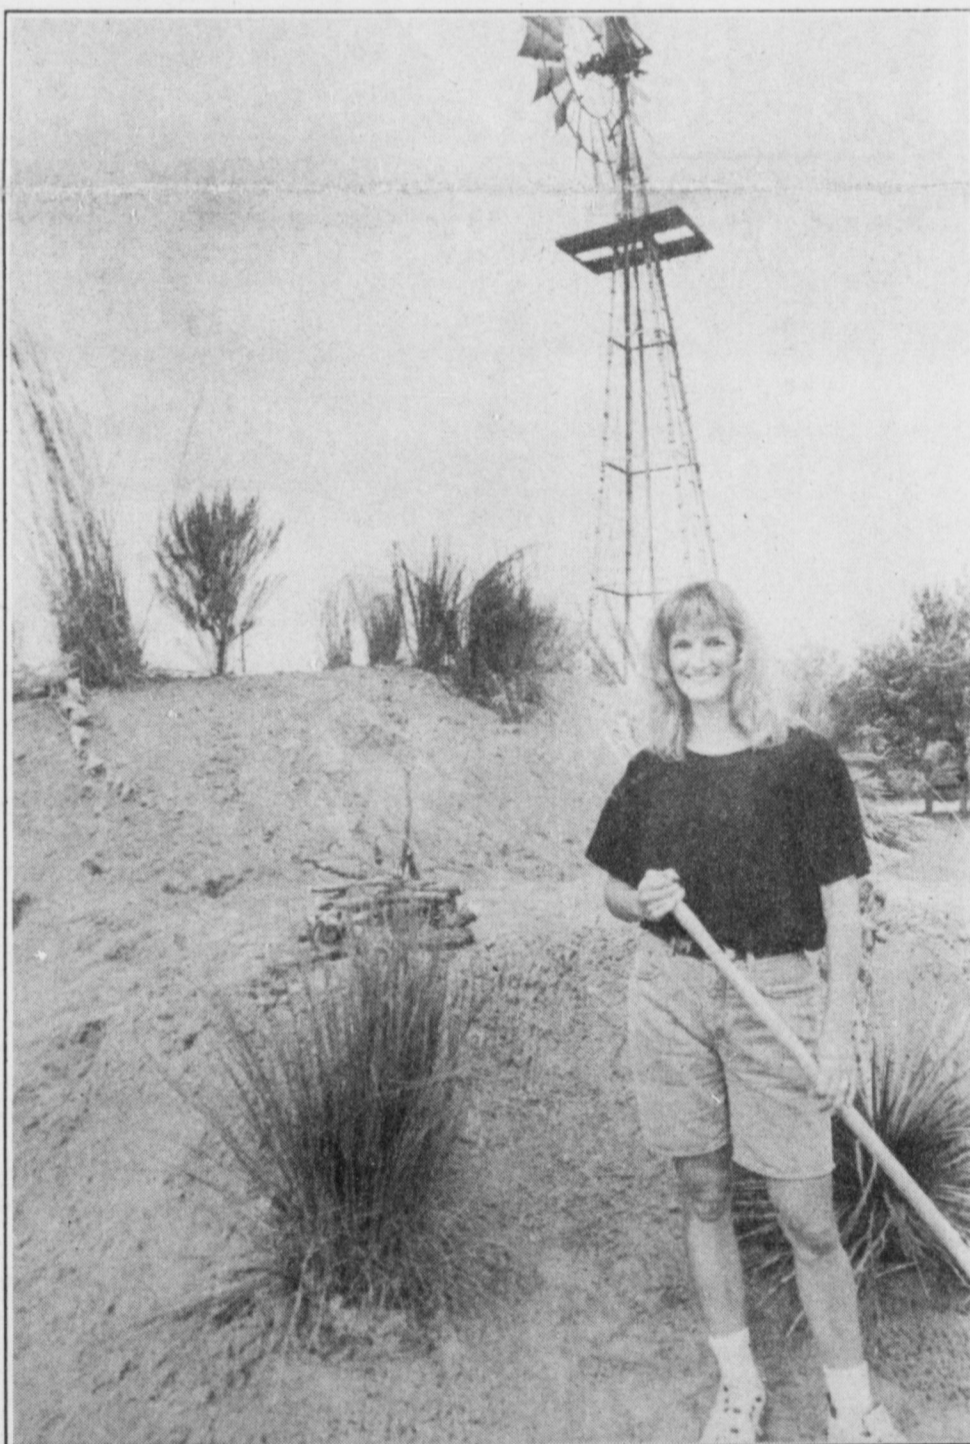

Working in the sweltering afternoon heat Thursday, King unloaded native plants and shrubs that she "borrowed" from the sand hills south of Muleshoe from the back of her pickup.

"I'm just trying to make it look as realistic as I can," King said. "It's amazing how many different plants are out there."

The 15-foot-high sand hills replica King is building is not only for decoration, but serves as a stage for several scenes in the play.

After each of four performances, King will rake and repair any minor damage that might

Combest gives budget approval

WASHINGTON — The $94 billion tax-cut plan that breezed through Congress will benefit farmers and ranchers, according to U.S. Rep. Larry Combest.

The Senate approved the measure Thursday, a day after the House overwhelmingly passed the bill. It now goes to President Clinton, who is expected to sign it.

The Clinton administration and Republican leaders of Congress agreed on a plan aimed at cutting taxes and balancing the budget in the next five years.

The accord includes reductions in real estate and capital gains taxes for small businesses and family farms.

"The death tax changes...the capital gains reductions...when you add all these together, there are very significant dollars in here for the average West Texas farm family," said Combest, who sits on the House Agricultural Committee.

Combest detailed several specific provisions for agriculture:

- Immediate increase in the death tax exemption at $1.3 million for closely-held family farms and small businesses (equalling a $2.6 million exemption) when filing as a couple. The standard exemption includes phases-in up to $1 million.

- Recognizing the use of three-year income averaging beginning in the 1998 tax year for all farm income.

- Exempting, beginning in 1998 tax year, family farms and small businesses with gross receipts less than $5 million from the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT). The law also clarified to apply AMT exemption calculated on installment payments sales to all farmers.

Man dies from gunshot wound

A 41-year-old Muleshoe man died Tuesday, the result of an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Police found Gary Hanks at about 5:30 p.m. in a back room at his parents' house on YL Road at with a gunshot wound to the head. He was transported to Muleshoe Area Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead about an hour later.

A .22 caliber pistol was recovered near the body, according to Bailey County Sheriff Jerry Hicks.

Police believe he had been drinking.

Hanks was employed as a construction worker and had lived in the Muleshoe area all his life.

have occurred that night.

King said sometimes she might even change things a little from one performance to the next.

"I'm like any woman, I like to move things around," she said.

King said she enjoys working with her hands and also enjoys working with the children, who serve mostly as extras in the play.

The sand hills are only one of several props used in the play, which is a historical drama about incorporation of Bailey County set in the early 1900s.

The play also includes seven horses, a mule and a dog and incorporates the Burlington and Santa Fe trains that runs within 200 yards of the stage.

That's what gives outdoor plays their character, said "Keepers of the Legend" director Sally Messenger.

Usually, at least one train comes by during the performance.

"I remember one year, one of the ladies in the audience was so disappointed because a train didn't come by that night," Messenger said. "Another year, a turtle started walked across the stage."

"That's the reason outdoor theatre is so successful," Messenger said. "If you moved our play indoors, it would lose a lot of the mystique."

THE COWBOY WAY

BAXTER
BLACK
ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

A good cowboy will go beyond the call of duty and even put himself in harm's way to help a suffering beast.

Doug and Patty run a ranch in that big wide country in eastern New Mexico. Last spring they'd received several loads of cow/calf pairs. The weather was against 'em and the calves went to scourin'.

The cows were turned out in a big pasture. Treating the calves wasn't easy. The morning of the incident, their neighbor, Caleb, came to help. He was ridin' a big mule. They trailed through the cows and spotted a good sized calf lookin' humped up.. They watched for a minute and confirmed he was, in fact, afflicted.

Doug eased up and dropped a lazy loop around his neck.

It is a strange but almost predictable occurrence that a calf who appears to be on the edge of his last breath can suddenly become a dynamo of jackrabbit speed and mad dog energy when suddenly caught with a rope.

Doug pulled the horn knot tight on his saddle as the calf slashed back and forth like a 200 pound marlin on the end of his line. Caleb was haulin' back on his mule to get outta the way. Not in time. The calf went around the outside of the mule and dang near toppled him before they jumped clear. The mule took off in high gear! Caleb was mashin' on the brakes. You could smell 'em burnin' as he disappeared over a swell.

Doug kept his pony facin' the calf till it tangled the rope in some brush.

"Quick, Patty," Doug instructed. "Flank him and give him a Sudafed and some L.A. 200!"

Patty, who's a good cowboy herself, dismounted, went down the rope and flanked the calf just as the calf's mamma arrived, registering her disapproval. She was blowin' snot as Patty maneuvered around tryin' to keep the calf between herself and his mama.

Doug saw Caleb out of his peripheral vision, racing back to the scene. "Great", he thought. "Help's on the way."

The mule was still outta control, on auto pilot, so to speak. He never slowed but jumped the stretched rope like a steeple chaser. Caleb never shifted in his seat and disappeared out the other direction.

Patty had managed to give the shot and peel off the rope but the cow gave her a good roll anyway before chasing off after her darlin' baby.

I was lookin' at Patty while Doug was tellin' me this story. She nodded with that resigned look I often see in ranch women's eyes.

I said, "By gosh, Doug. Yer a heck'uva cowboy. You did all that and never got off yer horse."

"Yup," he said, "I was trainin' him."

Cattlemen's short course Aug. 11-13

COLLEGE STATION — More than 100 specialists and cattle industry experts will conduct a Beef Cattle short course Aug. 11-13 at Texas A&M University.

The popular Cattlemen's College Aug. 11 offers more than 50 hours of basic, intermediate and advanced courses in pastures and ranges, health, nutrition, selection and genetics, management, marketing, economics, and cattle judging.

There will also be a session dealing with producing and marketing top quality calves for stockers, feeders, packers and retailers.

The main program, "Challenges to Beef Producers," begins Aug. 12.

The A&M Meat Science section will define quality, consistency and value by taking a beef carcass apart on stage to illustrate the higher and lower valued part of the carcass for total value determination.

Rob and Donnell Brown will lead off describing breeding and management programs for environmentally suited cows and discuss how to produce high-performance, money-making calves.

One of the newest marketing concepts in producing top

Other "Opportunity Section" speakers include Jim Williams and Bob Hudgins, discussing the maternal attributes of bull selection as they try to identify superior sires for performance and carcass characteristics.

Producer panelists will offer insight on how small, mid-sized, and large beef producers can produce and market their product Aug. 13.

Fungicide for sorghum approved

LUBBOCK— A crisis exemption allowing area grain sorghum producers to use Tilt fungicide to control sorghum leaf blight has been issued by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The disease in sorghum fields across the Texas High Plains has been brought on by unusually wet and cool weather early in the growing season, said Dr. Harold Kaufman, associate professor and plant pathologist with the Texas Agriculture extension Service here.

"Showers and cooler temperatures being predicted for the area will favor additional infection," Kaufman said. "Protection of the youngest foliage, critical to grain filling, is very important. Heavy foliage infection before head emergence can cause yield losses of 50%. Heavy leaf foliage infection after flowering will cause minimal yield loss."

Use of the fungicide, with certain restrictions, was authorized to begin July 28 in 45 counties, including Bailey, Castro, Cochran, and Parmer.

Kaufman cautioned that a crisis exemption is currently in effect for the use of Tilt to control sorghum ergot, another disease. He warned that no more than 12 fluid ounces of Tilt can be used per acre in one season to control both sorghum ergot and sorghum leaf blight.

By Aug. 12, TDA will submit an application for a specific exemption for the use of Tilt.

We wish to convey our deepest appreciation to all our friends and family who came to our aid at such a difficult time.

During his illness and since the death of Joe T. Gonzales, loving husband, father, businessman, and friend, a steady stream of calls, cards, visitors, prayers, and gifts of food and flowers has continued to our home on a daily basis. For this we are eternally grateful. We knew how special Joe T. was to all of us and with such an outpouring of affection and sympathy we now know what he meant to all of you.

Joe T. Gonzales was such a great man in his very short 64 years. He gave us all so much to cling to just as he took a part of us with him. He wanted to watch over us constantly but couldn't as he would have liked to in life. But now as our guardian angel we can trust that he will be with us and help guide us through these our most trying times. We won't have to worry about him missing out on anything now. He's here with us to share every joy and heartache. Our minds will continue to select fond memories of the time we spent together as a family - those moments large and small: late Sunday breakfast, barbecues, trips and long talks. Though we'll miss him, it is so comforting to know he is in a world of no pain, no sickness, no suffering, no sadness, no darkness, no worries, a much better place than we are in.

We just can't say enough about what all of you have meant to us - strangers and friends. We wish we could tell each one of you in person but unfortunately time does not permit. So, for all those we have mentioned and those we may have forgotten, please accept our apology and our sincerest Thank You.

From his loving wife Carolyn Gonzales, Amanda, Lizz, Jackie, Ronnie, Sueanne, and T.J.

EPA underground storage tank initiative announced

The Environmental Protection Agency today announced the results of a nationwide enforcement initiative aimed at identifying and correcting violations of state and EPA regulations requiring the use of approved leak detection methods at underground storage tank (UST) facilities.

There are about one million federally regulated USTs in use in the United States.

Over the past nine years, more than 320,000 UST releases have been confirmed. EPA estimates that about 60 percent of these releases have affected groundwater, the source of drinking water for half of all Americans. States have reported that USTs are the most common contaminant.

During May 1997, states and EPA inspected 10,050 facilities, including gasoline stations and truck and bus fleet refueling facilities.

A total of 3,192 facilities were found in violation of release detection requirements.

Most of the facilities inspected are privately owned, but some are owned by federal, state, or local government agencies.

In most cases, the owners were not immediately penalized but are expected to take action to install or perform release detection and keep records in accordance with state and federal requirements.

In approximately 400 cases, however, states and EPA proposed or collected fines ranging from $50 to $300,000. The largest fines were assessed where owners had a history of noncompliance or where violations posed significant threats to health and the environment.

XIT Ranch exhibit opens in Canyon

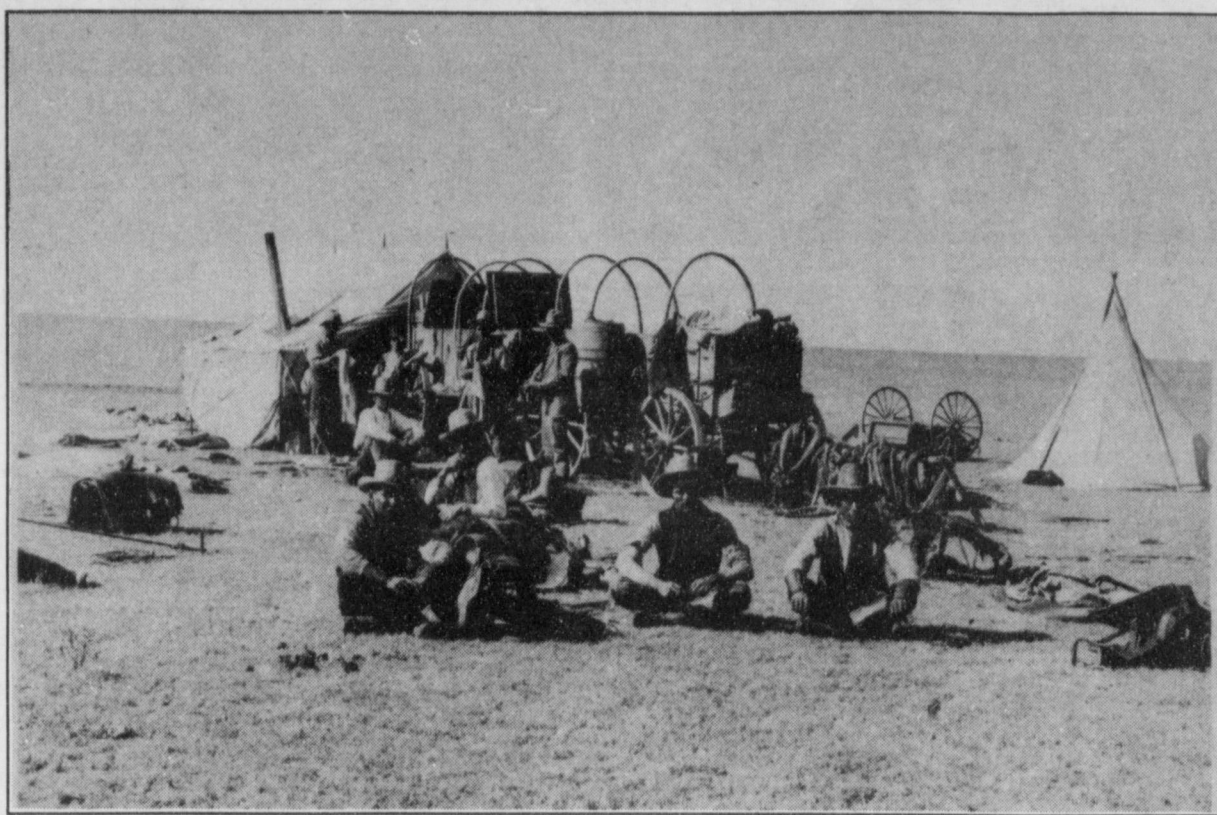

CANYON — The XIT Ranch of Texas, which was the largest fenced cattle ranch in the world, will come alive again when the exhibit, "XIT: the Ranch That Built the Texas Capitol" opens Aug. 8 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

The exhibit will remain on display there until January, 1998.

The creation of the XIT Ranch resulted from a bargain made in 1882 by the State of Texas with a Chicago firm that agreed to build the present Texas Capitol in exchange for three million acres of land in the Texas Panhandle. This unique arrangement resulted because Texas had little cash by much public land in the 1880s, and needed a new, larger Capitol building.

The Chicago company, better known as the Capitol Syndicate, initially consisted of Abner Taylor, Amos C. Babcock, Charles B. Farwell and John V. Farwell.

In 1885, the Syndicate established a ranch on the land, which was located along the Texas-New Mexico boundary in a strip about 200 miles long and 25-30 miles wide. The Farwells later purchased Babcock's and Taylor's interests in the ranch and continued to operate it until 1912.

To raise money to operate the ranch and complete the Texas Capitol, John V. Farwell went to England and established the Capitol Freehold Land & Investment Company, Ltd., in 1885. The joint stock company sold bonds to borrow money for the Texas projects.

Beginning in 1901, the XIT land were sold to ranchmen and farmers for money to redeem the bonds. The debt finally was paid off in 1909 and the British company liquidated in 1915.

The Farwells operated one of the largest wholesale dry goods firms in Chicago and operated the XIT Ranch in strict accordance with business methods of the period. The XIT became one of the first ranches to adopt scientific practices and raised various agricultural crops annually in addition to raising cattle.

The XIT Records, more than 200 linear feet of documents relating to the operation of the ranch, are preserved in the archives of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society by the Farwell family in 1928. Items from this collection comprise a major portion of the exhibit.

The exhibit will feature XIT documents concerning the construction of the Texas Capitol, the operation of the ranch and the sale of ranch lands from 1901 to 1963.

Photographs, sculpture and artifacts relating to the ranch and the building of the Texas Capitol will also be on display.

Among the artifacts will be chaps, spurs and other cowboy items typical of the period 1885 to 1912; surveying instruments of the type used to survey the Capitol lands that became the XIT Ranch; and a scale model of the Buffalo Springs Division Headquarters of the XIT Ranch in Dallam County north of Dalhart made by Garrett Hall of Amarillo.

A short video production will spotlight the activities of the Farwell brothers and the history of the XIT.

"Working for the Lord" At the Anchor Box Company

A few times in the past, when vacation, unusual "busy-ness," or some other circumstance has intervened, I've shared with you an "e-mail" column I receive from Houston attorney and Christian writer, Edward Fuige. As I "dig out" following a week of vacation, I thought you might enjoy these thoughts from Edward.

I pull into the urban "strip" shopping center and enter the storefront

I have observed him for more than a year. Finally, I decide to compliment him. As he finishes processing my order, I speak.

"You have really made an impression on me," I say, "and I want to give you a word of encouragement. Yours is not a particularly pleasant job, yet you always seem polite and even kind to your customers. Many people in your position would become grumpy or sullen, yet I don't think of any place I do business where the salesperson makes as positive an impression on me as you do."

He seems genuinely taken aback. With a slight tinge of embarrassment and a smile, he says quietly, "Thank you. And all the glory goes to God."

"I am not surprised to hear that," I tell him. "The Lord is truly good to us, isn't he?"

"Yes," he says humbly, "I don't know how I could make it without the Lord."

My mind goes back to Colossians 3:22-24. Work "with sincerity of heart," Paul admonishes, "fearing the Lord. Whatever you do, do your work heartily, as for the Lord rather than for people, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the reward of the inheritance."

What determines how you do your work? Job demands? Daily circumstances? Other people? My friend at Anchor Box Company shows me a better, more consistent, frame of reference. He works "as for the Lord." In doing so, he blesses everyone he encounters.

Curtis Shelburne is minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

with the sign "Anchor Box Co." This is a discount warehouse operation. One man works the front. He hands each customer a small clipboard and order form, runs the cash register, and answers the telephone. Another man fetches merchandise from inventory in the back and brings it to the customer's car out front. The place is not air-conditioned. It is often crowded. These are not glamorous, or even pleasant, jobs.

But the man up front always seems happy. Tall and thin, perhaps 30 years old, he greets each person who walks in as if she or he were a personal guest. He remains unruffled when waiting customers sometimes become testy. He even responds to grumblers with a smile. Clearly he is motivated by something besides this job.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE AMERICAN INDIAN BIBLE!

QUITE FITTING ENOUGH IS THE FACT THAT THE VERY FIRST BIBLE ACTUALLY PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS WRITTEN IN—NOT ENGLISH—BUT A NATIVE AMERICAN LANGUAGE—ALGONKIAN! THE TIME: 1663, THE PLACE: THE COLONY IN MASSACHUSETTS, AND THE MAN RESPONSIBLE: JOHN ELIOT, CALLED "THE APOSTLE TO THE NORTH AMERICAN INDIANS." ELIOT CAME TO AMERICA FROM ENGLAND IN 1631, WAS MADE TEACHER OF THE CHURCH IN ROXBURY, MASS., AND ORGANIZED THE FIRST VILLAGE OF INDIAN CONVERTS AT NATICK, NEAR BOSTON, IN 1651.

WHETHER THE INDIANS FELT HONORED OR NOT OVER THE FACT THAT THE FIRST BIBLE TO BE PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS DONE IN THEIR LANGUAGE HAS NOT BEEN RECORDED, BUT OVER A CENTURY WOULD PASS BEFORE THE FIRST ENGLISH LANGUAGE BIBLE WOULD BE PRINTED IN 1782!

Hank the Cowdog

CHAPTER 10

THE CASE OF THE DANCING COWBOY

I Leave with Miss Viola

(In the previous chapter, Slim, the ranch hand, got his hair cut by Miss Viola. Afterward, he complimented her work and added that the best part about her haircut is that it was free. Hank and Miss Viola both winced. It was a stupid thing to say. Hank and Viola had expected him to say she was much better looking than his usual barber. But the moment was all wrong.)

We went outside and walked Miss Viola to her car. Slim had his hands pushed deep into his pockets and continued to rattle his coins.

Viola opened the car door and turned to Slim with a smile. "Well, Slim, thanks for fixing my car."

He laughed at that. "Well, I didn't do much, as you noticed."

"You got shocked."

"It don't take much brains to get shocked, Viola, but at least we found the problem. And thanks again for the shearing. You're a good hair-cutter. What I mean is..." He frowned and kicked at a rock. "It's kinda nice, getting your hair cut by a lady."

Her eyes lingered on him, as though she expected more. When it didn't come, she filled her lungs with air and looked up at the sky.

"Well, isn't it a beautiful day? Spring is such a wonderful time of the year. It almost makes you want to... kick up your heels and dance. Doesn't it?"

Slim nodded. "Yeah, it's mighty nice. The old cows have slied off and are picking up weight. Horses are feeling frisky and..."

I didn't hear the rest of what he was saying, because at that very moment it dawned on me that Miss Viola had left her door open. And both she and Slim were looking up at the trees and the sky and weren't paying any...

Hmmm. If Slim wanted to spend the rest of his life talking about cows, that was okay with me, but I had a better idea.

I slipped into Stealth Crouch Mode and in the blink of an eye I had sneaked myself into Miss Viola's car-on the floor between the seats, where I became virtually invisible.

Heh heh.

The car door slammed. The motor started. We were driving away and... ork... I found my thoughts were turning to...sardines. I mean, the car was close up and kind of warm, and there is a certain malady called "car sickness," which I had never thought about that much until...

Remember all that oil in the can of sardines? It had tasted delicious the first time around, but now, in a hot stuffy car that was swaying back and forth...

Fellers, I had a serious problem on my hands. Getting sick on sardines in the back seat of a lady's car was no way to impress the lady. I knew that, and yet...

Ork. Ump.

How far was it to her house? Five miles? I sure hoped she would chuck the coal to that car, because I was beginning to suspect...

All at once, I heard her voice. "Oh, you stupid old maid! You should have known he wouldn't ask you out, so why did you throw yourself at him like a...like a common hussy? Oh, I'm so embarrassed and humiliated. I'll never go to a dance for the rest of my life. I'll just stay home and rot."

It appeared that she was talking to herself. My goodness, she was crying. And pounding her little fist against the steering wheel.
