There has been very little damage reported from the Cotton Flea in Mills County. Department Men state that the danger of damage is about over.

VOTE

Every good citizen of Mills County should vote in one of the primaries tomorrow. Cast your vote now, and then be satisfied with the man elected.

FIRST FAIR ATTRACTS HUGE CROWDS; RAIN RUINS THE LAST DAY

Mills county's first fair, beginning Tuesday of this week, was sure booming when a rain, about 7:30 Wednesday afternoon and another one yesterday morning drove the crowds away.

The exhibits this year were far in excess of the expectations of those in charge of this department the showing being equal in quality to any in Texas. The ladies department was especially beautiful, and the curio and honey bee departments were excellent.

The entertainment afforded the old Confederate Veterans was enough to gladden the hearts of those old wearers of the Grey. They were royally entertained.

The attendance at the races proves conclusively that a considerable bunch of Mills county folks are keen followers of "the sport of kings." The number of horses entered and the time made, as well as the amount of money received at the box office, will assure the fair each year races. The ball games immediately after the races held most of the huge crowds for another couple of hours, while Goldthwaite's beat San Saba both the first two days.

A more detailed account of the fair and a more complete list of the prizes will appear in next week's issue of this paper.

MRS C. L. BODKIN DEAD

On Monday night July 19 1926 at 11:08 o'clock Mrs. Mary Lou Bodkin the wife of C. L. Bodkin passed away. Mrs. Bodkin had been in ill health for months, but had only been seriously ill for a little over a week.

The Bodkin family moved from Bardwell Kentucky to Goldthwaite, Texas a little more than 21 years ago and made their home continuously. During their residence here they have made a host of friends as was shown by the great number who attended the funeral services conducted by Rev. O. O. Newton of the Church of Christ, of which Church Mrs. Bodkin had been a member for over thirty-five years.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Bodkin leaves three children Mrs. R. B. Lovelace, of Memphis, Tennessee, H. G. Bodkin of Goldthwaite, and Mrs. W. T. Little of Hamilton Texas, and four grandsons and one grand-daughter all of whom were at her bedside.

The pall bearers were W. B. Jackson, T. F. Toland E. T. Fairman, John Hester, O. H. Yeaborough and Joe A. Palmer.

The body of Mrs. Bodkin was laid to rest in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Goldthwaite, in a bed of flowers.

The Eagle joins the many friends of the bereaved family in extending sympathy.

I will open my class in music at my studio near the school building at the opening of the public school.

Terms: $5.00 for two half hour lessons. Your patronage solicited.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS NEXT SATURDAY

Tomorrow Mills county citizens will have the privilege of selecting their county officials. Every citizen who has paid his poll tax or who is entitled to exemption should vote. Both Democratic and Republican primaries will be held in this county.

The Eagle, as has often been stated heretofore, does not take issue in politics, believing that the voters should receive an unbiased report of the happenings from the county paper. All the candidates are good friends of the Eagle and we wish that all of them could be elected. However, as this is impossible, go vote for your choice—but VOTE.

A HAPPY UNITING

(To the Memory of All Old Soldiers)
(By Wilford Aaron, Arlington, Texas, Route 5, Box 38.)

(Sung to the tune of the Zebra Dun)

Today as I stood on the corner
Watching the crowd go by;
I wondered just how old I would be,
Before I went to the sweet bye and bye.

A boy went by, gaily whistling,
A girl passed singing a song;
A wash woman passed with her washing,
A soldier passed by with the throng.

Presently I saw an old man
Slowly tottering, and as he drew nigh,
A sob escaped his old bosom,
And atear was in his dim eye.

He anxiously looked in the faces
He peered at each one that passed by,
He seemed bent on finding someone,
Before his time came to die.

He had slipped away from his daughter
Who had married a rich merchant's son,
She cared not for her old father,
And even his company did shun.

As the soldiers were fighting in France,
One soldier in leping a trench,
Was struck in the head by a bullet,
And was carried to safety by a French.

He never regained his memory,
Not even his name could he tell

He tried very hard to recall it,
But his memory had stopped when he fell.
And now he walked the street,
Trying hard to recall the past,
At last he suddenly remembered,
He knew his old father at last.
The old man reached out toward him,

A glad cry I then did hear;
The son had remembered his childhood,
And there was his father so near
The happiest that ever can come
"An Old Confederate Veteran,
And a World War Veteran
Son."
END

This was a happy uniting,

A LITTLE PUSH

Dear Editor Eagle:

I thank you again for space to make some explanations and follow with some feeble remarks on the theoretic evolution, but not intended so much as a reply.

In a former article I tried to make it plain that the terms "conjecture" and "hypothesis" were such words used by evolutionists in accounting only for the origin of man. The laws of causation and generation and development are self evident and evolution is joyfully sound when kept within its proper field.

To argue that the churches of our country are lovers of science and advocates of research is like compassing land and sea to prove a thing which stands necked and plain in the front yard. I supposed that every one had observed that religious bodies in various places, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Waco and other places in recent years passing resolutions refuting evolution had as a result subjoined clauses encouraging education in the various branches of science. The fact that leading church people including much of the ministry, are thinking science, talking science, teaching science and writing books of science, can be obtained by looking around just a little. Recently I saw a book of philosophy written by a church leader in Kentucky. At Waco in 1922, where hundreds of people were in annual business meeting, and while discussing storm centers of evolution, passed on a most fitting report regarding science. As their own bulletin lies before me, I give the following from page 156: "To maintain the proper standards of education, science must be taught. To decree the death of scientific teaching in our own schools is in effect to bring our entire educational system to ruin." It may be of some interest to say that some religious schools in Texas lead out ahead of the State in teaching the branch of science called biology. I don't know what the Textbook Board has done lately in the matter, but up to 1923 the Board left the responsibility of speculating on the origin and science of life with local preference. I find in another bulletin published near the close of 1922 on page 86: "Our Textbook Board does not place any book on biology in our State Schools."

I think the confusion in the matter by some is trying to make evolution of man a science. We common people who don't know much and don't know that for certain, will do well to remember that evolution as applied to the origin of man is not a science—isn't one ounce in a car load of the stuff. They tell me that science is "knowledge of facts reduced to a system" and the real honest to gracious evolutionist in approaching the origin of man says "working hypothesis." Lying around me here are nine volumes of Historic Science and writers on anthropology and biology bring to their support outstanding evolutionists back to Greek Mythology. Some are seeking to conserve truth while others make wild guess work. In his "Science of Life" Prof. A. T. Thomson says, "Our discussion of the origin of life might be reduced to a single sentence. We do not know anything in regard to the origin of life." Prof. Dow on page 22 of first edition of his "Sociology" says with reference to how man came into the world: "We do not know whether from a pair or a group of pairs." So it is with any one who ignores the direct act of Supernatural power.

It goes without saying that we have fanatics in religion and fanatics in politics and elsewhere but some seem never to have observed that we have fanatics dabbling with science. The writer who purposely ignores the direct act of a Divine Creator as man's maker and finisher, shutting himself into what he may call cause and effect, has all the elements required of a first class fanatic. Because a book is printed on the back in nice letters "Sociology" or "Biology" or "Anthropology" who swallow down its contents as though it was all law and gospel? For years the theories of higher education, higher criticism and evolution have been much in the air and often under the guise of science, but it is a profound joy to find unshaken confidence of the people, saint and sinner, in the utterances of the Divine Book as they find it. This is just as it should be. Woe to the generation that loses that type of faith. It is conceded that Christian school teachers have been a leading force in holding up the faith of the present generation. Many of them are not conscious of their merit and value. They deserve a pension and in some form and somewhere I trust they shall have it.

We all accept truths at every turn of life because they are truths, though we do not comprehend them. Growing in the same flower bed are two flowers of like stem and leaf. One day recently I pulled leaves from each and mixed them and found that I could not tell which one from the other—growing under the same sun and in the same soil and one has purple flowers and the other white. I said this is a truth all of which I do not understand. I milk a black cow each day. she eats green grass, gives white milk out of which we make yellow butter, that's another set of truths. I do not comprehend but we say nature and pass on. How Enoc left the ground and went right up to heaven breaking the laws of gravity, and Jesus walking out on the waters of Galilee, as on solid ground and calling a dead man out of his grave are truths believed as tho we had been eye witness and also understood in the light of supernatural power. The same must be true in reference to the creation of man. Nothing indicating an allegory in the account, just a miracle like the other miracles of the E-b. Nothing contrary to reason in a miracle but above human reason as also many many facts of nature lying around us. I can think of the first man, Adam, only as a perfect and complete man, made (Jesus said "God made them male and female") out of real dust by the mighty hands of the majestic, glorious, creative God. I have thought may be, some time, some where dear old Father Adam might be placed on the witness stand, he's been so awfully slandered, and if he should be allowed to defend himself it would bring on pitiful conditions. Nothing doing for evolution by Judge, nothing doing for evolution by that jury, nothing doing for evolution by the witness and the remainder of us contestants and all compelled to sit and face the court.

I wonder since when has it become the right thing to read the account of creation between the lines? Since when has it become elegant and proper to call belief in the simple plain statements of the Bible a "dogma"?

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 3, Article 7, of the Constitution be so changed as to read as follows: (creating new Section.)

"Section 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the State Occupation taxes and poll tax of one dollar on every inhabitant of the State, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem State tax of such an amount not to exceed thirty-five cents on the one hundred ($100.00) dollars valuation, as with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public schools of this State for a period of not less than six months in each year, and it shall be the duty of the State Board of Education to set aside a sufficient amount out of the said tax to provide free text books for the use of children attending the public free schools of this State; provided, however, that should the limit of taxation herein named be insufficient the deficit may be met by appropriation from the general funds of the State and the Legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts by general laws; and all such school districts may embrace parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature shall be authorized to pass laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in all said districts and for the management and control of the public school or schools of such districts, whether such districts are composed of territory wholly within a county or in parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within all school districts heretofore formed or hereafter formed,

R. D. LANFORD WRITES TO THE EAGLE

The Goldthwaite Eagle.

Dear Eagle: Hello, folks! How is everyone? Fine and dandy, I hope. How is Goldthwaite? I would sure love to see her again. As it is I am sitting in the office of the medical officer at Mare Island doctoring the sick boys and just wishing I could walk down the streets of old Goldthwaite again. At present I am with the yard medical force, but expect to be transferred most any time to China, the Philippines or some other out of the way place and believe me, that will sure break my heart. Because I am newly wed of nearly eight months and if I leave will have to leave my ball and chain behind. I have often wished for a home paper, so I finally decided the only way to get it was to write for it. So, if you will please send me the rates and everything, I will lose no time in subscribing.

Hoping this reaches you O. K. and that I hear from you in the very near future.

I wish to remain yours truly,

REAL RIDING!

"When a man can no longer

In proof of this ancient Navajo belief thirty Indians, each more rode with 22,000 younger red men in fierce battle charges from early morning until the afternoon light faded, day in and day out, for scenes in "The Vanishing American." The filming of this Zane

Grey story took a company of 500 whites from Hollywood to the Navajo reservation in northern Arizona.

One of the riders was Bit-sie

the Navajo chieftains who fought

of an American army rabble, conquered the Navajos in 1863.
