HOW TO REDUCE WAGES

"The surest way to force wages lower would be to increase the tax on industries."

This is not a statement by a representative of a business interest. It was made recently by Senator Borah of Idaho, who is not generally regarded as a hero-worshipper of our industrial system. And the truth in it is self evident. Those senators and congressmen who are now campaigning for greatly increased corporate taxes, on the old theory that the rich

EBONY

(Too late for last week)

This part of the county has been blessed with plenty of rain. It has been too wet to plow most of the time since the last of November and there is an abundance of stock water.

A few mesquites still cling to their green leaves. And Sunday, January 24, Mrs. E. O. Dwyer plucked a ripe tomato from a vine on the south side of her house, and cut from her bushes a bouquet of roses, among them three lovely March-like buds and some immense full blown pink radiance roses.

Although the roads were very bad from the recent rains, and the weather bitter cold, yet Bro. Dyche came from Mullin Sunday morning to fill his appointment at the Church of Christ. Not many were present, but those who came were glad they were there, for Brother Dyche gave an interesting lesson on the "Value of Tribulation."

Ebony got another pupil added to its school list Monday—J. C. Christmas from Brownwood. The other children got a thrill when he gave his name as Christmas, and claimed for his birthday the Fourth of July. His teacher reports that J. C. is a very smart boy.

Since last November a year ago there has not been a death in the Ebony community.

Josh Philen of Jordan Springs and Mrs. Letha McDer-mott of Indian Creek were married last week. Josh grew up at Ebony, and he has the good wishes of many friends here.

Barney Tippen went to Goldthwaite on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Early and little son, Tommie, of Wood-lawn Heights are visiting Mrs. Early's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Orr.

Mrs. Billie McNurlan has been quite sick, but is improved now.

Mrs. Irene Reeves has been sick for the past week with a severe toothache.

On account of the profuse rain Friday, Ralph Wilmeth, teaching in the Priddy school, was not permitted to spend the week end at home, as he had anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. Mae Reynolds and Clayton Egger made a trip to Brownwood Saturday.

In spite of the inclement weather Thursday night, the P. T. A. met and carried out the program as best they could with what they had present.

Mrs. S. H. Reeves is president and Mrs. P. R. Reid, secretary. The ladies have recently presented to Mrs. E. O. Dwyer, their past president, a friendship quilt, as a token of their appreciation of her services, while in office.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Egger, Chas. Whittenburg and Hubert Reeves spent Sunday evening in the home of Mrs. Effie Egger, the guests of Mrs. Egger and Miss Mirla Guthrie.

After church Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Briley and daughters, Ruth and Grace, enjoyed a dinner, in which good country ham played an important part, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wilmeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Mae Reynolds spent Friday night with Mrs. Reynolds' sister, Mrs. Effie Egger.

Jimmie and Vernon Orr visited Gene Wilmeth Sunday.

Jim Wilmeth killed a big hog Tuesday evening.

should be taxed to support the poor, are unknowingly enemies of the worker.

In the operation of any business, taxes must come first. They are a definite and inescapable levy. Wages and dividends follow. There is no way a business can either maintain high wages or pay its investor good dividends without making money. If an exorbitant part of that money goes to government, the other interested parties will be the losers and business and jobs will decrease.

In brief, keeping the cost of government at reasonable levels would be the strongest influence in favor of industrial revival, a high standard of employment and maintenance of wage scales.

SOLDIERS' BONUS

Do we owe the soldiers of the world war a bonus? I say that we do, because they left home and loved ones to fight for us and our congress passed a law, authorizing the payment of extra compensation to be paid in 1945, or sooner. Last year they (the congress of these United States) passed a bill authorizing the payment of one-half of this bonus. That is to loan the soldiers one-half of his compensation certificate and by the time the balance that is coming to them is due and payable, the interest on that he has borrowed will have accumulated until he will have but very little left and who will get this interest? If there was ever a time that the soldier needs his pay, it is now.

I see by the press, where the Hon. Wright Patman has introduced a bill in congress authorizing the payment of the balance of this bonus and providing means by which this is to be paid. He says that it will take about two million dollars and that congress can issue circulation notes to pay this with. These notes or greenbacks do not bear interest and would be good for any debt, either private or public. He says that it will not be an over inflation. I frankly state that I do not know. They need what is coming to them now. Of course, we know that if this is not paid off now, that we will have to pay it in 1945. We are aware of the fact that if paid now that some will spend it for bootleg whiskey, some will squander it for "foolishments" and on the other hand, a great many of them will use it to live on, buy homes, or pay debts. Anyway, it would put a large amount of money into circulation. Let's pay them if there's any reasonable way of getting the money to pay them with. What say you? T. E. HAMILTON.

Is Your Gasoline Tax Money BUILDING GOOD ROADS OR ENRICHING RACKETEERS?

You pay a tax on every gallon of gasoline you buy. Your state levies this tax to pay for building good roads.

But your state is not getting all the money paid as a gasoline tax. RACKETEERS ARE TAKING AN ALARMING AMOUNT OF IT! They are selling bootlegged gasoline on which they pay the state no tax—but they make motorists pay all or a part of the tax. The racketeer keeps this tax money himself!

You get your tax back in the form of good roads when the state collects the tax. You get nothing when racketeers get your money. And remember—if your state got all the money paid as tax, it could well afford to lower its gasoline tax!

If you want your money to go into road building instead of into the racketeers' pockets, make sure the gasoline you buy is not bootlegged. Buy gasoline made by a reliable, law-abiding company and sold under a dependable, well-known brand name, and be certain that your tax money goes to your state and not to the racketeers. That's the only way to beat the racketeers.

JAPANESE TROOPS BURN SHANGHAI

Never has there been such a night of horror in Shanghai, those who watched it said Saturday.

It began when the Japanese arrived, pushing through the twisting street, clearing a way with machine guns.

Airplanes added to the carnage, swooping down every 20 minutes like clockwork and dropping cargoes of bombs, which started fires at six separate points.

The railroad station, objective of the first drive, burned to the ground. The railroad line to Nanking was broken and telegraph and telephone lines to the capital went down.

The wounded came in by the score to emergency dressing stations, and it seemed certain many women and children had been killed. The Chinese placed their losses at 300 killed and wounded. The Japanese said they had lost only a handful.

One shell fell in the international settlement, but nobody was hurt and damage was slight.

The Chinese commander asked for reinforcements and the Japanese military attaché also wanted more men, but Japan's naval commander said he thought his men were able to handle the situation.

Onlookers who thronged the roof tops of the skyscrapers in Shanghai's business section throughout the day to watch the area become a shambles of terror and death said the slaughter among the 200,000 Chinese inhabitants was enormous.

Japanese airplanes roared over the spot every 20 minutes, releasing a thundering mass of bombs against, which the Chinese were powerless to defend themselves except with their feeble rifles and machine guns.

The fire which was started by the first bombing last night grew into a roaring conflagration as the attack continued. It licked its way through the narrow, warrenlike streets of the mud hut and cobblestone city as a prairie fire might attack the nests of a colony of field mice.

There was no one to check the conflagrations and they soon outstripped the military action in danger, threatening to wipe out the greater part of Chapei.

The huge bombs sent up eruptions to a height of at least 140 feet. The sky was partly obscured by clouds of smoke from the fires and the planes swooped down through them.

The terrified people were faced with a dilemma of terror. They had the choice of staying in their huts and being burned to death or fleeing into the open to be shot or torn by bursting bombs.

The fire department of the international settlement was greatly alarmed over one of the fires, which by 6 o'clock was creeping perilously close to the settlement border of the north side. Every possible preparation was made to begin fighting it as soon as it reached the boundary in order to prevent its crossing.

The printing plant of the Commercial Press, reputed to be the largest in the world, was destroyed. It turned out an enormous number of English language books, newspapers and magazines and millions of copies of pamphlets and books in Chinese.

Reliable reports said 2000 additional Japanese troops were on the way to reinforce the 2000 marines then in Chapei.

Following the bomb which fell into the settlement about 2 p. m. another landed on the edge of the district, in the residential area, where many foreigners live. These immediately began evacuating their homes and moving into the settlement for protection.

Chinese workers throughout Shanghai threatened to go out on a general strike at once, as a protest against Japanese action at Chapei.

It was expected if the strike materialized that public utilities would be paralyzed and that a stoppage of the movement of foodstuffs into the international section might create a serious situation.

Chinese banks also declared they would not open.

OUR WANTS INCREASE

The modern metropolitan banks, which carry writing men on their pay rolls and issue periodical or intermittent bulletins, often contribute new thoughts to the thinking world.

For example, the First National Bank of Boston, in one of its staff essays, points out that 100 years ago the average person had 52 wants and 16 necessities. Today the same average person, or a person just as average, has 484 wants, of which ninety-four are deemed necessities. It was an ingenious mind that took up that branch of research and reduced the findings to absolute figures. We have no right to deny or dispute them, for within our own experience we realize that much of what we regard as necessary to our well-being today was not within our calculation two or three decades ago. The importance of this is in its bearing upon what we have come to call "the depression." It is impossible to believe the industry of the world will revert to the status of a 100 years ago, when man had an average of fifty-two wants and sixteen necessities. Having experienced the satisfaction of an enlarged list of wants, the world will demand them continuously and industry will produce them. With industry returning to production, labor will return to its wage and business to its shop. In brief, the farther we remove from primitive living conditions, the more assured is general employment. It still requires men to make things.

Times without number in the annals of this moving world good times have succeeded bad one. In every case, the better days were characterized by a wider application of mechanical conveniences and scientific discoveries. The first pyramids were built with hand labor and ox power. The laborers had no more wants than the oxen. A few centuries later, when the hanging gardens of Babylon were devised, machines for lifting were utilized, and the laborers were housed and fed and clothed more considerably than the draft animals weve. Labor and luxury had both scored gains in the process of increasing human wants and necessities. So it has been throughout all the distinctive eras of history. Man has improved himself by improving his machinery.

The substance of all this is that out of bad comes good. The machine is not an enemy, but a friend. Its effect is to shorten the labor hours of men. The workmen on the hanging gardens job worked shorter days than did those who raised the pyramids. Our wants are increased by our facility for procuring them. Out of our ambitions come our achievements. The slow years of the present will be succeeded by years of increasing momentum. Instead of our 484 wants of today we shall have 600 ere long, and men, machines and wages will make them available to our use. —J. J. Taylor in the Dallas News.

commerce declared a general strike in the settlement as a protest against the Japanese attack. Business was at a complete standstill.

British consular and military authorities viewed the situation with growing anxiety as the battle spread with growing fury along the borders of the settlement and Chinese troops began to arrive in thousands from Nanking to resist the Japanese invasion.

Both British and United States authorities anxiously awaited news from London and Washington. Surprise was expressed by many British residents that there had been no word that British warships were speeding to Shanghai to give protection to the foreign communities in a situation, they said, that grew more dangerous every hour. Every bit of available man power in the settlement was mobilized on the borders of the area Saturday evening.

A. BRISBANE, HISTORIAN

Any editorial writer makes a mistake every now and then, but when Arthur Brisbane said the other day, "Japan is only doing in Manchuria what the United States did when it took Texas from Mexico," and that "We decided that we wanted Texas and that we could make better use of it than the Mexicans," he was heading straight for trouble. For Mr. Brisbane's syndicated editorials are run in some of the Texas newspapers and Peter Molyneux, of the Texas Weekly, keeps up with everything in and about Texas. Naturally Mr. Molyneux, who is well grounded in history himself, hopped on that statement like a duck on a junebug. Indeed, it does look as though even the highest paid editor in the world should have a dim recollection of the fact that there was once a Texas revolution and a Republic of Texas. The circumstance shows the disadvantages of canned editorials. Mr. Brisbane's offerings are widely read, but the formula is easy. It runs about thus:

A small boy of Ipsydownhich, Mich., has killed his grandmother. Hammurabi cut the throat of his great grandmother. Scientists say that with the aid of surgery such things can be prevented. With the advances of our time Hammurabi might have founded the Salvation Army or copyrighted the Ten Commandments.

If Texas readers insist upon such profundity, why not feed it to them made in Texas? Peter Molyneux could at least teach the writers of it some Texas history and make them stay taught. —Dallas News.

THE WORST PLACE TO LIVE

When Great Britain held Napoleon Bonaparte prisoner at St. Helena, she placed a garrison on Tristan da Cunha, and this group of islands, known as the worst place in the world to live, has since had a steady population of descendants of a handful of British soldiers, who refused to go home after Napoleon had died and their terms of service had expired.

The islands are located in the "roaring forties" of the south Atlantic, where storms seldom cease. They are almost eternally hidden by fog and drenched by rain and chilly mist. Seldom are they visited by ships—once a year or sometimes once in two years. And then the ocean may be so rough that boats can not be landed.

A British naval vessel, the Carlisle, carried Christmas gifts to Tristan da Cunha, but did not arrive until Jan. 8 of this year, and then found it absolutely impossible to communicate with the shore. Neither the ship's boats nor the boats of the natives could live in the furious waters.

Probably it will not be so very hard for the islanders to wait till next Christmas, for in their incredibly uneventful lives a year is but a day. They have goats, turnips, potatoes, rats and fleas, and they have plenty of fish when the boats can brave the seas. The sun shines but a very few days each year. And from this place no Tristaner can be lured or coaxed. Verily home is sweet, no matter how bitter. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ABYSSINIA APOLOGIZES TO AMERICAN ENVOY

At Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, last week, the Abyssinian government tendered a formal apology to American Minister Addison E. Southard for the attack made on him by native policemen about 10 days ago.

The ceremony took place at the exact spot on the road where Mr. Southard was knocked down, after his automobile had run over a woman's foot. A hundred Abyssinian police in full uniform were drawn up alongside the road to await his coming.

When Mr. Southard arrived the entire line saluted him and the American flag his car was carrying. The 10 offenders stood chained hand and foot behind the police chiefs.

The apology was read publicly and was followed by recital of the sentences for the culprits. They were sentenced to prison for one year and were fined 500 Abyssinian dollars.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

An explosion that wrecked the home of a prominent Italian living in Houston last week was so violent that it shattered window panes for a block. No one was at home when the explosion occurred, but members of a family next door were injured slightly. The explosion is being investigated.

Once more the tariff will be the occasion for bitter fights in Congress. Senator Smoot, father of the present tariff, has urged that it be let alone. The Democrats are insistent on revising it.

Former Postmaster General Burleson, now living in Austin, sent word to the Victory Dinner of Democrats in Dallas that he was out of politics. Former Attorney General Gregory of Houston wired, "I confidently expect a great Democratic victory this fall." The chief topic of conversation before the dinner was where to get campaign funds.

Last spring, Nero, an African lion, saved the life of Clyde Beatty, circus wild animal trainer, when he was attacked by a fierce Bengal tiger. Last week Nero bit a piece out of Beatty's leg. An infection followed, and he is in a dangerous condition.

Italian police get their men, but occasionally it takes time. For ten years they have been looking for a man who has been sending bombs by mail to government officials. They have injured 38 people. Last week the man was caught and confessed.

In Italy last year there were 56,000 less births than in 1930. Premier Mussolini is alarmed. He is urging the doctors to stop the fad of dieting, which he says is weakening the race.

Jim Ferguson has announced that despite the urging of many friends and his confident belief that both he and his wife could be elected as Congressman-at-large from Texas, neither of them would make the race.

In Dallas an attractive young woman under 30 asked for and received a sentence of 30 days in jail in an attempt to break the morphine habit, to which she had succumbed.

At the end of last week the worst cold wave of the winter had gripped in icy claws the whole of the middle west. Zero weather prevailed from Kansas north. A light snow fell in Dallas, and a heavy freeze set fruit back through the northern half of Texas.

Texas representatives in Congress are making strenuous efforts to prevent the War Department from abandoning army posts along the Mexican border.

Union plasterers in Texas will have to struggle along on $8 a day now, as a result of a pay cut authorized by their state headquarters. In Dallas they draw $10 now, but formerly got $12.

PUBLIC OFFICE A DOLE

In Oklahoma, a man who has lost a fortune is running for congress. Alfalfa Bill Murray got his governorship in part because he was penniless and made no concealment of the fact. In Arkansas a woman is senator, because she is a widow. In many a county in Texas we have now public officials who were elected largely because the voters did not believe that they could make a living at anything else. This year the crop of men (and women, for that matter) who will be asking for office as a means of keeping out of the poorhouse will be larger than ever.

But is public office a dole? What is the difference between a man who comes to a board representing the government and says that he is out of work and has to have the means of keeping alive and another man who comes to the voters, who are the government, and says that he is out of work and wants the means of keeping alive?

To be sure, the latter offers to perform certain duties, but the fact that he knows nothing of those duties and would be the last man in the world to be hired for the purpose, if any individual voter were paying him directly out of his own pocket, makes his offer immaterial. In many cases it would be better for the state to give him his salary as a dole and deprive him of office the minute he takes oath.

This is not always true. The ex-millionaire of Oklahoma will probably make an excellent congressman. The widow of Arkansas may learn how to vote as advisedly as anybody in the senate. Governor Murray is performing with assistance, if not always with judicious restraint. But some of the dole takers in Dallas county, to get close to home, have not much but sympathy to recommend them. But they will be out in force at the oncoming primaries, the voters will be taken in by their pleas as hitherto, then next year we shall wonder why politics gets the way it does. —Dallas News.

MANUFACTURING EGGS

The poultryman who looks upon his flock as a manufacturing plant and each individual as a unit of that plant is bound to succeed. Such a man will then consider the feed he produces as so much raw material and the eggs he receives as the finished product. Being in the manufacturing business he will understand the necessity of discarding every unit that does not produce efficiently, and will take the best care of those remaining. He will look well after his raw material and place at the disposal of the units of his factory only such as will make good eggs in an economic manner. He will see to it that his factory produces a maximum number of eggs, and that the by-products of the factory are utilized to the best advantage.

Chickens cannot manufacture eggs without being provided with the material, in form of feed, from which eggs are made. Neither will a good poultryman expect a chicken to produce profitably if it is not kept free from insect pests and free from disease. Poultry should be well housed and that means in houses properly ventilated, not too warm or too cold and with plenty of room for each bird. Make them comfortable; feed them properly, and then if they do not lay at least 175 to 200 eggs per annum, put them in the fattening pen and make another start. It does not pay to keep non-layers unless they are of the heavy breeds and are produced for the market. —Farm and Ranch.

UNIVERSITY TO BUILD NINE MORE BUILDINGS

Contracts have been awarded at Austin for the construction of nine new buildings at a cost of $3,413,737. For furnishings some $400,000 more will be provided later. The money will come from the University's oil royalties from West Texas oil lands. Texas concerns secured all of the contracts, except one—that for steel book racks for the new library.

Arrival of the U. S. cruiser Houston at Shanghai Wednesday with American troops on board brought relief to the 5,000 Americans living in Shanghai. "Uncle Andy" Mellon, for eleven years secretary of the treasury, and often accused of controlling the national government, has quit under fire. He has resigned to accept the ambassadorship to Great Britain, which was made vacant by the resignation of General Dawes. HIT-AND-RUN DRIVERS
LAW-ENFORCEMENT

During the past two days a combination of fog, mist, mud and slippery pavements created about as serious traffic hazards as the motorist ever encounters in this climate. Such a condition afforded ample exercise for the rules and precautions which safety experts, traffic officials and other instructors have repeated and emphasized. A motorist had to drive slowly and carefully, where he could not see his way clearly; the pedestrian had to look more closely before attempting to cross the street.

Students of traffic safety problems have observed that accidents are more numerous and more deadly in good than in bad weather. Their explanation is that when the risks are glaringly obvious, almost everybody exercises more than ordinary care—but unfortunately numerous exceptions to the rule appear.

On San Antonio streets and nearby roads during the foggy spell, automobile crashes took heavy toll. Besides, several pedestrians were run down in attempting to cross the street. One of the victims was a child, struck at a busy intersection, but not seriously injured.

Particularly shocking is the manner of the death of Miss Edna Polhemus, musician and businesswoman—killed in a collision at South Alamo and Guenther streets, Monday night. The operator of the other car—who, an eye-witness said, was driving at high speed—fled the scene without halting.

The hit-and-run driver is executed universally for both his lack of ordinary humane sensibilities and his moral cowardice. The law prescribes penalties to fit the gravity of the crime, but only rarely is the offender caught and punished. Perhaps the most charitable view of such an act is to attribute it to sudden panic. Even so, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that a person who loses his head in such circumstances lacks something fundamental to character. Certainly he should not be entrusted with a motor vehicle.

Probably a driver-licensing system, with the right psychological tests, would bar such potential killers from street and highway. Unquestionably, the hit-and-run motorist who had caused a serious accident would be forbidden to drive thereafter.

One means of discouraging this offense would be to inspire a greater dread of the law. A few weeks ago, a district court in San Antonio sentenced a hit-and-run driver, who also had pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk, to seven years in state prison. Were such penalties the rule and not the rare exception, offenses would be fewer and the streets far safer.—San Antonio Express.

THE PASSING OF

NEWS ODDITIES

Mrs. Foster Welch, England's only woman sheriff, plans to attend all executions.

In Gyula, Hungary, Pavlek Scandor hired Gypsy musicians to play for him, while he wrecked his stove, because he could not pay his taxes.

After paying a fine of $25 for breaking George Foster's nose, Patrick McGurn of Chicago, said that at that price he was "going to get square with the other troublesome neighbors."

In Manhattan, William McDonald saw a group of people looking at something on a subway platform, went to find out what. They were looking at Small Katherine McDonald, his daughter, squashed to death when her dress caught in a car door.

Perfection of a mechanical "eye" which can detect any flaw in any shiny metal, no matter how small the defect, has been announced by Prof. Floyd Firestone of the department of engineering research, University of Michigan.

In Manhattan, William Jander, 70, asked his sister what there was for dinner. Said she: "Fried eggs." "Eggs! Always eggs! I want no more eggs!" he shouted, and pulling a gun, shot her and her husband twice and then himself dead.

Mrs. William H. Kennedy of Woodbury, N. J., was dealt thirteen spades at an auction bridge party held in honor of her seventy-seventh birthday. She canceled the hand and said she would have the cards framed to commemorate the occasion.

Supreme Court Justice Norman S. Dike has denied the application of four Brooklyn citizens for a certificate of incorporation of a society known as the Jiggs Nut Club. The justice based his denial on the ground that the name is not an appropriate or dignified name for a membership corporation.

In Carbondale, Ill., a judge sentenced Mrs. Lee Jordan to 15 days in jail for swearing. Mrs. Jordan swore. The judge sentenced Mrs. Jordan to 15 more days for swearing. Mrs. Lee Jordan swore more, got 60 days. When she had sworn enough to be sentenced for six months, officers took Mrs. Lee Jordan off to jail, still swearing.

Lord Dorchester of England has learned that one can rout rats with gas from the exhaust of an automobile and the success of his warfare against the rodents on his beautiful Greywell Hill estate, near Winchester, led him to broadcast the method to English farmers. His method is to attach a hose to the exhaust and force the carbon monoxide fumes into the rat holes.

TEXAS DEMOCRATS

The "advance victory dinner," Friday last of state Democratic leaders stressed throughout the idea of a vigorous national campaign and a coming victory for the Democratic party.

The party in Texas has many troublesome questions before it in local politics. The primary system is not working well and draws out too many useless candidates.

It is a disgrace that a state so inherently wealthy and with so great possibilities should be financially embarrassed and so wastefully managed.

A PREMIUM ON POVERTY

There seems to be in America a tendency to elect men to public office, not because they have accomplished things, but because they have failed to achieve even economic security.

One of William (Alfalfa Bill) Murray's chief virtues in the eyes of the Oklahoma electorate was his lack of worldly goods. He had gone to Bolivia and had returned without achieving any measure of financial stability.

Efforts of world war veterans and other interested parties to secure passage in Congress of the Patman bill for full payment of adjusted compensation certificates merits the support of every loyal and patriotic citizen of this country.

Back in those hectic days of 1917 and 1918, when these veterans left the shores of America to risk their lives for the sake of democracy, many of them were in the flower of youth, and carried with them a great responsibility.

Shortly after the world war 7,000 war contractors succeeded in having congress adjust their payment on all war contracts. They were paid hundreds of millions in cash.

The railroads, which were under government control during the World War and were paid the largest returns they ever received, were also awarded adjusted compensation involving millions of dollars in cash and other benefits.

The adjusted compensation is for service rendered during the world war. Congress has accepted and acknowledged the debt. The adjusted compensation certificates are based on $1 per day for service in this country and $1.25 for service overseas.

The veterans feel that they have been discriminated against. They point out that while other world war agencies have received compensation adjustments, they have been made to wait for the money which rightfully belongs to them.

We loan billions to foreign nations, we give billions to foreign nations. We should at least make an effort to pay our debts at home, especially when so many are suffering and in destitute circumstances.

WANTED SHORTER NAME

Anthanois Nickelaou Tsveoukus endured living with a name like that for 39 years.

Last week he asked Judge Bruce Young of Fort Worth to cut it down to United States size. The judge thought a moment, wrote something on a piece of paper and the Greek born citizen emerged from the courthouse with the name of Arthur Nick Tekus.

AMENDMENTS TO STATE CONSTITUTION

The people of Texas will vote on nine amendments to the state constitution next November. Most of these amendments will carry and probably all of them should. The one that proposes to exempt from taxation homesteads up to the value of $3000 will undoubtedly receive the endorsement of the voters.

Another amendment will allow a property owner to redeem his property sold for taxes at any time within two years after the sale by paying one and one-half times the amount the property brought at tax sale.

Another will limit the voters in bond elections to those having property on which the bond tax can be fixed. The present law permits any to vote who have property "subject" to taxation.

Still another amendment proposes to take away the legislative power to release taxes. One amendment will permit coast counties to vote taxes for seawall and sanitary protection under more favorable conditions.

One economy and efficiency measure would reduce the number of county officials by combining the offices of assessor and tax collector. It is expected to win the same popularity as the homestead exemption amendment.

An amendment to allow the state to make an appropriation to facilitate a centennial celebration of Texas independence is also considered a very popular measure.

Reserve members of the army, navy and marine corps would be permitted to hold civil offices in the state, from which they are now barred, if another amendment is adopted.

An amendment voiding one voted upon a few years ago has been requested by the University of Texas. The university was permitted to pledge income of its permanent fund to create a building fund. Now the regents want this power taken away, as it was intended only for an emergency.

Bunk Vineyard was taken to the Gorman sanitarium for treatment Sunday for a knife wound, which he suffered that afternoon. He was cut across the wrist, severing the arteries, when his knife slipped, as he was cutting a small limb from a tree. He, in company with Ab White, Smoot Renfro and Will May, were trying to get a squirrel they had killed from the water and Vineyard started to get a pole to pull the squirrel out with and his knife slipped.

LAMPASAS

Stokes Bros. bank has a record of the rainfall here since 1901 and during that time the rainfall in January has exceeded the rainfall of January 1932 only twice.

The fire department was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Little, on First street Tuesday morning. A fire under a wash kettle in the garage had caught the wall of the building on fire, but it was soon extinguished and very little damage was done.

The car stolen here Thursday night, Jan. 21, from Mrs. Gertrude Vaden, was found Saturday morning in Lometa. The car was discovered behind a gin in Lometa by Deputy Sheriff Joe Hill. The car was apparently in good condition, was just abandoned there by the party who drove it from Lampasas.

L. Lively, who lives near Nix, accidentally shot himself in the leg Friday morning, January 22, while handling a rifle. The gun a 22 caliber high power rifle, was accidentally discharged and the bullet entered the right leg between the knee and hip. He was brought to town for medical attention and then taken to a Temple hospital for an x-ray picture to locate the bullet. It is not thought that the wound would prove serious.

Arrangements have been completed, by which the Peoples National bank of Lampasas has been reorganized. Ed Young and the estate of J. F. White have closed a deal by which Mr. Young takes over the stock of J. F. White, deceased, in the Peoples National bank. Mr. Young has also been elected as a director and vice-president of the bank and will immediately enter upon his duties and devote all of his time to the affairs of the bank. C. C. The bones of the legs and the pelvis bone were whole. There can be no doubt that they are the bones of some human body that have been buried for many years. Some advance the idea that they are the bones of an Indian. The bones were found in a very rough, rock ledge south of the Lometa highway and across Mill Creek about a half a mile. — News.

HAMILTON

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hurley went to Star Sunday, where they visited the family of their daughter, Mrs. Cares Newton. Mr. J. J. J. Newson and sons and Mr. Munday of McGirk, were also guests in the home and partook of a big squirrel dinner.

A body of some fifty citizens of Hamilton assembled at the theatre building for a mass meeting to discuss and formulate a plan of action in raising money to care for the extreme needy. After several suggestions had been offered and discussed, a plan was adopted by vote that a committee be appointed to raise the necessary money, not less than $150 and turn it over to the United Charities, who will pass on applicants for help and issue script for groceries, so that not one penny of money can be mispent.

Every week for the past several weeks there has been an unusual amount of rainfall, which has interrupted the construction of the courthouse. For several days roofers were here, but were unable to do the work because of the frequent rains. This week, however, there has been noticeable progress made, and if fair weather continues the work will probably be completed in about three weeks. The stonework on the southeast part of the structure will soon be finished and then the workmen can proceed with the roof.

Monday morning about 2 o'clock, as County Commissioner C. C. C. Newton, of McGirk was occupying a lower room at the Hamilton Hotel, he noticed a cloud of smoke apparently coming from the hall of the hotel. About the same time a young man, who had been visiting in town, but who lived at Stephenville, came to the hotel for a room. He called Mr. A. W. Burch, the proprietor, and as he was being shown to a room the smoke was so strong that it was evident a fire was burning in the room near the stairs. Suddenly the building burst into flames, which spread so rapidly that nothing could be saved. George Legate, who had been promoting an oil development in the Pottsville community, lost all of his effects. His wife suffered from the flame, which caught her hair and burned her head, and she also sustained a sprained ankle. The guests were all aroused and while they could not save their personal effects, they escaped with no further deprivation. Mrs. Legate was the only person injured.—News.

STERLING ISSUED 509

PAROLES FIRST YEAR
Gov. Sterling issued 509 general paroles and 16 full pardons during his first year as chief executive. Of those paroled, only 16 violated the terms of their paroles and had to be returned to prison for new law violations, records show. He commuted two death sentences to life imprisonment and extended clemency by furlough's to several hundred prisoners. Governor Sterling has taken full advantage of the new law, making it possible to extend clemency to prisoners with good records. Former Gov. Dan Moody, Governor Sterling's immediate predecessor, issued very few general paroles and pardons, probably one-tenth the number during his four-year tenure as were granted by Governor Sterling in his first year.

JAPAN'S ATTACK ON CHINA CALLED OBJECT LESSON TO AMERICA

Termining Japan's aggression in China as "an object lesson for big, rich America," Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican, Illinois, ranking member of the house naval committee, called upon congress Friday to immediately initiate steps to build the American navy to full treaty strength. "Poor pacifist China," said Britten, "is a sad example of what can happen to a government that neglects her national defense to so hopeless a degree. What an object lesson to big, rich America."

WHAT DO WE FACE

War talk fills the air. From office boy to bank president, the question is raised: What will come of the Far Eastern trouble?

So far as the United States is concerned no war will come of it.

Conceivably things may be done now, policies adopted, enemies made, that may lead to future war. However, the same might be said of the steps taken in any international crisis.

The simple fact is that the United States nor any other great western power will fight for the rights of China in China, and there is not one chance in a thousand that our own material interests will be measurably affected.

A few things of ominous importance are quite evident, however:

1. Japan cares nothing for treaty obligations. She will throw them aside whenever she conceives it profitable to do so. She has violated her pledges to the League of Nations, the Kellogg-Briand peace pact and the nine-power treaty, all signed within recent years.

2. The United States and other nations must take steps to penalize her for these violations or go on record that they will do nothing to uphold the covenants and treaties in question.

3. China will fight now if he can or will fight about anything. Even though Japanese residents and property have been menaced as Japan claims, the demand that the Chinese government eradicate all efforts at a boycott of Japanese goods is a demand with which no self-respecting sovereignty would comply. If Chinese citizens, on Chinese territory, haven't the right to agree among themselves whom they will or will not patronize, what rights of any kind have they?

Speculation concerning several points is naturally aroused: 1. What can and will the United States do? We will not go to war. We might definitely declare that Japan has violated her treaties with us; that we will recognize the legality of nothing she does, of no government she establishes in any territory she seizes. We might resort to an economic boycott.

The latter is a deadlier weapon than most people realize, but it cuts both ways, and the cost to the United States would be heavy, although nothing like as heavy as to Japan. Export trade means a great deal more to Japan than it does to the United States. In 1929 the total showed $431,000,000 worth of goods sent to this country out of a total exportation of $989,000,000. In the same year he United States sent $259,000,000 worth of goods to Japan out of a total of over five billions.

A trade barrier against Japan would plunge her into economic collapse, but it would cost us a large and growing part of our international trade. Are we willing to pay the bill? Most likely not. Even if we assert the illegality of Japanese action, the time may come when she holds sway in Shanghai and Nanking as well as in Manchuria. What then can we do except eventually recognize the government that actually exists?

2. What is Japan's eventual goal? Possibly only the safety of her citizens and an elimination of lawless harassment of her people and interests in China, as she says. But most likely he complete domination of Eastern Asia. Japan has been made aware that she is naturally a very poor nation, that her dependence on foreign trade is indeed a poor dependence for any power which expects to remain great in this world, and possibly she has become convinced that she must carve out a economic empire now that he has the military force with which to do it. Certainly, if the economic drift continues in Japan, as it has in recent years he will not long have that once at her disposal.

Consequently we may be on the eve of mighty events. Probably a new era in the long history of the Far East has opened. In the meantime we know certainly that the world stands face to face with naked force.

HANDSOME MEN

Why should beauty in man be less prized by the public than beauty in woman? Every body praises feminine loveliness and almost everybody sniffs at the like quality in masculinity. It is unjust. A man has got the same right to be pretty that a woman has.

Apollo had a distinction equal to that of Diana among the ancient Greeks. Narcissus was honored by the gods, by being transformed into the flower of that name. Narcissus was so fond of his own image in a mirroring pool, he lost his appetite and pined into invalidism. Did the people censure or upbraid him? They did not. They regarded him as entirely correct in admiring himself, and it may be that it was the people's intercession with the gods that induced the latter to make a flower out of Narcissus. As for Beau Brummel, he was not much of a looker. It was his exquisite taste in clothes and his incomparable wardrobe that made him famous. The ladies liked him because he enjoyed talking dress with them, not because he was more than average easy to look at. When men wore powdered hair, silk pants and lace cuffs, along with multicolored coats and silver buckles, they were more entertaining to the ladies because of their ability to discuss buttons, embroideries, fabrics and modes. But were the gentlemen of those days sissified? We'll say they were not. Let one of them think you had insulted him and he would jab you with his sword without compunction. —State Press in Dallas News.

FARM BUREAU CONVENTION

The Texas Farm Bureau Federation convention at Dallas elected F. P. East of El Paso president and John T. Orr of Dallas vice president at the closing session Friday of the twelfth annual convention.

Abolition of the fee system and substituting a straight salary basis for all county and state officials was demanded in one of the resolutions. Establishment of 8 per cent as the maximum legal interest rate was asked in another resolution. A third favored adoption of a constitutional amendment providing a tax exemption of $3000 on all Texas homes.

TEXAS LEADS SOUTH

IN PER CAPITA WEALTH

Texans have the largest per capita wealth of any southern state, with the exception of Virginia, it was indicated in figures released by the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., for the year 1930.

They show that in that year, which marked the beginning of the depression, there was enough capital in Texas to give every person $1,720, if it were distributed equally.

The total national wealth in 1930 amounted to 320.7 billion dollars and the national income for the same year was $71,000,000,000. This is a decrease of 8.9 per cent in national wealth

READ THE ADS

There are a number of advertisements in this issue that should interest every reader. It is a mighty good habit to form to read all the advertisements each issue.

and a decrease of 16.4 per cent in national income from the preceding year, 1929.

Per capita wealth in 1930 averaged $2,677, as compared with 2,977 in 1929, and the per capita income was $578 in 1930 as compared with $701 in 1929.

If the national wealth for 1930 were distributed equally to each gainful worker, he would give each $6,728, while the average income, similarly computed, would have been $1,450.

A Gracious Livingroom With No Clutter

A TRULY gracious interior is one that refuses to be cluttered and that does not display too much of this and that and ornaments and doodads. In other words, it is colorfully simple, warm, charming but never looks crowded. It is for this reason that the room pictured above is of interest, partaking both of the stern simplicity of the modern art school and the mellowness of the older American tradition. The couch, chair, and table, designed by Gilbert Rohde, are sturdy built of bentwood with African mahogany veneers on the flat surfaces. Some chairs and couches have deep springy cushions and others use finely woven cane dyed brown to match the wood. The bentwood portions are in beech, smartly finished in colored duco to match the mahogany surfaces, the finish being rubbed to a delightfully luxurious semi-gloss sheen. The pieces are designed on the "related group" idea, now so popular in the home furnishing field, and that permits the selection of any desired number of pieces with the definite assurance that the ensemble will be in perfect taste. The colored finish used in this group goes well with the mahogany table top just as furniture of all sorts may be used in any room, part of it mahogany and part of it covered with duco of the same shade. Noticeable features of this present group are the four-roll back to the sofa, creating horizontal lines that make the sofa seem longer than it is, and the unique plaid seat covering to both sofa and chair. Such uncluttered furniture in discreet colors, sitting upon some simple rug with not too much design in its center, always gives the feeling of comfort and hominess to any living room. And that is the one thing that is basically necessary for such a room.

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

A STATEMENT

To the Voters of Precinct No. 3, Mills County:

Having offered as a candidate for commissioner for this precinct, I wish to state that I have said on several occasions that I would not be a candidate for this place, but having received some rather strong endorsements from different parts of the precinct, and especially my own neighborhood, I feel that I should at least make an effort and have decided to do so.

I am sure most of the people of the precinct remember that I was elected to this office just 20 years ago and served four years. Possibly I made mistakes, just as everyone does. I was 30 years old at that time and will be 50 this time and I feel the four years in the office and twenty years experience would be helpful to me in filling the place.

In the event I am elected I am prepared to devote my entire time to the duties of the office and will do so, regardless of the pay, and will co-operate to the extent of my ability and funds with every part of the precinct. On the other hand, if I am defeated I will still be with the man that is elected to help Mills county maintain her good name and precinct No. 3 the best part of it.

Very respectfully,
R. F. (Bob) SWINDLE.

AGED LADY PASSED AWAY

Mrs. L. B. Hale, aged 77, died at the family home at the Saylor farm, seven miles south of Goldthwaite, Tuesday night and her remains were interred in the cemetery here Wednesday afternoon. My incubator is now running. Settings every Monday. Hen eggs 2 1/2c and turkey eggs 4c each. Baby chicks for sale on and after Monday, Feb. 22.—Mrs. C. M. Burch, Phone 97.

LOCK-STEP FARMING GOES

It is not often that a district judge uses language as vigorous, as indignant and as luminous as did Judge W. C. Davis of the Eighty-Fifth District Court in declaring unconstitutional the McDonald acreage restriction law as applied to Texas cotton. The judge held that the prohibition of the free planting of cotton is the "essence of tyranny and destructive of the fundamental principles of free government and violates sacred guarantees of our constitution and would make the bill of rights a nullity and a farce."

Those are strong words, but they are not too strong. The law was a subterfuge to begin with, pretending to preserve the soil, when in fact it aimed at a higher price for cotton. It was a futility on its face because it sought to control the supply of cotton through repression exercised on a minority of the cotton growing area of the world. It ran counter to the experience of the world in attempting artificially to affect the price of a product which by its nature of growth and marketing is not a monopoly and never can be. In a word it was a benevolently intended absurdity which did credit to the hearts of its authors but not to their heads.

These gentlemen meant no tyranny; violation of the constitution was far from their thoughts; they favor free government and are loyal to the bill of rights. Yet every word that Judge Davis says is true. It is an excellent illustration of what lengths we can travel under the spur of a demand as earnest as it is ill-advised. It is likewise an example of the usefulness of restraints in a people as volatile in discontents as we have shown ourselves to be. —Dallas News.

MOUNT OLIVE

Dreaming Dreams
Just dreaming dreams of my future
Of a time my life will have more bliss.

To be at peace with all companions
And help form a better world than this.

Dreaming of a home where mirth and joy reign supreme
For happiness will then be my lot.

It will not be on this earth,
Neither will it be in my life's space of time.

So I have to force myself to be content
To dream of a world that will never be.

But I'll always want to see,
By just dreaming, dreaming dreams.
