

PATERNALISM

While sitting and musing on our industrial dilemma, I am impressed with the thought that our country has adopted the philosophy of the cow that sucks herself, hoping to grow fat and thrifty by drawing off the substance nature has brewed in her system, while pursuing her natural functions of eating and digesting the sustenance yielded by the soil. What her system brews, however, is not intended for her own consumption, but is brewed and stored for another purpose. Just so with taxes gathered by our government. It was not the original intention of our tax laws to gather and store our money in the treasury of the United States to feed and clothe ourselves, but to maintain a live and functioning government under which men might pursue their lives in peace and safety, to the end that they might lay by securely the necessities of life against the time when they would be no longer able to labor and produce.

In our present dilemma, however, we have adopted the plan of drawing from the treasury of our country the substance laid by to maintain our government, apparently forgetting that we are weakening our government, without which certain ruin would come to us all. The cow that sucks herself never realizes she is weakening herself, as well as disgracing herself and undermining her commercial value. The same would naturally be the case with the government that absorbs, for another purpose that which it had stored to maintain, a sufficient government for its orderly functioning.

Our ex-service boys are clamoring for about two million and a half dollars promised them and which undoubtedly will be paid when due, some 13 years before the same is due, when they know our government is now behind some two billion dollars with past due obligations that it is strenuously trying to make up.

Mr. Patman's idea is to issue two billion, two hundred millions of money on the credit of the government, and maintains that it would increase the circulating medium and augment the flow of currency through the channels of industry. He does not seem to consider, however, that much fiat money injected into our circulating medium would endanger the value of the dollar and give us a depreciated currency. Now what all ways follows a depreciated currency? The retirement of gold. We have about four billion and a half of gold. Should that go into seclusion, which it undoubtedly would, we would have the withdrawal of $4,500,000,000 of good money on account of injecting into our circulating medium $2,500,000,000 fiat money. That would most certainly be a bad move.

Our fiat money philosophers generously lay the retirement of gold under such circumstances to the stupidity of the rich. That, however, is no answer to the historical fact that good money goes into seclusion when cheap money appears in the money channels of commerce.

I have never yet seen a cow that sucks herself looked upon as setting a good example for her fellow cows, nor do I believe a government that sucks itself is setting any better example than the cow. In fact, I believe our government is setting a precedent that will remain to torment it as long as its government which, by the way, I fear will not be for many more generations, unless we get back to former principles of supporting the government, instead of looking to the government to support us.

Some regard our government as some magic power separate and distinct from the people who form it. They do not seem to grasp the fact that the government is merely the constituted will of the people that sets up the government, and the government itself can not possess a dollar until it gets that dollar from the people whose government it is. Hence, the government must take from the people before it can give to the people. When you undertake to take from the people more than they have, which appears to be the trend of both our nation,

A WORTHWHILE PROJECT

Working on the theory that every industrial concern and its workers are entitled to the benefits of organized accident prevention, the National Safety Council has announced a plan for spreading the gospel of industrial safety throughout the length and breadth of the land. Every concern, large or small, can have the organization's help in establishing a plan for a continuous campaign of accident prevention.

The plan offered may be pretty well described by one word, "personalized." It takes cognizance of the fact that safety work is everybody's business—not merely that of safety engineers and shop foremen. Every person connected with the plant becomes a 'stockholder' in the work. The Council has provided industrial safety trophies which will be awarded the department or group winning the year-round safety-contest within a company. The individual workman will be reached each month with an interesting magazine called "The Safe Worker." Payroll messages are to be provided to be given on pay day to every workman as an added reminder of safety. The technique of the plan is to reach every member of a concern with personal, direct contacts in the interest of safety industrial operations.

Many concerns, through concentrated safety work, have reduced accidents from 50 to 90 per cent in recent years. Thousands of death and hundreds of thousands of non-fatal accidents can be prevented annually. Plant efficiency can be increased tremendously.

ISOLATION GONE MAD

"During the past twelve months voices have been heard . . . to the effect that foreign trade is a negligible factor in the restoration of our domestic prosperity. Ninety-five per cent of our existing business is domestic, they say, why not face the fact and center upon the home market? And so they advocate a closer drawing of the curtains about the great expanse of the United States, they contend for yet higher barriers to exclude the goods of other lands. This is the philosophy of economic 'defeatism.' It is 'Isolation' gone mad. It has no more justification economically than the advocacy of a return to the era of the kerosene lamp. Despite the attractiveness of our domestic market, it must be remembered that 92 per cent of the world's population lives outside the United States and is poorly supplied with the things we best produce. Our international position today demands more analysis, more careful consideration and greater dependence upon facts than ever before in the history of our commerce."

state and municipal tax assessments, it looks to me like we are bound to wreck it sooner or later.

It seems to me the only salvation for us is to reduce government expense, instead of increasing taxation. We could better afford to reduce government expense 50 per cent than to bankrupt our government and revert to anarchy.

We all know that the outstanding shame of our governmental system today is the multitude of officials we are taxed to support. If fifty per cent of them were abolished and the other fifty per cent given to understand they must work at their jobs or get out, half of our troubles would be over.

While speaking of government, there is one feature the Wickham Crime Commission failed to bring out fully, and that is the fact that the peace officer who tries faithfully to enforce the law generally comes into disfavor with his superiors and loses his job. It's a disgraceful fact that in an investigation of charges the little man hasn't a look in against the higher-up. This system becomes the hotbed of crime and enables the higher-up to play a remunerative role, while crime multiplies and the cost of enforcing the law also multiplies, while we simple, trusting taxpayers marvel at the prodigious cost of law enforcement, as well as at the ponderous growth of crime.

NEWS ODDITIES

At Ocean Beach, N. Y., from now until Dec. 1, no one except the refuse collector and the fire department can drive automobiles. Furthermore, bicycles are banned. The village trustees so decided, after an automobile hit a bicycle.

In Chicago, after three years of living in the cell with the family police dog, Jacob Matenko told Harry B. Miller that he came to the conclusion his wife, Anna, meant it, when she said she didn't care for his company any more. Mrs. Matenko was denied alimony.

George Swenson, 15, a farmer's son of Atwater, Minn., was pretty tired when he brought his savings to the bank for deposit. There was 85 pounds of money in the sack he lugged in on his back—12,000 pennies he had been saving for many years. It took a clerk several hours to count and wrap them.

"Physohobiologicalpharmacodynamics." That's the name of a new branch of the science of psychiatry, which Dr. Leroy M. A. Maeder, speaker at the American Psychiatric association's convention in Philadelphia, says is helping to arrive at a better understanding of mental disorders. Maybe so—we won't argue.

Three Massachusetts cities have banned a circus act by William Allen, the negro who found the body of the Lindbergh baby. Mayor Bakor of Brockton and McGrath of Quincy, characterized the negro's proposed appearance in their cities as "contemptible commercialism." The Lowell city council recommended that the act be barred there.

An anonymous gift-giver is making Mr. and Mrs. John Neely of Wentlings Corner, Pa. richer, but puzzled and uneasy. Altho reassured in an unsigned note in one of the packages that they need not fear to wear the gifts—that they were given in return for a favor to the donor by Mrs. Neely—the Neelys have no recollection of ever having bestowed any unusual favor on anyone.

In Minneapolis, Joseph Webb, fainted himself into the city jail. Webb, 21, who said his home was Amarillo, Texas, was described by police as an expert fainter, who exploited his genius to collect many dollars and at least one dinner invitation. Street car conductors in recent weeks recounted stories of many "faintings" on their cars. The "victim" always said he was hungry and passengers took up collections.

The man for whom good and bad luck always came late has died. He was Prof. Karl W. Augustin, 88, for 31 years high school instructor in Hamburg, Germany. His death, the physician's certificate says, was due to a wound received in the Franco-Prussia war of 1870-71. In 1899, 28 years after he had been discharged from the service as incapacitated, he was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant by the imperial war department, which said that "through an oversight he was not notified of his promotion in the army list of 1870," that is just before the war started.

SCHOOL FUND HELPED

The school fund of Texas will get millions of dollars as the result of the final decision of the supreme court of Texas this week on the suit of the state against the Empire Fuel and Gas Co. and J. H. Tippett.

The supreme court has refused to reconsider its ruling in which it held that the school fund is entitled to half the bonus monies received from the leasing for mineral exploration of mineral classified school lands.

UNSALT SALT LAKE

The Great Salt Lake being so salty that its waters are unfit for water power development, residents of the lake-shore region are working out plans to "unsalt" the lake and develop its latent power.

A committee of leading Utah study the feasibility of constructing a series of dikes which would cut off about 133 square miles of the lake from the main body of water. The plan, if successful, would be extended later to include 500 square miles, or a little less than a third of the lake.

The first proposed fresh water unit would be formed by building two dikes, one five miles long from the upper end of Antelope Island to the mainland, the other two miles long from the lower end of the same island to the mainland. Into this corner of the lake the Jordan river and several minor streams empty.

The second unit would be isolated from the salt water by constructing a dike 1.7 miles long from Promontory Point to the upper end of Fremont Island and one six miles long from Fremont and Antelope Islands. Into this body of water the Bear and Weber rivers empty. Tentative plans call for the later construction of a scenic drive along the lake dikes.

The plan for "unsalting" the Great Salt Lake was first conceived by Ferdinand De Lesseps, the noted French engineer, who built the Suez canal and started the Panama canal.

Information here is that the attorney general's department will seek to collect sums of money from land owners, though it will in cases find a stumbling block in the form of the usual entries in the county clerk's records which cite considerations for leases at "$1 and other valuable considerations." SANCTUARY

The Texas longhorn is making a last stand in Oklahoma. In the Wichita National Forest near Lawton, Uncle Sam has rounded up a herd of those ferocious steers whose furious energy kept several generations of Texas cowmen uneasy in the saddle. The few surviving remnants of the millions of hardy animals which milled across the plains of the Lone Star state are to find sanctuary on government property, and spend their declining days in the hills of Oklahoma.

Will C. Barnes, old-time cowboy of Arizona and New Mexico and once chief of grazing in the United States forest service, is the man mainly responsible for finding a refuge for the longhorn. And it took him a considerable period of time to round up 30 of the ancient breed. He came down into Texas, searching from one end of the state to the other, but the millions of yesterday had vanished into the maws of the Kansas City packing houses. A lonely few remained to tilt hostile horns at the riders who came to rope them into solitary seclusion for the Wichita mountain resort.

Time was when the longhorn made the Southwest's major industry. Some 10,000,000 cattle followed the Chisholm Trail and other roads to Caldwell and Abilene and Dodge City. Then the railroads came to Texas and it was mighty hard for a cowboy to crowd a steer with an eight-foot spread of horns into a cattle car. And the wire fence checkerboarded the short-grass country until the longhorn felt uncomfortable in his cramped domain. Then the ranchmen of Texas decided to import the Hereford and other improved breeds. The doom of the old-timer was thus speedily pronounced.

Unable to compete with the short-legged, fat cattle which rode luxuriously to Kansas City where their long-limbed predecessors had walked and swam, the longhorn's wild, unruly spirit it was completely curbed. Only a scattered few remain in the Wichita to remind the South-west of the days that used to be. — Houston Chronicle.

Cleaning and pressing will help that old suit and make it look like new. Burch knows how.

BEAUTY in the HOME

Crisp Curtains for the Sleeping Room

HOME furnishings with a distinct period feeling, bugbears to the housewife, who never is quite sure whether they "go" well with the rest of a room, are not so embarrassing as one might think, as is delightfully illustrated in this sleeping room which combines the French Provincial and early American spirit.

The handsome curtains, a most important adjunct to any room, furnish the note to which the remainder of the apartment is tuned. They are ecrú marquisette in a bel-marque finish which is a chemical treatment of the yarn that gives it the necessary crispness and permanency. The blue in the yarns is so that it is not necessary in laundering to use starch. Flat colors, fast to light and water, are used in the drapes, and the curtains carry out the light cream color of the Provincial wall paper which has a small pattern of blue and orange dots. No drapes are used but such a window might well have over-drapes as well.

The furniture is of French design in maple and the lamp-wick bedspread is covered with a Kentucky coverlet. Braided Colonial rug, pewter and an old-fashioned clock add to the quaint charm of the place.

So, here is a room furnished very simply but with a beauty all its own, a personality, in fact, in which naive furnishings from the south of France, American contemporary, Colonial accessories and a touch of color from the Kentucky mountains all go to help. Mixing one's periods doesn't matter: on the contrary, sometimes it helps.

Over 70 candidates for state offices will appear on the ballots at the Democratic primary in July. Of these 11 are candidates for governor, 9 for railroad commissioner and 38 for congressman at large.

The American gunboat Oahu opened fire on Chinese soldiers, who were attacking two English steamers Tuesday. The soldiers, described as irregulars, were after $110,000 in cash, which was being transferred from one of the boats which had run aground. Many were killed, it was believed.

DEMOCRATIC CALL

All members of the Mills County Democratic Executive Committee are urged to meet at the court house in the city of Goldthwaite on Monday, the 20th day of June, 1932, at 10 o'clock a. m., to draw for candidates places on the July Primary ballot, assess candidates for ballot fees and transact any other business that may properly come before said meeting.

One very important matter that will come up for consideration will be to decide how much will be paid for officers holding the primary elections this year. Expenses will be heavy on our county and precinct candidates and a proposition for the election officers to serve for less money than has formerly been paid for such service will come before the meeting.

According to my records the following are the names of the precinct chairmen:

- 1—M. H. Fletcher, Goldthwaite. 2—James W. Burdett, Nabors Creek. 3—Frank R. Hines, Antelope Gap. 4—John D. Walton, Center City. 5—W. J. Hall, Payne. 6—T. L. Again let me urge each precinct chairman to be present at the meeting on the date and at the place mentioned above. JNO. W. ROBERTS, Chm., Mills Co. Dem. Ex. Com.

L. E. PATTERSON ANNOUNCES

The Eagle is authorized to announce Judge L. E. Patterson as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Judge. It is useless for this paper to attempt to introduce Judge Patterson to its readers, for they all know him and are familiar with the splendid record he made in the office to which he aspires. He is known as a careful business man and financier and is credited with having been of great benefit to the county in watching its expenditures and balancing its budget.

As head of the rural schools he also did good work and is remembered by many of the teachers, school boards and others interested in school affairs for the impetus he gave the school work and his careful attention to the interests of the schools, watching the expenditures of the funds and assisting the boards in maintaining their schools and their financial standing. He has been solicited by many friends to enter the race and it is in obedience to this demand and his own desire to be of benefit to the county and the people who have supported him in the past that he offers his candidacy at this time.

TAX BANKRUPTCY

The spectre of tax bankruptcy is faced by a good many Americans these days. Tax levies take the estimated equivalent of one day's labor every week from everyone in the country. A few years ago one out of every 22 persons gainfully employed was on the public payroll; now the percentage is one in 11. It is said that if the present rate continues, in a little over twenty years we will have one person working for government for every person who pays taxes!

Recently, in a middle western state, one million acres of land were taken over by the counties for unpaid taxes. Another state has an $18,000,000 deficit. Another has $10,000,000 in signed contracts for certain projects and is unable to raise a single dollar with which to meet them. In many parts of the country local bond issues have defaulted, schools have been closed, necessary functions of government have been crippled, public employes have been unpaid.

This is what government extravagance has done. Higher taxes is not the solution. The people can not pay. In Ohio, according to Mark Sullivan, with present low commodity prices, the state and municipalities take, in taxes, an amount about equal to the entire value of every farmer's crop. Nothing but tax bankruptcy can result if the trend of today is continued.

LIVE OAK

Come see "Headstrong Joan." The Bethel church will present this comedy-drama in three acts by Lillian Mortimer at the Live Oak school house Saturday night, June 18, 1932, for the benefit of the church. Ice cream and popcorn will be sold throughout the program. The presence of you and your pocket book will be appreciated.

On Thursday night, June 2, 1932, Miss Ollie Mae Featherston teacher of the Intermediate-Senior class of the Bethel Sunday school, entertained the members of guests with a Bum party. By 8:30 the most ragged and motley group of bums ever seen in Mills county had gathered at an appointed place, and each bum carried a sack on his back. After all had arrived the group, singing "The American Bum Song," marched in a body to the kitchen door of the C. G. Featherston home, where they begged for a hand-out and were given sandwiches. From there they went a distance of half a mile, to the kitchen door of the Roy Harwell home, where they were given cookies and from there they walked a mile to the kitchen door of the J. H. Brown home, where they were given popcorn. From there the crowd of bums went to a nearby meadow, built a bonfire and then proceeded to dispose of the contents of their sacks. After everyone had eaten an election was held to determine who present was the bumpiest looking bum. Roy Aldridge was chosen and was awarded the prize. Then the group jumped the rope for awhile before bidding each other good night and expressing their wish for another such party. Members of the class who were present were Glenn and Letta Featherston, Anna Lee Hill, Christine Denman and Clifford Rose. Members of the young peoples class present were Ila Fay Featherston, Christine Simpson and Ruth Heath. Guests present were Morine and Mordine Brown, Vecna Platt, Dick Parker, G. W. Simpson, Roy Hill and Roy Aldridge and the hostess, Ollie Mae Featherston.

MR. JAMES W. HARRIS

The remains of Mr. James Wesley Harris were brought here from Snyder last Saturday and carried to Center City cemetery for interment.

Mr. Harris made his home in this county many years, but for ten years or more he had made his home in and near Snyder. He was a son of the lamented Mr. Rube Harris and was reared in the Caradan community. He was a good man and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He spent several weeks in the county recently and renewed the acquaintances of long ago. He had been in ill health for a good many years and his death was not unexpected. He leaves his wife and a number of grown children, besides a brother and several sisters.

He offered the resolution instructing Maryland's 16 votes for its governor, and his speech before the state convention led to his selection for the Chicago task.

Officials of a New York maternity hospital disclose that an appendix operation has been successfully performed on an infant immediately after birth. The child, a boy, weighed but three pounds at birth and physicians, who observed a serious hernia involving the appendix, decided an immediate operation was imperative. The boy has since then gained more than a pound and in a few days will be able to leave the hospital with his mother. Hospital officials believed it to be the first time such a serious operation had been performed successfully so soon after birth.

Assumption of the bonded indebtedness, under terms of the resolution, would include the amounts maturing, both principal and interest, for 1932 and thereafter, until all of said county road bond indebtedness is retired and paid off in full.

PROMPTER JUSTICE

The law's delays and costs are so proverbially resistant to reform that credit attaches to a committee under Lord Chancellor Sankey, which has succeeded in doing something to make justice more accessible in Britain. Their reform came into force on May 24. It is directed to shortening trials and discouraging appeals in a large number of commercial cases not involving charges of fraud.

The tribunal especially affected is what is known as the "Kings Bench Division." Here two judges have been specially told off to dispose of suits by a greatly simplified procedure. The court is empowered to dispense with juries, reduce the number of witnesses, fix time-tables for the completion of preliminaries and generally to short-circuit procrastination.

The judges remain as before, thereby assuring to the litigants continuation of the high standard of impartiality characteristic of British courts. The justice dispensed may be of a more rough-and-ready character than under the elaborate procedure hitherto adopted, but the ordinary merchant is not likely to object to this if he finds his pocket and his time alike are saved. The reform has come none too soon. The London Chamber of Commerce has long been pressing for some such arrangement in view of what it has found to be delays so great and costs so heavy as to have seriously discouraged resort to courts.

It is reasonable to hope that the reform may ultimately be extended to cover criminal as well as civil justice. — Christian Science Monitor.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES AND BUSINESS

Education is as necessary to the life of a democracy as are food, clothing and shelter necessary to the health and life of the individual citizen.

Thomas Jefferson said: "If a nation expects to be both ignorant and free in a state of civilization it expects what never was and never will be." "A fool and his money are soon parted," is an old saying that emphasizes the fact that ignorant humanity cannot compete successfully with those who are well informed, educated and trained.

A community is no better than its schools. Hurt the schools and you hurt everything.

These facts make it clear that the office of school trustee is a very important one. The trustee who does not provide himself with information pertaining to the schools cannot serve his school, his county or his state acceptably. Education in Texas is really "big business" and much of the trouble and losses incident to the administration of the schools comes because many trustees are not well informed and do not comprehend the tragic results of their indifference.—Texas Outlook.

PROGRESSIVE TEXAS

More than one million acres of land were tracted in Texas in the year 1931, much of it in the northwest and west sections of the state, according to report of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college.

Heretofore devoted almost entirely to livestock, western Texas is becoming more diversified and now is producing all the regular agricultural products, such as wheat, corn, cotton, coarse grains, dairy products and poultry.

A total of 3,536 carloads of eggs and poultry, consisting of 271 cars of live chickens, 928 cars of dressed chickens, 49 cars of live turkeys, 1,342 cars of dressed turkeys and 973 cars of eggs were shipped from Texas during 1931 to thirty markets.

Texas farmers prepared in 1931 more meat for home use than in any other year, according to a state agricultural college bulletin. It is estimated that approximately three out of every four families have provided cured and canned meats for their own home use. In 147 counties special attention was given to home preparation of meat.

The turkey crop of Texas runs into big money—approximately ten million dollars annually. More than seven million dollars of this sum comes from other states for turkeys shipped out of Texas. The state crop means $80 for every turkey raiser, the crop being raised by 125,000 individuals. Texas produces half the turkeys in the United States.

Texas has many natural resources. Great areas in east Texas are covered with long and short pine and lumbering is active there. Petroleum development is a leading industry, and new oil fields are located from year to year. The production in 1928, a normal year, averaged about 700,000 barrels a day. The state produces 99 per cent of the sulphur output in the United States. Mercury and silver are produced in the west. Coal mines produce about 2,000,000 tons a year. Other minerals are gypsum, potash and iron ore.

There has been a marked increase in the number of cattle and sheep being fed on Texas farms with Texas grown feed. According to the best information available January 1, 1931, reports of 88 counties showed an excess of 400 men engaged in cattle feeding, representing approximately 70,000 head of cattle. On the same date they reported from 136 counties, approximately 1,000 farmers engaged in cattle feeding with something like 125,000 head of cattle on feed. Reports from 51 counties indicated 286 farmers feeding 187,000 head of sheep.

A traveler when he reaches Texas is astounded at the state's gigantic proportions, its tremendous distances, its practically limitless potential productivity. Six flags have floated above Texas—French, Spanish, Mexican, Lone Star, Confederate and the United States. The state, the largest in the union, has an area of 265,700 square miles, organized into 252 counties. Its shore line on the Gulf of Mexico is 400 miles. The distance across the state from north to south is approximately 805 miles, and from east to west, 765 miles. The topography of Texas varies from wide coastal plains to high prairies in the northwest and picturesque mountains in the far west. The altitude ranges from sea level in the south, to 5,000 feet on the northwest plains, and to 9,600 feet in the west. — The Earth.

In Bigwood, Ont., two collie dogs received adulation due heroes. They were credited with saving the life of Miss Loretta Page, 22, school teacher, after three of her pupils had perished in a fire last week. Unable to save the children, Miss Page jumped from an upper window, her clothing flaming. As she lay on the ground with wrenched ankles, the collies rolled her about, scratching out the flames with their paws.

WHERE IS OUR TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

It was during the World War when Great Britain and Germany were otherwise engaged that we managed to obtain a seemingly firm foothold in South American trade. Let us see what became of a great opportunity. We were out to sell goods, and we sold them. No thought whatsoever was given as to how payment was to be made—as to whether South America produced enough of the things we wanted. If any particular country happened to be a little short of the dollars necessary for some purchase, we promptly lent them. Moreover, went on lending more and more as our tariff made it more and more difficult for South America to obtain dollars by the exchange of goods. Suddenly realizing that a crash was inevitable we applied the brakes in a way calculated to do the greatest possible damage. We refused to lend another nickel to South America, we maintained our tariff, even agitated for one of our products previously on the free list—copper and oil—and then wonder why there are $1,000,000,000 worth of South American bonds in default. No one likes to default on an acknowledged debt. South America is no exception. It deeply resents the untenable position in which it now finds itself. Look at the steps that are now being taken. Peru no longer heard that we proposed to place a duty on copper than a bill placing a 300 per cent ad valorem additional duty on all goods from the United States was put before congress for immediate consideration. Should such a union actually materialize, we will have lost the trade of a continent and in view of the facts who can be blamed but ourselves? In addition to which all the leading South American republics have actually negotiations for the express purpose of forming a customs union for united defense and concerted reprisals against the United States.—The Magazine of Wall Street.

HIGHWAYS OF PROGRESS

When $100,000,000 is spent for secondary highways of the road-mix type, costing $3,500 per mile, $40,000,000 goes to the direct employment of labor. Many millions more go indirectly to labor, due to purchases of supplies, shipping, etc.

No other form of relief effort does so much to aid employment as practical road building where needed—and none so permanently benefits states and towns. During the last year or two, millions of families have been tided over bad periods, wholly or partially by road work, while towns, villages and farming areas have been given year-round roads that are vital to future progress.

We can buy good roads without inflating the tax bill. What is needed is a wise allocation of funds between main and secondary arteries, and a high degree of efficiency in highway departments.

New Mexico has made some wonderful demonstrations in building satisfactory low-cost roads with the oil road-mix type of construction.

Rio Grande Valley peace officers are making a study just now of bloodhounds, and how to instill a little bad temper into some of them, following the examining hearing given a Mexican resident of Matamoros, on charges of assault to murder and robbery.

The Mexican revealed at the hearing that bloodhounds that trailed him were quite friendly, and that he led them around a bit, and finally when he laid down and went to sleep, the bloodhounds promptly did the same.

It was said the bloodhounds were trained at the Texas prison farms, and that most of the training was done by trustees. These trustees, having in mind the possibility of some future contact with the dogs, trained them to be unusually gentle if it is believed.

A VOLCANO PRISON

Hawaiian authorities are seriously considering putting hardened criminals into a volcano. The volcano is situated on Rabbit Island, off the windward shore of Oahu, the island on which Honolulu stands.

It is an extinct volcano, of course, Rabbit Island is the old long-cold crater of a volcano that helped in the construction of Oahu some half-million years ago. The walls of the crater, reared high above the water, form natural barriers against escape from the prison which will be constructed in the ancient volcanic bowl, if recommendations are carried out.

Manana (Rabbit) Island was recently inspected by Maj. Gordon C. Ross, high sheriff, and associates, with a view of surveying its prison possibilities. It must be compared with the famous Alcatraz military prison in San Francisco Bay.

If the project goes through there would be little cause to worry about prisoners escaping. Even an unusual swimmer, supposing he sealed the precipitous walls of the dead crater, which are intact on three sides, would be taking a long chance with sharks in a long swim to doubtful freedom.

The only artificial barricade required would be where a portion of the crater wall fell into the ocean at some time before the dawn of local history. In the crater there is excellent soil for a prison garden. Whether the rabbits that inhabit the island volcano will be dispossessed to make room for prison establishment is a point to be considered.

Rabbit island has an area of about 70 acres, is a mile off shore, and rises at its highest to 360 feet. A landing can be made only when the tide is right.

OCEAN TO SWALLOW BIG CITIES OF THE WORLD

New York is destined to become an American Venice. Her streets, canyoned by skyscrapers, will be filled with water to the twelfth floor.

This is the fate of the world's largest city and of all lowland cities, pictured by Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the U. S. Weather Bureau before the American Meteorological Society meeting in New York.

The filling of Wall street with water will follow the melting of the great ice caps of the earth to raise the ocean level about 150 feet, Dr. Humphreys said. We do not expect this tomorrow, he qualified, but it's on the way. And the more the earth's permanent ice melts, the faster that which is left turns into water.

Explorations of the past year which determined by sonic sounding the average thickness of the great Greenland ice sheet to be about one mile, make possible a fairly accurate estimate of the height the oceans will rise, it was pointed out. Little has been known in the past about the quantity of ice on the earth.

Dr. Humphreys said there must be 4,000,000 cubic miles of ice on Greenland, the Antarctic and Iceland. The earth is slowly getting warmer and eventually all will melt, the continent and Iceland. The scientists generally conceded.—Science Service.

VINDICATING A COLONEL

In the game of war, the lowest private and the highest general know but one command. Whatever they are told to do, they must do—or run the risk of court martial. "Thurs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die."

But because one A. E. F. colonel refused to obey orders several thousand American soldiers are alive today. He was ordered to lay down an artillery barrage on a certain part of the St. Mihiel sector. He refused to do so, saying that confusion of rocket signals with those of the Germans would endanger the lives of 20,000 American infantrymen.

His punishment was retirement from the army. This punishment has now been officially wiped out by formal act of the house military affairs committee. Wilbur Rogey of Chicago, an artillery colonel in the A. E. F., has been vindicated for refusing to obey an order he considered defective. The order, he contended, was the virtual death warrant for thousands of doughboys.

Discipline must be maintained, of course, but few American citizens will quarrel with the act of congress in vindicating Colonel Rogers. Not even a military man is supposed to be a mere automaton at all times, under all circumstances.—Abilene Reporter-News.

TOO YOUNG TO GRADUATE

Chicago's 8-year-old girl prodigy, whose intellectual brilliance made her a teacher of backward children in her school went through eight grades in two years, but can't be graduated because she's too young.

Joanna Xenos, whose parents can neither speak nor write the English language, is the girl.

Her principal, Alfred W. Schroeder, has now decided that although she had made startling progress in Latin, Algebra and Spanish, she is not mature enough to enter high school. Instead she will be asked to repeat her grade school studies, beginning the next school year at the fourth grade.

Joanna reads books written for grown-ups and says she intends to teach history in college when she's old enough. During the past year she has spent part of her time studying and the rest in teaching slow-learning pupils in her own school.

Our convention was a huge success. The attendance was over two or three hundred larger than the last two Mills county quarterly conventions. Our school house will have more room the next time we are fortunate enough to get the county singing convention. All of the singers were wonderfully fed and after lunch, we had the Indian Gap brass quartette and the Stamps vocal trio. We want the county to know Mount Olive school outranked every school in the county in reading certificates.
