The Goldthwaite public school will open for the fall term one week from next Monday, which will be September 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Haney of Atwood, California, are here visiting relatives, the J. I. Haney and C. L. Featherston families.

Rev. J. S. Bowles, who has been confined to his home for two weeks, is reported able to be up and it is hoped he will soon be fully recovered.

Highway Plans Are Progressing

The committees charged with securing the right-of-way extension of the Pecan Belt highway from the San Saba county line to the Comanche county line report progress in their work, but all land owners along the route have not been seen and a few of those interviewed have not agreed to donate the ground needed for the widening of the highway. The required width is 100 feet, whereas the present right-of-way only embraces 60 feet, hence an additional 40 feet must be secured before the Highway Commission will spend $10,000 per mile to hard surface it. As was explained by Mr. Dew in the called meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last week, there is no money to pay for the right-of-way, as the Highway Commission only agrees to set the fences back and hard surface the roadway, making the necessary grading and ditching. Hence, it is hoped to secure a donation of the land required, the land owner being benefitted by having a hard surfaced road running by or through his property, thereby increasing its value far beyond the worth of the land donated.

President Dew of the Chamber of Commerce announces he will call a meeting of that body early next week to make a report to the Highway Commission on Mills county's decision in the matter of giving the right-of-way.

MEETING IN PROGRESS

A revival meeting was begun in the Methodist church Wednesday night to continue through two Sundays. Rev. H. J. Watkins of Texas Woman's College, Fort Worth, is doing the preaching. He is a strong preacher with a pleasing delivery and made a very favorable impression on the congregation at the start. The services are being held at eight o'clock each evening this week, but beginning Sunday there will be morning services also, beginning at 10 o'clock and continuing one hour.

Roosevelt Opens Campaign in Ohio

Speaking at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday, Franklin D. Roosevelt charged Herbert Hoover and the Republican party, while possessing of accurate knowledge, "played the game of the Wall Street gambler," then when the crash came, deliberately misled the people of the United States.

He promised, as the Democratic candidate for the presidency, the next administration "will neither by word nor deed seek to influence the price of stocks and bonds," but will exercise the "horse-sense" that needed no legislation to restore the confidence of the people in the honesty of their government.

Here are the high lights of the governor's speech, which formally opened his campaign:

We must make American individualism what it was intended to be—equality of opportunity for all, the right of exploitation for none.

I propose an orderly, explicit and practical group of fundamental remedies. These will protect not the few, but the great mass of average American men and women, who I am ashamed to repeat, have been forgotten by those in power.

When facts could no longer be ignored and excuse had to be found, Washington discovered that the depression came from abroad.

We find a tariff that has cut off any chance of a foreign market for our products which had the effect of cutting the earnings of the farmer to the extent of threatening him with foreclosure and want.

I sum up the history of the last administration—it encouraged speculation and over-production—erroneously charged the cause to other nations of the world—attempted to minimize the crash and misled the people as to its gravity—refused to recognize and correct the evils at home, which had brought it forth, delayed relief and forgot to reform.

News in Brief

Japanese soldiers are again patrolling the streets in the Hong-kew section of Shanghai, China, as a result of Chinese boycotting Japanese firms. The Japs have explained that the action was necessary in order to protect Japanese subjects.

R. J. Reynolds, Jr., brother of Smith Reynolds, who was recently found dead at his home in Winston-Salem, N. C., after a drinking party, has declared that from evidence presented the coroner's jury, he too believes his brother was slain. The widow, Libby Holman Smith, jazz singer, and Albert Walker, chum of the dead man, are free on $25,000 bonds awaiting trial for the murder.

The Methodist board of temperance and morals has parted politically from President Hoover, whom it supported vigorously in 1928. His backsliding on prohibition is given as the reason. The board endorses Vice President Curtis, however, who is still dry enough to suit.

National banks have issued $31,000,000 brand new currency printed for them in accordance with the Glass-Bohah amendment passed by the last congress. Prices are already feeling the effect and are moving up.

GUESTS HONORED

Mesdames R. M. Thompson and M. Y. Stokes, Jr., honored their guests, Mrs. H. H. Jennings and Miss Jane Jennings of Houston, with a reception Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, in the Thompson home. Members of the Self Culture, Art and Civic and Tuesday Study Clubs, together with a few neighbor ladies, constituted the guests.

The reception rooms were decorated with pot plants and cut flowers, while delightful piano and vocal music was supplied by Miss Jennings and several of the local ladies.

Tea dainties were served and the afternoon was most delightfully spent by all present, and it was indeed a pleasure to us all to meet the charming honorees. A GUEST.

City Tax Rate Is Slashed 35c

City taxes to be paid next year will be only $1.15 on the hundred dollars instead of $1.50, the City Council has decided. Renditions upon which the taxes will be levied have also been reduced nearly 25 per cent. For this year renditions were $550,000 as compared with $724,000 last year. Although the combination of reduced renditions and reduced tax rate will provide considerably less revenue next year, economies already instituted by the council will reduce expenses to a point where they will be fully provided for by the expected income.

Approximately the same number of employees will receive employment from the city as in the past, but the wage rate is lower.

City Secretary F. P. Bowman says that the city tried to buy back some of its waterworks bonds at a discount on account of the weakness of the present bond market, but was unable to find a single holder who would sell at less than par.

The new city budget may be inspected by any taxpayer by applying to the City Secretary.

INDIAN GAP GIN BURNED

The Clabo & Walker Gin at Indian Gap burned Tuesday night about 10 o'clock and it is believed by many to have been the work of an incendiary. There had been no fire about the gin during the day, although workmen had been there doing some repair work, getting it ready for the fall run. People who arrived at the scene of the fire early thought they detected the smell of oil, but of course, this might have been imaginary. However, the entire building and contents burned in a very short time. This gin was remodeled and modern machinery was installed in it a few years ago and it could be termed a fairly new gin. The initial cost is said to have been more than twenty thousand dollars. It is understood the insurance totaled eight or ten thousand dollars. The owners are also interested in gins at Priddy, Pottsville and possibly elsewhere.

Other Candidates Besides Governor To Be Voted On

Something About the 12 Other Candidates for State Offices.

So hot has been the governor's race to be decided at the second Democratic primary election tomorrow, many people have lost sight of the fact that six other important state offices are also to be filled at this election. Here is impartial information about each of these candidates.

For State Railroad Commissioner

Six Year Term

C. V. Terrell of Wise county is the present incumbent. After holding several county offices he became state senator in 1896 and again in 1910. He was appointed state treasurer and also elected to that office in 1922. He was appointed railroad commissioner and elected for two year term in 1924 and re-elected for the six year term in 1926. He has been an office holder for most if not all of the past 46 years. He is a Methodist.

Lee Satterwhite of Ector county was born in Arkansas in 1871. He was a member of the 27th and the 36th to 39th legislatures inclusive. He has lived in West Texas since 1885. He has been a newspaper man and farmer most of his life. He is a Baptist.

He served in France in the World War and was the youngest lieutenant colonel in the American army. He was twice elected mayor of Amarillo, where he fought successfully for reduced utility rates. He is now a member of the railroad commission, having been appointed to succeed Pat Neff.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court

News From Mills County Communities

MIDWAY

Some of our people are still suffering from bad colds.

The church at this place has just closed a two weeks revival. The meeting was held at Caradan and Bro. Lawrence Hays did the preaching. Much interest was aroused and large crowds attended every night service. The consensus of opinion of the people in this community is that Bro. Hays is one of the best preachers that has ever been in this section. We were indeed fortunate in securing him for the revival. His brother, James Hays, has been pastor of the church for several months and was unanimously elected as pastor for the ensuing year. He and his wife have a host of friends in the community and are making their influence felt in many ways. The church people are hoping and praying that they will accept the work for another year.

The church feels that much was accomplished in securing the co-operation and interest of the entire community. The Christian people were greatly revived and there were several additions to the church. Without doubt, seeds were sown that will, in time, yield an abundant harvest.

One important result of the meeting was the starting of a movement for the erection of a church building at Caradan. The Baptist people are taking the lead in this movement, because they so keenly feel the need of a place to worship. Members of other denominations, are co-operating and the building will be open to all protestants. It would seem that the Lord is leading in the movement as the enthusiasm for the project is almost unanimous in the community, and in spite of the depression some relatively large gifts have been promised. Many hope that with the completion of the building religious services can be arranged for each Sunday of the month.

Caradan is a thriving community and one where there is a large number of Christian people, but they have never had a building in which to concentrate their worship. Consequently much enthusiasm has been manifested in the building project. Definite steps are being taken to carry out the plans, and the co-operation and assistance of all people interested in the spreading of the gospel and the up-building of the community life are solicited.

EARLY HISTORY OF MULLIN

(By Ancient Annie)

Perhaps some of the younger occupants of Mullin would like to know the history of Mullin and the surrounding country. Part of this may not be exactly correct, as I am using other people's memories the same as my own.

Several years ago there was a thriving little city three miles southeast of Mullin, called Williams' Ranch. In the year of 1885 it was made known that a railroad was to come through Mills county. For some reason it would not go through Williams Ranch. Immediately there were three town sites established—one at Mullin, one at Goldthwaite and one at Pegtown, the latter being located on Uncle Bud Smith's farm. At this time Mills county was organized out of Brown, Comanche, Lampasas and Hamilton counties.

The next thing to do was to select a county seat. The election caused a great deal of interest, as to which of the three towns would be the county seat. Goldthwaite won over Mullin by 13 votes. Pegtown was sponsored by three men—Uncle Jim Guthrie, Phil Duren and J. A. Connor,—and received 17 votes. Had it not been for Pegtown being in the race the entire 17 votes would have been cast for Mullin and Mullin would have been the county seat of Mills county.

Pegtown died a very natural death and all hands went to work to make Mullin a real city.

The first houses built in Mullin were erected by Mose Kirkpatrick, Alex Connor and T. S. Beard. The Alex Connor and T. S. Beard houses still stand, after having been remodeled. One is occupied by the O. E. Rice Mill and the other is the Southwestern States Telephone Co. Mr. Alexander, about the same time, built the house occupied by Uncle John Massey. The depot was erected and Mullin was known as "The Switch" for a short time. The late John J. Cox was the first station agent.

I will give you some names of the oldest settlers in this part of the county. Of course, I cannot remember all, and should I fail to mention some I do not wish their relatives to be offended.

Their names are the following: Phil Duren, father of our neighbors, Ernest and Connor Duren and Mrs. Charlie Green; Dr. and Uncle Jack Brockenbough, John Williams, I. T. Ward, Uncle Jim and Grandma Guthrie, parents of Jim and John Guthrie and Mrs. E. Reynolds; W. D. Fisher, whose sons Sam and Will, and daughter, Mrs. Turner Coleman, live in our midst; M. C. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Kirkpatrick still lives, and remembers the development of Mullin; J. L. Burkett, who has a wife and a number of children living in and around Mullin; J. D. Kirkpatrick, who was a doctor; Eli Fairman, Newt Pyeatt, B. J. White, who is still living; Bill and D. R. McCormick, J. A. and D. Y. Childers, Aunt Mary James; Grandpa Pickens, Bill and George Williams, J. D. Chesser, A. N. Pickens, Messrs. Ethridge, Roberts, Dan Smith.

T. S. Beard was the first postmaster, groceryman and druggist, and Mr. N. J. Tyson clerked for him. Mr. B. J. White owned the first barber shop in Mullin. J. L. Burkett and Newt Pyeatt established the first blacksmith shop in town on the lot now occupied by L. L. Wilson's tennis court. Mr. Sibley was the first teacher. He taught in a one-room house that was used for the church house the same as for the school.

The Florida hotel was a gathering place on many occasions. It was owned by Capt. Hutchingson. He moved the two-story building from Williams' Ranch to the place that E. P. McNeill's shoe shop occupies. The stair steps leading to the upper story were placed on the outside. That reminds of a little incident that took place in the upper story of the building one time. An old time dance was in progress, when a dispute arose among the guests and it became necessary to call in the constable, J. L. Burkett, to settle the argument. On arriving Mr. Burkett deputized plenty of help and proceeded to take charge. The men all went supplied with six shooters and plenty of whiskey. Needless to say gun play took place.

When the guns began to fire some of the girls became frightened and started to run downstairs. While everybody's attention was directed to the trouble upstairs some boys tore the starsteps down and the fleeing crowd, being in the dark, failed to notice the steps were gone and soon they were piled upon the ground, where the stairsteps once stood. The best I remember Dr. Jimmie Kirkpatrick saw a face peeping around the corner of the house enjoying the plight of the fleeing ones, but unable to get revenge at the time, the mischief makers disappeared before he recovered.

It might interest some to know that Claud Beard was the first baby born in Mullin, after the town was organized and part of the babies following soon after were Percy Smith, Bert Chesser, Shelby Cox, Nodie Tyson, Mavis Kirkpatrick, Minnie Bell Fisher (deceased), Oscar Pyeatt, Edgar Burkett and Wilbur Fairman.

Dr. Jimmie Kirkpatrick formed a resolution that he would give every five hundredth baby where he was the attending physician a gift. Nodie Tyson was the first five hundredth baby. To her he presented a cow and calf. Her father gave her a brand and cared for them until she had quite a herd of cattle. The next baby that was entitled to a present was Kirk Green, being the one thousandth baby, where Dr. Jimmie was attending physician. To him he gave a mare and colt.

Even at this early date some few were interested in seeing the Holy Land and one man in Mullin sold everything he had and left Mullin to go back to Jerusalem to witness the second coming of Christ in 1890.

The early settlers not only had frontier hardships to put up with, but on June 10, 1877, when corn was in silk and tassels, there came a killing frost that destroyed all of the crops. Also on Jan. 8, 1888 the weather was very warm for several days, until noon Jan. 8, when without warning an old time blizzard struck this country. It came like a blue-black cloud of dust. Many head of stock were frozen to death.

Uncle George Williams' boys were herding their sheep quite a distance from home and they were without wraps, Joe, being the youngest, was frozen down. The other boys placed him in a ravine and covered him with leaves. Before long help arrived and they found Joe frozen stiff. With the aid of early settler mothers, he was revived and perhaps that is the cause of his small stature.

I also remember that Uncle Jim Guthrie had a large herd of sheep, but was away from home when the blizzard came. He decided to let his flock go and care for himself. Upon arriving home later, he found his sheep unharmed, as they had found shelter for themselves.

Our early settlers that were in fear of Indians, mobs and all other difficulties had to do something to divert their attention from everyday life, and many pranks were played. I recall a most amusing one. The men decided to turn boys once more and have an old time chicken roast. Dr. Sharp and D. R. McCormick were chosen to get the chickens. The stray (?) chickens were located in the live oak tree at the rear of W. S. Kemp's store. Being unable to reach the chickens from the ground Mr. McCormick procured a barrel and placed it under the roost. Dr. Sharp, just one size smaller than the barrel, remarked, "What a fine looking rooster I can reach." The rooster was never caught for all at once the bottom of the barrel dropped out and needless to say, Dr. Sharp fit tight in the barrel. Instead of the chicken roast, another doctor was summoned and Dr. Sharp had company the rest of the night.

Sometime after the above incident the "boys" sent their wives off on a vacation and proceeded to make plans for a beer party. It was decided it

A FIRE MENACE!

More than half of our schools ought to be torn down!

That is the conclusion reached by T. Alford Fleming in an article in the Ladies' Home Journal — not because our schools are remiss in their educational duties, but because an extremely high percentage of them are fire-traps.

That will come as a shock to most parents. But, according to Mr. Fleming, we still send millions of our children to institutions that are worse than the little Ohio grammar school, where 176 lives were snuffed out in one of the most tragical unnecessary disasters in history. A survey of several thousand schools in different parts of the country a few years ago condemned 37 per cent of them as fire-traps. And, according to the National Fire Protection Association, this proportion is much too low—90 per cent is nearer to the mark. Another survey, of 41 schools in an average city, demonstrated that only six of them were actually fire safe. In the rest the investigators found excessive storage of gasoline, steam pipes touching wooden floor beams, doors opening inward, cartons of paper towels stored in the boiler room, and so on—all the little faults, resulting from carelessness and ignorance, that are responsible for thousands of deaths each year.

If there is one place where fire prevention should be rigorously enforced it is in the school. Every building should be protected to the maximum possible degree — every child and instructor should be drilled in the proper action to take in case a fire breaks out.

There is a taxation of fifteen shillings on male servants in England.

Many big bank vaults are being equipped with oxygen tanks for use in case of accidental imprisonment.

would be best to wait until after dark to buy the beer, but the "boys" waited a little too long, for Chris Narian, manager of the beer joint, had gone to his bed in the rear of the saloon. For some reason he refused to get up and get the beer for them. The boys declaring they would not be undone procured some anvils and placed underneath the corner of the window directly under Mr. Narian's bed, touched them off and fled. The officers were called and Mr. Narian told all he knew. He said he heard someone on the outside say in a low voice, "Are you ready, Legs?" The reply was, "Let it go, Shorty," and then an explosion, and I "fell up" three feet. The officers told him on such evidence they could not convict anybody.

Everyone likes to hear fish stories, but here is a bee story: One day Uncle George Williams had occasion to see Joe Burkett, who was at his farm, two miles northeast of Mullin. Mr. Williams was working a valuable horse to a buggy. While there his horse accidentally upset a beehive. The horse was soon covered with bees. Instead of moving away the horse lay down to roll the bees off. The horse had cost Uncle George several hundred dollars and was too valuable for him to leave, while trying to get the animal away and George was covered with bees and several stung him. He soon fainted and Mr. Burkett carried water and revived him, at the same time removing the bees. The doctor was summoned and the Williams boys, who were in town, brought one quart of whiskey and hastened to their father. Uncle George was strongly opposed to whiskey and would not drink it, but the boys, thinking it necessary, forced it down him. Dr. Kirkpatrick and Dr. Herrington soon arrived and administered their treatment. I do not know which treatment caused the cure, but Uncle George was soon over the trying experience. After treating the man the doctors turned their attention to the horse and treated him.

I believe that I have written quite a lengthy paper, but so many incidents came to my mind I hated to leave any out. It is my hope that you enjoy them as much as I did to write them. If at any time you wish to know anything that took place in the early days of Mullin, or since then, you can just call on me.

In Mills county in the July primary this year Mrs. Ferguson led with 985 votes, Hunter second with 867 and Sterling third with 238. In the first primary in 1930, Sterling only got 74 votes. Mrs. Ferguson had 785 and Clint Small had 453, and Earl Mayfield, 387.

It will be seen that Mrs. Ferguson gained 340 votes in the second primary in 1930, while Sterling's jumped up by 862 votes.

ROB TO PAY TAXES

Brigandage of a new kind is being practiced by the peasants of Anatolia. The brigands, unable to pay taxes, levy toll on travelers on the main highways, but differ from the average highwaymen in that they take from their victims only enough money to cover tax demands. They justify themselves by pointing to the harsh methods of the tax collectors.

WHEN PARTIES AGREE

When, in times like these, the two major political parties can agree on an issue, there can be little doubt concerning its importance. That is true in the matter of silver. Both the Republican and Democratic platforms carry planks advocating an international conference on monetary problems, with a view to stabilizing silver.

The word "international" in that sentence should be stressed. No nation can prevent the degradation of silver until other great powers join with it and agree on a co-operative plan. The fact that ruinous silver prices have deprived half the world of a large part of its buying power and brought international trade to the lowest level in decades, points the need for decisive and immediate action.

Every government is interested in silver. So is every business and every citizen. It is a problem of world-wide scope—and at the same time it is a problem which narrows down until it affects the prosperity of every home in the land.

Canada grows half of the British timber.

Helped By Cardui

Here's the true story of how Cardui helped Mrs. H. E. Dunaway, of McComb, Miss., as written by herself:

"I was sick and rather discouraged. I was so weak and thin, I was not able to do my work as it should be done. This made me fret a good deal, and did not help my condition.

"I had pains across my back and lower part of my body. My nights were spent in rolling from one side of the bed to the other, hoping I would soon go to sleep. Then when morning would come, I would be just as tired as when I went to bed. A neighbor, seeing how badly I felt, told me to try Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I was much better. I kept on taking Cardui, and I was stronger and slept much better at night."

WHAT HAS AMERICA DONE IN OUR TIMES?

1. It has made women citizens and by raising the education of women and children it has made the father a member of his family.

2. It has made Satan a comic figure and Hell not a place of torment, but a mild expletive, but it has no bankrupt hospitals and it fills the Community Chest to overflowing.

3. It received music, a poorly taught school subject, and today the Mansard roof has gone and we are landscaping our lawns.

4. It received music, a poorly taught school subject, and today oratorios are heard in farm cottages and in city tenements.

5. It received physiology, a poorly taught school subject, and today much hideous and useless clothing has disappeared and the expectancy of life has been lengthened ten years.

6. It has decided that in the marriage service the words "love" and "cherish" are more binding than "Death do us part."

7. If it has made it possible for young housekeepers to estimate with a fair degree of accuracy the number of chairs needed for the family dining room, it has at least decreed that all these chairs shall be filled with high school graduates.

8. It has reduced the family from twelve to four children, but it rears all four.

9. It has lost family prayers at a few firesides, but at many it listens in silent devotion to Harry Emerson Fosdick and Rabbi Wise.

10. It produced a generation which rose in unity to win the war of the ages and similarly it is producing a generation which in its own time and way will make order out of world wide confusion and will bring us all back to sanity.

Reclothe us in our vightful mind."

He concluded that the trouble was with the white man's food.

MANY SPEECHES

The last week of the campaign for the Democratic nominations has been marked by much speech-making throughout the state and Mills county has had a full share of the arguments and oratory. Too many speeches have been made in Goldthwaite and other parts of the county to attempt to make a report of all or even a majority part of them, but most of them have been delivered in fairness and with a show of logic. Of course, in a few cases there was an apparent attempt at mud-slinging, but in the main the speakers have been fair.

Mrs. J. S. Bowles, chairman of the Sterling forces in Mills county, has been very busy and has made a number of speeches and her services in this capacity have been in demand in the adjoining counties as well as at home. She made speeches at Bangs, Zephyr, DeLeon and elsewhere, besides keeping up her work and directing the speaking campaign in Mills county.

Rallies for the gubernatorial candidates have been held in a number of communities in the counties and these efforts will be continued today and tonight. The campaign is a hot one and everybody will be glad when it is over.

Joe Burkett of Bexar county, formerly lived at Eastland. He has been a district judge, a state senator and a member of the state highway commission. He was defeated for the nomination for governor in 1924 and for attorney general in 1930. He favors submission.

State Representative

In addition to the candidates mentioned above, voters in Mills and Comanche counties will vote for a state representative to succeed Homer DeWolfe of Goldthwaite. Both of the candidates are from Comanche county, but are known personally to most of the voters in this county. They are J. R. Eanes, mayor of Comanche, and George W. Rollins, former railroad man, of DeLeon.

County Commissioners

Precincts two and three of Mills county will also nominate Democratic candidates for county commissioner. In Precinct 2, J. M. Geeslin and J. A. Hamilton are in the run-off. In precinct 3, the race is between R. F. Swindle and I. McCurry.

FATAL WRECK NEAR TAYLOR
Mrs. H. J. Robbins of this place received a message Sunday announcing the death of her nephew, New Lawhon of Taylor, as a result of an automobile wreck near his home town. The young man was a recent visitor in the Robbins home here and on his return home, his cousin, James Edgar Robbins, accompanied him for a visit and had only been home a few days, when the announcement came of the tragic Judge and Mrs. E. B. Anderson visited their daughter, Mrs. Ed Gilliam, in Austin Sunday. death of the young man. The dead youth is a son of Mr. E. L. Lawhon, a cotton buyer of Taylor. Friends here sincerely sympathize with the family. Brooks Lawhon, an older brother of the dead boy, was badly injured in the wreck, which was the result of a head-on collision in which one of the passengers in the other car was killed.

RED CROSS FLOUR
Last year the Federal government purchased millions of bushels of wheat and withdrew it from the market, in an effort to increase the price. A large amount of this wheat has now been made into flour and donated by the government to the poor of the country, the distribution to be made by the Red Cross society. Mr. W. C. Dew, president of the society in this county, made application for a carload of this flour—500 sacks—and the application was granted, hence those who need the flour can secure it on and after Sept. 1 by making the required application to the committee on distribution, composed of Judge Roy Simpson, W. P. Weaver, county farm agent, and W. M. Johnston, secretary of the Retail Merchants association. All of these gentlemen have offices in the court house and it is hoped they will be able to distribute this flour

It proved to be a very happy get-together of friends.

If You Are Entitled to Vote, Then VOTE!

Tomorrow a million Texans will march up to the polls and select a Governor of Texas for the next two years. Will you be one of them?

The EAGLE does not presume to tell its readers for whom to vote. We believe that every voter should decide that matter for himself. But we also believe no man or woman should cast a ballot without giving careful consideration to the candidates and issues that confront them.

The office of governor of the state may seem very remote to the average voter in Mills county. He may believe that he will not be affected personally regardless of who is elected. He may decide to vote his preference for one or the other candidates without regard to the results of this election upon the state and the welfare of the citizens of the state.

This is no time to let personal preferences decide. It is a time when you should weigh one candidate against the other, compare what each has done in office before, compare the character of one with the other, and take note of the class of men and women over the state who are supporting each candidate.

There are nearly 700 native white voters in Mills county between the ages of 21 and 60 who cannot vote this year, because they failed to pay a poll tax. If you are one of these, go find someone who can vote because he is exempt from the poll tax, and take him to the polls, not to vote in your place, but to vote for himself through your assistance.

These million votes tomorrow will make history for Texas. You will remember this election long after the bitterness of the campaign has faded from your mind.

Our country was founded on the principle of equal representation and the universal ballot. The right to vote has been bought with the blood of our ancestors and bequeathed to us their children as a precious privilege.

They Learn During Vacations, Too

School bells soon will ring again, and the boys and girls once more will troop through the class room doors, some with dancing, some with lagging steps. It is the custom to think that learning is all done at school, and that the childish mind takes a complete holiday during the summer months.

Think back over the things you know that help you make your living and that make your living interesting and endurable. Then think how many of these things you did not learn at school. Your schooling helped, of course. You could not get along without the fundamentals of an education, but if you were restricted solely to the practice of what you learned in school, you could not be a very useful or happy member of society.

Boys and girls could not be stopped from learning when the school doors are closed, even if one tried. Their plastic young minds are as quick to absorb everything they touch as a dry sponge in moist air. Work and play, the actions of parents and playmates, the things they see and hear and do—everything leaves its impress on the mind, and becomes a very real part of every child's education.

And that makes us wonder if the parents of today have given enough thought to what their children have been learning out of school. Will the work they have done fit them to be competent, useful, happy members of society? Have their games encouraged fair play and good sportsmanship? Have their companions been those whose example is worth following?

Now that school is about to re-open it is not too late to think of these things. This process of outside education—of adaptation to environment as scholars term it—continues through the school year as well as throughout the unschooled summer days. Children are always learning something. If what they learn is not useful or is not conducive to good citizenship, the blame will rest on their home.

Getting Used to It

Sometimes there seems to be scarcely any limit to what the human body and human society can endure. In India there are religious fanatics who for long years have lain upon iron spikes so sharp that every movement brings torture to the flesh. In France there still remains an ancient castle with a torture chamber underground, where a prisoner chained to the wall lived so many years that his feet left their impress in the flagstone floor.

This country has had four great wars. Each time when war was declared business picked up, prices skyrocketed and each time after the spree, a decline set in, prices dropped, business waned, and privation and suffering haunted the majority of people for years. But each time up to now the country has eventually accustomed itself to the changed conditions. Prices gradually worked into an equitable relationship with each other, as if the products of a day's work on the farm would once more purchase a reasonable quantity of the products of factory and mine.

Here is the striking part about it: About the time people got used to the new, depressed conditions, conditions began to improve. Seven cent cotton looks hopeful to us today, looking up. But looking down from the level of 10 or 12 cents, seven cent cotton looked unbearably low. We tend to judge everything in the present by the immediate past. A rocky road that would seem execrably rough to the Brahman prince would be a comfortable couch for the Hindu fakir accustomed to his bed of spikes.

It is quite true that we who are living in Texas in 1932 have not suffered as great privations as our grandparents did 60 years ago. Nor did they have to endure as much as their grandpa-

GODLESS RUSSIA

News comes from the Vatican City in Rome that Soviet Russia has promulgated a secret decree, which will liquidate (a polite term for "wipe out") all but 20 churches, chapels and houses of prayer in the whole nation. That means that 2,000,000 Catholics living in Russia will have only 20 houses of worship to be shared with whatever other Christian sects have still endured the rigors of Soviet persecution.

"Religion is the opium of the people" declaimed the founder of Socialism, and the Communists vying Russia are weeding it out far more vigorously than any nation has ever fought against narcotics.

Their theory is that if one or two generations can be reared without coming under the influence of religious teachers or teaching, Christianity can be stamped out forever from their land.

No substitute for religion is wanted or offered, but throughout the country the picture and the works of Lenin, the first great Soviet leader, are revered to the point of worship. Before his tomb in Moscow, a constant procession of the faithful passes in silent veneration before the glass case which contains his embalmed, but lifelike, body.

For others the wonders of modern science take the place of religion, and they profess to find in test tubes and retorts all the spiritual values necessary for life.

It is an interesting, though terrible, experiment. France, after her bloody revolution, also abolished religion, but the French peasant today is probably the most devout man on earth. Many centuries ago the priests of Baal endeavored to demonstrate to the children of Israel that Jehovah was no mightier than their god of fire—and failed.

Christians of whatever sect or creed need have no fear as to the final outcome of the Russian experiment. Nevertheless it is distressing to think of the indignities that are being heaped in this the twentieth century upon men and women whose only offense is that they desire to worship God.

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF DIRT DAUBERS, INC.

A man I know has just evolved a magnificent plan for building new houses so cheaply that we will soon have a home for every garage.

Stock will be sold in the enterprise at not more than two or three times its face value, and while he does not guarantee that everyone who buys it will get in on the ground floor, he assures me that they will all be taken in.

Only a genius could have evolved the plan, which is at the same time so simple, so economical and so ingenious. It is to build stucco houses by training dirt daubers instead of workmen to apply the stucco on wire netting. All he needs now is a man who is an experienced dirt dauber trainer.

HEALTH HINT

Epidemic disease has been regarded as part of the child's incidental life. It has been complacently accepted by parents and many physicians that children are due the so-called diseases of childhood. Nothing can be more erroneous. Public health workers and teachers and parents should avoid in every way for the child an incidence of any of the diseases of childhood. Common conception of these diseases would list measles, chicken-pox, mumps, diphtheria, scarlet fever, dysenteries, diseases of the respiratory tract and many others. No kind of providence ever intended that children should be exposed and not protected from taking any disease and every effort should be made to avoid them. Many of them can be absolutely prevented by proper inoculation and by serious consideration of avoidance of contagion. It is quite true that a large number of children survive these diseases and never suffer complications or ill effects, but it is equally true that many children even in this modern age succumb to these ailments. This is manifestly unfair when we consider that most of them can be prevented and most of them can be handled in a scientific manner to avoid complications and after-effects which may last the child throughout his life.—Dr. N. D. Buie in The Texas Outlook.

Now that we are getting reconciled to our lot, it is encouraging to think that our children and grandchildren, though they will have their ups and downs like us, still are not likely to suffer as much in their depressions as have we in ours. And whatever they do have to face, they, like all their forebears from Adam down, will in time get used to it.

THE REALM OF SCIENCE

ECLIPSE NEXT WEDNESDAY

One of the most terrifying spectacles in nature to one not expecting it is an eclipse of the sun. When the eclipse is a total one, when from the northwest a speeding black shadow races over hill and valley, blotting them out of sight as the moon's shadow creeps over the face of the sun, and when the stars come out in the blackened sky, anyone ignorant of the facts might well believe that the world was coming to an end in eternal darkness.

Only about 70 eclipses occur every hundred years and it is rare for anyone not an astronomer to witness more than one or two total eclipses in a lifetime. The eclipse that will be visible in Texas on Wednesday, August 31, will show a little less than half of the sun's disk in shadow. The strip of land over which the eclipse will be complete is only 100 miles wide and runs from Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire across Canada.

Don't try to look at the eclipse with the naked eye. Even when half in shadow, the sun is far too bright to look at safely. Use a smoked glass, and you will be able to see the shadow better and perhaps also note the shooting tongues of fire that leap from the sun's surface into space.

Two curious customs may prove a link between the ancient cave dwellers of France and recent South American Indians. To show grief it was common to lop off the joint of a finger. The other custom was to perforate a section of horn or bone to make a tool for straightening arrows.

Keeping Up With Texas

A baby is born every 5 minutes in Texas—12 every hour and 288 per day.

There is a baby to each 13 families, a radio for 5 and for each 1 1/2 families somebody has bought an automobile.

Texas has 156,000 more radios and 820,000 more automobiles registered than babies; the totals being 101,617 babies, 257,686 radios and 921,752 automobiles.

The winter months, December, January, February, in Texas, are the most dangerous; 27.6 per cent of the years' total deaths occur during those months.

The fall months, September, October and November, are very favorable to human life, as only 22 per cent of all deaths occur during that quarter, as shown by the mortality records of the past five years filed in the state bureau of vital statistics.

One person dies every 9 minutes, 6 every hour, and 153 every day, in Texas.

There are 8.6 deaths among the whites; 12.6 among the negroes; 10 among the Mexicans—per 1,000.

TEXAS HOMESTEAD LAW A MODEL

A Texan, once well entrenched in his home, his status as a home owner is well high impregnable. A home in Texas is not so much an asset as it is a right guaranteed by the organic law of the state.

Texas goes further than to declare that a man shall not be imprisoned for debt. It says that his family shall not be penalized by being deprived of their home, except in certain clearly defined cases.

With tens of thousands of families being evicted because of miscellaneous debts and judgments accruing through business reverses and unemployment, it is not surprising that sister commonwealths are manifesting interest in the homestead law of this state with a view to adopting similar protective measures.

Over in San Francisco, for instance, where 9000 families are in danger of losing their homes because of indebtedness incurred through unemployment, the city attorney has been instructed to prepare for consideration of the legislature amendments to California homestead law similar to provisions incorporated in the Texas constitution.

A homestead, as defined in Texas, shall consist of not more than 200 acres, in one or more parcels, with improvements thereon, when not in a city or town, and a lot or lots not to exceed $5000 in value, without reference to the value of the improvements thereon, at the time of their designation as a homestead.

A homestead in Texas is exempt from attachment or execution and every other species of forced sale for payment of debts, except:

1. For work and material used in constructing improvements on the homestead, provided such work and material was contracted for in writing and with the consent of the wife.

Another provision in the homestead law lends a measure of protection that is not indicated on the face of the second exception to homestead exemption from forced sale noted above.

If a homestead should be seized and sold for taxes, the owner has two years within which to redeem his property.

Toward the close of the late period of extraordinary prosperity certain interests rather cautiously began to agitate repeal of the state's homestead law.

The purpose of this agitation it was obvious, was to release homesteads for use as collateral, thereby temporarily increasing purchasing power.

The suggestion, however, was received coldly. Texans were not tempted to sell their birthright for a mess of pottage.

The sanctity of the home in Texas extends to the ownership of the home. Wise, indeed, were those Texas lawmakers who granted, in so far as possible, an inviolable right to home ownership, and who, through the Texas community property laws, made the government—the family—essentially democratic.—San Antonio Light.

IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING

Untruth serves its purpose only so long as it preserves the masquerade of truth. The moment a liar is known to be a liar, the thing he says is contradicted by what he is and truth itself is made suspicious by his defense of it.

These, you will say, are platitudes—undisputed facts that require no support of evidence or argument; but something has happened in America to make falsehood respectable, and men skilled in the art are practicing it with cynical frankness, apparently convinced that repetition of an obvious lie will give it the force of truth.

Incredible sums are spent each month to broadcast and solemnly repeat absurd falsehoods that are jeered at the world over.—Robert Quillen in the Dallas News.

What Other Editors Have to Say

John Garner has ridden up to the N. Y. ranchhouse, thrown the reins over his cayuse's head and swung down to see the boss and get his orders for the roundup. To be sure, there may be a little fancy roping before the calves are all cut out and branded and dude riders may wonder at the way he sits in the saddle, but Cactus Jack has been around and knows what he is doing.

The dudes have been thinking that there would be trouble when the spurs jingled on the ranchhouse floor, but then the dudes don't know how such things are done out John Garner's way. So far as he is concerned, the governor is the boss, and he makes no bones about saying so. His business is to put the brand on the new stuff and get the old stuff up out of the draws and the brush country so they can be counted. It's along about that time of year, and the boss will be having something to say, of course.

WOOL IS LOOKING UP

The rise in general commodity prices has rejoiced the nation. The uptick in the live stock market, the prospects for better wheat and cotton returns, the stabilization of the petroleum industry, all have given the Southwest a saner and more optimistic outlook of late. Now wool is looking up and West Texas is getting ready for a return to economic normal.

The Wool Growers Central Storage company of San Angelo recently sold 515,000 pounds of wool at a price of 2 cents a pound more than the market. That organization still holds 2,500,000 pounds, waiting for a still more favorable upturn in the price. The sheepmen of the Edwards Plateau and other parts of Texas have consigned more than 30,000,000 pounds of long fleeced wool at comparatively small advances. These growers stand to benefit from a rising wool market.

Another indication of the future stabilization of wool is the statement of Robert L. Studley, senior member of the Boston wool house of Studley & Emery, to the effect that there is less than five months supply of domestic wool in the United States and that if the manufacturers consume the same amount they did in 1931 there will be a shortage. His prediction of a run-away wool market in the fall and winter of 1932 may be unduly optimistic, yet the fact remains that prices have been steadily rising, and the consumption promises to be as great as, if not greater than, that of the previous year.

Texas sheepmen have a co-operative organization which is functioning exceptionally well. The storage of wool by the co-operative has enabled the growers to keep their heads above water in an era of falling prices. Last year the wool manufacturers of the nation took 538,000,000 pounds for clothing purposes. Today the primary wool markets of the nation, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia, have less than 200,000,000 pounds available. That means the price must inevitably rise to meet the demand. The manufacturers, importing from abroad, will stimulate prices here and increase the value of the domestic clip. Texas, as the premier sheep state of the country, will share in the increased prosperity which comes from an upturn in the price of wool. That means a greater buying power here, more money in the state, a better economic position.—Houston Chronicle.

OUR TROUBLES ARE OF OUR OWN MAKING

The United States is not made up entirely of hyenas and tigers masquerading in human form. Most of our current troubles have been entirely of our own making and will disappear when sanity returns and self conceit is removed. Let us not be traitors to our country, our children's children or our time. With all its evils, the American system, taken as a whole, is better than any system now in force.—Floyd W. Parsons.

NINE AMENDMENTS

The voters in the general election in November are to pass on nine proposed amendments to the constitution:

1. To allow the legislature to release delinquent taxes which have been due for ten years.

2. To exempt from state taxation $3000 of the assessed taxable value of all resident homesteads.

3. To authorize the legislature to make an appropriation for the proposed Texas Centennial celebration in 1936.

4. To lessen the vote required to vote bonds for seawalls, sanitation and breakwaters in counties bordering on the Gulf of Mexico. Now two-thirds of all the property owners must vote for such improvements. If the constitution is changed as proposed only two-thirds of those who participate in the election must vote for bonds.

5. To require those voting in elections to fix an indebtedness on a political subdivision must have rendered property for taxation.

6. To combine the offices of tax assessor and tax collector.

7. To save court costs in sale of property for delinquent taxes and to provide more liberal opportunity for redemption. Now double the sale price must be paid to redeem the property. If the proposed constitutional change is made, recovery can be made inside a year for 25 per cent and a dollar recording fee and fifty per cent and the recording fee the second year.

8. To return the constitutional provisions as they formerly were regarding the use of the permanent fund of the University of Texas. A recent amendment permitted the regents to pledge the income to raise a building fund.

9. To extend voting and office holding to men in military service as reserves.

WRECKING A STATE

Practically every state in the union has been faced with innumerable legislative proposals seeking to "help the people" by over-taxing some industry, business or investment. The time-worn theory of "taxing the rich to help the poor," has been pretty definitely proven fallacious. Such taxes destroy employment and savings.

When every citizen and every industry is making adjustments to meet a more normal basis of income and expenditures, government departments go merrily on demanding more and levying higher and higher tribute on already over-burdened taxpayers.

The people will get no relief until they curb their own demands on the public treasuries and hobble the tax-spenders, who are their public servants.

TRANSPORT FACTS

There is, as a rule, too much prejudice and not enough logic in discussions of the transportation problem.

It is an inescapable fact, no matter how much is said concerning the decline of the railroad, that rail transport is important to the nation's industries.

It is also a fact that there is room for buses, trucks, waterways, oil pipe lines and other means of transport. The problem is how to correlate these agencies so that each may be run on a profitable basis and serve the shipping and traveling public well.

The public interest is the main thing at stake. They want great industries to maintain a high standard of purchasing and employment. Until the national government perfects a transport policy that affects all interstate carriers impartially in regulation and taxation, the public interest is not served and the stockholders and employees of the railroads are unjustly discriminated against.

Most of our current troubles have been entirely of our own making and will disappear when sanity returns and self conceit is removed. Let us not be traitors to our country, our children's children or our time. With all its evils, the American system, taken as a whole, is better than any system now in force.—Floyd W. Parsons.

Wednesday Tobe Fuller, living on the A. R. Eidson farm, brought a bale of cotton to town, which was ginned by the Wheeler Pigg round bale gin. The amount of seed cotton brought was about 1400 pounds, and was bought by Mr. Pigg for 8 cents a pound. A purse was contributed by the business men of the town to the grower for his enterprise. The contributions were small, but in conformity with the financial conditions of the town.

Two rare Ostraea, tablets on which were inscribed votes cast 2400 years ago by Greek citizens in ostracism proceedings against Aristides and Themistocles, Greek statesmen, have been unearthed in the ancient market place at Athens, the department of archaeology of Princeton University has been informed.

The Ostraea are considered a rare find, as only four of the type are known to be in existence. The ostracism of Aristides is a familiar story in the classics and was the subject of one of Plutarch's celebrated anecdotes.

Citizens of Athens during the 5th century B. C., were privileged to vote for the ostracism of any of their number. If as many as 6,000 votes were cast the citizens against whom the greatest number was cast was banished from Greece for 10 years.

DIGGER FINDS $40,000 IN FABLED TREASURE

J. L. Abeyta of Taos, N. M., while excavating a small basement, has just unearthed a buried treasure, which amounted to $40,000 in Mexican silver and gold.

The basement is located within 100 feet of Father Martinez's old church and belongs to C. Padillo, who paid Abeyta $125 to do the digging, says a dispatch to the Houston Chronicle.

After Abeyta had dug about six feet he came to an old fire-place, presumably built in an old dugout. The present of two rotted barrel staves led him to dig deeper and a few moments later he uncovered an old keg, which contained 800 silver dollars bearing the date of 1849. On the other side of the fire-place he unearthed a huge black olla, which contained 300 gold coronas, triangular in shape and resembling the decorations on the front of a queen's crown. The olla also contained 200 rectangular shaped gold nuggets, the value of which has not been determined.

Old timers relate an old custom. Deep holes were dug on either side of a fireplace and if an enemy appeared the treasure could be cached and dirt piled upon it to conceal it. The location of the fireplace and the buried treasure substantiate this belief.

In days gone by this piece of property belonged to Father Martinez. Later it came into the possession of a Mr. Montaner, who recently sold it to C. Padillo, on which to construct a garage.

During the bloody revolutionary days, soldiers' quarters were built upon this land. On the very spot where the treasure was found were the stables.

Judging from the date on the silver and the historic revolution at Taos, the money was buried some time between 1849 and 1879. In all probability it was the payroll for Mexican soldiers.

Mr. Abeyta is the night watchman in the little village of Taos. He has a wife and 12 children. The fate that led him to this spot insures his future.

The discovery strengthens the belief that the fabulous treasures buried by the Conquistadors are a reality.

The complete 1931 accident "picture" is an interesting study in contrasts. Motor vehicle deaths numbered 33,500—a new high record. Accidents were the second most important causes of deaths in men, heart disease being first. On the other hand, industrial plants reduced employees' injury frequency rates 33 per cent in two years, and railway crossing accidents declined 10 per cent.

In the past decade, industry has made amazing strides in preventing accidents and in lessening their severity. Part of this has been accomplished by improving guarding of machinery. The larger part, however, has resulted from a new spirit of safety first that has been instilled into workers and management alike. Precisely the opposite has occurred on our highways. Recklessness grows, rather than slackens; improvements in cars breed more deaths and injuries, not less.

What has been done in industry can be done with automobile driving. Just as industrial management disciplines the heedless worker who endangers others, so must the state discipline the heedless driver. If industrial workers can learn the gospel of accident prevention and take it to heart so that it becomes a part of their mental operations, so can the automobile driver learn care, competence and courtesy.

It is time to take drastic action to make our streets and highways safe.

INSANITY INCREASING

Insanity is increasing, says a report of the British Medical Association, and it blames the increase upon carriers of mental defects, who transmit their deficiencies to their offspring, although they themselves may appear perfectly normal.

Six Los Angeles horses moved a six-story brick building, weighing 11,000 tons, a distance of 125 feet.

PURE MILK

Milk produced under unsanitary conditions may carry practically all contagious and infectious diseases. Tuberculosis and typhoid fever are the diseases most commonly spread through dirty milk. About 85 per cent of all human tuberculosis is of bovine type, and approximately 85 per cent of human tuberculosis is contracted when the person is less than 12 years of age, or during the heaviest milk-drinking period. In areas where tuberculosis has been eradicated from cattle, the new diagnosed cases of human tuberculosis have decreased 50 per cent or more the first year, says H. N. Smith, professor of dairy husbandry of John Tarleton agricultural college.

All cows producing milk for human consumption should be given the intradermal test for tuberculosis by an accredited veterinarian. Milk from cows showing any sign of garget or other udder infections should not be used. Before a cow is milked all visible dirt should be brushed or washed from her flanks, thighs, tail and belly, and her udder should be thoroughly washed and then rinsed in clean water containing some good chlorine disinfectant. Long hair should be kept clipped off the udder, flanks and rear part of the belly.

Every person who comes into contact with any of the dairy equipment should have a thorough health examination at least every six months, and any sickness that develops on any premises from which milk is being sold should be reported to the health officer immediately. Milkers and any other person handling milk should wear clean clothes and keep their hands and nails clean at all times. It is a good habit for a milker to wash his hands after milking each cow, in water containing a chlorine disinfectant.

Dairy barns should be so constructed as to admit the maximum of sunlight and fresh air and yet exclude flies and dust. The floors should be of concrete and sloped. Feed rooms should not open directly into the milking barn, as the air in the barn should be kept free of dust. The barn floor should be washed or limed after each milking. The lots surrounding the barn should be kept clean by removal of manure each day and by adequate drainage.

The separate milk room and washing room should not open directly into the milking barn or into any room used for domestic purposes. It should have a screened sun shelf or window on the south so that clean milk vessels and bottles can be subjected to the direct rays of the sun without being contaminated by flies and dust. The milk house or milk room should never be used for any other purpose than handling or storing of milk or milk products.

All utensils or containers used in handling milk should be made of non-absorbent material, as near seamless as possible. Bottles and utensils should be scrubbed inside and out with fiber brushes with hot water containing a good washing powder and rinsed in clean water containing a good chlorine disinfectant.

A Galesville, Wis., newspaper has discovered and republished a pamphlet written in 1886 by the Rev. D. O. Van Slyke, preacher, soldier and farmer, declaring that the veritable garden of Eden, or a place that answers the Bible description of that notable spot better than anything yet discovered is located in Thempeleau county, Wisconsin.

DIZZINESS

relieved by Black-Draught

"I decided to take Theford's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Charles E. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I get bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. It is hard to tell how I feel, but I do not feel good. I get awfully dizzy. I know then that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. That, to me, is a very bad feeling." Now you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for Children.

CONSERVE WATER

"Conserve water, dam it!" North Dakota started it, and the American Game Association thinks that soon other states will put up this sign along auto highways. "Put a small dam across that nearby stream or coulee and save the water that otherwise runs away," the sign says. "By doing so you may be able to provide water for swimming, boating, fishing and skating; water for farm purposes, more ground water, more water surface for evaporation and waterfowl breeding areas."

UNEQUAL REGULATION IN TRANSPORTATION CAUSES DISORDER AND CONFUSION

The instability, confusion and disorder which unrestrained truck transportation has brought about is responsible in large measure for much of the distress in which all business finds itself today. Texas has moved to find a remedy and all concerned in the welfare of this state and its institutions should cooperate in the effort to restore stability and order to our transportation systems.

The Texas Railroads, in these advertisements, have endeavored to place before the people of this state some of the reasons why the existing laws, regulating motor transportation, should be upheld and enforced.

1. The railroads are necessary for the successful marketing of the enormous production of this state, which is used and consumed in every other state in the union.

Uniform, published, non-discriminatory transportation service rates are essential to the orderly conduct and welfare of business.

Unregulated truck transportation inevitably results in discriminatory charges and practices, rebating, unfair and unbusinesslike competitive methods, bringing about losses and commercial insecurity.

The wholesaler, jobber, retailer and local merchant suffer from the unfair competition of truckers and peddlers who, for the most part, are non-residents, pay no taxes and contribute nothing to the community welfare.

The farmer and agricultural producer must have at his command facilities adequate to transport crops and produce which move long distances in large volume, at low cost, by rail.

2. The railroads build and maintain their own roadways, pay heavy taxes for the support of state and municipal governments and institutions, and expend millions of dollars for payrolls, materials and supplies. Railroad workers are substantial citizens, home owners, and valued members of their communities.

3. Rail transportation is the most efficient and economical in existence for the movement of traffic in volume by land.

4. Texas highways belong to the people and are built and maintained at heavy cost. Their use for commercial purposes is a privilege, not a right. They should be kept safe for general use and not prematurely destroyed by heavy trucks.

5. The stability, security and orderly conduct of business require reasonable control and regulation of all transportation agencies.
