Local Swimmers Pass Red Cross Swimming Tests

Thirteen swimmers passed the senior life saving tests and seven passed the junior life saving tests that have been conducted at Lake Merritt since August 15 by Captain Burns, accredited Red Cross life saving examiner. They will receive official Red Cross life saving certificates and identification cards from Washington. Besides the life saving classes, a class of six youngsters took the beginners' tests and will be awarded pins for their work.

Johnnie Burns, who was assisted in his work by Mrs. Burns, proved a splendid instructor. He was patient and thorough, and there can be no doubt but that this community has benefited from his work here. He was equally popular with his advanced pupils and the smallest beginners, and the progress made by some under his direction was almost marvelous. The life saving instruction included thorough practice in breaks and carries and in artificial respiration. Several diving helmets were made here according to his directions and will be available in case of need.

Captain Burns left Wednesday for his home in Fort Worth. He was elated over the good work done by the swimmers here and hopes to return next summer in order that others may take the life saving tests then. He expressed his appreciation of the action of the directors of the Mills County Hunting and Fishing Club who provided the facilities of Lake Merritt for the swimmers. Following are those who will receive certificates for their work:

Senior Life Saving Tests: Misses Ellen Archer, Mary Florence McCullough and Tiny Oquin, San Angelo. Jake Harrison, Joe Weatherby, Brownwood; Raymond Summy, Owen Clements, Julian Evans, J. Woody Saylor, Walter G. Saylor, Fairman Marshall, Raymond Little and Jeff Lowrie.

Junior Life Saving Tests: Misses Mary Ellen Trent and Robert Elizabeth Littlepage. Eld-

Forty Seventh Birthday of Goldthwaite

Today marks the forty-seventh birthday of the city of Goldthwaite. The sale of town lots took place on Sept. 2, 1885, and on several anniversaries the event was celebrated with a barbecue or some other mode of commemoration. It is proverbial in the town that rain falls here on Sept. 2, but we will hope the rule does not hold good today. Anyway, this is the anniversary of the sale of lots and the organization of one of the best towns in the known world, and we are all glad we are located here and are proud of the splendid record of progress the town has made during these forty-seven years.

Mrs. Ferguson Wins In Second Primary

Leads Governor Sterling by 2,398 Votes with Returns Practically Complete. Election Contest is Threatened.

NEW COMMISSIONERS NOMINATED

One of the hardest fought political campaigns in the history of Texas closed with the second primary last Saturday and resulted in the nomination of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, wife of Jas. E. Ferguson, by a majority close to 2500. The result in the gubernatorial race was in doubt for several days, the slowly filtering returns showing first Governor Sterling and then Mrs. Ferguson leading. The alternating reports continued until Tuesday, when Mrs. Ferguson took a definite lead and maintained it. While there is talk of a contest and Governor Sterling stated in an interview that he would have been nominated but for the fraudulent votes, the Eagle expects the nomination to remain as reported and the Sterling supporters can get ready to vote for Mrs. Ferguson in the November election.

The other state races resulted in the nomination of C. V. Terrell for railroad commissioner for the six year term and Ernest O. Thompson for the four year term. Both of these are present incumbents. Judge Wm. Pierson was returned to the supreme court by a small majority over Judge Hickman.

The nominations for congressmen-at-large were won by Geo. B. Terrell in place No. 1, Joe Bailey, Jr., in place No. 2, and Sterling Strong in place No. 3.

The vote in this county on the matter of employing a county agent was close, there being a majority of 174 votes against the work. This vote, however, is purely advisory and the commissioners court has authority to either continue the work or discontinue it. The contract with the present county agent does not expire until the end of the year.

Local Races
The result of local interest were those for representative and the two commissioners—precincts Nos. 2 and 3.

J. R. Eanes carried Comanche county by a majority of 156 votes, while Geo. W. Rollins carried Mills county by 360 majority, thereby giving the nomination to Mr. Rollins. There were 4446 votes cast in Comanche county and of this number Mr. Eanes received 2301 and Mr. Rollins 2145.

The result of local interest were those for representative and the two commissioners—precincts Nos. 2 and 3.

Whose OO

No matter who is elected president next November, he will have the lucky double O in his name. More than that, he will have "over" in his name, and that doesn't necessarily mean Hoover, either.

Double O's have been in the names of HOOVER, COOLIDGE, WOODROW WILSON, and Theodore ROOSEVELT—in fact, all of the presidents since 1901 except Taft and Harding.

If you are still interested in curiosities, how is this? The Democratic candidate's unusual middle name is Delano which was also the middle name of Mrs. Herbert Hoover's father, Charles Delano Henry.

WIDENING THE HIGHWAY

Committees charged with the duty of securing the widening of the right-of-way on Pecan Belt highway are still at work, but have nothing to report definitely as yet, further than the assurance that the work will be accomplished. Many of the land owners along the route have agreed to donate the space required, while some have not yet agreed and some have not been seen. However, it is thought to be sure the plan will be perfected in the very near future.

Surveyors have already made a profile of the route for the federal department and as soon as the land owners sign for the right-of-way the details can be perfected and work commenced.

CEMETERY WORK IS COMPLETED

The work of cleaning off the grounds in the cemetery has been completed and all who have loved ones buried there are invited to make an inspection, for we feel they will be pleased with the condition they will find.

This work has exhausted the collection for this year of the Cemetery association and we would appreciate donations to continue the work. Many who should be interested refuse to pay the small dues required and some who proposed to keep their own lots and driveways, in lieu of paying dues, have neglected the work. If everybody interested would help a little we would be able to keep the grounds in excellent condition at all times. It is absolutely necessary that we have some donations now, in order to have the work properly done following the rains.

Pay the money to Mrs. Eli Fairman, treasurer, or to any other officer or member. XX

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When your flashlight batteries become weak and do not give satisfactory service, try this way of fixing them. Slip the cardboard covers up, so that they won't burn, and set the batteries on the stove. Leave them for about five minutes, then remove and put in flashlight. They should give a very much brighter light. If they don't, heat them some more. They should be heated until you can hardly hold your hand on the paper cover.

HIGH PRICE PAID FOR TOBACCO

Possibly the highest price ever received for a sack of tobacco was obtained on a South Sea Island in 1903, according to "Tobacco". It was paid to a tourist by a half caste pearl diver.

The tourist, who had missed his boat, while away his time watching the pearl divers of the island. One of the half castes who saw him roll himself a cigarette, offered to buy the tobacco. As it was the last available on the island, the tourist was reluctant to part with it for any price; so the pearl diver finally offered him the pearls in the next five shells which he was about to open. The traveler agreed. The first four shells produced nothing more than some practically worthless seed pearls, but the fifth disclosed a pearl of size, coloring and texture seldom equaled. Declining all local offers, the traveler bought himself a pistol and departed on the next steamer. He later sold the pearl, which he had traded for a five cent sack of tobacco, for $16,400.

Nagging Pains

are WARNING SIGNALS

TEMPORARY pain relief remedies may save you much suffering at the moment, but putting a mask over a warning signal does not clear up the condition it was telling you to avoid.

When periodic pains, due to a weak, run-down condition, distress you, treatment for the cause of the trouble should be started without delay.

Take Cardui to build up against the nagging symptoms of ordinary womanly ailments. It has been in use for over 26 years. So many women praise CARDUI, it must be good to have the widespread use that it has today. Sold at drug stores.

Up-to-Date Luxury in The Bathroom

THE really modern bathroom has become, without doubt, one of the most beautiful rooms in the home, not only fulfilling its requirements as a place devoted to cleanliness, but making use of the most up-to-date fixtures and meeting the decorative scheme of the home perfectly. It makes use of a profusion of the latest and most beautiful materials that have been developed by American chemists.

The above picture of a model bathroom, designed by George Sakler and shown at the recent exhibition of National Master Plumbers in New York, well illustrates the beautiful efficiencies of such a room. It is carried out in three pleasingly contrasting colors. The washable walls are in yellow, the shower curtain in ultramarine blue, as are also the towels and sponge pillow, and the silk and rayon net curtain at the window is creamy white. The tub is notable for having a narrow shelf with chromium plate railing on the back wall side for holding book, cigarettes, bath salts and other accessories to a leisurely bath.

Fabrikoid is used for the portable yellow air cushion mattress along side the glass table beneath the wall lamp. This mattress matches the color and material the upholstery of an aluminum chair beside a dressing table of glass and wood in another part of the room. Chromium plate is used for wall cabinet trim and one of the newest features of one cabinet is a shadowless shaving mirror.

OLD GRAY MARE TORE UP THE TRACK

You've heard about the Old Gray Mare who came tearing out of the wilderness, and probably variations of the tale concerning the same animal doing different things or the same things in a different way. But this story concerns a gray mare who got in the wrong place late Sunday afternoon and caused the eastbound Katy passenger train to be late into Hico.

It seems that an animal of the description popularized by the Old Gray Mare Band got loose from her owner, who was camping near Hico, and decided to go places and do things. But her journey was short and her fate almost disastrous, for upon reaching a bridge a short piece west of the station the errant animal, not being accustomed to walking the ties, stepped thru the bridge and a short while later was discovered with all four feet hanging down thru the bridge, unable to extricate herself and in a most precarious position due to the fact that it was nearly time for the arrival of the train from the west.

Station employes got busy at once, sending a man up the track to flag the train and calling in aid in the form of an automobile wrecked and winch to remove the mare from her awkward and inconvenient resting place.

After a short time she was extricated therefrom, apparently without harm further than a curbing of her desire to roam and probably a bad case of athlete's foot, or a charlie-horse, perhaps. The train proceeded on its way and everything assumed its usual calm tenor again.—Hico News Review.

At Bovina Monday a six inch rain put a small creek on a rise that swept away a car containing Mrs. C. B. Waddell and two small daughters. They were drowned. When Mrs. Fred Woodruff of Houston heard the storm was expected in Houston, she called a friend, the wife of a doctor, and they drove down to see what the storm would do. After starting back, their car went dead on the causeway, and the two women spent several nervous hours waiting for the wind and rain to subside. When they finally reached home, the doctor's wife found that the storm had blown the roof off her home, and her husband was boring holes in the floors to let the water out.

ROOSEVELT RAPS HOOVER IN NEW JERSEY SPEECH

In his second campaign speech, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt speaking at Seagirt, N. J., last week accused the Republicans of dodging the prohibition issue. Referring to President Hoover's acceptance speech, Roosevelt said:

"His statement proceeds deliberately to misrepresent the position of the Democratic party. He says: 'Our opponents pledge the members of their party to destroy every vestige of constitutional and effective federal control of the traffic.'"

I have the right to assume that the President read the Democratic platform and on that assumption I charge that this statement was made to mislead the people of this country and I assert that a mere reading of the plain, unequivocal provisions of the Democratic platform will sustain that charge. So that there can be no possible misunderstanding, let me read the provisions of the Democratic platform on this point. It begins: "We advocate the repeal of the 18th amendment."

"To effect such repeal we demand that the congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to truly representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal."

So much for repeal. Now what does it tell the states to do:

"We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states."

It then clearly states what the president either accidentally overlooked or deliberately misrepresented:

"We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its power to enable the states to protect themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws."

It then goes on to speak of the Volstead law:

"Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue."

Thus the Democratic platform expressly and unequivocally opposes the return of the saloon and with equal emphasis it demands that there be federal control of the liquor traffic to protect dry states. Only on the theory of seeking to return to power by the mere use of words can such statements of the president of these United States be explained.

BARGAINS AND SAFETY

Of course this year and some months ahead of it have been bargain years. The fall in commodity prices has brought the level of pretty nearly everything down to what we would have regarded as good bargains at least in 1928. The collapse of many responsible firms under adverse conditions has thrown their stocks on the market at compulsory bargain rates. The struggle for business has brought about attractive bargain periods as well as the bargain "leaders" to coax the only dollar into the buying mood. But it is also true that the situation has attracted the sharper who exists in every field. Bargain in its true sense is only a trade or the thing traded so that whether you buy well or ill, you have a bargain. It is a good or bad bargain. But in the colloquial sense, we use bargain for a good trade, that is for something purchased at less than real value. No mistakes are made when today's buyers search for these bargains on the counters of responsible firms with which they have always done business. Their guarantee is the assurance of the worth of the article.—State Press in Dallas News.

A Rhode Island hen that lost ten baby chicks has adopted three kittens in the barnyard of Dr. E. H. Putnam at Cuero, Texas. With feathers ruffled, she abandons the nest at dinner time, returning as soon as the mother cat has left.

SEES FURTHER DIPS AS PRICES RISE

Pointing out that the present rise in commodity prices is the third rally since the depression started, the current Business Conditions Weekly of the Alexander Hamilton Institute sees firmness in the present move, but allows for the likelihood of further reactions:

"The recent rise, however, has elicited more attention because it has been somewhat more pronounced than the previous two rallies. Moreover, the index reached a low enough level in June to warrant the opinion that a recovery might be in order."

"While it is probably true that the price index in June was at least close to the bottom for the current depression, it is questionable whether the recent rise represents the beginning of a prolonged recovery. It has the earmarks of a temporary movement although it is possible that this rise might extend over a period of several months. Such a phenomenon occurred in the depression of 1873, which has its counterpart in the current depression. Cautiously enough, this price rise in the former depression took place at the beginning of the fourth year of the depression, or at a time which corresponds exactly with the present time. After reaching a low for the depression in June, 1876, the price index during the last half of the year rose from 72.6 to 78.8. This recovery was followed by a renewal of the decline which lasted for two and a half years and carried the index to a new low of 58.2 in June, 1879, before there was a genuine recovery from the depression of 1873."

"One favorable feature of the current rise is that it is starting from a much lower level than the temporary recovery which occurred in 1876. This indicates that, in the event of a renewal of the decline after the present rally, the downward movement will not be so pronounced as after 1876 and that the extreme bottom for the depression will not be greatly under the June, 1932, low."

Unless a contest develops from the governor's race, all the politics we have ahead of us now will be concerned with the presidential campaign which will end on November 8. With both the donkey and the elephant dripping wet this time, will be plenty of fireworks—alcohol is just about as explosive as gasoline, you know.

"We worry about yellow and black gold, but we neglect our real gold—our water—until we are caught in a jam," declared Dr. E. P. Schoch, professor of physical chemistry and director of the Bureau of Industrial Chemistry at the University of Texas, recently. A simple method of controlling evaporation of surface water was explained by Dr. Schoch, who pointed out that evaporation during the hot months of summer takes place at the rate of seven inches to two feet each four weeks. Corn cobs soaked in crude oil and thrown onto surface water stores will retard evaporation sharply, Dr. Schoch declared.

To The Eagle: Through The Eagle I wish to thank the people of Mills county for the many kindnesses and courtesies shown me. I made many friends that I shall long remember.

I would not be fair to myself or friends did I not say to you that there is not a paragraph in either of the circulars distributed on Thursday and Friday before the primary, that states the truth. The libel laws of Texas forbid my properly classifying the authors and distributors of the circulars through the press, but as they were carefully and studiously prepared and judiciously distributed for the purpose of discrediting me, venting the spleen of some and furthering the interest of others, it renders them wilfully, maliciously and viciously false.

Again thanking you, I remain, Sincerely,

J. R. EANES.

HIGHWAY WORK

The highway department of Texas is entering on a program of road building in the state and $10,000,000 will be spent. Already a list of over 80 counties has been announced and more to come. Paving of highway 7 from near Brownwood to the Mills county line will begin in the early part of the fall and if the highway right-of-way is secured to Mullin work will probably continue on here.

Surveyors are busy on the Pecos Belt highway through the county, widening to 100 feet. As soon as this can be done work will be started hard surfacing that road through the county. If these two projects are successful, quite a bit of labor will be furnished during the fall and winter.

Where Everybody is Treated Alike

IN MEMORY OF MR. JULIUS KAUS

Mr. Kaus was born in Posen, Germany, October 17, 1859. Was married to Miss Augusta Sievert Feb. 5, 1881. He became a member of the Lutheran church the same year and continued in the same until his death, which occurred at the family home, Aug. 28, 1932.

Mr. Kaus came to America in 1882, landing here May 25. He settled first in Blanco county, Texas, but moved later to Mills County, and bought land about four miles south of Goldthwaite. Here he built a home and he and his wife reared a large family, consisting of five girls and five boys, as follows: Mrs. Paul Wenderbush of Priddy, Mrs. O. H. Shaw and Miss Eula Kaus of Goldthwaite, Miss Vangie of Borger and Miss Gertrude of Austin. The boys are: Ernest, Fritz, August, Julius and Carl, all of Goldthwaite, Texas.

All of the children were present at his funeral except, August, who was sick and in a sanitarium at Brownwood.

Mr. Kaus was one of our best citizens and was noted for his integrity and honest dealings. He was always found on the right side of every moral issue and when he made a promise you could rely implicitly on what he said. If all our citizens were like him we would have but little use for courts of justice.

He will be missed by his friends and acquaintances, but most of all by his faithful wife and children, who are left behind to mourn and who were so good to administer to his needs during his long illness. To them we extend our heartfelt sympathy and pray that the God their husband and father trusted may comfort their hearts.

Written by his friend,
G. W. JACKSON.

Looking Both Ways

This issue of the Eagle, as you will see from the date line on page one, is Volume 39, Number 1. Thirty-eight years have been traversed, and today we commence the thirty-ninth. In those 38 years Mills county has traveled far and every week the record of events has been faithfully transcribed on these pages.

Gover Cleveland was serving his second term as president, and the panic which has since carried his name had carried prices to new lows and left business stagnant in its wake. James Stephen Hogg was serving his second term as governor of Texas, and Charlie Culberson had just been nominated to succeed him.

The per capita school allowance had dropped from $5 to $4.50 and was soon to sink to $3.50. A school teacher who received $300 for a year's work was well satisfied and any family which owned a horse and buggy or a surrey ranked with the elite.

Not a single business house in its same name and ownership has survived through these years and there are but few business men here who were citizens of the town when the Eagle was established, or the present manager took charge of the paper eight months after it was established. W. C. Urbach was here, but the store now owned by him was owned by Widemeyer, Lauster & Co. The Trent State Bank was then the First National Bank and was later known as the D. H. Trent Bank with W. H. Trent as cashier and manager. This bank was sold to Mr. Dew and his associates twenty-four years ago and was then chartered in its present name. There is but one professional man here, as far as the Eagle editor's memory serves him, who was here when the Eagle was published 38 years ago, and that one is Judge E.B. Anderson. Mr. Randolph was associated with Campbell & Co.

Another fact that might interest some of the newer residents is that Goldthwaite has had its full share of newspapers during the time the Eagle has been published. Some of the names we recall now are the Mountaineer, Lancet, Advocate, News and Rustler, to say nothing of two church papers—Faithful Words and another published in the interest of the Christian church by Elder Rice, but its name is not recalled.

There were four saloons here in those days and they all did a lucrative business, yet the town was not nearly so large as it is today, either in population or in business houses.

Some day the Eagle editor may be moved to give a history of the various business houses and firms of that day, naming those who have passed over the "Great Divide" and telling where those who are living are located. Such a history would perhaps be interesting to the old timers, but the new comers might not care for the recital.

At any rate, the Eagle is still in its same location, although a new building has taken the place of the old frame house. The present editor sold the business at one time and was out of the work for a number of years, although still owning his home here and keeping the furnishings in it, hoping to some day buy back the business and regain its management. He is here now to remain until he receives the final call and then he will sleep on the hillside west of town until the trumpet shall sound for the general resurrection.

A Harmless Hobby

Turn any small boy's pockets wrong side out, and you will find an agglomeration of curious and often useless objects that are a clue to his likes and aptitudes, if only one knew how to interpret them properly. For every small boy is a natural collector. What did you collect when you were a boy? It may have been bird eggs, or horned frogs, pocket knives or postage stamps, queer rocks or tobacco tags, but if you were a normal boy, you never collected something.

It is surprising how many grown-ups still have the habit. The other day a hardware "drummer" dropped in to see us. He makes his living selling axe-handles and the like, but he has a lot of fun and occasionally gains some profit from collecting books about Texas. Just now he is looking for a pamphlet "Fifty Years a Texas Ranger" or something like that which was published in this section of Texas 20 or 30 years ago. It is not very old, and it is not especially valuable from an historical standpoint, and it is certainly lacking in literary merit. But the particular edition he is searching for is rare. Not many copies still exist. Its cheap paper binding and flimsy construction sent many of them to the wash heap years ago. This same collector owns a valuable lot of postage stamps. He wants some Indian arrow heads, and is willing to trade stamps for them.

There are probably more collectors of stamps than anything else. The supply is practically unlimited, except of old and rare issues, so any boy can make a collection at little expense. Then by trading with other collectors he can extend his collection rapidly. Of course, it is possible to buy a collection already made, neatly pasted in an album with every stamp properly classified. But there's no fun in that. The real thrill comes when you get your first Sumatra or old Cape of Good Hope triangle or a purple Timbuktu.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for President, is an ardent stamp collector. Probably the most famous is King George V of England, whose private collection of stamps, limited to those issued by England and English colonies, is valued at well over five million dollars.

Coin collecting is a more expensive hobby because most coins have an intrinsic value as well as a value to collectors. A California $10 goldpiece might be worth a premium of $1.50, but it would still be worth its original $10 value in addition. However, it is yet possible to buy genuine Roman and Grecian coins two thousand or more years old for a few cents—if you know where to get them.

Book collecting has its devotees, too. Some of them go in for old and rare books, some for books on definite subjects, some for first editions. One of the most wonderful collections of rare and valuable books in the world is the famous Wrenn Library at the University of Texas.

And so it goes. We doubt if there is any object or article in the world that could not properly be included in some collection or other. Everyone knows of collectors of butterflies, of leaves, of wild flowers and grasses. There are collectors of furniture, of bottles and glass, of snuff boxes and shoe buckles, mirrors and sporting prints, pins and nails, even horseshoes.

Most of the ardent collectors are men. But we know women who, to use their own expression, are crazy about old maps or new recipes, and for quilt and embroidery patterns, which they know they will never really use.

This ingrained trait of acquisitiveness, of wanting things, both because other people have them and because other people want them, begins with the little boy with big pockets and extends to a Morgan with a vault full of rare jewels with histories hundreds of years old. It is a trait that will make it difficult for communism, wherein all must share and share alike, ever to become genuinely popular.

MILLS COUNTY NAMED FOR NATIVE OF IRELAND

When Mills county was organized in 1887 out of Brown, Comanche, Hamilton and Lampasas counties, it was named for Judge John T. Mills, one of the famous district judges of Texas. He was born in County Antrim, Ireland, Nov. 12, 1817, and came with his parents to Beaufort county, South Carolina, where he was educated and studied law.

When he was 20 years old he came to Texas, which had won its independence from Mexico the year before. Two years later, when he was only 22, he was appointed judge of the Third Judicial District of the Republic of Texas by President Lamar, but he resigned a year later.

He was again appointed a district judge, this time of the seventh district, in 1842 and served until after Texas was annexed in 1845. In 1846 he was appointed judge of the new eighth district and served for several terms.

In 1843 he married Mary Jane Vining in Clarksville, Texas. She died in 1854, and he later married Mrs. Adair of Marshall, Texas, where he lived until 1861. He then moved to his plantation on the Brazos river in Robertson county and stayed until the close of the war, when he returned to Marshall, where he died on November 30, 1871. Judge Mills was a consistent member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, a Mason in high standing, and a profound lawyer. He was a liberal and public-spirited citizen, and aided in many benevolent enterprises.

This account of his life is based on the record in Z. T. Fulmore's "The History and Geography of Texas as Told in County Names," which is included in the traveling library now available in Goldthwaite.

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF

SO THAT'S THAT

Well, the election is over, but he memory lingers still, and a hectic two years in prospect. Whether I win or lose, I'd rather have the vote decisive from the start and so get it over with. At any rate everybody has had more than one opportunity to be on the winning side.

Why some of these counties take so long to count their ballots is a mystery to me. Of course the yeard John W. Roberts always sets for Mills county is hard to equal, but there is no excuse in these days of telephones and quick transportation for any county chairman taking three or four days to turn in a complete count.

In this day of alibis it is altogether refreshing to hear someone tell the truth. Young Hollison, the Scotch flyer, who is the first and only man to fly the Atlantic solo from East to West, set his plane down with gasoline still in the tanks. "I was jolly well tired," he explained as the reason he did not fly on to New York. He might have said his motor was giving trouble, or his instruments were out of order, but he didn't alibi. And we like him better for it.

HEALTH HINT

A well known doctor offers a few simple and practical rules for avoiding a cold: Always wash your hands before eating and before handling food; do not shake hands with any one who has a cold unless you wash your hands thoroughly immediately afterward; do not use common drinking cups, roller towels, pipes, pencils, etc. Give coughers and sneezers a wide berth. Wash dishes in hot soapy water. Avoid sudden changes of temperature. Do not allow yourself to become overtired. Keep physically fit by eating plenty of fresh and wholesome food. Your daily program must include bathing, elimination, exercise, sufficient sleep.

Many physicians suggest one-quarter of a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a glass of lukewarm water taken three times a day when a cold is

THE REALM OF SCIENCE

A change in public psychology which would do more for human happiness than any other, Sir Arnold Wilson, distinguished sociologist, told a recent conference of cemetery officials at Brighton, England, is one in the usual attitude of feav and horror toward death. No small part of this usual attitude, Sir Arnold believes, is due to the atmosphere of gloom, sorrow and decay in the average cemetery. Instead of fences, heavy gates and high walls, cemetery should be operated, he believes, as public parks, open to everyone. Instead of ugly and permanent stone monuments, built as though the dead still were competing with each other for public attention, Sir Arnold recommends wooden tombstones and other memorials, which soon would decay and vanish, leaving the natural beauties of trees or lawns unmarred by obtrusive symbols of forgotten greatness or private grief. Wreaths and similar objects placed on graves by private mourners should be prohibited in favor of permanent flower beds, or, better still, of meadow turf, so that visitors can walk comfortably over the graves and think of the happier side of human life instead of being reminded continually of morbid griefs or private ambition and pride. Dr. Dunean Forbes, health officer of the city of Brighton, seconded Sir Arnold's ideas and recommended in addition, that the older cemeteries be turned as rapidly as possible into playgrounds for school children.

Keeping Up With Texas

SOME FACTS AND SOME QUESTIONS

"Texas is the only state that owns its public domain."

"Texas still owns 1,000,000 acres of land."

But how many babies does Texas own?

Are her babies increasing or decreasing?

Of what character are her babies, black or white?

Who will control that land in the future?

Why aren't Texas births recorded as carefully as those in other states?

"Forty-five million acres were given for public schools."

How many children are entitled to free education?

What is the cost of educating foreign-born children of foreign born parents not citizens of Texas?

Is the revenue from this land being fairly divided?

"The institutions for the deaf and dumb, blind, insane and orphans were given 10,000 acres each."

How many are blind, deaf and dumb or insane in Texas?

How many inmates are foreign or of foreign-born parents?

Does Texas afford sufficient care for her own?

Many of these questions can not be answered because births and deaths in Texas are not recorded properly, and in many cases are not recorded at all.

What Other Editors Have to Say

NINETY-FIVE YEARS OF PROGRESS

The population of the United States in 1837 was, in round numbers, 17,000,000. The population of the United States now is in excess of 120,000,000.

In 1837 the per capita wealth of the people of the United States was estimated at $353. The most reliable estimates made of the wealth of the United States in 1931, indicated that wealth to be in excess of $360,000,000,000 and this in spite of the depression. This means that the per capita wealth in 1931-1932 is in excess of $2900.

We talk about the good old times as being so much better than the present, but when we consider the figures we know that such talk is foolish. Never before have we been so wealthy. Never before have we had so many conveniences in our homes. Never before have we had such excellent highways nor such rapid and comfortable transportation. News of the world can be had any day, any hour, any moment at a trifling expense.

Just now there comes to us a news item which indicates that the recent discovery by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station is worth more to the ranchmen in Southwest Texas in the control of sore mouth among sheep and goats than has been the total cost of the operation of such station since its beginning. Education is the prime factor in the wonderful progress of the United States during the last ninety-five years and those teachers who are not bold enough when informed to reiterate this fact upon every occasion and sustain their contention by citing irrefutable evidence are just plain foolish in so far as their own personal welfare is concerned, and certainly do not appreciate the advantages that teachers have for service to their communities outside of the school room. — The Texas Outlook.

THE CALIFORNIA BATTLE

For the first time since 1916, when its vote decided the election, California is to be one of the chief battlegrounds in a presidential campaign. It was recently announced at the White House that Mr. Hoover would not visit his home state before November. But Governor Roosevelt and Mr. Garner expect to make speeches there, and it is known that the Democratic National Committee is planning to reinforce their with some of the ablest speakers at its disposal.

In 1916 California had only thirteen electoral votes. Now, under the new apportionment, it has twenty-two — a prize worth making special efforts to obtain. This traditionally Republican state produced a Republican plurality of 325,000 in 1920, 309,000 in 1924 and Mr. Hoover carried it against Mr. Smith in 1928 by a vote of 1,162,000 to 614,000. Mr. Wilson's plurality over Mr. Hughes in 1916 was only 806. That Republican defeat has been attributed to a 'neglected handshake' the alleged slight by Mr. Hughes to Senator Hiram Johnson. Now Mr. Johnson has been praising Governor Roosevelt in the highest terms and the Democrats are counting on his aid.

A gain of nearly 400,000 in the Democratic registration for the primary and a decrease of more than 200,000 in the Republican registration have given some encouragement to Democratic hopes. But the party is banking chiefly on the new state organization headed by Mr. McAdoo, which has replaced the old crowd that was handicapped by constant dissensions. An overturn of more than 500,000 votes in Mr. Hoover's own state is a tremendous undertaking. But the Republican national managers will be wise to match the Democratic campaign in California with one equally aggressive, especially since their candidate is barred by his position from undertaking an active canvass in his own behalf. — Philadelphia Public Ledger.

VACATION FOR PARENTS

It's the first 60 years of parenthood that turn out to be the hardest if anxiety over the physical, mental and moral well-being of the second generation is counted in. Mother may figure that school will give her a little more time on her hands, but by the time she has gotten breakfast for the youngsters, has seen that they are properly dressed and equipped for the school period and away in time to get to the building before tardy bell, she starts to figuring whether they will make it in safety and is never fully relieved until they report back in the afternoon. Perhaps it is our human sense of responsibility that ties us to our progeny from birth to the grave and dedicates every older generation to paternal care over the next. But, whatever it is, it admits of no five-day week, no eight-hour day and no let-up in attention to the job for fifty-two weeks in the year. Vacations for parents may be a sound slogan. But in practical application it is an impossibility. — State Press in Dallas News.

Authorities at Buenos Aires, Argentina, have been called on to determine whether nudism implies insanity or merely a misdemeanor. WHERE TIME MEANS NOTHING

China is ageless in this modern world. It is a country where time means nothing. Through the ages that vast nation has remained the same, conquered yet unconquerable. Tatar and Mongol have swept down across the Great Wall, only to remain and be submerged in the population. Tenaciously clinging to their racial destiny, the Chinese have carved out of the universe a strange heritage. There is the will to outlive invaders from the barbarian north, to resist peacefully, but so effectively the onslaughts of the outsider.

United China, a magazine which speaks for the modern Celestial republic, gives the white world of the Occident, Europe and the United States, something to think about. In a recent editorial that publication made a strange prediction: "In a few years the glory that was Western power and dominance and imperialism will have vanished from the earth, in the same way and by the same token as the powerful empires of Rome and Genghis Khan."

The patient ancestors of that clever Chinese writer saw the whirlwind launcers of the Great Khan go down before the resisting yet non-resistant strength of a race which was old before Christ and which lives today. Perhaps his descendants will see the machine guns of well-drilled Celestials mow down the effete West.

The militarist in London or Paris or Rome or Washington would say that force must be met with force. The realist who sees only the destruction of civilization, whether it be Occidental or Oriental, would say that the white world must strike a bargain with the yellow world so that all mankind may live at peace each with the other.

At any rate, this voice of a new China, which has learned about broken treaties and imperialistic aggressions from the Occidental nations, gives the thoughtful citizens of those nations something to think about. China was yesterday, and is today, and possibly will be tomorrow. It may be that the world war, which saw the civilized and cultured white races of the earth merrily obliterating each other from terrestrial realms, was merely the first episode in the gradual deterioration of those ethnic groups which have always considered it their destiny to rule the world. China, where time means nothing, probably smiles an inscrutable smile and remembers Rome. — Houston Chronicle.

TORNADO AND COUNTY CONSOLIDATION

It was not the explosion of firecrackers or blank pistols that made the fourth of July celebration at Washington, Kan., so noisy and so destructive. A tornado wrecked the county court house, two school buildings and many homes and business properties. And it will do no good for the county to pass a law making it illegal for tornadoes to mar what otherwise might be a safe and sane Fourth. The damage is done and the county will be forced to issue bonds to rebuild the court house and other bonds to replace the school buildings.

Out of this situation comes the first definite proposal for the consolidation of counties in Kansas. The Attorney General of that state has been asked what steps would be necessary to divide Washington county and consolidate the two divisions with Marshall and Republic counties. The Attorney General has advised that it would require legislative action and that proceedings for a bond issue could be delayed until the legislature considered the proposal. He also said it would not require a vote of the people of Washington county or of the other two counties.

Consolidation of Missouri's counties has been proposed as a means of reducing the cost of government. It has been insisted that the state does not need 114 county courthouses and county governments now that it has good roads and automobiles, and that if they were reduced to about half that number large savings in salaries of county officials would accrue without any reduction in efficiency. But it is to be hoped that a tornado will not get behind this proposal as it did in Kansas. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A BROTHER'S HEROIC EXAMPLE

Recent months have not been a good time for people who like to keep a strong faith in human nature. There has been a good deal of news of stupidity, venality and perversity in high places—almost enough to convince one that the race is a pretty shabby affair.

But now and then there will be a little story about some utterly unknown, perfectly ordinary individual that will turn the tide; a story that helps to restore one's belief that mankind is, after all, capable of every great and noble thing.

Such a story got into the papers the other day from Canon City, Colo.

Tom and George Emberton, brothers, were digging a well, assisted by their father. They got the well shaft 60 feet deep, and then George was lowered to the bottom in a bucket to set off a dynamite blast. He lit the fuse and ordered them to hoist him out. They began to do so—and the rope broke. George fell to the bottom, knocked unconscious, and lay right on top of a charge of dynamite that was certain to explode very shortly.

The two men at the top would have been amply justified in staying there, waiting in frozen horror for the tragedy. But Tom, without hesitation, got into the well—into the well where high explosive was due to go off in a few seconds.

Unfortunately, he was unable to save his brother. The dynamite went off when Tom was only half way down the shaft. He went to the bottom, picked up his brother's broken body and brought it to the surface, but it was too late. George was fatally injured.

But you will go a long way before you find a finer example of real bravery than Tom displayed.

Physical courage, of course, is common enough. Millions of soldiers displayed it in profusion during the World War. But there is always something immensely heartening about it. To see a man who is ready to act on the belief that there is something immensely more important than saving his own skin restores one's faith in the entire race. — Stephenville Empire-Tribune.

ITEMS FROM LOCAL PAPERS OF TOWNS MENTIONED

Hamilton

Ed Ligon and John Jones of Comanche were in Hamilton as guests of J. Braxton McKinley over the past week end.

The Hamilton school board makes the authoritative announcement that the public schools of this city will open on Monday, Sept. 12, for a full nine-months term.

Fire, originating from an oil stove at the home of W. D. Snell four miles east of town on the Lanham road, last Thursday afternoon, Aug. 18, for a few minutes threatened the complete destruction of the residence.

Miss Ruth Crews, who came to Hamilton from Denver, Colo., some weeks ago, and is to be a member of the household of her aunt, Mrs. Joe E. Williams, for the coming school season, is enjoying visits with relatives in Comanche, Goldthwaite and Cisco.

On last Sunday afternoon at about 6:30 o'clock, Mrs. J. Cephas Sparks sustained such critical injuries to her right hand and forearm in an automobile accident that amputation of the member was necessary. The injuries of Mr. Sparks, who was driving the car, were painful, but not serious. His body was bruised, a rib in his right side was broken, his neck wrenched, and there were bruises and a slight abrasion on the right side of his forehead. His most painful injury, however, was a deep cut in his right knee that required several stitches to close.

Bobby Charles, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gran Jones, of the Pottsville community, had a narrow escape from death on Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, when struck by a passing car on the square in Hamilton. Mrs. Jones parked her car in the center of the square. Leaving her two little sons in the car she went to the postoffice. When the younger son saw his mother returning he climbed out of the car and started to meet her. He came from behind the Jones car directly into the driveway just as Miss Kathleen Beall was passing in her car. The Beall car struck the child and hauled him some ten feet in front of the machine. Miss Beall stopped her car before it ran over the child, and the little one's injuries were sustained when he fell on the pavement. He was picked up apparently lifeless and taken to the home of Dr. A. G. Livingston, where he was given chiropractic adjustments, and was soon apparently much better. However, within a few minutes he began having convulsions. Dr. Livingston conveyed him to the Hamilton sanitarium and he was resting nicely by Saturday morning, and is reported to be entirely recovered from the shock and his injuries proved to be minor ones. — Herald-Keok.

Lometa

Miss Lousia Evans returned home Tuesday, after a month's visit in Topeka, Kansas, and Kansas City, Mo. Her aunt, Mrs. J. F. Crawford, accompanied her home for a visit.

The equalization board of the Lometa Independent School District has finished its work and according to J. L. Piekens, the property valuations have been lowered some $200,000 below the rendition of last year.

Mrs. A. L. Horne, 65, of Lometa, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. B. R. Hester, in Brownwood, at 7 o'clock last Wednesday morning, Aug. 17, after an illness extending over a period of two years.

Mrs. K. M. Anderson chaperoned her Sunday school class for a trip on Kirby creek Monday night. After all arrived at the scene of the frivolities, many games were enjoyed by all. Afterwards lunch was spread.

Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Suddath of Whitesboro, Texas, were here Wednesday and Thursday looking the town over and getting information concerning the trade territory with the view of opening a dry goods store in our little city. They closed a deal with W. F. Dent for a three-year lease on the building formerly occupied by the W. M. Mason dry goods company. — Reporter.

San Saba

To Tuesday night there had been 19 bales of this years cotton ginned at San Saba.

The sales and shipments of cattle from this county last week indicated an upward trend in prices and trading.

Announcement is made that the San Saba high school will open on Monday, Sept. 19, and all patrons and children should take notice.

Work of securing the right-of-way on both the state highways crossing the county is going forward. It appears now that it is a horse race to see which highway, 81, the Pecan Belt, north and south, or 74 east and west, can get work started first.

According to reports from Richland Springs, Mrs. John P. Matlock was found in the bathroom of their home about nine o'clock Monday morning in a dying condition. Her throat had been cut with a razor, the wound self-inflicted. Mr. Matlock recently purchased a drug-store in Richland Springs.

Apparently there is another organization of automobile thieves operating in middle Texas. They seem to have hit San Saba last week. Friday night, Aug. 12, the Ford tudor of J. E. Hayden was stolen while parked on the pavement in front of the residence. Last Friday night, while the political speaking was in progress, the Chevrolet coupe of A. J. Walker was stolen while parked on the east side of the court house.

Milton, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. King of the Algeria community, was killed instantly in a tragic accident last Wednesday noon. He was in the field heading maize for his calves. The noon signal was given and in a few minutes the mule he was using came to the house without Milton. A neighbor boy, just arrived, went to look for him and found his brother's body a short ways from the field gate. No one saw the accident. From the physical evidence it is believed probably the boy got on the mule to ride to the house and was pitched off, or else attempted to get on and the mule jump and Milton's foot was hung in the trace chain. — News.

Lampasas

J. G. Gamel of Austin died Monday afternoon in that city, after an illness of a few days. He developed pneumonia, which caused his death. The deceased was a brother of the late W. G. Gamel of this city and had visited here during the lifetime of his brother.

D. A. Waldron, son of Aaron Waldron of this place, was killed Friday in an automobile accident in Houston. Mr. and Mrs. Waldron were in the car when it collided with another car and he was injured and died in a short time after reaching a hospital. The deceased had been ticket agent for the Missouri-Kansas and Texas railroad for 23 years, but for the past 18 months had been in the insurance business.

C. A. Baker started a crew of men Monday morning to cut the brush and clear the right of way on highway 66. The work started at the edge of the city and will go north toward Adansville. There were 22 men at work Monday morning and more will be used as the work progresses. The state will have road building machinery here as soon as possible and when the work is well under way there may be as many as 300 men at work on the road.

The sheriff's office was notified here Friday that a man was under arrest in Taylor and had with him two automobile wheels and tires that he had admitted stolen Thursday night, August 18, in Lampasas. The Taylor officers had arrested the man on suspicion and after questioning him at length, he admitted the theft of the tires in this place. The officers here began to investigate and found that one of the casings was taken from Harry Easters, but the other had not been located. The man was returned Thursday afternoon to Lampasas.

Comanche

The month old baby of Mrs. Charlie Anderson was found dead in bed, at her home in Comanche at six o'clock Wednesday morning.

Rev. S. J. Rueker, pastor of the DeLeon Methodist church for the past four years, died Tuesday, August 16, at Denver, Colo., while on a vacation.

Approximately $5,000 was received from the state last week by the public schools of Comanche county, representing a payment of one dollar per capita on the state apportionment.

Independent and common school districts of Comanche county will have the school funds cut approximately one-fourth from last year, according to County Superintendent R. S. Walker, who said that the decrease in funds was due to the decreased property valuation and from the reduction of the state per capita from $17.50 to $16.00.

Miss Zekie Bibby, 30, was found dead in a pasture 200 yards from the home of her father, J. A. Bibby, at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, near Beattie. Lying beside her was a 12-gauge single barrel shotgun with an exploded shell in the barrel. A small wound was found under her right shoulder extending through her breast.

Miss Bibby had been missing since sun down and a searching party was formed shortly after dark, with 25 or 30 people in the party. The gun found by Miss Bibby's side was an old one that had been kept about the house and had not been used for some months, as the stock was broken off. The discharge was apparently made by placing the broken gun against a rock and pulling the trigger with a stick, Justice Bonner said. Miss Bibby had been dependent for several weeks and several years before had suffered with a mental trouble. She prepared supper for the family, but did not eat, telling her father that she was not hungry and left the room when the other members of the family sat down to the table. Her father said that he heard a shot a few minutes later, but supposed it was one of the neighbors hunting and was not uneasy, as he knew there was no gun about the place except the broken one. — Chief.

FIGHTING IN THE MILK SHED

The Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, the pioneer co-operative of the New York Milk Shed, is bringing a rapidly increasing percentage of the dairymen in its territory together to work for the common good. The enemies of the League are attempting to prevent that, inasmuch as unorganized dairymen are much easier to keep "subdued" than dairymen with a strong and aggressive organization behind them.

The League has been accused of attempting to peg milk prices to the consumer—in spite of the fact that the largest profit in milk sales is taken out by the distributor. It has been accused of being a monopoly—although in 1922 this issue was carried to the supreme court of New York, and the League came out with a clean bill of health. Further, economic law itself is the best friend the public has in protecting it against anything resembling monopoly of a commodity like milk.

The public should thoroughly understand what is going on. Profitless agriculture benefits nobody—and harms everybody. It makes for profitless business in a thousand other fields. The co-operative movement is simply designed to guarantee the people an abundant supply of pure, first-quality milk at a reasonable price which will allow a fair profit to the farmer, the distributor and the retailer. That, shorn of bunk, is the issue. Victory for the league in New York will herald better days for farmers all over the nation.

Lampasas county for the year 1932. The total tax value of the county for 1932 is shown to be $5,692,380, as compared with $6,090,360 for last year. The total school, state and county tax for last year was $105,485.38 and for this year it is $89,900.38. These reductions are due to the reduction in values of county, also reduction in state and county tax rates. The county rate for last year was 70c and this year it is 60c. The state rate for last year was 74c and this year it is 69c. — Leader.

She suffered severe shock. Miss Colon returned to her window cleaning, but police prevailed upon her to go to a hospital for observation. She left, protesting she had never felt better in her life.

The latest thing in art was a demonstration by Huang Erhnan, a well known Peiping illustrator. Huang sipped a mouthful of black ink, bent over a piece of silk and, using his mouth to regulate the flow of ink and his tongue as a pen-point, drew a lotus flower and some butterflies. He had already gained considerable local fame by drawing pictures with fingers, spoons and anything except the conventional brush or pen.

15-YEAR-OLD SCHOOLBOY BUILDS TRACTOR OF JUNK

A 15-year-old Katy, Texas, school boy, Charles Oran Peck, built himself a tractor out of scrap iron and pieces picked up here and there, and used the machine in cultivating a peanut crop this year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peck.

The young man will enter the eighth grade at the beginning of school this fall.

"The idea came to me last winter that I could build a tractor," Charles said. "I began looking around. The first thing I found was the frame from an old junked rice threshing machine.

"I fished the old frame out of the hole and brought it home. A few days later I found two old discarded bull wheels off a rice binder machine. Then I purchased an old junked model T Ford engine from a neighbor for $5.

"Then I got an old rusty radiator, steering gear, gas tank and a couple of old automobile front wheels, some transmission gears, and a spring seat. I worked on the tractor after school hours and on Saturdays and the tractor was completed by May," Charles said.

He can run the tractor 10 miles an hour, but while plowing it moves along at four or five miles an hour.

The tractor has plenty of power, transmitted by means of

WAR SECRETARY BOOED

When Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison spoke at the New York state convention of the American Legion in Brooklyn last week he was loudly booed and hissed by both delegates and visitors.

His announced opposition to the immediate payment of the bonus and his defense of President Hoover for calling out troops to disperse the bonus marchers in Washington produced a tremendous demonstration of disapproval.

Last year the New York convention voted against payment of the bonus, but this year it has lined up in its favor.

"I find that the trade and the consumers have all become fed up on price merchandising, in which the endeavor is made to sell on the basis of a cheap price, that the trend is strongly back to merchandise based on values."—Paul S. Willis, president of the Associated Grocery Mfg. of America.

"A lot of fellows told me I was wasting my time when I was working on the tractor," Charles said. "But I like machinery, and kept working until I finished it."

He planted five acres of peanuts and believes he will make an excellent crop.

BIRD PLANS GO AWAY

Flying ants are impeding the work of the Auckland, New Zealand, society which is trying to add to the pheasant population of the country. This year 1000 pheasants were imported, but flying ants which attacked the birds' throats were responsible for the loss of 200 and 200 more died from other causes. Only 600 therefore, were liberated. Next year another 600 will be liberated.

A VISIT TO ELMROCK CAVE

On last Sunday afternoon a crowd of boys and girls enjoyed a delightful exploration trip to Elmrock Cave in the Griffith pasture. After a long hike up a rough, unused road to a certain point and then thru a stretch of almost impenetrable brush, we reached the cave just ahead of a hard shower of rain. We quickly crowded down through the entrance into a fairly large, comfortable room, where we kept warm and dry, while the rain storm raged above us.
While we were water-bound we pleasantly passed the time away exploring the interior of the cave. Elmrock cave is located on the slope of a brush covered hill in a tangle of unusually thick underbrush and a grove of stately elm trees. It is a natural rock cave and it probably was to be much larger than it now is, for it is pretty badly filled up with loose black soil. Two main passages lead away from the "entrance hall". One led us through a small opening in the rock into a much larger room, which sloped downward. As the floor sloped downward the roof became lower, so we could not go far, but on beyond the rays of our lantern the cave still extended. The other passage began wide and narrowed as it progressed. It, too, extended beyond where we could crawl and farther than our lantern could shine.
We spent a great deal of time digging in the loose soil, which covers the floor and we unearthed a number of red bones, which resembled human bones, some rocks, which the Indians used in grinding corn, and a gigantic tooth. All these relics showed unmistakable signs of age.
Whether the cave was once an Indian burying place or whether numerous wind and rain storms have deposited the loose soil, where it now is, is a matter of conjecture.
By the time we had explored all of the cave the rain had ceased, so we started home. Before leaving, however, we agreed to call the place Elmrock Cave.
Those who enjoyed this exciting outing were Mrs. Jennie Simpson and Virginia Simpson, Dick Griffith, Floyd Manual, Ollie Mae, Ozetta, and Glenn Featherstone, Herbert Faulkner, Morine and Mordine Brown, Clifford Rose, Ethel Parker and Odell and Clifton Hill.
