GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1934.

NUMBER THIRTY-SEVEN

County School Board Meets

The County Board of Trustees of Mills county met in regular session Monday, May 7, 1934, with the following members present: J. J. Cockrell, R. C. Duren, Joe Langford, J. M. Geeslin and W. M. Johnston.

E. K. Wood of Regency, the newly elected county trustee, met with us and took the oath of office.

The secretary, Judge L. E. Patterson, not being present, J. M. Geeslin was appointed secretary pro. tem.

The board regretted very much that Judge Patterson could not be with us on account of his serious sickness. This board appreciates Judge Patterson on account of his excellent ability as an officer, his honesty of purpose and his determination to do his duty toward the schools of Mills county. We look to him for counsel and advice in all matters, especially regarding legal matters; we have learned to like him as a man, friend, citizen and officer.

The resignation of Ed Schrank of Priddy, a school trustee, and W. G. Smith of South Bennett were accepted.

Clint Petty was appointed trustee for Lake Merritt school; Albert A. Reid was appointed trustee for Regency; John A. Schlee for Priddy and Willie Smith for South Bennett.

The board classified schools of this county as follows:

All one-teacher schools may teach the first seven elementary grades.

Two teacher schools eight grades.

Three teacher schools nine grades.

Four teacher schools ten grades.

Five teacher schools eleven grades.

Goldthwaite and Mullin were classified first class high schools. W. M. Johnston was re-elected president of the board.

A motion was carried to adjourn until the next regular meeting the first Monday in August, unless called in special meeting.

W. M. JOHNSTON, President,
J. M. GEESLIN, Sec. Pro.

ART AND CIVIC CLUB

The Art and Civic club met Thursday in regular business and study meeting with Mrs. L. J. Gartman.

The reception suite was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and fern, making an ideal setting for a lovely program, which was given in observance of National Music Week.

Mrs. Claud Eacott was leader of the study and brought a charming message on music. She was assisted by the following local musicians, who gave vocal and piano numbers: Mesdames L. J. Gartman, R. V. Littlepage, F. P. Bowman, M. Y. Stokes and Misses Floyce A. Dickerson, Aileen Martin, Mary Ellen Trent, and Robert Elizabeth Littlepage.

At the close of the program Mrs. Gartman assisted by her daughters, Misses Evelyn and Louise, served a dainty refreshment plate to the club members, and following guests. Meses. Jim Cockrum, D. H. Harrison, Wilbur Fairman, J. N. Keese, R. V. Littlepage, R. M. Thompson, Henry Martin, F. P. Bowman, Will Pence, J. A. Weaver, J. A. Hester and Misses Aileen Martin, Robert Elizabeth Littlepage, Mary Ellen Trent and Floyce Aileen Dickerson.

Methodist Notes

As these notes are being written the General Conference of the Church is closing at Jackson, Miss. The session has been one of the shortest in the history of the church, except a special session held some years ago. Only a few outstanding things have been accomplished. The conference is distinguished possibly more for what it did not do, than for what it did. It made no radical changes like some had insisted upon. The Episcopacy was not changed as some had wished. The life term of the bishops remain as before, instead of electing for a term of years. No new bishops were elected. The actual legislation enacted consisted in the elimination of the board of social service, and the board of hospitals. These were consolidated with other boards. This was done in the interest of a much needed economy. A new law was passed, making it obligatory for a presiding elder to remain out of the presiding eldership for four years, after having spent four years in that office. The old law was re-enacted limiting a pastorate to four years. This was the most drastic law passed. It will greatly affect the large city churches, where long pastorates are many times demanded. A new financial plan was adopted whereby a congregation shall be allowed either to raise or lower their quota of askings for the general work of the church. The askings for the general work of the church for the next four years was reduced a million and a quarter of dollars. All these laws were passed in the interest of a much needed economy for the desperate days through which the church is passing.

Three of the bishops were retired by reason of age limit, two had died within the quadrennium, leaving the church short of the force of four years ago by five members. This leaves a body of eleven effective bishops. Most people think that the church may be able to get along with this number.

This is a brief excerpt of what was accomplished. This may not be of any great interest to those of us who live at the forks of the creek of Methodism. The thing of great importance to us is the local church. Any, and all the changes will not affect us very much, yet we want to know just what has been done. Our work has always been, and will continue to be, in the local congregation. While the church remains connectional, yet the local church is a part of the connectionalism, and the entire church must prosper or fail as the local congregation prospers or fails. It is more important that we faithfully do the work committed to us in our local church than any other duty that presses upon us.

In this connection I wish to repeat what I have often said, and still strongly believe, that the Goldthwaite Methodist church is one of the most loyal that I have ever known, and my acquaintance with such churches covers the territory in part from the foothills of the Blue Ridge to the borders of Mexico. It is not loyalty to an institution that we so much need, but loyalty to the institution as it represents the entire body of Christ and Christianity.

I am perfectly certain that the congregations attending public worship in the Goldthwaite Methodist church is equal to, if not actually greater than any church within the bounds of our district. Yet this might be greatly increased by just a little effort on the part of the membership and friends of the church. Let us all put forth an extraordinary effort to be at all the services next Sunday, and each succeeding Sunday. The result will be beneficial to yourself, the church and to all other means in the town, purposed to make the town a better place in which to live.

District Court In Session

The grand jury recessed last Wednesday, after returning three indictments charging felonies, and convened again yesterday.

A special venire of forty men was summoned to appear Monday in the Marvin Hughitt case, wherein the defendant is charged with rape. The case was continued Monday until Wednesday, on account of the death of the defendant's uncle, John O. Hughitt. The case went to trial Wednesday and was submitted to the jury Wednesday night.

A number of civil cases were tried the early part of the week and the following criminal cases: State vs. J. T. Spivey, theft; three years in the penitentiary.

State vs. J. B. Champlin, possession of liquor for the purpose of sale; assessed one and one-half years suspended sentence.

State vs. D. C. Langford, manufacturing liquor; assessed five years suspended sentence.

Jury Commissioners

E. O. Priddy, S. J. Casey and D. O. Simpson were appointed jury commissioners by Judge Few Brewster, to prepare a list of jurors for the next term of district court. They met and performed their duties Wednesday.

SURPRISE PARTY

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. Robertson and Mrs. Harvey Dunkle of Rock Springs surprised them last Friday night with a party. They met at the school house and went en masse. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and cold drinks were served immediately upon arrival of the guests. The evening was spent in singing and various table games were played.

A beautiful bouquet of roses and ferns was presented to the honoree, Mrs. Dunkle, by Mrs. A. F. McGowan. The following are the guests who were present: Mr. and Mrs. T. Robertson, Mrs. Harvey Dunkle, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Woody Traylor, Mrs. John Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. James, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Roberson of Big Valley, Mrs. Juanita Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Davis, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McGowan and Misses Johnnie Belle Circle, Nellie Dee Cooke, Waldene and Bernice Traylor, Oliver Traylor, Haskell Gatlin. The guests departed, each expressing a well spent evening.

A GUEST

His four sons are: John, Carlos, Ben and Bert. His three daughters are: Mrs. Ray Priddy, and Misses Louella and Grace Patterson. He is also survived by one brother, R. H. Patterson of Mullin, and one sister, Mrs. Jas. M. Head of Clovis, N. M.

The funeral yesterday afternoon was under the auspices of the Masonic lodge, services being held in the Methodist church, after which burial was made in the local cemetery, by the side of the grave of his wife. The sad services were attended by an immense gathering of the friends of the departed and his family. People were there from all parts of the county and from other counties, all anxious to honor the memory of the man who had been a friend to most of them personally.

As a special honor the business houses of the town and all of the county offices were closed during the funeral and district court was recessed.

The Masonic fraternity provided the active pall bearers for the funeral, but the family requested that the honorary pall bearers include all of Judge Patterson's friends. Their name is legion, hence all can not be listed here individually, but every one who was his friend in life can know that it is the wish of the Patterson family that all of them be understood as being on the list of honor, in recognition of their friendship.

Several families have been dropped from the rolls this week, for various reasons, and as the office continues its usual monthly check up others will be eliminated on grounds of ineligibility.

The local office earnestly solicits each citizen in the county to bring to their attention such facts as may be in their possession, as to car ownership of those on the rolls, refusal to work at a living wage by those on the rolls, and any items of unwarranted expenditures on the part of relief families. This is a duty which should be shouldered by each person in the county, and the local relief office as a governmental agency is privileged to such information.

Good Man Gone

Judge L. E. Patterson, one of the best loved and most valuable citizens of Mills county, passed from this life Wednesday afternoon in the hospital in Brownwood. He was carried to the hospital a week previous to his death and was given every attention of skilled physicians and nurses, but his life could not be saved.

Judge Patterson had been in ill health a long time and had been under the care of physicians for several months. His condition was known to be serious, but his friends could not realize, until a short time before his death, that the end was so near at hand.

Judge Patterson was in reality a product of Mills county and would have easily been voted one of the most useful and valuable citizens of the county. Born in Alabama, he came with his parents, the late Judge and Mrs. A. V. Patterson, to the Center City community when he was a small boy and grew to manhood in that community and was married there to Miss Mary Lou Graves, who preceded him in death by a good many years. While yet a young man he read law and was admitted to the practice in this city. Soon after his admission to the bar he was elected county attorney and served in that capacity four years, after which time his fellow-citizens called him to the duties of county judge and he had the distinction of having been elected to that office ten times.

He was a man of firm convictions and lofty ideals, but if he was possessed of one characteristic that stood out more prominently than any other in his long and useful career it was that of rugged honesty. In all of his official transactions and private dealings no human being ever had the temerity to attribute to him a dishonest act or purpose.

Many eulogies might be pronounced on his life and character, but the greatest monument to his memory is the fact that he reared a large family of sons and daughters to maturity, every one of whom is an honor to their parents and a credit to the community.

His four sons are: John, Carlos, Ben and Bert. His three daughters are: Mrs. Ray Priddy, and Misses Louella and Grace Patterson. He is also survived by one brother, R. H. Patterson of Mullin, and one sister, Mrs. Jas. M. Head of Clovis, N. M.

Important Session Of Commissioners

The commissioners court will hold a very important session next week, for aside from the transaction of routine business it will be necessary to select a county judge to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Patterson.

This is not the first experience of this kind the county has known, sad as it is. Judge Mohler died while filling the office of county judge in 1894 and Hon. Phil H. Clements was elected by the commissioners court to fill the term.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Woman's Missionary Society held a business meeting at the Methodist church Monday afternoon, transacting the usual routine business.

A letter from our community home in San Antonio was read asking for some supplies of goods—hose, sheeting and other things, and a committee was appointed to fix a box of offerings from not only missionary members, but all church members who are to help support these institutions of the church.

A donation of one dollar was sent to help with the Daily Vacation Bible school.

The society will sell pies and home made candy Saturday. Call Mrs. Harry Allen if you would like a pie, cake or candy.

The next meeting will be the World Outlook program and a social meeting also, so each member bring a friend. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Highsmith. REPORTER

MERRY WIVES CLUB

Mrs. Marvin Hodges was hostess to the Merry Wives club on Tuesday afternoon for the last meeting of the season, 1933-34. Her home was lavishly adorned with gorgeous vases of cut flowers, grown in her own garden.

Five interesting games of bridge was played. Mrs. Foster Brim scored high for club and cut favors went to Mrs. E. B. Gilliam and Mrs. Carl Keese.

A delicious salad plate was served to Mesdames Jim Cockrum, L. E. Miller, Robert Steen, W. W. Stevens, W. C. Dew, A. H. Smith, Jake Saylor and the above prize winners. XX

Class Banquet

The Junior-Senior classes of the Goldthwaite high school were entertained Tuesday night with a banquet by the P. T. A. in the Weatherby Auto Co. show room. It was largely attended and a most delightful feast was enjoyed. The large senior class of course took the foremost part in the entertainment and its president, Ted Kirby, served as toastmaster. He announced the program as outlined in the High School Herald in this issue and it was well carried out, while the music furnished by the Blue Rhythm band was well up to the standard of that organization.

The senior class is composed of thirty-six members, which is one of the largest classes ever graduated from this school.

Other features of the graduation exercises will be arranged by the members of the faculty the class and their friends, but certainly none will outclass the well-arranged and much enjoyed banquet of Tuesday night.

RECITAL

Miss Mary Bowles' expression class will give a recital at the public school auditorium Tuesday evening, May 15, at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

ERRATA

In the hog-corn tabulation the report of M. L. Jernigan should be 77 for 1932, instead of 67. For 1933 it should be 76 instead of 66.

OLD CLOTHES

The local relief office requests that those people in the county who have old clothes, bedding, shoes, etc., that they have no need for to turn such items over to the Relief Commissionary for distribution to those on the relief rolls. The funds which the county receives are so limited that it is not possible to buy such items in every case where they are needed, and up to date grants have been limited in practically every case to grocery orders and medical care. There are many families on the relief rolls who are sorely in need of clothes, and the relief office will welcome anything in the way of wearing apparel for men, women and children. Household necessities such as old sheets, comforts, sary to a wonderful advantage.

If those who have such things will phone the relief office and give their names and the time when such articles will be available, a representative will call at the home for them. There is a great need for this clothing and it is hoped that there will be a hearty response to this call.

UNDER A CODE

The Eagle, like all other printing establishments in the United States, is operating under a federal code, which prescribes the price to be charged for every character of printing and providing a severe penalty for failure to comply with the code. There are changes in some of the prices, although there is not a great difference. All prices are changed some and the Eagle intends to abide by the law in every detail. Under the code, which is nation-wide, printing for any area must be charged for at the code price, without connivance or evasion. The mail order job must be done at the same price as that done locally.

Goldthwaite Wallops Llano

Goldthwaite topped the league leading Llano Cowboys from their lofty perch at the top of the percentage column here last Sunday, when they handed the visiting rivals a sound 22 to 3 trouncing. After getting off to a 2 to 0 lead in the second inning, the Goldthwaite lads continually pounded the old pellet all over the field for a total of 25 safe bingles.

Earnshaw, hurling his first game of the season for Goldthwaite, limited the hard-hitting Cowboys to three scattered hits in six innings, and had the opposition well in hand from the start. His record of eight strikeouts in six innings will set a high mark for any Hill Country pitcher. Earnshaw was relieved at the end of the sixth inning by Clem Page, former Brownwood hurler, who carried on where Earnshaw left off, by striking out four more anxious Cowboys, bring the total strikeouts up to 12.

Nettleship was the big gun of the Goldthwaite batting order, driving out four singles and one double in six times at the plate.

Brooke Page was next in order with five hits, one of which was a circuit clout into the creek bottom in left field.

Heath duplicated Page's act in the eighth by driving the first ball thrown, far in the left field pasture, almost into the race track for one of the longest swats ever made in the local park.

Lefty Zapp, star Llano hurler, who defeated the Goldthwaite boys at Llano Sunday before last, started in the box for the visitors and was greeted with a barrage of 11 hits and eight runs before being sent to the showers at the end of the sixth inning. Zapp, the first loss of the season, started in the box for the visitors and was greeted with a barrage of 11 hits and eight runs before being sent to the showers at the end of the sixth inning. Goldthwaite goes to San Antonio next Sunday, May 13, for an engagement with the San Antonio Rangers. The following Sunday, May 20, Goldthwaite acts as host to the Bend Nuts here at Fair Park.

ARM AMPUTATED

The friends throughout the country of Blake Hudson are grieved to know that the accident with which he met in Fort Worth last week necessitated the amputation of his left arm between the shoulder and elbow. The operation was performed in the hospital in Fort Worth Tuesday and his brother, Dow, and three sisters, Mrs. Chloe Huddleston, Mrs. Lora Birdsong and Mrs. Lizzie Sykes, besides other relatives, were with him at the time. Indications are that he will soon be able to leave the hospital, as a message yesterday to the family stated he was feeling well. His friends every sympathize with him in the seriousness of the accident. It was caused through no fault of his own and was the result of a reckless driver side-swiping his car on the street in Fort Worth, crushing his left hand and arm.

The greatest battle that ever was fought, Shall I tell you where and when?

On the maps of the world you'll find it not; 'Twas fought by the "mothers" of men.

As Sunday is Mothers' Day we hope it is a beautiful one, because there will be some children who have mothers, who will plan to be together once more. There will be happy mothers and sad mothers on this day, as some mothers have crossed on the other side of the river Jordan. I hope every mother can enjoy being with their children on this Mothers' Day, as well as each child being glad they have a mother they can love.

There was a nice crowd out Saturday night to hear Bro. Swanner preach. Everyone enjoyed his sermon.

There was Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. Sunday at the regular time. The new officers are getting right down to business. The new literature came last week.

Last Friday night some of the friends surprised J. T. Robertson and wife and Mrs. Harvey Dunkle with a party. The crowd served lemonade and tea cakes.

Mrs. Dunkle is planning to go some time to where her husband has work, close to Archer City. Mrs. Dunkle has been with us so long we hate to see her go away. We wish for her and husband health and lots of work.

It is rumored that the wedding bells rang in this community the early part of the week. Read next week's letter.

This place has been robbed again of their lights at the school house. Some years back a thief stole two Coleman lanterns and a new Bible. Last week some thief took two coal oil lamps and two new brooms. "It is to be hoped they let their lights so shine that they can see how to sweep."

Several from here went to Big Valley to the San Sab county play last Wednesday night. The play was An Early Bird. It was real good. Friday some went to the eighth grade play. Those young boys and girls are starting out right. All of the program was fine.

Horace Cooke and James Nickols had very important business away from home all day Monday.

Homer Doggett and family and Miss Ethel Tyson, Loy Long and family from town fished down at the Landy Ellis place late Monday afternoon.

Mmes. Dunkle and Orr left Wednesday for Wichita Falls. Mrs. Dunkle will visit her husband, who is drilling a well not far from there. Mrs. Orr will visit her brother, Warren Davis, and family.

Ira Dewbre and Miss Oleta Daniel spent Monday in Brownwood.

Mmes. Robertson and Dunkle visited in W. A. Daniel's home on Monday afternoon.

Horace Cooke has a place in the Center City school for next year. A county and community should be proud of this young man. He has a degree and he has worked hard for it, and we are glad he can get a place where he can make use of his education.

This school hasn't elected a teacher yet. Some one applies every week. Teachers are plentiful, so we feel sure this school will get a teacher later.

I can't help it if my letter is long this week. People ought not to go so much and have so many entertaining parties.

Rayon Fabrics Feature Cinderella Ball Gowns

Important among gowns worn at the recent Cinderella Ball in New York were those designed by Zegorav, all in new rayon fabrics. For Princess Obolensky, this famous courier, who does his designing always in complete ensembles, chose a dead white rayon satin, fashioning it along extremely slim lines with a wave-like apron effect in front and a divided train. The front square neckline was accented with black rayon taffeta chrysanthemums. To further accent this costume, he created jewelry of gold seashell—featuring the key-hole shell motif. A black satin and silver bag and slippers of white and silver completed the ensemble.

Another outstanding costume created by Zegorav for this occasion was Eugenia Woodruff, was of dull white rayon alpaca, accented by gold wire jewelry in ring design. The jewelry is really not wire, but a filagree—a tiny soft lacquered cord, most effective on white. "The Guardsman" is what Zegorav calls another of his Cinderella Ball gowns—this one also is a white rayon fabric—chiffon with velvet flower designs—with accessories carried out in navy, gold and crystal. For this ensemble, he created a stunning headband of crystal and navy blue composition beads— with matching bracelet and top handle of handbag done in silver and blue in a three-tier skirt design. This ensemble he completed with slipper of navy blue and gold strappings with blue heels.

Fall Footwear Higher Cut Brown Is Favored Color

Fall footwear will be higher in cut and more diversified in line, according to the shoe designers, whose fall shoe and leather show was held in New York last week. An interesting new style note in fall footwear is the kid boot which is an inch or two lower than the hem of the skirt and trimly outlines the ankle—this in keeping with the trend for the new shorter daytime skirts. The Russian influence is noted in some of these fall boots. One black kid model is stitched and piped with red in vertical lines from toe to cuff, which is laced. There are shorter versions of the boot, called booties, which, in most models, just cover the ankle bone—these styles being carried out also in evening shoes in white kid. Brown is decidedly the most important fall shoe color, including such shades as Indian copper, a warm russet, maronna, a golden chestnut brown; French mahogany, a ruddy tone; Indes, fawn brown; and brown taupe. A dark green, known as tiller green, is also noted for high style fall footwear. There are also marine blue, gun and flint grey, and, of course, the staples black and white.

Beachwear Shows Influence of Many Lands

In displays of smart beachwear now featured in New York shops, one notes influences from many lands. There's the Mexican note in brief swim suits of warm yellow, with halter neck and bodice of orange and brown, carried out in unusual variety of fabrics—taffetas, jerseys, crepes and heavy knitted versions of soft woolsens, silks and rayons, often mixtures of two or more. And there's no end of smart accessories of Mexican inspiration—sandals, sombreros, beach bags and kerchiefs in vivid pottery colors. There are new beach ensembles carrying out the Chinese theme—knitted and crocheted swim suits in Chinese jade green, with lovely little beach coats with Chinese hieroglyphics and charming little flat Coolie hats in lacquered straw and fabrics. The Japanese note is observed in short fitted little jackets with brief flares below the waist and necklines high and closefitting in best Oriental manner. One notes, also, in these beachwear displays a hint of the Swiss in Tyrolean shorts and peaked hats.

Plaids Important in Evening Mode — Also Tinted Geometrics

Plaids are decidedly in the foreground of the summer style evening picture—plaid organ-dies, taffetas, lace and mesh. A smart New York shop is showing a net gown worn over a plain rayon taffeta in silver and black.

The gown is slim and sheath-like to the knees, where it is released in a fluffy fullness. It is worn with a girdle of silver and silver accessories. Tinted evening dresses, too, are also important, and among the smartest of style prescribed shades just now are Louis Seize blue and pink. Among these new dresses, one notes an ice blue rayon crepe with finger tip cape coat—also a candy pink chiffon. The new square décolletage characterizes many of the newest summer evening gowns.

Style Flashes

Kiviette—an outstanding New York designer of clothes for women both on and off the stage—has designed a stunning cocktail suit of brown lace—and another in printed pink net worn over navy rayon taffeta. She is doing a lot this season with pleats—including little pleated shoulder capes.

Mrs. Harrison Williams, whom Paris couturiers say is the "best dressed woman in America," has just returned from Europe, toggled out from head to foot in an ensemble of green and brown—all American clothes, she says.

Dealers are featuring smart summer shoes in new reptiles—sandals and step-in pumps in Python and Java lizard—all with scuffless heels and in lower stylings. These same scuffless heels distinguish all daytime shoes of this house.

Authority is featuring much brown and yellow in "summer landscape" furniture—also white iron dining sets for penthouse, garden or terrace. The Chinese influence as well as the modern is noted. Chairs, for instance, have removable seats done in leather. There's a brown metal frame glider with six cushions.

4,729 MILES ON A TOTAL OF FIVE QUARTS OF OIL! CONTEST BOARD AAA CERTIFIED TEST Here is the winner! —the car that covered 4,729 miles on a total of five quarts of oil. CONOCO THE "HIDDEN QUART" PRINCIPLE OF PENETRATIVE LUBRICATION PROVES GREATLY SUPERIOR IN COMPETITION WITH FIVE NATIONALLY KNOWN MOTOR OILS! CONOCO has a New and Improved Germ Processed Motor Oil. Its many advantages were so evident to us, that we arranged with the Contest Board, American Automobile Association, to test five other widely advertised and nationally known motor oils along with Conoco's new and improved oil in a daring "Destruction Test." By letting the results speak for themselves, we are able to present to America's motoring public for the first time proved facts of superiority, not empty claims. These six oils, with a single fill of five quarts, with no more oil added in six strictly new stock cars, were driven until the motor in each car was destroyed from lack of lubrication. Here are the results: the first oil failed at only 1713.2 miles; others failed in rapid succession. The best of the competing oils went only 3318.8 miles. . . while New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Oil completed 4729 miles. . . more than 3000 miles farther than the first oil to fail. . . and more than 1400 miles farther than the second best oil! The "Hidden Quart" had proved superior again! Conoco wrecked these motors to show you which oil has the lowest consumption and true economy. Drive into a Red Triangle Station, drain and fill with this new and improved oil. Whether your car is new or old, you need this extra margin of economy and safety. SCALLORN

We are needing rain on the grain and garden vegetation. Will Fox and sons, Hodge, Wilson and Gene, and wife and Elsie Leonard of Lampasas spent Sunday week in the R. D. Evans home. Albert Hereford and wife and daughter, Doris, also spent the day with home folks. Miss Marvel Ford, Rachel and Buck, Johnnie De and a boy friend from Austin spent the week end with their mother, Mrs. W. J. Ford. Miss Elsie Williams spent Friday night with Cecil Joe Kuykendall. They with John Samuel and Fleming Ford, attended the school entertainment at Chadwick school house. Frank Eckert barbecued a goat and a yearling Wednesday and invited his friends in to help celebrate his birthday, but the weather was unsettled, so they had to have dinner at his house. There were 69 of his friends and neighbors there. Everyone brought something good to eat. The tables were loaded with all kinds of good things to eat, pies and cakes by the dozens. Mrs. W. J. Ford cooked the birthday cake. There was enough left for that many more. All had a delightful day and wished Mr. Eckert many more happy birthdays. Those that were there were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ford and wife and two girls, Chester Ford and wife of Lampasas, Elsie Laughlin and wife, Mrs. Lora Maund, Mrs. Ed Evans, and baby, Mrs. W. J. Ford, Mrs. Hugh Nowell and baby, Mrs. Troy Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Tom El and grandsons, Mrs. Earl and Mrs. Ora Black, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hines and Miss Greda, John Kuykendall, Mrs. Cora Ford and two sons, Albert Canada, Lonnie Hill Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wise, who is in the sanitarium, but got to Copperas Cove and a bearing in the car burned out, so J. D. Ford had to come and bring them to Lampasas.

A Loss

One and all, we are grieved over our loss of two of our teachers of Big Valley—Miss Featherston and Mr. Hays—are leaving us this term. We have enjoyed the presence and teaching of these friend-teachers and hate to see them leave us. Our love and best wishes go with these teachers. May they ever remember the years spent in Big Valley with the affection with which we remember them.

Senior Reception

Miss Piper entertained the seniors last Tuesday night with a reception given in their honor. Everyone enjoyed to the fullest extent the interesting entertainment.

The decorations were green and gold with a white background. When we first arrived we registered in a green and gold registration book. Then various funny and exciting games were played. The house was kept in a continuous uproar, proving that there were some happy seniors even if it is examination week.

After the supply of games was exhausted, we went into the dining room where delicious refreshments were served. The dining table was decorated in the color scheme, laid with green and yellow dishes, with a vase of white roses and poppies as a center decoration.

The following were present: Senior class, Lovene McConal, Virginia Long, Ruth Warlick, Allene Stark and Alson Peck; faculty, Miss Piper, Miss Featherston, Mr. Hays and Mr. Hale; guests, Donald Mackie, Mack Padgett, Horace Cooke, Jack Owen, Virginia Dennard and Woodrow Long.

Miss Piper: What kind of a verb is "looked"?

Adell: An adverb.

Appreciation

The senior class of Goldthwaite high school is deeply in debt to the merchants and officers of Goldthwaite. It is with the deepest gratitude that we express our appreciation for your co-operation and help on our project. With your help, our dream of leaving a memorial to the school and town has been realized. It has been your help that kept us encouraged; so we have been able to "Strive for character; not for fame" as our class motto signifies. We thank you one and all; may we be able to repay you by making worthwhile citizens. SENIOR CLASS

Senior Class Prophecy

A few afternoons ago as Daffy and I started for a walk, we passed a cottage near which some children were blowing soap bubbles.

"Oh, do let us come blow some bubbles with you awhile," we said. They asked us to come into the yard, where we sat down on the grass.

With soap, water and quills the fun began. As I watched the bubbles rise, I noticed queer shapes and forms in them, and I grew so absorbed while watching that I forgot my companions.

The first picture I saw distinctly was a large school of fame located in Goldthwaite, for the benefit of the GHS students I looked closely and saw inscribed on the building in big black and gold letters the "class of 1934." Beneath the latter were the names of two of our classmates, Miss Virginia Mae Bowman and Miss Charline Brim. Virginia had achieved world renown on her new Latin textbooks. Charline's glory came from the fact that she was a teacher in GHS, using Virginia's books.

This bubble floated off and another attracted my attention at this time. It was small and delicately colored, but as it rose I saw a small cottage in the midst of a lonely green garden. Then who appeared at the doorway, but Mrs. Clark Huddleston and from the parted lips I could almost hear her whisper these words:

"From the mountain tops of ambition,
The cottage seems low,
But when love and duty calls,
Well—one must go."

The next bubble was only a row of buildings in a city, but I was not long in finding a place of interest in it. On a huge sign hanging in front of an office window were these words: Milton Cooke, Poetry, Verses and Rhymes to Order. Work Done While You Wait. Sentimental Verse Specialty.

My eyes wandered up the small crowded street and a Parisian shop caught my eye. The interior of the building was beautiful, while lovely girls walked around the room, modeling the dresses. I soon discovered the owner of this little shop to be no other than Aldele Welch. The models were six girls of the GHS—Furn Bryant, Bernice Traylor, Elizabeth Dalton, Christine Simpson, Lillian Summy and Beryle Fulton.

As that bubble burst another rose, swelled and was swept away by the breeze. As it floated off, I saw reflected in it a lovely bride, whom I recognized as Geneva Greathouse.

The next bubble came slowly paused a moment, then dissolved, but during the brief space of a second there was presented to my view a page of news notes of the High School Herald, dated March, 1940. Among the numerous items of interest, I recall these:

"With eager anticipation we are looking forward to the concert of be given here next month by Billie Weatherby, the famous high soprano, accompanied by Miss Mary Ellen Trent, a pianist of world-wide fame."

Miss Geneva Sparkman and Bobbie Boland, during a few years of successful teaching in West Texas, saved their income and invested in ranches and cattle. Their success since then has been so great that they are now known as the Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Boland brand. In the meantime they remain true to GHS.

The third item of interest said that Miss Hope Crews, after studying physical culture abroad, had come back to accept a position as athletic director in GHS.

The loyalty to GHS of the members of the class of 1934 was again in evidence, for in the next bubble, whom should I see but Rusty Burnett and Evelyn Gartman aboard a steamship, holding a Capella club meeting, while on their way to Europe. They planned many things and among these was one to advertise Mrs. Sullivan's music school thoroughly while they were abroad.

But look! Here comes a queer-looking bubble, all white and snowy-looking. Oh, yes! I see now—it is another bride and groom, too, this time, but he has gray hair! Oh, well, Jo Ligon always was a business woman. I guess he is rich.

The next bubble came very slowly, for it had wonders to reveal. In it I saw a clipping from a newspaper, which revealed this startling news: "Miss Thelma Jernigan, one of the society butterflies of New York society, was secretly married last week to a young and handsome, adventurer, formerly of this city. The happy young couple are now on their way to their new home, which is just a mile from the South Pole. Miss Jernigan is plucky, she was formerly a member of a gay, frivolous crowd. We congratulate the groom and wish them both happiness in their new home."

Did any of you ever hear of Lucile Hoover making a public speech? It seems that she has discovered her vocation. Far away in China, so the bubble said, Lucille had established a wonderful reputation as a lecturer. She was revealed to me as addressing a large and enthusiastic audience on patriotism.

After that vision passed, only a few bubbles arose, but these seemed to be merely a prelude to what was to follow, for just then there came a very large one. In it the massive structure of the school of fame was again seen.

This time my interest was centered upon a huge painting. Where had I seen this picture before? Oh, yes, I then recognized Alvin Caraway's tapestry, "The Good Shepherd." It seemed that this work of art had been awarded a blue ribbon of merit and Alvin was employed to stand by the painting and explain to the visitors that the dark objects following the man were sheep and that the green paint represented grass.

After that vision faded only a few little bubbles arose, but these were slowly formed. The dim outline of a building appeared, and later I could see the interior, too. By the shape of the building, I could realize that I was gazing on a scene in China.

A number of Chinese women were engaged in designing, cutting and fitting, while the Misses Naomi Langford, Madeline Dennis and Louise Evans, fashion leaders for the Chinese women, and the owner, Margaret Oden, of this establishment, was supervising the work and entertaining her friends and customers.

Another bubble very suddenly arose and, almost as suddenly disappeared, but I caught a glimpse of one of our classmates on the front page of a newspaper. The headlines announced that the young man in question—Mr. Glenn Featherston—was

MRS. R. J. HALLFORD

Mrs. R. J. Hallford, better known to friends here as Granny, died last Monday afternoon at 5:30, at Bangs at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Speck. She had been in ill health for several months, and her going was not unexpected, although she had not been dangerously ill until three weeks before the end came. She was buried Tuesday morning at Mukewater, Brown county, with Rev. Cooper of Brownwood and Rev. Rucker of Bangs in charge of services. All her children and brothers and sisters were present when she died. She had made her home in Center Point community for the past four years and is greatly missed by everyone.

Relatives have the sympathy of all.
A FRIEND

announced as the Democratic candidate for the presidency. It also said that Mr. Merlin Faulkner, one of the senators, was his hearty supporter and would begin immediately to lecture in his interest.

Well, of all things wonderful, but I must go on and tell the other vision.

With intense eagerness I blew again, a little fearful that my spell had been broken. This time my bubble looked so queer at first—all blue and white, with just a tiny speck in it. As it grew larger, however, the speck became more distinct, and I saw flying through space an airship with the label, "U. S. Mail." I had no trouble in recognizing Mikey Johnson piloting the machine and Harmon Frazier distributing those precious tokens of remembrance. Just then the machine made a swerve to one side to avoid collision with a skyscraper and the bubble was gone.

Another soon rose in its place and I was anxious to see what it would reveal. At first I could see no connection between this scene and my classmates. A ship, a number of sailors and a turbulent ocean. But soon a figure emerged from the waters and removed the diving helmet to examine his treasure stolen from the deep. A toss of the head and a smile of triumph revealed to my astonished eyes the fact that this brave seaman was no other than an old classmate, Nesbie, better known as J. N. Bayley. I remembered when he was in school, J. N. was always hunting bugs for biology.

In all walks of life, it seems the class of 1934 is represented. The next time I blew, the bubble revealed to me an interesting story. In it I saw a student holding in one hand a diploma from GHS and in the other, one from C. I. A. Miss Reba Dail Cornelius for she it was, had labored faithfully through her high school and college days and had won her Ph. D. from Yale by discovering a route to Mars.

Miss Deacra Shaw and Beulah Thompson, who were always thought a little adverse to literary work, had achieved marked success in other lines, it seems. The bubbles that came next showed me a scene in a large theatre. And, judging from the direction in which the opera glasses were all turned, it was hard to tell just who was receiving the most admiration, the operatic star, the young ladies in one of the boxes, whom we all know as Deacra and Beulah.

After that came the most interesting bubble of all. It was unusually large and contained so many different forms and colors. As I looked I discovered that I was once more seeing a basket ball game in GHS. It was in 1940, and all the old team of the class of 1934 were there, as we had planned in our senior year. And, strange to say, though not so strange, Ralph Swindle was high point man. The black and gold was winning and every member of the class was there to back and boost "the team."

My interest had grown from time to time and each moment I expected to see my fate revealed in the next bubble. My interest amounted almost to excitement when I realized I had seen the "future" of the last one of my classmates. Now, surely this is mine. I thought, as I blew the last one. Eagerly, anxiously, I watched it form and just as I leaned forward to catch the vision reflected there, a gust of wind carried it rudely away. Before I could blow another, Daffy called, "Come, Valerie, or we shall be late for our appointment."

JAPAN A MENACE

Most civilized nations are troubled over the attitude of Japan in world affairs and especially in regard to China and the Chinese interests. The recent attitude of Japan clearly indicates that the Japanese are preparing to create an Asia for the Asiatics, with themselves as the dominant race and the four hundred millions of Chinese as their principal supporters, supplemented by the lesser nations of Asia.

Napoleon referred to China as a sleeping giant and in that connection said: "God pity the world if China ever awakens." China may never awaken to a realization of her strength and power, but under the domination of Japan that nation may easily become the menace to the world of which Napoleon gave warning. When that time comes the long predicted war of the races will occur, the oriental east against the occidental west—and the western world will be far outnumbered. Japan's scheme is to gradually dominate all of China, with Japanese officers and statesmen in control. Then would come the creation of China into a great military machine, officered in the main by the Japanese. The plan calls for the bringing of India and Russia into the fold, since the population of Russia is half Asiatic.

One who sees the danger in the offing may be termed an alarmist or a pessimist, yet the danger is there, just the same and there is little doubt that the leading statesmen of this and other nations see it and are planning against these eventualities.

CURTAILING THE COTTON CROP

While there may be much criticism of the government's plan to restrict the production of cotton and limit the number of acres that may be devoted to that crop, there can be no doubt that the plan will work to the interest of the small farmowners—those of west Texas. The purpose of the undertaking is undoubtedly to help the small farmer and it will do it, provided he is the owner of his acres, but the tenant farmer in the densely populated sections appears to be the man who will suffer, or at least those charged with the administration of the adjustment have come to fear this result. They have discovered that in hundreds of instances tenants have been evicted and the entire plan is operating to their detriment. Doubtless those responsible for the inauguration of the plan had in mind the imposition of penalties on the large land owners, who have immense acreage devoted to cotton production, but they overlooked the fact that when the cotton crop was reduced and the retired acreage forbidden to be used for production of money crops, the landlord would have neither need or employment for the tenants who heretofore cultivated and harvested the cotton. This will all be adjusted in time, but the indications right now are that the tenants in the big cotton growing sections are in for a pretty bad time until such adjustment is reached.

The production and price of cotton concerns everybody in the Southland, regardless of land ownership or other connections with it. We are all interested in securing the best results in producing cotton. We know that a small crop brings more money for a large crop, therefore, the curtailing of the crop is beneficial to the country at large, if the tenant's interest can be properly protected.

NOT A FOUNTAIN BUT A PLAN

Ponce de Leon spent a lot of time searching for the fountain of youth and failed to find the mythical source of longevity. His trouble was that he lived too soon. Had he waited until our time to be born he would have had the advantage of the research of Professor Baker, one-time member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, who is telling the French how to rejuvenate themselves and live to be 200, all through the simple art of breathing properly. He is 75 himself and looks to be 40 or younger. "People die young and grow old because they breathe wrong," says the professor. "The secret is good for hundreds of years and so are the other vital organs. I have stumbled across certain discoveries in respiratory stimulation which permit of creating and preserving youth, strength and energy until the age of 200. Just a normal heart and a pair of healthy lungs are needed."

Why should any of us grow old and why should not the old become young again? Since the professor hasn't told us how to breathe properly, it is the solemn duty of our national authorities to yank him out of France and bring him direct to America, where he can tell the secret and give demonstrations to the people of his own nation.

INTEREST IN GOVERNMENT

There was never a time, perhaps, in American history when the people—all the people—took such vital interest in governmental affairs as they are now taking. Many changes have taken place in governmental policies since the world war and it may be these changes have excited this public interest, or maybe the war and its results aroused the interest to the present intensity. Whatever the cause, it is a fact that the ordinary citizen now knows more about governmental affairs and policies than he ever thought to know before. It is well that this should be so, for the humblest as well as the most important citizen should take interest in legislative proceedings and administrative enforcement. The fundamental system of government is undergoing a change—an evolutionary system of government is being enunciated and it is plain to see if you please—and some of the policies enunciated are plainly sound as experiments, hence it behooves every person with responsibility of citizenship to study closely the reason for the policies and their results, that he may be qualified to give support to such as are beneficial to the country and by constructive and intelligent criticism to bring about changes where the policies prove detrimental.

MOTHERS DAY

There are very few subjects on which all people can agree. The most important and imperative questions of national policy or statecraft are debated and there are advocates and opponents of every phase of these subjects. When the matter of liquor control or law enforcement is suggested there is always an opportunity for a discussion, or maybe a dispute and trouble, but when the subject of doing honor to our mothers is suggested all are agreed and all are ready to do homage to the memory of the sacred name "mother. Sunday will be Mothers' Day in America and every man, boy and girl should take part in doing honor to the motherhood of our nation and their own mothers individually.

MOTHERS' DAY

Austin, Texas, May 10—Provision for adequate care for mothers-to-be, as a practical means of putting into effect the honor and reverence due all mothers, is urged in connection with the nation-wide observance of Mothers' Day. The day will be celebrated on Sunday, May 13.

"Because of the precious memories the day arouses, each of us wishes to pay our own tribute of homage to the mothers of the past and present," Dr. H. N. Barnett, director of the bureau of child hygiene, said, "for their unflinching love and devotion, their self-sacrificing service, and their never ending influence on our lives. But those who are engaged in public health activities are think of the third group, also—the mothers to be—when we urge that Mothers' Day be used as a starting point for efforts to make motherhood safer for all expectant mothers—the mothers of tomorrow.

"When we talk about safeguarding the health of the mother to be and speak of adequate care for her, we mean that she should have regular, medical supervision before, during and after the baby's birth. The life and health of both mother and child are safeguarded by such care.

"The doctors throughout Texas are glad to give care of this kind to expectant mothers in their own practice, but many mothers and fathers do not realize the importance of such supervision during the period before the baby arrives, and neglect to secure it. And often both mother and baby suffer the consequences of this neglect."

A HEAVY DRAIN

One person out of every twenty in the United States is now on a federal payroll. There are six million federal taxpayers now. If we say there are 120,000,000 of us in all, that means 24,000,000 heads of families. Then it is really more serious than one in twenty.

Figuring in breadwinners of both sexes, the chances are that the ratio is about one in five. Four earners, that is to say, carry a tax eater on their backs.

Besides all that, we have the states, the counties, the cities, the townships, the school districts, the irrigation districts and so on. It probably figures down to two earners with a tax-eater on their backs. That is why the Journal believes that the public should be continually warned not to get into the habit of considering current temporary measures as permanent. Sooner or later they must end—as they ought to end. — Dallas Journal.

THE REALM OF SCIENCE

DISAPPEARING ISLANDS

Some very interesting information is given in a recent bulletin from the National Geographic Society concerning islands in the different parts of the world that have disappeared. It tells of one island that was discovered and photographed, but which could never be located afterward.

There are any number of small islands scattered through the different oceans that appear on old maps but when a new map is referred to they cannot be found. Such was the case of the island, Sarah Ann, which according to the maps was the only piece of land from which the eclipse of 1937 would be seen. However, when later maps were referred to Sarah Ann was nowhere to be found.

There is a certain island not far from Hawaii called Malden, which students believe has at some time been much larger or even a part of a continent. This island is very small, barren of vegetation, and has no water except one little pond. There are ruins there which students hold were erected during a civilization that could not possibly have existed on an island so small. — Selected.

DRILL FOR WATER ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Providing a water supply for domestic use for the little colony of staff members of the W.J. McDonald astronomical observatory on Mount Locke, in the Davis Mountains, seventeen miles from Fort Davis, has not been without its difficulties. Two proposals were considered originally. One was to conduct water to the observatory site from a spring on the north side of Spring Mountain through a 3-inch pipe. The distance is several miles. The other plan, which is now being successfully accomplished was to drill wells near the summit of Mount Locke. The first of these wells was finished recently. The water stratum was struck at a depth of 218 feet and the well pumps at the rate of 3456 barrels daily. This well is located 500 feet below the surface site of the observatory building, the latter being approximately 6800 feet above sea level. A. M. Barnes, who drilled the well, has been awarded the contract to drill a second well.

Good progress is being made in constructing the observatory building, according to information received. The concrete foundation has been poured and other work accomplished. — Texas Outlook.

The index of dairy farmers' prices for 1933 was 69 compared with 140 in 1928.

The federal government is sending more than 70,000 young men and women through college (under the Emergency Relief program) at a cost of more than $1,000,000 a month.

The average American is figured to have exactly $42.70 in his pocket because money in circulation increased in March and April.

More than 2,800,000 new radio sets were sold in this country in 1933, 2,000,000 of which were replacements of old sets, bringing the total of homes equipped with receiving sets to 18,000,000.

The world war cost the United States 126,000 dead, 234,000 wounded and a cool $51,000,000,000 in filthy lucre.

Of the 60,000 motion picture theatres in the world, 41,000 are equipped for sound pictures and 19,000 of them are in the United States.

Foreign debts to this country can be paid in only three ways—in gold, in goods or in services. America spends about $1,500,000,000 a year to care for 300,000 criminals and only $1,700,000,000 to educate 26,000,000 children.

Ten or eleven million bushels of seed corn will be planted in this country despite the corn acreage reduction program.

THE LAW OF AVERAGE

The law of percentage is what encourages all who solicit for the sale of goods. The average peddler, or subscription collector, has long learned that a flock of unprofitable calls will be offset by a number of good sales. He realizes that he "gets" a very definite percentage of the prospects upon whom he calls.

The merchant who advertises should know this truth if he expects to get the most for his money. If he places his advertising campaign before 500 readers, other things being equal, he will get half the response that would be his if he contacted one thousand readers. There is no magic to it, the law of percentage is pure mathematics.

However, in newspaper advertising there is another factor that makes certain newspapers more valuable than others. A newspaper may, through the years, build up prestige and win the high regard of a buying class of readers. It may not have the numbers of another newspaper, when mere subscribers are counted, but it will easily outpull its competitor in securing results.

Whenever an advertiser can secure a newspaper, possessed of both the largest circulation as well as the class circulation, that is what sensible merchants would call rare good fortune. — Heron Lake News.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

VIEW OF THE NATION'S PRESS ON TOPICS OF INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE

JAPANESE TRADE THREAT

Great Britain's notice to Japan that new restrictions will be placed on Japanese trade in British controlled territory, will bring to general world attention the strong drive which Japan is making for the industrial markets of the world. The Japanese obviously have set out to undersell all other nations. It is said they have placed shirts on the London market at 25 cents each comparable to those offered by British manufacturers at $1.25, and that nothing save prohibitive tariff barriers keeps Japanese silk goods from displacing the French made articles in France.

The devaluation of the yen has had much to do with the Japanese trade drive, since it enables the Japanese merchants to sell cheaper in foreign markets while being forced to no lower costs at home. However, this device is not altogether an asset, Japan must buy a large proportion of her raw products abroad, all her cotton, iron, coal and oil, and she must pay many more yen for them since this same yen has been depreciated by 60 per cent. The device works, too, to give her fewer goods produced abroad in exchange for the goods which she sends abroad. In the end the policy may prove uneconomic, but for the present it is alarming every other exporting nation in the world.

If the Japanese can produce industrial goods at much cheaper cost than other nations, if their workers, living cheaply and laboring long hours, can produce as efficiently as the workers of countries where living standards are higher and working hours shorter, then it appears that these latter nations are faced by a most serious problem. Even if the Japanese threat is but a temporary one it can cause large losses to other nations in the diversion of markets from them.

Apparently Britain is out to save her own markets even at the expense of losing Japanese markets, which is bound to follow suit, and the United States may have to do the same. Possibly, however, we may come to a workable agreement with her. If the president is granted the tariff-bargaining powers which he is now asking, it so happens that we are the heaviest takers of Japanese silks, while Japan is a large buyer of American cotton. The two things come into competition very little, thus a natural interchange is set up between the two countries. It would seem that we could retain this without having to jeopardize other markets.

In any case, just as Japan's Chinese policy gives us much to watch and think about. Just how serious is the threat of this little nation of brown people, and what shall we do to meet it? — Houston Chronicle.

A GOVERNMENT LOTTERY

The suggestion, seriously advanced in some quarters, of a national lottery as a means of raising revenue for the federal government may prove a valuable one just now if it serves to impress us, by its very absurdity, that the pendulum of social behavior is exhibiting a tendency to swing beyond the liberalism toward which it has been directed lately and to approach a sort of intellectual profligacy. While the lottery scheme has elicited no official endorsement in Washington, one of local character has actually become a political controversy in New York and is being vigorously contested in the legislature.

Although proponents of this unsavory proposition may cite all sorts of statistics as to its mercenary benefits, and while opponents may counter with figures of proportionate weight, the whole idea should be dismissed simply because it is foreign to the dignity and gentility of American life. Even if a national lottery were a panacea for our financial ills, which it most assuredly is not, the principle of building the structure of government upon a foundation of human frailty rather than intelligence is certainly not consistent with American idealism. — Texas Weekly.

MEDICAL PEONAGE

The family physician who brought kindness, ready sympathy and unselfish service in large quantities along with his pills and potions, has been passing from the American scene; more and more his place has been taken by a complex mechanism, a highly departmentalized professionalism, with impersonal efficiency its dominating sentiment. Now there is a tentative plan for a broad organization of "state medicine", as recently outlined by the secretary of the Milbank Memorial Fund of New York. This plan, utterly impersonal, purposes that the entire American population—including that 62 per cent which the fund's spokesman says receives no medical, dental or eye care of any kind—shall be coerced into supporting financially and yielding physically to the domination of a group of state employed medical men.

It is difficult to understand why every citizen—including those who by choice would adhere to a rival school, to no school, or who depend upon prayer for healing—should be compelled to comply with such a regulation. Incidentally, it is strangely foreign to the legend of the family doctor, who worked under the motto, "To each according to his need; from each according to his means."

Yet it is just this point which the Milbank fund stresses as its reason for proposing compulsory state medicine. The complexities of modern medical practice, it is claimed, have elevated its cost above the means of many who wish it. Therefore, what could be simpler than for everyone to contribute his proportionate share of the total cost of medical aid, thus minimizing the per capita cost according to the well-known practice of insurance?

If those who feel they wish material aid in their illnesses were left free to enter or refrain from participation in such a scheme, no criticism could be leveled at it. But, in order to make the plan thoroughly effective, says the fund's secretary, it must be made compulsory upon all. But will that 62 per cent of the people who have not felt the need of medicine sufficiently to seek its aid, altho it is offered without cost in countless hospitals and clinics—permit themselves to be saddled with medical peonage? — Christian Science Monitor.

TIBETAN MINDS

Most Americans consider Africa to be just a jungle show where Hollywood producers go when they want material for wild animal thrillers. To the European nations, however, it is potentially an invaluable outlet for their foreign trade, and it looms large in present-day political discussions. Africa is a continent three times the size of Europe, but with only one-fourth the number of inhabitants. It could produce inexhaustible raw materials, minerals and edibles. If it were taken properly in hand, yet it has no more than 4,000,000 white settlers, most of whom are in French North Africa and Cape Colony, with the rest scattered widely through an immense area.

The natural resources of Africa possibly have been held in reserve by nature herself. The tireless exploitation of the European and American continents by their own peoples is reducing the good things made and provided for the uses of mankind by the Creator. The Asiatics have been less wasteful because they had less taste for exploitation, fewer illusions of grandeur. Africa probably is the last continental treasure house. It will be subjugated, in time, by those who can not be happy without subjugating something. Its trees will be cut down, its mines dug out, its water courses dammed, its wild life exterminated. While all that is going on its trade will be important to all the world, and to itself. Those in our country who believe in shutting out the light from the foreign sun, specializing in domestic sunshine, will find it difficult to look on contentedly while the exploiting nations are reveling in the presently potential riches of Africa. INCOME OF FARMERS

The department of agriculture estimates the cash income of American farmers last month at $417,000,000. This includes both income from the sale of farm products and that received in the form of cash bounties paid by the AAA under its various crop-curtailment plans. The latter item, however, constitutes only a small fraction of the total, since bounties in March amounted to only $9,000,000. This is a much smaller sum than that distributed by the government in other recent months and is far below the $40,000,000 carried in the budget as the average monthly outlay of the AAA. No special significance is to be attached to this, however. The government has continuing contracts with nearly 2,000,000 farmers, and payments will doubtless increase later.

Since March of last year witnessed the lowest level reached by farm prices during the whole postwar period, comparison of current revenues with those of a year ago are highly favorable. Total cash income for March of this year shows an increase of no less than 51 per cent over the estimate for March, 1933. All of the main divisions of farm products have greatly increased their earning power. Grains brought in $42,000,000 last month compared with $14,000,000 in March of last year. Income derived from cotton increased 90 per cent and gains ranging from 20 per cent to nearly 50 are shown for proceeds from the sale of livestock, dairy products, fruits, and vegetables, poultry and eggs.

All this would constitute a clear gain for the farmer and a long step toward re-establishing his "parity" with industry, if the prices of goods he buys had meantime stood still. It is a familiar fact, however, that the cost of agricultural machinery, fertilizer, building materials and other industrial products has also advanced since March, 1933. Fortunately, from the farmer's point of view, the increase here has not been quite so rapid as the increase in the market value of his own commodities. Weighing one group of goods against the other, the department of agriculture estimates that there has been a net gain of 20 per cent in farm purchasing power during the last year. — New York Times.

AIR MAIL AWARDS

Awards announced by the Postmaster General on the bids for handling air mail routes indicate a reorganization to a large extent in the air mail map, and considerable shuffling of the handlers. Apparently the government has stuck to its guns in insisting on internal reorganization by companies relieved in February of their existing contracts. In several cases, contracts were regained by the old companies under the new conditions, but there is a heavy percentage of change.

Until the complete program is worked out with new lines and final bids awarded where earlier ones have been tentatively held up, it is difficult to form an estimate of how complete the change has been. But it is already apparent that stockholders in the original companies are certain to suffer some losses, both where service with the mail has been curtailed and where it has been completely taken away. In the latter event, it is probable that the companies involved will have to go out of business.

As far as service is concerned, up to the cancellation of their contracts, the old companies had built up a completely efficient transcontinental system, had earned public confidence, and leave an enviable record for the industry to shoot at. But it will probably be equaled and finally surpassed in a highly competitive game, where the best survive. — Dallas News.

Thousands of years to lock itself in, to shut out all but Tibetan stars and moons, to sanction only Tibetan sunshine. But even Tibet is giving way to gate-crashing alien ways. Americans with Tibetan minds will find it impossible to lock the doors against all who come to sell and open them only to those who come to buy. — Galveston News.

Commemorating the 98th anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto, Decker Bostick of this city presented to D. S. (Dud) Barker of Alpine, the pistol used to capture the famous Santa Anna in the battle which gave Texas her freedom from Mexico. The pistol was carried by Bostick's father, Siron R. Bostick, when the self-styled "Napoleon of the West" was found hiding in the swamps along the San Jacinto creek on the morning of the day following the battle. The elder Bostick, with two or three soldiers, thought at first that they had captured a private soldier, but learned on entering the camp with their captive that it was "el presidente" himself, and that he had exchanged clothing with a private. The old pistol is a 44 army model made at Hartford, Conn., by the Colt's Patent Fire Arms Mfg. Co.—News.

His parents rushed him to a physician here in town who gave immediate treatment and it is believed that the burns, while extremely painful to the little fellow, will not prove serious.

Albert Bullion mysteriously escaped serious injury Sunday in a car accident. He was coming home alone from Kempner and was driving at a good rate of speed, when he struck an elevated culvert about five miles east of Lampasas. This means that the pay allotted Comanche county farmers for their part in the 1934 cotton average reduction will be lowered more than a fourth.

Accessories Important For the Dressing Table

WITH the return to a style of formality in decorative schemes, dressing table ornaments and especially toiletries, have assumed new importance in the bedroom. Simple, yet luxuriant furnishings, carried out in details as well as in fabrics and furniture, are definitely replacing the cottage type of rustic simplicity, lately in favor. The above illustrated set of toiletries is representative of this trend, for it is a replica of the costly French enamelware known as Clois-

sons. This set, which bears the name of the original design, is actually, however, made of pyroxilin plastic, and while it exactly simulates in finish and color the original French, it has the practical advantage of not cracking or chipping. This design is particularly lovely in an authentic or modernized bedroom of French style, but because of its daintiness and beautiful finish, would be a decorative asset to any boudoir.

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

FIRST GAME OF SPRING

The Goldthwaite ex-high school football players, who will be eligible for the team next year, will play a football game this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Those who will probably play in the game today are Ted Kirker, Ed Swindle, Bobby Boland, Cliff Huddleston, Allen Campbell, Buffalo Huddleston, Roger Smith, Ed Yarborough, Bill Todd, Bally Rudd, Francis McDermott, Earl Harvey, William Lee Johns, Johnson, Johnny Mason, Benningfield, Voyd Lee Doggett, Kenneth Cockrum, Clark Davis, Fred Soules, Edward Smith, Jack Bradley and Jack Harris.

Admission for this game will be free. It will be well worth your money. It is your last chance to see these ex-football boys in action.

There will be no division in 1934 this year, as there has been in the previous years. There has been an eastern and a western division in the district, but this is now abolished and the district will be in one conference.

All of the football dates have not been fixed yet for the coming year. Following is a list of games scheduled for Goldthwaite: Ballinger, there; Winnetka; there; Coleman, there; Brady, here; Santa Anna, here; San Saba, here; Lometa, here.

We have several boys from the rural schools coming in to try out for the team next season. We appreciate these boys coming and we will try to help them in every way possible. That also goes for anyone else wishing to come in.

Don't forget today's game.

LIVE OAK

BAR RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, all that is mortal of Judge L. E. Patterson is at rest and the great spirit of this good and much loved man has returned to God, who gave it:

Therefore, we, the members of the Mills County Bar, and others who practice before it, tender to his family our sincere and heart-felt sympathy in this bereavement.

Judge Patterson was reared in the Center City community, in Mills county, Texas, and was admitted to the Bar by the district court of this county on September 23rd, 1896, and at once entered upon the active practice at this Bar, and continued in the private practice until November, 1898, when he was called into service by the citizens of the county, by electing him to the office of county attorney. In this official capacity, by his faithful conscientious and fearless discharge of his duties, according to the truest ideals of justice, he won the confidence of the people of the county to such an extent that they called him to the office of county judge in 1900, in which official capacity he served until November, 1910, when he retired to engage in the private practice of his profession.

In his professional capacity, he was governed by the highest standard of ethics and his relation with his co-attorneys, his clients and the court was ever characterized by the most honorable principles.

However, he was not permitted to remain in the active practice of his profession, because the people again called him into service at county judge, in November, 1920, and he held that office until November, 1930, when, on account of his failing health he retired until called back again by the citizenship in November, 1932, and continued in the office of county judge until the date of his death, May 9th, 1934.

As a citizen, he was of the highest and noblest type and as a friend he was ever tried and true. To know him was to love and trust him supremely.

In his passing, Mills county has lost one of its most useful, trusted and beloved citizens and officers and the Mills County Bar, one of its most useful, honorable, trustworthy and faithful members and we deplore his untimely death and rever his memory. E. B. ANDERSON,
