

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dew spent Sunday with relatives in Temple.

S. J. Casey and family of Mullin were visitors in Goldthwaite Sunday.

Mrs. S. M. Casey of Mullin was a pleasant caller at the Eagle office Saturday.

W. L. Johnston was here from Brownwood Monday, looking after business matters.

Mrs. Robert Kirby of South Bennett community made the Eagle an appreciated call Saturday.

Supt. Tolbert Patterson of Mullin had business in the county capital the early part of the week.

S. R. Logan was one of our farmer friends who made the office a visit the early part of the week.

Mrs. J. W. Roberts of Rock Springs was in the city shopping Tuesday and made the Eagle a short call.

J. Y. Tallos of Goldthwaite has returned home after medical treatment at Central Texas hospital.—Brownwood Bulletin.

The many improvements around Goldthwaite and thruout the county give strong proof that the depression has been forgotten.

Commissioner J.G. Egger came over from Hanna Valley last week end and reported corn planting already in progress in his community.

Bradley Guthrie of Mullin, a former school teacher at Star, Priddy and other places, was a business visitor to the city the early part of the week.

J. W. Stewart returned the first of the week from Woodward, in southwest Texas, where he spent some time visiting friends and had a delightful stay.

J.L. Stewart, the accommodating rural mail carrier out of Caradan, was a business visitor in the metropolis last week end and made the Eagle an appreciated call.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Guynes of Rock Springs were pleasant callers at the Eagle office Monday. Their kind expressions of appreciation of the Eagle will inspire us to greater efforts to publish a readable paper.

Prof. Lee Tesson, superintendent of Pompey Creek school, and J. T. Gilbreath, member of the school board of that community, were business visitors to the city Saturday and made the Eagle a short call.

W. L. Stuck, one of the prominent citizens of the Lake Merritt community, has ordered the Eagle sent to his son, W. E. Stuck, who married last week and is making his home in the Ogles community, in Lampasas county.

Burch is prepared to clean and press garments for any member of the family and takes orders for made to measure garments. See his samples for Fall and Winter Clothing.

Waller Elliott of Mullin, one of the best known and most proficient band teachers in this part of the state, made the Eagle a short call last week end. Mr. Elliott has a music class financed by the federal government which requires a part of his time and also instructs a great many other pupils.

A number of people from different parts of the county have reported fruit trees blooming the past several days. The blooms will be all right if there is a frost, but there is a belief that there will be frost the same day in April that thunder was heard in February. In that case, we will have frost April 8.

ROCK SPRINGS

There wasn't any religious services here Sunday or Sunday night.

I received several bouquets while in town Saturday, as to not having any letter in last week's paper. My mind wasn't working along letter writing.

All of my sick folks are up once again. It is a shame that children can't have measles and such while they are small, when you can make them mind. Those who didn't take the measles this time were not in style. I hope everybody is over them by now and able to be about their work.

The time has been set again to ordain the two deacons Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

My, now everybody has heard about our oil well. We still have a deep well, but no oil. Some never did have any faith in getting oil, so I guess they were not disappointed.

Mrs. Glenn Nickols and Mrs. J. O. McClary helped Mrs. August Kauhs hang paper Monday.

Mmes. Roberts and Circle went to Mrs. John Edlin's at Center Point Thursday afternoon to the club. They helped to quilt. They also called on Mrs. J. R. Davis. Louie Kemp and Wayne Davis visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. McGowan, at Rabbit Ridge last week.

The air was full of music in this community Saturday night. The Nickols enjoyed the music over the radio. Some enjoyed music in John Roberts' home. Some of the neighbors enjoyed music in Marion Robertson's home at Rabbit Ridge. This place lacks a whole lot of being dead when it comes to music.

I believe all the measles cases are well and back in school. Every child out here who was in school, except three, had to have the measles. School opened on Monday.

Joe Roberts and family moved on his father's farm last week. We welcome them in the community.

Joe Davis and family visited in J. C. Stark's home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Faulkner spent Thursday afternoon in the Nickols home.

Rudolph Cooke and Joe Almos Davis played croquet at Frank McDermott's Sunday afternoon.

W. A. and Rudolph Cooke, Joe Davis and Fred McClary visited Sunday afternoon in the J. C. Stark home.

J. F. Davis and wife took Granddad Davis to his home in Brown county last week.

Monday seemed to be the day for the farmers and wives to go to town to do their shopping.

Landy Ellis and wife helped to care for the sick across the river last week.

Sherrill Roberson went to Lometa Sunday morning to join three of his boy friends, who had invited him down to sing with them at the Baptist church there Sunday morning. I am sure the quartet was fine. I hear they are to sing at Goldthwaite Sunday morning. Let's go hear them.

James and Shirley Nickols wish to thank their friends and neighbors for their kindness while they had the measles. They appreciated the chickens, fruit and drinks, which were brought them.

J. T. Robertson would be pleased if the party who borrowed his mail box would bring it home.

Joe Roberts and wife went to town Monday morning. They came back by Rabbit Ridge and fixed Jesse Lowe's radio. It is funny, when these radios get out of fix, a doctor is called.

Marion Jetton left Monday morning for Oklahoma, after an extended visit in the J. T. Robertson home.

There were six at school Monday—five boys and one girl. There were two new pupils, Beryl and James Roberts.

J. O. McClary and wife moved into their love nest last week. Misses Carroll and Tyson and Dwight Nickols and wife sat until bed time in the Nickols home one night last week.

Otis and Besse Hutchings from Center Point enjoyed the radio music with Mrs. Nickols and family last Wednesday night.

Lost 20 Lbs. of FAT In Just 4 Weeks

A St. Louis, Mo., lady wrote: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs, until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—a quarter pound jar lasts 4 weeks—you can get Kruschen at any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT

Reports from 1520 representative Texas business establishments indicate a total of 72,493 workers employed during the week ended February 16, a decline of 1.6 per cent from the corresponding week in January, but a gain of nearly 1 per cent over the similar week last year, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. Total payrolls for the week aggregated $1,641,000, gains of 1.7 per cent over the comparable week in January and 7.4 per cent greater than the corresponding week of February, 1934. Industries showing gains in the number of workers over both the previous month and February of last year were: Brick, tile and terra cotta; cotton compresses, flower mills, furniture manufacturing, hotels, ice cream factories and millwork.

J. T. Stark, Shirley Nickols, Mrs. Maggie Traylor and children enjoyed music furnished by Ab and Roy Hill Thursday night in the R. C. Webb home. Mrs. Ab Hill and children were also there.

Marvin Spinks from Rabbit Ridge went hunting with Glenn and Philip Nickols one night last week. They reported lots of fur and excitement.

Thursday, March 21, is the day for cemetery working out here. Come with plenty to work with and plenty of lunch.

Joe Roberts hauled cement Tuesday for his father. It is rumored Mr. Roberts is going to build a new house soon.

Mmes. Joe Roberts, Glenn and Eula Nickols went to the S. E. Q. club Tuesday in Mrs. Sam Carroll's home in town.

Shirley Nickols' first visit away from home, after he got over the measles, was Monday afternoon in the Webb home.

Feels a Lot Better When Black-Draught Relieves Constipation

From many states come reports like the following from Mr. W. M. Henderson, of Jasper, Fla.: "I have been taking Theodor's Black-Draught twenty years. I take it for constipation that gives me a dull, tired, aching feeling, and I have headache, too. Black-Draught relieves me of this trouble. After a few doses, I feel as good as new. I keep it in my home. I have a big family. When one of us is ailing from constipation, we take Black-Draught and almost always feel a lot better. It has been worth its weight in gold to my family." ... Said in his package, "Get Theodor's Black-Draught."

Carlot shipments of automobiles to Mexico through Laredo amounted to 799 carloads in 1934, the largest total since 1930, according to a report of the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico.

An artist was arrested Saturday and charged with three others, with stealing the $107,000 worth of gold, which was mysteriously spirited out of the heavily guarded strong room of the Croydon, England, aerodrome last Tuesday.

Use of part of the $2,812,000,000 profit from devaluation of the dollar to retire a small segment of the rapidly mounting public debt was announced Sunday by the treasury. The action calls for retirement of outstanding bonds against which national banks may issue their own currency. It involves, however, $642,000,000 in the so-called free gold, which accrued because of the reduction in the weight of the metal in the dollar.

An erosion control program for the entire state of Texas calling for expenditure of $100,000,000 over a period of ten years has been mapped and prepared for presentation as soon as the federal government makes definite appropriations of funds for erosion control on a national scale. In addition to asking $10,000,000 annually, the plan also called for the utilization of fifty civilian conservation corps camps through the thirteen definitely selected areas for a period of ten years.

A. T. Pollock of Campbell, Mo., says, as permanent chairman of the NRA in his district, he received and filed over 400 codes. He traveled much, paying his own expenses. The other day Pollock decided to return to his job in an automobile factory, but the company informed him he would have to get permission from Washington because of his position with the NRA. He wrote straight to Donald Richburg and Saturday received a reply from Washington. There is no record of his appointment, it said, or of any of his work.

State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson Saturday announced that special funds had been made available to the Texas relief commission by the FERA for making emergency seed loans to farmers for spring planting of commercial and forage crops. Loans will be made in all cases of emergency regardless of whether the applicant is on relief rolls or not. Johnson said it was pointed out, however, that no loans would be made to farmers able to obtain credit through usual commercial channels. Loans not to exceed $50 will be available for non-relief clients.

The filing of the will of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Saturday night revealed that he bequeathed more than $300,000 to the government, returning to it a large share of the salary he received for his twenty-nine years on the supreme court bench. Judge Holmes' estate was estimated $568,000. He specified no particular use for the money, so under the law it will go into the treasury's miscellaneous receipts. He received about $490,000 in salary for his service in the supreme court. Thus he returned to the nation about two-thirds of that amount.

Henry Clay McEldowney, who as president of the $300,000,000 Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, Pa., was listed last year by the government as the highest salaried banker in America, died Saturday in Atlantic City. The government reported his salary as $180,000 for 1934. The son of a house painter, McEldowney went to work as a messenger at the Pittsburgh National Bank of Commerce in 1887, directly after graduating from high school. He had worked to the position of assistant cashier when on June 1, 1900, Andrew W. Mellon and his close friend, Henry Clay Frick, had him named president of Union Trust.

Long started out being a candidate for president because of his displeasure with the Roosevelt administration. He dropped that to consider running for governor of Louisiana, and then switched to the senatorial race as result of one of his spirited debates with the Democratic leader. Long intimated he might invade Arkansas to oppose Robinson for re-election. Sessions of the senate have been pepped up by the frequent and more or less personal exchanges between Long and Robinson and other Democratic senators.

Track and Field Events

Gather round, people, gather round. We just this minute got the latest dope on the Eagle track men. They are fast and furious, but whether or not they will "bear down" Friday, just depends. The boys will go to the district, win or lose, but all but about two—maybe three of them are in tip-top shape. The following men will compete in the various events:

100 yard dash, Red Yarborough and Earl Harvey.
 220 yard dash, George Johnson.
 440 yard dash, G. Johnson and George Ballard.
 880 yard run, McDermott and Jim Weathers.
 One mile run, Elwaine Doggett and George Johnson.
 High hurdles, Red Yarborough.
 Low hurdles, Red Yarborough, and Elwaine Doggett.
 High jump, Red Yarborough and Elwaine Doggett.
 Shot put, Carrol Berry, Clyde Taylor.
 Broad jump, Clyde Taylor and Jim Weathers.
 Discus throw, J. Weathers.
 Pole vault, Clyde Taylor.
 Javelin throw, C. Taylor and J. Weathers.
 Mile relay, Red Yarborough, Clyde Taylor, Francis McDermott and Jim Weathers.
 As this line-up is not official it will probably have a few changes today and Saturday. You will notice Earl Harvey's name appears only once in the list. This young man seems to be the fastest in six counties, but is just recovering from the measles. He may do some light sprinting today, but probably very little. We expect honors from him in the district meet.

We have not received a final report from the tennis courts yet, but it is likely that F. McDermott and J. Bradley will represent Goldthwaite high in the doubles.

Somebody's going to be surprised in indoor baseball. Since we want a large crowd at the different track events, we will not give the final results. Let's all come out and enjoy it. May the best man win!

Basketball Lettermen

Coach Cloninger has reported six lettermen from last season in basketball. Those qualified to receive letters are: Captains Voyd Lee Doggett and Clyde Taylor, James Weathers, Allison Peck, Elwaine Doggett, Carrol Berry.

Taylor and Peck are the only players who will graduate and it is probable that there will be a snappy little team next year.

Owing to the fact that so little interest is taken in basketball the boys will not receive sweaters. Basketball is a good game and we hope that the boys have not played and worked without some benefit to them. Those boys who did not make the team will undoubtedly find their training useful.

The Observer

By Vergil Howard

It will be a long time before the student body forgets the spectacular football playing of the senior I'm going to describe for you this week. He has light brown hair, grey eyes and medium complexion. He is about 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs about 167 lbs. He is well liked by the students, and seems to do pretty good work in school. He played football under former Coach Mayfield and Coach Cloninger and was a real player. He is on the list for graduation.

(The Observer will describe two senior boys instead of one, as it has been doing.)

Sure, he's a senior this year. He said he could hardly believe it, because he had only been five or six years trying to graduate.

"I've been here so long that the old school seems like home to me," sighed the senior, I'm describing for you. "I kinda hate to leave it, too," he added.

He has black hair, gray-green eyes, weighs about 135 lbs. He is about six feet tall. He is kinda quiet, unless he happens to be off with a group of boys, then he has the loudest mouth in the bunch. He happens to be one of those public speakers, in fact, he is one of your future "congressmen."

Who are these two seniors?

The Spy
 By Doyle Wilson

The other morning I was looking down on the campus from the second floor of of the school building, and I saw two of the prospective graduates talking to each other. I thought may be they would be of interest to you, so I believe I will describe them to you, as they looked to me.

To begin with, let us run over all that they have in common. They are neither natives of Goldthwaite, but come from one of the neighboring communities. They are both seniors, both would like to be in the senior play. They have pleasing personalities and they are good students. One of the girls has blue eyes and light brown hair and she is really pretty, too. She has a quiet disposition, but she is very friendly.

She is about 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs about 95 or 100 pounds.

The other girl has blue eyes and light brown hair, but it is not the same color brown as the girl's just described. She is about 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs about 115 lbs. She is a pretty girl and as to which one is the prettiest, I will leave to your judgment.

Who are these girls? Remember they are both country girls and are both friendly and both have made many friends in Goldthwaite.

That the Hauptmann case has cost the federal government $629,000 from the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, through February 12, 1935, when the jury was discharged.

WISDOM WITH YEARS

Tribute to an office boy aged 50 and a stenographer-secretary who is a widow of 40, is gallantly paid by a correspondent in the New York Times. Cheerfully referring to his small business as one which has "barely limped through the depression," and in which "everybody has to play all positions and hit the ball hard," he feels it would be unjust to refrain from acknowledging the "fine work" of these two people.

Humorously relating some of his experiences with the genius office boy of adolescent years, he writes appreciatively of the courtesy and intelligence with which telephone inquiries are now answered by his more mature office helper, and of his promptness and general dependability. When it comes to the stenographer he is even more specific.

In a sudden rush of imperative business this woman of 40, he says, in three days put in 25 hours of overtime. At the end of three days' high pressure work she stayed until 3:40 a. m., when her employer sent her home with the injunction to come to the office "when she woke up." She was back at 9 o'clock, after four hours' rest and worked all day.

After all, why should there be occasion for surprise when those past the first flush of youth prove both capable and loyal? Michaelangelo, in his eighties, labored enthusiastically on masterpieces of art. Madame Curie, of radium fame, long after the three score mark, pursued researches daily in her laboratory.

The joint success of the office boy of 50 and the stenographer-secretary of 40 puts rather a crimp in recent theories in which too often years have been considered a disadvantage rather than an advantage.—Christian Science Monitor.

OLIVE OYL

MOUNT OLIVE HIGH SCHOOL

A good attendance has been had lately, even though we've had quite a few cases of the measles. We are glad to have James Koen back, after having a severe case of measles. He lost 32 pounds, but still he doesn't look skinny. We're sorry Columbus Reid, Shorty Long and Arnold Scott are having to be absent.

Track Meet

Everywhere you look you can see someone training for some event. If they had only trained this hard all the school term we might bring home that cup. However, we're going to do our best to win. Soon we'll know who the best men are.

Musical

Last Friday night a musical entertainment was given at the school house by the school pupils. Mr. Lane, the Weathers family and quite a few others participated. The music was enjoyed by all. The glee club sang two songs and Clara Belle Burkes gave a comical monologue.

Next Wednesday night we will meet at the school house and organize a string band.

Visitors

Vada Lee and Myrl McCarty, Miss Payne, Joe Ruth Lindsey, Mrs. Blackwell and Howard were visitors at school.

The first and second graders are making little English books. They will be very attractive. The third graders are making health books.

The school pupils are working on a play called "The Adventures of Bill." It will be presented at a later date.

Humor

When Clara Belle Burkes returned from college, Mr. Burkes regarded her critically, and then demanded: "Ain't you a lot fatter than you were?" "Yes, dad," the girl admitted, "I weigh 120 pounds stripped to gym."

The father stared for a moment in horrified amazement, then shouted: "Who in thunder is Jim?"

Preparedness: Glendon Benningfield was directed to soak his feet in salt water to toughen them. He considered the matter thoughtfully, and then remarked to himself: "It's pretty near time for me to get a lickin', I guess I'd better sit in it."

Proof: Mrs. Kirby: Are these eggs fresh? Mary Lou: Yes, ma'am, they be.

Mrs. Kirby: How long since they were laid? Mary Lou: Tain't ten minutes, ma'am—I know, I laid them eggs there myself.

Miss Blackwell stopped to tell Billie Wilcox not to cry and she offered as a convincing argument: "You know it makes little girls ugly."

Billie stared at Miss Blackwell and then said: "You must have cried an awful lot when you was little."

Cracks at the Crowd

Wonder where we saw Elmer Jack, Vivian, Vera and quite a few others, Sunday?

Mr. Cooke resolved never to give Clara Belle another reading to recite in public.

Wonder if Vera and Mary B. will win in tennis.

Flowers to the Living

He's almost the tallest boy in school, sometimes slouchy, but always with a smile on his face and a willingness to help others. Whenever Miss Blackwell wants a picture put up or something else done, she calls on Sammy Roberts. When anyone else has a job, Sammy is willing to do it. He probably doesn't have an enemy in school—something that can not be said about many. He is always teasing someone, but he knows when to quit. He always has a witty, "comeback" to anything you say. He is a good basket ball player, a good track man, good in literary events and very good in plays. In fact, he's a help to any school. We like him and we're proud of him.

STOP THAT ITCHING

Senior News

The senior party, March 8, was a great success. Those present reported a great time and we are looking forward to many more before the end of the school.

The biology class had performed an experiment on fooscap Tuesday morning. Everyone seemed to be ready to help perform it again. Such interest is pleasing to our teacher.

The English class is studying poetry and making oral book reports.

As this is the week for the county meet, the six weeks exams have been put off until next week. There will be no school today.

We are very sorry to report that one of our best students, R. C. Petty, has been seriously ill with the measles and to the great disappointment of everyone, will not be able to be with us again this term. The senior class was made very sad indeed to hear this.

Those absent the past week were J. T. Ivy, and Martin Hertz. With the pretty spring weather the attendance of our senior class has improved greatly the past week.

At the present we are studying "Canterbury Tales" in English literature and doing some memory work.

Two out of three of the senior declaimers are out of the tenth grade—they are Edna Harmon and Billie Perkins. If the other grades were represented as this one, things would look much different, but anyway, we hope to bring four blue ribbons home with us.

The Better Speakers, Thinkers and Writers club met last Thursday, for one of their weekly meetings. We did not have a program this time, because this was our refreshment day. We hope that we will have a very good program for the next time.

We sincerely hope that this club will be as successful as our English club.

They also have finished the story of Evangeline, the Tale of Acadia, and are now going to study history.

We are very glad to have Bertie Mae Stanley and Noel Lett-better with us again.

Plans are being made to start a new problem next week.

A test will be given next week, which will cover the parts of the machine and their use, what to consider in selecting and buying the different kinds of materials, becoming colors and lines in dress for the different individuals and the selecting and buying of hose and shoes.

Civic Club

The civic club was drilled on the rules of the flag and will put up the flag each day that the weather is suitable.

Glee Club

We're still practicing on "Out of the Dusk to You," for the singing try-out to be held March 23. We haven't received our other song yet, but we are still in hopes of receiving it soon.

Boys' Sports

The Priddy grammar school baseball boys played the Newburg boys Monday and were defeated 9 to 4.

Some of the high school boys are working out for track and we hope that they will win several places.

PROGRAM OBSERVING YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY IN METHODIST CHURCH

The League had an inspira- tional program Sunday night and the large audience testified to the interest that magnetized the crowd. It was a fine program and we are proud of the boys and girls in the town. They are a re- fined, cultured group of young people, cultivating their talents to the best of their ability and appreciating their sponsor, Miss Kirkpatrick.

Their program was a credit to any town or organization and it would be great if more boys and girls would get in this or similar work. It would mean much to them in after years.

Sport Notes

We've had all kinds of foreign fighters in America, but we've never had a Russian. Why? There isn't any fighters. That's why. The reason is whiskers! Russians have to have their whiskers, otherwise no one will believe they are Russians, and that's a matter of pride to him—to be able to be taken as a Rus- sian wherever they go.

So, with a little imagination, you can know why boxing is un- known in Russia. No fighter, whatever shade of color, would be willing to get his arm hung in a Russian's whiskers. That is why American fighters don't go dashing over to Ivan's country to introduce the game.

Imagine it, you're having a tussle with a Russian; you fight with your might and let fly at him with your right arm. Imagine your embarrassment, when you find it impossible to remove your arm. You're as helpless as the king of Italy. In the mean- time, your Russian opponent is becoming sore and pops you one, which jars you from—from the bottom of the sky to the topsy.

If I Had

Bold ways like L. D.
Blue eyes like Merlene.
Debating ability like Fay Ruth.
Prompt lessons like Arlie.
The witfulness of Eammon.
Black, curly hair like Elmo.
The lips of Doris,

The frankness of Deward.
(What about me?)
Then I would be an outstand- ing figure in modern civilization.

BENEFITS NOT APPARENT

The United States senate is endeavoring to ascertain the benefits or detriments resulting from Mr. Roosevelt's NRA and so far there has been little revealed that would bring support to the administration of the act, Mr. Richberg, the present administrator supreme of the codes, testified before the committee Monday that a considerable portion of the forty-one million dollars the enforcement has cost so far, was paid mainly by voluntary contributions, but in this he surely is badly mistaken. An assessment has been levied upon all those governed by the code authorities and there has been no option in the matter, hence, a statement that the contributions to the enormous fund were voluntary, can not be correct as to all those interested, while it may be true as to some of the interests. Yet the question of benefits or detriment of the enforcement of the 600 codes in force should take on a broader basis than that of voluntary surrender, but should be considered from the standpoint of progress toward national recovery from the depression, an economic condition that has existed the world over and one from which all nations have been striving to regain a normal standing, but in none of them has the strong hand of the government been called upon to take the management of business and industry. A few samples have been given us by Williard E. Thorp, chairman of the advisory council of NRA, whose findings and deductions surely should be inclined toward giving the act the best of the argument and in his statement he gives much important information. Mr. Thorp has assembled statistics from all the major powers covering the most important barometers of economic conditions: Industrial production, unemployment and foreign trade.

Socially speaking, the unemployment record is the most important. In this field, Mr. Thorp's figures cover the representative period from August, 1932, to August, 1934. They show that Germany had the best success in putting men back to work—its unemployment declined by 54 per cent. Australia's declined by 39 per cent, the United Kingdom's by 25 per cent, Japan's by 21 per cent, Canada's by 16 per cent and Italy's by 8 per cent. Three countries—France, Czechoslovakia and Poland—show a rise in unemployment. The United States was at the middle of the list, being under Canada and above Italy, with an unemployment decline of 12 per cent.

These figures do not make a very encouraging showing for Mr. Roosevelt's pet measure, be it either voluntary or involuntary.

AN INTERNATIONAL INTEREST

No matter whether America is directly involved in the imbroglio between the foreign nations or is a "looker-on in Venice," the trouble can easily turn to involve this country, hence all of the troubles are of more or less interest to our country as well as to the other parts of the world. Italy and Abyssinia can not, therefore, be said to have troubles of their own, for their troubles can easily become other nation's troubles, inasmuch as it is complicating the already chaotic European situation, we can easily think of it in the light of the Japan-China issue. Like China, Abyssinia is an independent power—and like China, it is a hundred years behind the times. Italy, like Japan, is an up-to-date nation which needs new territory. China possesses a wealth of mineral resources, which Japan wants—and Abyssinia possesses a wealth of gold which Italy wants. If Italy and Abyssinia fight, it seems inevitable that the latter will lose. Victorious Italy would then establish an Abyssinian protectorate—and reap the rich rewards.

None of these nations can be involved in war without more or less affecting the balance of the world, but to what extent the interest of other nations may be involved time alone can tell.

EVERYBODY CAN HELP

Every citizen of a town has a part in making of that community either a most desirable place in which to live or one that it is well to shun. One need not necessarily be a Napoleon of finance, a big property owner or business manager in order to be a leader in community building. Many men—and women, too—who are possessed of a very small amount of worldly good have accomplished great good for their home communities by their loyalty and their liberal spirit toward the citizens and the enterprises and industries located therein. Some very common philosophy says that even an old straw-necked rooster will crow for his own barnyard. Surely anybody can be as good as a chicken and have as much loyalty for their home town and home people. Small communities are built into greater ones by the united efforts of its citizenship. Everybody can help in community building and equally as many can hinder.

FIGHTING AGAINST TAXES

The public is prone to complain about taxes and to berate those charged with the enforcement of the tax laws and the collection of the taxes. There are organizations in this and other states formed for the purpose of opposing tax levies and increased public expenditures, but so far there has been no organization to oppose the petitioning of taxing bodies to make appropriations for every conceivable purpose or object. If the proposition is to make improvements or desired changes without cost to the individual there will be found an abundance of advocates, the idea apparently being that the appropriation asked is to be without cost. The appropriating authority must be supplied with the money required and it is, therefore, by no means free. If we oppose the levy of taxes, let us oppose the request for indiscriminate and miscellaneous appropriation of public money.

STATE TAX VALUES

The taxable values of Texas are enormous, as is shown by a statement in the Tax Journal, which said in the last issue that to get the taxable value of the property of Texas, one naturally refers to the report of the comptroller which would show a value of $3,200,000,000 for 1933. This is only part of the story as the approximately 1020 independent school districts value is about $2,980,000,000, and the 575 cities and towns about $2,350,000,000, hence, taxable value of Texas is near $8,400,000,000.

HINTS ON FREE PUBLICITY

Handling free publicity from out of town sources is not so difficult. An editor knows at once that it may be objectionable, that all of it is under more or less suspicion. He may adopt a general policy of refusing all of it. He may use more or less of it. In any case he is dealing with professional publicity departments that are accustomed to taking chances, and that are not likely to become resentful if they fail to make the grade.

Local free publicity is another matter. There are all kinds of things to consider besides news or advertising value. One publisher attempts to solve the question by providing a tentative set of rules which he proposes to try to put into effect. They are:

No news item will be given to a new retail business establishment opening unless a reasonably sized advertisement is given us. The same applies to taking over agencies.

Do not write stories of store window displays. Do not mention prices of tickets for admission in athletic, church or school activities. Prices must appear only in advertisements.

Do not mention names of merchants who donate prizes for organization events.

Do not list menus in stories of church dinners, suppers, etc.

Do not list items on sale in pantry or baking sales. Do not give more than two stories to a pantry or baking sales or other events at which money is made.

When a merchant makes marked improvements to his building, a story may be given, but consult advertising department first.

Do not mention raffles, lotteries, games, door prizes and other games of chance in news stories.

Do not give publicity to garages or similar institutions unless of a purely local news nature.

Do not mention car names when writing accident stories.

At all times be on the alert to eliminate advertising material in news stories.

Do not give news stories to carnivals, outdoor attractions or similar money-making outfits unless accompanied by proportionate amount of paid advertising.

Dance news briefs must be accompanied by paid advertisements. In these items eliminate expressions like "Come out and have a good time," etc., and other superlatives and adjectives. Give only one brief notice to money-making dances.—Wisconsin Press.

WINGS FOR BLUE EAGLE

Judging by Mr. Richberg's appearance before the senate committee Thursday, the administration is desperately trying to sprinkle salt on the tail of the Blue Eagle in an effort to retain it. The critical and hostile attitude of the listening senators on the seventeen-point NRA program presented by the administration's spokesman may preface an early doom of the disputed recovery act for which the White House asks a two-year extension. However, the senate criticism is not the expression of united thought. Some of the critics want more stringent regulations and some would as soon see NRA discarded now. But there is a distinct impression that the senators believe the federal trade commission could do as well or better the present work of the NRA.

In the wake of the McCarran NRA investigation resolution, the senators were bombarded with demands to push the inquiry. They have not forgotten that. For the moment at least NRA is not in the hands of its friends but, if it were, there is no certainty that its friends know what to do with it.

If Richburg is sincere in proposing to discard codes except where these apply to interstate enterprise or industry vitally affecting interstate commerce, the effect might be disastrous. That is, it would subject hour and wage scales, to competition with uncoded industry. The very situation would exist that the president in 1933 NRA was formed to defeat—loss of business by enterprises paying a certain fair scale to those that could undersell it because of different wage conditions.

The further the administration gets with an effort to make NRA work, the weaker the

THE COTTON PROGRAM

The measure of whether the cotton reduction program of the United States has paid as an emergency measure will depend on how much the price has been raised, and why it has been raised. Much confusion exists as to why cotton prices have gone up in the United States from 6.49c, the average price of middling 7-8 inch spot cotton in New Orleans during the harvest months of September, October, November and December, 1932, to 12.73 cents, the average price for similar cotton for the same period in 1934.

Broadly speaking, the forces which make the price of cotton can be divided into two groups. The first of these, the ones we usually think of, are the forces of supply and demand. Normally they are the most important, but not always. The second group of factors are those affecting the value of money. The main objective here is to determine the effect of changing supply and demand on cotton prices, especially changes in supply.

American cotton prices are world prices. This means that the price of American cotton under normal conditions is the same as any one market as at all other markets using American cotton when the cost of marketing from point of origin is taken into account. More specifically, this means that the price of cotton in Havre, France, Bremen, Germany, or Liverpool, England, is the same as at New Orleans, or Houston, Texas, or any other market in the south less the cost of marketing cotton from any point in the United States to those foreign markets.

Let us study the French gold price of American cotton to determine what affect supply and demand conditions have had on the price. France quotes cotton prices in terms of francs per 50 kilograms. During the harvest months of September, October, November and December, 1931, the average weekly price was 211 3-5 francs. For the same period in 1932 it was 231 1-9 francs, for 1933, 213 6-27 francs, and for 1934, 253 2-9 francs. The equivalent prices of these francs in American cents in terms of our old gold dollar are 7.54 cents in 1931, 8.19 cents in 1932, 7.54 cents in 1933 and 9.03 cents in 1934.

The remarkable thing about the above figures is that they show that the world gold price of cotton to date has advanced less than 20 per cent since 1932, the low of the depression, and that in 1933 the gold price of cotton was actually about 8 per cent, or 65 points lower than it was in 1932. Is it possible then that approximately 80 per cent of the advance in the price of cotton in the United States has been due to the decline in the value of the dollar and not to changes in supply? The above figures indicate that is exactly what has happened. . . . Is it a mere coincidence that dollar prices are up 40 per cent on the franc price at the time time American money has declined to only 59.06 per cent of the old gold dollar value?—Texas Weekly.

CROWS SUICIDE

The depredation of large numbers of crows larked a Holland farmer who conceived a novel idea of eradicating them. All it takes to induce a crow to commit suicide, he said, is to feed it a grain of corn with a horse hair drawn thru it. The farmer took a quantity of corn and thru each grain made a small hole in which he inserted a horse hair. He put the corn out where the birds could find it easily and awaited results.

The birds ate the corn readily but were unable to completely swallow the hair trailing from each side of the kernels. The irritation caused by the hair in their throats made the crows frantic, for in every instance they turned over on their backs and clawed desperately at their throats and some slashed their throats with their sharp claws, while others apparently succumbed to exhaustion in their futile efforts to remove the hair.

The farmer counted 54 dead birds after his first batch of "haired" corn had been put out.

The further the administration gets with an effort to make NRA work, the weaker the

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Views of the Nation's Press on Topics of Interest and Importance

PRIMITIVE FARMING

The first, far-off farming methods were so primitive that they scarcely deserved the name of method. Perhaps, at the end of a season, an area containing some edible wild plant would be burned off to improve the crop; or the head of a tuber would be stuck back into the ground; or it would be customary, when eating fruit, to move from the spot where the fruit was picked, to another, so that the discarded seed might have an opportunity—somehow remote to be sure—to produce another tree.

By comparison, the method known as assartage was a vast advance. The primitive peoples who practiced assartage cleared a spot of fertile ground by burning off weeds and underbrush and planting their crops in the area thus cleared. If the land were sufficiently fertile, another crop might be planted on the same spot; more often, probably, a new spot was planted each successive season.

This method sufficed until there was not enough land to go around; then extensive cultivation had to become intensive, and man began to try to preserve the fertility of his soil. Magic ceremonies were often resorted to, but practical efforts were used to back up necromancy. Fish was used as fertilizer in America from Nova Scotia to Chile; guano beds, where available (as in Peru), were used extensively; in ancient Mexico and China, manure was a marketable commodity.

Similarly, and for like reason, the use of irrigation was practiced throughout the ancient world, old and new. Methods varied with the need for and availability of water and with the areas to be irrigated. It is common knowledge, however, that many of the ancient peoples carried their irrigation systems to a high degree of perfection; in Mexico and Peru Indian engineers designed systems which carried water around the sides of mountains and even, by means of tunnels, through them.

Terraces, the value of which modern American farmers have just begun to realize, were also utilized the world over, but for varying reasons. A peaceful agricultural people might be driven by warlike neighbors into the mountains for safety, and thus be forced to resort to terracing to preserve the small patches of arable soil they found. Or, again, as in China, population density might make it necessary to use the slopes of hills which could only be farmed by means of terraces. Again, water conservation, as in Yemen, where the Arabs sometimes carried their series of terraces a distance of 6000 feet up the mountain sides, might be the deciding factor.

Implementations were crude. A sharpened, hardened stick, shells, stones, bones—anything which might be used to loosen and cultivate the soil was utilized. This made the work of the primitive agriculturist a tedious business.—Cotton Factors.

THE HARBORING STATUTE

The statute against the harboring of criminals, now being used with such telling effect by the federal government, probably will in the long run prove the most efficient of all the various weapons the government can bring into play against the gangsters.

All over the country the federal courts are convicting alleged harborers of criminals in groups ranging up to twenty. This sort of thing will eventually make vital pariahs out of gangsters on the dodge. Only the most devoted relatives or friends would dare to be seen in company with a man when they know that to be seen is to invite the wrath of the federal government and a probable penitentiary term. The influence of the law will be widespread and carry terrifying implications to those who associate with criminals, although they may not be criminals themselves.

Doubtless in time the several states of the union will enact their own statutes covering the point.—Abilene News.

THE PINK SLIP

In response to public opinion the ways and means committee of the house wishes to repeal that section of the revenue act of 1934 that provides for publicity of income. Certain members of the finance committee of the other body have calmly told a subcommittee of the ways and means that if the house dares to reject the sacred pink slip the other body will restore the original amendment by Mr. LaFollette, making income tax returns public records to be inspected and examined by Tom, Dick and Harry under regulations issued by the secretary of the treasury and approved by the president.

If Mr. LaFollette can't have his pink slip he will insist on something even more offensive, when he says that an investigation such as is now being made of Mr. Mellon's returns is "just another argument for income publicity," one is more than tempted to ask him if he is more than 11 years old. No official of the treasury has asked for publicity of returns or has the faintest idea that violations of the law can be detected by means of it. The tax commission has said that the scheme has done no good and considerable harm. The notion that the wicked plutocrats are to be brought to boot by the pink slip, or the earlier effusion of Mr. LaFollette's genius, has no foundation.

Representative Bacon of this state says truly that the men or women in small business or industries practicing their profession in the smaller towns will be most humiliated and damaged by the exposure.

"Many people seem to think that this publicity affects only those of wealth. I can not too strongly emphasize again that it affects every single man with a net income of $1000 and every married man with a net income of $2500 or over, and this whether he pays a tax or not." There is no justification and no excuse for this invitation to curiosity and malice. If the house can not attain its purpose, at least it can vindicate its own independence and authority and smite the insolent other body on its Broddingnagian cheek.—New York Times.

TIME WILL TELL

A well-known business man is often quoted as having said that he would rather have one average man who had been with him for ten years than several of the so-called "young genius" type.

After spending a working lifetime in the employ of a large corporation, an officer said that he had learned (1) that large bodies move slowly, and (2) that the constant dropping of the water wears away the stone. He meant that the combination known as a corporation is some what elephantine in action and thought, but that it does move.

A quick-minded person who splutters ideas as fast as a machine gun shoots bullets, is unlikely to be happy in a corporate environment. He will irritate and be irritated. He will be impatient if the consideration of his suggestion is delayed or if they are not accepted. He does not realize that only a few ideas can be put to work in a single year, and that the job of persuading others to accept them and co-operate in their promotion is more difficult than conceiving ideas.

Printer's Ink, in commenting on the subject, sagely observes: "It is unfortunate that brains, taken alone and apart from all those things which make a man liked and respected by his associates, really count for little in business, but the fact remains that they do—except in those rare organizations where the 'pure brains' report solely to some individual more conversant with the personnel side of business."

Occasionally it must occur to every thinking person that if all of us were blessed with high intelligence and initiative, this would be an unhappy world.—Imperial Magazine.

WHAT WE THINK By Frank Dixon About all that some people do to help a good thing along, is to give it three cheers.

A chronic joker has told me why a woman's mind is cleaner than a man's—it's because she changes it oftener.

A cheerful liar is to be preferred to the absolutely reliable man who tells the truth that hurts.

It never appears to make much of a hit when a middle-age widower marries the best looking girl in the neighborhood.

Executions are getting very plentiful in Russia, and a lot of them are getting shot who were never shot before.

If candidates knew they would absolutely have to keep their promises, they wouldn't promise very much.

A St. Louis woman puts out a new idea. She says she shot her husband because he deserted her. Most women shoot 'em because they love 'em.

Some parents rule their children by love alone, and do not make much of a success of it. Love is all right, especially when backed up by a strap or a paddle.

A thing I don't admire is dogs; if a dog comes running where a couple of other dogs have started a fight, he invariably tries to take a bite out of the under dog. A dog has no feeling of right and wrong.

It occurs to us that the best way to take the profits out of war is to turn the management of the munitions business over to us farmers. I don't know of a farmer who has been able to make a profit in twenty years.

Before condemning the government a man should check off all the misfortunes and failures that have come his way because of his own shortcomings, carelessness or lack of thrift, industry and foresight.

There is this to say for the picture show. It is seldom necessary for the boob who insists on sitting in the middle of the row crawling out over your feet two or three times during the performance to get a drink or smoke a cigarette.

A woman in my neighborhood has nicknamed her husband "Boomerang." On sixty-five different occasions when he came home not sober she has thrown him bodily out of the house. He has always come back after he sobered up. For this reason she thought the name Boomerang appropriate.

I desire to start a movement against the practice of making cranberry sauce into cranberry jelly and cutting it up into squares like fudge or cheese. To my way of thinking cranberries are best stewed and made into sauce without any of this artificial glamour. We had Christmas dinner at my son-in-law's and the cranberry sauce was served in this shape. I didn't know at first whether it was something to eat or just another rule tide table decoration.

Down On the Farm
By O. G. H.

Terrace lines have been located and terraces built on more than twenty farms within the last month by farmers, vocational teachers, the assistant and the county agent.

Prof. Herbert Cooke, Mount Olive, and Frazier Henry, Prairie, have located lines for their patrons. We commend these efficient teachers for this good work in their communities. We also congratulate communities having such teachers to co-operate in solving farm problems.

Ernest Barton, vocational assistant, run lines for Ed Randall, Goldthwaite, Monday; E. L. Young, Mullin, Tuesday and Wednesday; and Emmett Singleton Thursday. Mr. Barton has a number of dates for next week.

Farmers around Indian Creek and Priddy have terraced a number of fields since the first of the year.

George Denman, Caradan, reports a yield of 20 bushels of corn last year on land terraced several years ago, compared with the low average incident to the drought, when terraces prove their worth.

O. N. Shields harvested twice as much corn above as in the same field below terraces.

C. G. Featherston says: "I raised one-third more cotton and corn on my terraced field. Also a normal crop of hegarl grew on my crooked rows while my un-terraced field failed entirely."

Pecan improvement is making satisfactory progress this spring. Lon Bledsoe has planted 200 trees. Miss Dera Humphries, 150 trees; John Burnett, 50 trees; W. E. Rose, 50. Geo. Robertson, S. H. Rahl, T. F. Toland and O. H. Yarborough have planted pecans. The varieties set out are Western Schley, Mahan, Burkett and Texas Prolific.

Pecan School

The fifth annual pecan school will hold at Center City, probably early in April. The school is to be held in W. W. Head's orchard on Bennett creek, where improvement has been carried forward for several years. The Center City people always entertain royally and will show the guests at this school a grand time. We still carry pleasant memories of the good time the Center City folks gave us at the school two years ago. The date will be announced later, depending on advancement of the season. Meanwhile make plans to attend more later.
