The music was still in the air again Saturday night in the Robertson and Dunkle homes. Two Hill boys and a Mason boy and his sister, Jim Cox, Ducey Bohannon, Mrs. John Roberts, Wick Webb, Waldine Traylor, B. F. Renfro were the musicians. Everybody had a good time and enjoyed the good music.

Editorial Contest
 The two following editorials were selected as the best in the editorial contest conducted in the eleventh grade English class last week.

The Philippine Islands As An Independent Nation

By Clara Blackwell
 Would it be advisable for our government to grant absolute independence to the people of the Philippine Islands? I say no, it would not. We are not discussing a declaration of independence, but we are discussing the relationship as it exists today between our government and the people of those islands. Would it be advisable to grant them absolute independence, and not the sentiment of some Fourth of July orator, who colors the horizon with impossible pictures. We are not discussing what the desires of the Filipinos may have been or what they are now, but the advisability of granting them absolute independence. You will notice a very great difference between the desire of granting a prayer and the practicability of it.

The child, in early summer, desires to eat unripe fruit. The parent says, "Wait, my son, until it is ripe, and you will suffer no evil after effects." The child rebels; he is impatient; he wants to gratify his appetite; he thinks it will do him no harm, or he may not think at all. This may be a homely illustration, yet it practically explains the situation under discussion.

The population of the Philippines is composed of numerous tribes inhabiting a great many islands. They know nothing of self government, except the restraint of chiefs of semi-barbarous people. They have been under Spanish rule for 300 years, and now to grant them absolute independence would be political suicide. Far better that we now use an ounce of prevention than be obliged to apply a pound of cure; therefore, I believe it would not be advisable to grant their wish until we are assured they are capable of carrying on their own government. Besides this, we do not know it is the wish of even half the people of these islands. We are informed by reliable authority that many of the most intelligent are actually afraid to try self government unless the United States guarantees protection.

To compare them with our own colonies in 1776 is simply comparing ignorance with intelligence. The cases bear no resemblance. Our forefathers had experience in governing. They had formed colonial governments and administered the laws of commonwealth. They had instituted commerce, established business, issued bills for credit and were able to maintain governmental authority. King George exacted unjust tribute, and our forefathers rebelled, declared their independence, fought for it and won. To compare our revolutionary forefathers with the half civilized people of the Philippine Islands is an injustice to their memory.

It is not the intention of this government to make those people dependent subjects, or to exploit them for our benefit. Such a course would be abhorred by every American citizen. We did not expend our treasure and our lives in the liberation of Cuba in order to dominate these people. What we did for the Cubans when laws are respected and it is evident that all men will be treated equal under the law, then, and not until then, I believe, they should be allowed to govern themselves.

Tardiness In School

By Allan Campbell
 There should be less tardiness in our school than there is now. The pupils do not regard tardiness as a very serious offense but they disturb the study of everyone in the class room and study hall. The pupils do not think of bothering others when they come in late, but think that it is smart to miss about fifteen or twenty minutes of school every day. They may not know it, but they injure themselves as well as the others in the room into which they go.

Tardiness affects the school work of everyone. Usually when a pupil comes in tardy, he comes stomping into the room, making all the fuss and noise he can to attract attention, and the class work has to stop until he gets his books and leaves the room. Sometimes there is an excuse for being tardy, but most of the time it is laziness on the part of the student. When a person is tardy, he has to get a permit, and this causes a lot of work on the part of the teacher issuing permits.

Reach For the Moon

By Vergil Howard
 Jennifer Lee, an heiress scheduled to marry an earl, fails to appear in the wedding procession and escaping to a dude ranch, obtains a position as secretary to the wealthy Mrs. Larrimore.

John Cameron, one of the owners of the ranch, has had an eventful career. The younger son of the Earl of Sherbourne—Eric—and devoted to the older brother, Clarence, he has assumed the responsibility for a disgraceful act of the heir apparent and has made his way to America, accompanied by his friend, Larry Kerrigan, his partner in business. In the meantime the old Earl dies and Clarence succeeds to the title, having won the hand of Pamela Parnell, Eric's former sweetheart. After the death of the Earl, all communication with Eric ceases, with only the family solicitor knowing his whereabouts. Eric is quite unaware that Clarence has been killed and that a distant cousin, Edmund, through subterfuge, has succeeded to the title.

It is this Edmund, who, in search of an American heiress, has been jilted by Jennifer, and his unexpected arrival at the ranch causes complications. Pamela, who happens to be Mrs. Larrimore's niece, joins the circle, and the amazing discovery is made that Eric is alive.

HERE AND THERE

The Fifth United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans Friday held the $1000 excise tax imposed on liquor dealers in dry states invalid. The excise tax was imposed by congress along with enactment of the eighteenth amendment, but the government continued to collect the levy in dry territory after repeal of the prohibition amendment in December, 1933.

The nine justices of the United States Supreme court, all well along in years, listened solemnly while lawyers debated whether advanced age brings inefficiency. An assistant attorney general, asserted that "it is common place fact that physical ability, mental alertness and co-operativeness tend to fall after a man is 65." Justice Roberts is 60, Justice Brandeis is 79. Ages of other members of the high tribunal fall between those years.

Evidence that there are still friendships as true and binding as that of David and Jonathan, or of Damon and Pythias, is seen in the offer of a New York millionaire to share his income with the erstwhile political leader and mayor of that metropolis. If Jimmy Walker is actually down to his last pair of spats, as has been reported, then James (Big Jim) Auditors, millionaire contractor, will gladly give him half of his income or $25,000 a year, he said.

MOUNT OLIVE HIGH SCHOOL

Everyone seems to be relaxing after a tension of several weeks. Track meet is over. No one disappointed us. In fact, they surprised us. We won the cup by a score of 170 or more points. We are certainly proud of Billy Hightower for winning first place in junior boys' declamation. Nadine and Lorene Hodges won second in junior and senior girls' declamation and Jack Bleeker won third in senior boys'. Maudine Burkes deserves honorable mention for only missing one word in spelling. She and Evelyn Hodges won third place in the fifth and sixth grade division. We won several first places in track. Vernon Lawson is probably all around track man. He won four first places and a second place. Jimmie Lee Wilcox won second place in the Three-R contest. Mary B. Hodges, Eva Koen, Sammie Roberts and Bert Weathers did fine in debate. They only won second place, but we were proud of them anyway.

Musical Entertainment
Last Wednesday night we met and organized a band. Everyone seems to be interested and we hope much benefit and pleasure will be derived from it.

One student thumped and pounded his way through his piece at the musicale.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" said a hearer to his neighbor.

"How he plays, you mean?"

"No, how the piano stands it."

Senior Activities.
Mildred Wilcox seems to be leading in highest grades for valedictorian. Each senior has worked faithfully this year. They seem to have derived much good from this year's work.

Although conditions are not quite as bad this year as they have been recently, they are still of such nature as to interfere with many of our plans for work and pleasure, present and future. Some of us will be unable to attend college, although finishing high school, or to obtain this or that desired thing. What of it? Most of us will feel like sitting down and being miserable over the injustice of our lot and some of us will be foolish enough to do just that.

It is hard to be forced to wait for things we want or feel that we have a right to expect, and it is easy to waste time while waiting. We like to think we are being noble and patient, which in reality, we are probably being neither. Only of those who improve themselves morally, mentally and physically can we say with Milton, "They also serve who only stand and wait."

Primary News
The second grade presented a little "Mother Goose" play in Health class Monday evening.

The leaders in Health are Glendon Benningfield, T. J. Burkes, James Lane and Billie Wilcox. Nearly all the students are bringing milk to school. They are traveling the Health Road to Grown-Up town and some time will be strong and healthy.

Intermediate News
We are too enthused over results of the track meet, to write much this week. We have worked very hard for a couple of months for what we won. We are proud to say that we did our best to do our part to win the cup and other honors our school won. We as juniors and intermediates placed in every event that we entered, both literary and track. We feel like if we fell down in anyway on our part, that our teacher more than made up for us.

Humor
Mary Lou spoke admiringly to Bert, who was calling on her the day after track meet.

"And how they did applaud when you broke that record!"

Alvis, who overheard, sniffed indignantly: "Pa didn't applaud me for the one I broke," he complained. "He licked me."

Mr. Cooke happened to ride on a street car the other day. A fat lady was trying to get up from her seat, but the effort was too much. Mr. Cooke brightly remarked, "Madam, if you will eat some yeast it will help you to rise."

The fat lady snappily replied, "Perhaps, if you'd eat some yeast you will be better 'bred'."

Flowers to the Living
There is a young lady in our school that looks tired and worn today. If you knew her like we do, you would know, as we know,

CENTER CITY

March winds continue to blow. It has been cloudy and we are hoping it will rain in a few days.

Some have planted corn, while others are planting this week.

We are glad to report many of the sick ones are better and several children were back at school Monday. Mrs. Biddle is able to be up after a severe case of flu. James Day is still confined to his bed, after having measles, which left him in a very weak condition. A few others are still absent with measles, but hope to be in school soon.

Miss Keese visited in the Hubert Geeslin home Tuesday night.

We are very proud of our boys and girls who entered the events at county meet and rejoice with those who won. They did much better than we expected, after so much sickness.

Mrs. Lawton McBeth and her sister-in-law, Miss McBeth of Pidcoke, visited relatives here Sunday.

A wedding of interest to us and many others, occurred in San Angelo Friday, March 8, at 5 p. m., when Hollis Blackwell and Miss Hartal Langford were united in marriage by Rev. Foreman, pastor of the First Baptist church of that place. They were accompanied by Grandad Carter, Mrs. Joe Langford and Joe Shelby Langford, grandfather, mother and brother of the bride. They decided to keep it a secret until the close of school at Pleasant Grove, where Hollis is teaching, but it so happened that several San Angelo papers come to this community and thus we learned of their marriage. Hartal is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Langford and has lived here all her life. She spent some time with the Texas-Louisiana Power Company in Goldthwaite, where she made many friends. Hollis is well known the county over, as a very popular school teacher. Anyway, we think them both mighty fine young people and ideals for each other and extend them every good wish for long and happy lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Reid left a few days ago for El Paso, where he has work with a construction company.

John Walton and family visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, near Goldthwaite Saturday.

Mrs. Dan Covington has been here helping to care for her sister, Mrs. Biddle.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Morris visited in the J. W. Coffman home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Blackburn and little daughter visited in the Fred Day home Sunday. Several from here visited in that home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Emma Casbeer spent some time with her sister, Mrs. Biddle, while she was very ill.

Misses Gladys Casbeer and Myrtle Harbour returned to their schools at Pleasant Grove and Kelly, after having closed them on account of measles. Miss Harbour has been visiting Gladys a part of the time.

It is just a little bit late, however, I'll take this opportunity of expressing congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Welch over their recent marriage. I regret I didn't get the news in time for last week. Mrs. Welch was Miss Ruby Leach and a stranger to us. Jack is one of the best young farmers of our county and very attentive to his work. All wish for them prosperity and useful lives.

T. B. Oglesby of Breckenridge visited his brother Saturday.

CALL BURCH

When you want a suit, dress or single garment cleaned or pressed, call Burch and he will please you.

that she is tired and has a right to be. She has worked very faithfully the whole year, but for the past month she has probably over-worked. She is a splendid primary teacher, always kind and patient. She is an A1 declamation coach. The only one in the county who had contestants to place in all divisions this year. She is always willing and anxious to help do anything that will help Mount Olive school grow. She is a good musician and has one of the best junior girls' Glee clubs in the county. She opens her work with a hearty laugh and closes it with a cheerful smile. She is admired, loved and respected by all. She is our teacher, Miss Blackwell.

Opening of School
You bet we are proud school has started again! It started last Thursday, March 14. There are still a few absent from school on account of measles and whooping cough. We hope that it will not be long until these pupils are back in school with us.

4-H Club
W.P. Weaver, our county agent, has organized a 4-H club with our school boys. The members are Campbell Thompson, Floyd B. Morgan, Wayne Miller, Dorman Dupuy.

The members of this newly organized club will endeavor to do their best to make the club a success. We are looking forward to our first meeting and a year of successful club work.

New Curtain
We are very proud of our new curtain for our stage. It makes our auditorium look so much better. We can hardly wait until there is a play here so we can show our new curtain to others.

We thank those in San Saba and Goldthwaite and Mr. Oglesby, who have made it possible for us to have this curtain.

Interscholastic League
We are very sorry that on account of the measles and other sickness, which existed in our community that we could not enter in the interscholastic league meet as we had planned. However, we are proud to state that our only two contestants came back with honors. They are Estell Miller, first place senior girls declamation, and Wayne Miller, first place senior boys high jump; third place javelin throw.

Who's Who
Well, I guess Tarzon Johnson is about the most notable "who" in high school for the simple reason that he is about the only one who is not always leaving his seat, writing notes, whispering, throwing chalk, or making "cute" remarks.

Wayne Miller back on the rear seat should be on the front seat. He is just opposite Tarzon.

That girl with brown hair, dark eyes and wearing a red dress is "Jenny" Dennard. She likes to go to parties and play snap in the cars—oh—I mean in the yard. Excuse my mistake.

Reba Patterson likes to go to parties, too, especially if Jimmie is there.

Here comes the big fat lady! Even if she is fleshy she can get around like a two-year-old. Her main occupation is doing something mischievous and fussing with June over the little Mexican boy.

That cute little blonde, Peaches, likes to go to parties and she is editor-in-chief of the Owls. You should know her.

Who could that black-headed boy, who is always looking 'cross the aisle at a certain blonde-headed girl be? That happens to be Campbell Thompson.

Here comes a small black-headed boy who always flirts with the girls and is forever arguing with the teachers. Of course that's Floyd Morgan.

That little red-headed girl is Ona Roberds. She seems to be rather attractive to Floyd B.

Here comes a quiet girl with a smile. She is quiet and studies hard and she surely can rattle history. That is Ruth Hale.

Here comes Charley! I just wonder what she is good for. Well, we couldn't do without her. She is our best guard on the basketball team. Some think it is because she can get around so quickly and get in front of the ball. I don't think she is just a natural born athlete. This red-headed girl is Dona Roberds.

The brown-eyed girl who sits behind me is our best pupil in algebra. If it wasn't for her, I do not know what we would do. She is no other than June Knowles.

The tall black-headed girl on the front seat is always studying. She is always doing a kind

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

APPROPRIATION SOON AVAILABLE

It now seems certain the immense appropriation asked for by the president to provide employment for the unemployed will soon be available. After a long and stubborn contest between selfish interests and the administration, the plan as outlined by President Roosevelt was endorsed by the United States senate and the appropriation made certain. The work relief program is intended to take the place of the dole or direct relief, to a considerable extent, the allocation of the money to be at the discretion of the president. The contest over the terms of the appropriation, one of the largest in the history of the country, was over the scale of wages to be paid to those employed on works for which the money is to be paid and the administration overcame the selfish interests, who wanted to force a higher wage under all conditions, which would have placed an undue burden on the country and would have, in reality, worked a hardship on the unemployed, rather than benefited them.

The government's public works plan should not conflict with private industry and certainly should not increase wages beyond the level of the local employment. All who are interested in the welfare of the country want fair and reasonable wages paid, but if the government or public works raise the level beyond a reasonable figure the worker is made dissatisfied with his surroundings when the public work ends. Wages and other conditions of employment can reasonably be expected to reach a proper level in the section where the work is to be done. People of a community can adjust their own differences and reach satisfactory agreements in labor matters if they are left free to make such agreements for themselves.

THE WRONG PREMISE

There appears to be two extremes among the advocates of an old age pension and both of them doubtless are predicated upon the wrong idea of conditions. The first of the advocates who are in error, as this newspaper sees it, are desirous that the pension plan be adopted, but they want it on a mendicant or indigent plan. There are thousands of elderly people in this country who will suffer all manner of privations, rather than accept a support on any such basis. They are willing to receive a pension in the form of an expression of a grateful government and an appreciation of citizenship for the services and loyalty of men and women who have spent a long life in helping to build one of the greatest countries under the sun. The other extremists are those who want the government to provide an unreasonable amount for those who are in the evening of life and, thereby, take away the incentive for economy and thrift in youth and the meridian of life, making the government paternalistic in the extreme.

A plan will yet be evolved that will strike a middle ground and provide for elderly people who have lived upright and useful lives. Few if any of them desire or expect an unreasonable allowance and fewer still want or will accept a pension plan predicated on charity.

USING PUBLIC FUNDS

The present time seems ideal for securing funds for all manner of public buildings and public enterprises. The community that fails to realize or anticipate its needs and allows the opportunity for supplying such needs to pass, will have a long time to wait for another such opportunity. Now that the president is to be allowed to control the expending of five billion dollars in public works of various kinds, there is a call for developing needs for the funds. Public works of any kind will be considered and while the funds may not be allocated in every case, it is certain there will be no appropriation for local or community enterprises where no application is made for the funds. Mills county is fortunate in having a very small number of unemployed, yet the matter of appropriations for public works is national in scope and each community is included. A city auditorium or community center is one of the necessities here, as well as paving and highway work. If a concerted movement is inaugurated there is no doubt that such public improvement can be done and necessities supplied. Prompt action will be necessary, for as soon as the funds are made available, there will be a scramble for them.

BUSINESS BUILDING BACK

At this time when the country is slowly building back to normal, every encouragement should be given and every possible impediment should be removed by those who have the interest of the country at heart, and by the expression is meant the people of the country and the business of the country, be that business mercantile or industrial. Nobody doubts that conditions are far better than in recent years or even last year. Practically every industry is increasing sales and earning moderately higher profits. Complete figures show that the index of industrial production is at the highest level since 1930. The fact remains, however, that in the view of many competent observers, fundamental conditions are unchanged and one of the big things that is keeping us going is government spending. It is claimed that 10,000,000 men are out of work, are being supported by relief—about the same number that was unemployed two years ago, when the recovery drive started. That is the most ominous fact the country faces now. Yet, there is an undoubted upward trend in the spirit of the public, which is the main thing after all.

A NEW CONSTITUTION

The indications now are that Texas voters will be given an opportunity this year to say whether or not they desire a new constitution. Just why the necessity for a new constitution for Texas, will possibly be made clear, as the campaign for and against the proposal progresses. The movement has reached the stage where a resolution calling for a constitutional convention has received the approval of the committee on constitutional amendments in the lower house of the Texas legislature and the plan is to submit the question of calling such convention to the voters at an election in August. If the plan is favored by the electorate, the convention will be held in the fall. Our present constitution is referred to as a patchwork by those favoring its re-writing, but full details are still in the offing.

PECANS A VALUABLE CROP

An article taken from the Weatherford Democrat applies equally as well to Mills county as it does to Parker county, as the conditions of soil, climate and other environment necessary to pecan culture are identical. The Democrat says:

A few years ago a well known pecan grower spent several days inspecting pecan groves in various parts of this county. He made the statement at that time that careful attention to the native pecan trees of this county would in a few years time easily increase the value of the annual pecan crop by four times. The suggestion he made were principally thinning, clearing out undergrowth, cultivation, and in some cases, topworking. Work of this kind has paid hand some dividends.

For the effort expended there is probably no other product of the county that pays better than pecans. This is a natural pecan country with thousands of magnificent trees scattered along the water courses. As a rule native groves have had but scant care and attention. Much of our upland will also produce good pecans when orchards are properly planted and cared for. A number of orchards planted within the past decade are just now coming into bearing.

While pecans do not bear every year they are more dependable than most of our farm crops. There was a fair yield even last year, when we had one of the worst droughts in our history. Pecan money helped to tide many families over the past winter.

Land may be utilized while pecan trees are coming into bearing and to some extent afterwards, which offsets the rather long period between planting and the time they bear enough nuts to be profitable. Pecan trees will continue bearing for many years and, in fact, it is rather hard to estimate the average life. Anyone with a good pecan grove has little to worry about on the score of replanting.

Taking the long view, both as to income and permanence, pecan growing is well worth while.

CENTENNIAL SERVICES

The fact that the ninety-ninth anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, April 21, this year falls upon Sunday, leads Will H. Mayes, secretary of the Texas centennial commission, to suggest that date as a fitting time for proper presentation through the churches and schools of Texas of the relation of the religious, educational and cultural history and development of the state to the coming observance of the Texas centennial in 1936.

"Religion and patriotism have always been so closely allied that they are inseparable in the public minds," says a statement issued by Mr. Mayes. "In the history of the world pioneering has been prompted more by zeal for the spread of religion and by desire for religious freedom than by eagerness for mere personal gain."

"A Texas centennial celebration without special emphasis on the religious, educational and cultural history and development of the state would fail to reflect the true Texas pioneer spirit and would not do credit to the forefathers whose sacrifices we propose to commemorate."

"The responsibility for proper presentation of these phases of the Texas centennial rests with the churches and the schools of the state, and the time has come when public thought should be directed through these channels to these aspects of our approaching celebration."

"There will be no more fitting time for this than Sunday, April 21, the ninety-ninth anniversary of the achievement of Texas independence at San Jacinto."

"The suggestion, therefore, is made that ministers in all the churches in their sermons on that day emphasize the religious and educational progress of Texas during the past hundred years, and that in Sunday school and other church meetings special centennial programs be rendered and concerted efforts be made to quicken religious and educational interest in the Texas centennial."

"San Jacinto programs should also be given in the schools on the most convenient dates immediately preceding or following April 21, all of which should stress the educational back-

A DANGEROUS DISEASE

Whooping cough is a disease of the spring and summer months. It is a real problem in households where there are a number of very young children. Statistics show that cases terminating fatally are greater among females than among males. The younger the child when attacked by whooping cough, the greater the cause for alarm for its recovery. Babies, therefore, should be safeguarded and kept away from persons known to have been exposed to whooping cough. The dangerous malady is spread through contact with the secretions of the nose and mouth which may come from sneezing, the use of contaminated handkerchiefs, toys, cups and in fact, from any agencies which allow close contact.

There are three or more distinct stages noted in whooping cough. The symptoms of the first or catarrhal stage are similar to the ordinary cold, with an attendant cough. If the trouble is whooping cough, the cough grows worse instead of better as in an ordinary cold. The expulsion of mucous or vomiting commonly ends the attack of coughing.

Pneumonia and convulsions most frequently occur among children who are suffering from malnutrition. There is no communicable disease which exacts a higher toll among very young children than whooping cough.

Whooping cough is a highly communicable disease and the young and poorly nourished should be protected in every way from coming in contact with this infection.

Views of the Nation's Press on Topics of Interest and Importance

CASH SALES TO RUSSIA

The breakdown of the debt settlement and credit negotiations with Russia has not halted Russian-American trade. It resulted rather in the adoption by Russia of the trade policy it has pursued recently in Great Britain of making purchases on a cash basis. Thus, an order for $3,500,000 of rolling mill equipment was recently placed with an American concern. Cash payment will be made, although the manufacturers were presumably willing to extend credit.

The new Russian import policy thus rejects the use of short-term credits which until recently were the commonly used medium for facilitating foreign purchases. The Russians apparently take the view that, unless long-term credit can be obtained on reasonable terms, it is better to pay cash for foreign imports, and get whatever benefits result therefrom. The sources of cash for such payments are exports of gold and such invisible receipts as emigrant remittances and tourists' expenditures. Receipts from these sources have increased recently and are susceptible of further expansion. Nevertheless, the policy of cash payments places a definite limit on what Russia can buy in countries where this policy rules.

On the other hand, countries such as France, which are willing to extend long-term credits are in a much more advantageous position to trade with Russia than the United States. Substantial Russian orders are reported to have been placed in European countries latterly for factory equipment to be made in accordance with American specifications and under American patents. These orders were placed Europe, rather than here, only because of the credit facilities available there.—New York Journal of Commerce.

THE UNJUST HIKE

The cost of living has been kited the past year. So long as the farmers were the benefactors of the better prices nobody kicked. We all want to see agriculture put on a more profitable basis. But the tremendous advance that has taken place in commodities of the farmer, after they were taken out of his hands, is not so satisfying.

In certain lines speculators have made a greater profit in a month's time that the growers made for their twelve months' labor. That is the sort of thing that isn't healthy and that should be resisted by the government.

In all probability we should return to the protection of our anti-trust laws. They were rendered inoperative to give business a chance to get back on its feet. But the speculators have taken advantage of the situation to grab off profits that they would not be entitled to if conditions were prosperous, much less when there is still a large army of struggling people trying to fight their way through this panic and out to daylight.

An investigation should be made into the agricultural hikes with a view to finding out how much of it has been a profit to the farmer and how much has gone to middle men and others who did a very little of the toll which brought the production about.

We want a sound, just and economic recovery. We don't want merely more profits without regard to who are getting the profits.—Waco Record.

SAFETY AWAY FROM HOME

The family of a prominent motor car and airplane manufacturer, has been sent to England to save its members from the threats of kidnapers. The attention of the lowest denizens of the underworld had been shown in a number of averted attempts in recent months and it is said to have been on the advice of police that the manufacturer sent his family out of the country for protection.

There is a lot to think about in that situation. It contains a compliment for England, where people of all degrees are safe, but nothing pleasing to Americans in its intimation that persons of any means are increasingly un-

MASARYK AT EIGHTY-FIVE

Were Cicero writing of old age today he would put in place of the catalogue of Cato's accomplishments those of President Masaryk. Cato was in his 84th year investigating the augural, pontifical law, devoting much time to Greek literature, exercising his memory, employing intellectual gymnastics, counseling friends, taking part in the debates of the senate, etc. Masaryk as he completes today his 85th year, can boast an even wider range of intellectual activities as president of Czechoslovakia a truly democratic president, who was less than a year ago elected for a third term of seven years, expiring when he will still be almost as young as Ellihu Root is today. President Masaryk regrets he can no longer wrestle or dance, but he manifestly, like Cato, must rejoice that with "force of mind" he can still do what his strength of body can no longer undertake.

That a democracy is maintained both in form and spirit in this little country, surrounded by nations that have never known or that have departed from its practices, is due above all else to the labors of this great statesman—its prophet, architect founder and president. As has been said, Carlyle would have loved to add him to his gallery of heroes. He has fulfilled the prediction of his fellow-Moravian, Komensky (whose Latinized name was Comenius), that the government would be "returned to the Czech people." We of the United States can have a special satisfaction in recalling that his co-worker, companion and wife was an American, Charlotte Garrigue. She it was who taught him English and "enthused him with American ideals."

Out of his widely gathered experience and his philosophy he was quick to counsel his people after independence had been won that it would not alone save a nation—that morality and education were essential to its salvation. He has practiced his preaching and been a tower of strength. The apprentice to the village blacksmith became as the smithy god who built the dwellings of the Olympians and made the sceptre of Jove, the breastplate of Hercules and the shield of Achilles—in that he made a national home and hammered out on the anvil of his thought the instruments of its government.—New York Times.

BABY BONDS

It takes ten years for the baby bonds to grow up. They bring no visible return until their tenth birthday. But that is the way with babies. They are fine to have in the house, but no spendable profit should be expected of them until they are big children. It will be possible, certainly, to trade an immature baby bond for cash, but it would be inadvisable to do so unless the wolf at the door were about to scratch under and invade the home. The baby bond will represent a certain sum of money, a certain number of dollars, the sum or number gradually increasing until a $75 bond will be worth $100, ten years later, a $750 bond $1000. But the government can't be held responsible if you allow your bond to get lost, strayed or stolen. Presumably your bond can be registered, and if you mean to hold it until maturity it should be registered. Registration will cause only a slight inconvenience in case you shall wish to sell your bond. Calling them baby bonds was a bright idea. They should be especially attractive to parents who wish to lay up a bit for the children, to help with their schooling perhaps. It remains to be remembered, however, that if the wild men should get control at Washington and inflate the currency out of bounds, the baby bonds, like all other bonds, would deteriorate in value or entirely evaporate. Inflation is a subtle method for robbing the thrifty.—State Press in Dallas News.

We are in A New Automobile Era!

Cars built since 1931 have twice the power and speed of ten years ago!

Continental offers you better lubrication for modern cars —an *Alloyed Oil with twice the film strength of other oils!

IT'S hard to realize how improved cars of the '30s are over those we drove ten years ago. We are in a new automobile era! Power and speed have almost doubled in a decade, with little increase in motor size.

Increased power has brought enormous increases in bearing pressures and crankcase temperatures. In making motor parts that will stand up under these severe conditions, car manufacturers have turned to new alloy metals of extra strength and durability. For the same reason, you must have oil with enough extra oiliness and film strength to protect your motor under extreme pressures!

Yet motor oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength now than they had ten years ago. New refining methods have recently come into use to make oils free from carbon and sludge. But these new refining processes have actually lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength!

There is one exception—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. It, too, is free from carbon and sludge troubles, as its users know after millions of trouble-free miles of driving. But more important, Timken machine tests prove that the new Germ Process* puts into this oil 2 to 4 times the film strength of any straight mineral oil! That extra film strength protects your motor under the most extreme pressures and heat.

Germ Processing gives other valuable advantages. Because Germ Processed Oil penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, a "Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and cuts down starting wear. Germ Processed Oil gives longer mileage with greater motor protection, as proved by the famous Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Plain mineral oils were all right ten years ago—today they are becoming obsolete. Say "O.K.—Drain"—fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and drive with the comfortable assurance that your oil meets your motor's needs!

Sport Notes

Our school did well at the county meet for the amount of material we had, as we placed in almost everything we entered. In all, we got 73 points, for our school, but only 66 points for the cup. We lacked only two points winning it.

First places were in junior spelling, essay writing, picture memory, volley ball and the junior broad jump.

Third places were in senior and junior declamation.

Intermediate Room Report
Bonnie Jarrett was absent on Tuesday.

We are working very hard this week, as it is examination week.

Those that won a place in the county meet, Friday and Saturday, were Zeta Lawson and Howard Spinks, first in picture memory, and Lucile Taylor third in junior declamation; Ovelia Wesson and Lucille Taylor, first in junior spelling; and Howard Spinks first in junior boys declamation.

Dorothea Marie Davis was absent from school Tuesday and Wednesday on account of illness.

Humor

One evening last week, Ruth Charline exclaimed, "Ah, I wish those trees would quit shedding their feathers so much."

Deward, while walking down the street, was stopped by a gentleman who asked him for a match. "Thank you," responded the gentleman. "You know, I am a man of importance at home. I am Sir John Bally Burley, knight of the garter, knight of the iron cross, knight of the golden fleece and knight of the eagle, and—what's your name, my good boy?"

"My name's Deward Fallon, —night before last, last night, tonight, tomorrow night and every other night."

He thinks he will just wade in from now on.
