Water System

Believed Assured

Mr. Bodkin has received telegrams this week regarding the government loan and the Goldthwaite sewer system and there now appears no doubt the system will be completed and that work will begin in the very near future. A telegram was from Senator H. G. Bodkin and the other was from the state administrator of public funds.

The system is to cost, according to the engineer's estimate, $2,272,000. A direct grant or gift, and will be a loan against the service charges. The engineer is not obligated to make any charges for sewerage. There will never be a property to pay the balance to the government.

Methodist Notes

Only two Sundays remain of the present conference year. It is to be hoped that all concerned will put forth every effort to make the closing of the year a great success. An adjourned session of the quarterly conference closing up the official work for the year Monday morning, showed clearly that just a little effort would close the year in fine shape. This was also suggested by the work of the official board which convened Monday evening. Now for a good, strong pull together.

It is due Brother Duke that the two Sundays preceding the close of the year measure up to the highest possibilities in the way of attendance at all the services the next two Sundays. All others who can attend will be received gladly, and I feel sure they will be amply repaid for their effort.

The Sunday school lessons for the present quarter have been of great interest. They deal with some of the great men of the Old Testament times. In connection with the lessons it is to be hoped that the people will take time to read the connecting history, so as to inform themselves with the local setting of the lessons.

In the feature section of the Dallas News last Sunday there was an article by the great Dr. Robert T. Hill, possibly one of the greatest writers in his special line in this or any other state. I wish everybody would read the letter, for the great truth it contains. Some things you will find in the story that you will not agree with. Dr. Hill, I take it, is not a churchman. Some things creep out in his writings that the real orthodox can not accept. In fact, a few Sundays back he rather boasted that he did not attend church. This is all to be regretted. But even this does not deter him from saying in last Sunday's letter that the Bible is the greatest of books. Then he lucidly sets forth many of the qualities that make it the most popular book in print.

If a man like Dr. Hill can see such wonders in the Book of Books it should cause those of us who pretend to be Christians and yet take so little interest in this great book to be ashamed of our negligence. Let us, therefore, not confine our study of the Bible to the narrow limits of the Sunday school lesson, but delve into the depths of this great book and learn all that it is possible for us to know of its teachings.

If one will but read the papers with his eyes open he will be able to see things that amuse him where he least expects to find them. For instance, a few days since, this writer was reading the decision of a judge of one of our Texas courts. It seems that an attorney was engaged in an attempt to convince the judge that the marble boards about which there has been much discussion and trouble in some quarters, were not instruments for gambling. Among the several reasons why the judge should decide that they were not means of gambling was the statement that Texas was in need of money to meet her running expenses. The judge readily admitted that Texas was in a bad way financially, but he also admitted that the time had not come in Texas yet when she should license law violation to meet the demands of a depleted treasury. Thanks be, we still have judges in Texas who still have some respect for Texas laws and the honor of Texas.

The Methodist church throughout Texas has for several years been greatly troubled to know just what to do with the many preachers who sought admittance into the traveling connection of her conferences. Many times within the past few years I have seen young men apply for admission and be denied, or

Pecan Threshing

Pecan threshing time is here and a good crop is reported.

The threshing and harvesting will afford employment for a number of boys and men in this section. The pecan men have been laboring hard on their orchards for several years. Hence the culture and care of the trees are now beginning to bring in a better grade of pecans and a fine yield. One pest the pecan men are anxious to stop is the one Tom, Dick or Harry, who is self invited, and goes to the trees and helps himself. So a word to the wise is sufficient. The owners say, "It must stop," and right it should, for a pecan crop is valuable and represents care and culture by the owners, similar to a cotton crop. The trees, if abused, will require years to overcome the loss.

Athens Social

On last Monday night members of the Athens class of the First Baptist church gathered at the Educational building for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year.

Everyone was right on time, thinking that perhaps they, too, might get "elected." After much social greeting, Mrs. R. E. Clements, in her charming manner, called the house to order and asked Mrs. Sansom to lead our opening prayer.

Each chairman of the different committees was called on to give a yearly report, which was very gratifying.

After all business had been disposed of, the president called for the chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Fred Martin, to make her report.

Mrs. Martin, in a few well chosen words, told how faithfully each officer had discharged their respective duties, how congenial and loyal they had been to help carry on the Athens class, that the committee decided that they could do no better than put each one back in their same office—and this suggestion met with a hearty approval with the entire membership.

The following officers were elected:

Teacher, Haynes Harrison; assistant teacher, Judge E. B. Anderson; president, Mrs. R. E. Clements; first vice president, Mrs. D. D. Tate; second vice president, Mrs. J. V. Cockrum; third vice president, Mrs. T. F. Toland; secretary, Mrs. Ramsey; assistant secretary, Mrs. Fred Martin; reporter, Mrs. Flora Jackson; assistant reporter, Mrs. O. E. Greathouse.

As each one of these officers reluctantly, yet willing to take up their same burden and try to carry on for another year, I wonder how many of us, as each individual, are willing to help share these responsibilities with them.

How many of us, as we read these lines, will say, "I never helped as much as I could have helped last year, but will do more this year toward the on-going of our Master's kingdom." Just how happy we would make these officers feel to know that every one that should be in the Athens class was co-operating with them in every way, just how much better the teacher could teach and how each officer could discharge their duties if they knew that each member was praying and giving of their time and talent to help carry on the work of such a worthy cause.

Let each one think very seriously of this matter, for in this turmoil of strife and struggle, we may all too soon be ushered into the presence of God, for He says in His blessed book, "We know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh," so let's find our places and be found working for Him when He comes, for how happy we'll be when that morning of all mornings, we will hear Him say softly, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many; enter thou in the joys of thy Lord."

After the business, Mrs. R. E. Clements, assisted by Mrs. Cockrum and Jimmie Frizzell, served delicious nut ice cream cones.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Clements, Mrs. Cockrum and Jimmie for this lovely treat.

Later we were all asked to the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Tate, where the ever new game of "42" was the diversion for the remainder of the evening. As this game never grows old, we enjoyed it until a very late hour.

We appreciate Mr. and Mrs. Tate opening the doors of their home to our class and want them to know we enjoyed every minute while there.

As each one said good-bye to our host and hostess, we thanked them again for their lovely hospitality.

The most outspoken Democrat opponent of President Roosevelt's policies—Senator Glass of Virginia—said Saturday the chief executive would be renominated without great opposition.

Election of Manuel Quezon as first president of the Philippine commonwealth, by more votes than his two opponents combined, was certified to Governor General Frank Murphy by the insular legislature.

Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas said Saturday he believed the Works Progress administration would spend at least $7,000,000 on a proposed $30,000,000 flood control program on the Brazos river in Texas.

The largest five-month building program in the state's history, which will transform the old fair grounds in Dallas into the $13,000,000 showplace of the state's 100th birthday, was launched Saturday to the sound of a muffled dynamite blast set off by Governor Allred.

The very marked reduction in German imports of cotton from the United States during recent months is partly due to increased purchases from South America, even though total imports of raw cotton also have been reduced, a commerce department summary reveals.

Suit to collect $35,700 from seven men for alleged fraudulent entry of 3000 gallons of alcohol into the United States, has been filed in federal court in Galveston by the United States district attorney. The suit is an outgrowth of the Little Audrey smuggling conspiracy in which several men were convicted on charges of bringing alcohol from Cuba to Texas.

The state department of education Saturday remitted to school districts $3 on the $17.50 scholastic apportionment for 1935-36. It marked the first time since 1930 the state had paid on a current basis. Payment was on the basis of 1,558,789 scholastics and aggregated $4,665,440.90. Checks were withheld from two independent and seven common school districts because they defaulted principal and interest on bonds held by the permanent school fund.

The state has sued a group of east Texas operators for penalties totaling $6,809,000 for alleged violation of oil conservation statutes and orders of the railroad commission. The attorney general filed two suits, one to recover $6,018,000 and the other $791,000. The first, naming eight operators, was the second largest in recent years, exceeded only by the $17,500,000 suit filed against fifteen major oil companies when Governor Allred was attorney general.

Russian troops trained to drop from the sky and attack the enemy from the rear form a branch of the Soviet army which is expected by Russia to give a good account of itself in case of war. Attention of foreign military experts has been attracted to this development more than to any other the Soviet Union has brought out in the way of military science. Whole regiments have been trained in parachute jumping and the training is going on apace as greater and greater possibilities are seen in this new method of fighting.

Opening the way for a projected settlement of trade relations in the Pacific, the United States and Japan Saturday concluded a gentlemen's agreement under which Japanese cotton textile exports to the Philippines will be limited to 45,000,000 square meters annually during the next two years. The limitation, agreed to by Japan to stave off the imposition of higher Philippine duties and anti-Japanese import agitation in the United States, was described by the state department as probably to assure American manufacturers and exporters of twice the value of imports from Japan.

PASSING REMARKS

The writer this week is thinking of the free text book law of Texas. The fact that the public school children of Texas have free text books is one of the outstanding factors equalizing educational opportunities. The facts are simple, bold and undisputable. First, this law makes possible the placement of uniform informational material in the hands of teachers and pupils. Second, the poor as well as the rich enjoy the use of the same books. A view of the inside of the book room of the average school reveals a wonderful library within the reach of every public school student.

It is unpardonable that teachers are sometimes so negligent in enforcing the proper care of these books. The state of Texas during 1934-1935 paid over $1,700,000 to publishers for books to be used as texts. (State department of education textbook bulletin No. 350, p. 146). Where does the money come from to buy these books? The answer is simple, the tax payer pays the bill.

The teacher is charged directly with the responsibility of having text books properly cared for. No book that must stand the wear of daily use can be properly cared for unless it is kept covered. It is interesting just here to notice in part a section of article 2876c of the revised statutes of 1925. "All teachers shall keep a record of the numbers of all books issued to each pupil. All books must be covered by the pupil under the direction of the teacher. Books must be returned to the teacher at the end of the session or when the pupil withdraws from school. Each pupil or its parent or guardian, shall be responsible to the teacher for all books not returned by the pupil, and said pupil not returning all books delivered to him or her shall not be entitled to the benefits of this act until said books are paid for."

This past week the writer gave a ride to three students of a school in a neighboring county. It so happened that the three children represented three different homes. The pupils had in their possession eight free text books. Of the eight books, not a single one of them was covered. School had been in progress four weeks.

The students were not to be blamed for this neglect in the care of books, but the teachers of this school were plainly violating the laws of this state. They were doing even more. They were neglecting a grand opportunity of teaching future citizens the proper care of public property.

The observance of two simple rules would save Texas many thousands of dollars each year and at the same time would help establish desirable habits on the part of students:

1. All text books covered at all times.
2. No books issued to any pupil until evidence is produced that all books were returned the preceding year.

From 1900 up to 1934 the leaf tobacco used for cigarettes increased from 13,084,037 lbs. to 326,093,357 lbs.; an increase of 2392%

It takes mild ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette.

During the year ending June 30, 1900, the Government collected from cigarette taxes $3,969,191

For the year ending June 30, 1934, the same taxes were $350,299,442 an increase of 8725% —a lot of money.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised. But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.

SENIOR CLASS MET

The senior class met Wednesday, October 9, to select colors and flowers. The suggestion was made that we choose such a flower that could be found at the close of the school for decoration purposes. After some discussion the rose was chosen as the class flower. The colors chosen were green and white.

We then decided to choose a motto. The two following mottos were suggested: "Climb to the top; it's crowded below," and "Onward ever; backward never."
 We have not yet decided on the motto, as it was suggested that the executive committee meet and select other mottos, which in turn will be brought before the class.

EIGHTH GRADE

At the class meeting held Wednesday, October 9, the following officers were elected: President, Charles Peck; vice-president,
 Thelma Henry; secretary-treasurer, Katherine Hodges. We think this is a very good selection and think these officers will do their duties well.

The junior baseball team is developing well. We hope to be very hard to please at the county meet. "Donald Duck" is making a fine first short, and hopes to make the team. He may be seen in action each day from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

SOPHOMORE NEWS

On October 8 the sophomore class met with their sponsor, Mr.
 Stephens, and elected the following officers for the year:
 President, Clark Davis; vice-president, George Ballard; secretary-treasurer, Naomi Childress.
 The sponsor and these officers intend to do their best to make the sophomore class of 1935-36 an outstanding class, and we are hoping that the members of the class will co-operate in this respect.

There are now 67 pupils in our class, a large number of them being new ones. We are surely glad to have them and hope they will like our school very much.

FIFTH GRADE

The fifth grade, with the help of a number of the six (1) class, put on a Columbus play last Wednesday, October 9, in the grammar school auditorium.
 Tuesday evening we put it on for the P-T. A. and then in chappel Wednesday.

Monday, October 14, two new pupils entered the six (1) class.
 Their names are Marjorie Fox
 from San Saba and Florence Southerland from Live Oak. We are very glad to have them.

We are very sorry that Betty June Blackburn is sick. We hope she will soon be back with us.

Rayford Herrington was absent all last week, but is present today. We are glad he is back.

THE FUTURE DISCLOSED

Editor Eagle:
 Mother Shipton, author of the following poem, was born in Norfolk, England, and died in Clifton, Yorkshire, 1449 A. D., forty-three years before Columbus discovered America. How many of her prophecies have come true can be checked by the most casual reader. How many are yet to become true remains to be seen.

A Woman's Prophecy

A carriage without horses shall go.
 Disaster fill the world with woe;

In London Primrose Hill shall be.

Its centre hold a bishop's see,
 Around the world men's thoughts shall fly
 Quick as the twinkling of an eye.

And waters shall great wonders do,
 How strange, and yet it shall come true;

Then up side down the world
 shall be,
 And gold found at the root of tree.

Through towering hills proud men shall ride,
 Nor horse nor ass move by his side.

Beneath the waters men shall walk.

Shall ride, shall sleep and even talk;

And in the air men shall be seen.

In white, in black, as well as green,

A great man then shall come and go.

For prophecy declares it so.
 In water iron then shall float,
 As easy as a wooden boat,
 Gold shall be found in stream and stone

In land that is as yet unknown.

Water and fire shall wonders
 do.

And England shall admit a Jew.

The Jews that once were held in scorn

Shall of a Christian then be born.

A house of glass shall come to pass

In England—but alas! alas!
 A war will follow with the work.

Where dwells the pagan and the Turk.

The states will lock in fierce strife.

And seek to take each other's life

When north shall then divide
 the south,

And eagles build in lion's mouth.

Then tax and blood and cruel war

Shall come to every humble door.

Three times shall sunny, lovely France

Be led to play a bloody dance,
 Before the people shall be free

Three tyrant rulers shall we see.

Three rulers in succession be,
 Each sprung from different dynasty.

Then when the fiercest fight
 is done,

England and France shall be as one;

The British olive next to twine
 in marriage with the German vine.

Men walk beneath and over streams,

Fulfilled shall be our strongest dreams.

All England's sons shall plow
 the land,

Shall off be seen with book in hand,

The poor shall now most wisdom know,

And water wind where corn
 did grow,

Great houses stand in far-flung vale,

All covered over with snow and hall.

And now a word in uncouth rhyme,

Of what shall be in future
 time,

For in those wondrous, far-off days,

The women shall adopt a craze
 To dress like men and trousers wear,

And cut off their lovely locks of hair.

They'll ride astride with brazen
 brow,

As witches on a broom stick now,

Then love shall die and marriage cease,

And nations wane as babes decrease,

And wives shall fondle cats
 and dogs,

And men live much the same as hogs.

In nineteen hundred twenty-six,

Build houses light of straw and sticks,

For then shall mighty wars be planned,

And fire and sword shall sweep
 the land.

But those that live the century through,

In fear and trembling this will do.

Flee to the mountains and dens,

To bog and forest and wild fen,

For storms shall rage and oceans roar,

When Gabriel stands on the sea and shore

And as he blows his wondrous horn,

Old world shall die and new
 be born. XX

LET CHILDREN SLEEP

While encouraging children to study, let us also protect their health. To those ambitious parents who persistently prod their children, we wish to point out the findings of a survey conducted among school children in a typical rural state. The survey showed that 77 per cent of the children were getting less sleep than they need to maintain health, vigor and proper growth; only 23 per cent were obtaining the proper amount or slightly more than considered necessary.
 Some of the reasons children fail to obtain enough sleep are:

1. Failure of parents to realize importance of regular bedtime and long hours of sleep for children.
2. Children being taken to entertainments, parties, etc. on school nights.
3. Late supper hours or early rising time.
4. Loud radio or unguarded conversation after children's bedtime.
5. Children curtailing their own sleep because of play interests.
6. Failure of other children

nearby to go to bed on time.

Necessary periods of sleep for children as reported by health authorities through the White House conference on child health and protection are as follows: Age 8 to 8 years, 12 hours; age 11 years, 11 hours;
 age 13 years, 10 hours.—Progressive Farmer.

NEWS BRIEFS

The most outspoken Democrat opponent of President Roosevelt's policies—Senator Glass of Virginia—said Saturday the chief executive would be renominated without great opposition.

Election of Manuel Quezon as first president of the Philippine commonwealth, by more votes than his two opponents combined, was certified to Governor General Frank Murphy by the insular legislature.

Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas said Saturday he believed the Works Progress administration would spend at least $7,000,000 on a proposed $30,000,000 flood control program on the Brazos river in Texas.

The largest five-month building program in the state's history, which will transform the old fair grounds in Dallas into the $13,000,000 showplace of the state's 100th birthday, was launched Saturday to the sound of a muffled dynamite blast set off by Governor Allred.

The very marked reduction in German imports of cotton from the United States during recent months is partly due to increased purchases from South America, even though total imports of raw cotton also have been reduced, a commerce department summary reveals.

Suit to collect $35,700 from seven men for alleged fraudulent entry of 3000 gallons of alcohol into the United States, has been filed in federal court in Galveston by the United States district attorney. The suit is an outgrowth of the Little Audrey smuggling conspiracy in which several men were convicted on charges of bringing alcohol from Cuba to Texas.

The state department of education Saturday remitted to school districts $3 on the $17.50 scholastic apportionment for 1935-36. It marked the first time since 1930 the state had paid on a current basis. Payment was on the basis of 1,558,789 scholastics and aggregated $4,665,440.90. Checks were withheld from two independent and seven common school districts because they defaulted principal and interest on bonds held by the permanent school fund.

The state has sued a group of east Texas operators for penalties totaling $6,809,000 for alleged violation of oil conservation statutes and orders of the railroad commission. The attorney general filed two suits, one to recover $6,018,000 and the other $791,000. The first, naming eight operators, was the second largest in recent years, exceeded only by the $17,500,000 suit filed against fifteen major oil companies when Governor Allred was attorney general.

Russian troops trained to drop from the sky and attack the enemy from the rear form a branch of the Soviet army which is expected by Russia to give a good account of itself in case of war. Attention of foreign military experts has been attracted to this development more than to any other the Soviet Union has brought out in the way of military science. Whole regiments have been trained in parachute jumping and the training is going on apace as greater and greater possibilities are seen in this new method of fighting.

Opening the way for a projected settlement of trade relations in the Pacific, the United States and Japan Saturday concluded a gentlemen's agreement under which Japanese cotton textile exports to the Philippines will be limited to 45,000,000 square meters annually during the next two years. The limitation, agreed to by Japan to stave off the imposition of higher Philippine duties and anti-Japanese import agitation in the United States, was described by the state department as probably to assure American manufacturers and exporters of twice the value of imports from Japan.

When you go to town tomorrow don't fail to notice how nice our streets have been fixed. Get in your car or vehicle and ride in your main street. You will think "just where am I?" The streets are to be proud of. It would be nice if our country roads could have something done to help their looks.

Would you think driving a school bus would give you the big head? It may not all of them, but when you meet the Ridge driver in town on the streets he doesn't seem to see you, so don't bob your head off being polite. For I've tried it. Of course, it is a ladies' place to speak first, but when you don't have any luck just look straight ahead.

PASSING REMARKS

The writer this week is thinking of the free text book law of Texas. The fact that the public school children of Texas have free text books is one of the outstanding factors equalizing educational opportunities. The facts are simple, bold and undisputable. First, this law makes possible the placement of uniform informational material in the hands of teachers and pupils. Second, the poor as well as the rich enjoy the use of the same books. A view of the inside of the book room of the average school reveals a wonderful library within the reach of every public school student.

It is unpardonable that teachers are sometimes so negligent in enforcing the proper care of these books. The state of Texas during 1934-1935 paid over $1,700,000 to publishers for books to be used as texts. (State department of education textbook bulletin No. 350, p. 146). Where does the money come from to buy these books? The answer is simple, the tax payer pays the bill.

The teacher is charged directly with the responsibility of having text books properly cared for. No book that must stand the wear of daily use can be properly cared for unless it is kept covered. It is interesting just here to notice in part a section of article 2876c of the revised statutes of 1925, "All teachers shall keep a record of the numbers of all books issued to each pupil. All books must be covered by the pupil under the direction of the teacher. Books must be returned to the teacher at the end of the session or when the pupil withdraws from school. Each pupil or its parent or guardian, shall be responsible to the teacher for all books not returned by the pupil, and said pupil not returning all books delivered to him or her shall not be entitled to the benefits of this act until said books are paid for."

This past week the writer gave a ride to three students of a school in a neighboring county. It so happened that the three children represented three different homes. The pupils had in their possession eight free text books. Of the eight books, not a single one of them was covered. School had been in progress four weeks.

The students were not to be blamed for this neglect in the care of books, but the teachers of this school were plainly violating the laws of this state. They were doing even more. They were neglecting a grand opportunity of teaching future citizens the proper care of public property.

The observance of two simple rules would save Texas many thousands of dollars each year and at the same time would help establish desirable habits on the part of students:

1. All text books covered at all times.
2. No books issued to any pupil until evidence is produced that all books were returned the preceding year.

Cigarettes give a lot of pleasure to a lot of people.

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised. But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.

SENIOR CLASS MET

The senior class met Wednesday, October 9, to select colors and flowers. The suggestion was made that we choose such a flower that could be found at the close of the school for decoration purposes. After some discussion the rose was chosen as the class flower. The colors chosen were green and white.

We then decided to choose a motto. The two following mottos were suggested: "Climb to the top; it's crowded below," and "Onward ever; backward never." We have not yet decided on the motto, as it was suggested that the executive committee meet and select other mottos, which in turn will be brought before the class.

EIGHTH GRADE

At the class meeting held Wednesday, October 9, the following officers were elected: President, Charles Peck; vice-president, Thelma Henry; secretary-treasurer, Katherine Hodges. We think this is a very good selection and think these officers will do their duties well.

The junior baseball team is developing well. We hope to be very hard to please at the county meet. "Donald Duck" is making a fine first short, and hopes to make the team. He may be seen in action each day from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

On October 8 the sophomore class met with their sponsor, Mr. Stephens, and elected the following officers for the year: President, Clark Davis; vice-president, George Ballard; secretary-treasurer, Naomi Childress. The sponsor and these officers intend to do their best to make the sophomore class of 1935-36 an outstanding class, and we are hoping that the members of the class will co-operate in this respect.

There are now 67 pupils in our class, a large number of them being new ones. We are sure glad to have them and hope they will like our school very much.

FIFTH GRADE

The fifth grade, with the help of a number of the six (1) class, put on a Columbus play last Wednesday, October 9, in the grammar school auditorium. Tuesday evening we put it on for the P-T. A. and then in chapel Wednesday.

Monday, October 14, two new pupils entered the six (1) class. Their names are Marjorie Fox from San Saba and Florence Southerland from Live Oak. We are very glad to have them.

We are very sorry that Betty June Blackburn is sick. We hope she will soon be back with us. Rayford Herrington was absent all last week, but is present today. We are glad he is back.

THE FUTURE DISCLOSED

Editor Eagle: Mother Shipton, author of the following poem, was born in Norfolk, England, and died in Clifton, Yorkshire, 1449 A. D., forty-three years before Columbus discovered America. How many of her prophecies have come true can be checked by the most casual reader. How many are yet to become true remains to be seen.

A Woman's Prophecy

A carriage without horses shall go,
Disaster fill the world with woe;
In London Primrose Hill shall be,
Its centre hold a bishop's see,
Around the world men's thoughts shall fly
Quick as the twinkling of an eye.
And waters shall great wonders do,
How strange, and yet it shall come true;
Then up side down the world shall be,
And gold found at the root of tree,
Through towering hills proud men shall ride,
Nor horse nor ass move by his side,
Beneath the waters men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep and even talk;
And in the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black, as well as green,
A great man then shall come and go,
For prophecy declares it so.
In water iron then shall float,
As easy as a wooden boat,
Gold shall be found in stream and stone
In land that is as yet unknown,
Water and fire shall wonders do,
And England shall admit a Jew,
The Jews that once were held in scorn
Shall of a Christian then be born,
A house of glass shall come to pass
In England—but alas! alas!
A war will follow with the work,
Where dwells the pagan and the Turk,
The states will lock in fierce strife,
And seek to take each other's life
When north shall then divide the south,
And eagles build in lion's mouth,
Then tax and blood and cruel war
Shall come to every humble door,
Three times shall sunny, lovely France
Be led to play a bloody dance,
Before the people shall be free

Three tyrant rulers shall we see,
Three rulers in succession be,
Each sprung from different dynasty.
Then when the fiercest fight is done,
England and France shall be as one;
The British olive next to twine
In marriage with the German vine,
Men walk beneath and over streams,
Fulfilled shall be our strongest dreams,
All England's sons shall plow the land,
Shall oft be seen with book in hand,
The poor shall now most wisdom know,
And water wind where corn did grow,
Great houses stand in far-flung vale,
All covered over with snow and hail,
And now a word in uncouth rhyme,
Of what shall be in future time,
For in those wondrous, far-off days,
The women shall adopt a craze
To dress like men and trousers wear,
And cut off their lovely locks of hair,
They'll ride astride with brazen brow,
As witches on a broom stick now,
Then love shall die and marriage cease,
And nations wane as babes decrease,
And wives shall fondle cats and dogs,
And men live much the same as hogs,
In nineteen hundred twenty-six,
Build houses light of straw and sticks,
For then shall mighty wars be planned,
And fire and sword shall sweep the land,
But those that live the century through,
In fear and trembling this will do,
Flee to the mountains and dens,
To bog and forest and wild fen,
For storms shall rage and oceans roar,
When Gabriel stands on the sea and shore
And as he blows his wondrous horn,
Old world shall die and new be born. XX

LET CHILDREN SLEEP

While encouraging children to study, let us also protect their health. To those ambitious parents who persistently prod their children, we wish to point out the findings of a survey conducted among school children in a typical rural state. The survey showed that 77 per cent of the children were getting less sleep than they need to maintain health, vigor and proper growth; only 23 per cent were obtaining the proper amount or slightly more than considered necessary. Some of the reasons children fail to obtain enough sleep are:

1. Failure of parents to realize importance of regular bedtime and long hours of sleep for children.
2. Children being taken to entertainments, parties, etc. on school nights.
3. Late supper hours or early rising time.
4. Loud radio or unguarded conversation after children's bedtime.
5. Children curtailing their own sleep because of play interests.
6. Failure of other children

nearby to go to bed on time.

Necessary periods of sleep for children as reported by health authorities through the White House conference on child health and protection are as follows: Age 5 to 8 years, 12 hours; age 11 years, 11 hours; age 13 years, 10 hours.—Progressive Farmer.

Produced by Constipation

A cleansing laxative—purely vegetable Black-Draught—is the first thought of thousands of men and women who have found that by restoring the downward movement of the bowels many disagreeable symptoms of constipation promptly can be relieved. . . Mr. J. P. Mahaffey, of Clinton, S. C., writes: "I have found that Black-Draught is very effective in the cleansing of the system. When affected by the dull headache, the drowsiness and lassitude caused by constipation, I take Black-Draught."

CONFIDENCE INCREASES

The criticism of the government's policies that have been so enthusiastic since the inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal have been for political purposes, to a large extent; nevertheless, they have had a deleterious influence on business in all lines, from the big financial transactions to the smaller retail selling, but this influence is passing to a considerable extent, as shown by the improved business conditions throughout the country. Leading commercial organizations and reporters affirm this truth and business people in all parts of the country have felt the upturn in trade and industry. One of the most reliable sources of general information in regard to the improvement comes from the reports issued by the Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York, showing that business activity throughout the country during the third quarter of 1935 was at a considerably higher rate than in the same period last year. The statement shows that while sales and production were "nearly six per cent higher during the first nine months of 1935 than in the first nine months of 1934, reports for the third quarter, July 1 to September 30, 1935, indicate that the increase over the same period last year amounted to 13 per cent." Such reports are encouraging and help to inspire confidence in business for the future.

A report of the secretary of labor in the president's cabinet states that manufacturing industries employed 180,000 more people and put nearly nine million dollars more in weekly pay envelopes during August than in the month of July, and adds that this shows that once the wheels have started turning, industry and business can generate the momentum to insure normal progress.

ENDORSES LEAGUE ACTION

All of the civilized world heartily endorses the action of the League of Nations committee in declaring an embargo against Italy in the importation of war munitions and at the same time allowing the purchase by Ethiopia of all munitions and the importation into that country of such war materials as may be needed. The world's sympathy is with the little African empire which is being invaded by a much stronger power, whose only justification for its act is territorial acquisition. Nobody blames Ethiopia for resisting the invasion to the last ditch and the pity of it is that the slaughter of the people of Ethiopia could not be prevented by the civilized world. The action of the League of Nations will cause Italy to regret the unholy move to despoil its weaker neighbor, but whatever action may be taken in the future or whatever regrets may be felt, the damage can not be undone, either to the standing of Italy as a nation or the destruction that has been wrought in Ethiopia. Had Mussolini believed the League would take such firm action it is likely he would have hesitated to enter upon his campaign of invasion. Everybody in this country would like to see the blacks whip the Italians to a stand-still, yet there is little hope for such a result.

UNEMPLOYMENT DECREASING

The increase in unemployment in the United States which occurred from June to July was partially offset by a reduction in August, due primarily to an increase in the employment of factory labor. The number of persons unemployed dropped from 13,018,000 in July to 12,877,000 in August. This decrease of 142,000 persons in the number of the unemployed meant an increase of 176,000 in the number employed, since a gain of 24,000 persons in the total supply of workers had to be absorbed before a decrease in unemployment was possible. The number of persons employed rose from 37,555,000 in July to 37,731,000 in August.

The unemployment situation in August was also less serious than in the corresponding month last year. From July to August last year, there was an increase in unemployment in contrast to the decrease this year. Consequently, the improvement over a year ago was greater in August than in July. There were 414,000 fewer persons unemployed in August this year than in the same month last year, while the number of persons employed showed an increase of 704,000.

A QUESTION OF EDUCATION

It is a charitable view to take of life and the living to believe that people do the best they know how and that is probably true, in which case it is the function of education and of society to see that the public shall know what is best for themselves, for their neighbors and for their neighbors' neighbors. One editorial writer who discusses the subject pretty thoroughly concludes that education can not bear all of the blame or burden, and says:

"Education, without character, has led to the development of some of the most dangerous crooks and scoundrels in all history. Society's worst enemies are composed of well-educated and intelligent men who use their knowledge to prey on the people."

To an extent he is correct, but it must be conceded that one of the objects of education is to cultivate and exalt character, and the greater the educational opportunities offered the greater are the possibilities for elevation of thought and the development of character.

CRITICISM UNWARRANTED

There has been outspoken criticism of the Texas legislature for spending the entire first called session in debate and argument, without enacting the laws placed on the calendar by the governor, but had such laws been enacted along illadvised lines there would have been much more criticism, and its character would have been more harsh. The legislators are right to contend for such provisions in the law as they consider good and for the best interest of the state. It is better to take plenty of time to consider all proposed legislation than to enact it hurriedly and then have cause for regret. The main body of the legislature, and perhaps each individual member, will strive to do the best possible for the state and if the second called session results the same as the first session, the people of the state can be sure their representatives have used the time in an endeavor to secure the enactment of satisfactory and beneficial laws.

It adds little cheer as approaching winter is contemplated to note that the passage of the Guffey bill makes possible an agreement on prices among members of the soft coal industry. Because of some speeches made at a meeting of the Russian Communists known as the Third Communist Internationale, votes of protest were sent to the Soviet government by the United States, Great Britain, Italy and Latvia. The Soviet government denied responsibility for the acts of the Third Internationale and refused to accept the notes. We have, it would seem, communists without a country.

A plan is suggested to handle paroles. The power of parole would be taken away from the governor and left to the vote of the people at any general election in the community in which the crime was committed. In this way a governor would never be subjected to pressure and political influence to grant a parole. This plan would also preclude the possibility of a governor returning back into a community a wrong doer before the community, which, after all, is the best judge, felt he had been sufficiently punished. If the community in which the crime was committed, does not want an offender back, certainly no governor has the right to require that community to take him back.

COMMON COLDS

"The 'open season' for the so-called common cold has again arrived. Victims of this general complaint will constantly increase during the winter months. Large numbers of persons will become temporarily incapacitated, many will become dangerously ill while yet others will succumb to complications," states the state health officer.

In spite of the wonderful strides in disease prevention made in the last few decades, the problem of the common cold yet remains to be solved. If the situation lent itself to mass control, there possibly would be no problem. Unfortunately, however, the matter cannot be handled in that way. The solution, in view of present-day limitations, rests somewhat upon the intelligent co-operation of the individual. So far, this has proved to be an insurmountable barrier. The trouble arises because the victim fails to appreciate the possibility of 'only a cold.' In fact, with the day's work to be done, it is difficult to be self-persuaded that one should remain at home, and possibly in bed, if overtaken by such an infection. Feeling quite able to move around, it is hard to realize that rest and care represent the best treatment not only for the cold itself, but as a preventive of more dangerous supplemental conditions.

The average person argues that home and bed are alright when one is too sick to be any place else. However, the scientific facts prove that most of the calamities now charged to the common cold could be avoided if one would at least stay at home when this infection appears and remain there until it is cured. In fact, on a business basis, it is the economical and wise procedure. For 'only a cold' may develop into a very real illness; therefore, every precaution should be taken to minimize the spread of this infection.

FARMERS GETTING SOME OF IT BACK

For more than 100 years the farmers of this country have paid a tariff on nearly every manufactured commodity they purchased. Now, cotton farmers are getting some of it back. The so-called two cent bonus which farmers are being paid for their cotton comes from the treasury of the United States. Congress authorized the segregation of 30 per cent of the customs receipts which may be used to encourage the exportation and marketing of agricultural products. The payment of a maximum of 2 cents per pound up to a maximum of 12 cents, 7-8 inch middling basis, was considered ample reason to reduce the loan to a level below the world price for cotton, and, therefore, paying the farmer 2 cents per pound bonus encourages the exportation of cotton. While the cotton farmer continues to pay the tariff, he gets it back when he sells his cotton. The joke, if any, is on the advocates of a high protective tariff.—Farm and Ranch.

Views of the Nation's Press on Topics of Interest and Importance

Another Potato Rebellion

Maine rivers once went on a rampage, and, just before the season when the frost is on the vine, gave the state what was long thereafter remembered as the pumpkin fiasco. Now up in Aroostook potato growers are indulging in what may be called a potato rebellion. They are participating in the second uprising against the potato control act. The first was that of the enemies of the law. They rebelled when they supposed that efforts would be made to enforce it. Thereupon Secretary Wallace sought refuge in the claim that he had not funds with which to see that the pains and penalties for violation of the potato quotas and the system of labeling the legal potatoes were suffered. The rebellion for the time being appeared to be successful. The Secretary was in jocular mood. He appeared to be hailing victory in the midst of defeat. He cheerfully admitted that his sympathies were with the rebels.

Now, however, it appears that this much-discussed potato law has produced another rebellion. This time it is the large growers who are on the warpath. They met in Washington the other day. For a short time Secretary Wallace was among those present. When he departed it was not with the air of one prepared to say that the occasion was much enjoyed by all. Some of those present had made pointed remarks at the expense of a secretary whom they charged with defying the will of congress.

In this manner another chapter has been written in the story of the campaign to count and register the potatoes of a nation. Maine naturally plays a prominent role in the tale. Governor Brann was present at the meeting in Washington. Representative Brewster helped draw the act. Senators Hale and White were credited with securing its passage in the senate. When the product of the far-spreading Aroostook fields is in issue, party lines are forgotten in the Pine Tree state, which may be equivalent to saying that potatoes as well as politics make strange bedfellows.—Boston Transcript.

OLD CHURCHES

"The most phenomenal architecture on the North American continent, done by the old padres of centuries ago, can be seen in Santa Fe an other parts of New Mexico." Archbishop Gerken said. He described the famous Church of the Skies, at Acoma, New Mexico, when he said:

"It is set upon a rock, 350 feet from base to surface, and the only way to get to it is to climb the 350 feet up through the crevice, mounting the rock with the aid of the hands. The walls are ten feet thick and forty feet high. The building is 40 by 120 feet. The ceiling beams are pine trees fifty feet long, and carried by the Indians from a forest thirty miles away. So devoted were the Indians that in all the thirty miles they never once let the pine trees touch the ground. They wanted the beams to be unsullied when they were put into the church."

It is in churches like these, he said, that the old records are found. Ever so often an old document is discovered after lying untouched for 200 years or more.

There are twelve of the very old churches in the Santa Fe diocese. The Indian women take great pride in keeping the churches immaculate. They whitewash the walls, inside and out, with a thin mixture. They rub it on the walls with their hands.

In the diocese are twenty-seven pueblos with a population of 10,000 Indians. There are also 1,500 Jicarillo Apaches on a reservation and 25,000 Navajo Indians on another.—The Earth.

FEDERAL AID

You must be patient when dealing with the government. If you owe the government anything you must pay it or take the consequences. The consequences may be a long time in consumation, but will be consumated eventually, if not soon. On the other hand, when the government owes you, there is nothing to do but wait. The final order for payment must go through a number of hands before the check comes up to be signed. And when it comes up to be signed it must pass through several more hands before the lawful and effective signature is written. After that it must be checked back and cleared for the mail, which is very careful work and takes a right smart while. So don't look for the new sewers in your town over soon. They won't come suddenly. But if they come at all, as they will if definitely promised and provided for, they will constitute a highly valuable improvement. Much is being done governmentally in the way of public betterments. Roads, bridges, underpasses, sewers, waterworks—these and other benefits are being brought to hundreds of communities through federal aid. The motive mainly is to provide work for the workless, but the incidental value is to be reckoned as the primary one, because it will last longer.—State Press in Dallas News.

POSITION OF COTTON

The cotton crop, according to the October forecast of the United States department of agriculture, which was issued Tuesday, is estimated at 11,464,000 bales, a slight decline from the September estimate, and still 150,000 bales in excess of world consumption of American cotton last year. The Texas crop deteriorated during September more than the average for the whole south, being estimated at 3,275,000 bales, or 192,000 bales less than the September estimate. In spite of this decline, however, it is still true that the total income from the Texas crop, including all government payments, will be greater than that from any crop since 1929. So the current year will be the best for Texas cotton since the beginning of the depression. That is one way of looking at it. But it is far from meaning that cotton is making such strides toward recovery as the figures seem to indicate on their face. The American crop of 11,464,000 bales is to be compared with foreign crops amounting to 13,984,000 bales. This means that the United States this year has produced approximately only 45 per cent of the world's production of cotton.—Texas Weekly.

WHAT WE THINK
(By Frank Dixon)

I differ with four phases of relief program. It may be there are facts in connection with this program with which I am not familiar, but I am making my conclusion on the information that has been available to me and to others in the press.

I claim that too much work has been done. Instead of raking leaves and washing down the idle man power of the country should have been building roads. There are more roads that should be built than all those idle now can be built in ten years. If the money has been spent building roads, there would now have a splendid opportunity to show for what was spent.

I claim that too much has been spent on administration of the program had been spent on the construction of practically no additional administration machinery would be necessary. Each state, county, each township has organization already functioning which could have received money and begun the construction of a state wide system of highways in thirty days.

I claim that the amount per man has been too small. It would call attention to the depression often used in connection with relief program the "pumps was being primed" have primed a good many men in my life, but my experience has always been that unless you get a lot of water into the pump at one time it runs through the pump is not primed. I claim that a gallon of water poured in only will prime most pumps. I claim that a hundred gallons dribbled at a time will not start the pump.

The average worker receives only enough for necessities. Hence he bought only necessities. Business was revived by necessities, but improved by necessities alone will bring business back to normal. The heavy industries must be stimulated; they cannot be stimulated with the purchase of canned beans, flour, prunes, calico.

I claim that relief should be made available to all employed alike. There are reasons for this. First, it is fair to take the savings from man who has economized, while the man who has closed no economy is being closed. Second, if the man has saved his savings had been eligible for relief if unemployed, he would have spent his relief for necessities and invested a portion of his savings in things which stimulate the heavier industry. The stimulation of which is advised as necessary before recovery can come.

A nation wide building program would have seen us out of the depression with a system of good roads in every county and state—a utility would be ready for use in normal times returned. As many counties have no roads or few more good roads than they had when the depression began.

Two million men built roads would have put five million more men back to work supplying them with material and merchandise that employed men would have bought.

The road building program my way of thinking, would have been simpler, more effective and more practical.

In addition to this Judge Abney was informed by the office at Waco that this county had approved of a "sewing room project" amounting to a little more than $12,000.00.

Kenneth Gallon Smith, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Smith of the Mohomet community, was killed Monday afternoon when a run-away team ran over him. The little fellow had gone to the field with his brothers, who were gathering corn. He got sleepy and was placed in some tall weeds so he could be in the shade and sleep. The team became frightened at something and ran off, running over the child and killing him almost instantly.—Record.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs is one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical—only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

CLUB RESOLUTIONS

Goldthwaite, October 1, 1935. To the President and Members of the Goldthwaite Lion's Club:

We, your committee heretofore appointed to draft resolutions concerning the untimely death of our fellow member, L. E. Miller, beg leave to submit the following:

Whereas, L. E. Miller was a distinguished and out-standing member of our Lion's Club, and

Whereas, he was also an outstanding citizen, who without fear or favor, stood for justice and right; a citizen who ever had a sympathetic hand and purse for the weak and needy, who ever had a word of encouragement to the school boy and the business man, who lent his enthusiasm to every worthy enterprise, who answered every call of friendship with unhesitating gladness and who ever stood breast-forward, looking for and expecting higher and better things, and

Whereas, his unexpected passing has cast a shadow of sorrow over our town and county and wherever he was known, and

Whereas, we grieve with his noble and courageous widow, his respected family and his honored friends everywhere:-

Therefore: Be it resolved, that we deplore the loss of our valued fellow member and we extend to his sorrowing widow and friends our sincere sympathy and that we say to the generous spirit that was L. E. Miller, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

Be it further resolved, that we strive to emulate his earnestness, aggressiveness and enthusiasm and push on to a successful conclusion the many good works begun by him.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be spread on our minutes, a copy be presented to his widow, Mrs. L. E. Miller, and a copy published in the Goldthwaite Eagle.

Respectfully submitted,
H. G. BODKIN,
F. P. BOWMAN,
PAUL McCULLOUGH,
Resolutions Committee.
