SCHOOLS AND MORALS

By Tolbert Patterson
Kathlene Norris is a readable writer. She once remarked, "To be satisfied, individuals must be able to adjust themselves." Inability for adjustment in a world that is forever changing is surely man's most serious handicap. "Unhappy and foolish is the individual that does not mark change" should be constantly in our thoughts. This is a powerful statement, saturated with an indisputable truth. Even God in his creation of this physical world ordained that there be change, and even the face of the earth changes each day. In this change, growth and development man sees the truth, greatness and power of God. Cramped, unsuccessful and miserable are we that fight against the inevitable on-going of change. The American people have been characterized as a people quick to accept every fad, cling to a new thought for only a short time, then ready to grasp at something different. I am truly glad that I am a member of a people which believe and live in an ever changing society. From this contact with and participation in the new, we have the opportunity of retaining the good, quickly discarding the bad and emerging with a fresh outlook on life. I am sure that I am an optimist in believing that the world is not degrading into everything bad. I honestly believe that this generation of boys and girls, who are now in their teens, has a more sane viewpoint on life, think more seriously, are preparing themselves better for life, will meet problems with a more unflinching challenge, even dress and eat more sanely, than any generation that America has produced.

The public schools are in a favorable position to train for life adjustments. This position is unchallenged by either home or church, but must be assisted by each. This is true for the simple reason that the school is at this time devoting more time to child training than either the church or the home. As a medium, the public schools should render the following services for the youths of America:

1. General informational training to all. This means the teaching of these fundamentals necessary for use in every day living and a foundation sufficient for future study and training, if the individual so desires.
2. Specific training of the practical sort to help the individual make a living and live more happily, whether or not that individual has the opportunity or cares to secure additional training.
3. The school has the grave responsibility of moral training. Some might say that this training belongs to the home and the church, but this type of training is of the nature to demand that any institution touching the life of the individual should share in its responsibility. Traits of honesty, truthfulness, sportsmanship, neighborliness and sympathy supply the balancing force that adds a humane element to living.

These three functions of public schools are not named as the all-inclusive functions. In our efforts at child training, however, the last named item must not be forgotten. The teacher has failed who neglects the daily opportunity to drop some homely philosophy, to use some common experience, or to draw from the life of the Great Teacher some point of experience to aid in getting across to childhood some principle of moral obligation.

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS

The governor and his friends opposed certain taxes; some members opposed substantial increases in other taxes; thus, we failed to pass revenue measures to support the old age pension. All justified their positions by their campaign promises. Of what use are such promises when they prevent obedience to the mandate of the people expressed at the polls?
Yours,
R. A. LUKER.

MARRIED IN STEPHENVILLE

Millard Cockrum and Miss Ellen Archer drove over to Stephenville last Friday and were married, after which they continued their trip to Fort Worth and spent a short while, returning to Goldthwaite Sunday. These are popular young people, and everybody wishes them all good fortune. Their friends are enthusiastic in offering congratulations and expressions of friendship.
The wedding was not a surprise, altho the exact date was not known to any but the most intimate friends of the young people.
The groom is a prosperous young business man and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Cockrum. He was reared in this county, as was his bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Archer.
One pleasant feature about the wedding is the fact that the young couple will continue to make their home in Goldthwaite.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Long and family visited her parents at San Saba Sunday.

A definite allotment of $50,000 for building six miles of highway No. 36 east from Comanche has been made and the contract will be let by Jan. 1. A vote of 3 to 1 in the commissioners court, in session here Monday, called for the resignation of County Agent J. A. Barbody as effective January 1. Levitt Little, commissioner of the State Highway Department, No. 1, voted against the action asking the agent's resignation. Commissioners Sam E. H. McCarty and Ed Lightfoot voted to ask Barton to vacate his position. County Agent R. S. McCharen said, when interviewed Thursday morning, another agent would be employed to begin work January 1. Rev. D. A. Chisholm, formerly of Belton, will serve as pastor for Central Methodist church, Brownwood, for the next conference year. Rev. H. S. Goodenough, former pastor of the Brownwood church, has been transferred to Denver Heights Methodist church in San Antonio. Collection of taxes on the intangible assets in Brown county of the Atlantic Pipe Line company was prohibited in a permanent injunction ordered in federal court in Dallas Saturday. Judge William H. Atwell made the ruling, which nullifies the Texas intangible tax law amended by the legislature in 1933 insofar as it applies to oil pipe lines. A request for donations of morning glory seed to be used as a part of the highway beautification committee's contribution to making this section more attractive for Centennial year has been made by Mrs. Will Roberts, district chairman. The work of planting the seeds, which should be done immediately, will be accomplished with the co-operation of the state highway department and interested citizens. An order has been issued to state highway patrolmen stationed in Brownwood district to arrest and fine all motorists caught breaking the state speed limit of 45 miles per hour. Speed limit for vehicles weighing more than 6,000 pounds is 25 miles per hour, except busses, which may go 45 miles per hour. The speed limit for cars and buses on state highways through any town is 25 miles per hour, and the truck limit is 18 miles per hour.—Banner.
