Seven Inches of Rain

From Monday night to Friday morning of this week, the government rain gauge at Harry Allen's has registered more than seven inches of rain. Other sections of Mills county are reported to have received more.

Trench Silos

The breaking of the summer drouth by the recent heavy rains insures a good fall crop of feed. Farmers should prepare trenches to be filled when feed matures. Ask D. G. Barnett, L. H. Soules, Elvis Morris, C. H. Sanderson, Cooksey Bros., Otis Hutchings, M. L. Jernigan, Albert Fambion, W. A. Bayley and E. M. McCasland about the low cost of digging trenches.

Child Welfare Board Organized

The Mills County Child Welfare Board held its first meeting at the court house Saturday, September 12 at 3 p. m. This was a record meeting as the plan of the social security board of Texas is that a permanent child welfare board operate in every county in the state. The board is composed of seven members chosen on account of their interest in children and experience in social work. The purpose of the board is to study the needs of the dependent, neglected and handicapped children, to familiarize the citizens of the county of the needs of such children; to stimulate families, communities and counties toward the acceptance of the responsibility for adequate planning; to encourage Mills county in the development of all character building, health education and recreational work and believing that prevention is better than correction. The following officers and committees were elected: Chairman of the board, T. F. Sansom; vice chairman of the board, Eric Robinson; secretary-treasurer of the board, Flora G. Bowles; Committees: Social service, Mrs. S. J. Casey and Frank Kirby; Educational publicity, Mrs. Mohler Oglesby and Mrs. T. L. Adams; Mesdames Casey and Oglesby will announce later the personnel of their complete committees, which will be composed of representative people who are interested in child welfare from each community in Mills county. SECRETARY.

In Mills county 151 loans were closed in the amount of $241,150 by the Federal Land bank and the land bank commissioner, from May 1, 1933 through June 30, 1936, according to information received by H. P. Drought, national emergency council state director for Texas. Of the loans closed in this county 39 for $90,800 were made by the Federal Land bank and 112 totaling $150,350 by the land bank commissioner. Through the agency of the farm credit administration in Texas $196,139,976 has been loaned during the same period. These loans included 18,363 of Federal Land bank loans for $89,429,400; 31,213 land bank commissioner loans in the amount of $58,151,000; 27,593 production credit associations totaling $27,780,358; 123,286 emergency crop loans amounting to $13,808,994, and 42,834 drouth relief loans for $6,970,224. In addition to refinancing loans through the farm credit administration, the farmers in Texas were benefitted also by a reduction of mortgage principal which amounted to $6,288,500. Further savings resulted from lowered interest rates as estimated at $3,500,000 annually. In the period May 1, 1933 through June 30, 1936, 765,674 mortgage loans, totaling $2,056,826 were made and $1,391,373,603 was advanced in loans to co-operatives, while $318,878,072 was loaned to co-operatives by the agencies of the farm credit administration in the United States.

Methodist Notes

The meeting announced for the Methodist church began Sunday. Brother Duke preached at both the morning and the evening hour. A very good audience was present at both services. Brother Nixon who is to preach during the remainder of the meeting, came Monday. Due to the continued rains and inclement weather, it was thought best to close the meeting with the service yesterday morning. The church at large is feeling the need of revival power as it probably has not felt it in recent years. Not only is this true of the church, but it is also true of the general forces of human interest. Even our political leaders are saying that the crying need of our times is a return to God, and to things spiritual. In this they are correct prophets. It is Christ in human experience or our civilization must be turned into chaos. This is the meaning, if we interpret correctly the signs of the times as we read them in the bloody trails all over Europe. It simply means that there is being written in blood, the awful indictment against a civilization that has turned its back upon the high and holy principles upon which civilization has been founded. It is time for America to awake, and we can not do better than to see to it that our own individual hearts become sensitive to our needs. The public press carried a few days ago the account of the death of a young Texan whose life story should be read by every boy and girl in Texas. It would certainly be a source of inspiration to all. He was in his early forties, and yet he had so lived that he had impressed the entire south with his greatness. He had in these years graduated with two degrees from college. He had been a successful business man. He had been a college professor in one of our leading universities. He had been elected president of one of our great universities, an honor which he declined. He was an assistant manager of the Methodist Book concern at Nashville, giving it an organization that distinguished him. He died president of a great college. He accomplished all this, and then to neglect nothing that came his way, he was a leader in his local church, and a member of the general conference of his church for four or five sessions. His life has always been above reproach. What a lesson such a life would be as an inspiration to the thousands of young men who are now in college preparing for their life work. J. S. BOWLES.

Flood Threatens

With from 20 to 30 inches of rain in the Colorado River watershed around San Angelo, the already swollen Colorado River is expected to overflow a considerable area of Big Valley when the crest of the rise reaches here tomorrow or Sunday. Farmers in the valley were working feverishly to gather corn before the river breaks through. There is considerable unpicker cotton in the valley which will be a total loss if the river floods the fields. At San Angelo between 700 and 800 people were homeless last night as the worst flood in the city's history swept over much of the business and residential sections.

AGED PEOPLE NOTICE

The investigator for this district from Comanche will be in Goldthwaite Saturday morning only, at the court house in the county judge's office. See him if you have any problems that need solving on old-age assistance. R. J. GERALD, County Judge.

OLD-TIMER REPORTS

Mr. W. W. Berry is one of the old timers who came in to say that he was present at the opening of Goldthwaite and the sale of town lots. He and Arch Carson camped where the Methodist church now stands which was a thicket of brush.

Methodist Notes

Hester and Trent served an ice cream course from a tea table decorated in the club colors of green and white, with silver appointments. The following program was carried out: September Re-assembly. Hufstutler attended the state convention of the Democratic party held in Fort Worth last week. Josh Lee, congressman of Oklahoma, made a stirring address to the convention and received the praise of all Texans.

METHODISTS TO MEET IN HOUSTON IN NOVEMBER

Between 15,000 and 20,000 Texans and out-of-state visitors will be in Houston during the five-day period beginning November 4, when Methodists of Texas celebrate Methodism's part in the "making of the Texas century of progress." Many nationally known figures will participate in the meetings. It was announced Saturday by John T. Scott, chairman of the general committee on arrangements. Among them will be Bishop E. H. Hughes of Washington, Bishop C. L. Mead of Kansas City; Bishop George Miller of Chicago; Bishop E. D. Mouzoa of Charlotte, S. C.; Dr. Roy L. Smith of Los Angeles; C. C. Seaceman of Dallas; Bishop A. Frank Smith of Houston; Bishop H. A. Boaz and others. Governor James V. Alford has been invited to speak. "This convention is without question the most important one to come to Houston in a number of years and Houston is appreciative," said A. D. Simpson, chairman of the chamber of commerce convention committee. No other such gathering has ever been held in the history of worldwide Methodism. It was pointed out Saturday by Bishop Smith.

From Chicago to Galveston and from New York to Los Angeles this meeting is attracting attention," Bishop Smith declared.

Baptist Reminder

We ought to have good crowds at all our services Sunday. People are staying in all this week, so they will surely want to get out Sunday. Our Sunday school is holding up in a great way for this season of the year. For the first two Sundays of September we have averaged 164 present. Let's do our best to make our average up to this the rest of the month. Your presence will greatly help us. There were 25 present in the ladies meeting Monday. There are about 40 active members and they are doing a fine work. If they follow the program suggested by our president it will revolutionize the mission spirit of our church. Come and be with us at all our services Sunday. We will have preaching at both morning and evening hours. FRANKLIN E. SWANNER.

Nazarene Remarks

The meeting continues with renewed interest in spite of the rainy weather. While the congregations have not been large, they have been very faithful, and often larger than we would be expecting during the rain. Well, these good rains are very much appreciated. The revival services will continue through September 27. Services are being held each week day from Monday through Friday at 10 a. m. Evening services begin at 7:30. Brother Theus is an outstanding evangelist in our church, and is doing a very profitable work with us. The attendance in all the services are increasing. We invite others. CHARLIE HARRISON, Pastor.

Marriages Go Begging On Light Crust Day

Mills county couples who contemplate marriage ignored the Light Crust flour day on Monday, Sept. 14, and missed getting the satin sack of Light Crust flour and free wedding license and free ceremony. L. B. Porter, county clerk, said that it would probably be next year before Mills county would be included again. Some marriage licenses were issued Saturday, a favorite marrying day, but Monday was without an applicant, said Mr. Porter.

HEAVY RAINS COVER WIDE AREA IN TEXAS

Rain-swollen streams in Texas menaced property and took at least one life Tuesday. Two rivers rose rapidly, creeks became torrents and some lowlands flooded in the wake of cloudbursts measured unofficially to fifteen inches. Deluges at Kerrville sent creeks and the Guadalupe ram-paging. William Osborn, 75, attempted to cross Town Creek and drowned. His body washed a half mile. Earlier streets were two-feet in water. Business establishments were flooded and the Catholic church foundation possibly undermined. A twelve-inch rain in the Nueces river headwaters sent the stream boiling to a fifteen-foot stage above Uvalde. Sheep and goats drowned and fifty motorboats were lost at San Angelo when 12 inches of rain drove the North and South Concho rivers to twenty-foot stages. A family of five waded out in waist-deep water from near the fish hatchery. The boat house on Lake Nasworthy broke from its moorings and crashed into the dam. Highway and washouts halted highway and rail traffic and washed away bridges.—Dallas News.

Eagles To Show New Plays And New Suits

The Goldthwaite Eagles will play their first conference game and their first game of the football season against Fredericksburg on the Eagles' home field at the fair grounds 3:30 Friday, September 18 (today). The team will wear for their first game an entirely new set of suits. This will not only add to the appearance of the team, but also to their efficiency, as proper equipment is necessary for a good game. The starting lineup for the Eagles will be as follows: L. E. George Ballard, L. T. Fred Marshall, L. G. Shultz Faulkner, C. Floyd McKenzie, R. G. Glendon Armstrong, R. T. Troy Berry, R. E. F. Coffman, Q. B. Alternate Captain Clark Davis, L. H. Eugene Fox, R. H. Captain J. D. McKenzie, F. B. Al Langford. Disregarding the rain and mud, the Eagles have practiced every afternoon the past week, and have showed surprising improvement. The rain has made the field muddy, but if it is not too wet Friday afternoon, the game will take place as scheduled.

School News

The local public schools are moving nicely. The enrollment is increasing continuously. Classrooms and rooms are badly crowded. Some of the class and group organizations have been perfected. Below is a report of the organization of the Future Farmers of America. This group is made up of students of vocational agriculture. The purpose of it is to increase respect for the profession of farming and to give the boys some very useful training in organization work. Also below is a report of the organization of the pep squad. This organization is well known to all and needs no further comment. The various high school classes have selected the following faculty members as sponsors for the year: Freshman class—Mrs. Grady Baker. Sophomore class—Mr. Winslar. Junior class—Mrs. Euna V. Barnett. Senior class—Mrs. Lois Marshall. The organization of the staff for the High School Herald has been delayed this week on account of the heavy rains and accompanying absence from school. This will be perfected before next week and you are invited to watch for the school news next week.

PEP SQUAD ORGANIZED

Students interested in a pep squad for the 1936 series met last Wednesday morning for the purpose of organizing. The officers are as follows: President, Lorane Bledsoe; secretary - treasurer, Juanita Sanderson; Reporter, Izetta Featherston, main yell leader, Louise Gartman; assistant yell leaders, Joyce Johnson, Janette Martin; sponsors, Mrs. Grady Baker, Mrs. Delton Barnett. The purpose of this organization is to help keep a cheerful atmosphere and to promote loyalty to their school among the students. If you are not a member of the pep squad, we want your support anyway, because our school is your school, and we need your help. Our first football game is with Fredericksburg and is scheduled for Friday, September 18 at 4 o'clock. The game will be played here and we expect to see you on the sidelines. Any support you give us and the football squad will be deeply appreciated. (Continued on page 2)

STAR

Cotton picking, ginning, snapping corn and hauling wood is the order of the day round-about. That along with the school keeps everybody and hired hands busy. Oh, and that's not all—there's going to be another shower this week. This is another bridal shower at the home of Mrs. Lant Adams, honoring her newly acquired daughter, Mrs. V. D. Adams. This is the fourth bridal shower in recent weeks. Everybody and their "grandmas" have exhausted their reserve supply of cup-towels and pillow slips. Better not anybody else get married for a spell. Pardon the English.

Star's ambitious youngsters have scattered to the four winds for the winter. Miss Mary Soules, a recent Denton graduate, went to Doole Saturday where she has a position in their school. She was accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Soules, who returned home the same day.

Miss Iva Pearl Neighbors has returned to Howard Payne at Brownwood for the winter term. Wendell Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hamilton, goes to A. & M. at College Station.

James Soules, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Soules, is in school at Baylor, in Waco.

Miss Bernice Soules, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Soules, will teach at Cottonwood in Hamilton county.

Miss Leon McGilvary, who received her degree from Howard Payne the past summer, has a position in the Buffalo school.

Our school which opened on the seventh, inst., hasn't been rained on yet. You know everybody and the kids get wet on the first day of school—seems to be a habit of the weather man to sprinkle raindrops in the air on that day. From the looks of the clouds and the sky it appears that we started school about a week too soon. The youngsters got to wear their new school clothes a whole week without getting them soaked.

Our faculty, and we believe we have a good one this year, is composed of Prof. Armstrong, supt.; Miss Williams, English; Miss Williamson, specializing in school music; Miss McEver, specializing in home economics; Prof. Cook, coach and manual training; Mr. Geeslin, band and orchestra and Mrs. Hill, primary. We have three busses and look forward for great things.

We want to compliment the school board members: Messrs. Otho Clary, Hardy Collier, Louie Karnes, Robert Moore, Doran Henry, Dick Jaske and Jim Witty, also Messrs. Henry Peck and Frank Shelton who have only recently been replaced by Messrs. Jeske and Witty, for their untiring efforts to get capable and efficient teachers.

The P.-T. A. met Friday night at the school auditorium for the election of new officers and for the election of new officers, and for a round-table discussion of the program ahead. Mrs. John Soules was re-elected president; Mrs. P. O. Harper, vice-president. A program of entertainment will be given at the close of each month—first by the P.-T. A. and the outsiders, and next by the school, and so on alternating throughout the school year. Somebody ought to offer a prize to the group putting on the best programs. Of course we older folk have had experience, - - - oh, I mean we are supposed to have had a plenty of experience, but in our day they didn't have buses and schools like they do now—and teachers with degrees—well, maybe there were such things as degrees for teachers—but I'm sure that we youngsters never saw or heard of a degree teacher when we were little. Well, as I was saying, we older folk are supposed to have had experience. On the other hand the school youngsters will have the advantage of capable trainers to put them across in their programs. It's ninety to nothing we get swamped, but if we try hard enough we might—well you remember the hare and the tortoise we used to read about in our readers—we can't go to sleep on the job. So long folks.

A GLOOMY PROSPECTS

Alvant T. Simonds, of the Simonds Saw & Steel company, who tries to look ahead for at least twenty years, was among those who foresaw the inevitable collapse of the Florida land boom. Early in 1929 he predicted the eventual smashup in the stock market, and in 1931, after England left the gold standard, he stated publicly that the United States would be obliged to follow.

Many of his friends, Mr. Simonds confesses, think that he is "nutty."
Despite his friends, Mr. Simonds is now in print with this broad assertion: "I am convinced that in the next seventeen years some millions of people in the United States will starve to death or die by violence in the face of threatened starvation. I mean that they will actually die in this way right here in the United States and that there is nothing we can do now to prevent it. Why? As a result of the world war. It is one of the penalties that we must pay along with the rest of the world. Again I am in a hopeless minority."

Mr. Simonds believes that history repeats itself. What happened after the Napoleonic wars and the civil war, he is convinced will happen again, except that our final post-war depression will be worse because the destruction of property and life in the world war was so huge. Two Harvard professors found that 902 wars had occurred since 500 B. C. and that the world war was eight times as big as the other 901 combined.

We shall probably have wild excesses, induced by inflation, between now and the final post-world-war extreme depression which will occur sometime between 1940 and 1950, with history favoring the earlier part of the decade, according to Mr. Simonds.

This manufacturer is dubious about hedges that individuals may set up to save their skins. He dismisses stocks, bonds, and currency, as "nothing after all but pieces of paper." He prefers the acquisition and holding of imperishable commodities.

"Gold, being illegal and silver being already far too high," he recommends copper, lead, zinc, nickel, cobalt, tungsten and vanadium. He makes the unique and startling suggestion that these metals be accumulated in ingots of 500 pounds each, and buried in the back yard, the carefully covered up and grass or flowers planted on top.

Prospects are bright for a lighted football field at Santa Anna for the coming football season. Already business firms and individuals donated $2,300 of the $2,500 needed to place the field in excellent condition, and to equip it with flood lights.—Brownwood Bulletin.

The crop reporting board of the agriculture department estimated last Thursday the 1936 pecan crop would be the smallest since 1922. On the basis of the September 1 condition, the board said the crop is estimated at 33,330,000 pounds, compared with the record production of 95,340,000 pounds in 1935 and an average of 59,983,000 for the five-year period 1922-1932. The board said indications ranged from "very good prospects" in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, where improved varieties are important, to "very poor prospects" in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Illinois, where seedling trees predominate.

Three million Angora goats, sheared to the skin of nearly $4,000,000 worth of mohair, were waggling their beards on the hills of southwest Texas, doubtless hoping there will not be an early winter. The owners are banking the proceeds and not worrying about the damage which would be wrought to their nearly naked herds should there be unseasonably severe cold. Maximum temperatures in Texas are still in the nineties. All but about 2,000,000 of the annual 7,000,000-pound fall clip has been sold at a price generally regarded in the sheep and goat country as excellent, continuing Angora herd owners in their position as among the nation's most prosperous agriculturalists.

Excavation for the construction of the Texas memorial museum, immediately south of the Texas Wesleyan college at Austin, was started Wednesday. The building is to cost $364,700. The building will be three stories and a basement. It will be seventy feet high, the equivalent of the usual five-story structure.

First ground for the new structure was broken by President Roosevelt in June, when he pushed an electric button releasing a dynamite charge. Construction of the museum will climax a campaign of more than three years, started by the American Legion of Texas.

A battle between Cuero school board and the city council over rates to be charged the school district for water used in the five public schools closed the schools. The schools were closed after the city cut off the water supply from the municipal water plant. No water rental has ever been charged the school system. The council proposed a half rate of $300. The board requested a rate of $150. When a compromise at $200 failed to go through the city ordered the water cut off. Schools had opened Wednesday of last week. Students went thirsty. The board late the same day ordered the schools closed until the city agreed to turn the water back into the pipes.

A third called session of the forty-fourth legislature will meet at Austin on Monday, September 28, primarily to finance old-age assistance, it was announced Thursday of last week by Governor James V. Allred, who said his proclamation fixing that date would be issued at once. The governor refused to say what other subjects, if any, would be submitted to the session, and also, he declined to say whether he would reopen the subject of amending the existing old-age pension law either as to liberalizing it or inserting restrictions. It was plain he did not favor any further liberalization as he said it is now so liberal that the number of pensions may be three times the original estimate and that its benefits are more generous than those of other states. Allred was definite in his opposition to extending the pensions to persons more than 65 who are not needy, declaring "the people have voted on that," meaning that they adopted the amendment restricting its benefits to needy persons only and then overwhelmingly defeating gubernatorial candidates who wanted to make the law so wide that every person of 65 years would receive a pension regardless of being needy. Under the latter plan millionaires could draw their stipend from the state.

FOOD PRICES ARE GOING UP
--but electricity is cheaper than ever

FOOD prices have risen steadily from their depression lows. Today it costs you one-third more to fill your market basket than it did four years ago. Clothing, shoes and other items in the cost of living also have advanced in price. In fact, probably the only thing you buy that has not increased but actually decreased in cost is electricity—which costs the average customer of this company 20% less for the same amount of use than it did four years ago. While other prices have been going up, electricity has been coming down. Your electric dollar is worth more now than ever before in history.

SON OF CONGRESSMAN SOUTH COMMITS SUICIDE
 Carl W. South, 18-year-old son of Congressman Charles S. South of the twenty-first Texas district, plunged to his death from his room on the tenth floor of a hotel at Lubbock Tuesday.
 Justice of the Peace J. T. Trigg returned a verdict of suicide.
 The youth, who went to Lubbock to enroll in Texas Technological college, left two notes. One requested that Charles L. South, M. C. (member of congress) of 1720 Commercial ave., Coleman, Texas, and Charles Hickman of Lubbock be notified. The second note merely read: "Love to all Bill."
 Congressman South was notified of his son's death and immediately started from Coleman for Lubbock. He was accompanied by Frank Lewis, Coleman county tax assessor-collector.
 Young South was born and reared in Coleman, graduating from high school three years ago after making a brilliant record in his studies.
 When his father announced for congress in 1934, the boy, then 16, took the stump for him and won a reputation as a forceful speaker.
 After his graduation from high school he twice entered the University of Texas. Last year he attended George Washington university.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

LIGHTNING CUTS QUEER CAPERS
 Lightning strokes have their caprices as shown by the following recent events in southeast Europe, reported by the United Press: In Lysindorf, near Karthaus, Upper Austria, during a thunder storm a bolt entered the house of a farmer through the chimney, passed between the legs of a 12-year-old daughter, without hurting the child, and then destroyed a linden tree in the yard.
 When lightning struck an oak tree under which the wife of a farmer had sought shelter near Semendria, Jugoslavia, a terrible explosion ensued. The woman was seriously injured. Investigation showed that the bolt had exploded a shell buried under the tree since the world war.
 The gun of a Hungarian hunter who was caught by a sudden thunderstorm while walking across an open field was melted by lightning and the man's clothes burned, but the hunter himself, who had, with admirable presence of mind, thrown himself into a ditch full of water, was unhurt.
 When a farm woman near Salzburg, Austria, struck her arm out of the window to ascertain whether it was raining, a lightning bolt detached and destroyed her wrist watch; the woman herself fainted, but was not otherwise hurt.
 A thunderbolt falling on the broadcasting station of Erivan, Turkey, killed a violinist and a pianist who were preparing to give a concert, while seven other persons in the same room escaped without injuries.
 The wife and child of a Viennese banker, to all appearances killed by a stroke of lightning near Kaiserstuebnach, Austria, were taken to a morgue. Although breath and heart had ceased, a Viennese physician who happened to be on the spot attempted to restore them to life when he noticed that, two hours after their apparent death, the customary livid spots failed to appear on the bodies. His long efforts were successful. Both mother and child recovered.

MONEY TALKS

Men and women of Texas who have seen this great state lifted from the depth of depression by the billion dollars of federal funds that the Roosevelt administration allotted it, may well take alarm in the determined efforts the Republicans are making to win this campaign.

Contributions from rich men in every section of the country are pouring into the coffers of the GOP. So far more than twice as much money has been raised by the Republicans as by the Democrats.

What does this mean? It means that the Republicans have the money to pay speakers in every precinct, especially in the doubtful states which will determine the result of the election. Their dollars have bought radio time until it is hardly possible to tune in without hearing vicious attacks on the New Deal.

The Devil must be fought with fire. Unless the Democrats of Texas reach down in their pockets and contribute to the campaign funds of the party, they are due for a sad awakening. Not only will they find the flow of public funds to Texas abruptly stopped, but they will find the same old gang of Wall street millionaires holding the reins of government.

IT BELONGS TO YOU

Recently opened at the centennial exposition in Dallas is the wonderful Texas building. No citizen of the Lone Star State can view its majestic facade and traverse its magnificent halls without feeling a glow of patriotic pride.

The Texas building has cost $1,200,000—a tremendous sum of money. But it is estimated that out-of-state visitors to the Dallas and other centennial celebrations have already, in the form of gasoline taxes, more than repaid the state for its total contribution of three million dollars for all centennial purposes.

Unlike most world's fair buildings, the Texas building is to be permanent. It rises at the head of the beautiful Esplanade of state, its walls of Texas limestone gleaming in the sun or glowing under the magic colors imparted by the lighting system at night.

Beautiful as it is, and interesting as are the loan exhibits which the various halls contain, the building carries with it the promise of greater things to come so that it is destined to prove a true link in the chain that will bind the glorious past of Texas history to its fruitful present, and its unknown but magnificent future.

THE SWEAT OF COMMON FOLKS

"Taxes, little or great, are the sweat of common folks," said the Portland Oregonian in a recent editorial.

The "common folks" are the great taxpayers of this country— sooner or later, directly or indirectly, they pay almost all of the cost of government. There aren't enough "rich folks" to tax to make a dent in the federal, state and local tax budgets.

Authoritative surveys have shown that if government took all the net income of persons in the higher income brackets, plus all the net income of American corporations, revenue would still fall far short of meeting outgo.

The moral is plain. Tax reduction is in the interest of every citizen and very business—and the greatest beneficiary of all would be the person of small means and the small business. The excess profits tax is a case in point. Tax experts have pointed out cases where, under its provisions, some very large corporations actually pay less in taxes than they did formerly—while almost all small corporations will have to pay more. The principal burden of the law will fall on the little fellow.

If you earn $25 a week, taxes take six or seven of those dollars—because what you pay for the article you buy must also cover its proportionate share of the hundred and one taxes paid by the producer, the manufacturer, the transporter, the insurer, the banker, the agent, the retailer, ad infinitum.

LOOK OUT FOR "TWISTERS"

John Jones owned a life insurance policy issued by one of the well-known, established companies. He had had the policy for a number of years, and had paid out hundreds of dollars in premiums. When an agent for another company came along with a new policy, turned on the heat in a smooth sales talk, and John dropped his old policy to take the new one. The company issuing this policy was also good and responsible—but not long afterward, John found that he had suffered a substantial loss.

The agent who seeks to persuade you to drop a policy you've had for some time in order to buy one from him, is called a "twister." Every legitimate life insurance company is opposed to such agents and will disown them when they are caught. But they may operate for years before their company gets on to them. Only the insurance buying public can really put them out of business, by turning a deaf ear to their blandishments.

If a "twister" approaches you, turn him down and report him to the law. "Twisting" is fundamentally fraudulent, whether the law says so or not, and life insurance salesmen who practice it dishonor their profession and harm the public.

ELGIN EDITOR DEPLORES ROADS AROUND HERE

Editor J. O. Smith of the Elgin Courier has this to say of our roads:

"We had occasion to drive out to Coleman last week by way of Georgetown, Florence, Lampasas, Goldthwaite and Brownwood and was struck with the unimproved condition of the highways through this section. They seem to have been forgotten by the highway commission.

"Studying the highway map we find that the only remedy would be for Governor Allred to appoint a commissioner, at the expiration of Mr. Martin's term, from this section. A commissioner from Houston a few years ago got all the highways in that section in good shape, another one from the plains got the highways out around Abilene, Lubbock and Sweetwater built, another from Dallas covered that section with good roads and the present East Texas and San Antonio members are getting their sections in fine shape.

"Take your map and see how Central and west Texas is sadly lacking in road improvement. If the governor will give us a commissioner for one term maybe we could get some good roads like the other more fortunate sections."

Here's hoping something may be done in the very near future.—Editor Eagle.

CENTENNIAL VISITORS REPAY STATE IN TAXES

Statistics secured from State Comptroller George H. Sheppard, by Director General Harry Olmstead of the Texas centennial exposition proved that increased gasoline tax payments from tourists have already reimbursed the state of Texas more than the three million dollars appropriated for Texas centennial celebrations.

The total increase of state gasoline taxes from January 1 to July 31, 1936 over the corresponding period in 1935 amount to $3,148,749.

The tremendous drag of the Texas centennial exposition at Dallas is indicated by the fact that during June the increase in gasoline tax payments in Texas was $469,876.

During July the increase over July, 1935, was $713,919.

"Comptroller Sheppard informs me reports received in August up to date indicate the increase will be as large if not larger than that registered in July," said Director General Harry A. Olmstead.

We have about 85 more days during which the Texas centennial exposition will operate. Our maximum crowds will not be reached until the middle of September. During September, October and November we believe the tourist trade to the exposition will exceed all previous records.

"The interest created throughout the United States by the exposition undoubtedly will create an increase in gasoline tax collections for the year of some $6,000,000 which will show the taxpayers a $3,000,000 profit on the legislative appropriation for the Texas centennial as a whole. Dallas got only $1,500,000 of the $3,000,000 appropriation.

"Not counted in these figures are the daily expenditures of the hundreds of thousands of tourists attracted to Dallas and all parts of the state by the centennial in general."

The Texas state gasoline tax is four cents a gallon.

TEXAS WOODLANDS

Forest fires have been destructive in several regions this year. Texas woodlands generally have escaped heavy losses, but must be guarded constantly.

The United States forest service reports that 12,084 fires occurred in national forests alone between January 1 and August 10. Almost 8,200 either were incendiary or due to carelessness. Those fires covered 294,711 acres altogether, and the damage doubtless would have been greater had not many Civilian Conservation Corps companies been available to reinforce the forest rangers.

It is encouraging that Texas is taking steps to develop its timberlands systematically. Originally its forest covered about 30 million acres; 14 million acres bore pines.—Dallas News.

CIVIL WAR COSTS

An uncensored dispatch from Madrid estimates the Spanish civil war dead at "approximately 85,000" at the end of the conflict's fifth week.

The wounded number "in the neighborhood of" 300,000. The figures are said to be based on Red Cross reports and such other available statistics as were deemed trustworthy. As the armed forces actually engaged are relatively small, these figures presumably include the noncombatants executed on charges or for reprisal by both factions. How far the estimates of dead and wounded are flawed by incomplete and unreliable information can only be conjectured. The Madrid compiler admits that both sides have "exaggerated the losses inflicted upon the other," and it is equally true that each has exaggerated the "atrocities" committed by the other. Doubtless he has tried in good faith to make the proper allowances and discounts for errors and exaggerations. But even so his estimates may be little better than intelligent—and honest—guesses. Fighting is under way in so many sectors, with the strength of the opposing forces unknown, and tragedies are being enacted in so many places on the firing lines, that the precise death toll may never be ascertained. All that outsiders can be certain of is that the conflict is costing Spain and her people vastly more than it is worth by a computation of future gains and benefits to flow out of it. The furies aroused, the ferocities unleashed and the hatreds intensified, will plague the survivors, and the country, for many years after it's close. It is entirely safe, we think, to predict that its butcheries and other brutalities will not settle any of the issues its "master minds" imagine they are fighting out. No matter how it ends, nor when, the losses inflicted will not be repayable so far as Spain and the welfare of her people are concerned, within one generation, or two. Its only practical usefulness as judged at this time and distance, consists in its service as a horrible example, an object lesson, that should convince the other European peoples and their leaders of the folly, futility and dreadful cost of another general melee.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

THE INCREASE OF DIABETES PRESENTS PROBLEM

Austin — The increasing incidence of diabetes presents a serious problem to the physician and the average citizen, according to the state health office.

Ordinary diabetes, that is diabetes mellitus, which is often referred to by many persons as a disease of the kidneys, is not a kidney disease, but a disease of the pancreas in which there is deficient production of insulin, and this mistaken idea that diabetes is a kidney disease probably results from the fact that the insulin deficiency causes large amount of carbohydrates (sugars and starches) to pile up in the body. The result is that the patient drinks large amount of water, and because of this, large amounts of urine containing sugar are passed.

The pancreas is a vital organ located in the upper abdomen, behind the stomach. It has a double function: It supplies the most powerful digestive juice in the body, known as the pancreatic juice, which it pours into the intestine through special ducts developed for the purpose; and it makes another substance called insulin, which goes directly into the blood, and is essential for the use of sugar in the body.

Obesity and heredity overshadow all other factors in the causation of diabetes. Most diabetics are fat. Not every fat person, of course, gets diabetes. Heredity seems to be the most important link in the chain of diabetes from generation to generation. In the adult, however, obesity brings out the predisposition to the disease.

Early diagnosis by a competent physician, with consequent proper treatment, enables the diabetic patient to live a useful life, and retards the development of complications.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

VIEW OF THE NATION'S PRESS ON TOPICS OF INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE

PEOPLED ONLY BY DAY

The proportion of actual dwellers in the City of London, the mile-square area at the heart of Britain's metropolis, to the hundreds of thousands who each week-day have occasion to use its thoroughfares is becoming so small as to be almost negligible even to the statisticians. Seventy-five years ago the "City" had 112,000 all-time inhabitants; thirty years later about 37,500. At the turn of the century the number had dwindled to some 25,000. Five years ago the census enumerators could count a scant 11,000; the latest tally gives 9,300, a figure suggesting an approach to the "reducible minimum." However, the "City" still boasts a Lord Mayor among its other glories, and continues to fill two seats in Parliament.

If one could pick out in the throng, say along Cannon street or near Mansion House, a veritable City of London ratepayer and were bold enough to address him it would be pretty safe to choose words suitable for the hearing of a dignitary past or present. He might have dodged official honors, but it is likely that he hasn't. Probably evidence of respect would not displease him in any case. He might be one of the score or more of the "City's" life aldermen. If not of that eminence, he easily could be, or could have been, a "City" councilman, of whom about two hundred are elected annually. Even with these sporting elements out, the intercepted citizen could be a member of one of the hallowed guilds whose wishes are reflected in the choice of the Lord Mayor—also an annual event. Lloyd's odds against running across the Lord Mayor himself or a "City" M. P. might be rather high, yet the thing is possible. The intricacies and the spread of "City" officialdom constitute a wonder bequeathed by bygone centuries.

All this, of course, by day—the day of business bustle and of crowded streets with their sprinkling of top hats, although the hats, alas, seem to be vanishing in much the same way as the resident population. Toward evening the difference makes itself felt; and by night it is mostly memories that dwell amid the shadows.—New York Sun.

RAILROADS SET EXAMPLE

In regaining lost passenger traffic by improving their service and offering lower rates, the railroads of America have given a lesson from which other industries might profit. From 1932 to 1935, the railroads spent more than $50,000,000 to air-condition passenger cars. This sum was as much as was spent on all other air-conditioning during that period. Railroad orders gave employment and profit to this new industry and the improvements in passenger cars brought a boom in rail travel that helped pull many steam carriers out of the red.

Most of the railroads have not stopped with freeing passengers from the discomforts of heat and clinders. They have brought new types of trains and speeded the schedules of their old ones and improved their dining service. "More than 400 trains covering in excess of 19,000 miles at the beginning of this year operated on scheduled runs timed at 60 miles an hour or better, compared with 30 regular runs operating for a total of 1,100 miles in 1930," says J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads.

Many of the railroads have benefited from RFC loans, but it was largely by their own initiative that they regained their lost passenger patronage. When they began to offer faster and more comfortable travel at lower rates, the public was quick to respond. Despite the spread of governmental functions, industries headed by men of vision and enterprise can still find plenty of opportunity for private initiative.—Dallas News.

WORLDS WITHOUT END

The twentieth century may go down in scientific history as that in which man really began to understand the universe. It is true that he still knows little about it, but at least he is becoming aware that it is immense and strange beyond anything his fathers dreamed. Evidence accumulates that it is flying apart like an exploding shell. The hurtling fragments are not single stars, but galaxies in which stars are mere atoms. In one of these galaxies there is a particular atom known as the sun; attached to it by a gravitational thread is a spinning electron called the earth.

It is doubtful whether the most interesting characteristic of the universe is its apparent expansion, with Sir Arthur Eddington crossed the ocean to discuss at the Harvard Tercentenary Conference of Arts and Sciences, or its seemingly endless extent. Milton L. Humason, the Mount Wilson astronomer, had something to say about the matter of size in a recent publication of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific. He recalls that as late as 1919 many astronomers believed that the objects known as spiral nebulae were members of our own galaxy, the Milky Way system. Now they are known to be independent galaxies far outside the Milky Way.

The number of stars in a galaxy runs into billions. The observable region of the universe—that within the range of the 100-inch reflector on Mount Wilson—has a radius of about 500,000,000 light years, and it is estimated that within this spherical sample of space there are 100,000,000 galaxies. How this sphere compares in size with the whole of the universe nobody knows. If space is curved and finite, apparently the curvature is not sufficient to be observed with the 100-inch telescope. Even Einstein admits that the universe may possibly be infinite.

Galaxies, says Humason, occur singly, in groups and, occasionally, in great clusters comprising 300 or more members; but when large regions of space are compared one region is very much like another. No matter how far the astronomer pushes his explorations he finds no thing out. The universe seems to go on and on, galaxy after galaxy, without end.—New York Sun.

MISSION OF UNIVERSITIES

Harvard university, in celebrating this fall its 300th anniversary, rightly is attracting a great deal of attention, especially as the occasion has been made memorable by the gathering of notable scientists and philosophic thinkers from all parts of the learned world.

At a dinner given not so long ago at the Harvard club, addresses were given by distinguished speakers from Yale, Princeton, Swarthmore and Harvard on the theme, "The Mission of the Endowed Universities," as distinguished from state or denominational institutions of learning, the point being made that endowed universities enjoyed on the whole a larger degree of academic freedom.

Yet all institutions of higher learning, it was argued, should have high standards of scholarship, should be the home of freedom and of free inquiry, and should foster the love of scholarship and of learning. Such universities obviously would cultivate thinkers, develop the powers of youthful intellects, and provide the nation with leaders on the professions and in the important interests of the nation. Their faculties also should inspire in their students a conception of courage, honesty, intellectual integrity and strong moral convictions.—Dallas News.

Lampasas

More than three hundred persons were at the Lampasas state park Saturday, September 6, 1936, to attend the old settlers reunion. Possibly 100 of these were able to qualify as to age and length of time lived in this section to give them a vote in the business of the organization.

Willie Mellon, son of W. S. Mellon, a business man in Lampasas from 1873 to 1879 and who died here, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, is writing his grandfather, Douglas Y. Fox of Goldthwaite a series of letters giving his information of former years. These letters now total more than 100 pages and there are many more to come. In one of these letters, Mr. Mellon pays tribute to the old timers of Lampasas in very fitting words. Here is a quotation taken from one of the letters by the Record editor Saturday at the reunion: "I wish further to assert daringly a wonderful fact. I assert it as a fact from long observation on characters of men and women in that town, then a border town of Texas frontier, there was no scum and pauper element none of the townfolk to speak of were profligate or inebriate and none were in rags.

Douglas Y. Fox of Goldthwaite, who was here at the old settlers reunion Saturday, built the first race track in Lampasas in 1875 and that year the first fair was held. This track, a quarter-mile in length, was just east of the Southern Pacific track in the south part of town on the plot of ground northwest of the old Bierbower home. The next year the track was moved to the pres- ent fair grounds which extend- ed further north and the track was a mile around. The fair was continued for three years, Mr. Fox said, and was then discon- tinued for quite a while. The fair at that time was carried on by an organization known as the Lampasas county agricultural and merchants association. Mr. Fox rode his own gray pony in a race at the first fair and won. Jim Cooksey, another old timer, won in his race that day too.

Postal receipts for the Co- manche office for August, 1936 showed approximately twenty per cent increase over August, 1935 and were heavier than receipts for any month of any year since 1929. To date the receipts for 1936 show a nice in- crease over same period of 1925. During the year direct mail serv- ice to and from Goldthwaite has been inaugurated, as well as an additional schedule for first class mail to Fort Worth. Any first class mail deposited in the post office at Comanche by 4:40 p. m. will reach Fort Worth in time to catch north and east bound mails.

A twenty-nine-year-old auto- mobile operating under its own power on the streets of Co- manche Wednesday morning at- tracted the attention of a big crowd as men and women gath- ered on the streets to see the 1907 Maxwell.

The Comanche county cotton crop for this year is estimated at 4200 bales as compared to 7200 last year according to Tom Wor- tham, county cotton administra- tor.

Coach Glenn Fraier's Co- manche high school football team will open its 1936 season Thursday night, September 17, at Brownwood against the Brown- wood Lions. The game will be played in Brownwood High's new football stadium.

Up to Thursday morning 20 bales of cotton had been weigh- ed at the Comanche cotton yard. Eight cars of peanuts had been shipped from Comanche up to Monday night. Peanuts were bringing 85 cents a bushel and cotton about 12 1-2 cents per pound.

Hamilton

Funeral services for F. E. At- chison, 48, member of a pioneer Martin county family, was held Tuesday, August 11 at 2 o'clock from the Church of Christ, with G. Shelburne, jr., officiating, as- sisted by G. B. Shelburne, sr., and J. C. Minnix. Mr. Atchison was struck by a bolt of lightning and killed instantly Monday after- noon at 3 o'clock while at- tending to stock on his farm 3 miles west of Stanton.

A deal of wide interest was consummated this week when J. T. King purchased the hold- ings of Harry Boynton in the King-Boynton Motor company, and the business will be known as the King Motor company.

On Monday of this week Wil- liam Bryant Elliott, of Lampasas, star route mail carrier between Hamilton and his home city, was conveyed to the Hamilton sanitarium for treatment of critical injuries sustained while loading truck at the McCall Produce Co. house on south Bell Avenue.

The Hamilton sanitarium makes announcement this week that Dr. Robert West will be as- sociated with Dr. C. E. Chandler and Dr. John E. Talley on the staff of the Hamilton sanitarium entering upon his work here early next week.

Under the direction of Brad- ford D. Corrigan, whom we proudly introduce as Hamilton's Billy Rose, Hamilton's centennial show, a colorful pageant with dramatic action and brilliant choruses using several hundred people will be staged on the night of October 9, the second night of the Hamilton Free Fall Fair.

Since the first of the year building and improvement has experienced the strongest in- crease in years. In the past three years Hamilton has witnessed a steady upward trend of the building trades, and no time during the depression was con- struction at a complete stand- still.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collier of Goldthwaite were in Hamilton the first of the week for a visit in the home of her mother, Mrs. R. A. Adams and family. Mr. Collier looked after interests while in this city.—Herald-Record.

ODD BITS OF SCIENCE

Some idea as to the amount of electrical power required for a passenger car is indicated by the fact that a standard Pullman car moving in a train generates for its own use enough electrical power to light approximately 4 ordinary homes. These cars have from 80 to more than 100 electric lights. In addition, there are electric fans and other electrical appliances. Facilities are even provided so that a female pas- senger can make use of an electric curling iron. In the club cars, toasters, coffee kettles, drink mixers and various other appli- ances are operated by electricity. A few railroads also use electri- city for cooking.

Lumber and financing costs will never be as low as they are now.

RANDOLPH LUMBER CO.

ROCK SPRINGS

There was Sunday school and church Sunday morning. Bro. C. Wade preached two good sermons. He and family ate dinner in the McClary home. They called in the Boyd home in the afternoon and ate supper with them.

Last Tuesday night some of the neighbors of J. R. Davis and wife surprised them with a nice dinner as it was their fiftieth anniversary. You read in last week's paper a tribute composed by John W. Roberts for the occasion. After the talk by Mr. Roberts, Bro. Davis prayed a good prayer, then Mr. Roberts asked us to sing "Old Time Religion." After the song Bro. and Sister Davis each made a good talk which made us all sad. Then came Charley Frank Davis, Christine Traylor, Wayne Davis and Earline Nix with the box of useful gifts. In the bottom of the box was a nice book which Miss Donna Pass had fixed for every body present to register and write something in. Those present were: Ben Davis and family, Mrs. E. L. Pass and Miss Leona, Lundy Ellis and wife, R. E. Collier and wife, Mrs. Joe Roberts and James, John Roberts and wife, I. O. McClary and wife, Mrs. J. M. Traylor and children, Mrs. Harvey Dunkle, Jack Robertson and wife, Mrs. Woody Traylor, Glenn Nix and family, W. A. Cooke, I. F. and Joe Davis and families, Mrs. J. C. Stark, Miss Johnnie Belle Circle and Mrs. Kula Nickols.

At ten o'clock every one bade the honorees good-bye, wishing them more anniversaries.

J. T. Robertson and wife had some of their children with them Sunday. Among them were Harvey Dunkle and wife, Douglas Robertson and family, Marlin Robertson and family, Jack Robertson and wife, Woody Traylor and family, Hillard

Dyches and family and Mrs. Joe Roberts.

James, John Earl and Janette Roberts spent Sunday with Virgil Mahan's children in the Faulkner home.

R. E. Collier went with Virgil Waldrip Sunday morning to look at a place in Mills county.

Our club will not meet this week, but will meet October 2 with Mrs. W. A. Daniel.

Harry Boyd visits quite often in Brownwood with his friends.

Joe Davis and family, Mrs. Eula Nickols, Philip and Shirley were dinner guests Sunday in the Cooke home.

Duey Bohannon and wife and Johnnie Belle Circle were visitors Saturday night in George Bohannon's home in town.

Saturday night V. D. Tyson, J. T. Stark and James Nickols were 42 players in the Webb home.

Lundy Ellis and wife visited with C. Ballard and family in Moran last week.

Mrs. W. A. Daniel and Billie Ruth and Mrs. Ira Dewbre were Sunday visitors in the Robertson home in Big Valley.

Sherrill Robertson and Marvin Robertson and wife helped Beryl Turner and family to move to Algotita where Mr. Turner will teach this year.

Sunday Miss Nellie Dee Cooke prepared a nice dinner and invited Joe Davis and family and Mrs. Eula Nickols, Philip and Shirley up to partake of the good eats. In the afternoon J. C. Stark and wife and son and Marvin Spinks and family joined the crowd.

Mrs. J. T. Robertson came home Sunday after a week's visit in Breckenridge with Hillard Dyches and family.

Marvin Spinks and family were dinner guests in Glen Nickols' home in town Sunday.

Sam Templin from Galveston visited his sister, Mrs. Jesse Cockrum, last week.

MOUNT OLIVE LAZY GOSSIP CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The club members met with Mrs. Montgomery Friday, September 11. There were eight members present. Our visitors were Misses Lorene and Nadine Hodges.

We spent the afternoon piecing a double wedding ring quilt. Mrs. Montgomery served cake and peaches. Every one certainly enjoyed the afternoon.

After lunch we made a "grab box," containing packages, but only one present and the one that got the surprise package had to tell a short story or sing a song. Mrs. Allen happened to get the surprise package, so she told us a nice story.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Benningfield September 25. We will not have a meeting next Friday (today) as our club will have a picnic at Mrs. James Hodges' place next Saturday, September 18. Every member try and be present. SECRETARY.

Gainesville visited in the J. T. Robertson home last week.

Virgil Mahan and family visited Mrs. Mary Faulkner this week.

Duey Bohannon and wife were Sunday visitors in the Circle home.

Some dogs killed a sheep for Woody Traylor in the Guynes pasture last week.

James Nickols, V. D. Tyson and Wick Webb killed a rattlesnake Saturday night close to the Webb home.

Alvin and Rachel Mahan from San Antonio started to town to school Monday morning.

The nice rain Monday got ahead of the moon this time. There will be turnips planted and other seed for a fall garden. It has been fine rain out here. It may not be so good for the cotton, but it will put the grass to growing. BUSY BEE.

ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK FOR COUNTRY NEWSPAPER WOMAN

Sometimes people who have occasion to transact business in a newspaper office or over the phone may think they do not get the service they should. Here is a typical story of some of the things the front office has to contend with, written by Bernice Griffith in the Greenville Vidette:

She stops in the middle of a sentence to answer the phone. She placates a subscriber whose paper has failed to arrive. It takes several seconds to get back to the news story.

She types a paragraph. A book salesman comes in. Five minutes pass while she is explaining she doesn't want to buy books.

The editor enters and asks, "Where in the world is the Evans party story?" She finds it, buried by dozens of papers, on his desk. The phone rings. She reaches over a pile of letters and knocks off the paper weight. The letters scatter over the floor.

A hammering noise starts in the work room. The man on the phone complains that if people paid attention to their business they could soon understand what was being said.

She stoops to pick up the fallen letters and starts a runner in her hose. She returns to the news story.

A seven-year-old child enters with an envelope in hand. Says, "Take this," and runs away. The envelope contains a report of a birthday party, but the names are practically impossible to read. She makes note to call mother of child, and learn what story should contain.

She goes back to typewriter and works six minutes. A country correspondent appears, asking for stationery.

She writes four lines. A politician breezes into the office and inquires, "Precious, where is the editor?" She restrains her annoyance and replies that the editor has turned printer and is now employed in the work room.

She glances at the last line in story, and tries to continue. She meditates a minute. A friend, passing by, inquires, "Is that all you have to do?"

The phone rings. A family reunion is reported, and voice over phone wants place for this item on first page. The wires click furiously and it takes twenty minutes to get list of "those present."

The politician departs. Seeing expression on face she is pleased to observe that editor is not going to support politician for office.

Printer has question. Wishes to know meaning of motion picture ad reading: "Not a Western special investigator." Some bewildered. Then light. Ad should read: "Special Investigator. Not a Western."

She returns to news story. The phone rings. A dime-wit school boy wants to know when the war of 1812 took place?

A salesman with a new scheme for selling advertising drops in. She explains editor is busy and cannot talk to him now. Salesman insists must see editor. Enters work room over protests. When salesman makes exit, a few minutes later, he is obviously insulted.

She finally completes news story and takes it back to linotype operator.

Upon returning to office she finds a handsome middle aged woman and a twittery blond girl waiting for her. Mother introduces daughter and herself.

"I've been telling my daughter, Alice, that she should take up work in a country newspaper office as her career. Alice is the nervous type, you see, and can't live in a tense atmosphere. I think life in a country newspaper office is just what she needs. There is absolutely no nervous strain!"

She gives a remote smile and is about to make feeble effort to answer. Effort proves unnecessary. The phone rings.

Lewis received many nice gifts and was delighted with them all.

LAMPASAS RECORD ISSUES 18-PAGES FOR OLD SETTLERS

The Lampasas Record issued an attractive 18-page paper last week in commemoration of the old settlers of Lampasas county.
