Baptist Reminder

Now that the old year is gone, I am sure we are going to do our very best for the Lord in 1937. 1936 has been a wonderful year. The Lord has been good to us. As we start the new year let us be mindful:

1. Of our citizenship. We should be better citizens this year.
2. Our homes should be more Christlike. It is easy to forget Christ in the home. Do you ever pray in the home? Do you ever read God's word? The home is the first place in the world to give religious instruction.
3. The influence of our church will be measured by our devotion to the institution that Christ gave his own life for. In the fifty-two Lord's days just ahead of us, we will honor or dishonor the Lord. Each Sunday is set apart to honor the Lord.

We invite you to be present at all our services throughout the year. You are always welcome. We try to lead each service to inspire Christians to live and do better, and to convince the lost of their need of the Savior.

FRANKLIN E. SWANNER.

Nazarene Remarks

With the day these remarks are read we begin a new year. We are wishing all the readers a happy and more prosperous year than we have had during the year 1936. Our direction for true prosperity may be found in Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

With the closing of this Friday we will know if the local N.Y.P.S. will continue to hold the banner for the next six weeks. During the day the rally is in progress at Brownwood, and the attendance banner will be awarded to the deserving society at night.

We urge all our local people to rally and help in bringing it back to Goldthwaite. We have only lost the banner one time since it has been being awarded. We should not lose it this time.

Sunday morning my subject will be: "A prepared place for a prepared people." Sunday night I will speak on, "What are we going to do about the sin question?" Attend church with us. This first SUNDAY, Pastor. Year. You are

The Methodist Church

The first book of the Bible is called in Hebrew by its first word which is translated "In the beginning;" our word Genesis is Greek and means origin, or beginning. Genesis is the record of various beginnings. As we think of the first sentence in this book of beginnings which is "In the beginning God," we are very forcibly reminded of the beginning of a New Year. When we read the book of Genesis we recount some very heart breaking experiences. In the first sentence it says: "In the beginning God," and the last sentence, "In a coffin in Egypt." In between these two statements the world's greatest tragedy is told; Man willfully going away from God. There is always tragedy in such a course. Invariably such a course has led to sorrow, disappointment, ruin, and tears, and why will men continue to follow this course? Would not this be a wonderful world if every one should say at the beginning of 1937, "I'll not only begin this year with God, but I will practice the presence of God through every day of this year." Can you imagine some changes that would take place? Then we would be able to see something of what God intended we should have and be in the very beginning. Men are not dealing fairly with God is the reason this world is in its present condition, and nothing but fair dealing with God will make things right. Each one must determine for himself what place God shall have in his life, and this decision determines his destiny. What place shall we give God in 1937? If He gave us what we deserved what place would He give us?

We are happy to report this week our church sent $312.00 to the Methodist Home in Waco. I am sure this report brings real joy to the entire membership.

Next Sunday will be the first Sunday in 1937, and we trust all the services shall be largely attended. To begin 1937, the lines of Austin Miles should encourage us:

"It may be in the valley, where countless dangers hide; It may be in the sunshine that I, in peace, abide;

But this one thing I know—if it be dark or fair, If Jesus goes with me, I'll go anywhere."

Sunday school 9:45 a. m. We are doing good, but we can do much better, so why not do our best?

Preaching 10:50 a. m. Subject: "When a Man Wants God." Epworth Leagues 1:30 p. m.

Preaching 7:00 p. m. Subject: "Forgetting and Reaching Forward."

Mid-week prayer service Wednesday 7:15 p. m.

You are invited to all the services of this church. You should be in the worship service of the church of your choice every Sunday. JOHN K. BEERY, Minister.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

THE ROBBERS DECIDE TO FIGHT

WHEN one of the young robber rats at the meeting of all the rats in the big barn which Billy Mink had visited boasted that he never had been anyone he couldn't hide from, all the other young rats nodded their heads in approval. You see they prided themselves on knowing every hiding place in that big barn, and they never had known an enemy small enough to follow them to these hiding places. So

"Knowledge of Life is Obtained Only Through Experience," He Began.

When the gray, old leader of that robber gang said that unless he was greatly mistaken they were likely to have a chance to see someone they couldn't hide from, they at once demanded to know what he meant.

The old leader looked around the circle of rats waiting for him to speak. There were big rats, little rats, and middle-sized rats. There were rats gray with age, and sleek young rats. He counted noses. Every rat of the tribe, save only the babies too small to leave the nests, and the one whom Billy Mink had caught, was present. In the faces of the gray old rats he could see worry. Like himself they understood the danger they were in. In the faces of the younger rats there was no worry. It was plain to see that they felt quite confident of being able to take care of themselves. Never in all their lives had they met an enemy they could not run away from, and he knew they didn't believe such an enemy existed.

"Knowledge of life is obtained only through experience," he began. "You who are so sure you can hide from this new enemy are confident because you are ignorant. Cats and dogs you do not fear because you can go where they can not follow, but this mink who has found our den can follow where any of you, even the smallest, can go."

"But if he does not see us hide how can he find us?" squeaked a sharp-nosed young rat.

"A mink does not have to see in order to follow," retorted the gray old leader. "You cannot move without leaving a scent which he can follow by means of his wonderful nose. All he had to do is to find where you have been and then follow straight to where you are hiding. He can run faster than you can and longer than you can. There is no escape from him, once he sets out to catch one of you. The best fighter among us is no match for him alone. I tell you, friends, our tribe is in danger. It is in the greatest danger it ever has faced. I have called you together to make this plain to you and to get your ideas as to what we should do."

For a few moments no one spoke. The worried look on the faces of the older rats had crept into the faces of the younger rats. Finally a scarred old fighter spoke. "It seems to me," said he, "there is only one thing to do, and that is fight. What one of us alone can not do, all of us together can. I propose that the next time this enemy appears we all attack him together."

To this all the rats agreed.

Mrs. Alva Reynolds McCoy passed away in a Brownwood hospital Sunday morning after a short illness. She was preceded in death, a few days by an infant son.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church Monday afternoon at 3:30 with Brother E. O. Stewart officiating. Randolph & Company had charge of funeral arrangements. Interment was at Oakview by the side of the little one.

ONE CURE THAT IS SURE

We don't hear so much nowadays about the curse of work that was inflicted on Father Adam. Perhaps the depression taught that work was a blessing not a curse. At any rate there are a good many millions of people all over the world who now realize that a steady job is the greatest prize imaginable. And today the reason faces are brighter and conditions are better is because more Americans are working than at any other time in the past seven years.

Arthur Brisbane, the noted newspaper editor who died last week, loved to work. One of his several jobs paid him the princely salary of $5,000 a week, more than three times as much as the president of the United States receives. Brisbane was born wealthy and had money all of his life. He owned millions of dollars worth of New York real estate, a huge ranch in California, a place in Florida, one on Long Island and a 3,000 acre farm in New Jersey. It took work to keep these properties making money for him, but he never minded work. He cut his sleeping time to six hours a night in order to have more time for work. His famous "Today" column was dictated to a phonograph as he rode to and from other work. Many important transactions were completed by him as he rode in a taxi from his office to home or a station. To within 24 hours of his death he was working, and his life was a happy one not because of what he possessed, but because of the money he made or the fame he achieved, but because he always had something worthwhile to do, and did it.

Who are the unhappiest people in the world? Almost invariably they are those who do not have enough to keep themselves profitably occupied. The women who flit from party to party carrying sugary bits of gossip as a bee carries nectar. The children who are pampered and allowed to do as they please. Men who are rich or too lazy to work. They are the restless, unhappy creatures who are not only miserable themselves but who add to the misery of others through their lack of useful occupation.

As one well-known writer expresses it: "Work is the cure in this world for all our troubles. Grief, loneliness, idleness, the blues; all have to yield to work, for we are so made that what we are doing with all our might must sooner or later interest us, and there is salvation in service, of any kind, and anywhere."

YOUR GUESS IS AS GOOD AS OURS

Are you a prophet whose keen gaze can penetrate the dim and uncertain mists that enshroud the 365 days of the new year that begins today? If so, you can give the answer to the multitude of questions that face humanity in this exciting period of history. Here are a few of the questions, the answers to which will surely affect your pocketbook in 1937 and may have an important bearing on your happiness and success. For this world is now so closely knit to gether that what happens in Hamburg or in Hong Kong may easily make or lose money for you.

If you like to play at little game, take your pencil and jot down on the margin of this paper your answers to these questions. File them where you will find them a year from now and see how good a guesser you are:

1. Will the United States go to war in 1937? If so, against whom and with whom?
2. Will cotton bring 15c a pound this fall?
3. Will President Roosevelt's New Deal continue to encourage prosperity?
4. How many of the present rulers of important nations will still have their jobs a year from now? Mussolini in Italy? Hitler in Germany? Stalin in Russia? Roosevelt in the United States? King George VI of England? Chiang Kai Shek of China?
5. Who will be the ruler of Spain next New Years?
6. Will airplane accidents be as disastrous then as now?
7. Will deaths from automobile accidents be as common as now?
8. What person in your community will meet a sudden death from a carelessly driven automobile?
9. Will your church be stronger and more alive or smaller and weaker than it is today? Is so, why?
10. Will you be richer and wiser or poorer and duller and weaker than you are now? Will you have more friends or fewer real friends? Why?

Continue the list for yourself. The more questions you ask, the more you will realize how helpless we all are in the hand of destiny, how little that anyone of us can do alone.

A GREAT JOURNALIST

Arthur Brisbane, who had the genius to make men think for themselves, is dead.

As one of the greatest newspaper editors ever to bring the events of the nation and the world into homes of the people, he gained the highest pinnacle of American journalism.

He was master of the portrayal of news, a builder of great newspapers. He was instrumental in making the daily newspaper a constructive influence in the national life.

He was an editor who breathed his genius into the newspapers he served, a writer who made the news of the day understandable to those who saw the world through his eyes.

Brisbane's command of words was not a power for the regimentation of opinion. He did not drive facts into the minds of those who read his words.

In every line he wrote, there was a suggestion for a train of thought that came as naturally to the reader as though a sudden light had been turned upon the mysteries of thinking.

Arthur Brisbane reduced the perplexities of the world affairs to simple terms, for the understanding of those who of their own accord could only look helplessly into the infinite depths of the unexplained.

A paragraph of Brisbane put the key to profound learning into the hands of the unlearned. It might appraise the works of the mightiest rulers of human destiny, or the simple incidents in the lives of the humble.

Out of the lives of the least of the world's people he was constantly drawing truths which shed enlightenment upon the problems of the masses.

He wrote constantly, prodigiously, in the unceasing effort to give inspiration to better living to the millions who accepted daily guidance from him.

How profoundly the writings of Arthur Brisbane have influenced the lives of men and women is best known by those who have profited by them.

Many times he has written the words that have turned wasted lives into useful paths. He has made life beautiful to those who have despaired. He has given solace to the sorrowing, comfort to the unhappy.

Arthur Brisbane has lived a wonderful life, the story of which will never be fully told. Regrettably, it is at an end. But the rich legacy of his philosophy, his portrayal of the good thoughts of which all men are capable, is endowed with the immortality that perpetuates the works of the truly great.—San Antonio Light.

Don't be good merely because you are tired of being bad.

Happiness is the ability to live in harmony with one's thoughts.

PRACTICAL COOKERY

Cheese resembles milk in nutritive value. It is one of the oldest of milk products. Some cheese is made of skim milk, some from whole milk and some from double cream. Since some of the water is removed in the manufacturing process, cheese is a highly digestible food. When eaten in addition to an adequate meal, it may seem to cause digestive disturbances, but if served as a part of the meal, there should be no digestive troubles.

Cheese Balls: 1 cup bread crumbs, 3-4 cups grated cheese, 1-4 cup butter, 1-8 tsp. cayenne, 1-2 tsp. salt, and 2 eggs, beaten. Combine all but eggs in a bowl mixing well. All beaten eggs and mix again. Make into balls the size of large walnuts. Fry in deep fat about 2 minutes.

Cheese Fritters: Add 1-2 or 3-4 cup grated cheese to any fritter recipe, omitting other fat. Serve with a fruit sauce.

Oyster Rarebit: 1 cup oysters, 2 tblsp. butter, 1-4 tsp. salt, 1-2 lb. mild cheese cut in pieces, 2 eggs. Clean, parboil, and drain oysters, reserving the liquor. Melt butter, add cheese and seasonings. As cheese melts add gradually the liquor and eggs slightly beaten. As soon as mixture is smooth, add soft part of oysters. Serve on bread toasted on one side, rarebit being poured on untoasted side.

Cheese Noodles: 4 tblsp. butter, 4 tblsp. grated cheese, 1 cup milk.

BIG SANDY ROLLS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE old Big Sandy rolls along As though the world were nowhere wrong. Rolls as it rolled in other years Before the doors of pioneers, Rolls as it rolled when men were men, For there were few complainers then. Rolls as it rolled when woman-kind Some good to do could always find.

The old Big Sandy rolls away Hour after hour, day after day, Rolls as it rolled before men thought They tolled too hard who something wrought, Rolls as it rolled when fruits and flowers Were counted oftener than hours, Rolls as it rolled when work was found A meeting place, not battle ground.

The old Big Sandy rolls along And knows that nothing's really wrong. Rolls as it rolled, while men must burn Their fingers, then to truth return. Rolls as it rolled, as age has smiled So often at a wayward child, Rolls as it rolled down through the past, And as it shall roll till the last.
