

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1937

NUMBER TWENTY-THREE

HELP ASKED BY RED CROSS FOR OHIO FLOOD SUFFERERS

GOLDTHWAITE TO HAVE FASTER MAIL SERVICE AT ONCE

The combined county and community committees assisted the county agent's office force with the task of signing the papers. The committee finished their work Wednesday. Checks will come in ten or twelve days.

The 1937 program will be launched about the middle or last of February. So little change is expected that farmers may safely plan crops as though there would be no changes from the 1936 program.

The Methodist Church

Surely our hearts go out in deepest sympathy, and in earnest prayer for the thousands of sufferers in the terrible flood stricken section of our country. When we see or hear of a situation of this character we are unable to explain but a very little of all that is involved. The inspired writer has told us that "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord, who are the called according to His purpose." We are sure this old world is far, very far, from what God intended at the beginning, and from what Jesus taught to pray that it might be even in our day, in the prayer, "Thy Kingdom come Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

If that prayer were truly prayed and worked for by everyone we certainly would have a new heaven and a new earth. Some valuable lessons we may learn from such disasters are, the weakness and helplessness of man, the uncertainty and brevity of man's stay here, and the rapidity with which earthly possessions may fly away. Christian character is the only thing in this world that cannot be destroyed, it lives in two worlds in spite of all that may come. May the people of our land renew their trust in God, until they say, "Though He slay me yet will I trust Him." May our people look up until they see His blessed face through the mist, and feel the touch of His mighty hand lifting us nearer to Himself. As we pray let us contribute through the Red Cross, that noble agency working so faithfully and earnestly to alleviate this unprecedented need and suffering. "Am I my brother's keeper?" I am my brother's keeper.

We had a really good day last Sunday. Church school is growing in attendance and interest, and with a little more spirited enthusiasm, consecration, and loyalty to Christ and His Kingdom we shall continue to grow. A growing life is the only kind of Christian life there is. When we cease to grow we decay. If the grain you put in the soil does not grow it must rot. When a man dies they who survive him ask what property he left behind. The angel who bends over the dying man asks what good deeds he has sent before him. All our people should read and re-read the lesson from Wednesday, January 27 in The Upper Room.

Church school 9:45 a. m.
 Preaching 10:50 a. m. Subject, "An Obscured Vision."
 Senior League 2:00 p. m. Intermediate League 6:15 p. m.
 Preaching 7:00 p. m. Preceding a brief message by the pastor, the Intermediate League will give a program on, "What Does Church Membership Mean to the Young?" The church should be full to hear this program.
 Mid-week prayer service and Bible study Wednesday 7:15 p. m.
 We welcome you to all the services of the church. Attend the church of your choice every Sunday.

JOHN K. BEERY, Minister.

CFSC. EMPLOYE PROMOTED

Joe Bailey Karnes has been made manager of the Light and Power plant at Richland Springs and has recently moved his family to that place. Goldthwaite regrets losing such good citizens as Joe, and his family, and hopes they will be happy and prosperous in their new home.

LARGE GROUP ATTEND FARMERS' DAY HERE

Five hundred and twenty-five farmers from all parts of the county converged on Goldthwaite last Tuesday to sign SR9 the last document before benefit checks are issued.

Nazarene Remarks

The service rendered by the school party Monday night was very interesting and profitable. To see the pictures of the college is to enhance one's appreciation of it. Uncle Buddie Robinson spoke to the audience Monday night and Tuesday morning at the church. From here the party went to Brownwood for a service Tuesday night.

While the weather has been somewhat inclement at times, yet the prospects are good for a revival. The attendance has been good and the messages of the evangelist, Rev. French, have been inspiring and uplifting for the church. Some of the subjects which will be discussed during the revival will be: "The Lost Christ," "Consecration, or How to be Sanctified," "Asleep in the Lap of Sin," "The Solemn Day, Home of the Unsaved," "Signs of the Times, or The Coming of Jesus," "Unpardonable Sin," "God's Call," and "The Wandering Lover." We invite you to hear these stirring, pungent messages. The meeting continues through February 7.

Evangelist French is offering a beautiful and expensive New Testament to the one that brings the greatest number to the services that have not attended since Tuesday night, January 26. Join in and invite your friends, you may win the award.

CHARLIE HARRISON, Pastor.

NEARS GOAL

At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon the citizenry of Mills County was only $3.50 short of the Red Cross assignment for relief of the flood sufferers. The amount being $250 for the county was soon contributed and Mills county citizens should be praised for their speedy and generous part in the Red Cross contribution.

TOMORROW LAST DAY FOR TAX PAYMENTS

Tomorrow (Saturday) is the very last day on which taxes may be paid without a penalty. This includes city, school, state and county taxes. And no poll taxes will be issued at all after tomorrow. Up to last night only 990 poll taxes had been paid in the county as compared with a total of 1995 last year.

The usual last minute rush of late payers has already started in the office of both tax collectors.

LIONS CLUB GOOD WILL TRIP IS POSTPONED

On account of sickness and bad weather, the good-will trip to Priddy by the business men of Goldthwaite, sponsored by the Lions club, will be postponed from Friday night, January 29 to some date next week, weather permitting.

Some 70 business men of Goldthwaite have bought plates for the dinner that will be served by the ladies of Priddy.

After the dinner a program which all will enjoy is to be held. Don't forget and let all go and have a good time and boost our town.

- "Enchanting Clementina," by Sophia Cleugh.
- "In The Shadow Of The Cheka," by John de N. Kennedy.
- "The Outsider," by Sheila MacDonald.
- "Gun Magic," George M. Johnson.
- "Silver Wings," by Grace Livingston Hill.

HIGHWAY SEVEN LAND NEARLY ALL BOUGHT

Judge R. J. Gerald announced yesterday that all but one comparatively small tract of land had been purchased for the new right of way for Highway 7 between Goldthwaite and Center City. This tract is one in which a number of heirs is interested and legal proceedings have already been instituted to acquire it with a clear title.

No definite promise has been made by the state highway department as to when the work of clearing and grading the new road will begin, but it is expected to be soon after the county turns the new right of way over to the state.

METHODIST W. M. S. TO MEET

The Woman's Missionary Society will meet Monday in regular session and all members are urged to be present. The meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. L. R. Conro, president.

QUIRKS IN THE NEWS

Abroad at home: A bewildered man ambled about the twisting streets and intersections of the Tennessee Valley Authority's model town near Norris Lake, Tenn. Finally he shrugged aside dignity and asked a policeman to direct him to the residence of David Lillenthal, TVA director. "Do you know Mr. Lillenthal?" the officer demanded. The man replied: "I am Mr. Lillenthal."

Spirits of love: The federal alcohol control administration dug through its regulations and discovered that whiskey labels which bring undue notoriety to international figures cannot be approved. Fortwith the FACA told a Chicago blending firm to stop labeling its product "Wally Whiskey—Fit for a King."

On the house: A blonde registered at the Hotel New Yorker as Mrs. Estelle Grogin and told the desk clerk she would leave shortly. Six hours later she checked out. In the room a maid found a newborn 7-pound girl.

Big Idea: Asa L. Carter of Cleveland offered War Department engineers his plan for giving the Midwest an outlet to the sea: for $375,000,000, they could dig a tunnel under the Appalachian Mountains, between Cincinnati, Ohio, and Baltimore. The army thought his estimate was $1,000,000,000 too low.

Appeal: Ralph Burdick, painter and chauffeur, advertised in a Miami, Fla., paper: "Listen—I'm lazy, hate to work, I'm none too honest, must have short hours and decent salary; prefer chauffeur's position; don't want to work but have too." He was offered seventeen jobs.

Versatile: A San Jose, Calif., city editor sent a reporter to cover police and fire department examinations. As the legman left the office, the editor shouted: "Better take those examinations yourself and get some good color." The reporter obeyed and won second place in the police test and third in the fireman's. Both jobs pay more than his own, but he stuck to the newspaper business.

Take the witness: Charged with shooting Jean Nash, 15, in Dover, N.J., Samuel Miller, 18, remembered that wives need not testify against their husbands. He married the girl.

Vital statistics: C. Wheeler Lute, statistician for the Fidelity Investment Association of Wheeling, W. Va., has announced some calculations based on the drop in the 1933-36 domestic birthrate: The 1,000,000-baby deficiency will result eventually in a shortage of 230,000 industrial workers, 100,000 farmers, 200,000 wives, 1,300 doctors, 15 ornithologists, 2 deep-sea divers, and 1 lion tamer.—News Week.

Mills County Asked to Raise Funds at Once

With more than a half-million people in the Ohio valley homeless, with many without food and clothing, and with thousands more needing medicine and doctors and nurses, the American Red Cross has turned to the people in the rest of America for aid in this great emergency.

Baptist Reminder

Dr. Davis, dean of John Tarleton college, has informed me that he will be with us on the night of the 5th of February for our Father and Son banquet. Plans are being made for a fine time. Our ladies are planning on at least 125 being present.

Our B. T. U. is taking on new life. We have now the strongest organization we have had since I came to Goldthwaite. The young people had charge of the opening Sunday evening and it was very fine. Travis Meeks brought a very helpful message, and two of our girls, Lorane Bledsoe and Jeanette Martin, sang a duet.

The young people's department in our Sunday school is doing very fine work. Albert Hunt is the efficient superintendent of that department. We would like to have you in that department if you are a young person, we have a class that will suit anyone who wants to come to Sunday school.

Is there any excuse for you staying away from church? Is that excuse satisfactory to the Lord? David said: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of the Lord." There is no substitute for worship in the church. Christ illustrated the importance of the church by giving his own life for it. FRANKLIN E. SWANNER.

FROM OUR REPRESENTATIVE

The House of Representatives, Austin, Texas, Jan. 25, 1937. Mrs. R. M. Thompson, Editor. And Readers of the Goldthwaite Eagle, Goldthwaite, Texas.

Dear Friends:

I am of the opinion that the folks back home might appreciate having a word occasionally from their Representative in Austin.

Two weeks of regular session of the Forty-fifth Legislature is now history. I have hesitated to write up until this time, first, because I was making a desperate effort to be a good student and attempt to find out at least in part what the whole process was about. I am not quite sure that I am in any sense a veteran.

Second, the first two weeks have been devoted exclusively to the process of organization. Such routine matters as the election of the speaker, inauguration of the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor and other State officials, hearing the Governor's message, formation of committees, have occupied a bulk of the time. To date there have been about three hundred bills introduced in the House. No consideration has been given any measures due to the fact that the committees have not been organized. The Speaker announced this morning the standing committees. It might be of interest for you to know that your Representative received assignment to the following committees: Revenue and Taxation, Congressional and Legislative Districts, Education, Conservation and Reclamation, Livestock and Stock Raising, and Local and Uncon- tained Bills. Since the organiza-

Church Of Christ

It is indeed sad when we look out into the world and see the condition in the religious world. We are not surprised when we see men stand back and proclaim their infidelity. Why should they not take that stand when so-called Christianity is so divided? Division is the greatest curse to Christianity. With all that the murderer, hijacker, thief, adulterer, etc., etc., has done to mar the beauty of society, it is hard not to be compared with the marrying influence that religious division has had on society. I am ready to affirm that the latter has been, and will continue to be, the greater curse.

But why this division, when the Bible says for us to be one? The only answer is that the proper head has not been recognized in the religious world. Listen to Paul: "And hath put all things under his (Christ) feet, and gave him (Christ) to the head over all things to the church." "But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ." "He is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the first born from the dead; that in all things he might have preeminence." To recognize the Christ as the head we must do as he directs. Had this been done there would be no division in the world, but the church would continue in its original undivided state. The head of the church is in heaven, and there can be no substitute. Therefore, the only hope for the religious world is for all law making bodies in religion to disband, destroy their laws, by-laws, etc., and heed the law that was given by inspiration, the perfect law, the Bible.

You are invited to attend the services of the church of Christ, where the Bible and nothing else is the authority for all services. The church has no written formulated creed but the Bible, no plea but the gospel.

E. W. STOVALL, Minister.

VISITS STAR

Mr. Robinson, district supervisor, made a recent visit at the Star school and gave a good report and said it would likely be recommended soon for four years affiliation in regular high school work.

Join RED CROSS

Mills county's quota for flood sufferers through the Red Cross has been raised from one hundred dollars to two hundred and fifty dollars.

Everyone is asked to contribute to this fund. Leave your donation with Miss Claudia Carroll at Fairman Co. at once so that it can be rushed to American Red Cross headquarters to be spent while the need is greatest.

A NEW TEACHER

Recently Miss Evelyn Tucker was announced as a new teacher in the grammar school. After Miss Tucker had been on duty three days she was stricken with a severe case of the "flu" and on advice of her physician resigned her position.

Miss Sallie Lee Taylor of Waco, has been selected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Tucker. Miss Taylor is a graduate of Baylor University, in which institution she did considerable work in elementary education. Also Miss Taylor has had some very successful experience conducting different forms of young people's activities and comes very highly recommended by those who know her and we bespeak for her a pleasant and successful teaching experience.

NEW COURSE

Commercial Law, a new course, has been added to the list of high school subjects. This subject has not been taught here before, but it is an unusually appropriate course for high school students. Mr. Stephens is teaching the new subject, on which it is hoped that affiliation will be secured this first term.

JUNIOR CLASS MEETING

The junior class held a special business meeting last Tuesday to discuss the disposal of the five dollar prize won by them at the athletic carnival. They voted to donate one dollar to the athletic association; the rest will go into a fund for the junior-senior banquet of 1937. The boys were given a rising vote of thanks for the hilarious performance which won the prize for them. It was decided that the president should appoint a committee to make tentative plans for the banquet. The committee, namely: Jean Goosby, Catherine Fairman, Ila Mae Scrivner, Duron Kerby, Oleta Knight, Lester Moreland and Clark Davis, will meet with the room-mothers sometime in the near future to discuss plans. This general committee will be separated into special committees for more detailed work later.

CHATTER COLUMN

Dead Week! That celebrated period is now over; some persons failed; some passed. But the happiest group of all was the exempt seniors who got out of some or all of their examinations.
 A miracle has occurred. At last has been found a girl who admits she was wrong! Louise Ohlenbusch, with a rueful countenance and ashamed eyes, admits she did wrong to support and influence her friends to elect the winning candidate in a certain election last fall. But we can't readily blame her; it's the just deserts of these weak-minded people who haven't enough sense to choose for themselves. Why the long face, Capple Fairman? Didn't the expected boy-friend pan out as he should have?
 Wow! Did we score last week! Several indignant persons have most impolitely asked us to keep our meddlesome noses out of their business. John Bowman, Lester Moreland and Sumter Gerald were among the annoyed protestors. Our defense is that everybody's business is our business, and we tend it faithfully.

The Capitol Onlooker

By Charles E. Simons
 Austin, Texas, Jan. 28.—The question of highway safety, to which Texas communities are giving constantly increasing attention, was brought into sharp relief with the opening of the 45th regular session of the legislature.

Among the first of the bills introduced was one to strengthen the driver's license law passed at a special session of the previous legislature. The authors stated it was their purpose to put teeth into the law to provide better enforcement. Sponsors said they believed public opinion, being whipped ceaselessly by civic organizations, was beginning to crystallize in favor of a strong, workable law that would adequately care for the conditions existing on the highways.
 Drafters of the driver's license law pointed to figures that approximately two per cent of the drivers cause most of the accidents on the road. They announced an intention to make diligent efforts to keep the law from becoming a burden on the majority of good drivers but asserted, at the same time, that same, sensible drivers should not go wholly unprotected against the careless, reckless, operator.
 The condition existing with reference to highway safety is not nearly so bad as some would have us believe when measured in terms of highway miles traveled and the number of persons actively involved in driving cars on the open road and in the cities. The human activity in the motor transportation is tremendous and the enormity of the figures challenges the imagination. There are only a comparatively few citizens today that do not, at one time or another during a 24-hour period, find themselves riding, either as a driver or as an occupant in a motor vehicle.
 That the nation is gradually acquiring a better accident record is apparent from statistics. However, the loss of life and property on the highways is tremendous, even when all factors are considered. It can and will be reduced. Effective enforcement, highway engineering and education will do it. When compared to the number of accidents that occur annually in the supposedly safe precincts of the home, the highway as a one-way ticket to another life shows up favorably.
 With the inauguration of effective enforcement, coupled with other encouraging factors, the death toll next year should take a drop despite the prospect of increased usage of highways and automobiles.

Among the first bills introduced was one to reduce the motor vehicle registration fee to a nominal amount. The bill will be opposed by leading members of the legislature interested in a continuation of the highway program on an orderly basis and in making needed improvements that will improve safety features of the roads, such as elimination of dangerous curves, railroad grade crossings, deep ditches and other hazards.
 The proposed reduction would severely cripple the finances of was seen riding with Catherine Hodges and Alleene Ross.

 And so Betty came to school with a black eye. Not exactly black—sort of purple and green with orange stripes. She admits she was socked by a gentleman, but we doubt "gentleman" part of it. Maybe we should warn the local young people that J. Tacky students are not too good to be out with. But we will have to admit that we all like to see them when they come.
 Some two or three persons are just dying to see a certain incident written up in here. All right, you asked for it, and here it is. Anyone who is low enough to take and read another's personal letters should be boiled slowly in hot oil. In fact, we are not sure that mere boiling is not too good for them. We aren't mentioning names, but the guilty persons will know whom we refer to—and a large part of the high school student body also.

With the beginning of the new semester several new students were added to the high school rolls. The freshmen welcome Willie Mae Arrowood, Lorane Geeslin, Thurbur Miles and Bailey Kuykendall. The seniors are glad to add Hazel Eakin to their number.

The highway department and the counties as well. The bill would take approximately two-thirds off the income from the present registration levy, an unusually sharp cut.
 Last year the state and counties collected $16,699,756 in motor vehicle registration fees on 1,509,700 vehicles. Of this total, the state received $5,828,756 and the counties retained $10,871,024. The state's share went into the general construction and maintenance fund. The portion retained by the counties constituted the major source, and in some cases the only, of revenue to county road and bridge funds.

In the case of the state, it would not require an expert to figure out what would happen to the highway program. The state, under the proposed reduction, would receive little or nothing from the registration fees. This would, therefore, leaving the highway department dependent solely on the income from two cents of the four cent gasoline tax. The net to the highway department from this source last year totalled $17,831,440. The "fixed charges" against the department for next year are in excess of this amount as shown by the following figures.
 Unless the state chooses to forego one of its federal aid, it must match the $7,957,000 appropriation made by the federal government. The annual cost of maintaining the system is some $9,300,000 and the cost of equipment $429,407. During the next year the department also must match an extra federal grant of $1,591,522 for secondary roads. Legislative appropriations from the highway fund total slightly in excess of $600,000 annually. The grand total of these charges is approximately $20,000,000 and could not be met if the proposed reduction was carried out. This could mean only one thing, curtailment of road building and maintenance activity somewhere along the line.

"I refuse to lay until I get a new dress" usually lacking in the best of feeds. It supplies conditioning properties that a laying hen needs.

If you've ever picked a hen for Sunday dinner, you have an idea about how many feathers it takes to cover her—literally thousands of them. And she insists on a new dress once a year. Give her extra help at molting time and she'll be laying for you sooner.

And keep right on with that extra help after the molt is over. To give you an idea of what Pan-a-min will do, 300 of our Pan-a-min birds outlaid a check pen by 497 1/2 dozen eggs in a year. And this is a typical example of the results we get in our yearly tests with Pan-a-min.

Many poultrymen are now having Pan-a-min mixed right into their mash—3 pounds Pan-a-min to 100 pounds mash. And they're getting extra eggs.

2006 WORMS FROM 266 BIRDS IN 48 HOURS!

A single dose of DR. HESS POULTRY WORM POWDER given in the feed gets the round worms. The above (2006 worms from 266 birds in 48 hours) shows you how effective it is—shows you that individual treatment is no longer necessary.
 Worm your birds the modern way—the single-dose flock treatment way—the POULTRY WORM POWDER way. The active principle of WORM POWDER is nicotine, the specific for round worms. WORM POWDER is non-toxic to birds—will not throw them off production. Low cost—only 1/2¢ to 1¢ per bird, depending on the size of flock.
 NOTE: WORM POWDER also available in tablet form for those who prefer individual treatment.

WHY DISINFECT?

More and more attention is being given to farm sanitation—because we realize it is far better to try to avoid poultry and livestock troubles. Use a good disinfectant—because you can't see the product you use kill disease germs—you want to be sure that it does!
 Use DR. HESS DIP AND DISINFECTANT, the product that is known for its quality. DR. HESS DIP is standardized—always the same quality. It is always the same strength. It always makes a clean-white emulsion and stays that way. These are the three things that denote a good dip. These are the reasons why a good dip lasts longer and does a better job—the reasons why you should use DR. HESS DIP AND DISINFECTANT.

Uncle Sam Looks to Texas in Battle To Rewin Markets Lost to Foreigners

With more than 50 per cent of America's sulphur export market lost to foreigners in last six years, Uncle Sam is counting on sons of the Lone Star state to shoulder responsibility not only of recapturing our lost markets, but of preserving the domestic industry thus assuring U. Whaley, inset, upper left, general manager of Texas State Manufacturers' Association. Texans are already in forefront of this battle to regain lost markets and among leaders is J. T. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ruppels from Burnet, and children, brought Miss Opal Green to enter school at Duren. She is staying with her Grandmother Pyburn.

Allice Green, Mrs. R. C. Duren's mother, celebrated her 80th birthday Sunday. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Luther Green, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Green, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Jones, Grandmother Green is doing fine and enjoyed the fine dinner that was prepared for her.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pyburn, Mrs. A. E. Pyburn and Allice Richardson visited Grandmother Jones and family Sunday afternoon. She was doing very well. We hope to see her doing better in a few weeks.

The young folk enjoyed a party at Mr. and Mrs. Willis Green's the past week-end.

Walker Wigley is employed this week in the Duren community, grinding feed for the farmers.

Our school is doing nicely in spite of the bad weather. Everybody is trying to do the best. The teachers are doing all they can to help the pupils to make the grades. BLUE BONNET.

I feel sure that I will receive a great amount of pleasure out of studying through and voting on these measures. I am not sure by any means, due to the great volume of material to be studied, but I shall attempt to do this as far as possible. I am sure of one thing, that my attitude and obligations are of such nature that I will be able to consider all matters impartially and to the best of my ability. I will appreciate from time to time suggestions from any of my constituents relative to any matter in which they are interested.

I shall attempt from time to time as the session progresses to discuss in a brief way through the paper some of the outstanding measures that come before the Legislature. Sincerely yours, TOLBERT PATTERSON.

A CITY IN AGONY

A new sensation has been experienced this week by those who, comfortably seated before a cheering fire, have listened to a radio station WHAS in Louisville broadcast flood orders for that sorely stricken city. Operators of the station were working by lantern light, transmitting their messages by short wave or telephone to radio station WSM in Nashville where they were re-broadcast, primarily for the rescue workers of Louisville.

It was hard to realize that out in the cold and dark men were fighting desperately to save, not property, but human lives. As the 20-mile wide Ohio river swirled through homes and stores and factories, frantic appeals for aid were broadcast over the air.

"Boat wanted at such and such a street address to rescue woman and three babies."

"Nine people at number so and so have been marooned for three days without food and water."

"Carpenters wanted at blank lumber yard to build bridges."

"Boat mechanic wanted to repair disabled motorboat on Main street."

"Motorcade from Nashville with clothing and food wants direction for entering city."

And so on and on the announcer read, the messages piling up faster than he could read them.

We in Mills county know the menace and terror of flood waters sweeping down an unruly river. Some of our people have lost prized possessions, clothing, even homes, but only a small fraction of our people were thus affected. In Louisville two out of every three families is destitute, their homes under water, their avenues of escape seriously threatened by the rising flood.

The appeal for help for these poor sufferers will not go unheeded here. It is our opportunity to observe the Golden Rule.

HISTORY REPEATS IN PRICE TREND

The index of wholesale commodity prices, as compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and based on 1926 as 100, declined from 96.5 in July 1929 to 59.8 in February 1933 and then showed a sharp recovery for a period of about two years, reaching 89.2 in May 1935. After that, the trend was practically sideways until the last two months of 1936. During November and December, there was a noticeable spurt with the index for the latter month rising to 83.6, according to a preliminary estimate.

While the price movement since March 1933 has had some unusual aspects, there is still little reason to assume that the price trend has departed from the pattern established after the Napoleonic Wars and duplicated after the Civil War, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. After the former conflict, there was a long term decline which lasted approximately 29 years. After the latter conflict, there was a decline with a duration of 33 years. It is thus apparent that, without a change in the usual post-war pattern, we are still in a long-term period of declining prices since less than 17 years have elapsed since the price peak in 1920.

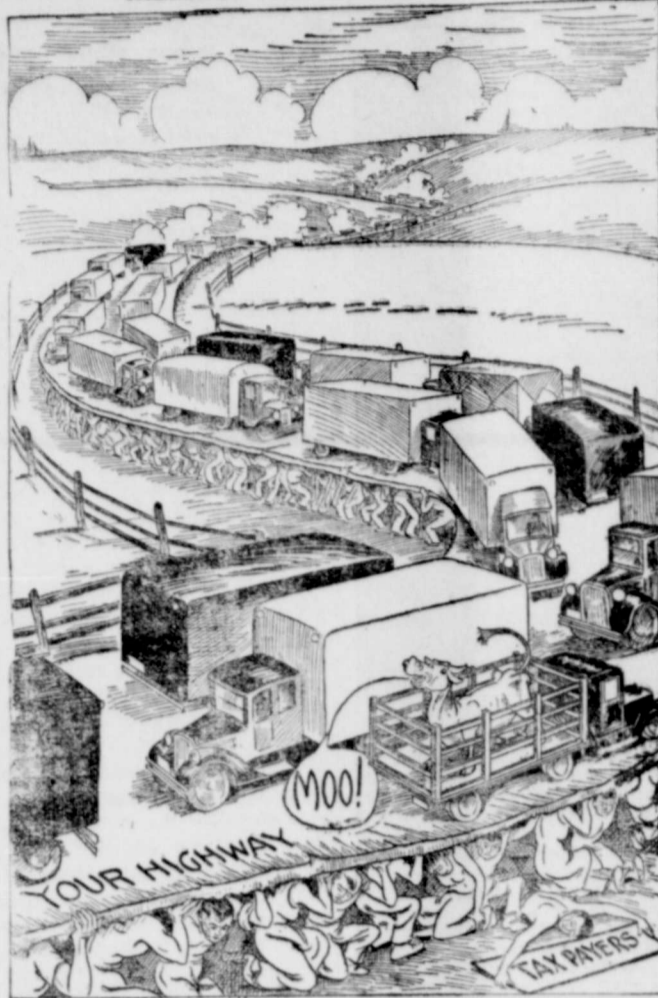

That the usual post-war pattern is still being followed is indicated by the fact that the price movement since 1920 has up to the present time conformed in a general way to the trends after the Napoleonic Wars and after the Civil War. The price rally which began in March 1933 does not vitiate the comparison. The long term price declines which occurred after the two major conflicts of the nineteenth century were both interrupted by substantial rallies. Moreover, each of these former rallies started at practically the same level as the one at which the current rally began. At the start of the rally in 1834, the price index was 60.3, in 1879, the index was 58.2 and in February 1933, the index was 59.8. The rallies which began in 1834 and in 1879 both proved to be temporary affairs, giving way to a resumption of the long-term downward trends.

While the course of prices in the current rally has differed from the course of prices in either of the two former rallies, the difference has not been sufficient to provide support for the theory that the present rally is a movement of a relatively permanent character. The two previous rallies differed from each other and yet they both were temporary matters.

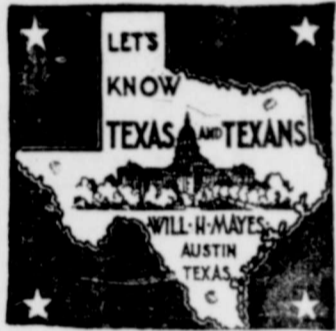

The outstanding peculiarity of the current rally has been its duration. The peak of the 1834 rally was reached in 34 months while the peak in the 1879 rally was reached in 36 months. As compared with these periods, the month of December 1936, in which the price average reached the highest level so far attained in the present movement, represented the 46th month since the beginning of the current rally. The index of 83.5 in December 1936, however, was below the peak of 88.4 reached in the 1834 rally. Moreover, the drop from the peak did not represent the definite resumption of the long term downward price trend. Before this was resumed, prices momentarily recovered a good part of the loss suffered in the drop from the peak, rising nearly to the level prevailing in December 1936. Thus, if the duration of the 1834 rally is measured from its beginning to its secondary peak, it lasted 58 months, or a year longer than the present rally has lasted. It must be assumed, therefore, that prices at the present time are following the usual post-war course.

The conclusion is, therefore, that the current rally will give way to a resumption of the long term downward trend although the experience after the Napoleonic Wars suggests that this may not occur before the beginning of 1938. This postponement, however, is not certain in view of the experience after the Civil War when prices resumed their downward trend immediately after the peak of the post-war rally was reached. Even if the decline is postponed until 1938, it is questionable whether the peak of the current rally will be much above the point reached in December 1936 as in 1837 and 1838. The spurt during November and December was possibly a warning sign. A similar spurt occurred in 1837 immediately before a sharp break in prices occurred.

Q. Who was the first woman to go up the old "Chisholm Trail" with a herd of cattle? T.C.

A. According to Dr. T. U. Taylor in "The Chisholm Trail and Other Routes," Mrs. Harriet Cluck, of Williamson county, accompanied her husband, Geo. W. Cluck, up the Chisholm Trail in 1871, being the first woman to make the hazardous trip. She traveled in a hack with her three children: Allie Annie, aged 7; Emmett, aged 5; and Harriet Minnie, aged 2. The Clucks spent the winter of 1871-72 at Abilene, Kansas, where another child, Eucl, was born, and returned in the spring, buying a home at Cedar Park, Williamson county, still the family home.

Q. When was the next Mexican invasion of Texas made after that of March, 1842? E.K.D.

A. On September 11, General Adrian Woll, with 1400 men appeared at San Antonio, and after a brief skirmish took the district judge (court then being in session) several court officers, and lawyers and other citizens to the number of 53 as prisoners and after three days withdrew with them to Mexico, where the Texans were imprisoned.

Q. How did Houston feel in regard to Austin's imprisonment in Mexico? T.R.

A. Along with many other Texans, he felt that Austin was indiscreet in his letter from Mexico urging the San Antonio ayuntamiento to lead a movement for a state government for Texas. In a letter to John A. Wharton, Houston said: "I was provoked by his first letter, where he broke into prison."

Q. How much federal relief has been spent in Texas? W. G.

A. The president's report made to December 12, 1936, showed total expenditures in Texas in all branches of recovery and relief totalling $150,804,967, with an additional amount of $37,804,405 allocated, but not yet expended.

LIBRARY READING

Among reports made to the midwinter conference of the American Library association, which was held at Chicago, was one showing that during the five-year period from 1930 to 1935, the demand at libraries for fiction increased but 1 per cent, while the demand for nonfiction increased 21 per cent. The trend has been indicated in prior yearly reports, and the result of the five-year study was not unexpected. It was during this period that many persons were turned to more thoughtful attitudes. When their investments failed to yield a return, they wanted to know why. They went to the libraries for books on economics and investments. Many learned during the depression that they were not well trained for their work, or that they lacked the ability to make the most of their personalities. They created a strong demand for vocational and success books. There has been much debate about the cause of the decline in the demand for fiction. The obvious explanation is that as the people turned to nonfiction, they had less time to read fiction. But there is some doubt about whether the public library demand is a reliable indicator of the people's interest in fiction. They are better able to buy fiction than nonfiction, for the cost of enough story-reading to occupy an evening or two is small, whereas the material found in nonfiction works can be had, generally, only in books calling for a much larger initial cost. Many who read much fiction never read a novel, or even a book of stories. They get their fiction in magazines and newspaper serials. Among delegates to the conference there seemed to be a growing support of the notion that librarians should try to control the reading of library patrons. They should, of course, as always they are, be ready to advise when a patron wishes help in laying out a reading course. Many libraries offer excellent courses and helpful general guidance. But this is a different matter from trying to impose the librarian's taste on the patron.—Indianapolis News.

WHO PAYS TAXES?

Who pays the taxes? Every one. But the trouble with this country's tax system is that every one is not aware of the fact that he pays. According to figures given out by the bureau of internal revenue, there are only 2,000,000 taxable incomes in the country. For a nation which is regarded as the richest in the world, this is a surprising showing. It means that only one person out of every 36 who is old enough to vote pays a directly recognized federal tax. Nevertheless all these citizens can vote, which helps to explain the lack of enthusiasm for government economy. That attitude will persist so long as citizens can vote for expenditures, which so far as they observe, cost them nothing. They do pay taxes, on gasoline, on cigarettes, on cards, on gum, soap, movie tickets and many other purchases. But the taxes are so adroitly concealed that, except in a few instances, the purchaser fails to realize the price includes the tax item. Those who have studied taxation believe this plan is wrong. They think the public should know that it pays taxes and that it must do so, to provide the services for which it votes. The doctrine has been unpopular with politicians, because they know it is better for them to let the public think it can get something for nothing. There is a small group of men in politics, however, who are convinced that in the long run more direct taxes would be better for them. A system of financing which showed the public daily just what government costs would be the best defense the man in office could invoke against demands for extravagant expenditure. If and when that plan is adopted it will be a start toward economy.—Danville Commercial News.

AID FOR CHILDREN AND THE BLIND

Coming immediately after Governor Allred, in his annual message to the legislature, recommended extension of the state's social security program to the blind and the dependent children, a report from the social security board summarizing the present status of the program over the nation is of unusual interest to Texans.

Approximately 1,478,400 persons are receiving aid in 43 states and territories which have established public assistance plans in co-operation with the federal government, the board reported. The recipients included 1,132,800 aged, 313,900 dependent children, and 31,700 blind.

Last February, when the federal-state program got under way, 326,126 individuals were receiving benefits in 23 states which then had plans approved by the social security board. More than a million aged, blind and dependent children have been granted assistance during the first 11 months of the joint program. Of these approximately 90,000 are aged persons in Texas.

In February, 1936, there was a total of $4,614,328 under approved plans for aid of these groups of needy persons. This month the total disbursements will be above $25,000,000, represent not only an increase in recipients but a rise in the average monthly payments to individuals.

The number of states granting old-age assistance has risen from 19 last February to 42 today; aid to needy blind, from 12 to 28; and aid to dependent children, from 12 to 27.

The Texas legislature should pass laws at this session to set up programs of assistance to these latter two classes of needy. Governor Allred indicated in his message that such programs would cost the state about $4,324,000. This amount would be supplemented by funds from the federal government, as is the case with old age assistance.—Houston Chronicle.

POSTAL SERVICE DEFICITS—AND FRANKED MATTER

In contrast to the 5-million-dollar annual "net" surplus for the two previous years, the Post Office Department reports a gross deficit totaling 88 million had a net shortage aggregating 16 million dollars for the fiscal period ending June 30, last. Notwithstanding the drop into "the red," Postmaster-General Farley cites a 34½-million dollars increase in postal revenues for the year, making 655½ millions in total receipts.

That upturn is taken to indicate a substantial increase in business and industrial activity. While the postoffice took in more money than in the previous or any recent year, postal expenses went up still more, with the result that the deficit was heavier than formerly. Mr. Farley attributed the added cost partially to the 40-hour week law (effective October 1, 1935) which gave the postal workers a substantial raise—or rather, restoration of previous pay-cuts.

The opening of numerous new federal buildings, which required the services of many more custodians' helpers, further increased the running expenses. In any event the postmaster general's previous "surpluses" existed on paper only. Those figures were arrived at by charging off subsidies to ocean mail and air mail, as well as the cost of various free services, including the franking of congressmen's mail.

The merit and utility of the double bookkeeping system have been questioned, but the method did have one salutary effect. It emphasized the heavy cost to the government of the franking privilege, and the waste incident to its abuse. Congressmen are not the only offenders. Severia departments and bureaus clutter up waste-baskets all over the country with useless matter, sent out with no better purpose than to impress upon the public their own importance. Were official matter required to bear postage, and were each bureau's postal bill charged against its annual budget, that would eliminate considerable useless mailing and tend to reduce the deficit.—San Antonio Express.

VANGUARD OF PROGRESS

Science is the watch-word. In Atlantic City, New York and Chicago learned societies convene and report of what they have learned during the year in physical, chemical, electrical, sociological and psychiatric research. Laymen dazed by the technicalities comprehend but vaguely what their achievements connote. Yet since science always keeps years ahead of its application to man's use, college students who realize that what they learn with great effort today may be controverted tomorrow have only admiration for these vanguards of progress. We are told, for example, that Columbia professors have made enough "heavy oxygen"—having atomic weight of eighteen instead of the usual sixteen—to aid a deeper understanding of the nature of living organisms. We learn that alcoholism is a brain disease, not a matter of will power or morals, and treated as such; that X-rays act like a toxic dose on cancer cells; that a new solar engine using curved mirrors to focus sun rays on a simple steam boiler develops two horsepower, opening seemingly unlimited possibilities for using the sun to run our future mills. We get information, even if only experts can digest it, about the electron—a negative charged bit of electricity, the tiniest particle of matter known—also its positive-charged brother proton, and its nondescript cousin neutron; and we learn with awe that the electron has been found to weigh nine-tenths of a billionth of a billionth of a billionth of a gram—a minuteness beyond ordinary ken. Is by such gatherings of practical visionaries that we periodically check on our progress and survey new courses for achievement.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Midget Radio Balloons May Help Forecast Weather

Left, Dr. L. F. Curtis of Bureau of Standards, and radiometerograph ready to be attached to balloon. Lower center, radio instrument which "broadcasts" automatically. Upper right, tiny 46-volt "B" batteries in position for flight into stratosphere.

TINY balloons, soaring into the stratosphere with equipment which records weather data and automatically radios it to stations on the ground, offer promise of early realization of one of meteorology's greatest dreams—long-range weather forecasting. Fifteen balloons have just been sent aloft in flights conducted at Omaha, Neb., by the National Bureau of Standards, cooperating with the U. S. Weather Bureau. If these tests confirm scientists' theories about the effect of stratospheric conditions upon weather, the Weather Bureau may be able to predict weather accurately as much as two weeks in advance, instead of the present 24 to 48 hours. This revolutionary meteorological advance, it was declared, would result in savings of millions of dollars yearly to farmers and to the shipping, fishing and other industries.

Complete studies of the stratosphere were formerly impossible because planes cannot enter that mysterious layer which lies outside the earth's normal envelope of air. Even if planes could penetrate the stratosphere, they could not go up in bad weather. Moreover, this method is too expensive to be practicable. All these handicaps are overcome by the use of "mechanical scientists" in midget balloons. The method was developed through experiments begun and conducted by Dr. L. F. Curtis, of the Bureau of Standards. So that large and expensive balloons would not be needed, it was necessary to reduce the weight of the equipment to the absolute minimum. Each balloon carries a power plant to radio the automatic recordings. To provide electricity, engineers of National Carbon Co. Inc., have developed the world's smallest "B" battery, a 46-volt battery, it is only two inches high and weighs but two ounces. These balloons, going up in any kind of weather, have relayed records of temperature, humidity and air pressure when 25 miles in the air and when 80 miles distant from the ground station. The equipment is so inexpensive it does not have to be retrieved for future use. When lack of air density causes the bag to burst, the equipment floats to the ground on a parachute, so no one can be injured.

FARM DEBT OFFICIAL TO MEET WITH LOCAL MEN

Farmers whose land is threatened with foreclosure should contact the local farm debt adjustment committee immediately, as even at such a date these committees often can be of decided assistance," says C. P. Shaffer, district farm debt adjustment supervisor, who will be in Goldthwaite February 4. Mills county farmers desiring financial advice should plan to meet with him and the local committee at Resettlement Office, court house from 8:30 a. m. to 12 noon.

Farmers who are unable to attend the meeting should contact a committeeman beforehand and give him complete information about their problem. Farmers who plan to attend the meeting should bring with them a complete list of creditors and the amount owed each, including unpaid taxes. The FDA supervisor does not represent any lending agency so he has no money to lend, but he does know all the places money might be secured to refinance a distressed farmer. In addition, much of his work is in getting the farmer and the creditor together to work out some plan of repayment which is fair to the creditor and possible to the farmer. This service is without cost to the farmers, and is offered in connection with a volunteer county committee composed of: T. F. Sinsom, Willis Hill and A. L. Carroll.
