The Candidates Lamentation

No sir, I'm not in politics this year, I'm truly glad to say, Yes, I ran two years ago but I have rued the day, I tossed my hat into the ring, my fellowman to serve, but now, in contemplation, I sure have lost my nerve. It costs too much in solid cash besides it is not much fun. So these are splendid reasons why I do not "choose to run."

It cost me just two hundred "bucks" to announce my name, but this was just the beginning. I now confess with shame, for every time I turned around—I wish I could forget—the memory of the cash I spent lingers with me yet. I bought icecream and lemonade, bought enough on any trip, together with the wine and beer to float a battleship.

I took forty chances on forty quilts at forty church bazaars, besides a hundred dollars that I put in birthday jars.

To a country barbecue I gave a dozen goats, one of my blooded yearlings and half a dozen shoots.

I dug Johnson grass enough to stack up to the moon, and chopped enough cotton to make Joe Lewis swoon.

I kissed thirty seven babies and swore that they were sweet, and courted thirty six grass widows to make my joy complete.

I attended sixteen revivals in just as many days, was baptized six times by immersion, three times in other ways.

When I was with a Baptist I was a Baptist you may bet; but when visiting a Methodist, the Baptists "were all wet."

I tried to tell the truth sometimes, I'm sure you are surprised; but for each truth I told, I told a thousand lies.

Disputing with an opponent, as such argument often goes I lost all my good front teeth and got a broken nose.

Then to make bad matters worse—just beat it if you can—my home paper, summing up result, just noted that I "also ran."

All Smiles in Court House

All officers of the county were re-elected except the two who did not make the race. B. J. Keese, district clerk, whose wife was elected, and I. McCurry who did not run for Commissioner, precinct 3. The only run-off in the county will be between W. L. Barker and Hobart Priddy for commissioner, precinct 3. A happy group at the Mills County Court House these days is the result.

Representative Tolbert Patterson carried his home county and H. F. Howington carried his home county, Comanche, and a run-off will be necessary between them.

Flood and Rain Do Much Damage

Encouraged by clearing skies and receding flood waters of the Colorado River, Mills County is counting the cost of more than a foot of rainfall in a week. Damage to highways, especially lateral roads throughout the county is estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000.

Serious damage was reported at the Boykin Crossing bridge over Bennett Creek, where the new concrete bridge was reported to be partially washed away. Nearly a score of culverts over the county were washed out. Workers started immediately to repairing damages made by the inroads of the flood and they will probably need two or three week's time before all roads will be made passable again.

Work on the new Colorado River bridge was suspended. About one-half of the earthwork which had been built up was carried away by the flood waters and some of the equipment which could not be moved to safety was damaged.

The pecan crop in the river valley, which had been reduced to less than half by the late freeze in April is now completely lost. Thousands of acres of corn, cotton, and row crops have been washed away or badly damaged. Although the flood waters lacked seven feet of reaching the high mark set in 1936, damage to crops has been equally severe because fewer crops have been harvested.

River waters are now receding slowly as the rains have finally ceased.

Educational Awards To be Given

Educational awards to 19 Texas farm youths, permitting them to attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, will again be offered this year by the Santa Fe Railway, J. S. Hershey, general freight agent, announced.

Winners of the awards will be selected by members of the Texas A&M College faculty. Mr. Hershey said, with the awards to be given on the basis of individual records made in farm club work as carried on by the College's extension department.

Those selected will attend the National 4-H Club Congress held annually in Chicago in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition. This event attracts several hundred farm boys and girls from every state in the Union and the chance to attend is eagerly anticipated by farm youths throughout the nation.

During the past 16 years, Mr. Hershey explained, the Santa Fe has made it possible for 874 youths to attend this event. Besides the 19 Texas winners this year, 42 more farm youths from seven other states in which the railroad operates will receive similar awards, he added.

Purpose of the awards, is to promote farm leadership in the railroad's territory.

Just Another Day in New York

NEW YORK—It is a dull day when New York does not have some sort of a parade. Pictured above is scene at 23rd Street and Broadway during Motorcade and Preview of the New York World's Fair 1939. Tags for 1939 commercial trucks will have black numerals on a green background while farm trucks will have white numerals on a black background. Miscellaneous series, including tractor-trailer, dealer, motor bus, motorcycle and sidecar plates will have black numerals on a yellow background.

Keep the Ships at Sea

American shipyards, long almost completely idle, are awakening to contribute a definite share in national recovery.

It seems impossible, but it is true that for 16 years not a single general-cargo ship has been built for foreign commerce in an American yard.

Bankers, yes. A few liners, yes. But the general-cargo freighter, which is the backbone of any merchant marine and an absolutely necessary naval auxiliary in time of war, has been neglected to an unbelievable extent.

Soon 33 ships will be under way, including the $15,750,000 successor to the Leviathan. They are the forerunners of a fleet of 500 ships within the next 10 years, to cost a billion and a quarter dollars.

Before that fleet hits the sea, however, every effort should be made to get going with a workable system of maritime labor. The incessant bickering between and among longshoremens and

Anglo-French Solidarity

The state visit of King George and Queen Elisabeth is an impressive facade for the solidarity of Great Britain and France in matters vitally affecting both. It is meant, no doubt, as a warning to Hitler not to do anything drastic. The fuhrer has been told in no uncertain terms that an attack on Czechoslovakia means war with France; he also has been told that whereas Britain's interests in Central Europe are not such as to cause her to fight, she would not see France defeated. That adds up to a warning that if his legions start marching the Western powers will see to it that they end up back where they started and much the worse for wear.

A similar warning was given Germany only a few months before the great war began, when King George V and Queen Mary paid a visit to France. The Kaiser and his advisers believed Britain was bluffing. Their country and the world paid heavily for their mistake in judgment.

Most students of the international scene believe Hitler will not repeat the kaiser's error. The fuhrer has made many bold moves, but always it was when he believed his "Saturday surprise" would not cause war. It looked as if he might invade Czechoslovakia some months ago, but if he had such intention he backed down when the French issued their challenge. That evidence of Hitlerian caution in the face of a real threat of war gives rise to hope that with Britain and France firmly united there is no danger of another Hitler coup in the near future. Now that the powers understand each other better, they might just possibly get together some time and iron out a few difficulties.—Houston Chronicle.

Japan Tightens Its Belt

Because of the pressing and prolonged requirement of the invasion into China, Japan has abandoned all plans for two international events for 1940, the Olympic Games and the Tokio World's Fair.

Nippon's spokesman was very frank to state the country could not afford to go ahead with the two affairs because the Chinese war is straining every resource of the nation and the incident sacrifices must continue for years to come. The effect upon the sports-loving Japanese people should be bad, but the exigencies of the situation prevented any balancing of the loss of morale against the cost of the two projects planned. In normal times, Japan could have expected many thousands of tourists to be attracted by the Olympiad and the World's Fair, and must add this to her losses caused by the war.

Even without the compelling reason of straitened finances, Japan would have been unwise to have proceeded with the Olympic Games in 1940, for already they were furnishing occasion for opposition and enmity to be expressed against that country. The holding of the Olympiad in Berlin in 1936 was hardly worth all the trouble for Germany. Of some importance in the Japanese decision were the facts that the athletes of the country probably will be needed in China in 1940 and that the war-oppressed Japanese people in that year will not present a favorable picture for visitors.

World's Fairs and Olympic Games are symbols of international amity—of its existence and of a desire for its further spread on the part of the host nation. Japan, of course, has no friends today save Germany and Italy whose loyalty is based on self-interest. She is not in a position to foster world friendships. Nor is she concerned with glorifying the peacetime achievements of her people. Japan is too busy with killing men, women and children, and destroying a civilization in China to think of anything else.

Newspapers Found Best Medium For Bank Advertising

Newspapers are the best single medium for bank advertising. Lewis F. Gordon told the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Institute of Banking at its last session.

"Bank service and bank relations cover and affect everyone in the community, directly or indirectly," said Gordon who is assistant vice president of the Citizens and Southern National Bank of Atlanta.

"All of these people read newspapers and therefore your newspapers are the blanket medium to cover the greatest number of people at the least possible cost."

Moreover, the newspapers deserve bank support. Too frequently bank men look to the newspapers when they want to meet some crisis, yet never stop to consider that newspapers can not function and purvey news without advertising support.

"My experience with newspapers in Georgia during the banking holidays of 1933 gave me a full appreciation of the force and value of good newspapers in allaying public fear and dissipating uncertainty."

PICTURES ON THE FARM

Everywhere on a farm there are pictures—simple, pleasing snapshots that will give your albums new appeal.

THE man who says "nothing ever happens on a farm" certainly isn't talking about pictures. On almost any farm, if you keep your eyes open, you will find enough snapshot material to keep the camera busy from early morning to late at night—and still not exhaust the supply.

Farm animals offer scores of picture chances—woolly lambs in the sun, a hen fussing over her brood of chicks, cows being driven in for milking, pigs at the trough (or their owner summoning them with a lusty shout), horses drinking, ducks wading in a line about the yard or taking an afternoon "cruise" in the pond.

Work scenes in the field make excellent pictures, and fresh-plowed land with long deep furrows is good for pattern snapshots. The orchard in bloom is a scene of beauty, and all around the house and barn lot there are details which make pictures.

Get a snap of Grandfather whitening, mending a single-tree, or busy at a whirling grindstone. Picture shady fence corners, old-time zigzag fences of laid rails, the battered wooden bucket at the well and the worn saw-horse or chopping block in the woodlot. Look for snaps down by the shady spring-house and brook. And watch the special seasons—such as hog-killing time later on—when there is some unusual activity to picture.

Yes, there are plenty of farm snapshots—everything from a calf being fed from a bottle to corn-husking shots at harvest time and foot prints in the snow in winter. You can point your camera in almost any direction, and find something. Try it, every chance you get, and watch your picture albums grow!

Economic Review

According to some of the experts, the upturn in the stock market was the result of a heavy sudden influx of foreign money into American securities. Foreign capital, so the story goes, took the view that values were at extremely low levels, and that the market was a real bargain counter. The foreign financial invasion gave a surge of confidence to American investors, who began buying. Then the investment trusts, which had generally been out of the market for some time, waiting for what seemed the low point, stepped in and the major rise resulted. The gains have been generally held, with only minor reactions, on the basis of the latest quotations at the time this column is written.

Irrespective of the cause of the stock rise, there are some welcome signs on the business horizon to indicate that it is justified by the position of commerce and industry. The barometers have not gone far ahead of their spring lows as yet. But the tangible and intangible factors affecting the late summer and fall outlook are definitely improving. There are sound grounds for arguing that, even though nothing like a boom can be anticipated, the bottom has passed, and that the last half of the year will be substantially better than the first. The upward trend, in the view of most authorities, is due to start in August, after the traditional July shut-down in various industries, notably the automobile, and to continue at a slowly accelerating pace.

Biggest late industrial news was the price cut in steel, initiated by U. S. Steel. This has resulted in some new orders, and much heavier orders are anticipated. It is known that some industries have been holding off buying steel because they believe that a price slash was an imminent possibility. Now that the price slash has occurred these industries are surveying their low inventories and again coming into the market. The cut, on finished steel, according to Iron Age, amounts to about 5 1/2 per cent.

Car-loadings remain at poor levels—but there is even an element of encouragement here, in that ever since the third week in April, says Business Week, the rate of loss as compared with the year before has steadily declined. Best improvement in car-loadings has been in the field of merchandise shipments.

Electric power output is also tending upward again, in spite of the fact that household load declines in summer, which indicates a renewal of business activity in some quarters. Output is running substantially under last year, but is coming gradually closer to that level. The inventory situation remains favorable, especially in consumers' goods lines. Most experts think that inventories have just about touched their lowest possible point, and that buying will steadily improve. The outlook for buying in the heavy industry field, on the other hand, is far less favorable.

Also of great significance is what seems to be a material improvement in the state of mind of some business leaders who are gaining the opinion that the cycle is due to start upward again—for how long, no one knows. And a considerable amount of capital is coming out of hiding.

Summing up, best guess is that activity will slowly improve, but that there will be no sharp upturns in the production indices. No one believes we are on the verge of a boom as we were in 1936. Many believe that progress will be consistently made—but that it will be hard, slow going, and that there is no immediate prospect for regaining 1937

Scrap Timber is Used In Making New Paper

Toronto, July 28.—Development of what is termed a new and "revolutionary" paper-making process in which fruit-tree prunings and forest slash are used, has been announced by three Toronto research workers.

A type of cigarette paper, at present manufactured from linen rags, is produced under the new process.

T. L. Crossley, consulting chemist, and his co-experimenters, H. B. Peterson and R. J. Hart, said in making the announcement that pulp from fruit tree prunings and forest slash is peculiarly adapted to making the highest grades of paper.

levels. Many feel that security values have come up about as far as they will for some time, and that there is no immediate prospect for regaining 1937 levels. Many feel that security values have come up about as far as they will for some time, and that they will hold to about the current level.—I. N. R. Service.

Ad Campaign To Whet Interest

An advertising campaign designed to whet the interest of Texans in the scenic, recreational and travel opportunities in Texas will be released to Texas newspapers within a few days. Datus E. Proper, executive vice-president of the Texas Good Roads Association, has announced. Final details were worked out by Mr. Proper in a conference with Lowry Martin, President of the Association.

The campaign will consist of a series of advertisements presented by the Texas Good Roads Association showing the wonders and beauties of Texas. The advertisements have been prepared in mat form and will be released through the offices of the Texas Press Association, which endorsed the movement at its recent annual convention. The material will include one full page, attractively designed layout and a page of 15 smaller mats.

The movement has the approval of the Texas Highway Commission, the Texas Traffic Safety Association, Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations.

"Texas has been slow to stimulate tourist traffic," Mr. Martin said. "Many Texans are wholly unaware of the wonderful things scattered through this broad state of ours. The purpose of this effort is to give Texans a better appreciation of their state and to arouse in them an interest to visit spots of rare scenic, recreational and historical value. Texas has everything for the tourist, and we believe, most of them would 'See Texas First' if properly encouraged to do so. A brief tour to any part of Texas will convince any motorist that there are splendid opportunities in his own backyard for a zesty, thrill-packed vacation or travel tour. Let's 'See Texas First.' Then when we visit the other states we will be better able to sell Texas to tourists in other areas. Let's get acquainted with the Big Bend, the wonderful Texas Panhandle country, the giant forests and oil fields in East Texas, the beauties of the Texas coast and the magic Rio Grande Valley. Then more effectively we can sell Texas to the world and bring in a golden flow of tourist dollars."

INCREASES THE FEED SUPPLY

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary Breeder-Feeder Association

every field and pasture can be grazed only when it is properly fenced. It would be highly desirable to fence the entire farm at once, after carefully planning for convenience and permanency, but not every farmer can do this. Since we must set up a rotation system, however, to receive the benefits of the national farm act, and good business judgment requires that we make the most of the rotation both in the interest of immediate income and of permanent productivity, we can begin by fencing at least one field a year until the entire farm is sub-divided. A few years ago Jack Shelton added a farm flock of sheep to Luling Foundation farm's productive capacity by the simple expedient of fencing in a creek which wound its way through the cultivated fields. Enough grass grew on its sloping banks and in its sharp bends to keep the sheep, and incidentally, they kept down the weeds which formerly served only to seed the nearby plow land. Not only the land is benefitted by rotation and livestock grazing, but livestock itself, especially hogs, sheep and poultry, thrive better when they can be "rotated"—shifted from place to place. This calls for hog-tight and sheep-proof fence, which may be either full cattle-high woven wire or woven wire 26 to 35 inches high with barbed wire above. There is not much difference in the cost if the barbed wire must be bought new. Before building permanent fences it is well worth while to sit down and plot the farm on paper. It is important that when the plan is completed every field will have access to water, and that they center as nearly as practicable to the homestead and barnyard in order to save time in cultural and harvesting operations. Let's fence at least one field this year. Get that extra stack of hay.

KITCHEN COOLNESS
All Summer Long

WITH A Modern ELECTRIC RANGE

Kitchen coolness depends a lot upon the type of equipment you use. Electric ranges are built to lock in heat. Thick insulation all around the oven does the trick. The outside stays so cool you can actually rest your hand on the top, even while baking. And there's no circulation of hot air through the oven and into the kitchen. Heat retaining construction in the surface units likewise concentrates heat where it belongs, does not wastefully diffuse it. Your kitchen stays as cool as any other room in your home when you cook electrically.

By Clementine Wilmeth Briley

Rain so much desired two weeks ago became rather a menace to this section of the country this past week. Today (Monday) is the ninth day since rain began to fall. Most of the time it has poured all night and until after dinner next day. Sunday it was estimated by reliable sources that 26 inches of rain had fell, and it is thought that 5 or 6 inches fell last night and this morning.

Corn replanted after the April freeze was mostly ruined by drought. Feed, cut and shocked in the field before the rain is now all sprouted and growing green in the shock. Heads of maize standing in the field are sprouting.

Crops in the river bottom at the Reeves Thompson and Wilmeth farms are all under water, and the water was coming over the upper field at the Wilmeth place Monday afternoon with the river still rising. Buffalo Creek backed up by the Colorado is over part of B. Singleton's crop on the White place, and over part of the Hosaia field cultivated by John Briley. Up the stream, the creek by its own flood left its course and flowed over Edward Egger's field.

The meeting, though hindered by rain since Monday, continued until Thursday night when because of the continuous downpour it became impossible to get there. Sunday some tried to go, but on account of high water, could not reach the tabernacle. A few managed to get to the Day home where Sunday morning services were held.

Austin Caywer and family attempted to attend church Sunday morning, but stalled in North Buffalo tributary near Edward Egger's. They were there several hours. The car was finally pulled out by R. M. Haynes with his truck.

The Briley family started to church, but stuck in a chug hole before they got out of their pasture. After trying in vain until 1:30 to dig it out, they finally had to get the team up and pull it out. Turning out into the pasture to go around the bad place to go back home, they bogged down twice before they could get back into the road, and had to use the team again. It was three o'clock when they got home.

Jim Wilmeth and Hubert Reeves, election officials, awoke Saturday morning to find the rain still pouring and all waterways badly swollen. Jim saw no way to get to the school house, as Buffalo Creek had him cut off. However, he thought he ought to go as far as he could, so taking Lillard with him, they set out around the Whittenburg Lane. They found North Buffalo too swollen for a car to cross so Lillard walked the cable over the water gap and finally got to the school house where he found a barefooted Hubert holding the election. Hubert had gone in his car to see about the river and got stuck. He had to leave the car. As he had to take it afoot, he decided he wouldn't have much use for shoes.

In the afternoon a good many made it to the election polls, but a good many more would have voted if they could have got there. We haven't heard yet from the rest of the county.

We who live down toward the river were badly put out Saturday morning when our phones went dead. Sunday we discovered that Mr. Thompson's phone line was under water in Buffalo Creek. As soon as his line was disconnected, our phones came back into service.

Notwithstanding the damage done by so much rain, the pastures are greatly benefitted, and maybe there is time yet to raise good feed crops.

Doris Roberts of Big Springs is visiting her father, Charlie Roberts.

Mrs. Henry Smith has gone to her brother at Midland.

Miss Eilene McReynolds of Sweetwater spent Friday night and Saturday with Miss Lucille Wilmeth.

Wood Roberts received a telegram last week telling him that his sister, Mrs. Ollie Murphy, had been badly hurt in a car wreck.

Albert Hardin of Big Springs was at the Stanley Reeves home Wednesday of last week. He says Baby Evelyn is doing fine.

Our county was shocked when we heard about the death of our friends, Charley Ashton and Will McWhorter, Tuesday afternoon. They were good citizens and will be missed greatly. We extend our deepest sympathy to both families in the loss of their loved ones. May the Lord be with each of you in your prayer.

To those who lost their crops in the flood, we extend our sympathy.

The meeting is to start Friday night. The men finished the work on the tabernacle last week. Let's all attend.

We have had sixteen inches of rain since last Tuesday morning. We will be glad to see sunshine once more.

Loy Long and family from town, Collier Ballard, Richard Souders and family and Mrs. Eula Nickols and Philip, spent Sunday in the Ellis home.

W. A. Cooke left Saturday night for McPherson, Kansas, where he will visit with his daughter and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weaver. They will bring him home the first of August.

Arthur Smith and family and Ray Stark and family visited in the Stark home over the week end.

W. A. Daniel and wife and Mmes Traylor and Nickols held the election.

J. O. McClary and Earl Fairman won't need it to rain again soon, because their tanks are full and overflowing now.

Mrs. B. F. Renfro is enjoying a visit from two of her sisters. She hadn't seen one in 21 years.

M. R. Circle has had a time getting to his work in town during the rain.

Mrs. Maggie Traylor's cellar caved in after so much rain. She had her canned goods in it.

Mrs. Eula Nickols visited in the Butler home in town Monday afternoon and found Miss Mittie ill. Hope she recovers soon.

Little Miss Delpha Reese Blackburn from town visited last week in the Pass home.

Our mail carrier couldn't travel part of his route this week on account of the flood.

R. E. Collier seemed interested in the election. He brought one of his neighbors to vote.

Horace Cooke is attending school at Alpine for the next six weeks.

The rain has caused the maize to sprout in the heads. We hope it hasn't injured the corn. It will be some time before the farmers can get into their fields.

Schulze—Trent

A wedding of wide interest locally was that of Miss Mary Ellen Trent, daughter of Howard Trent of Los Angeles, California, to Hope Dewitt Schulze of Bangs which was quietly solemnized Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Patrick Sullivan. Reverend Urban Schulze, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony which was attended by only relatives and a few close friends.

Miss Constance Trent, sister of the bride, gave as a vocal solo, "O Perfect Love" accompanied by Mrs. John G. Berry, who also played the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" by Wagner.

For the ceremony the bride was dressed in a lovely white creation of mousseline de soie with a picture hat of white trimmed with gradenias and blue streamers. She wore accessories to match and carried for her bouquet, gradenias.

Following the wedding a reception was given after which Mr. and Mrs. Schulze left on a wedding trip to San Antonio and other points. For her going away costume the bride wore a black and gold ensemble with matching accessories. They will be gone several days. On their return they will take rooms at the Bigham home, the former residence of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Trent.

Mrs. Schulze is one of Goldthwaite's most talented young ladies, and has won a place in the hearts of all who know her. The groom is principal of the local grammar school and has made a host of friends since he has been here. The best wishes of these many friends go with them.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schulze, a sister, Miss Imogene Schulze of Bangs, Rev. and Mrs. Urban Schulze of Morgan; Miss Fannie Winkler of Fort Stockton, and Miss Juanita Taber* of Dallas.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE

One thing stands out in the unprecedented victory of W. Lee O'Daniel in Saturday's primary: The people are convinced that he is honest and sincere and will make them a good governor.

O'Daniel has impressed his supporters as being a sincere, God-fearing citizen. It is a great responsibility, and he will have the whole-hearted support of the vast majority of Texans in filling the office of governor.

O'Daniel almost alone of all the candidates made no promises of economy in office. In his promise of a $30 pension for every man and woman over 65, he has committed the state to the payment of many millions of dollars which must be raised from new sources.

Without these extra burdens which he has voluntarily assumed, the post of governor would be arduous enough. With them, he will need more than back-slapping encouragement to see the job through.

It is fortunate that there is to be no run-off in the governor's race. Too many hard and bitter words have already been exchanged. By attaining a clear majority in the first primary, O'Daniel automatically wins the unreserved support of every good Democrat in Texas.

Let's help him make good!

CORRIGAN AND HUGHES

In the aerial exploits of two Texan-Californians, Howard Hughes and Douglas Corrigan, there is the epitome of the greatness of America.

Corrigan, the wild Irishman, typifies the spirit of daring youth. He is the fellow who attempts the impossible and makes it. In him we see the realization of all our own dreams of doing-do. He is the personification of the poor boy who becomes a hero, the home town boy who makes good, and how!

But while the many Corrigans in American history have provided some dazzling exploits for the history books, the real progress of the nation has come from the careful, scientific calculations of the many Howard Hughes's.

Corrigan's brilliant flight to Ireland was a personal exploit which means nothing except that he is a great natural flyer with a lot of good luck. He did not equal Lindbergh who announced a definite destination and reached it. Corrigan could carry no passengers or mail. He could not map the seas or skies for flyers to follow him. It is, in fact, doubtful if he could make the same trip again without mishap.

On the other hand the round-the-world flight of Howard Hughes represented the utmost in scientific preparation, careful planning, and expert operation. It has done more to make Transatlantic aviation possible than any other one flight. It is the glorification of one man, who modestly disclaims that honor, but of the American method. And it called for courage and endurance no whit less than that displayed by Corrigan.

Hughes' accomplishment has already achieved a firm place in the history of aviation, but Corrigan, with his irrepressible grin, his wired-up, second-hand plane and his steadfast refusal to commercialize his daring feat, has won his place in our hearts.

SAME RULE FOR COOPERATIVES

Dr. Joseph G. Knapp of the Farm Credit Administration, recently offered farmers some excellent advice on what membership in a marketing cooperative should mean to them.

He said: "Membership should imply that a member gives his moral and intellectual support as well as his patronage to an association in order that it may attain its full objectives. An understanding and therefore a loyal membership will be so interested in the success of the cooperative that it will have a feeling of responsibility for its success or failure.

"Such a membership will not desert an association in time of stress, but rather will do everything possible to help the Association meet its difficulties."

Cooperatives or corporations whose members are uninterested won't go far. Aggressive, wide-awake members or stockholders are necessary to cooperative or corporation success in any field.

Health Notes

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, estimates that the State of Texas suffers an economic loss of one-half million dollars annually from typhoid fever, a preventable disease.

Last year 378 Texans died of typhoid and approximately 4,000 were ill with the disease. The average duration of the illness is from six to eight weeks plus a convalescent period of about six weeks. This means that typhoid is responsible for the loss of approximately 200,000 work days each year in Texas, with the attendant loss of income over the several months period.

Early fall and late summer each year sees a tremendous increase in the prevalence of typhoid in Texas, due to vacation travel and the hazards brought to the local population by itinerant labor.

Typhoid is particularly prevalent in those sections where there is seasonal employment bringing into the area great numbers of laborers who live in tents, shacks and trailers without adequate sanitation.

The local communities have the problem of dealing with this shifting population put squarely on their shoulders. Insofar as is feasible, the itinerant population should be immunized against typhoid and should be made to conform with sanitary regulations (particularly with regard to disposal of waste) as a protective measure to the permanent community population.

Typhoid fever can be controlled by the use of pure water, pasteurized milk or clean milk, clean foods, proper disposal of sewage, screening against the fly and destroying its breeding places, by search for and care of human carriers, and by general practice of immunization.

In selecting a place for a vacation, choose one where you know that the water and milk supply is pure. Be sure that the kitchen and dining room are screened to protect the food from flies. When camping it is best to boil water used for drinking, unless you know that it is pure. Clear, sparkling spring water is often nevertheless polluted.

The Farmer Becomes An Electrician

Rural electrification has simplified the work and complicated the problems of the farmer and his wife.

A survey made by the Rural Electrification Administration has shown that within a very short time after a farm has been connected with a power line, the farmer and his family have spent $180 for appliances and anywhere from $50 to $300 for house wiring.

In a majority of cases, a radio is the first purchase. Next the farmwife discards her sadiron and gets an electric iron. The third purchase is an electric washing machine and the fourth an electric ice box. The farmer then acquires an electric toaster, water pump, vacuum cleaner, hot plate, small motor and poultry lighting equipment, in the order named, to make farm life more pleasant and profitable.

Washing machines are more frequently purchased by farmers in the North, while Southern farmers more often buy electric refrigerators. Nearly one fourth of the farmers served by the power of the Tennessee Valley Authority have bought electric ranges.

While there are five or six million farms without electric service, the number has been decreasing at the rate of 200,000 a year and REA officials predict that rates at which farmers will obtain electric connections will increase.

While all of these modern gadgets make life brighter for the farmer and his wife, it has made it necessary for the farmer to learn still another trade—that of electrician. Already he has to be a mechanic, carpenter, veterinarian, painter, bricklayer, paper hanger and general handy man.

Views of the Nation's Press on Topics of Interest

Marihuana

The spread of the use of marihuana is alarming. The word means "Mary Jane," which suggests its origin as an American product.

It came across the border from Mexico with Mexican laborers and was introduced into the Southwestern underworld, from whence it spread across the U. S. to New York and Detroit, and rebounded to smaller cities further inland. Today it is a national problem—indeed, an international problem, a problem which particularly concerns Mexico, the United States and Canada.

The Opium Research Committee describes certain physical effects which appear to be present in the majority of cases of marihuana intoxication:

"The first bodily reactions appear an hour or so after consumption in the form of muscular trembling, increased heart-beat, acceleration of pulse. This is accompanied by a ringing in the ears, an intense feeling of heat in the head, dizziness, and sensations of cold in the hands and feet. Constrictions in the chest, dilation of the eye pupil, and muscular contraction follow. These physical reactions increase in intensity until either vomiting or complete stupefaction occurs. Restless sleep, accompanied by bizarre phantasmagoria, then overcomes the victim.

The mental effect is much more variable, since the emotional and imaginative attitudes of the subject are the major determining factors. At the present time subjective experiences, rather than the testimony of psychiatrists, form the only basis for a description of marihuana delirium. Although the drug acts on the entire nervous system, its impact on the higher nerve centers is the cause of the vivid psychological reactions. Various stages of intoxication with subsequent mental aberrations are often recognizable. Doctor Moreau has enumerated eight:

- First stage: characteristic euphoria, or feeling of unnatural light-heartedness.
Second stage: intellectual excitation, dissociation of ideas and exaggeration of emotions.
Third stage: illusion in regard to time and space.
Fourth stage: intense auditory sensibility, where every musical sound is distorted.
Fifth stage: fixation of ideas, which are derived by the suggestibility of near by stimuli.
Sixth stage: overbalancing emotional disturbances.
Seventh stage: culmination of the sixth stage where the over-

Queen Marie

Dowager Queen Marie of Roumania was one of the most influential women of her time. Stronger-willed than her easy-going husband, who was a Hohenzollern and a German sympathizer, she prevented Roumania from being drawn into the world war as a German satellite and finally brought it into conflict on the allied side.

Little exercise of the imagination is required to see that had her influence been less potent, the central powers might have won the war. For, although the Roumanian army proved to be the poorest fighting machine engaged in the conflict, it did keep a large number of Austro-Hungarian troops busy who otherwise could have been used on the Russian and Italian fronts. And if Roumania had been on their side the Germans could have made good use of her oil and wheat, besides turning the Roumanian army against the Serbs and Russians. Possibly in that event Germany would have won the war by 1917, before she became sufficiently desperate and reckless to draw the United States in.

So it is not impossible that Queen Marie's resolution changed the course of history. Certainly it changed the fortunes of her little Balkan kingdom. Had the Roumanians won on the German side they could only have expected to receive the Russian province of Bessarabia as spoils of war; but even after being deserted by Russia and compelled to make a separate peace in 1917, they finally received Transylvania, other Austrian and Hungarian territories, and Bessarabia as well, all together more than doubling their area and population.

Queen Marie captured the public attention as mother and human being, however, more than as practitioner of statecraft. Her troubles with her wayward son, King Carol, kept her name in the newspapers over a period of two decades.

Like her grandmother, Queen Victoria, she attempted to weld together a sort of league of nations through marriage. She had Carol wed Princes Helen of Greece; Princess Elizabeth became queen of Greece, and Princess Marie queen of Yugoslavia.

Queen Marie was beautiful, intelligent and charitable. She was an energetic worker, not only at affairs of state but also in her literary endeavors. Though hers was a small country, she deserves to rank among the greater queens.—Houston Chronicle.

CENTURIES ago copper was first found by a half savage tribe which inhabited the island of Cyprus which you will find in your atlas is a small island off the Greek coast. This metal was so useful that it became their most cherished possession and they named it in honor of their home, "Cyprian Metal."

In later years the Egyptians from the days of King Menes, their first ruler, learned to fabricate the red metal and to make from it many alloys which are today civilization's most useful materials. Without copper there would not be possible today most of the modern inventions which have made this the greatest age in all the history of all the world. Modern civilization would falter, for copper permeates all modern progress. In everyday life it is the agent of business and industry and the promoter of our comforts.

When many of the historic cathedrals of both the old and the new world and the temples of the Far East were constructed, their architects were most careful in selecting materials that would give centuries of satisfactory service. Copper was used for the roofs and has given and continues to give a satisfactory performance of service. Perhaps the oldest copper roof in the world is that on Hildesheim Cathedral in Germany. Many portions of this roof date back to 1320. In the past the usual practice wherever copper sheet metal work

Could They Ask For Less

"For many years the railroads have been the source of a steady flow of jobs at good wages; huge purchases of the products of other industries; and enormous tax payments to government," said J. M. Fitzgerald, a railroad expert, recently. "But this flow cannot continue if we dry up the source—and we are drying up the source. As this source disappears, the investor and his savings will disappear. So will jobs and wages. And what is more important, service will be impaired—the best and the cheapest railroad service on the face of the globe."

There are defeatists who claim that the railroad problem is insoluble unless some dangerous step such as government ownership of the lines is taken. But there is utterly no evidence to prove this. J. J. Pelly, president of the Association of American Railroads, has stated that if the lines are given equality of treatment with their competitors, they will solve their own problems. He added that if the railroads' specific suggestions for legislative and regulatory policies are accepted, "once more we shall see that national prosperity is geared to railroad prosperity."

The first essential step is to give the railroads greater freedom to adjust rates to meet competitive situations; to adjust service to the demands of traffic, and to adjust their expenses to the conditions of their business. And, finally, a regulatory policy applied to all carriers alike.

This is the gist of the suggestions the railroads have made. They ask no favors—no subsidies—no preferential treatment over their competitors. They ask only a fair deal, and the right to run their business as all other businesses are run—which means the right to charge rates that will pay expenses and earn a moderate return, and the right to fit outgo to income. The railroads say that if this is done they can solve their own problems. Could they ask for much less?

Persons who have reached 65 years of age cannot collect Old Age Benefits, but if they are working for an employer who is covered by the Unemployment Compensation Act, they are eligible for unemployment benefits, and should have Social Security Account Numbers in order that their wages may be properly credited to their accounts with the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Underground Water

The Texas Planning Board has repeatedly called attention to the rapidly diminishing supply of underground water in Texas. Several sections of the State even now are facing serious difficulties in obtaining sufficient underground water to meet the demands of industrial and domestic users.

The importance of underground water is seen in the fact that three out of every five persons in Texas are dependent upon water which is drawn from the ground. Eight of the larger cities in the State are dependent upon underground water. Numerous rich agricultural regions rely entirely on underground water for irrigation purposes.

Research by the planning board and other agencies interested in natural resources has proven the fallacy of the popular belief that underground water is inexhaustible. Underground water can be used faster than even a provident Nature can replenish the supply and this is what is happening in many parts of Texas today. The water is being taken from the ground faster than Nature can replace it.

LARGEST FOOD STORE PLANNED AT STATE FAIR

Texas food industries have combined to show the largest food store ever assembled in Texas or the Southwest, as a feature of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the State Fair of Texas. It was announced Saturday by Otto Herold, president of the fair. Mr. Herold announced the appointment of Granville W. Moore, prominent in bakery and food circles of Texas for many years, as chairman of the executive committee which will have charge of this display.

The food show will be held in the building to the right of the Esplanade, which has been designated as the Food Building. The structure forms the wing added to the Automobile and Manufacturers' Building for the two expositions.

The food industries of Texas represent a business worth one billion three hundred and thirty million dollars annually, by far the largest industry in the state.

The show will be designed by George Dahl, local architect, who has gained wide recognition in retail merchandising design. The plans call for one huge store which will display the products instead of the products being exhibited in separate booths. There will be no way to tell how much space one manufacturer has purchased, and the plan will enable the small manufacturer to display his wares as proudly as the largest of the exhibitors.

The educational features to be provided for the retail grocer and his staff will include modern displays and effective selling methods, including the serving of customers. An auditorium within the building will house a daily program of salesmanship, showmanship on foods, visual education, menu contests, cooking school, domestic science classes from all high schools of the state, demonstrations and special meetings of retail grocers with the sales staff of the exhibitors.

A statewide executive committee has been named by Chairman Moore, and includes members from Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Denison, Sherman, Tyler, Fort Worth, Austin, Amarillo, Cuero, San Angelo, Sugarland, Corpus Christi, Waco, Abilene and Harlingen. As soon as all appointments have been accepted Mr. Moore will announce personnel of the committee which will include leaders in every phase of the food industry in Texas.

Stone Village Found in East

A score of huts all of solid granite built on a sloping hillside in the Merrimac Valley near North Salem, New Hampshire, has been discovered and is being excavated and restored by William B. Goodwin of Hartford, Conn. The huts are thought to antedate even the coming of the Norsemen which event took place about 1000 A. D.

The theory has been advanced and has obtained some credence that the huts are the remains of a colony of Irish Culdee priests, who must have come over to America sometime between 800 or 900 A. D., and who used the huts for sacred places to worship or as dens for hiding.

Value of Hughes' Flight

International friendship and cooperation are at a low ebb in the world today, but the Howard Hughes party in its 'round-the-world flight found an abundance of both wherever they landed their plane for refuelings.

Every service and courtesy were extended the fliers at all points they stopped, and mutual cordiality on the part of the guest visitors and the hosts was displayed at every stop. Both the German and Soviet press paid tribute to the party of young Americans, who in turn gave praise for the favors done them at German and Russian airports.

The Great American Motion Picture

Never have movie audiences witnessed such scenes as these within the walls of a theatre!

Boisterous, raucous, turbulent Chicago—raw, bold boom town of easy money and easy ways!

The Hub in Chicago's infamous 'Patch' that had to be cleaned up or wiped out!

The tempestuous love of hot-headed Dion O'Leary, Chicago's political boss, and glamorous Belle Fawcett, its cabaret queen!

The O'Leary brothers who fought each other when fortune smiled—fighting shoulder to shoulder when disaster threatened!

Terror-stricken multitudes fleeing for their lives through roaring leaping avenues of flame!

The fearful stampede as 10,000 fire-maddened steers trample through the hell-canyons of burning Chicago!

A tornado-fanned wall of flame 500 feet high and seven miles in length driving a homeless population into Lake Michigan!

The great Chicago fire—a complete city destroyed to bring to the screen its greatest entertainment thrill.

The invincible O'Learys—facing the flaming ruins with spirit undaunted—the spirit that made a nation great!
