DID YOU KNOW?

That the people of Mills County have the opportunity of owning their own Insurance Company? The Mills County Insurance Company, if organized, will be under the direction of seven of our own Mills County citizens—one at Mullin, one at Star, one at Pleasant Grove, one at Big Valley, and three in Goldthwaite. These men are: Earl Fairman, Dr. Campbell, Neal Dickerson; George Robertson, Big Valley; Jim Soules, Star; Warren Duren, Mullin; and Charlie Bury, Pleasant Grove.

We know these men, and we know that we can depend on them, and trust them fully to direct the proposed Mills County Insurance Company successfully. No individual will ever own the company. It will absolutely be owned by each and every policy holder.

The constitution and by-laws of the company will state in no uncertain terms that the company cannot be sold or in any manner pass out of the hands of the board of directors and the policy holders.

No membership will be written outside of Mills County. Each and every policy holder must be a resident of Mills County at the time the policy is written.

But here is our story: We must have 500 policy holders before the State of Texas will grant us a permit to operate the company. Your name will help us to get the necessary five hundred.

Ask about the proposed Mills County Insurance Company. When you get the facts you will want a policy. We have no doubt about that.

We would like to have one person in each community of the county who can give some time to writing applications for the company. If you are interested see or write any member of the board of directors, or Rev. W. H. Marshall. You will be paid for your time.

We now have 160 who have signed up for policies. They are among the best citizens of our county.

WOMEN'S DEFENSE LEAGUE TO GATHER FLOWERS FOR BOWIE

The Mills County Women's Defense League will send flowers to Camp Bowie today (July 11). Any one having cut flowers, please bring them to Fairman's as early as possible Friday. Pack to keep from wilting.

MRS. JIM WEATHERBY, Chairman.

Brownwood, Tex., June 30. President of the Garden Club, Goldthwaite, Texas.

Dear Madam: The hostess of the Service Club, Mrs. Shelton, advises us that the flowers, that we had for our religious services Sunday, were sent to us by your organization.

We thanked Mrs. Shelton for them and asked that she thank you for us, but we also wish to thank you ourselves.

Here in the army all our material needs are adequately taken care of by the government, but little thought is given to such as flowers. Being flower-lovers yourselves you can appreciate what flowers mean in our lives. And we want you to know that we appreciate the fact that you thought of us in supplying that something that only a flower can give. They were appreciated by all.

As you no doubt know, we have a Chapel being constructed for our Regimental Church services. We understand that it will be completed some time in September, and we would be glad to have your club among our guests for the formal opening.

Sincerely yours,
C. M. ASHMORE.
FRED R. EDGAR.

COUNTY DEFENSE GROUP TO BE ORGANIZED HERE TUES. NIGHT

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the courthouse, a county-wide defensive group will be organized in Mills County. The plan is for the formation of a county-wide committee, to be headed by County Sheriff Hern Harris, to investigate and report to the proper authorities any subversive or unfriendly activities that may come to the attention of the committee; also to clarify any false rumors that may be put into circulation in the county to the end that innocent persons may not be stigmatized by unfounded accusations caused by over-zealous "patriotic" persons.

The committee will be organized at a called meeting of the Harry F. Edmondson Post of the American Legion Tuesday night. The Legion took initial steps at a meeting held June 30, when a committee of representative citizens from all over the county was selected and have been sent invitations to come to the meeting Tuesday night and organize themselves into a defense committee.

Speakers from the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been invited to address the meeting and explain the plan which has been put into operation in other sections.

Interested citizens of the county are invited to attend the meeting.

MEETING OF TEACHERS AND TRUSTEES CALLED

A meeting of the teachers and trustees of Mills County has been called by R. J. Gerald, ex-officio county superintendent, at 10 a. m., Saturday, July 12, for the purpose of discussing the advisability of changing the schools of the county into the twelve-grade system. The County Board will meet at the same time to take part in the discussions and to take such official action as may become necessary in the matter. This is a very important meeting and will likely draw in most of the teachers and trustees of the county. G. D. Holbrook, deputy state superintendent, will probably be present.

Very few transfers have been made by parents so far in the office of the county superintendent. All parents who intend making transfers should take notice that all transfers must be made by the last day of July. Transfer lists will be made up and protests will be heard by the County Board at its meeting early in August.

TRIGGER MOUNTAIN OIL TEST NEAR CISCO SAND; TO SET CASING

Mills County's oil test at Trigger Mountain was drilling ahead and making good time this week, although some delay was had last week.

Wednesday noon the bit was down to 2,080 feet, and no trouble had been encountered in the soft shale.

The Cisco sand—which is hoped will be oil-bearing—is expected to be encountered at around 2,100 feet.

As soon as the Cisco sand is reached, drilling will stop while six-inch casing is being set.

Drillers think they are close to the oil sand now.

ETBO... EDGE

VALLEY STAR

By Mrs. Dora Goode

It is vacation and camp meeting time, and folks are coming and going.

Mr. and Mrs. John Soules and daughter, Billie Gail, and Mr. and Mrs. John Shelton of Daisetta spent the Fourth in Brady.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Soules and children, Ward Glenn and Freda Irene, attended Independence celebration and rodeo at Hamilton.

A number of our people attended the rodeo at Hamilton on the Fourth, some of whom were Mr. and Mrs. Rex Clifton, Ruby Nelle Thompson, and others whose names I failed to get.

The Baptist meeting is now in full progress, having started last Friday night on the Fourth of July. The evangelist is Bro. Christian, the twin brother of the Bro. Christian who held the revival here last year.

Leaders assisting Bro. Christian are Graham Wall, Mrs. Reddin and Tom Emdy. Bro. Christian has charge of the Booster Band (the children) at the night services. Mr. Emdy leads the men's prayer meeting in the moonlight.

The pastor, Raymond Simms, has the young people under the stars in a prayer and study meeting. Mrs. Reddin has the women's group in another open-sky gathering. This reminds us that the Tabernacle ought to be moved to new grounds where we would have more room and where we could have trees and groves to worship God under.

What's the matter with us—anyway? Noble Henry and family have moved into Star at the McMorris residence on Elizabeth Street.

The weeds and grass are overrunning "Rover's Rest" in "Vagabond Lane" because they're always two leaps and a jump ahead of Christian's hoe.

Hale Home Is Scene Of Pretty Wedding

Ruth Hale and Earl Dumas were united in marriage early Saturday morning in the home of the bride. Ruth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hale who are now living in Jones Valley. She has been teaching in the Perry School at Terlingua, Texas. Earl is employed in the quick silver mine there.

A wedding breakfast was served to thirty guests in the home of the bride. Soon after the breakfast all went into the living room which was decorated with several large bouquets of flowers. An altar was arranged at one end of the room. Mrs. Vera Mae Ware, Mrs. Boyd Knowles, and Ina Bea Hale, sisters of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly." Then Mrs. Ware played the wedding march. Ina Bea was the maid-of-honor and Allen Shotwell, a cousin to the bride, was the best man. Rev. C. K. Roberts of Kopperl performed the ceremony.

The bride looked lovely in a rose dress with black accessories. She selected black and white for her going-away dress.

This small frame house represents the type now being built in great numbers throughout the country. It has two bedrooms with a rear sleeping porch, a bath, an unusually large living room, and a large kitchen. Location of the kitchen on the front of the house is a trend in small home construction. In this case, the large double window makes a pleasant spot for a breakfast table.

In Ohio this property is valued at $4,800. It was financed with a Federal Housing Administration-insured mortgage of $3,500. Average monthly payments on a 25-year mortgage of this amount total about $20, exclusive of local taxes and hazard insurance. The cost may vary in other localities.

Mrs. R. M. Thompson, Mrs. J. H. Randolph and her nephew, Trenton Smith of Camp Bowie, left last Friday for a visit in Temple, Belton and Austin. Mr. Smith returned to Camp Bowie Sunday. Mrs. Thompson returned home Wednesday, while Mrs. Randolph remained in Belton for a longer visit.

Vegetables Your Family Will Like

By Katharine Fisher, Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

Families are funny about eating food just because it is good for them. Take vegetables, for instance. If you find it difficult to get your family to eat vegetables, don't preach until you've questioned your methods of cooking and serving them. Perhaps your vegetable dishes suffer from monotony, or you are losing delicious flavor and the appetite appeal of good coloring and texture by using too much water in cooking, by overcooking, or by poor seasoning. You may be forgetting the wide variety of vegetables available at your grocer's—in or out of cans, and quick-frozen in packages. Remember, too, that a raw vegetable or fruit should be eaten every day. So serve some of your vegetables raw in salads or as appetizers. Here are some recipes that are favorites with us.

KATHARINE FISHER, Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

- Asparagus with Mushroom Sauce
All recipes tested by Good Housekeeping Institute. Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

- 1/2 c. bottled milk or 6 tbsp. evaporated milk and 6 tbsp. water
- 6 slices buttered toast
- Break off lower inedible portions of the asparagus, remove scales, and tie asparagus in bundles of serving size. Cook until tender, then drain. Meanwhile add the milk to the mushroom soup and heat thoroughly. Arrange the hot asparagus on the toast, and pour mushroom sauce over all. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe. If a 16-oz. can of cream of mushroom soup is used instead of the condensed soup, melt 2 tbsp. butter or margarine; add 2 tbsp. of flour and blend. Add the soup and heat thoroughly.
- Menu Suggestion: Serve with platter of fresh shrimp salad with sliced tomatoes, and butter pecan ice cream and cookies for dinner.

2 leftover cooked onions
1 tsp. butter or margarine
2 tsp. top milk
Pepper to taste
Scrape carrots and cut in narrow lengthwise strips. Cook in 1" boiling water to which the salt has been added, in a tightly covered utensil until tender. Drain off any water remaining. Add leftover onions, butter, top milk, pepper, and extra salt if desired. Cook long enough to reheat the onions. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe.
Menu Suggestion: Serve with scalloped oysters, pickled beets, rhubarb sauce with sponge cake and milk for dinner.

Meanwhile melt the remaining 4 tsp. of butter in a double boiler; add the flour and blend. Add the remaining ingredients and cook over hot water until smooth and thickened, stirring frequently. Pour over the tomatoes arranged on a platter and serve. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe.
Menu Suggestion: Serve for Sunday morning brunch with orange juice, Canadian bacon, spoon bread, strawberry preserves and coffee.

'PLANTING' THE GUADALUPE

Many years ago it was believed that just any old body of water would support fish life. No one gave the matter much thought, but things are different today.

The Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission is giving increasing attention to lake and stream management within the means of the limited funds of the department. The latest development is the planting of several species of plants by the thousands in six miles of one of the parts of the Guadalupe River near Kerrville which is open to public fishing.

A few years ago the wildlife school of A. & M. College made a study of the Guadalupe River in co-operation with the Kerrville Chamber of Commerce and the Kerr County Wildlife Association. It was found that floods, caused by overgrazing of the watershed, was partially responsible for the decrease in the fish population of the Guadalupe.

Last year a heavier than usual rainfall made the grass and other vegetation grow more abundantly on the range along the river and thus decreased the problem of overgrazing. This year's rains were equally as hard or harder than those of last year, but there was no big flooding of the Guadalupe.

The result of the lack of floods was more vegetation in the river to provide suitable forage pastures for aquatic insects, microscopic food and forage fish for the more desirable game fishes. The vegetation grew rapidly. Fishing has been better in the Guadalupe this spring than it has been since 1931, when a big flood destroyed much of the vegetation in this clear, cool stream in the Hill Country.

Kerr County is a member of the small group of counties which have a universal fishing license law in effect. Consequently, part of the Game Department funds are earmarked by law to be spent in that county. A portion of that fund is being used to plant tens of thousands of plants in the river.

They have high hopes that fishing will be much better in the Guadalupe next year.

owned by A. Monjot who resides near Arlington, but to his amazement he discovered crayfish, or crawdads, were the villains in the play.

Mr. Monjot reported to Game Department biologists that he suspected rabbits, but when he went to his berry patches recently armed with a shotgun there were no rabbits in sight.

Numerous truck growers in the vicinity of Angleton pour kerosene into crayfish holes to prevent depredations by the crawdads.

QUAIL GO UNDERGROUND

Game Department biologists are forming the opinion that holes made by the opossum and other animals are being used by quail more often than it had been thought. In a number of instances quail have been noticed to use shallow underground holes as a means of protection. During census work in Southwest Texas a covey of three birds was located in an opossum den.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD PICTURING CHILDREN

Story-telling pictures of children are easy to make. They're not only more lifelike, but far more appealing.

A FRIEND of mine, who is an ardent amateur photographer, recently showed me quite a collection of pictures he had snapped of his children over a period of years. One thing I noticed in particular—there were very few stiffly posed "record" shots. He had endeavored to make each picture tell a story of some kind, to depict some activity in the lives of his children—the story-telling type of snapshot.

The arrival of summer offers innumerable picture opportunities for outdoor snapshots of children. With your camera always ready for action you can capture many of their interesting activities. Oftentimes, a tempting idea—playing jacks, skipping rope, shooting marbles—will be all that is needed to get things going. Of course, the focus, exposure setting, and camera position should be determined in advance.

"Posing action" is a trick you can often use in picturing children. Suppose, for example, you want a picture of your son riding his tricycle, but your camera will not take fast moving objects. Ask him to show you how he looks when he goes racing down the street, and, as he leans over the handle bars, snap the picture. In like manner, many interesting "action" shots can be posed but the final print will convey all the feeling of motion.

APPRAISING OUR LEGISLATURE

By GEORGE C. HESTER

The Texas Legislature ended its session last week in a riotous display of hilarity and slapstick politics that at times approached bedlam as the session wore on far beyond the hours of midnight. A handful of spectators sat in the galleries watching and enjoying the uproar which ranged all the way from ludicrous speeches to the gentle diversion of ripping the neckties and shirts off each other.

Such scenes are not unusual in an American Legislature. It is the riotous display of democracy at work which must have its moments of levity along with the long grind at serious tasks.

It is exactly such antics, however, that do much toward creating the generally popular impression of a state legislature. To the average observer, witnessing the day to day performance of a legislative session, it appears to him to be a blundering procedure of chronic disorder, culminating inevitably in a wreck of constructive legislation, and giving us instead a patchwork of legislation and errors which succeeding sessions must spend much time in undoing before proceeding with its own.

The casual observer looking down on this maelstrom of impulsive opinions and political horseplay, usually goes away in thorough disgust and rather hopeless about the future of democratic government.

He is both right and wrong. Let us see wherein he is wrong. In the first place, he has little comprehension of the difficulties and handicaps under which such a legislative body must operate. It is doubtful that anyone can comprehend the real meaning of such handicaps unless he has actually served as a legislator. Even then he may never understand or realize what is actually happening.

What are some of the chief handicaps and conditions generally that give us legislative bodies that look more like bull pens than policy forming authorities under which millions of people must live? The chief ones may be summarized as follows:

The complexity and scope of the problems with which he must deal are pretty well beyond the knowledge of the average legislator and his means to ascertain the necessary facts upon which to base his decision. The writer is speaking from personal experience as a legislator. Compare, for example, the tasks of a legislator of today with his predecessor of fifty years ago. Those were the days of simple economy. The legislative problems were of an elementary nature compared with those of today. Taxation was a simple matter since nearly all revenues came from the property tax. Add to those a few bills dealing with the civil and criminal laws, school laws, a few changes in local governments, the usual political attacks on the railroads which were the chief trouble makers then, and the tasks were about finished.

Today the legislator meets in a swirl of social and economic change. The state capital itself during the session is little more than a focal point of vast and clashing economic interests—every conceivable variety of taxation, welfare problems, dozens of varieties of business regulations, bills dealing with progressions, labor, highways and traffic, minerals, conservation, education, wild life, trade, federal regulation, to say nothing of the panaceas freshly hatched for each campaign.

These come to the legislator in our 1,000 bills each session. The long grinding process, the ceaseless round of committee hearings, the daily letters sometimes reaching hundreds, conferences with citizens, and the endless pressure of lobbying groups, begin to portray the real difficulties under which a legislator must work.

Another supreme handicap which every conscientious legislator encounters is the lack of means to secure adequate information and the legislative problems before him. In contrast to several other states, our state is lacking in any adequate research agency whose continuous task it is to dig into every pending legislative problem, and to give the legislator the reliable and necessary information in usable form.

To these should be added other handicaps, such as the complicated and cumbersome rules of procedure, the flood of local bills which tend to clog the legislative mill, and many others.

On the other hand the critical observer is right in many of his assumptions about the legislature. He is correct in his feeling that the state legislature, as it is now organized and operated, will never be able to deal adequately with the ever-increasing problems of modern society. It can be little more than a hit or miss affair and will grow even more helpless as the problems increase in complexity.

Next week this column will show why this is true, and state some of the changes which are most needed.

My Week by Eleanor Roosevelt

U. S. RESPONSIBILITY EASTPORT, MAINE.—A man in Brooklyn, N. Y., sends me a clipping containing a few words I had said about our responsibility as a nation, to the world, and comments on it in a little rhyme about "looking out for number one, before anything has begun." He thinks we haven't "plenty to spare" and can't "send it all over there."

It does seem to me that the gentleman misses the point. If we bend every effort now to produce necessary material help for those who are doing the fighting in a cause which we believe to be right, we may keep the war from our shores. If Great Britain, China and Russia lose, sooner or later, we will have to fight.

No matter how well prepared we are, 175,000,000 people in this hemisphere will have quite a struggle; first on the economic side and eventually on the military side.

We shall be pitted against 500,000,000 people in Europe and Japan, and heaven knows how many more if Russia is not able to hold out. I don't want war, but I think that every effort we can put into production and military preparation to aid those fighting Hitler is our best guarantee against war; and our only safety, should it come.

AN OLD FRIEND

One afternoon I went over to Lubeck, Maine, to see my old friend, Dr. Bennet, who is now 90 years old. He is deeply troubled by the state of the world and kept repeating: "What has happened to the goodness in the world?" I think a good many of us would like to know the answer to that question.

We went in to see Dr. Bennet's son, who is also a doctor, and told him that there would be 30 young people in this house for five weeks. I think he may have to keep an eye on them now and then, and I reminded him of some of the escapades his father had pulled many of our people through in days gone by.

In the evening we read aloud from William Shirer's "War Diary." The book is a wonderful piece of vivid writing. It is extraordinary that he was able to do his work in Berlin, feeling as he did, and not get into serious trouble.

WAR EFFECTS

We have discovered up here that war makes a considerable difference in the lives of the Canadian people. I wanted to buy what I could in Canada and need many things since 40 people in a house require a good many more household goods than 20. As usual, most of my kitchen utensils require replenishing also. Therefore, we took a large boat and went off one morning at nine o'clock.

We proceeded up the bay under rather gray skies, which was perhaps fortunate, since all of us got a wind burn, but not the uncomfortable sunburn which we might otherwise have had. After buying all we could in St. Andrews, we went across to a beach on a little island, cooked ourselves some scrambled eggs in the old frying pan, which has gone on so many picnics up here, and went back to St. Andrews to collect our purchases and to buy some lobsters in the pound, for one can not buy them now on the island.

We intended to go on to St. Stephen to buy the things we could not get in St. Andrews, but they are on what I call double daylight saving time in Canada, which is one hour ahead of our daylight saving time. We realized that we would be too late to find shops open, so we started back to Eastport. Just to make things seem thoroughly familiar, the engine overheated on the way back and we stopped. I had visions of lying helpless in the bay for some time, but after administering some nice cool salt water, Captain Cline coaxed the engine into action again, and we finished our shopping in Eastport.

One always forgets certain things and I am sure we shall have to do more shopping. We are busy putting everything we have bought into place.

MAINE INDUSTRY PROBLEM

The sardine factories in Eastport and Lubeck, Maine, are running every day in the week, for this year the fish are kind and apparently making up for their absence in the last five years. In Eastport, however, a man told me they are facing a real problem. They provide coal for this section, even for many little islands off shore. The coal is bought and paid for, but it is in Norfolk, Va., and they have not been able to obtain a ship for transportation.

OFFER OF AID

I had a call one afternoon from Officer Sennett of the Canadian Mounted Police. He offered his services in case any of our young people are lost in the woods, or anything else occurs where he can be of help. Since he is stationed on the island for the summer, I certainly hope that no one will be lost in the woods. However, such things have happened, and it is good to know there is some one who can be called upon in case of emergencies.

State Department Health Notes

Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, states that infantile paralysis is largely a summer disease. Although cases may occur during any time of the year, over half the total number of cases occur from July to October. Through June 30, 31 cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) have been reported to the State Health Department from city and county health officers over the state.

Direct contact between persons form the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been scientifically demonstrated. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine and this fact makes it advisable to reduce to a minimum all human contacts during the outbreak of the disease.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis are headache, fever, vomiting, drowsiness and irritability followed by stiffness in the neck and back. Prompt medical care, early recognition of the disease, and reporting of cases to local health authorities make possible the use of preventive and control measures.

After the acute state of the disease is passed and the patient is permitted to walk, it is most important that the affected part of the body not be fatigued. The secret of rehabilitation lies in the continuance of professional medical care and large doses of patience.

Children under five years are most susceptible to the disease and all children under twelve should be watched for suspicious symptoms. Your family physician should be called immediately if infantile paralysis is indicated. Local health authorities should be contacted immediately and patients isolated for at least 21 days.

Children should not visit homes where the disease or symptoms of the disease exist. Promptness in diagnosis of poliomyelitis is one of the most important factors in its control measures.

J. A. FITZGERALD GENERAL FREIGHT AGENT FOR G.C. & S.F.

Galveston, July 9. (Special)—The appointment of J. A. Fitzgerald as general freight agent for the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway, effective July 1, has been announced here by Elmer B. Johnson, freight traffic manager for the railroad's gulf lines.

A native Texan, Fitzgerald returns to this state following an absence of several years during which time he has filled various posts for the Santa Fe at Kansas City and New York.

Fitzgerald became traveling freight agent for the company in 1913. He resigned in 1917 to enter the army. Following the war he resumed his former position and in 1927 was made general agent for the railroad at New Orleans.

ALUMNI COLLEGE TO BE ESTABLISHED AT BAYLOR

Waco, July 9.—Establishment of an Alumni College, to which former students may come a week preceding commencement each spring, has been recommended by the board of governors of the Baylor University Ex-Students Association, it was said by Dr. M. O. Rouse of Dallas, president of the group.

The college would be established in the idea of keeping the university's graduates and ex-students abreast of cultural developments, it was said. A general short course on "living" would be conducted and the homecomers would have full access to athletic facilities of the university.

It would be comparable, one promoter put it, to the addition of supplementary sheets to a loose-leaf encyclopedia.

Farmers' Short Course Starts Next Sunday

A two-days' program, packed with discussion subjects of primary interest to Texas farm and ranch people, has been prepared for the 1941 Farmers' Short Course, which will be held at Texas A. and M. College July 13, 14 and 15.

Coke R. Stevenson, lieutenant governor of Texas, will be the principal speaker at an open air meeting in Kyle Stadium Monday, at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Nancy Richey Ransom of Dallas, poet laureate of the state, will be on the program with the lieutenant governor. The adult section of the Short Course will be concluded with a program in the Stadium at 7:30 p. m. on Tuesday, at which Roy Dickerson of the Federal Security, Washington, will speak and the students of the Stephen F. Austin High School, Bryan, will perform a pageant, "Freedoms We Defend."

Tours of the A. and M. College Campus, with visits to the college and administrative buildings, will be conducted by members of the college staffs from 2 to 5 p. m. Sunday.

The Short Course will begin at 10 a. m. Sunday with a song service in Gulon Hall led by Walter Jenkins, choir director of the First Methodist Church of Houston. At 11 a. m., the Rev. Harry G. Knowles of the First Christian Church, Houston, will preach on "Things Which Abide." At 7:45, Jeff Williams of Chickasha, Okla., will speak at an assembly in Kyle Stadium, which will be presided over by Director H. H. Williamson of the A. and M. College Extension Service.

The formal program will be inaugurated at 7:45 a. m. Monday in Gulon Hall with George E. Adams, vice-director of the Extension Service, presiding. Dean E. J. Kyle of the college will extend greetings and speakers and prominent guests will be introduced. Thirty-four sectional meetings will be held during the forenoon of Monday and a like number in the afternoon, and 32 and 36, respectively, on Tuesday. These meetings will be so spaced that visitors will be able to hear as many of the discussions as they desire.

Among the highlights on Monday's program are: Discussions of problems submitted by county land use planning committees, Bassett Orr and C. A. Bonnen, speakers; fundamental of organization common to various types of organization, Helen Swift, speaker; agricultural credit clinic, Louise Bryant, T. R. Timm and representatives of six farm credit institutions present to answer questions; attractive everyday foods for defense, Jennie Camp, Jessie Whitacre and Zetha McInnis, speakers; Need for Quality Poultry and How to Obtain It, D. H. Reid and George P. McCarthy, speakers; Cows and How to Get Them, C. N. Shepardson, speaker; Range Management, Rodger Davis, speaker; and other interesting subjects both Monday and Tuesday.

Coincidental with the Short Course, the Texas Master Farmers' Association will meet July 14, and the Texas Agricultural Workers Association will hold a luncheon the same day with Eugene Butler of Dallas presiding.

The Texas Wildlife Federation; Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission; U. S. Fish and Wildlife, and the Texas Nature Federation will have a three-day joint conference parallel with the Short Course. The Mid-South Texas Hereford Breeders' Association will hold a luncheon on July 15.

The regular annual session of the Texas Agricultural Writers will be held July 14 and 15 in the parlor of Sblisa Hall and a picnic dinner will be a feature of the entertainment. Editors and writers will discuss methods of handling agricultural news.

The Choice and Management of An Electric Range for the Farm

Comfort and health are enhanced when meals are cooked electrically.

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

TODAY, about three times as many farm families with high-line service have electric ranges as enjoyed them three years ago. Indicative, as these figures are, of the superiority of electric cooking, just what should the farm wife look for when buying an electric range? As she should be considering only a range of high-grade construction, about the only details left for her to think about are the surface units, oven and refinements.

There are several types of surface units, for each of which certain advantages are claimed. Check them and choose the one that best suits your requirements—the type of cooking utensils you use will have an important bearing on your choice. Unless you must cook an unusual variety of foods for a single meal, three surface units probably will be enough. One of the units should be large and have a rating of 1800 to 2000 watts, the others small and rated at 1000 to 1500 watts.

Factors affecting the cost of using the oven of an electric range include: The thickness and kind of insulation used in the walls; whether or not the door fits tightly against the frame when it is closed; its size; and the kind of lining.

Refinements include oven temperature indicator, automatic timer, lamp, condiment jars, deep-well cooker and warming compartment. The frequency with which these various accessories will be used should determine whether or not they are worth their added cost.

Correct management will result in properly-cooked foods with the minimum consumption of electricity. Five of the most effective means of saving electricity when cooking are:

1. Use the high wattage of a surface unit only to bring foods to boiling. As soon as boiling begins, turn the switch to low or, if that position will not maintain boiling, to medium.
2. Shorten the time required to start boiling by putting a cover on the pan and by using very little water to boil vegetables—one-half to one cup is usually enough.
3. Always use a pan that completely covers the heating surface of the unit—one with straight sides and flat bottom is preferable.
4. Do as much of the cooking as possible while the heating units and oven are hot.

Plan to cook more than one food in the oven each time it is heated.

Before purchasing any electric range, talk about and look at the various makes until familiar with the advantages and disadvantages of each. Then check the following points with your farm friends who have electric ranges: What difficulties, if any, they have had with the oven or surface units; how often replacement of heating units are necessary; what new heating units or parts cost; how promptly replacements or repairs are made; and what features of the range they particularly like or dislike.

CENTER CITY

By Mrs. J. M. Oglesby

The heaviest rain of the season fell here Thursday afternoon. All the branches were filled to overflowing in a short time. It was accompanied by a high wind.

A number of families met at the big tank in the J. T. Owens pasture and enjoyed a picnic the fourth. It is bordered by a grove of trees where lunches were spread. Swimming, diving from a spring board, boat riding and different games were enjoyed. On account of the heavy rain many could not attend and it was decided to meet again here Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. J. M. Tims and children, accompanied by her cousin, Joseph D. Sayers, and daughter, Miss Lola Annie, of Fort Worth, visited in the Oglesby home the first of last week. Virginia Oglesby went back with them while Zada and Lee Tims remained for a longer visit.

Mrs. Virden of Abilene, her daughter, Mrs. Peele, and little daughter, Betty Jean of Shreveport, La., visited Grandmother Shaw and Brock McCasland and family recently.

Miss Velma Shaw of Abilene is spending her vacation with relatives here.

Lester Collier of Abilene spent several days including the 4th with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Collier.

All the soldier boys living here spent the 4th with homefolks.

Al Truman Langford was among the soldier boys sent to Benning, Ga., and could not visit here during the holidays.

Fayne Coffman left last Wednesday for California where he will be in training and will soon be a second lieutenant. He graduated at A. and M. a few weeks ago and we are very proud of the excellent record he is making. His two brothers, Herbert and Wayne, are in California.

Misses Patsy and Ava Nell Newton visited their brother and family at McGirk last week.

Miss Luella Welch visited friends in Lampasas last week.

Jim Tom House spent the 4th with Wm. Edward Hendry.

Mrs. Aubra Hudson and son are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Blackwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Geeslin and daughter visited Miss Maxine Geeslin in Temple the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reid and two sons are visiting relatives here and at Star.

Mrs. Tom House and Miss Annie Laura have been victims of the flu. They are reported improving.

Mrs. Archie Collier and sons visited her mother, Mrs. Elder, in Goldthwaite Monday.

A number from here attended Mrs. Shaw's birthday celebration at Lake Miller in San Saba County Saturday. Mrs. Shaw is a much-loved character of our community and we wish for her many more happy birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Walton are building a new home on their place.

NEW OPERATION FOR INSANE SAID TO BE A GREAT SUCCESS

According to information from Cleveland, Ohio, more than 50 "hopelessly" insane persons are now living and back at work because they have had their brains cut in a new wizardry of surgery.

It is a "forgetting operation" or as doctors call it, a "bleaching of the brain" because it wipes out all the dark spots of memory which cause extreme nervousness, worry, mental upsets, and psychosis.

In an interview Dr. Walter Freedman of Washington, D. C., declared that it is not too much to say that the operation is a "personality rejuvenator" for persons who are completely blank or who have minds which run into tangents without any control.

They cannot think except about the past, worry about what is and what may happen to them. They frequently commit suicide because of worry, which some people call craziness.

Many of them can be restored to normal, Dr. Freedman said, by an operation which cuts the "worry nerves" of the brain running back from the forehead to the central and rear parts of it.

The operation takes about half an hour, can be done under a local anesthetic so that the patient is conscious during and after the operation and suffers no stomach or other upsets.

Operating on the brain might seem to be most dangerous. Actually brain surgeons consider it only a little more dangerous than an operation to remove an infected tooth.

Dr. Freedman described the case of one military pilot who developed a severe psychosis following an airplane accident. He dove forward against the control panel when his plane crashed and although he was able to walk, talk and eat he had suffered a severe injury to the base of the frontal lobes.

After starting to work in a new job for the government it was soon found that the accident had destroyed the "restraining factors" and he could not co-operate or get along with other people. He was morose, sullen, unsociable, crabby and extremely fault-finding in his job as an inspector to the point where his dismissal was asked.

A diagnosis with the electro-encephalograph, the instrument which picks up the tiny electrical waves from the brain, revealed the pre-frontal lobes damaged and the single simple operation put him back on normal flying status.

Dr. Freedman said violent, raving maniacs and uncontrollable cases have been operated on with the permission of relatives and have been restored to normal activity and all are doing useful work. Many persons formerly considered hopeless have been dismissed from the hospital as completely recovered.

Dr. Freedman added that not every insane or disturbed person is considered a fit subject for the operation and that each case must be considered individually.
