NEW INFLATION TWIST-Our linotype operator and printer Roy Lee Hill told us one the other morning that has all the earmarks of a new twist on this thing called INFLATION.

The story is about two farmers living not too far apart. One went to see the neighbor and seeing a fine horse in his lot asked: "What will you take for that horse?" His neighbor replied: "I'll take $100 for him." So the first one wrote him a check for that amount and took the horse home with him

A few days later the one who sold the horse got to thinking and reasoned maybe he sold his horse too cheap. If this animal is worth $100 to this guy maybe he is worth even more to keep.

He went to the neighbor and offered him $150 to buy the horse back. The offer was accepted and he took his prized horse back home

It wasn't long until the fist one came over and offered $200 and bought him back. This went on at regular intervals for several months until the original owner purchased the steed for a record price of $2,000.

A few days after this happened a pretty sharp horse trader came to the country and heard about this good horse and went to the owner and after taking one look he offered him $2,500. The offer was accepted and the new owner took the animal off with him.

When news about this transaction got around the fellow who purchased for $100 earlier that year went to the guy who sold him for $2,500 and asked if the story he heard was true. He was informed it was true and his friend further stated: "How could I refuse such a price."

Then the neighbor said: "I think you made a mistake selling the horse to that stranger. Just think, you and I have been making a pretty good living off that horse nearly a year."

PICTURE IF YOU WILL-It shows a broken window of a home with the fragments of glass lying on the carpeted floor and a baseball nearby. In the center of the room it shows a man sitting on a straight chair with a little boy lying across his lap and the man's right hand raised to a paddling position. The little boy is looking up at "Pa" as only a little boy can under circumstances of that sort.

Under this picture it says: "I'm glad I have a father who loves me so much he wants to correct my small transgressions before they become major crimes."

WASHINGTONAND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

Seventy-eight per cent of the plans, then why would a payroll nation's independent businessmen are opposed to an increase in social security taxes to help defray medical expenses, it is revealed in am just completed nationwide poll of businessmen by the Nation-al Federation of Independent Business . . .

Currently, poll is being made on the bill before Congress introduced by Sen. Murray and Rep. Dingell to levy a 3% tax on salaries and wages to provide government health insurance. While the returns are not in on this vote, it seems logi-cal nation's independent businessmen will be no more in favor of this proposal than one they have already voted upon. . . .

Of course, the argument for government health insurance is that many people cannot afford illness at today's costs.

It is known, however, that under a free enterprise system the majority of the nation's people have some type of private health insurance, and there are such plans open to most of the rest. merely by paying the premiums. However, that fact does not seem to be so germane at this time. There is a more serious aspect to this desire for government to be all things to all men.

It is quite possible that a case could be made for the thesis that many people in the country today cannot actually afford to eat. Thus, if the sole measure of what the government shall do, or not do, is the criteria for compulsory government medical tax deducted for pork chops be so illogical. ... Lots of people complain about price of new automobiles. Thus, why not a payroll deduction to provide free autos.

Sometime, somewhere along the road the fact must be faced that the government cannot be expected to do everything.

For one thing, every tax that s ever passed by any legislative body is eventually, in one form or another, passed along to the consumer, and usually by the time it goes through the distribution channels, the mark up on the goods that reflect these taxes. pyramids the tax several times adding to inflation

In addition, the costs of government administration soar sky high, so that any tax levied for welfare purposes is either an assessment on the payer that is higher than the same services can be secured for elsewhere, or there is just not enough in the fund to take care of the needs, requiring the dipping into general funds.

For example, the proposal before Congress is to tax 3% on each dollar of income up to $6,000 per year. This could mean an annual cost of $180. Yet many families of not inconsiderable size are protected by one of the existing private health insurance plans for just about half this amount in annual premiums.

Actually, the belief held by some that government can pro vide any low cost services of any kind is a snare and a delusion Government services are the most expensive possible. It often doesn't appear this way, because the bill for such services does not come in one statement, but is hidden in many taxes.

GRAIN SORGHMS Farmers in Mills County are blessed with a bumper crop of grain sorghums this year. The rains have fallen just about them." right for this row feed.

Around Priddy the grain sorghum looks good and heavy but some of the farmers have reported that grain worms were eating the heads of the grain. This is especially true in the tighter headed varieties.

A number of farmers have sprayed for these worms but the rains have made it difficult to get in the fields to spray.

George Schuman has sprayed his fields and he said that he believes it has controlled the worms in his fields. The county agent inspected the field and only found a very small number of worms present after spraying

Farmers should spray the worm infested fields with toxaphine at the rate of three pounds per acre.

The effectiveness of the spray material can be increased if spraying will be done during the hot part of the day, for the light headed grain has a tendency to open up when it is hot, and the spray can penetrate the grain heads for better worm control.
