County Commissioners Hold Regular meet

The Hon. Commissioners court, held at the court house, Monday, April 15, 1919, at 10 o'clock, A. M. J. K. McKenzie, Commissioner, presided. Present: N. 1, B. B. Gill from Precinct N. 1, B. B. Lard from N. 2, George C. Lard from N. 3 and W. B. Kitchen from N. 4. The court was in session Monday of this week.

Accounts were allowed and paid and the monthly report of Tax Collector L. A. Lard was examined and approved.

Stock Inspector Appointed. The Commissioners seeing the need of a County Livestock Inspector created such an office and appointed J. Lard to the place whose duty it will be to work in conjunction with the Livestock Sanitary Commissioner, who will also need to accept appointment before it is complete. His salary was set at $150 per month and the inspector and the office can be dispensed with at any time.

It is understood that there are some changes in the county needs dipping. Mr. Lard will see to such as to keep the county as free from diseased cattle as possible.

Changes in City Affairs

The management of the city water light plant have made many important changes the past few weeks. The two wells and windmill that was recently installed have furnished an abundance of water for present use and have kept the large reservoir running over the past few days. The wells depending on wind alone furnished the supply and filled the reservoir in two weeks, and it is estimated that the reservoir holds sufficient water to run the town thirty days. There is also a third well to be pumped by a gas engine that will be in operation in a few days, and the engine is being attached to pull the three wells when the wind does not blow. The water system now seems complete for the first time with sufficient water for all purposes.

The New City Council were sworn in this week and they have hired for Mayor W. A. Dyer and put him in complete management of the water light system and book-keeper for the city. Mr. Dyer has several improvements in mind on the light plant and will no doubt have the plant giving 100 per cent service in a few months.

Influenza With us Again

The influenza has been giving us a round this and last week. A great part of this week there were reports of near fifty cases in town, but understand it is in a much lighter form this time and most of the patients are recovering rapidly. The epidemic has not been effecting school very greatly and many of the students expect to be back in school again next week.

THE PATRIOT

"My dear, America is a beautiful country! and everyone is free to do as he pleases."

"Do you not have to obey your husband and his mother?"

"Oh, no! I should say not. Do you always live in fear of your future husband and your mother-in-law?"

"Yes. We are taught all of our lives that we must obey our mothers-in-law, and they are not always kind."

"You poor child, how I wish you could go home with me. If I might see your father I believe I could persuade him to let you go."

"Oh! don't try to see him. If he knew that I had been meeting you he would be so angry. Please do not tell him."

"Very well, but I do wish you might go."

The above conversation was one of the many that took place between Onoye Ito and her American friend, Doris Vander, during the golden hours spent in the beautiful pagoda at Onoye's Japanese home.

These conversations instilled in Onoye a great desire to live in the wonderful country of her new-found friend, but her father, a man of indomitable will, refused to listen to the stories she read and told to him of America, and then commanded her to cease all intercourse with Americans. So Doris was forced to return home without Onoye.

A year passed and in the meantime, Onoye had induced her brother, Komatsu to go to America and he in turn so influenced his father that he gave them permission to set sail for their land of dreams.

Upon their arrival in San Francisco Doris met them at the dock and introduced them to American manners and customs. Onoye and Komatsu took out naturalization papers as soon as possible and prepared to become real American citizens. With the aid of Doris they secured agreeable work at good wages.

For two years they worked on and were happy. Then the United States declared war on Germany. On the night the news came Onoye said, "Doris, I must help my country. America has been very good to me, and now it is my turn. What can I do?"

But Komatsu, sad to say, had been associating with a disreputable class of people and therefore, unlike his

Rain and Snow Kills Many Cattle

The rain and snow last week did a great damage to the livestock raiser. There were several hundred head lost in the county. Some of the cattlemen loosing as high as 25 to 40 head, and others loosing five to ten head. The cold rain and snow of Tuesday night of last week was indeed very severe to the weakened cattle.

WANT A GERMAN HELMET?

Bona Fide Victory Loan workers will have a chance to win one of these trophies to be distributed among patriotic Americans who kept the home fires burning. About 3,000 of these souvenirs of the greatest war in history have been allotted to this District, to be distributed among Liberty Loan workers by their County Chairmen.

HERE COME THE TANKS

Tanks played an important part in the big battles of the war. Twenty of these armored vessels will visit this District, manned by boys who actually handled the tanks in France. They called these boys the "Treat 'em Rough" boys, because that's what they did to the boche. The tanks are fully equipped with guns and ammunition just as they went onto the battlefields, and you will get a real taste of war when these guns are fired. Eloquent speakers will accompany the tanks to tell you all about them, and what it cost your Government to "Treat 'em Rough."

Your Victory Liberty Loan County Chairman will have charge of the routing of these tanks in your county. Don't fail to see them.

SEE GREAT WAR FILM

Among the pictures which will aid in floating the Victory Liberty Loan is the remarkable film, "The Price of Peace," in the taking of which one of the photographers was killed. The film tells the animated story of the great attack at Chateau Thierry; shows a German airplane being destroyed in the air; shows a field gun and its crew being destroyed by a high explosive shell, and concludes with scenes of the American Army in Germany. The film is 5000 feet long. This picture will be shown without admission charge in as many theatres as can be reached during the Loan campaign.

WATCH THE SKIES

Probably every one of you has seen an aeroplane in flight. But how many of you have seen it make a landing? How many of you have seen its pilot at close range and have talked with him about it? You will be given the opportunity to see these boys and to talk with them. Arrangements are being made to secure planes to visit the majority of the towns in the Eleventh District during the Victory Liberty Loan drive. Remember the aeroplane, the "eyes of the Army" played a big part in winning the war. Watch the skies.

FOR SALE

Five to six thousand bundles of well headed bright maize, at 12 1-2 cents per bundle. See or phone Roy Mathers. 42-4tc.

LEAVE your sick watches and broken jewelry at the Central Drug store for repairs.

COMING!

Medals made from captured German cannon will be given to every worker in the Victory Liberty Loan campaign. It just goes to show that the Government appreciates what its soldiers at home have done toward winning the war. It will mean to the Liberty Loan worker what the Distinguished Service Cross means to the American soldier.

DUANE AGAIN COMES TO RESCUE AS DAPHNE SEES HER CHANCE TO BECOME A STAR SLIPPING AWAY.

Synopsis.—Clay Winburn, a young New Yorker on a visit to Cleveland, meets pretty Daphne Kip, whose brother is in the same office with Clay in Wall street. After a whirlwind courtship they become engaged. Clay buys an engagement ring on credit and returns to New York. Daphne agrees to an early marriage, and after extracting from her money-worried father what she regards as a sufficient sum of money for the purpose she goes to New York with her mother to buy her trousseau. Daphne's brother, Bayard, has just married and left for Europe with his bride. Lella, Daphne and her mother install themselves in Bayard's flat. Winburn introduces Daphne and her mother to luxurious New York life. Daphne meets Tom Duane, man-about-town, who seems greatly attracted to her. Daphne accidentally discovers that Clay is penniless, except for his salary. Bayard and his wife return to New York unexpectedly. The three women set out on a shopping excursion and the two younger women buy expensive gowns, having them charged to Bayard. Bayard is furious over the expense, seeing hard times ahead. Daphne, indignant, declares she will earn her own living and breaks her engagement with Clay. Through an introduction by Duane, Daphne induces Reben, a theatrical magnate, to give her a position in one of his companies.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

Miss Kemble tried to help. She asked Daphne to step aside and watch while she went through the scene. But she was so unsteady that she forgot her own lines and had to refer to the manuscript, while Eldon waited in acute distress and Daphne, looking on, said: "Oh, I see. I think I understand it now." Then she forgot it all again at the repetition. Somehow the rehearsal was worried through to the end and Batterson dismissed the company with sarcastic thanks. Then he went to Reben to demand a substitute.

Daphne went home, dreading her fate but not knowing what the verdict was. She felt sure that it would be not guilty of dramatic ability. She was worn out with the exposure of her own faults and uncertain which she feared the more—to be dismissed or to be accepted. The latter meant unending trials.

At the elevator she found Tom Duane. He had just telephoned up to the apartment to ask if she were in. There was a welcome flattery in his frank delight. She asked him up. Tom Duane was electric with cheer. He praised Daphne with inoffensive heartiness and insisted on hearing the history of her progress. She gave the worst possible account of her stupidity. He would have none of her self-deprecation.

"Everything's got to begin," he said. "Some of the greatest actors are bad at rehearsal, and never get over it. Some of the greatest actresses always are at their worst on the first performance. You're bound to succeed. You have beauty and charm and grace and magnetism no end. Don't worry. I'll speak to Reben and make him restrain Batterson. We'll make a star of you yet."

There was a fine reassurance in that word "we" in spite of its pleasant tang of impudence. It gave her strength to go to the telephone and call up Reben. She came back in despair and collapsed on the divan.

Tom Duane was at her side instantly. "You're ill! In heaven's name, what can I do?" His solicitude pleased her. She smiled palely: "Mr. Reben told me he was afraid I'd better give up the job."

"How are you?"

"Oh, yes! Thank you, I'm so sorry!" said Daphne, and walked on at the wrong side of the chairs.

Everybody shuddered to realize that she had entered through a solid wall. This miracle was ignored, but there was no ignoring the peculiarly inequent note she struck when she bowed to the butler and stammered:

"How are you?"

A sigh went through the vast profound and void of the empty theater. Instinct told even the echoes that Daphne did not belong and never could belong. Batterson groaned, tragically.

"Not to the butler, please! Don't say 'How are you?' to the butler. Don't say 'How are you?' to anybody, please. Script says 'Howjado?' Say 'Howjado?' to Mr. Eldon there. Say 'Howjado?' to Mr. Eldon there."

"How do you do?" said Daphne, bowing to Eldon and speaking with a soullessness of a squeezed doll.

Eldon rose, folded up his imaginary paper, and came forward with a pitying desire to help her. He hoped that the scared little Kip woman would win through the same bitter trials to the same perilous and always endangered success. But he had a fear.

He delivered her his line with benevolent gentleness. He waited, then gave her her line with exquisite tact. She did not repeat it after him. He said to her:

"Don't be afraid; you're all right."

He gave her the line again and she parroted it after him. She leaped then to a speech several minutes farther on. He drew her back to the cue:

"Pardon me, but I think I have a line before that."

The rehearsal blundered on. It was not Daphne's fright that disturbed the rest. It was her complete failure to suggest the character, or any character.

But Batterson found nothing to amuse him, and Reben tasted that dust and ashes of disappointment with which theatrical managers are so familiar when they bite on the Dead sea fruit of beauty without dramatic talent.

She flung herself free. "No, no; I'm an imbecile—I'm no good—that's all." Those big hands were at her shoulders again. That soothing voice was ministering courage and praise: "You are not no good. You shall succeed! I'll make Reben take you back. I've helped Reben when he was in trouble. I've lent him money and I'll make him give you your chance. I promise that, on my word!"

She stared at him through her tears. They blurred him in dancing flashes of light as if he were a sun god. She caught his hands from her shoulders, but she had to hold them in hers. She was drowning, and she must cling to whatever arms stretched down to her. She must not question those they were till she was safe again on the solid earth.

Duane was laughing now and patting her on the back as if she were a frightened child. She felt no right to rebuke his caresses. They were such as a brother might give a sister. His arm about her was that of a comrade, sustaining another in a battle.

He was the only one in the world who offered her courage and praise and help in her need.

Duane said, with a matter-of-fact briskness: "I'll call Reben up on cue. No, I'll go see him."

"But you put me under such obligations. I'm afraid—"

"Never be afraid of an obligation. I'm afraid I can never repay it."

"Then you're one ahead. But you can repay me and you will."

"How?"

"Let's wait and see. Goodby. Don't worry."

He gave her a hand-grip of perfect good fellowship and went into the hall. She followed him to tell him again how kind he was. As she was clasping his hand again Lella opened the door with her latchkey.

Now there was triple embarrassment. Tom Duane had paid ardent court to Lella before she married Bayard. Here he was in Bayard's wife's home, apparently flirting with Bayard's young sister.

Lella felt all the outraged sentiments of jealousy and all the indignation of a chaperon who has been circumvented. Duane retreated in poor order. Daphne stammered an explanation too brief and muddled to suffice. Then she went to her room.

There her mother found her when she came in later. Daphne had only a faint hope that Duane could work his miracle twice, so she told her mother that she had failed as an actress. She told her bluntly:

"Mamma, I've been fired."

To her comfort her mother caught her to her ample bosom and said: "I'm glad of it. I'm much obliged to whoever is to blame. Not but what you could have succeeded if you had kept at it. But you're too good for such a wicked life. A person couldn't be an actor without being insincere and a pretender, and my little girl is too honest. So now you come along home with me."

"No, thank you, mamma."

Mrs. Kip gathered herself together for a vigorous assault when the telephone rang and the maid brought word that a gent'nan wished to speak with Miss Daphne.

It was Duane, and she braced herself for another blow. But his voice was clarion with success.

"I've seen Reben. It's all right. He's promised to keep you on and give you a chance. He says for you to report at the theater at seven-thirty tonight."

And now again Daphne was more afraid of her success, such as it was, than of her failure. But it was pleasant to carry the news to her mother and Lella.

It disgusted them both. They were still trying to dissuade her from continuing on the downward path when a telegram from her father came for her mother:

"Taking beaver arrive Grand Central tomorrow don't meet me love."

"WES."

Bayard was late, as usual, and Lella's temper had just begun to simmer when the door was opened stealthily and a hand was thrust in. It proffered a small box of jeweler's size and waved it like a flag of truce.

Lella rushed forward with a cry of delight, seized the packet and then the hand, and drew Bayard into the room and into her arms.

"This is your apology, I suppose," she said.

"Yes, the apology for being late, and that's what made me late."

Lella was enraptured. She adored gifts and she had the knack of inspiring them. The little square parcel provoked her curiosity. She opened it so excitedly that the contents fell to the floor. She swooped for them and brought up a platinum chain with a delicate plaque of tiny diamonds and pearls on a device of platinum.

Lella ran to Mrs. Kip and Daphne, exclaiming: "Aren't they beautiful? Aren't they wonderful? Aren't they glorious?"

Mrs. Kip and Daphne tried to keep the pace, but once more they could not forget who it was that was raining down gold on this greedy stranger. Their alarm was not diminished when Bayard said to Lella:

"You're not the only one who can open accounts. I started one for these."

He took from his pocket a pale brochure and said to Lella: "That allowance we agreed on, you know?"

"Yes, I know."

"Well, instead of paying it to you week by week I decided to open a bank account for you; so I ran over to this bank at the lunch hour and made a deposit to your credit—five hundred dollars!"

Lella forgot her jewelry for a moment in this new pride. She strutted about with mock hauteur, waving Mrs. Kip and Daphne aside and saying: "Don't speak to me. I am a lady with a bank account."

Mrs. Kip sighed in dreary earnest. "That's more than I ever was."

Lella was poring over her bank book, the blank pages in which so many dramas, tragedies and life histories could be codified in bald numerals.

Her first question was ominous: "Do I have to go all the way down to Broad street every time I want to draw out some money?"

Her first thought was already to attack the integrity of her store.

"No, dearest," said Bayard, "there is an uptown branch, right around the corner. But I hope your visits there will be more for a put-in than take-out. Every time I give you anything I want you to put some of it aside. Maybe some day I'll want to borrow looking odd and unreal in their pain. They seemed to be surprised that Daphne was still in existence. Eldon gave her a curious smile of greeting.

She heard the call boy crying "Overture" about the corridors. She heard the orchestra playing "the king's piece." Then it struck up a march that sounded remote and irrelevant. There was a loud swish which she supposed to be the curtain going up. An actor and an actress in white flannels with tennis rackets under their arms linked hands and skipped into the well of light. They banded repartee for a time.

Eldon, speaking earnestly to Mrs. Vining, suddenly began to laugh softly. He laughed louder and louder and then plunged into the light.

A little later Eldon came off the stage laughing. He dropped his laughter as he crossed the border and resumed his anecdote. "As I was saying—"

"But Mrs. Vining interrupted: 'There comes my cue. How are they tonight?'"

"Rather cold," said Eldon; "it's so hot."

"The swine!" said Mrs. Vining. Then she shook out her skirts, straightened up and swept through the door like a dowager swan.

One of the box lights began to sputter, and Batterson dashed round from the other wing to curse the man in charge. He ran into Daphne, glared, and spoke harshly: "You needn't wait any longer."

Daphne swallowed her pride and slunk out.

CHAPTER XI.

She woke early next morning. It was just six o'clock. She remembered that her father would be arriving in two hours. She decided that it would be a pleasant duty to surprise the poor, old, neglected codger by meeting him.

At the Grand Central station Daphne found that she was nearly an hour too early for the train. It amused her to take her breakfast at the lunch counter, to clamber on the high stool and eat the dishes of haste—a cup of coffee and a ham sandwich. It was pleasant to wander about alone in this atmosphere of speed, the suburban trains, like feed pipes, spouting streams of workers, the out-bound trains drawing their passengers to far-off destinies as if by suction.

At length it was time for the train. Daphne went to the rope barrier opposite the door of entry and waited in ambush for her father.

At length she made out a rather shabby man carrying his own luggage. It was her father. He looked older and seedier than she remembered. He did not expect to be met. He was looking idly at the new station. He had not been to New York since it had been thrown open.

She ran to him. He dropped his old suitcase on the toes of the man following him and embraced Daphne with fervor. He devoured her with his eyes and kissed her again and told her that she was prettier than ever. All about them there were little groups embracing and kissing. There was a wonderful business in reunions.

When her father said, "I haven't had my breakfast; have you?" she lied affectionately, "No."

"Let's have some breakfast together."

"Fine," said Daphne. "We'll go to the Biltmore."

"Kind of expensive, isn't it?" he asked anxiously.

"It's my treat," she said.

"This amused him enormously. 'So you're going to treat, eh?'"

"Yes," she said.

"Where did you get all the money?"

"I'm a working lady now."

He laughed again and shook his head over her.

"What did you mean by saying you were a working lady?" said Wesley when they were seated at the table and breakfast was ordered. "Your mother wrote me something about having a little disagreement with you. She seemed to be right worried, so I thought I'd better run on to see if I couldn't sort of smooth things over. I'm glad you came to meet me. We can talk without interruption for once. Tell me all about it."

She told him the whole story of her decision to join the great social revolution that is freeing women from the slavery of enslaving the men. Her peroration was her new watchword: "I don't want to take any more money from you."

"Why, honey," he protested, "I love to give it to you. I only wish I had ten times as much. I couldn't dream of letting you work. You're too pretty. What's that young Winburn cub mean by letting you work?"

"Oh, he's bitterly opposed to it, so I gave him his ring."

She Found Batterson Quarrelling With a Property Man Over the Responsibility for a Broken Vase.

He Gave Her a Hand-Grip of Perfect Good Fellowship.

He was very polite and awfully sorry, but he said he didn't think I was quite suited to the work. He said that later, perhaps, there might be another chance, but—oh—oh—oh!"

She was crying with all her might. Gradually she realized that Duane's hands were on her shoulders. He was squeezing them as if to keep her from sobbing herself to pieces. His face was close to hers, and he was murmuring:

"You poor little thing. You mustn't grieve. You've to fine and too beautiful for such work."

COULD NOT SLEEP

Mr. Schleusner in Misery From Kidney Complaint, Doan's Gave Complete Relief.

"Heavy work brought on my kidney complaint," says Wm. Schleusner, 64 Suburban Ave., Wellston, Mo. "One morning when shoeing a horse I was taken with a sudden pain in my back and fell flat on the floor. If I had been hit with a trip hammer, I couldn't have suffered more. I stayed in the house for five weeks and the pain was wearing the life out of me. At times I couldn't get a wink of sleep because of the misery and I had to get up every few moments to pass the secretions that were highly colored, a foul odor, filled with sandy sediment and terribly scalding. My bladder felt as though it were aflame. The pain brought stupor and a feeling sensation in my head; the torture of it cannot be described. If I got onto my feet I couldn't walk but felt dizzy and all I could do was to lie down. My head ached so it seemed as though my eyes were being dragged out. I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and I was soon rid of all the trouble."

DID SMILE ON OCCASION
Indian Could Relax, but Only When He Felt He Had Earned the Right, as It Were.

Here is a story told at a dinner party by a Red Cross official who has just returned from France.

The grandson of Sitting Bull, the famous Indian chief, was an interesting convalescent in Base Hospital No. 46. He had enlisted in the early days of the war, had gone over the top and worked havoc among the Germans before he was wounded.

Nurses and doctors caring for him tried in vain to get more than a grunt out of him in response to questions while the other men in the ward called him "Gloomy Gus," because he never cracked a smile.

The Red Cross representative in the hospital becoming interested, tried hard at "cheering up" the Indian. Gifts of cigarettes and chocolate were received, but without a change of expression.

"Don't you ever smile?" he demanded of the Indian one day, and for the first time Sitting Bull's grandson grinned.

"Sure," he replied. "When I kill Boche!"

HOME TOWN HELPS

MANY REASONS FOR GARDEN

Duty of Every Town Dweller to Help Out Farmer in His Task of Feeding the World.

Food production to the uttermost is just as grim a necessity this year as it was last. Then we needed food to feed our soldiers. Now we need food to supply a world most of which has not had all it wanted to eat for three years. Now, as then, the farmer cannot carry the burden alone. He must have every help that the city, suburban and village dweller can give. Make a garden for the world's sake.

Vegetables and fruits raised in a home garden have a flavor that never is found in products carted around the country, or displayed in hot show windows. Make a garden for your palate's sake.

Gardening is the finest exercise with in reach of a moderate purse and about the only one which will pay you fair wages for keeping yourself well. Make a garden for your health's sake.

Gardening is one of the most interesting and educational of activities, especially if you make room for flowers as well as vegetables. It brings back some of the old world lore which a too civilized life loses. Make a garden for your mind's sake.

The day is coming when garden cities will be the rule, but you do not need to wait for slow social developments. There are very few districts in which one cannot make a start at a garden city now. Try it.

CIVIC BEAUTY GREAT ASSET

Always, in Building Community, That Fact, Commercially Sound, Must Be Kept in Mind.

The farmer regards it as most thoroughly businesslike to improve his land and buildings, discovering enhanced values and increased production in the possession of adjuncts that make for simplified operation. A commodious, well-painted house with some sense of floriculture and landscaping about it is instantly of more value than a tumble-down house with no beauty about it, although both houses may be situated on land that is equally productive.

And so with communities. We must not imagine that civic beauty is a thing apart from everyday life. If that were true we would be importing a hodgepodge of obelisks and gothic facades and pergolas and expect our people to believe them our own. But architecture symbolizes the civilization that devises it, not only visualizing the beauty of strength but turning it to the purposes symbolized. Thus we get back to the slogan, "A plan that isn't sound commercially isn't worth considering."

The plan, sound commercially, is the result of an inquiry into what is needed and the desire to fulfill that need in a beautiful and utilitarian way.

Give Every Attention to Details.
The foundation of a home is designed and built to support the structure that is necessary to fill our needs. The foundation of any business must be planned with the same accuracy. If we aim to build up a non-competitive structure, the foundation cannot be laid on some byway, remote from travel. It would require too large an expenditure in advertising mediums to draw the trade to such isolated places.

Therefore, our plans must be complete in every detail. Each department should be equipped with the necessary furniture to make it attractive and serviceable; each ventilated by aspiration and heated with enthusiasm.—Exchange.

Formal Garden Attractive.
John Evelyn has left plenty of descriptions in his diary of the great gardens he saw on the continent, as well as in England, in addition to his writings which deal directly with the subject.

It is much open to question whether the transition from formal gardening to landscape gardening was such a step in advance as was thought at the time. The formal garden, with its clipped hedges, its pleached alleys, its ponds and its carefully planned flower beds, was a pleasant development of the gardener's art, and one which, after suffering a temporary eclipse, seems to be coming to its own once more.

Very Good Reason.
"What bright eyes you have!" said the visitor to five-year-old Charles. "You must get plenty of sleep." "Yes'm," he answered. "My mamma makes me go to bed every night at eight o'clock." "That's to keep you healthy," said the visitor. "No, it ain't," replied the youngster. "It's so she can mend my clothes."

A Fire a Minute.
Every minute of the day and night a fire breaks out somewhere in the United States. It has been estimated that a year's fires in this country destroy property worth more than all the property in the state of Maine or all the gold, silver, copper and petroleum mined in a year.

SAVED BY A FAITHFUL WIFE

Suffered Thirty Years With Stomach Troubles and Hemorrhages of the Bowels.

The Story of a Wonderful Recovery

There is hardly any one who does not expect it for you. Some trouble with the stomach. It is so common that we frequently pay little or no attention to it. Yet, the stomach is very easily upset, and catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining develops, grows worse—the pain and distress is incessant and the truth dawns that we have chronic stomach trouble.

The case of Mr. Louis Young, 205 Merrimac St., Rochester, N. Y., is typical. He writes: "I suffered for thirty years with chronic bowel trouble, stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels. We bought a bottle of Peruna and I took it faithfully. I began to feel better. My wife persuaded me to continue and I did for some time as directed. Now I am a well man." Mr. Young's experience is not unusual. If you suffer from catarrh in any form, whether of the head, stomach, bowels or any other part of the body, try Peruna. It may be just what you need. Peruna comes in either liquid or tablet form and is sold everywhere. Your dealer has it or will get it for you. Ask for Dr. Hartman's World-Famous Peruna Tonic and insist upon having it. If you want your health accept nothing else."

All the sick and suffering are invited to write The Peruna Company, Dept. 78, Columbus, Ohio, for Dr. Hartman's Health Book. The book is free and may help you. Ask your dealer for a Peruna Almanac.

An Immune Miscreant.

"If you dig a pit for your neighbor, you may fall into it yourself," remarked the man who remembers his Sunday school vaguely.

"Yes," returned Mr. Chuggins; "that retribution idea may be all well enough for pit-digging. But the man who breaks glass bottles in the street very seldom has any tires of his own to be ruined."

DON'T DRUG KIDNEYS RUB BACKACHE AWAY

Instant relief! Rub pain, soreness and stiffness from your back with "St. Jacobs Liniment."

Kidneys cause backache? Not! They have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain. Listen! Your backache is caused by lumbago, sciatica or a strain, and the quickest relief is soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment." Rub it right on the ache or tender spot, and instantly the pain, soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacobs Liniment" from your druggist and lather up. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache, sciatica or lumbago pain. "St. Jacobs Liniment" stops any pain at once. It is harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

It's the only application to rub on a weak, lame or painful back, or for lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, sprains or a strain.—Adv.

AFTER CLOUDS COMES SUNSHINE. AFTER DESPONDENCY COMES JOY. AFTER SICKNESS COMES HEALTH. AFTER WEAKNESS COMES STRENGTH.

In the spring when you're "all in"—fagged out—blood thin, if you will turn to Nature's remedy, a tonic made from wild roots and barks, which has stood fifty years as the best spring tonic—you will find strength regained. No need to tell you it's Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, put up in tablet or liquid form, and sold by every druggist in the land. After a hard winter—shut up indoors, your blood needs a temperance tonic, a tissue-builder and blood-makers such as this "Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce's.

Kansas City, Kans.—"About the only medicine I have ever given my little boy is 'Golden Medical Discovery' and it always built him up in good health. I have also given this medicine as a spring tonic; for such 'Golden Medical Discovery' has no equal."

But the youthful patriot received this reply from his better half: "It's so sweet of you, dear, to offer to bring me the Croix de Guerre you mentioned, but if it's just the same to you, I'd rather have a hat from Paris!"

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. —Adv.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Stock Raising in Western Canada is as profitable as Grain Growing

In Western Canada Grain Growing is a profit maker. Raising Cattle, Sheep and Hogs brings certain success. It's easy to prosper where you can raise 20 to 45 bu. of wheat to the acre and buy on easy terms.

Land at $15 to $30 Per Acre—Good Grazing Land at Much Less.

Railway and Land Companies offer unusual inducements to homeseekers to settle in Western Canada and enjoy her prosperity. Loans made for the purchase of stock or other farming requirements can be had at low interest.

The Governments of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta extend every encouragement to the farmer and ranchman. You can obtain excellent land at low prices on easy terms, and get high prices for your grain, cattle, sheep and hogs—low taxes (none on improvements), good markets and shipping facilities, free schools, churches, splendid climate and sure crops.

No doubt the writer of the above article was a newspaper man. The very tone of the article indicated that the article was written by a person of experience. Yet we find that newspaper men are expected to know too much—generally more than they real-writer, we add that not only must he know all the above, but he must be able to successfully demonstrate an air plane, operate a poultry farm, drive a "hitler" and act as school trustee.—Amarillo News.

"Nervous Breakdown!"

When your nerves fail your whole body suffers—headaches, stomach disorders, sleepless nights make you miserable indeed.
 The experience of Mrs. H. G. Kedman, of New Haven, Conn., is an example. Read what she says:

"For months I suffered from extreme nervousness. My nerves were completely unstrung and I suffered distressing pains across stomach and chest. Doing housework left me completely fatigued, and loss of sleep made nights long and tiresome. I began taking
 DR. MILES' NERVINE and the first night sleep soundly. I continued using the medicine and soon all the unpleasant symptoms were gone."

Thousands of sufferers from nervous disorders have found relief in DR. MILES' NERVINE. This wonderful nerve tains no harmful or habit-forming

FOR BETTER ROADS

GREAT ROAD BUILDING YEAR

Thousands of Miles of Improvement Arranged and More Will Surely Follow.

From the passage of the federal aid road act to December 15, 1918, 755 projects were approved by the secretary of agriculture. These projects involve the improvement of 7,807 miles of public roads at a total estimated cost of $57,632,000, of which the federal government has been requested to contribute $21,602,000. There have been actually completed to date twelve projects, involving a total of fifty-one miles of road, costing approximately $617,548, and on which federal aid in the amount of $200,000.19 was paid.

Altogether there are more than 7,500 miles of road, for which most of the steps preliminary to construction have been taken so far as the bureau of public roads is concerned. Numerous other projects not yet reported to the department have been completed or are under construction, so that the sum total of the road work now in progress under federal aid is greater than appears in this summary.

From Florida to Maine, through the North to the Pacific coast and down to Mexico road building work is going on. Every state has accepted its contribution from the government, and while no organized effort has been made along those lines to the present time, the states are working gradually to the system of national highways.

Coupled with plans already outlined for expenditures on the roads is the legislative program now before congress, which provides for $500,000,000 to be expended over a period of seven years by federal aid. It is estimated that in the event of the passage of this bill, which would make available immediately $75,000,000 for use in federal aid, it would be possible for the government and the states to build 34,000 miles of highways this year if labor could be obtained.

Well-Drained Road.

VALUE OF POULTRY MANURE

Increased Supply of Fresh Vegetables May Be Obtained By Applying to Garden Soil.

The droppings from fowls, if carefully saved and applied to the garden soil, will increase the supply of fresh vegetables. Poultry manure is rich in nitrogen and is well worth the effort it requires to save and apply. The droppings from an average farm flock will amount to considerable fertility during the year.

AUTO TAXES TO GO TO ROADS

Committee Appointed in Alabama to Request License Fees Be Applied to Highways.

The Birmingham (Ala.) Automobile club has appointed a legislative committee which is to appear before the state legislature with the request that all automobile license fees and taxes be applied on the cost of improved roads in the state. The funds thus diverted would amount to $1,500,000 annually.

GOOD BUILDINGS FOR SHEEP

Should Be Dry, Well Drained, Ventilated and Furnish Ample Space for the Flock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The site for permanent buildings for sheep should first of all be dry and well drained. Ample yard space that is dry and sheltered should be available adjacent to the main barn or shed. A southern slope with sandy soil is especially satisfactory for this purpose.

On most farms it will be advantageous to have the buildings and yards easily reached from the regular pastures or from fields used to grow forage crops for summer pasture. As the flock requires attention many times daily during part of the year, convenience of location in relation to the farm dwelling and to other buildings will affect an economy of time in the performance of routine labor.

Since sheep do not require quarters that are especially warm, a single wall will ordinarily insure sufficient warmth. If lambs are dropped in very cold weather, a temporary covering over the lambing panels will provide warmth, or a small space can be partitioned off in which to keep a few ewes until their lambs become strong.

Shade and protection from heat are peculiarly necessary for sheep. Shade cannot always be furnished in pastures, and buildings that are well located and constructed so as to render them cool in summer will often provide greater comfort to the sheep during hot days than would be possible for them out of doors.

Dryness and freedom from draft are most important. Sheep cannot possibly thrive in quarters that are damp or dark. In fact, the flock should be shut in only during storms. Abundance of light in all parts of the building and at all times is necessary not only for the health of the sheep, but for convenience of the shepherd in caring for them. One square foot of window for each 20 square feet of floor space is necessary. Windows should be placed at a height to insure a good distribution of light, and particularly direct sunlight for the lambing pens during the period the ewes are lambing.

Close confinement in poorly ventilated pens is very injurious to breeding ewes. While they should seldom be shut indoors, a part of the flock will usually lie inside at night. At lambing and during storms doors should be closed. For such times it is necessary to provide means of securing fresh air without creating drafts. In a very large building with numerous doors and windows it is often advisable to build one or two partitions from floor to ceiling to prevent drafts. Fresh air can be admitted through muslin-screened windows opened on the side opposite to that from which the wind is blowing without causing drafts if all other sides of the building are tightly closed.

Level and well-drained clay-surfaced floors are satisfactory and economical. Sheep pack the surface very firmly, and if there is proper drainage the only objection to this floor is that it does not exclude rats. Concrete floors for alleys and feed rooms are necessary, but will seldom be called for in the pens.

The main features to be provided in the floor plan are minimum of waste space, convenience and ease in feeding and in cleaning the pens, and elimination of the need of moving or disturbing the sheep. Pen partitions should be movable. By using feed racks to make divisions in the pen space the size of the pens can be varied as needed, and in special cases the racks can be removed to permit the use of the space for other stock.

Farmer Who Does Not Raise Animals to Supplement Crops Loses Soil Fertility.

More and more is the tendency toward livestock raising to supplement crop growing in general farming. The farmer who raises crops, such as corn, cotton, sorghum, hay, etc., without animals and sells these products must sell the fertility constituents at wholesale and buy meat, milk, butter, flour, meal, etc., at retail, paying the high cost of hauling both ways and dealers' profits. Animal raising saves fertility and the high cost of hauling. It is worth while.

SPEECH APPEALED TO HIM

More or Less Good Reason Why Listener Considered It Great Oratorical Effort.

They are telling a good joke on Will Upshaw. He was up the other day, and was the interesting center of several groups of members who had heard of the "Prohibition Cyclone" of Georgia.

While talking in the lobby to one of these groups of forthcoming associates, Congressman Garrett of Houston, Tex., passed, after salutations.

"Did you ever hear Garrett speak?" asked Upshaw of the members of his group.

"Yes," they all chimed in.
"The most masterly address, the most beautiful, soul-stirring address I ever heard in all my life of association with great orators, fell from the lips of that great Texan and statesman one night at Dallas," said Upshaw.

"On what subject was Garrett speaking?" queried one of the party, rather interested.

"He was introducing me," replied Upshaw solemnly.—Atlanta Constitution.

Beulah's mother always starched her little girl's dresses so they wouldn't soil so easily, but Beulah didn't like them that way, and generally crushed them so they wouldn't stand out so much. On one occasion her mother asked her why she did it, adding, "What do you suppose I starched your dresses for?"

"I don't like it that way," complained Beulah; "it makes me look so stuck up."

EASTER

Easter, the gladness of Easter is found me!
Easter, the sweetness of Easter has found me!
Easter, the gladness of Easter is found me!
Easter, the sweetness of Easter has found me!
Easter, the gladness of Easter is found me!
Easter, the sweetness of Easter has found me!

Easter; the lilies of Easter are swaying!
The babies, their tresses all wind-blown,
are playing!
Their wee fingers fashion me garlands of clover—
Easter—I grieved but my grieving is over!
The ones whom I loved, and who left me back yonder,
a grown nearer with Easter,
a grown nearer and fonder;
when the breeze touches the tree-boughs low-swinging most feel their loving, I almost hear their singing.

So all the gladness of Easter is found me,
Gladness, its love and its peace have all found me;
The ones whom I grieved for my arms are now nearer—were far and apart, now they're nearer and dearer!
Each Easter that comes brings me near to the going—
I find them and love them. I know they are knowing!
I found them, and love them. I know they are knowing!
I found them, and love them. I know they are knowing!
I found them, and love them. I know they are knowing!

—Judd Mortimer Lewis.

the Risen Spirit, he goes to the laden churches, rejoicing in the flower-beauty that surges into bloom for the feast and in the massed choral singing of anthems. Surely he is sincere; thus loving, thus praising, thus entering into the service which the priests and people hold? With less keenness of sight, however, for the pure spiritual proving of the truth than those few were blest with who long ago, at the earliest Easter, after long sorrow and waiting, saw the real resurrection, yet perceived the greater spiritual one through it.

But he knows it is in the churches that he will find the mystery of the new flower that is to rise. It is always there, to be realized at each kneeling, to be sown anew in each heart, to give fostering care, to brood over and bless the soil of the heart while waiting, to tell over and over again at every time the questioning heart is lifted up to it that what the mystery of life can do for the lesser grain it is bound to do by an ever truer measure of the same law for the spiritual growth.

Teaches Great Truth.
One can turn better, after that realization, to the full springtide and feel even gladder than nature, knowing the touch of the eternal flower within.
Wandering amid the old myths, filled with their beauty and their deathless attachment to life, one feels always under the shadow of ended things, upon the verge where all reality has gone down in darkness. The lasting and perfect poetry of these myths lingers like gorgeous sunken sunsets. As the latest come among them many may class the great Christian story of the resurrection. It is indeed a great myth, a superlative myth in the real meaning of the word as a narrative founded on a remote event. But the singular, lone truth it symbolizes like a direct shaft of light separates it from the darkness of the old myths forever.

They taught the underworld, where the shades moved in a half life or pale regret conscious of lost joy, without hope. A mournful idea of immortality that satisfied no heart and from which the great thinkers of that age reached out in vain for light.
That light appears in the great simple law, "Except the grain fall in the earth and die it cannot bring forth fruit."

BEGINS HOLY WEEK

For Many Centuries Palm Sunday Has Been Day of Peculiar Significance.

PALM SUNDAY is the name usually given to the sixth and last Sunday in Lent and the beginning of holy week, after the custom of blessing branches of the palm tree or of other trees substituted in those countries in which the palm cannot be procured, and of carrying the blessed branches in procession, in commemoration of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem.
Palms and branches of the palm were used in this historic entry because the palm was then regarded as an emblem of victory and the carrying and waving of its branches was emblematic of success and in honor of royalty.

The date of the first observance of Palm Sunday is uncertain. In the Greek church it was apparently observed as early as the fourth century. In the middle ages the palm, worn as a decoration, denoted that the person so adorned had made the pilgrimage to the Holy Land.
In some countries people made use of figures of Christ seated on an ass, carved out of wood, which were carried in religious processions and even brought into the church. In other countries it was the custom to strew flowers and green boughs in church yards.

The palms used in the procession of the day are taken home by the faithful and used as a sacramental. They are preserved in prominent places in the houses, barns or even in the fields, and thrown into the fire during storms. From the blessed palms are procured the ashes for use on Ash Wednesday.
Where palms cannot be secured branches of olive, box elder, spruce or other trees are used. In Rome olive branches are distributed to the people, while the clergy carry palms frequently dried and twisted into various shapes. In parts of Bavaria large swamp willows, with their catkins, and ornamented with flowers and ribbons, were used.

Because every great feast at this time was in some way a remembrance of the resurrection of Christ and was in consequence called Pascha, the Spanish term pascua florida had its origin. Thus it was that in 1512 the state of Florida, which was settled by the Spaniards, indirectly received its name.

THE SEPULCHRE

By Annie Johnson Flint
"The third day he shall rise again... So they... made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone... He is not here; for he is risen, as he said."
—Matthew 20: 19; 27: 66; 28: 6.

The Man had died on the cross,
And they laid him in the tomb;
The Living Stone in the stone,
The Rock in the rock-hewn room;
They left him alone with Death,
And sealed the stone at the door;
They made the sepulchre sure,
And set their watch before.

"Lest his friends should steal him away,
And say that he rose," they said.
But Life escaped from Death,
And the God-man rose from the dead.
The skeptical minds of men
Still think the sepulchre sure,
But Christ had said, "I will arise,"
And the counsels of God endure.
Still his disciples go
To carry the wondrous word:
"The Lord is risen, indeed!"
"We know, we have seen and heard."
And the tomb men think so sure,
With the seal of their scorn on the door,
The place where the Lord once lay,
Is empty forevermore.
—Sunday School Times.

IS GREAT ESTABLISHED FACT

Skeptics Have at All Times Failed to Disprove the Resurrection of Easter Morning.

The lesson of Easter involves the question of the divinity of Christ. There are two great miracles upon which Christianity rests. The miraculous birth and the resurrection go together. If we believe one we can believe the other. The former is not subject to historical proof. The latter has been proved and is one of the best-established facts in history.
Those who imagine themselves to be too "modern" to accept the resurrection as a literal fact, are deluding no one but themselves. There is nothing new in the effort to explain away the great event. Men have been trying out explanations ever since the guards who went to sleep on duty around the tomb excused themselves by saying the disciples stole his body away while they slept. Explainers have risen and fallen as the ages have come and gone and the deeper the explainers have gone into the matter, the more apparent has become the fact. The simple Gospel narratives gave enough of the physical details of the event to make it convincing; the fact that the disciples themselves did not expect the resurrection and were slow to believe it until they were forced to believe it by his presence among them; by exhibition of his sacred wounds and the fact that it became the burden of their preaching in the future all go to make up the indisputable collateral evidence of the literal fact. Every one of the disciples is said to have died a martyr and his resurrection was their "testimony to martyrdom."—H. Lee Mills in Houston Post.

TURKISH NO MORE

Whole World Rejoices That "the Infidel" Has Been Driven From Holy City.

EASTER will be celebrated in Palestine as never before this many centuries, and all the Christian world will celebrate with greater fervor and deeper reverence now that the hand of the "infidel Turk" is removed.
It is exactly 674 years since the Turk drove out the Christians and took possession of Jerusalem, after it had been taken by Frederick II, March 17, 1229, who crowned himself king of the Latin kingdom, in imitation of that earlier king of Jerusalem, Godfrey of Bouillon (1099).

Land of Pilgrimage.
Palestine had been assigned to the Emperor of the East in 305 A. D., and was nominally Christian at that time, when pilgrimage to the Holy Land became almost a cult and the finding of relics became a regular pursuit in all the places identified with the life of Jesus.
This was the period that might almost be termed the Christianizing of Palestine, for Christianity had developed far more vigorously at Rome and in other parts of the Roman empire than in the Holy Land itself, up to this time. Constantine had made it the state religion and Helena had found the "True Cross," so that there was a great stirring of interest throughout the land. Many fine churches were built, and Justinian erected the Golden Gate and part of a great church, now the El Aksa mosque (527-565).

Christians Persecuted.
It was in 614 that Chosroes II, king of Persia, made his great inroad, persecuting the Christians wherever he found them, especially in what is now Armenia, and capturing Jerusalem. The Emperor Heraclius managed to regain control (629), but he had to yield before the might of the Caliph Omar (637), who erected many great structures, especially the mosque called after him, upon the great rock which had been the site of the temple of Solomon.
For more than 400 years the Mohammedans held sway, until as a result of the Crusades Godfrey of Bouillon took possession in 1099. The Christian powers could not, however, hold possession, for they were always fighting among themselves, and so Saladin, the mighty leader of the Moslems, gained a permanent hold over the land of Palestine and Jerusalem in 1187.

It was during the next century that the Christians under the leadership of Frederick II gained possession of Palestine for the last time, until our own day. But with dissension among the Christians of that time it was not difficult for the Turks to regain control in 1244 and retain it ever since, in one form or another.

Surrender of Jerusalem.
The surrender of Jerusalem to the British forces last December, and the subsequent conquest of much of the rest of the land now establishes Christian control, at least for the present, and the doubt has been raised whether any Christian power, even Germany, will dare to suggest that the holy places again be turned over to the power of the Moslem, no matter what the terms of peace may be.

Precisely what local changes in privileges of worship will come out of the change may not be foretold. For a long time a strange situation has prevailed in Jerusalem. The holy sepulchre, for example, with its relics of Christian treasure, has been used by Greeks, Armenians and Western Christians in alternation, the control remaining with the Turkish authorities. Naturally many disputes have arisen out of so strange a situation.

This Easter Significant.
When the city was captured by the British there was great local anxiety as to what might result. With the entry of General Allenby, with his staff and certain French and Italian officers, these anxieties were quickly set at rest. The Jewish population soon learned that all was to be well with them and other sects represented in the citizenship of the historic place were equally reassured. A sense of peace, liberty and security had its immediate effect and influenced profoundly the preparations for the new, unexampled Easter as well as for future worship of every sort in the troubled Holy Land. In Jerusalem as elsewhere began to appear a conviction that, no matter how long world peace might be delayed, a new spirit was abroad throughout the earth.

This Easter, then, has a special significance, in view of all the centuries of struggle for holding the places consecrated to Christianity by the activity of its Savior.

Morning

A RESURRECTION FRAGMENT

MORNING—not the dawn of life's little day, so quickly shrouded by night—but the breaking of an eternal sunlight over the eternal hills.

WHAT an overwhelming difference to the heart which holds the risen Christ between the passing day and the everlasting Morrow! Today heavy shadows fall of mystery and sorrow—tomorrow all gloom dispelled by the light that shines from that once marred visage. Today heaviness of disappointment or obscurity of ignorance—tomorrow, nothing between, no cloud, no time intervening, but face to face with Jesus, Jesus who came, Jesus who lived, Jesus who suffered, Jesus who died, Jesus who rose in glorious resurrection.

NOW the hazy and indistinct view—then the vision of perfect sight! Now the tumult and the strife—then the rest and life eternal! Now the weeping and the sighs—then the song and the tearless eyes! Now our dear ones dying—then no more parting! Now the waters dividing—then no more sea! Now the open grave's farewell—then the resurrection greeting. Now the night winds chilling and killing—then the morning lifting and brightening! Morning on the mountains! Morning on the plains! Morning with an eternity in it! Morning—morning!

OH, the transforming touch of that hour! Only intelligence irradiated by contact with the skies could give us to recognize our heavenly cross when it comes, to crown us there. We shall find our failures; they will greet us as triumphs. We shall find our bereavements; they will meet us as reunions. We shall find our loss forgotten in eternal gain. We shall find our hidden struggles swallowed up in open victory. We shall find our hidden tears forming diadem gems. We shall find the complete fulfillment of every promise and the exceeding great reward of all our faith.

OH, what a time of finding of all that is dear, and desired, and best! For it is the Resurrection Dawn, the stone is rolled away, the gates are flung back, the boundary is crossed, the veil is torn—

THE MORNING HAS BROKEN!

WANTS NO ARTIFICIAL PROOF

Believing Christian Can Entertain No Doubt Concerning the Resurrection of the Savior.

To the normal mind there can be no compromise, writes H. Lee Mills in the Houston Post. If Christ did not rise from the dead, the most gigantic fraud in the history of the world was perpetrated and every minister of the Gospel is either a conscious or a deluded "faker." If there was no resurrection, the whole missionary propaganda is foolish and a failure and evangelize and "Barnumize" become synonymous terms. Does the history of Christian missions, from the first to the twentieth century savor of fraud, or even of delusion? The command to evangelize all nations was given after the resurrection.

After all the arguments have been marshaled before human reason for or against the return of Christ in the glorified body, the question of does Jesus live can be answered by the believing Christian without artificial proof. If like Paul, he knows whom he believes, doubts about the details of the event of the resurrection do not concern him.

The Hare and Easter.

The origin of the Easter rabbit is unknown. There is a German legend to the effect that the hare was originally a bird and was changed into a quadruped by the Goddess Ostara, and in gratitude to Ostara, or Eastre, the hare exercises its original bird function to lay eggs for the goddess on her festival day. The children among the Pennsylvania Germans are told on Easter morning that this "Osther" has laid the colored eggs that are given to them, or which are placed in nests at some convenient place for the children to find them.

GOOD MONEY FROM BAD EGG

Jim Buckley Finally Proved Truth of Saying That He Was Fond of Repeating.

"Thar ain't nothin' in the world but is good fer somethin'" is one of the favorite sayings of Jim Buckley of Bear Lake.

Buckley is a thrifty soul. He farms in summer and traps in winter and between wheat and furs he is growing rich. One morning his wife was cooking breakfast. She broke a rotten egg into a skillet and was starting toward the door to throw it away when Buckley stopped her.

"Woman, don't throw that egg away," said Buckley.

"But it's rotten," protested his wife. "Makes no difference," declared the philosopher. "Thar ain't nothin' in the world but—"

"James Buckley," exclaimed his wife, "I've heard that a thousand times."

The wolf never sniffs at the doors of the prosperous farmers of the Peace river country. But foxes are different animals—here is something you don't know—rotten eggs are raised as an epicurean tidbit in vulpine menus.

That night Buckley set a trap in a poplar grove near his home and baited it with the rotten egg. He hoped to catch a red fox or perhaps a coyote. But when he went out to his trap next morning, what do you think he found? The biggest silver fox Buckley ever had clapped eyes on. He sold the pelt in Peace River the other day for $346.

"A right nice lot o' money to hatch from a rotten egg," remarked Buckley, as he stuffed the money in his pocket. "I've allers allowed that thar ain't nothin' in the world but is good fer somethin'."—Chicago Post.

ONE GOOD THING FROM WAR

Coccone Nut, Hitherto Considered Only as Nuisance, Has Been Made Article of Commerce.

Before the war the coccone, which grows freely in the Southern American, on large trees of the palm family, was literally such a hard nut to crack that its vegetable oil had no place in commerce, and the tree was known chiefly as a botheration to banana planters when they wished to enlarge their plantations. Eighteen hundred pounds' pressure is required to crack the coccone nut, and there was no machinery for doing it. Then government experts said that nothing else in the world would provide such good carbon for gas masks as the coccone nut, and the United States financed the creation of machinery for cracking it, thus starting a new and important industry. Hereafter it will be well worth while breaking the shells for the vegetable oil inside them, valuable for cooking, lighting, and the making of nut butter; and the shells, happily no longer needed for masks, can be used as fuel or in the manufacture of gas. And so, out of an effort to prevent the expansion of autocracy by conquest, the Southern Americas find opportunity to expand by commerce.—Scientific American.

Aristocrats in Gutter.

We hear rumors of grand dukes and other members of the old nobility of Russia driving cabs and peddling bootlaces in Petrograd. This is no new thing in Europe. In England the descendants of the great Plantagenets have been found in very lowly occupations. A few years ago a lawsuit proved that a genuine Bourbon was then hawking vegetables in the streets of Paris. A few years earlier a son of a cousin of Empress Josephine, Napoleon's first love, was sent to prison for petty larceny. In 1892 the Marquis DeFoligne was an omnibus conductor; the Comte de la Marche was a house painter; the Marquis DeTorrey d'Etalinde kept a small inn at Carnac, and the Marquis d'Hauteroche, a descendant of the nobleman who, at the battle of Fontenoy, called out to the English: "Tirez les premiers," was a gendarme.

Antimony in the Transvaal.

A new body of antimony is reported to have been opened near the Komati river, in the district of the Stensdorp gold fields, Transvaal. As the ore is found to be valuable, a mining company is now carrying on smelting operations on the spot. Three shafts have been sunk to a depth of 50 feet, besides open workings. One is continuous throughout. A furnace capable of smelting ten tons of ore per day is in operation and it is stated that there is sufficient ore in sight to keep the furnace working while developments are being made.—Scientific American.

Roberts Predicted Foch's Victory.

When Lord Roberts was in Canada ten years ago at the dedication of the Plains of Abraham park and playground he made this prediction: "They refuse to believe me, and we are asleep under a false security, for I do not hesitate to affirm that we will have a frightful war in Europe, and that Great Britain and France will have the hardest experience of their existence. They will, in fact, see defeat very near, but the war will finally be won by the genius of a French general named Ferdinand Foch, professor in the military school in Paris."

Little Rivers Important.

In his war ode Dr. van Dyke remains loyal to "little rivers." In his book, "Little Rivers," he has already made little rivers as interesting as the little drops of water that make the mighty ocean. Freedom begins at the source.

ENDLESS CHAIN NOT MYSTICAL

Doctor Fighting Influenza Explains How Curative Serum Went From Patient to Patient.

The prevalence of influenza and pneumonia with their high death rate makes it imperative to resort to heroic methods of treatment rather than to follow the accepted ones only. The lack of serum or other specific remedy for influenza, writes Dr. Charles R. Humbert in the Medical Record, together with the inability to obtain antipneumococcus serum forced me to use convalescent serum.

The Endless Chain.—It is a well-known fact that persons convalescing from pneumonia have anti-bodies in their blood streams. As soon as the patients' condition permits, therefore, they are bled as much and as frequently as possible.

Serum is prepared and treated, and is placed in stock. When another patient comes in with pneumonia, treatment is begun. When convalescence sets in the above procedure is repeated. It is a case of one gives serum to two, two gives serum to three and so on, the procedure becoming endless.

Censor's Office Boy.

It must be the censor's office boy who is responsible for some of the vagaries of the blue pencil. Not long ago some patriotic soul quoted Kipling's line from the "Recessional," "The captains and the kings depart." He had the surprise of his life when the word "kings" was struck out. But worse is now reported. Another scribe, greatly daring in the meatless days, quoted Thomas Hood's joke in an article on "Wayside Graves," or something equally solemn: "So they buried Ben at four cross-roads." With a stake in his inside.

Slow Sartorial Reconstruction.

The question of civilian equipment has its humorous as well as its serious aspects for the honorably discharged soldier or sailor. Some are lucky enough to return immediately and completely to "civils," while others, less fortunate, must content themselves with a sort of half and half adornment. It no longer causes astonishment to detect a pair of neatly creased trousers hanging stiffly beneath military khaki overcoat, or to see the short blue jacket of the sailor covering an otherwise perfect civilian outfit. These are some of the minor problems of reconstruction.—New York Sun.

Remarkable Repair Ship.

To enable the American destroyers and chasers in British waters immediately to effect repairs and renewals, there was a repair ship stationed at Queenstown of a remarkable character. The vessel, of about 5,000 tons, was a floating machine shop, foundry and store, able to do any kind of repair work short of drydock work. The bakery produced long loaves of crusty bread for all the ships, and once created a most elaborate birthday cake for Admiral Sims.

Keep Your Money At Home

Why you should be interested in assisting building up of a Mutual Grain Insurance Company in the Panhandle of Texas. The extremely high rate charged for insurance of grain crops old line companies make it just a matter of business to obviate this as far as possible. Planter's Mutual Hail Insurance Company after seven years of business as a Mutual Insurance Company decided at its last annual meeting place the company on a sound and secure foundation by adopting (unanimously) a sliding scale of assessments for the purpose of creating a reserve fund of sufficient amount to take care of all damages sustained in any year. The Board Directors selected for the ensuing year are fully warranted in saying to one and all of the wheat raisers on plains land in Carson, Gray and Roberts Counties that the plan adopted will pay full every dollar of damage for 1919 and at same time provide a good part of the reserve fund to be raised. They are justified in saying to that a period of ten years of insurance with Planter's Mutual Hail Insurance Company will not cost over an average rate of 56 per cent premiums. This assumption of cost is based on absolute figures for the seven years life of Company. This saving to planters is self evident to the Directors. This alone should be sufficient inducement for you to join this Company to nothing of the advantage of keeping premium at home and the interest to be derived from serve fund in local banks.

All Solicitors for the Company will gladly explain to you the method by which the Company expects to secure a reserve fund. They are: P. Russ, W. H. Miller, J. S. Carter and Banks at Panhandle, E. H.
