No. 19.

THE DISTRICT COURT

District Court had very little court work, but opened up Monday.

A very interesting case, arising from the number of visitors to the court house Monday and Tuesday.

States vs B. O. Penuel, charged with Perjury, growing out of the defendant's testimony in the Christy-Curtis affair was the case called Monday. Mr. Penuel was charged with swearing before the Grand Jury that he saw no one on the witness stand at the time of the trial of W. D. Christy, swearing that he took knuckles.

The regular jury was exhausted before sufficient men were found for this case, a special venire was summoned, and took up the entire day of Monday and the case was started Monday.

The testimony was finished on Tuesday, and the afternoon spent in preparing the Court's report. The case went to the jury at 1 p. m., lawyers' pleadings being read and the jury was out only minutes and brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Another criminal case was that of State vs C. G. White, transferred from Lipscomb County, came before court and was dismissed on motion of the State.

Civil Docket
Case of Walter Bartholamew vs S. Lock was settled and dismissed at cost of plaintiff.

Walter Bartholamew vs Homer, settled and dismissed at cost of plaintiff.

HEREFORDS BREEDERS SALE AT CANADIAN YESTERDAY

The Second Annual Hereford Breeders Sale of the Red Deer Hereford Breeder Association was held in Canadian yesterday afternoon. The sale was well attended by a large number of local people as well as buyers from several points over the Panhandle and El Paso and while the cattle did not bring as much as was expected, still the sale was quite a success, considering the financial situation and the big recent drops in cattle.

The entire allotment of cows and bulls were sold, with an estimated average of $150. The highest price being paid for a bull, $370.00. The sale did not get as high an average price as their first sale held in Miami a year ago.

The Red Deer Association, while comparatively young is gaining much publicity for the grade of cattle they are raising and attracting buyers for many miles. A large number of Miami people attended the sale.

UNIVERSITY LEGISLATION PENDING

Austin, Texas, Feb.—An unusual amount of proposed legislation relating to the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College is pending in the House and Senate. Foremost of these measures are those which provide for the removal of the Main University from its present site. This proposition alone is many-sided, so far as the provisions of the different bills and joint resolutions are concerned.

Another effort to bring about the divorcement of the University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College by means of an amendment to the Constitution as also to be made. The proposed amendment of this kind was voted down more than a year ago by a small majority, but the opponents of the proposition believe that its defeat was due to a lack of understanding of the real meaning of the amendment on the part of the people.

One of the most important of the latter bills affecting the University is that which was introduced in the Senate, providing for the sale of all University lands. According to original surveys these lands aggregated 2,000,320 acres, but that the acreage is really greater than the original surveys show is apparent by the fact that there are under lease at this time 2,079,520 acres. The annual revenue derived from this source is $214,779. The lease rental ranges from 3 cents to 15 cents per acre. Much of the land is also under lease for oil exploration and exploitation purposes. The amount of annual revenue derived from these lease is not given. Under the provisions of the Senate bill the land shall be sold without settlement, in lots not to exceed two sections each, and on 40 years' time with interest at 5 per cent per annum on deferred payments, the money thus derived to go to the University permanent fund.

THE BIBLE, An Interesting Book.

(NOTE. The following article was written by Mrs. W. R. Ewing for the Home Progress Club, and at our request, she has kindly granted permission for us to print it.)

My authority for the following incident is Dr. J. Lyman Hurlbut; author of "The Story of the Bible," of which book 500,000 copies have been sold. The incident is this:

The editor of an English Magazine sent a communication to one hundred of England's greatest men—peers, authors, business and professional men were among the hundred, and the communication contained this query: If you were compelled to spend a year in solitary confinement, in prison or on a desert island what three books would you take with you for companionship. Ninety-eight men out of the hundred named the Bible first.

Dr. Hurlbut finished the incident by saying that every one who would be considered intelligent must have an acquaintance with the bible.

Following on in this line Senator Beveridge of Indiana, from whose little book on the Bible I have drawn freely for the subject-matter of this paper says: "Every home would be ashamed to be without the Bible, but curiously enough it is the last book to be read."

The Bible is not read enough. People do not know how to read it. They don't know what to read. They don't understand many passages and so oftentimes fail to read any.

Why is the Bible not read more?

Sen. Beveridge says "the neglect of the Bible is due to the intellectual indigestion acquired early in youth by the unintelligent way in which it is read at the fire side and from the pulpit." He says further that "the Bible is read with such offensive solemnity to the young or irreligious as to defeat its purpose." In presenting the Bible to those who perhaps have never read it, or, if at all, just a little, he advises that it "be taken up as an account of mighty men and extraordinary women and the most wonderful of people." Take it up as a purely "human" document (you will get the religion in it as you go on) and you will learn how fascinating a library of sixty-six books the Bible is.

PROPER TEST OF PROGRESS

Many Things Good Citizens Will Put Above the Numerical Growth of Their Community.

Greater New York is peevish because it has been credited with some 400,000 fewer people than it believes lives within its boundaries, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It has enough to lead London and thus be classed as the largest metropolis of the world, and if pride in nothing but the number of people who manage to exist within the official limits of the city is the ruling spirit, New York ought to be satisfied with credit for having the largest number. But it is not satisfied and is making a count of its own. The census figures show an actual decline in the borough of Manhattan, which fact ought to evoke expressions of satisfaction instead of the reverse. If some of the crowded masses of lower Manhattan have been able to find homes outside that district, thus reducing the congestion and making living more comfortable for those who are compelled to remain, it should be a matter of general congratulation.

Why is a census taken? Is it so that we may know exactly how many people there are in the United States and that municipal rivalries based entirely upon the number of human beings who live within the official boundaries may be determined? That is all a great many people see in it. Newspaper comment on figures given out is purely numerical. Perhaps that is because we have only numerical data as yet. Far more worth consideration will be the facts as to the conditions of life, the social and religious status, the matter of employment, housing, etc., etc. Any city genuinely interested in its actual growth and conditions will pay more attention to such data than to the mere matter of numbers.

HOLD SECURITIES AT HOME

Manifest Advantages Are to Be Obtained by Wise Investment in Local Industries.

One of the generating plants in California decided to offer its stock to its customers, instead of sending it to New York for needed funds. Its success was immediate, says the Society for Electrical Development. Employees of the company were the first to buy. This expressed their confidence in the safety of their company, based on intimate knowledge of its workings. The public eagerly followed. Today upward of $40,000,000 worth of central station securities are owned by 36,000 individuals, 90 per cent of whom heretofore never owned a utility stock. The growing popularity of customer partnership in public utilities in lieu of the much-discussed municipal ownership and its uncertainties may be the herald of a day when the American people, like their thrifty neighbors of France, will be partners in all their home utilities. Certainly there is value in having one's savings employed where they can be watched and there is patriotism and hard business sense, too, in helping to increase earnings on the investment by one's personal interest in the industrial progress of the home town.

Town Planning.

The familiar rush of the people from the land to the cities, so pronounced a feature of modern times, has encouraged congestion in most communities. Recourse to town planning has been forced by the necessities of efficient transportation and sound land values, as well as good health.

It is fashionable today to deplore the slums. Why provide new ones? Why add congestion to existing congestion, when, simply by looking ahead and taking thought, healthy growth may be assured?

Town planning provides the city with eyes to see where it is spreading and to conform to the demands of business and comfort. A city unplanned is a blind giant, sprawling over the ground. It wastes some of its greatest assets in a building debacle.

Every city that keeps order on its streets must also keep order in its advance to greater size and influence. It must put town planning traffic experts at important corners on its way.—Montreal Star.

Louisville Sets Good Example.

Along the outskirts of Louisville, on the main highroads, "representatives" of the Louisville Automobile club are always on duty, day and night, extending welcome to the incoming traveler, and good wishes to those departing.

The representatives are inanimate, being made of wood and paint, but they have given good service to countless motorists.

On one side of the signs, facing persons coming into Louisville, is the word "welcome," with a summary of the more important city traffic regulations. On the opposite side is "good-by," and the distances to other towns along the road.

According to Eugene Stuart, secretary of the club, the signs are but one of the means taken by Louisville motorists to make the city remembered gratefully by visiting tourists.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

INVITING SPRING SUITS ARRIVE

NEW suits for spring have made their entry in a bevy of models that includes familiar styles, and others ingeniously designed and less familiar. A few of these new things will prove short-lived experiments, but there are several good novel styles with a promising future. There are more short coats than long ones among the new arrivals—short coats being springlike and youthful—and there are short capes and coats to be worn with one-piece frocks or skirts and blouses that are unusually good looking. These coats are much like the Chinese model, but with more flare to the body, suggestive of a cape, and there is every reason to predict that they will become a fashion.

Blouses Offer Wide Choice

IN CHOOSING new blouses one is apt to waver between those that promise to be perpetually fresh looking—since they may be laundered easily—and those that entice with lovely color. In the end it turns out that both kinds find their way into the wardrobe. To wear with suits and separate skirts, the daintiness of sheer cotton fabrics, made up with exquisite needle work and good laces, never appeals in vain to women of refinement. There are many of these blouses in the shops now and they are among the things that a good seamstress can make for herself successfully. Delicate hand work is expensive for those who must buy it, but costs the needlewoman little but her time.

The new lingerie blouses are nearly all long-sleeved and have collars that reach the nape of the neck in the back but are open at the throat. Drawn work, hemstitching, pin tucks, narrow frills, fine laces in edgings and insertions tell the story of embellishments on them. Not all of them are white, for batiste is shown in some colors; porcelain blue makes a lovely blouse.

The blouses shown in the picture are both made of georgette, which appears in a lovely range of soft colors for spring. A peplum blouse appears at the left of the two, made with shoulder yoke and finished with satin pipings. Scattered motifs in bead embroidery settle the question of decoration, and the round neck survives in this model; but the sleeves are long. A narrow belt of georgette falls short of encircling the waist, stopping a each side of the front where two small buttons punctuate its finish. Among so many colors in georgette one may choose a dark blouse, like that at the right. It has a short peplum at the back and has fallen in with the long-sleeved vogue, but chooses the flaring style. The neck reveals a pretty eccentricity in short slashes at each side, and for trimming there are bands of bugles and beads.

If one is looking for something novel the suit at the right claims attention on this score. It has a tunic skirt and a very odd and ingeniously cut jacket that is extended at the bottom into shaped sash ends. Narrow braid in two widths outlines the edges and the sleeves and their approval to the long bell-shaped style.

POOL KNOWN AS MOSES' WELL

Is Believed to Be That Mentioned in the Bible in Connection With Great Law Giver.

In the Egyptian desert, about ten miles east of Suez, is situated a picturesque pool known as "Moses' well." This is believed to be the well mentioned in the Bible, where Moses, at the bidding of the Lord, cast a branch into the bitter waters, and they were sweetened. Set in a deep grove of date-palms and pomegranate trees, the well is a dark, calm, mysterious-looking pool, faithfully reflecting the palms which fringe its edges. The scene at sunrise, when the first rays strike the still water, is exquisite beyond description.

Attempts to identify various natural beauties and locations with mentions or descriptions as given in the Bible have always been difficult, owing to the fact that the records of the rulers of Egypt at the time of the captivity of the Jews were destroyed by rulers that came into power immediately afterward. The motive was jealousy, and a determination to wipe from the minds of the people any regrets for rulers gone.

Then There Was More of It.

"What are you little boys quarreling about, my son?" asked the father coming in the gate.
"Why, this boy from next door said I was as homely as you, papa," explained the young man.
"Oh! And that's what started the trouble, was it?"
"No, papa; the trouble didn't start until I said that I wasn't as homely as you!"—Yonkers Statesman.

FOLLOWED EXAMPLE OF HOST

Tactful Visitor Had No Desire to Be "Called," So He Duly "Sarsed" His Coffee.

The oil magnate, Mike Murphy, who passed away not long ago, was fortunate in the fact that his sons inherited their father's consummate ability, says the Philadelphia Ledger. One of them, John, tells this story of a recent visit to a certain section of the country, where he was careful to do as the people did, and to conform with social usages as he found them.

At the table the venerable host poured coffee into a saucer. But the host's son drank it from a cup. That made the host angry. "Why don't you sarsed your coffee?" he bellowed at the son.

"It's all right this way, father," answered the young man, mildly.
"Son, if your education is going to make you reflect on your father I want to know it. I tell you, sarsed your coffee!"

Whereupon the dutiful son emptied the cup in the saucer, and, says Mr. Murphy, "I sarsed mine, too!"

Quaker Minister Is Grateful to Tanlac

Rev. Parker Moon

Nearly everybody in Southwest Missouri either knows or has heard of the Rev. Parker Moon, who for a full half century has devoted his life and talents to Sunday school and organization work for the Society of Friends or Quakers.

"Uncle Parker," as he is more familiarly known, came from fine old rugged Quaker stock, and there is not a better known or more highly respected citizen in that part of the state. In referring to his remarkable restoration to health by Tanlac, he said:

"About five years ago I suffered a general breakdown. My principal trouble was nervous indigestion. My appetite was very poor and my food seldom agreed with me, and I had to live on a very restricted diet. I suffered a great deal from headaches and dizzy spells; I had severe pains across the small of my back and was badly constipated most of the time. In fact, I was so weak and rundown I was not able to attend to my duties.

"This condition made me very nervous and I could not sleep at night. Frequently I would lie awake most all night and was in that condition more or less for five years. My physician said he could not do anything for me and suggested a change of climate. I then moved to Texas and went back and forth three times, but did not get the relief I had hoped for. Finally, I got so bad off I was not able to get around with any degree of comfort. I was also told I had heart trouble.

"I had read about Tanlac and, as it had been very highly recommended to me, I decided to try it. I got a bottle and had taken only a few doses until I could notice a marked improvement in my condition. I noticed especially that I was not troubled any more with sour stomach after eating, which was a great relief.

"I kept on taking Tanlac until I fully regained my health. My appetite is splendid; I enjoy my meals and I do not find it necessary now to take any laxative medicines of any kind. I can sleep much better and am not nearly so nervous.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Tanlac to anyone who needs a good system builder, or who suffers with stomach trouble. I have recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends and am pleased to reach others by giving this statement for publication."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

GOOD AND LOGICAL REASON

Mrs. Jones Knew Exactly What She Was Doing When She Selected Baby's Names.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had come to that all-important part of naming their new baby.

Mr. Jones, who, by the way, detested work, and liked nothing better than to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, wanted the baby named plain "Bill."

Mrs. Jones had different views. "I shall name the baby William Oliver Robert Kenneth," she asserted.

"But why all those names?" asked her husband.

"Because," replied Mrs. Jones, tartly, "if you look at the initials you will find that they spell 'Work,' so, perhaps, when baby grows up, he will take to it better than his father."

REALLY NOT SO FLATTERING

Younger Lady's Explanation of Recognition of Old Friend Had a Certain Sting to It.

A cabinet officer said at a dinner, apropos of certain criticism on his department:

"Politics—all politics. Nothing, not even woman, is as cruel as politics, and yet woman can be very cruel."

The secretary then told a story about the cruelty of woman.

"One Easter morning," he said, "two ladies met on the Atlantic City boardwalk with little outcries of surprise and joy.

"'Why, Mame!' said the older lady. 'How flattering this is!'"

"'Flattering!' said the younger lady, with a perplexed air. 'How so?'"

"'You haven't seen me,' said the older lady, 'for 17 years—and yet you recognize me, so to speak, right off the bat. That means I haven't changed so dreadfully, doesn't it?'"

"'Oh!' she said, 'you see, I recognized your bonnet!'"

COLLEGE EDUCATION FOR BOY

Kentucky Lad Saves Enough From Sale of Litter of Fine Pigs to Pay for Schooling.

Here is the story of how a litter of pigs produced an agricultural college education, a system of farm water works and general improvement on a backwoods farm that had only primitive advantages.

The education went to Jeff Anderson, a Kentucky boy of Pulaski county.

Pigs Almost Ready to Root for Themselves.

Jeff belonged to a boys' club which had been organized by the county agent. He was encouraged to raise a litter of fine pigs under the club system by which the boys applied approved methods and kept account of the results. The pigs sold for a fancy price. Jeff, who had made sure progress, saved some money from his labor and in 1918 entered the Kentucky State College of Agriculture for its short course.

He had been used to seeing his mother and other women carry water 150 yards up a hill for washing and cooking. At the agricultural college he realized the convenience and benefit to be gained by running water conducted to a tap in the kitchen. When he returned home he persuaded his father to let him put in a water system. A stand pipe 60 feet high was built with a 500-gallon tank on top, which gave sufficient pressure to force water to the dwelling 400 feet away. He rigged up a gasoline engine and pump at the spring under the hill. He had learned a little about plumbing, so he did all the pipe fitting in the house. One month's work at odd times, coupled with a little of the knowledge he had gained at the State College of Agriculture put the water right into the kitchen. Jeff has gone back to complete his college education; and they're still raising better pigs at the Anderson farm.

RANGE STOCK IS IMPROVED

All Kinds of Sires, Bulls Especially, Are Receiving Close Scrutiny by Breeders.

In the Western range states all kinds of sires—bulls especially—are receiving scrutiny by live stock owners. There is increasing evidence that good purebred males have wide influence on the quality of young stock and on the returns from stock-raising operations.

One day recently the United States Department of Agriculture enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement several ranchmen, each of whom had more than 1,000 head of live stock. One flock of sheep contained 250 purebred ewes and 3,450 crossbred ewes, the sires being all purebred. A cattle raiser who enlisted in the campaign the same day notified the department: "I have disposed of two grade Hereford bulls recently, having decided to run nothing but purebred sires." This remark is typical of the progress of the movement in Montana.

TO RESTORE MORGAN STRAIN

Efforts of Department of Agriculture Shown in Recent 300-Mile Test for Horses.

Efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture to restore the Morgan strain of horses, which had become nearly extinct, showed their effect in the recent 300-mile test for army horses. Out of 27 entries, only ten finished, and of these the sixth and seventh were Morgan horses, one of them raised on the department's stock farm in Massachusetts. The horses were required to travel 60 miles a day for five days, carrying the regulation cavalry load of 245 pounds.

PROFITABLE TO RAISE MULES

Plan Suggested to Farmers Who Experience Difficulty in Selling Young Horses.

Men with good-sized mares, who are having a hard time disposing of young horses will find it more profitable to raise mules than to raise colts. Medium-priced jacks can now be purchased with a reasonable certainty of breeding.

Highway Improvement

MATERIAL FOR ROAD MAKING

Careful Study of Amount and Character of Traffic is First Important Essential.

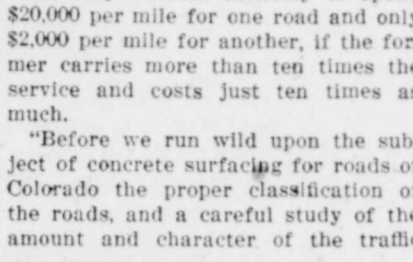

Professor House of the Colorado Agricultural college is one of the best-known engineers in Colorado. He has been head of the civil engineer department at that college for several years and has always been in close contact with the affairs of the state. In speaking about roads, Professor House says:

"A great deal of agitation is being carried on at the present time, concerning the construction of concrete roads for Colorado. That some of our roads should be paved in this way, there is no question, but I think we should carefully guard against overdoing the matter. In order to be justifiable, road improvements must return in economic and social benefits an amount at least equal to the interest, depreciation and maintenance, over and above those of the old road.

"It is exactly the same as in ordinary business. The amount that should be invested in road improvement is that sum which will give the largest annual return in benefits to the people of the community.

"It may be real economy to spend $20,000 per mile for one road and only $2,000 per mile for another, if the former carries more than ten times the service and costs just ten times as much.

"Before we run wild upon the subject of concrete surfacing for roads of Colorado the proper classification of the roads, and a careful study of the amount and character of the traffic over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. The state is then prepared to determine upon the proper highway system that will be the most economical, and that will meet the traffic requirements of each road."

GOOD HIGHWAYS IN JAMAICA

Island in British West Indies Is Awakening to a Realization of Improved Roads.

The island of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, rich in natural resources and active in trade, is awakening to a realization of the importance of good roads. The advent of the automobile has had much to do in the development of an agitation which now promises valuable results. The system of modern highways which it is proposed to build will mean the speedy development of parts of the island now more or less neglected because of their practical inaccessibility. Completion of a radial system of good roads would undoubtedly be followed by a general adoption of the motortruck for conveying the products to the sea. The increased speed and efficiency thus acquired would tend to promote larger production, and thereby increase the wealth of this already industrious island.

GOOD ROADS BOOST PROFITS

Where Farmer Can Haul but One Bale of Cotton on Poor Road, Man on Good Roads Hauls Four.

The matter of opportunity in marketing is worthy of consideration. For the sake of example, suppose that two farmers living in separate counties, but at equal distances from the cotton market, learn by telephone that cotton has advanced in price $1 a bale. The man living on a bad road can immediately haul one bale of cotton to market, while the other can haul four bales because he lives on a good road. The rise in price means a profit of $4 to the one man and only $1 to his neighbor.

Change Road Location.

If the location of a used road is bad it should be changed if possible. In relocating roads avoid railroad crossings at grades.

First Need of Farmer.

The first need of the farmer is good roads leading from the farms to market centers.

Concrete Base Urged.

Practically every highway engineer today agrees that all roads should have a concrete base.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless number of those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parrels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—ADV.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and Blood Purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

PROPER TEST OF PROGRESS

Many Things Good Citizens Will Put Above the Numerical Growth of Their Community.

Greater New York is puffed because it has been credited with some 400,000 fewer people than it believes lives within its boundaries, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It has enough to lead London and thus be classed as the largest metropolis of the world, and if pride in nothing but the number of people who manage to exist within the official limits of the city is the ruling spirit, New York ought to be satisfied with credit for having the largest number. But it is not satisfied and is making a count of its own. The census figures show an actual decline in the borough of Manhattan, which fact ought to evoke expressions of satisfaction instead of the reverse. If some of the crowded masses of lower Manhattan have been able to find homes outside that district, thus reducing the congestion and making living more comfortable for those who are compelled to remain, it should be a matter of general congratulation.

Why is a census taken? Is it so that we may know exactly how many people there are in the United States and that municipal rivalries based entirely upon the number of human beings who live within the official boundaries may be determined? That is all a great many people see in it. Newspaper comment on figures given out is purely numerical. Perhaps that is because we have only numerical data as yet. Far more worth consideration will be the facts as to the conditions of life, the social and religious status, the matter of employment, housing, etc., etc. Any city genuinely interested in its actual growth and conditions will pay more attention to such data than to the mere matter of numbers.

HOLD SECURITIES AT HOME

Manifest Advantages Are to Be Obtained by Wise Investment in Local Industries.

One of the generating plants in California decided to offer its stock to its customers, instead of sending it to New York for needed funds. Its success was immediate, says the Society for Electrical Development. Employees of the company were the first to buy. This expressed their confidence in the safety of their company, based on intimate knowledge of its workings. The public eagerly followed. Today upward of $40,000,000 worth of central station securities are owned by 35,000 individuals, 90 per cent of whom heretofore never owned a utility stock. The growing popularity of customer partnership in public utilities in lieu of the much-discussed municipal ownership and its uncertainties may be the herald of a day when the American people, like their thrifty neighbors of France, will be partners in all their home utilities. Certainly there is value in having one's savings employed where they can be watched and there is patriotism and hard business sense, too, in helping to increase earnings on the investment by one's personal interest in the industrial progress of the home town.

Town Planning.

The familiar rush of the people from the land to the cities, so pronounced a feature of modern times, has encouraged congestion in most communities. Recourse to town planning has been forced by the necessities of efficient transportation and sound land values, as well as good health.

It is fashionable today to deplore the slums. Why provide new ones? Why add congestion to existing congestion, when, simply by looking ahead and taking thought, healthy growth may be assured?

Town planning provides the city with eyes to see where it is spreading and to conform to the demands of business and comfort. A city unplanned is a blind giant, sprawling over the ground. It wastes some of its greatest assets in a building debauch.

Every city that keeps order on its streets must also keep order in its advance to greater size and influence. It must put town planning traffic experts at important corners on its way.—Montreal Star.

Louisville Sets Good Example.

Along the outskirts of Louisville, on the main highroads, "representatives" of the Louisville Automobile club are always on duty, day and night, extending welcome to the incoming traveler, and good wishes to those departing.

The representatives are inanimate, being made of wood and paint, but they have given good service to countless motorists.

On one side of the signs, facing persons coming into Louisville, is the word "welcome," with a summary of the more important city traffic regulations. On the opposite side is "good-by," and the distances to other towns along the road.

According to Eugene Stuart, secretary of the club, the signs are but one of the means taken by Louisville motorists to make the city remembered gratefully by visiting tourists.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

INVITING SPRING SUITS ARRIVE

NEW suits for spring have made their entry in a bevy of models that includes familiar styles, and others ingeniously designed and less familiar. A few of these new things will prove short-lived experiments, but there are several good novel styles with a promising future. There are more short coats than long ones among the new arrivals—short coats being springlike and youthful—and there are short capes and coats to be worn with one-piece frocks or skirts and blouses that are unusually good looking. These coats are much like the Chinese model, but with more flare to the body, suggesting a cape, and there is every reason to predict that they will become a fashion.

The dignified long coat and the sensible three-quarter length are always serenely sure of a following, and therefore they are well represented in the new displays, the shorter of these outnumbering other styles. A handsome model in the first of these two classes is shown at the left of the two spring suits pictured and it can be recommended to the older women more particularly, just as it is. Its skirt is bordered at the bottom with a narrow band braided—or embroidered—in self and another color. The coat is straight with simulated belt at the long waistline, slightly flaring and long sleeves, and a loosely adjusted and interesting collar. In as much as it is a type greatly favored in collars for this spring. The sleeves make place for a deep band of braiding or embroidery that gives an invaluable finish to a rich looking suit.

If one is looking for something novel the suit at the right claims attention on this score. It has a tunic skirt and a very odd and ingeniously cut jacket that is extended at the bottom into shaped sash ends. Narrow braid in two widths outlines the edges and the sleeves add their approval to the long bell-shaped style.

Blouses Offer Wide Choice

IN CHOOSING new blouses one is apt to waver between those that promise to be perpetually fresh looking—since they may be laundered easily—and those that entice with lovely color. In the end it turns out that both kinds find their way into the wardrobe. To wear with suits and separate skirts, the daintiness of sheer cotton fabrics, made up with exquisite needle work and good laces, never appeals in vain to women of refinement. There are many of these blouses in the shops now and they are among the things that a good seamstress can make for herself successfully. For delicate hand work is expensive for those who must buy it, but costs the needle-woman little but her time.

The new lingerie blouses are nearly all long-sleeved and have collars that reach the nape of the neck in the back but are open at the throat. Drawn work, hemstitching, pin tucks, narrow frills, fine laces in edgings and insertions tell the story of embellishments on them. Not all of them are white, for batiste is shown in some colors; porcelain blue makes a lovely blouse.

The blouses shown in the picture are both made of georgette, which appears in a lovely range of soft colors for spring. A peplum blouse appears at the left of the two, made with shoulder yoke and finished with satin pipings. Scattered motifs in bead embroidery settle the question of decoration, and the round neck survives in this model; but the sleeves are long. A narrow belt of georgette falls short of encircling the waist, stopping a each side of the front where two small buttons punctuate its finish.

Among so many colors in georgette one may choose a dark blouse, like that at the right. It has a short peplum at the back and has fallen in with the long-sleeved vogue, but chooses the flaring style. The neck reveals a pretty eccentricity in short slashes at each side, and for trimming there are bands of bugles and beads.

POOL KNOWN AS MOSES' WELL

Is Believed to Be That Mentioned in the Bible in Connection With Great Law Giver.

In the Egyptian desert, about ten miles east of Suez, is situated a picturesque pool known as "Moses' well." This is believed to be the well mentioned in the Bible, where Moses, at the bidding of the Lord, cast a branch into the bitter waters, and they were sweetened. Set in a deep grove of date-palms and pomegranate trees, the well is a dark, calm, mysterious-looking pool, faithfully reflecting the palms which fringe its edges. The scene at sunrise, when the first rays strike the still water, is exquisite beyond description.

Attempts to identify various natural beauties and locations with mentions or descriptions as given in the Bible have always been difficult, owing to the fact that the records of the rulers of Egypt at the time of the captivity of the Jews were destroyed by rulers that came into power immediately afterward. The motive was jealousy, and a determination to wipe from the minds of the people any regrets for rulers gone.

Then There Was More of It.

"What are you little boys quarreling about, my son?" asked the father coming in the gate.

"Why, this boy from next door said I was as homely as you, papa," explained the young man.

FOLLOWED EXAMPLE OF HOST

Tactful Visitor Had No Desire to Be "Called," So He Duly "Sarsed" His Coffee.

The oil magnate, Mike Murphy, who passed away not long ago, was fortunate in the fact that his sons inherited their father's consummate ability, says the Philadelphia Ledger. One of them, John, tells this story of a recent visit to a certain section of the country, where he was careful to do as the people did, and to conform with social usages as he found them.

At the table the venerable host poured coffee into a saucer. But the host's son drank it from a cup. That made the host angry. "Why don't you sarse your coffee?" he bellowed at the son.

"It's all right this way, father," answered the young man, mildly. "Son, if your education is going to make you reflect on your father I want to know it. I tell you, sarse your coffee!"

Whereupon the dutiful son emptied the cup in the saucer, and says Mr. Murphy, "I sarsed mine, too!"

Quaker: Minister Is Grateful to Tanlac

Rev. Parker Moon

Nearly everybody in Southwest Missouri either knows or has heard of the Rev. Parker Moon, who for a full half century has devoted his life and talents to Sunday school and organization work for the Society of Friends or Quakers.

"Uncle Parker," as he is more familiarly known, came from fine old rugged Quaker stock, and there is not a better known or more highly respected citizen in that part of the state, in referring to his remarkable restoration to health by Tanlac, he said:

"About five years ago I suffered a general breakdown. My principal trouble was nervous indigestion. My appetite was very poor and my food seldom agreed with me, and I had to live on a very restricted diet. I suffered a great deal from headaches and dizzy spells; I had severe pains across the small of my back and was badly constipated most of the time. In fact, I was so weak and rundown I was not able to attend to my duties.

"This condition made me very nervous and I could not sleep at night. Frequently I would lie awake most all night and was in that condition more or less for five years. My physician said he could not do anything for me and suggested a change of climate. I then moved to Texas and went back and forth three times, but did not get the relief I had hoped for. Finally, I got so bad off I was not able to get around with any degree of comfort. I was also told I had heart trouble.

"I had read about Tanlac and, as it had been very highly recommended to me, I decided to try it. I got a bottle and had taken only a few doses until I could notice a marked improvement in my condition. I noticed especially that I was not troubled any more with sour stomach after eating, which was a great relief.

"I kept on taking Tanlac until I fully regained my health. My appetite is splendid; I enjoy my meals and I do not find it necessary now to take any laxative medicines of any kind. I can sleep much better and am not nearly so nervous.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Tanlac to anyone who needs a good system builder, or who suffers with stomach trouble. I have recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends and am pleased to reach others by giving this statement for publication."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Mrs. Jones Knew Exactly What She Was Doing When She Selected Baby's Names.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had come to that all-important part of naming their new baby.

Mr. Jones, who, by the way, detested work, and liked nothing better than to sit in front of the fire and watch other people do it, wanted the baby named plain "Bill."

Mrs. Jones had different views. "I shall name the baby William Oliver Robert Kenneth," she asserted.

"But why all those names?" asked her husband.

"Because," replied Mrs. Jones, tartly, "if you look at the initials you will find that they spell 'Work,' so, perhaps, when baby grows up, he will take to it better than his father."

Younger Lady's Explanation of Recognition of Old Friend Had a Certain Sting to It.

A cabinet officer said at a dinner, apropos of certain criticism on his department:

"Politics—all politics. Nothing, not even woman, is as cruel as politics, and yet woman can be very cruel."

The secretary then told a story about the cruelty of woman.

"One Easter morning," he said, "two ladies met on the Atlantic City boardwalk with little outcries of surprise and joy.

"'Why, Mame!' said the older lady. 'How flattering this is!'"

"'Flattering!' said the younger lady, with a perplexed air. 'How so?'"

"'You haven't seen me,' said the older lady, 'for 17 years—and yet you recognize me, so to speak, right off the bat. That means I haven't changed so dreadfully, doesn't it?'"

"'Oh!' she said, 'you see, I recognized your bonnet!'"

COLLEGE EDUCATION FOR BOY

Kentucky Lad Saves Enough From Sale of Litter of Fine Pigs to Pay for Schooling.

Here is the story of how a litter of pigs produced an agricultural college education, a system of farm water works and general improvement on a backwoods farm that had only primitive advantages.

The education went to Jeff Anderson, a Kentucky boy of Pulaski county.

Pigs Almost Ready to Root for themselves.

Jeff belonged to a boys' club which had been organized by the county agent. He was encouraged to raise a litter of fine pigs under the club system by which the boys applied approved methods and kept account of the results. The pigs sold for a fancy price. Jeff, who had made sure progress, saved some money from his labor and in 1918 entered the Kentucky State College of Agriculture for its short course.

He had been used to seeing his mother and other women carry water 150 yards up a hill for washing and cooking. At the agricultural college he realized the convenience and benefit to be gained by running water conducted to a tap in the kitchen. When he returned home he persuaded his father to let him put in a water system. A stand pipe 60 feet high was built with a 500-gallon tank on top, which gave sufficient pressure to force water to the dwelling 400 feet away. He rigged up a gasoline engine and pump at the spring under the hill. He had learned a little about plumbing, so he did all the pipe fitting in the house. One month's work at odd times, coupled with a little of the knowledge he had gained at the State College of Agriculture put the water right into the kitchen. Jeff has gone back to complete his college education; and they're still raising better pigs at the Anderson farm.

RANGE STOCK IS IMPROVED

All Kinds of Sires, Bulls Especially, Are Receiving Close Scrutiny by Breeders.

In the Western range states all kinds of sires—bulls especially—are receiving scrutiny by live stock owners. There is increasing evidence that good purebred males have wide influence on the quality of young stock and on the returns from stock-raising operations.

One day recently the United States Department of Agriculture enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement several ranchmen, each of whom had more than 1,000 head of live stock. One flock of sheep contained 250 purebred ewes and 3,450 crossbred ewes, the sires being all purebred. A cattle raiser who enlisted in the campaign the same day notified the department: "I have disposed of two grade Hereford bulls recently, having decided to run nothing but purebred sires." This remark is typical of the progress of the movement in Montana.

TO RESTORE MORGAN STRAIN

Efforts of Department of Agriculture Shown in Recent 300-Mile Test for Horses.

Efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture to restore the Morgan strain of horses, which had become nearly extinct, showed their effect in the recent 300-mile test for army horses. Out of 27 entries, only seven were Morgan horses, one of them raised on the department's stock farm in Massachusetts. The horses were required to travel 60 miles a day for five days, carrying the regulation cavalry load of 245 pounds.

PROFITABLE TO RAISE MULES

Plan Suggested to Farmers Who Experience Difficulty in Selling Young Horses.

Men with good-sized mares, who are having a hard time disposing of young horses will find it more profitable to raise mules than to raise colts. Medium-priced jacks can now be purchased with a reasonable certainty of breeding.

Highway Improvement

MATERIAL FOR ROAD MAKING

Careful Study of Amount and Character of Traffic is First Important Essential.

Professor House of the Colorado Agricultural college is one of the best-known engineers in Colorado. He has been head of the civil engineer department at that college for several years and has always been in close contact with the affairs of the state. In speaking about roads, Professor House says:

"A great deal of agitation is being carried on at the present time, concerning the construction of concrete roads for Colorado. That some of our roads should be paved in this way, there is no question, but I think we should carefully guard against overdoing the matter. In order to be justifiable, road improvements must return in economic and social benefits an amount at least equal to the interest, depreciation and maintenance, over and above those of the old road.

"It is exactly the same as in ordinary business. The amount that should be invested in road improvement is that sum which will give the largest annual returns in benefits to the people of the community.

"It may be real economy to spend $20,000 per mile for one road and only $2,000 per mile for another, if the former carries more than ten times the service and costs just ten times as much.

"Before we run wild upon the subject of concrete surfacing for roads of Colorado the proper classification of the roads, and a careful study of the amount and character of the traffic over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. The state is then prepared to determine upon the proper highway system that will be the most economical, and that will meet the traffic requirements of each road."

over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. GOOD HIGHWAYS IN JAMAICA

Island in British West Indies Is Awakening to a Realization of Improved Roads.

The island of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, rich in natural resources and active in trade, is awakening to a realization of the importance of good roads. The advent of the automobile has had much to do in the development of an agitation which now promises valuable results. The system of modern highways which it is proposed to build will mean the speedy development of parts of the island now more or less neglected because of their practical inaccessibility. Completion of a radial system of good roads would undoubtedly be followed by a general adoption of the motortruck for conveying the products to the sea. The increased speed and efficiency thus acquired would tend to promote larger production, and thereby increase the wealth of this already industrious island.

GOOD ROADS BOOST PROFITS

Where Farmer Can Haul but One Bale of Cotton on Poor Road, Man on Good Roads Hauls Four.

The matter of opportunity in marketing is worthy of consideration. For the sake of example, suppose that two farmers living in separate counties, but at equal distances from the cotton market, learn by telephone that cotton has advanced in price $1 a bale. The man living on a bad road can immediately haul one bale of cotton to market, while the other can haul four bales because he lives on a good road. The rise in price means a profit of $4 to the one man and only $1 to his neighbor.

Change Road Location.

If the location of a used road is bad it should be changed if possible. In relocating roads avoid railroad crossings at grades.

First Need of Farmer.

The first need of the farmer is good roads leading from the farms to market centers.

Concrete Base Urged.

Practically every highway engineer today agrees that all roads should have a concrete base.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

The Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce is gaining favor in the eyes of every one in the Panhandle. It is doing a wonderful work which is being recognized by almost every county in the Panhandle in a financial way.

The little girl over in Indiana who talked continuously for ten days finally stopped this week. Physicians considered her in a critical condition. We have known a few grown people to talk continuously for ten years, have never said anything worth hearing and are still talking.

Warm weather almost the entire winter is putting fruit in a very dangerous condition. Peach tree buds have already swollen until they are almost ready to open. Other fruit trees are showing signs of budding, which leaves it an almost certainty that there will be very little fruit this year.

We wonder why the compulsory school law was necessary, when we look at the wonderful Miami Public School. Its number of trained teachers and its hundreds of eager, interested happy children. Why should not any parent be proud to have their children be a member of such an institution? Why should not any child long for the privilege? Yet they some times fail to appreciate the school. We know of no children within the compulsory law not attending our school, but we do know of a few older ones who ought to be able to grasp the opportunity.

We hope the Chief readers will not expect too much optimism from the pen of the editor of this weekly "headache" for the next six weeks. There is no country on earth greater than the Panhandle, and we can always have a pleasant remembrance of almost every day in the year except the days of March when the earth jumps up in the air and whizzes and sizes all over, into and around every thing, dead or alive. If we could just mark March off our calendar, we would hardly swap the Panhandle for a home in the Garden of Eden. We have lived here a little over a quarter century, but haven't yet learned to like the "sand storm."

Public road wear out the same as any other thing. That is what is happening to a lot of our Roberts County roads, and especially the road toward Mobeetie. That road which once had a very nice grade, has gradually worn down until on the plains it hardly has any part of a grade, and in some places it is lower than the other ground. Something must be done with it. The rainy season will soon be here, and unless this road is fixed, it will be impassable half the time this spring. The county funds are exhausted, but we must make some arrangements to keep our roads in passable condition.

People are too careless and indifferent about tuberculosis. They will closely associate with members of their families who are affected, and possibly don't know it, and then timidity won't let them be warned. People also drink milk unknowingly from a tubercular cow. They thoughtlessly drink from a public drinking cup, and thus the disease spreads every year and takes thousands of lives and billions of money. Tuberculosis can be cured with proper treatment, began in proper time, and its spread can be stopped, but not until people as a unit give it a few minutes serious thought occasionally. Stop and think.

Washington Shaft Country's Tribute to Her Great Son

The two great monuments in the United States, of the many hundreds that have been erected in all parts of our country, are the Bunker Hill monument, in Boston, dedicated in 1843, a shaft to commemorate the beginning of our fight for independence, and the Washington monument, at Washington, erected to the memory of him who had been most instrumental in bringing about the result.

For 30 years after Washington's death the project was every now and then suggested, but nothing definite happened until September, 1833, when the Washington National Monument society was formed, with Chief Justice John Marshall, then 73 years old, as president. It was not until three years later that advertisements were inserted inviting designs from American artists.

An effort was made to secure the funds by popular subscription and by 1847 $87,000 was in hand and preparation for construction was begun. Congress, by resolution, granted a site where the monument now stands and the cornerstone was laid on the Fourth of July, 1848, in the presence of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government, foreign ministers and officers and a vast concourse of citizens from all parts of the Union.

The work of erection progressed steadily until 1854, when the shaft had reached a height of 156 feet and had cost $300,000. The treasury of the society now being exhausted, a memorial was presented to congress asking it to take action in the matter. Politics in the government prevented a ready response and it was not until 1856 that the society was given a formal charter.

The Washington monument was finally finished in the winter of 1884-85, and it was decided to dedicate it upon the anniversary of the birth of the man to whom it had been erected. Consequently, on February 22, 1885, there were impressive ceremonies at the national capital, when the monument was turned over to the nation.

The formal presentation of the monument was made at the base of the grand obelisk, but owing to the raw, cold weather that existed the dedication ceremonies proper took place in the hall of the house of representatives.

Lesson in Honors to Founders of Nation

It is always fitting that Washington's birthday should be made a special occasion for impressing on all just what his achievements and those of his associates who established the government of the United States and founded a nation really meant. While there has never been any lack of enthusiasm over the man who was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen, it is well that the full significance of what clusters about the name and fame of Washington shall be set out beyond all peradventure.

It is not only the uninformed alien who fails to understand our debt to the past, so, despite the highly intelligent and intensive efforts of the public schools to deal with Washington as the great national hero, the extraordinary nature of the government of a people and by a people and for a people which his efforts set up can not be too emphatically described since we all tend to get rusty on his heroic facts, and altogether too many forget that blatant idealistic reformers the world over today are claiming as freshly discovered panaceas some of the simplest practices laid down by the forefathers in the Mayflower,

Washington's Inauguration as the First Chief Executive

George Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States April 30, 1789, in New York city, which at that time was the federal capital. During the ceremonies, the chancellor administered the oath with great deliberation and solemnity, after which Washington bowed down, seized the Bible, kissed it, and exclaimed with closed eyes and much devotion, "I swear, to help me God!" Thereupon the chancellor declared, "It is done," and turning to the crowd exclaimed, "Long live George Washington, President of the United States!" The last named declaration on the part of the chancellor was in violation of monarchical custom. The error of this practice was, however, soon exposed and abandoned, but at the time the crowd thought of nothing but the exciting solemnity of the scene, and many who demonstratively waved their hats were overcome by emotion to join in the hurrahs.

again in 1776, and finally in the Constitution of 1787. That the forefathers, with Washington and Jefferson and Lee in the lead in the constructive period of the Revolution, proved to be practical men, as well as idealists believing in certain great principles that lie at the base of human freedom, and established human liberty under conditions that protected each from the other, obliterating class distinctions, is not the least thing to their credit.

As pulpit and platform draw the lessons from what the past affords in the way of men and principles as exemplars for all time, it will be the part of wisdom if the simple, undisputed facts as to what this great experiment did set out to do and has accomplished be brought home to all. For after all, it is the overwhelming actualities of a free government maintained by a free people that gives the luster to the name of Washington as the father and founder and justifies all that the most extravagant eulogy may pronounce as to his claims to an affectionate immortality.

His Fondness for Children.
While Washington had no children of his own, he was blessed with many nephews and nieces, who, looking up to him as the head of the family, received many favors from his hand. His sister Betty, Mrs. Fielding Lewis, had several boys, Washington, when nineteen, standing godfather to the eldest. Two of her boys, Howell and Lawrence, made their home with their famous uncle at Mount Vernon at different times. Another nephew, Bushrod, a son of Washington's brother, John Augustine, was an especial favorite. His career as a lawyer was helped by Washington, who followed it with the greatest pride and interest, and frequently consulted him on legal matters. The Mount Vernon mansion, its library and private papers and 4,000 acres were left to this nephew.

Of his brother Samuel's children Washington helped educate the three boys, and gave their sister Harriet a home under his own roof for nine years.—H. A. Ogden in St. Nicholas.

Spirit That Won Freedom.
Let's try to learn, above everything else, how to fight, be beaten, fight again, and keep at it until at last we win.—George Washington.

Washington Monument in the City of Richmond, Virginia.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

"First in war and first in peace"—
"With love we speak of him again"
Whose praises with the years increase—
"And first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Remarkable Honors Paid Washington on His Inaugural Trip

At the time he was unanimously elected President, Washington was the idol of his country, and his name and name were known to the entire civilized world. His trip from his beautiful home on the Potomac was interrupted by receptions, fetes, addresses and dinners. Every person who was able to reach the roads along which he was to pass, or the cities selected as stations on his slow journey northward, joined the throngs that made his trip the most triumphal procession this continent had witnessed. To those thousands who lined the roads from Virginia to New York, the great, serious figure of the "Father of his Country" was the center of all their national hopes.

On April 9, 1789, both houses of congress met in New York city, at the time the capital, and elected George Washington President of the United States. No other name had been proposed. For Vice President there were eleven nominations. John Adams receiving the highest vote—thirty-four—was announced elected. Washington received sixty-nine votes. As soon as it could be arranged, Charles Thomson, secretary of congress, was dispatched to Mount Vernon to apprise General Washington of his election. Thomson, who had been secretary of the continental congress, reached Washington's home on April 14, between 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning. The master of Mount Vernon was making his usual tour of his farms and Mrs. Washington entertained the messenger of the congress.

Before sunrise on the morning of April 16 a messenger had come from Alexandria with an invitation to a public dinner there, and in his diary for the day Washington wrote: "About 10 o'clock I bade adieu to Mount Vernon, to private life, and to domestic felicity, and with a mind oppressed with more anxious and painful sensations than I have words to express, set out for New York, in company with Mr. Thomson and Colonel Humphreys, with the best disposition to render service to my country in obedience to its call, but with less hope of answering its expectations." Of Washington's reception in Philadelphia a chronicler of the day wrote:

Old City Tavern, Philadelphia.

"Thousands of freemen, whose hearts burned with patriotic fire, fell into the ranks almost every square we marched, until the column swelled beyond credibility itself and, having conducted the man of our hearts to the City Tavern; he was introduced to a very grand and plentiful banquet, which was prepared for him by the citizens. At dinner thirteen patriotic toasts were drunk."

The night of the 20th the President spent as the guest of Robert Morris, then one of the senators of Pennsylvania, an better known as the financial genius of the country, having founded its first bank and financed the cause of liberty at a time when the outlook was chilling.

The trip through New Jersey was continued through Princeton, New Brunswick and Elizabeth, where Washington boarded a barge and was rowed to New York. Flags and floral decorations marked each step; everywhere he went Washington heard shouts for a conqueror's ears. He was hailed as a deliverer and acclaimed as a deity, but throughout all the heart-felt adulation paid him by those who almost worshiped him, the greatness of the man was revealed by his artless modesty, his composure and his graceful, tactful acceptance of the honors paid him.

Washington arrived in Elizabeth on April 23, just a week from the day he set out from Mount Vernon. A "prophetic gale" was blowing when the party set out across Newark bay for New York. A barge, built for the purpose, and rowed by "twelve old captains of vessels who had retired from business," conveyed the President and party. The oarsmen wore white shirts adorned with ribbons. One after another vessels fell into line behind them and by the time they were nearing the Battery there was a small flotilla. Every ship and sloop bore a holiday appearance save one, a Spanish vessel. It was with some concern the committee noted its solemn aspect. They feared some discourtesy, but, as the barge approached, its captain gave a signal at which flags of all nations were burst into view, and from its battery a salute of thirteen guns was fired.

A large sloop joined the procession off Bedloe's Island, and as it neared the barge the party of ladies and gentlemen aboard her sang an "eloquent ode appropriate to the occasion and set to the music of 'God Save the King.'" The wharves from the Battery to Wall street ferry, where the landing was made, were filled with welcoming boats. Boudnot estimated their number as tens of thousands. The ferry stairs were carpeted and the railings covered with crimson hangings. The President, preceded by the committee, was received on the landing by Governor Clinton and some of the foremost citizens. The streets were so blocked with eager citizens that it was half an hour before the committee could fulfill its commission by escorting their eminent charge to the house prepared for his reception.

Ancestral Home in English County of "Hero of Two Worlds"

In the village of Sulgrave, Eng., in the heart of the Northamptonshire lanes, is still to be seen the manor house in which, until 1606, there lived the family of Laurence Washington, whose great-grandson, finding his way to Virginia in 1637, was to become the great-grandfather of George Washington, the first President of the United States. Carved in the corner of the stone lintel of this manor house is to be seen the Washington Stars and Stripes.

It was this great descendant's stroke for liberty that drew from the English statesman, Chatham, the whole-hearted declaration: "If I were an American as I am an Englishman, while a foreign troop was landed in my country, I never would lay down my arms—never, never." Chatham did not stand alone; with him being Pitt and Shelburne, all of whom saw that the threatened liberties of England could be saved in Washington's birthday.

Washington won for himself the title of "The Hero of Two Worlds," as a result of the victory of the British democrats who fought for more liberty under the rule of the king, made effective by Washington's successes. The title was bestowed upon him by Thomas Carlyle, who also nicknamed him "Scipio Americanus" and "Cromwell-Grandison," the latter title being given him because, like Cromwell, he fought to crush the pretense of a king.

The house, in Northamptonshire, England, was built before the domesday survey, and came into the possession of the Washington family in 1564. In 1914 the mansion, home of the ancestors of George Washington was bought by the British Peace Centenary committee in celebration of the one hundred years' peace between England and America. A committee of the Sulgrave society met in Manchester to raise an endowment fund for repairs and furniture. Toward this the Sulgrave Institute of America contributed $50,000; $25,000 was raised in London, and Manchester furnished the balance of $50,000. Among the subscriptions was $2,500 from the Stars and Stripes Women's club in Manchester, collected as a memorial to the American soldiers who died in the city.—Detroit News.

WASHINGTON.

Dust of the gray years cannot dim thy name.
Nor changes chill thy country's pride in thee;
Thou art as some bright fire that steadily burns high above the little crackling flame.
That lesser men may kindle, dreaming fame.
Is one with party's brief idolatry.
On the low altars of humanity
Glory is quenched by the first breath of blame.
While the log's heart glowed with a living heat.
The fabled Meleager knew not death,
But when it cooled his own must cease to beat—
He to the envious gods must yield his breath.
But children's children keep alive for thee
The brand their sires' love kindled reverently.
—Frances Beers in New York Sun.

Washington Resigning Command of the Army

December 23, 1783, George Washington resigned his commission as chief of the army, and retiring to the close of his military career was then sitting. At the time of the Philadelphia convention of the Philadelphia convention which framed the Constitution of the United States, Washington was chosen the first President of the United States, and on April 30, 1789, he was inaugurated in New York city. His term of office he was re-elected, and on March 4, 1797, he resigned office for the second time.

Washington Type of Highest Citizen

In the formal observance of the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, it is well to pause to ponder upon the character of the man whom the American people esteem with the greatest respect. It was in the hour of trial and in the dark national birth, as soldier statesman Washington stood by the leader of the people.

Putting aside all specialities of modern days, it can and should be borne in mind that he was surely have been for a sternness, for the highest type of citizenship, for a devotion to a principle, and for the broadest spread of education. He was favored or fostered a revolt against the established order, save by the legal and appointed means. He had against the tyranny of Britain. He had led the American colonists to a victorious independence, could never have sustained, and by the pale of law or empire weapons of sedition.

George Washington was the truest sense, true to his nation, true to the institutions been set up here in substitute the colonial administration, defended the sense of justice of Britons of that day. He was new government capable of chart, finding the way and sagaciously. He felt that the new government had been a revolt, it must be conducted in of universal acceptance by the of the principles that had been as its foundation.

There is no support for the of today in the fact that George Washington was a rebel against the King George. His example serve to justify sedition of the selfish class alignments set overturn that which has been through nearly a century as of painstaking, consistent ment based upon the principle general welfare and the of all the people.

His Real Birthday.

Although February 22 is the every state of the Union, George Washington's birthday, Washington was born February 11, 1732, and he observed February 11th as his birthday until he was 29 years of age.

The explanation of Washington's birthday, February 11, while day is celebrated on February 22, is the change of reckoning from old style to new style, which place when he was about 29 years of age. The explanation of the calendar to make it agree with calendars of other nations, some others being excepted.

Washington's Birthplace.
Every year congress grants the repair of fences and the up and maintaining the 13-acre plantation at Wakefield, Va. George Washington was born there.

There is no dwelling on but a monument marks the nativity of "The Father of our Country." Wakefield is 110 miles from Washington, and is not easily reached. It is a mile and a half from Potomac and pilgrims going there must also trudge overland to the old government wharf by the party carried away by ice and never repaired.

camels he led her into his mother's tent until they could be married. Only a real gentleman would have thought to place his sweetheart under his mother's care until after the wedding. This young man was the first gentleman we know of.

Would you know the horrors of a beleaguered city? Read the last ten verses of the 6th Chap. of Second Kings.

Are you interested in woman's patriotism, read the book of Esther and story of Deborah.

Everybody is fairly familiar with the sweet story of Ruth, Ruth's tender fidelity and love for her old poverty stricken mother-in-law is better known than some stories. It reverses the modern proverb that no man or woman can get on with his or her mother-in-law.

Somebody asks, "Are there nature stories in the Bible?" Yes, the Bible is crammed full of human nature stories, but in the commonly accepted use of the term "nature story"—meaning a story about the animal kingdom, I would mention the absurdly simple device which Jacob used to treble his wage of ring-streaked cattle. And Jonah and the whale is a nature story, pure and simple.

If you like the exalted thought of poetry you will of course read Job or the Psalms or perhaps Ecclesiastes, or Song of Solomon. And if you were ever interested in Poor Richard's Almanac and Ben's Franklin's wise sayings contained in it, you will be more than interested in Solomon's wise sayings in the Book of Proverbs. He is the wisest man who ever lived, you know—Poor Richard not excepted.

And these wonderful prophets—Isaiah, Jeremiah and all the rest. They were beacon lights and sentinels in a benighted world. Is. 28 and 53 will amply repay every minute you spend in reading. These prophets were a mighty race, and to this day our civilization bears their stamp.

You may or you may not call the great Moses the mightiest of the race of prophets. At any rate he was the forerunner. With his religious zeal, his splendid education, his executive ability, his arduous duties, his biography exceeds in interest that of Lincoln, Washington, Gladstone, Bismarck or any body else. But I pass over all these details, interesting as they are, and mention Moses as the great M. D.

Have you ever read his rules of health? Do you know they have never been improved upon? The Jews to this day follow those rules and in consequence, marvels of physique and good health. Having been trained in the physical culture of Dr. Moses, the early Israelite warriors were unsurpassed in muscle, nerve and brain by any men of any time, except, perhaps, the Japanese Samurai.

Added to all Moses' other qualifications, we have one more—the biggest—that of law giver. This was his real work—his immortal monument. I think you must know that all law of all civilized nations have the laws of Moses for a foundation. Think what this means—all the righteousness of the world condensed into such few words and given to a half barbarous people thousands and thousands of years ago and perfected by our lord two thousand years ago. As you read there must come a respect and awe for the mind that could devise such a law. You know it was more than human. It was Divine wisdom. But read the laws of Moses for yourself. They are God's laws.

There are so many other interesting Old Testament characters, both men and women, but I can't stop for all. The moving picture must move on and we come to the most finished orator of ancient times and perhaps of all times, Saul of Tarsus or Paul as he is commonly known. Would that I could speak to you "with the tongue of men and of angels," so I might give to you a glimpse of that matchless speaker, as he stood on Mars Hill and talked to the cynical Athenians. They were super-civilized, over educated, decadent. They believed in nothing and were superstitious about everything. But Paul understood his audience. Can you feel the silence that preceded that remarkable address and the questions with which Paul put forth his argument for the Living God, for salvation and for the resurrection of the dead? It was all so simple so powerful and so convincing. Sen. Beveridge says it is the shortest important speech ever made, except Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address.

If you want some good reading in the form of solid, sensible, beautiful ethics—philosophy that surpasses Emerson in charm and truthfulness, read Romans XII.

Now I approach the end of my story, and I have said little or nothing about our Savior. Words fail me here. I hesitate to handle this most sacred part. The gospels tell what He did, what He said, what He lived. Aside from His unique position as the Savior of the world His biography is the record of a perfect life, filled with good deeds, charity and justice. His wisdom in greater than that of Solomon; his forbearance greater than that of Moses; his patience greater than that of Job. If you have forgotten how He tempers justice with mercy do not fail to read the eighth chapter of St. John.

Sometimes the world and sometimes the church is prone to forget Christ's mercy in dealing with the sinner. In these times of sin and greed and graft the record of a perfect life cannot fail to be interesting. I have tried to be brief in all my paragraphs, but every Bible story in its own Bible language is shorter than I could possibly tell it. Have you ever thought how much the Bible can tell in so few words? And the Bible is the most quotable book in the world. It has more good quotations. In fact the Bible is the most wonderful book in the world with the most good reading in it.

Harvester Company Brands Story False

DURING the past month, reports have come to us that at farmers' meetings charges have been made, sometimes directly and sometimes indirectly, that this Company has adopted a policy of refusing to supply repair parts for old machines in order to compel the purchase of new ones. This statement is absolutely false. Such a policy has never been considered by this Company nor suggested to it.

Ordinarily we ignore such reports, because we have learned that any large company, no matter how fair and high principled, is subject at all times to unjust criticism. The facts are this Company has always recognized the importance of repair service and has used every effort to make IHC service the best. We believe we can truthfully say that the repair service furnished wherever this Company's goods are sold is equal if not superior to that furnished on any manufactured line.

We call attention to the fact that machinery "Fix-up Weeks," instead of being something new and originated by the farmers in 1921, as some seem to think, were really an outgrowth of the movement started by manufacturers and dealers' associations in connection with the Council of National Defense as a war conservation measure. Perhaps no other agency has done so much to promote "National Repair Weeks" as this Company.

The farmer needs machines which will be efficient and economical. If his old machines can be repaired so as to render efficient and economical service, he would be foolish to purchase new ones. Whether the farmer utilizes and repairs his old machines or buys new ones is a question for him to determine. But in making his decision, we give to every farmer who owns any IHC machines the assurance that a full stock of repair parts will always be provided by this Company.

Today, our repair stocks on the territory available for the farmers are 21 per cent greater than ever before at this time of the year. An average of a quarter million pounds of repairs are shipped from IHC factories for every working day in the year. Thirty million dollars' worth of repair parts are now ready, as insurance for the farmer when he needs this service.

In every International Harvester Works manufacturing orders call for repair parts first and even when furnishing them has meant cutting down production of new machines for which we had orders, repairs have always had preference. At every one of our 91 branch houses trained men are on duty to see that all orders are filled and shipped promptly. Thousands of dealers scattered everywhere with an assortment of repairs in stock are always ready and willing to render every assistance.

This service which this Company has rendered through the years to those who have purchased its machines has been a matter of great pride to the Company, and is the foundation of the cordial good-will existing between it and its customers.

We feel it is due the Company and those who have purchased its machines that we give the widest publicity to the fact that this service of repairs will be maintained and improved, and that any charges to the contrary are untrue.
