Key at White Deer, V. B. at Hazelton, Kansas, and the youngest son, W. D., at Perryton, Texas. The old people and the remainder of the boys live at or near Miami. The reunion had been planned for sometime and the two sisters came in about ten days ago, while the brother from Kansas came Friday and the one from Perryton came Saturday and all met at the parental home Sunday. After some hours were spent together, some pictures were made of the family of nine, also one group containing several of the grand and great grandchildren that were present, 30 in all. Then a five gallon drum of ice cream was opened and a number of the neighbors assisted in Then two songs were sung in memgrows more sweet and sacred as the El Dorados. years flit by. Blind and Deaf, She Plays Piano

With Helen Keller and Willetta Huggins.

Baking Angel Food and Writing on Typewriter Among Her Other Accomplishments-Masters Difficult Classical Music.

Olathe, Kan.-After 25 years in the dim world of those who are sightless, deaf and dumb, Miss Helen May Martin is finding her way out. She has chosen the least "reasonable" method of expression imaginable for one so afflicted. It is music.

Before a large audience in the Methodist church here, Miss Martin played what is probably the first piano recital in the history of the world to have been given by a person with peither sight nor hearing. It cannot now be said that she is without speech, for she articulates even unfamiliar names accurately and understandingly.

The intricacy of the method by which a person whose sensations are practically limited to those of heat and cold, pain and taste enters a whole new world is not comprehensible to the normal person. Mis: Martin might possibly have been taught to place her fingers on certain of the piano keys and press them down by note, but that would not explain her ability to grasp rhythm, nor whatever the sense is that tells her when she is about to make a mistake in time to avert it. She never has heard, and 'as never been able to recognize objects. For a few years after birth she was able to distinguish between light and darkness, but never more. For 20 years there has not even been that travesty on sight.

"Feels" Her Music.

Miss Martin is able to "feel" her music best by placing the ball of her foot against the bottom of her upright piano, her mother, Mrs. Helen May Martin, says.

At the church, however, she did not want to risk scarring the instrument she was using, so she got approximately the same result by holding her left foot under the "soft" pedal.

Gounod's "March Pontifical," the "Don Giovanni" minuet of Mozart, Morrison's familiar "Meditation." Lang's equally familiar "Flower Song," the first two movements of Beetho ven's "Moonlight" sonata, and Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day" were them knickerbockers, in place of skirts, knitted silk scarf supplies this need the numbers used. Flag Sunk in Battle in Berlin Museum

Berlin .- The flag of the German cruiser Scharnhorst, which was sunk in the battle of Falkland, has reached the Berlin Naval museum after a romantic journey. U. S. Crop Could Supply Cereal the form of animal food for human consumption. There certainly can be no greater economic problem than to prevent a good human food from being unnecessarily consumed by animals.

Wheat and Corn as Human Food. "During the prewar years 1909-13 over 80 per cent of the wheat crop of the United States, or approximately 470,000,000 bushels, were used in bread. Of corn, however, only 3 per cent of the crop, or approximately 85,-000,000 bushels, were ground into meal or flour suitable for bread purposes. It is thus seen that while this country's corn crop is over three and one-half times greater than its returned wheat crop, less than one-fifth as much of the corn as of the wheat is consumed directly as food.

"Each year the people of this country consume about fifty pounds of corn per capita as a human food. The Italians, on the other hand, eat about 50 per cent more than we do, or 78 Martin was a small girl, Miss Granger needed from 5 per cent of America's pounds per capita. Food Value High.

"Looking at corn flour, corn grits composition and food value, it may be therefore replace rice in the diet, and corn flour replace a portion of the wheat flour, without decreasing the value of the food one iota. In this country, broken rice has often been as much as 33 per cent more expensive than corn grits; at present wheat flour (clear grade) costs about twice as much as corn flour. Corn flour and corn grits are the cheapest cereal foods produced in this country and are available not only for home consumption, but for export.

"There is an encouraging feature in the probable effect of feeding corn grits to so many children of Europe, certain sections of Europe, there has for corn grits. Through the activities of the American relief administration about half a million children in Poland, 200,000 in Austria, 50,000 in Hungary, and now 3,000,000 in Russia, are being fed at least one meal a day containing either corn grits or rice as the cereal portion of the diet. Thus it may be seen that a tremendous propaganda for corn grits is being carried on by the American relief administration in feeding almost four million children. This should mean the elimination to a large extent of that prejudice against corn which has in the past characterized a portion of the population of Eu-

"I JUST COULDN'T"

STNOPSIS .- Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus Mac-Kenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their deter-mined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stran-ger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but prac-tically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do Mac-Kenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Peand they are mutually atacted, Polly's feeling being adora-on. A step in the hall closed the conversation for the time being, and a moment later Robert Percival joined them. In silence Mrs. Robertson studied his face. She was about to question him as to his health when the young man turned to Evelyr.

A lazy smile stole to Evelyn's lips. if I can," she responded. "Tell me what's on your mind, honey."

"Certainly; why, yes, indeed." interjected Mrs. Robertson. "You know, Bob, Eve and I will do anything we can for you!"

The expression of anxiety, which his face had worn since he had seen the last of Polly Hopkins, lifted a little.

"That's fine!" he exclaimed heartily. There's nothing like a fellow's own women folks, is there? And you're just as good to me as if I belonged to Mrs. Robertson bridled consciously, pleased with her nephew and pleased with herself.

"Why, Robert, dear," she returned, yap it to me." you do belong to us. God bless you, boy, you're my baby and Eve's little brother. Now tell us what's bothering

"It's Marc's row with the squatters! I can't get the poor devils out of my mind. Eve, can't you get him to leave the settlement people alone? I'd let them have some of my land, but it doesn't touch the lake, and they couldn't make a living on it."

Evelyn arose and crossed the room to the table. She had not expected this. Her promise to MacKenzie flashed into her mind!

"I don't like interfering with Marc's business, Bob," she demurred. "Besides, he wants to improve the property down there, and he can't while the fishermen stay on the shore!"

Gently, for Robert had always been like a younger brother to her, and she loved him dearly, Evelyn explained MacKenzie's plans and showed how impossible it was for her, under the circumstances, to interfere with them. Then she crossed to his side and bent over him.

"Robert, dear," she begged. "Forget about the squatters. They aren't anything special to you!" To head off an objection that she saw in his eyes, she hurried on: "They're poor and unfortunate. I know. I'm sorry for them. We all are: but you can't deny they're worthless and filthy, and worst of all, they haven't any right to be where they are. You won't let them come between you and Marc and me, will

Without giving the man a chance to answer, Mrs. Robertson interrupted: "Mercy, Eve, why of course he won't! Marc will soon be one of the family. People of our social standing don't wrangle over such cattle as the squatters." She turned smilingly to the young man and ended sweetly:

'You feel that way, don't you, Bob?" Disregarding both the lady and her question. Robert got up, his lips grim and his fine brow corrugated with lines. Evelyn and Marcus could do as they pleased; he would take his stand right there.

"Evelyn," he said slowly, "I should be sorry to have anything come between us. You've always been like a dear sister to me. I suppose it's natural and right for you to see this the way Marc does. You're engaged to him, but you can tell him for me I'm going to help the squatters any way and every way I can."

Too angry to listen to any more arguments, he pushed his chair to one side and left the room.

Mrs. Robertson looked daggers at get her breath, broke out:

"Now, Evelyn, see what a storm you've stirred up! Why didn't you use a little diplomacy? That was the least you could have done. You get Marc and Bob by the ears, and where'll you

"Oh! I don't know! I don't know!" moaned Evelyn. "Don't talk to me any more. I'm just about crazy. I'm going to bed! Good night!"

CHAPTER IX.

In spite of the weight of apprehension that pressed upon the Silent City, Polly's soul insisted on singing with gladness. She found opportunity, even in the midst of her busy hours, to live over and over the adventures of that evening in the Robertson house. When she remembered how Robert had held her in his arms, her happiness made countenance. "I'd give inches out of my hide to do that," she declared. "Go an, an'

Evelyn nodded. "Yes, every one in the settlement." A brilliant smile lit up Pollyop's

"Then sit down, dear," entreated Evelyn, "and don't stare at me so!"

To have saved her life, Pollyop could not drag her eyes away, but obediently she sat down on the floor. Evelyn fidgeted under the searching, honest gaze. "You know, Polly," she stammered, Awful Glad You Come to Me.' Polly Breathed Softly.

"how it is between Mr. MacKenzie and me. I can make him do anything I say. Oh, if I were free from Oscar Bennett!"

"Then you could marry Old Marc, huh?" Polly interposed with a bob of the chestnut curls, "an' boss him, I

"Something like that, Polly," Evelyn admitted. "That's why I've come to you. When I'm free, I can make Mr. MacKenzie let up on your people." Anxiously weighing every word, Polly's quick mind ran on ahead. "An' to do that," she threw in, "you got to get shut of Oscar! I den't blame you for wantin' to, but how be you goin' to work it, Miss Eve? I can't his. see no help for the squatters if your and-" "An' Oscar'll be goin' away some wheres else?" put in Polly, "Is that it? He'd take me away from Daddy Hopkins an' from-"

She caught herself just in time. She had it on the tip of her tongue to add course she did not.

"I couldn't ever do that," she ended. "Never, never!" The blue eyes looked into the brown eyes seriously. "Oh, yes, you can," insisted Miss Robertson. "Oscar's not the worst in the world, and he'll have a lot of money when he leaves Ithaca. He loves you, Pollyop, and he'd make life

A thought, il moment or two passed. while Poily Hopkins gazed at her hands locked together in her lap.

"You can't tell me nothin' about Oscar," she remarked at length. "I know the dirty duffer, an' I don't know nothin' good about him, you can bet your boots on that." She paused while through the open doorway her eyes were fixed upon a fleecy cloud, high up in the deep blue sky. "But that don't make no difference," she continued. "If I linked up with Oscar, would that pup, Old Marc, let the squatters stay in the Silent City?"

"Why, Polly, dear, of course he will! I talked with Oscar last night, and I'll speak to Mr. MacKenzie just as soon as you promise to do what Oscar wants."

Again the smiling face of Robert Percival cut across Polly Hopkins' mental vision, and through the silence of the shanty she head his voice-deep, low and like music. Then the evil face of Bennett wormed itself into her mind. Her lids drooped, and she shuddered.

"I couldn't do ft, ma'an," she wailed. "I just couldn't do that!"

Evelyn arose and stood over her. "You must, Polly," she asserted again. "Good heavens, It's the chance of your life! . Of course you'll do it, Polly Hopkins. Take a little time to think it over. I'll bring Oscar to see you some day when Mr. MacKenzle and my cousin Robert are away."

At the sound of that beloved name, Polly's head fell forward.

"Scoot now," she said, her curls hiding her face. "I'll think about it."

After Evelyn had gone, Polly mechanically resumed her sewing. It seemed that her heart's joy had wholly died within her. Patiently she tried to turn her attention to the work in her hands, but again and again she caught herself sitting with idle fingers.

Finally, worried by the conflicting emotions that were crowding in upon her, Polly flung herself into the open and ran swiftly along the ragged rocks to a little glen where many a time she had been before. Here she waded through the brook and sank down beside it. Mind-picture after mind-picture passed before her. She saw Daddy Hopkins happy with Jerry in the shanty, no longer afraid to fish and hunt. Then she visioned the Silent City, safe at last, and saved by her. Her head sank into her hands: and sobs racked her slender body.

But it was not long before she sat up and tossed back her curls. It seemed as if she had heard a voice. She turned her head slowly; and lo, Robert Percival was standing across the creek, smiling at her. "I followed you, Polly Hopkins," he called, and springing across the water, he added: "You ran so fast I lost you at the corner of the ragged rocks, and it's taken me all this time to find you." He sat down beside her and took her hands; but Polly could not look up at him. Embarrassed beyond utterance, she withdrew her fingers, letting them fall listlessly. Robert laughed. Her lovely face, first white then scarlet, only told him that she was glad to see him, and spoke of girlish innocence, dear to all men. "You went away so suddenly the other night," he ran on. "I didn't have a chance to say half I wanted to. I had something for you, too, but couldn't get away until today to bring

It down. He pulled a little roll of paper from his pocket and handed it to her. Wonderingly she opened it, and there was an exact reproduction of "The Greatest Mother in the World."

Polly was so overcome she continued silent.

"Don't you like it, little Pollyop?" queried Robert, putting his fingers under her chin and raising her face to

"Yep!" she whispered, blushing.

"Sure, sure I do. I love it." "Then why don't you smile?" he demanded; and as she shyly complied with his request, he ran on: "I've her daughter and as soon as she could | I'll help you and your people. Oscar talked with MacKenzie, and he's so set- Confound it! He makes me so hot I can scarcely listen to him. But, Polly dear, I'll do everything I can. I've got money and friends, as well as he has, and I'll use 'em too. Will you trust me, sweet?"

She bowed her head in grateful assent. How she thrilled at the touch of the warm, white hand!

"Look at me, dearle," he begged, and, when she did flash him a rosy glance, he caught her to him. "I love you, little girl," he whispered.

"An' love's the greatest thing in Ithaca, ain't it?" she murmured in trembling confusion. "Yes, yes," he breathed girl-oh, my littlest dear-" His voice trailed away, and his passionate kisses made Polly Hopkins forget everything but him. Primeval passion rose within her. She had found the name of Roberts Percival, but of her man, and nothing should take him from her.

"I'll keep the baby an' the shanty 'till you get back, Dad-dy darlin'."

HUGE NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS

When Federal-Aid System is Completed There Will Be 180,000 Miles of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) When the federal-aid highway system, provided for by the recently enacted federal highway act, is completed there will be a network of roads 180,000 miles in length covering the whole United States. The time required for the completion of the system will depend upon the rate at which the necessary federal funds are provided, say officials of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which administers federal-aid money.

An idea of what these roads will mean to the country can be gained by studying the effect of roads built in recent years and picturing what would happen should they be torn up and left in their former condition.

Should these roads go back to their former state and the motor vehicles which have come with them disappear there would be many changes. Many suburbanites would have to move into the city and there would be a decrease in value of suburban real estate. Cities would have trouble in getting their fresh milk and food supply. Much farm land would decrease in value and the effect on rural social life would be serious. In fact, motor vehicles and the roads on which to use them form such an important part of our economic and social life that it is hard to picture to the full extent what would happen.

Since all this dependence on highway transportation has come in a brief period of years and with the construction of 115,000 miles of surfaced highways, 60,000 of which are on the proposed federal-aid highway system, it can be understood what further changes will take place as the system grows to 180,000 miles in length and other roads are built branching out

PRICE OF LABOR FAVORABLE

Indications Are That There Will Be No Drawbacks Along That Line This Season.

Labor costs on federal-aid projects under construction this year indicate that there will be no drawback along this line in the building of roads during the coming season, according to the bureau of public roads. United States Department of Agriculture. The price for common labor ranged around 25 and 30 cents an hour in a great majority of the states, being somewhat lower in the Southern states and going up to nearly 50 cents an hour in the Pacific states. The prices of teams reported were in a great many instances as low as the 1914 level. It is probable, however, that there will be an increase when the farming season begins, as teams have always been cheaper in winter.

ROADS ARE BIG BLESSING

Preservation—Beauty—Economy Your pride in the ownership of a home is shown by its appearance. Without good paint to preserve it—to protect it against exposure to rain and weather, it will quickly lose its beauty and value— Little cracks will soon become big ones—rot and decay will occur in the unprotected pores—joints will loosen up, and—here, there and everywhere the "gnawing" tooth of neglect will be plainly seen.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are ex-tensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real mative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects uritroubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement nois, Iowa, Wis-Striking Development in Federal-State Ohio, Campaign for Live Stock Improvement. Kentucky, Kansas

> (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Noteworthy progress during the last three months in the federal-state campaign for live-stock improvement is reported by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The most striking development is the increasing tendency for purebred-sire users to acquire purebred female stock as well. In the period of January 1 to March 31 of this year, 970 persons filed with the department signed enrollment blanks, indorsed by county agents, showing the use of purebred sires exclusively for all classes of live stock kept. This number is an increase of 254 over the previous three months and is nearly three times as many as for the same period in 1921

Although the department has stressed chiefly the use of purebred sires, records of the "Better Sires, Better Stock" campaign show a gradual rise in the proportion of purebred female animals, including cattle, horses, swine, sheep, goats and poultry. The proportion of purebreds to the total of female animals kept now exceeds 35 per cent. A decline in the proportion of scrub females in herds headed by purbred sires accompanied the rise in purebreds.

The greatest activity during the quarter was in Ohio where 532 persons were enrolled-more than half of the total. Nebraska came second with 135 enrollments. Washington third with 126 and Kentucky fourth with 124. A new state, Michigan, entered There were two kinds of profiteers the campaign actively. This will keep the component parts of the set together, making a compact unit of the whole and also be advantageous in that it will hold the instruments while adjustments are being made.

The sketch shows how the instrunents are connected with each other and to the ground. The condenser is connected to one side of the tuner and to the crystal detector. The ground is connected to the other side of the phones and the condenser and the

VAGARIES OF VACUUM TUBES

Peculiar Actions That Always Astonish and Sometimes Frighten the Amateur Radioist.

Everybody who has had anything to do with vacuum tubes has from time to time had them do unexpected things and give results that at the moment seem beyond explanation,

The explanation of several characteristics of these miniature glants which are met with in daily operation is sure to prove of great interest to the amateur. In cases where the actions of the tube are not understood these peculiarities have sometimes frightened people.

One instance of a newborn fan's fright was brought to attention in a letter of inquiry. The instrument had just been set up and was being operated for the first time. The tubes had been firmly adjusted and were just at the spilling point and-over they went, giving vent to the most unearthly sounds. The embryo enthusiast who looked upon the audion tube as an electric light, thought it was going to explode. He jumped away from the instrument and out of the room, and dld not venture near it for several hours, and then only after reaching round the corner of the door with a long stick and pulling the battery switch off.

Similar instances have come to attention when bulbs generate vari-colored vapors in the vacuum chamber.

Moonshiners Using Radio.

Revenue officers seeking distillers of the far-famed and hardhitting "white lightnin'," in the mountains of Kentucky say that many raids made in the last few months have proven unsuccessful, due to the adoption of radiophone as a means of communication among the moonshiners.

TIPS TO THE RADIOIST

Fired .22 caliber rifle shells make good switch points for tuning coils and receiving trans-

A single wire aerial 100 to 150 feet long is sufficient for local and long distance reception of broadcasting stations.

Do not string aerials across the street or across electric wires. Keep antenna wires off electric light and telephone Stranded copper or solid copper wire should be used. Phosphor bronze wire if obtainable is stronger but not superior to copper.

Good contact with a piece of mineral like galena can be had by wrapping it in tinfoil. Of course, the top of the crystal is left exposed.

The brass ends of large cartridge shells make splendld crystal detector cups. They should be cleaned out thoroughly before they are used. The winding of cardboard tubes from oatmeal boxes may be improved greatly if the tube is first heated in an oven for about 15 minutes to take out the moisture and then wound; or better still shellac it while it is still warm and leave it to soak in. In winding tuning coils with bare wire a thread should be wound on with the wire. This will separate each turn. When the coll is finished the thread can be taken off. Shellac should be applied immediately. When the shellac is dry the copper wire will hold its place.
