

Ed T. Cox Sides With Charley Prestige In Location of Old Historic Landmark

Location of the Schmick schoolhouse as advanced by Charles M. Prestidge of Gorman Rt. 3 in a recent letter to this paper is agreed on by Ed T. Cox of Eastland, who writes:

"In an article published in your paper some time ago, I stated that Schmick school house, the place where the first district court in Eastland county was held, was located between Mansker's Lake and the Leon River. In a subsequent issue Charley Prestidge challenged this statement of mine and stated that the schoolhouse mentioned, and the only schoolhouse ever known as Schmick's schoolhouse, was east of the lake and south of Jim Hart's residence.

"I had been led to believe that the location was where I stated, but when I read Mr. Prestidge's letter I was convinced that I was wrong and took the opportunity to consult those who were residents of the county at that time and acquainted with the facts and find them unanimous in their state-ments that it stood where Mr. Prestidge said it would.

"I had been used as a schoolhouse, courthouse, lodge hall, etc., for some years that the citizens of the community decided to divide and establish two schools. One of the houses was built near the cemetery known as Alameda cemetery, and is the one which I erroneously named as Schmick school house, and the other was built near Young Springs.

"Among the parties consulted in connection with this matter were Bud Jones who lived in that community for many years and C. C. High who came to Eastland county before its organization and was a citizen of this county for a long time but now makes his home about one and one-half miles north of Gordon, Texas. Mr. High is in good health considering his 86 years and always enjoys meeting his old-time friends.

"In writing articles for publication, I use what I think is the best information at hand and am glad to be corrected when I am wrong. I have delayed this article, thinking that probably someone else would have something to say about this matter in the columns of your paper and that something else of interest might be brought out.

"I believe that with a little encouragement, an interesting column might be maintained in your paper in connection with the early history of this part of the country and especially relative to Eastland county.

"Thanking you for the privilege of using the paper in discussing matters which I hope and believe interest many of your readers, I am, yours,
(Signed) "ED T. COX."

Date For Trial In Death of Former Eastland Man Set

BROWNWOOD, March 14.—Trial of J. W. Stover, indicted by a district court grand jury this week for murder in connection with the automobile death of Frank Davis, former Eastland resident, near here last year, has been set for June 15.

Allen D. Dabney of Eastland, special prosecutor in the case, has been notified of the setting.

TWO WELLS TO BE DRILLED IN THE AREA SOON

John L. Tracy, representative of the Homestead Oil and Gas Company of Toronto, Canada, arrived in Ranger Monday to take charge of drilling activities of the company in this section.

Tracy said Tuesday morning that the company is to begin work on two test wells east of Ranger immediately, and machinery and tools are being moved. It is expected that the 1,400-foot test will be spudded in by Thursday and the 3,100 to 3,500-foot test spudded by next week, possibly by Tuesday.

The two tests are to be put down on the old Thomas ranch, on the east Strawn road, about 10 miles east of Ranger. The tract is now controlled by North Texas Lands, Inc. S. J. Stephenson of Strawn is the drilling contractor.

The deeper test is to be located on the original Irwin survey, while the shallow test is to be located on Block 94. Both are on the eastern portion of the old Thomas ranch, east of Ranger.

Tracy, while a native of New York state, has worked 16 years in the oil fields of Texas and has been trying to get his company to drill in this vicinity for some time. For the past four years he has been located in New York. He said he felt like he was coming home when he returned to Texas as he has worked in the Reagan field, near San Angelo, in North Texas, around Breckenridge and has been in Ranger many times before. He is now living at 522 Pine street.

In speaking of the drilling activities of the company he said that though it was a Canadian company it has a Texas charter and is much interested in Texas oil activities. The transaction for drilling the two wells was completed after only two hours of negotiations to complete the deal.

He also said that there was more money in Canada now for all kinds of business activities and that Canadians were particularly interested in Texas oil development. He has been in this locality for a week, but came to Ranger from Strawn, where he made his headquarters for a time, only this week.

Farmers will also be considered ineligible if they have an application pending with the Resettlement Administration, have received assistance from that organization this year or are indebted to the Resettlement Administration for an unpaid loan.

As in the past, the security for an emergency crop loan will consist of a first lien on the crop financed. Landlord or others having an interest in the crop to be financed will be required to waive their claim in favor of a lien to the governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the emergency crop loan is repaid.

LEGIIONNAIRES AND THE STORY OF THEIR WORLD WAR SERVICE

OTIS R. BRADY
 Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of war biographies being written by R. H. Peacock, commander of the American Legion Post of Ranger, covering the experiences of members of the local post. The biography of another veteran will appear in next Sunday's issue.

Texas. Never a visit to his bedside but that a smile, a cheery word or an optimistic note is forthcoming from this veteran of the Vosges, St. Mihiel, the Argonne, and Verdun. In peace, just as in war, he still fights, with the determination and enthusiasm of youth itself, the seemingly never-ending battle. Day in and day out, week in and week out, month in and month out, he continues the fight, lying patiently but hopefully, looking forward with a hope of getting well from a deep seated affliction of rheumatism and arthritis, which developed, according to the doctors, after his body had become weakened from long hard marches under heavy pack and in the muck and mire of the trenches in France. He has been bed-fast since Aug. 2, 1933, but it is the frank opinion of the writer that the undefeatable courage and optimistic attitude of this soldier will be the determining factor that will again see him on his feet and mingling once more with his great host of friends.

Otis R. Brady was born on Sept. 6, 1890, in the city of Livingston, Ill., where, as he smilingly remarked, "they catch the mail on the hook." The teachings of a wonderful mother, and of a splendid father—a brick mason and plasterer by trade—left its indelible stamp upon the youth. But it was when only 11 years of age, the day following the murder of President McKinley on Sept. 6, 1901, that a certain experience of young Brady's left with him a conviction that no doubt shaped his future. His teacher, a Mrs. Dement, whom he loved and appreciated, made such a wonderfully patriotic address eulogizing the martyred president and his great American qualities of loyalty and citizenship as opposed to radicalism and alienism, that these principles of freedom and justice became a part and parcel of this young man.

After finishing school, Brady went first to Pontiac, Ill., where he worked in a shoe factory, and later became an apprentice in his uncle's barber shop. He further pursued his adopted vocation of barbering in the cities of Independence, Kansas City, and Oak Grove, Mo.

But came the declaration of war against Germany in April, 1917. Scarcely had Uncle Sam begun to take inventory, or about six weeks after the declaration of war, when Brady, together with a number of his boyhood friends, enlisted on May 25, 1917, in Battery C, 129th Field Artillery, Missouri National Guard. The battery had just returned from the border, so it was only the natural thing that Brady and his friends should enter the service with those whom they knew in civilian life.

Battery C was federalized on Aug. 5, 1917, and shortly thereafter they departed for Camp Doniphan, near Fort Sill, Okla. From Oct. 26 to following May 10, 1918, army life at Camp Doniphan was very pleasant and uneventful, stated Brady. "I will always remember, however," he said in reminiscing, "those terrible dirt and sand storms. One day Kansas was blown in review, and a return engagement from Texas the next."

Soon, however, the outfit entrained for Camp Mills, and after a few days embarked about May 20, on an old English boat, the Saxonia for an unknown destination. Seventeen days on the water and one U-boat scare when about 100 miles out from Tilbury Docks, London, England. "The destroyer escort," said Brady, "had just contacted the convoy, when one of the boats, with the aid of an observation balloon, sighted the German submarine. The signal was for all of the ships to angle to the left. The destroyer then gave chase to the submarine, at the same time laying down a smoke screen for convoy protection. It dropped a number of depth bombs, and the rumor was spread to the effect that the U-boat had been sunk."

From all accounts, the meals, commonly known among the doughboys as "chow," was not so inviting during the trip across. Such delicacies as stewed jack-rabbit and other English dishes, according to Brady, were not so "hot." So naturally, these American doughboys were glad to land and stretch a bit in the great city of London. Thence entraining for Westminster, and after two or three days to Southampton, and immediately thereafter embarking on the steamship Viper, landing at La Harve in France on June 8, 1918.

History was shortly to unfold itself to Battery "C" and Private Brady. Marching first to an English rest camp; thence to the French village of Andard where the outfit first received its famous "French Seventy-Fives," together with some horses. "We were the first American troops in this section of France," said Brady, "the boys were given a royal welcome, and everything was thrown wide open for the American Soldier." Shortly thereafter, on June 6, the battery marched to Brain, later to a chateau near Trales; and thence to Guer, and Saulzures. A three days rest, and then again a march into German territory, known as the historical Alsace Lorraine country. Many further weary hours of marching brought Private Brady and his battery across the Vosges mountains.

It was on the night of Aug. 29 that the battery had taken up its position in the mountains in order to go into action. "It was a very hard night," said Brady. "The Germans were shelling our positions incessantly, but we returned the compliment in a barrage of gas shells which we sent over into their lines. And it was necessary that all of our movements should be done under cover of darkness. No lights could be used. That night we returned to our old position, and I will always remember it as the darkest on record, with a constant downpour of rain. As we wound around those strange mountain roads, we did not know at what minute we would veer too far to the right or left and be dashed to the bottom of a precipice. And believe me, that was an experience that tried the mettle in all of our boys."

But Battery C was soon to pass on from its scene of operations in the Vosges Mountains, marching thence past its rear echelon at Kruth, on to Vagney, Remiremont, and from there the outfit actually got a ride and entrained for Bayou, arriving at about 2:30 a. m. in a downpour of rain. Unloading, the boys began another hike. In the grey dawn, they could see the reserve trenches of the French along the road to their left and to their right. Upon the approach of daylight, the battery took shelter in a small ravine, putting the guns and caissons under shelter, preparing to rest for the day. About noon, however, a large German plane running the gauntlet of the Allied anti-aircraft guns headed directly toward the spot where Private Brady and several of his buddies were, and was met by a French scouting plane. "A battle ensued," said Brady, as his countenance seemed to brighten at the keen recollection of the incident. "The French pilot, in a Spad machine, looped the loop several times and his plane becoming disabled fell, nose down, about 300 meters away; the German, being disabled, landed about three kilometers distant and was captured. It seemed that about a thousand doughboys came out from nowhere and swarmed around the German plane. The French plane had become badly wrecked, the pilot being killed."

"The French pilot," related Brady, "was eating his noon day meal in his bunk not far from where Battery C was located, when the German appeared, and without even putting on his shirt and some of his other wearing apparel which he had just removed for convenience, he jumped into his plane and engaged in the mortal combat."

But the outfit was to move again, and again it was the tramp, tramp, tramp of marching feet that bespoke of more strain and hardships for Brady and his buddies. They passed through Coyvillers, where they were billeted in barns; later through Nancy, where they were bivouaced in the woods nearby; thence through torrents of rain and mud shoe deep along a high ridge road. Here the outfit witnessed one of the greatest artillery duels the world had ever known; to their right and front the horizon was lighted up as though it were an electrical display. It was the great St. Mihiel drive. But in a few days it was again the march for Battery "C." The hike of September 15 proved to be the longest and hardest of all that Brady's outfit had thus far experienced. The horses were dying from exhaustion and exposure, feed was scarce and the roads were heavy. Carcasses of dead horses lined the roadside, and the men, carrying heavy packs, were footsore and weary. But further hikes brought them to Gery, and finally to their position on Hill 290 in the Argonne. "It was here," said Brady, "that our outfit experienced its first German barrage on the morning of September 25th, and it was here that Battery "C" was selected to accompany the infantry in their advance."

The battle of the Argonne was on, and here the much heralded "Hindenburg Line" of the Imperial German army met its Waterloo.

"At 1 A. M. of the 26th," said Brady, "the Allies began the great drive. In the far distance the horizon had the appearance of a severe electrical storm. Our guns were in action everywhere. The land was rolling in our sector, and it seemed as though the very hills opened up and commenced to belch fire. Hell had certainly broken loose and the greatest offensive the world had ever heard of was in progress."

But for Battery "C" it was next Bourneuilles, then Cheppy, then Charpeny. After having taken cover in some old abandoned German trenches in an old orchard near the latter village, the battery immediately went into action.

"Here Private Selmo Fulton, a doughboy only 17 and the youngest in the battery, did himself and his outfit proud," recounted Brady. "For after seeing his gun crew and comrades all either killed or wounded, and himself knocked down by the concussion of a shell, Private Fulton began to load and fire the piece single handed, and continued until a new gun crew was formed to man the gun. He was later decorated," said Brady, "and believe me, I was just as proud of that boy as if it had been myself."

Another instance that Mr. Brady will long remember occurred on that same night when the outfit was being heavily shelled with high explosive and mustard gas projectiles. Private Brady on this occasion was operating the field telephone. Harold Welch, a buddy, and one of a gun crew, came up and said, "You bald headed ———, come here and let me show you something." He thereupon took Brady to where a German 77 dud (unspent shell) had fallen to within twelve inches of a trench where were located about nine men. Said Welch, "With God on one side and the U. S. on the other, how can we lose?"

From the position of the battery near Ft. Rossier in the Woivre sector of the world's famous Verdun front, Private Brady was transferred to forward observation duty as communications man and expert telephone operator. "Our observation post was located in full view of the enemy on the side of a mountain, but well camouflaged" commented Brady. "We worked two hours on and eight off. We used what was known as the scissorscope in observation, relaying the information regularly back to the artillery. On one occasion, we made an observation and reading on a large German gun about 15 kilos (12 miles) away, just as the gun belched forth its fire."

It was on or about October 3, as Mr. Brady recalls it, when his battery was relieved in the Argonne, that he was poisoned either from gas or food, and was sick for about thirty days. Due no doubt to the hardships of the campaign, and his corresponding decrease in bodily resistance, he lost in weight during that time from 160 to 125 pounds, and according to his own and the opinion of the doctors, his present physical condition is traceable to having been developed out of those days in France.

But came the armistice that ended the greatest of all wars. "At 11 A. M. on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918," said Mr. Brady, "the cessation of firing after all of the noise of the war was the stillest 'still' of my entire career. It appeared to me a veritable deathly silence."

"And as for cooties," he further smilingly remarked, "they did not bother me after the Armistice because then I actually changed clothes occasionally."

Embarking at Brest, France on Easter Sunday in April, 1919—11 days on the water—good ship—good "cats." Battery C and its veterans landed in New York; back to Camp Mills for several days; a well-earned leave to take in the sights of New York; thence to Camp Funston and a discharge for Brady and his outfit on May 6, 1919. Nearly two years of soldiering for his country, and again with a spent and weakened body back to loved ones.

The wild stories of the fabulous wealth and the liquid gold of the Ranger oil fields lured Otis further west. He reached Ranger August 6, 1919, and went to work as a barber at the present Woolworth location where hung the slogan, "Where the Live Ones Long to Linger."

Later Mr. Brady was connected with the Southland Barber Shop, and still later as manager of the Texas Barber Shop on Austin street.

But the ravages of the Great War and those long hard marches in the muck and mire of France began to take its toll. On August 2, 1933, this veteran of the Vosges, of St. Mihiel, of the Argonne, and of Verdun, was ordered to bed by his physicians where he has remained to the present. His courage and determination to walk again among his friends and buddies has carried him to Hot Springs, Ark., to Dr. Locke at Williamsburg, Ont., Canada; to Mineral Wells and Marlin, Texas, and other places in seeking to regain that most precious of all jewels—his health.

Prior to his confinement, Mr. Brady was very active in the worthwhile things of his community. And it goes without saying that he was a part and parcel of the organization which now honors and respects him. Partially through his untiring efforts, money was raised to finance the remodeling of the present Ranger Legion home. He was also later honored by being appointed as secretary of the Texas State Elks who fights, in peace as in war, with the First Methodist church of Ranger. Mr. Brady's family consists of his mother, Mrs. Carrie E. Brady, and one sister, Mrs. J. D. McLister. At this writing he has gone to the city of Marlin, Texas, from where he hopes and his legion of friends trust he may shortly return much improved and on the road to complete recovery.

Concluding, and expressing the sentiment of his host of friends and buddies, the toast might well be expressed, "To a real soldier—who fights, in peace as in war, with his face to the front, with a smile, and cheery word; full of ambition and hope—may health and happiness be his."

Hunger March On Washington Loop

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Plans for a "hunger march" on Washington by 3,000 to 5,000 jobless on April 11 were announced today by Herbert Benjamin, national secretary of the National Unemployment Council.

Benjamin charged in a statement the march was due "to the fact the Roosevelt administration is systematically and ruthlessly liquidating all federal relief activities."

Plans were announced as congress awaited the president's request for funds for the next year's relief needs. The march will be in the nature of a protest, Benjamin said.

MAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
 Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
 The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just clogs in the bowels. Gas builds up in your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is out of order and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks gray.
 Laxatives are only makeshifts. A new bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel 'up and up'. Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 50c.

NO INSECT CAN FACE P. D. AND LIVE!

1,000,000 PAMPERED FLIES die every year to prove it!

Two cans of insecticide bearing the same label often vary in strength—one may kill while the other only dopes. But not so with Sinclair P. D. This insecticide is subjected to the only test which proves absolutely that every drop has power to kill flies, mosquitoes, moths, bedbugs, cockroaches, ants and fleas. Every batch of P. D. that leaves the factory has killed 1,000 flies under conditions more severe than those in your own home. Only flies 5 days old are used in these tests because flies at this age have more resistance than any other household insect. P. D. is stainless, harmless to humans or animals and sweet with the clean odor of cedar. Ask for Sinclair P. D.

DON'T you love the way rhubarb looks, all pink and green and tempting? Some people claim it's acid-forming but that's nonsense. The leaves contain some oxalic acid and should not be used, but they have such a small amount that after cooking the oxalic content is nil.

Aside from its pleasantly tart flavor which naturally stimulates the appetite, rhubarb is a good source of important food elements. It has phosphorus, that constituent so necessary for strong teeth and sound bones, and the essential vitamin C.

Be careful not to over-cook. Vitamin C is destroyed if subjected to too great heat for too long a time and as little water as possible should be used because the rhubarb is very juicy.

Add Sugar After Cooking

When you make sauce, be sure not to add the sugar until the plant is tender. Not long ago a housewife said it took so much sugar to make the sauce sweet enough for her family to eat that she couldn't afford to use the plant. I found that she was cooking the sugar with the sauce. Add sugar just before taking off the fire. Then let come to the boiling point and remove at once. This makes a deliciously sweet and delicately flavored sauce.

The first rhubarb usually has a very tender skin and if well washed need not be peeled. As the season advances the skin grows tough and stringy and should be removed.

Rhubarb is ideal with fish-menus and when made into a hearty dessert does much to bring up the calory count of a meal.

Rhubarb up-side-down cake is one of our favorite desserts with fish or pork in the spring.

Rhubarb Up-Side-Down Cake

One pound rhubarb, 2 table-spoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup hot water, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Wash rhubarb and peel if necessary. Cut in inch lengths. Melt butter in spider and add rhubarb. Keep warm while preparing batter. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add half the sugar, beating. Beat in hot water and remaining sugar. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to first mixture. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Add vanilla and pour over rhubarb. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and lightly flavored with vanilla. Sprinkle rhubarb with sugar when cake is turned up-side-down on a serving plate.

Students Present a Program for Lions

P. D. Hatley had charge of the Lions Club program today and presented a group of Hodges Oak Park students in musical selections and readings.

Dorothy Jean Bruce was presented in a piano solo, after which 11 girls gave declamations on Texas and sang a song, "Cautiful Texas." Those taking part were Marie Arrington, Helen Gholson, Barbara Ann Buchan, June Smith, Chloë Harris, Dorothy Christian, Bobby Branton, Milaven Balch, Hazel Harris, and Maulea Fas Turner, with Francine Hatley at the piano.

It was voted to hold a joint meeting with the Rotary Club on Tuesday, April 7, to welcome a delegation from Houston, who will stop off for lunch.

Jake Ralston was elected to membership in the club. Lee Newton, a charter member of the club, was a visitor.

R. V. Galloway, leader of a side in the membership contest, relinquished his position, with Floyd Killingsworth being appointed to take his place, and C. J. Moore being named lieutenant.

All Churches Are Cooperating In a Big Revival Here

A few general announcements about our co-operative revival: It starts Sunday night, and it will continue each night through April 5. All the night services will be held at the Recreation Building, and unless otherwise announced will begin at 7:15 each evening.

We have the first service Sunday night. All of our congregations, and any others who may wish to attend, will meet at the Recreation Building. We will start the service at 7:15. Be on time.

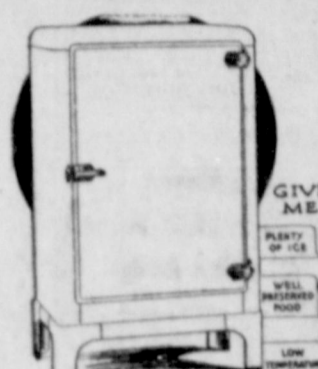

The young people will meet in their respective places for their usual Sunday evening programs. Then all go to the central place of meeting for preaching.

Great plans are being made for the music. Both pianos have been put in the proper pitch for the use of instruments. The orchestra is well provided for. All the singers from all the churches and all those who may not belong to any church, are wanted in the choir. The music will be a special feature of the meeting.

All Dogs Must Be Vaccinated Again Before Licensing

Many people who had their dogs vaccinated for rabies last year are under the impression that it immunized their dogs for the remainder of their lives, it was pointed out today by R. A. Jamison, city secretary.

As a matter of fact the city ordinance requires that dogs be vaccinated each year and those that were vaccinated in May of last year must be vaccinated again this year. It has been found that the serum lasts for only one year and in order to prevent the spread of rabies the vaccination receipt must be shown before a license can be obtained.

Many who do not understand this have applied for licenses for their dogs without first obtaining a receipt from a veterinary showing that the dog has been vaccinated this year, and in that case licenses cannot be issued, it was pointed out.

Snodgrass, secretary, read the minutes and called the roll. Members responded to roll call by naming a Texas governor and the date of administration. During the business session it was voted to buy for the club library a copy of the Sixth District Anthology of Poems by club women of the Sixth District, T. F. W. C. The "21" Study Club will be represented in the book by poems written by Mrs. W. H. Davis. The program was led by Mrs. W. C. Mrs. Clarence Ragland gave a splendid paper on "Improved Communication in Texas since 1866." As substitute for Mrs. Mandenhall, who was ill, Mrs. C. W. Others who had special assignments were Mrs. C. O. Bragg and Mrs. Preston Sparks, Mrs. E. M. Daily, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Bruce, and Mrs. Whitworth took part in the discussions.

Federal Contracts For Kelvinators Have Been Let

Government contracts for the installation of 1,278 new 1936 Kelvinator electric refrigerators in two housing projects of the Federal Public Works Administration, Division of Housing, at Atlanta, Ga., have been awarded to Kelvinator Corporation. It was announced today by Floyd Killingsworth, of Killingsworth, Cox & Co., local Kelvinator dealers, who has received official word of the contract from the Detroit headquarters of the corporation.

"The contracts call for the installation of the new 1936 Kelvinators, Model K-4-36, having a net cubic foot storage capacity of 4.15 cubic feet," Mr. Killingsworth said. "Six hundred and three units are for the Techwood project and 675 for the University project.

"Awarding of the government contracts to Kelvinator was made only after exhaustive tests on electric refrigerators for the home under government supervision and according to government specifications. Six other manufacturers competed for the contract, but the Kelvinators more nearly met the tests than those of any other manufacturer.

"Particular attention was paid in the tests," Mr. Killingsworth stated the report from Detroit said, "to maintenance of safe food preservation temperatures, consumption of electric current, operation of the condensing unit and overall performance. Other factors required were proper construction of the cabinet, welded steel construction of the food compartment liner, sufficient insula-

Wrong Prices Put In J. C. Penney Ad

In the J. C. Penney advertisement, which was run in Thursday Daily Times, two dresses were transposed and a wrong picture of a dress was used.

Percale, which was advertised for 45 cents a yard, should have been advertised for 10 cents a yard and the dress, which was listed at 10 cents a yard, should have been priced at 45 cents.

In picking out the cuts to run in the advertisement the wrong dress picture was selected, and street dresses were advertised at 37 cents each, when it should have been wash dresses at that price.

Counterfeiters recently were discovered in San Quentin, but to date no prisoners have walked into the warden's office and announced a stickup.

100 Years Pass For Yale "Lit"

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—The oldest student publication, which also is the oldest monthly magazine in America, the Yale Literary Magazine, is celebrating its 100th anniversary. The Sterling Memorial Library at Yale has arranged a special exhibition in the Yale Memorabilia Room of the undergraduate contributions made to the magazine by former editors and contributors who have since become famous. Inaugurated in 1936, the "Lit" has seen many rival publications on the campus blaze and as quickly fade into obscurity. None, however has overshadowed this magazine which has been the guardian of Yale traditions for a century.

The magazine has been published continuously, even though its editors left college to fight in the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, and the World War. The centennial issue of the "Lit" to be published shortly contains new contributions written especially for the number by former editors and contributors, among them Sinclair Lewis, Stephen St. Vincent Benet, Thornton Wilder, Philip Barry, and William Lyon Phelps.

Ford Dealers Announce R&G Cars & Trucks

new automotive quality for the Used Car buyer

NEVER before has there been assured to used car buyers as definite protection as is now offered by Ford Dealers in R&G cars and trucks.

R&G means RENEWED and GUARANTEED—RENEWED to meet the definite specifications shown on the R&G tag, and GUARANTEED, in writing, by your Ford Dealer.

The R&G specifications cover every important detail. Any car or truck meeting these specifications is an outstanding value. Yet the R&G car or truck of your choice will cost you no more than an ordinary "used car."

Backing these specifications is the written, money-back guarantee of your Ford Dealer.

MECHANICAL GUARANTEE
"We agree to correct at our expense any condition in this car or truck which is not in accordance with the above specifications, provided that we are notified by the purchaser of this condition within ten days from this date, and further provided that such condition is not the result of accident, neglect, or abuse of the car or truck after delivery to the customer, and that the car or truck has not been repaired or altered outside of our shop during the guarantee period."

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
"We further agree that we will refund such part of the purchase price of the car or truck as has been paid by the purchaser, including any used car or truck applied as part payment or, at our option, the allowance price thereof in cash, thereby canceling the sale if the purchaser so requests; provided that this request is made by the purchaser at or before 6 o'clock on, 19, and the car or truck is then returned to us in the same condition as when delivered."

ACE MYSTERY CAST SEEN IN "GARDEN MURDER CASE"

Philo Vance falls in love! Right in the middle of one of the most perplexing murder mysteries of his career, with three crimes waiting to be explained, the scientific sleuth has a severe heart attack from just about the snappiest, classiest, smartest bit of femininity that ever strolled down Fifth Avenue.

That's the big news of "The Garden Murder Case," newest of S. S. Van Dine's phenomenal best-sellers—that and the fact that Edmund Lowe portrays Philo Vance, with bob-haired, sleekly-gowned Virginia Bruce as the society girl who gives him palpitation of the heart.

The picture opens Saturday at the Arcadia Theatre.

With them is a noteworthy cast, for around this latest and finest of the Van Dine stories Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has built an early-season smash for 1936. Lucien Hubbard and Ned Marin are the producers. Edwin L. Marin is the director. The screen play is by Hertram Millhauser.

Nat Pendleton is the amusing Sergeant Heath. Gene Lockhart is Hamble, egotistical millionaire with a yen for fast horses and pretty women, or vice versa. Miss Bruce is his niece, and there's no love lost between them.

H. B. Warner is Maor Fenwicke-Ralston, late of His Majesty's service, now visiting Hamble. Frieda Inescort is Mrs. Madge Fenwicke-Ralston, thirty-ish and receptive to romance. Jessie Ralph is the cantankerous old mother of Hamble and Benita Hume is the trainer's nurse, Beeton, who tries to care for her.

Three mysterious deaths occur in this group and Philo Vance suspects murder. How he proves his case is a dramatic plot full of thrills and romance.

Even the supporting cast is rich with quality. Etienne Girardot becomes Dr. Doremus, the autopsy surgeon. Kent Smith is a proper young man who thinks he's in love with Miss Bruce, but disappears when she gets in a jam. Douglas Walton, Grant Mitchell, Henry B. Walthall and Charles Trowbridge fill other roles.

Gospel Center to Have Service Sun.

Sunday service for Gospel Center: Rev. J. A. Lovell, pastor of Gospel Center, has planned a ticket day to be held Sunday at the church. Members are asked to bring a visitor or later members, which will be their admittance to the service.

Beginning at 10 o'clock, Bible study for all classes are to be opened. Preaching will be held at the 11 o'clock hour, followed with basket dinner. Special singers are to be featured at this service, namely, the Cole family of Strawn, and Corbell sisters of DeLeon. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Rev. Lovell will preach, taking as his subject, "Where Are the Dead?" The usual prayer service at 7:15 o'clock, and preaching at 8. Families will be grouped together and Rev. Lovell's topic will be "Family Altar Service." Members and visitors in Ranger and other towns are invited.

ATHENS, Texas, March 17.—District Judge Ben Dent advised Sheriff Jess Sweeten that he would be unable to hold a special term of court to consider the case of George Patton, farmer, charged with the murder of four members of the J. W. McGhee family.

Sweeten had requested the court to summon the grand jury in a special session to consider an indictment against Patton, taken yesterday to jail in Dallas.

Day of "Used Car" Gone For All Ford Dealers Under Plan

"With Ford dealers the day of the 'used car' is gone," according to Morris Levell. "You are now offered an exclusive new standard of automotive quality in R&G cars, which you may buy with as much confidence, and assurance of satisfaction as a completely new automobile."

"This new term—R&G—stands for renewed and guaranteed. It means that each car offered under it must meet a rigid set of specifications as to mechanical condition and appearance. And the result is a product so fine that it can be sold with a written guarantee of 'satisfaction or your money back.'"

"Under this guarantee, you are the judge of the car's quality. After purchase, you may drive it two days, and put it to any driving test you please. If it fails to measure up to your expectations in any way, you may return it to your Ford dealer and have your money refunded in full—cheerfully, and with no questions asked."

"In addition, you will receive a written service warranty as a further protection. This double guarantee removes the elements of doubt and uncertainty that have troubled buyers of used cars for years."

"Now you can know the facts before you buy. There's no need to rely on the opinion of someone else, or trust to verbal claims. You know what you're getting for your money when you select an R&G car or truck at your Ford dealer's."

KEEPS THE EXTRA FOODS THAT RURAL FAMILIES NEED The Mark of Quality

SUPERFEX OPERATES ON KEROSENE

WHEN you live far away from the markets you must buy a lot of supplies at one time. You need a refrigerator that holds plenty of food and keeps it plenty cold. Superfex is famous for doing that. Furthermore, you can have Superfex no matter where you live. It requires no electricity. It operates on economical kerosene, and very little of that.

Just light the burners All you have to do is light the burners. The rest is automatic. About two hours after they have been lighted, the burners go out, but Superfex keeps right on working. You get twenty-four hours or more of refrigeration from one lighting. This means that for twenty-two hours out of twenty-four the burners are neither burning fuel nor throwing out heat.

Tabasco—What Is It and How it Was Originated

In 1852 a man by the name of Gleason (who had been with General Scott during the capture of Mexico City in 1847 and who had remained in Mexico after the close of the Mexican war with the United States) came to New Orleans, and while there gave to Mr. E. Mellhenny the seeds of some peppers, which he said had an especially fine flavor, and grew in the State of Tabasco, Mexico. These pepper seeds were planted by Mr. Mellhenny at the family plantation, Avery Island, near New Iberia, and the quality of the peppers was so good that he continued to grow them year by year in the kitchen garden for table use, as both he and his father-in-law, Judge Avery, were fond of highly seasoned food.

During the war between the North and South, and after the occupation of Louisiana by the federal troops, the Avery and Mellhenny families were banished from their home state and sent by General Banks to Austin, Texas, but returned to their plantation home at Avery Island at the close of the war. Like all Southerners these two families were financially ruined by the war, and being without funds with which to buy the things that help to make food tasty, Mr. Mellhenny began experimenting with making condiments from the herbs and peppers found growing about the old home. Among other plants that had survived the lack of cultivation during his absence were some pepper bushes like those that grow from the seed Gleason had given him. With the pulp of these peppers as a base, he made a hot aromatic sauce for table use, and give some of it to his friends, who liked it so much that Mr. Mellhenny continued making it. Among those who tried the sauce and liked it was General Hazard, who was federal administrator for Southern Louisiana. General Hazard induced Mr. Mellhenny to make a sufficient amount of the sauce, so he could take some north on his next trip. This was done, and General Hazard gave some of the sauce to his brother, E. C. Hazard, who was head of the largest wholesale grocery house in New York. Mr. E. C. Hazard was so impressed with the value of the sauce as a food seasoner, that he got in touch with Mellhenny and induced him to pack the sauce for market and give his firm the agency for its distribution in the United States. Mr. Mellhenny consented to do this, and in 1868 Tabasco sauce put up in New Iberia, La., was offered to the public.

Since that time, Tabasco, through its high value as a piquant seasoning has become world wide in its distribution.

In 1872, an agency was established in London for marketing Tabasco in Europe, and this sauce on each bottle of which the words, Tabasco, New Iberia, La., are printed, can now be found in every civilized country in the world. An instance showing the wide distribution of Tabasco is given in Lord Kitchener's report to the British government after his conquest of Kartoum. This report states Tabasco was found further in the desert than any other civilized food product.

Tabasco is a pure pepper sauce made without cooking, but by fermentation in oaken casks, and it requires the heat of two summers to properly ferment it, and give it its mellow delightful flavor. Tabasco is especially valuable for seasoning eggs. As the English say, "It makes a good egg better and a bad egg good."

Tabasco has the greatest value when used in the kitchen. A few drops in your refrigerator gives the meat an exceptionally fine flavor. It also adds a wonderful flavor to mashed potatoes or when used in connection with butter on baked potatoes. When cooking eggs in any form Tabasco should always be used in order to bring out the highest flavor of the egg. A little Tabasco in soups when cooking adds greatly to their palatableness. On the table a few drops in your breakfast eggs and milk changes the flavor to such an extent that the food is much more palatable.

This sauce has the widest distribution of any food product in the world.

believed to be fair representation of the actual animal. The work has been done by Thomas Horne, of the Smithsonian staff, under supervision of Dr. C. W. Gilmore, curator of vertebrate paleontology.

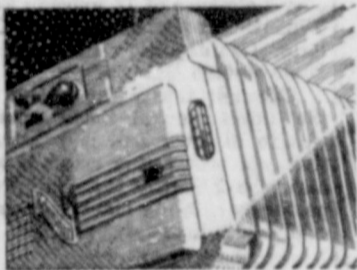

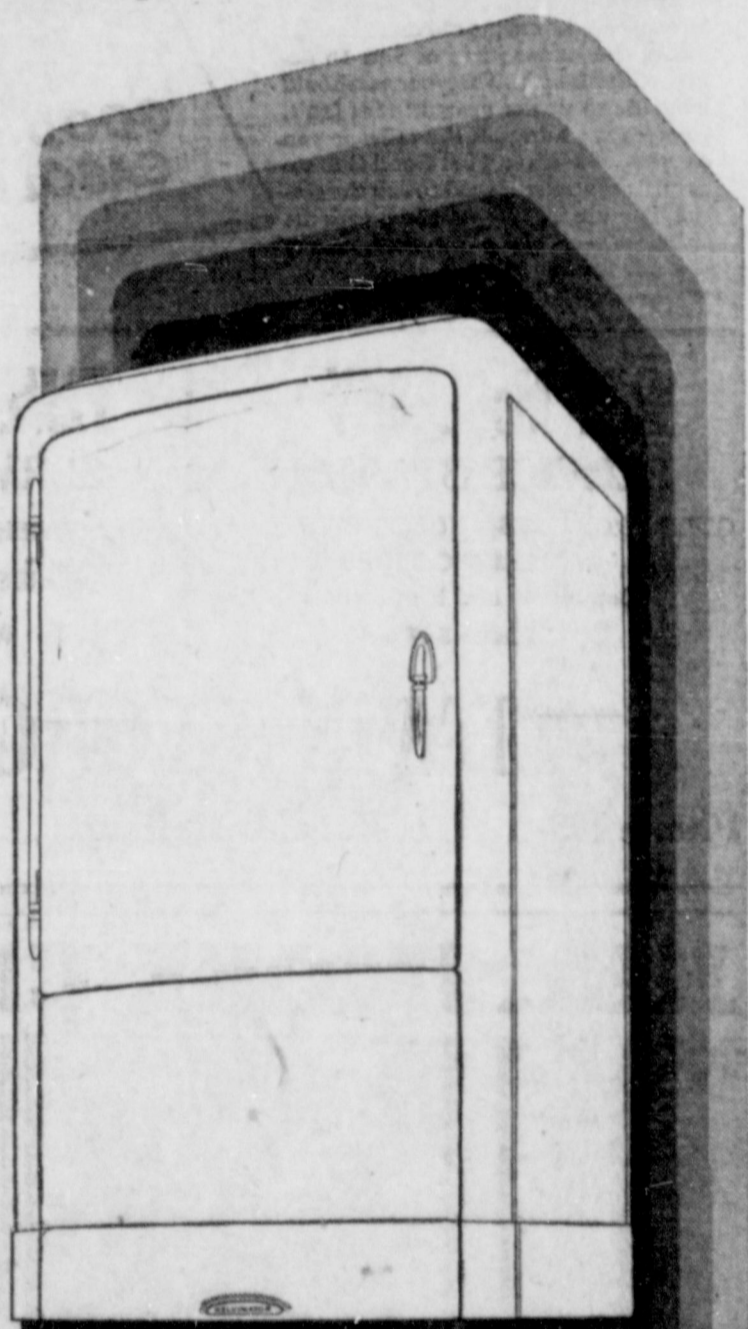

The animal, known scientifically as "Moropus Elatius," was one of the most fantastic specimens that lived in North America during the Miocene period, the institution said. It was somewhat larger than the plow horse of today. It had a long neck, high forequarters, a short, downward-sloping back and long, stout legs. How it was able to get its mouth to the ground to drink, due to the structure of its body, puzzles the paleontologists.

Heavy, sharp, curved claws, about 3 inches long, instead of hoofs, on all four feet, were a distinctive feature of the animal. The Moropus is believed to have lived in swampy forests, existing chiefly on twigs and leaves, which it may have dug from the ground with its claws. Its companions were members of a mammalian fauna which has been extinct for millions of years, and paleontologists believe it was the largest and probably the most feared creature of its time. The most conspicuous creatures of the period, aside from the "clawed horse," were a giant pig and a dwarf rhinoceros.

Big things have happened
since you or your friends bought refrigerators

Visible COLD

The controls of the 1936 Kelvinator keep food compartment temperatures ideal, regardless of how hot it is in the kitchen. And you can see what the temperature is, because a Built-In Thermometer tells you that food is being kept surely, safely, dependably cold.

Visible ECONOMY

Today, for the first time in the history of the industry, Kelvinator provides you with a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation. The 1936 Kelvinator uses one-half or one-third as much current as many refrigerators now in use. This saving alone may justify replacing your old refrigerator.

Visible PROTECTION

You may know today, beyond a shadow of doubt, that the refrigerator you buy will give you long years of service. Because the 1936 Kelvinator is backed by a 5-year Protection Plan, written and signed by the oldest company in the electric refrigeration industry.

IN EVERY CITY and town in America—in clubs and homes and on the streets—people are talking about Kelvinator—the new refrigerator.

Those who have put off buying any electric refrigerator—who have waited for new developments—have found in the 1936 Kelvinator the answer to every question a conservative buyer could ask.

Owners of automatic refrigerators are replacing them with new Kelvinators, not because the old ones are worn out, but because new developments, new discoveries, new inventions now offered for the first time have, by comparison, made former refrigerators obsolete, wasteful and old-fashioned.

The 1936 Kelvinator gives you Visible Cold. It maintains low temperatures in the food compartment to a new and amazing point of accuracy. And, for the first time, a Built-In Thermometer tells you in unmistakable figures how cold it is. You know food is being properly preserved, health properly protected.

It gives you Visible Economy. Many refrigerators now must be considered wasteful of electric current, for Kelvinator uses a half or even a third as much current as many now in use. And there can be no doubt about economy, for every Kelvinator is sold with a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation.

And it gives you Visible Protection. Every Kelvinator is backed by a 5-year Protection Plan signed by the oldest company in the business.

The 1936 Kelvinator gives a new meaning to the word "convenience." There are flexible rubber grids in every ice tray, automatic defrosting switch, sliding shelves, interior light—everything to lessen the burden of housekeeping.

If you are one of the 7 million owners of automatic refrigerators, or if you have not yet bought, see the 1936 Kelvinator, get all the facts about this new refrigerator, learn how easily you can own one by our liberal Deferred Payment Plan.

Religions Must Unite To Defeat Unbelief

There was a sturdy dose of common sense in President Roosevelt's appeal to all religious sects and denominations for a united front in a war on unbelief.

Things that have happened in Europe recently—outbursts of religious intolerance that seem to carry us back to the Middle Ages—have emphasized the sharp differences among the various forms of belief.

The human race can be divided into two groups. In one there are the people who look on the life that we have here as a preparation for something greater and better.

In the other, there are the people who look on that sort of thing as sheer moonshine and see in the grave the final, pitiless answer to all the blind appeals and hopeful dreams of the heart of man.

Never before in all human history has the second group been as numerous or as cocksure as it is today.

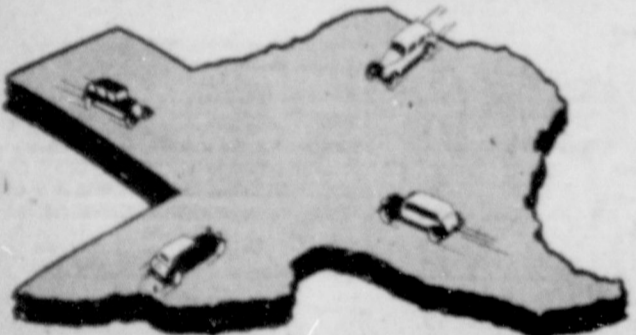

You can hear it at work in Russia, denouncing religion as a kind of narcotic which must be abolished if the race is to progress. You can hear it in your own country, helping to shape the arts, pointing the path for theories of science and—incidentally—thinning the congregations in church, in cathedral and in synagogue.

The cleavage between these groups is deeper and more fundamental than that between any other of the economic or political divisions which split the race.

In the course of time the material problems of today will be solved. In one way or another we shall find ways to provide everyone with enough to eat and enough to wear, with a workable guarantee of decent health, with reasonable security for age, with freedom from the fear of unemployment and want.

The most foolish thing we can do today is to permit rivalry and hatred among the subdivisions of that camp. We need all our energy for the struggle with the other camp.

Canada Opens Up New Gold Diggings

OTTAWA, Ont.—Scores of new mining areas, located last summer by the government's "million dollar gold hunt," will be opened this spring in widely separated parts of Canada in what is expected to be a minor mining boom.

Nearly 1,000 men, grouped into 188 surveying parties, spent the whole summer exploring hitherto unclassified regions favorable for gold, silver, nickel, copper, oil and gas production in all parts of Canada and within the Northwest Territories. Their reports are now being compiled and will be issued to prospectors early in the spring.

The most valuable discoveries were made in the Yellowknife district in the Northwest Territories, where nearly 3,000 square miles of good gold prospecting territory were located. Other valuable gold-bearing areas were found in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Dr. Gerhard Fisher, in charge of the laboratories here, is one of the world's leading authorities and inventors in the application of radio.

After completing his university training, Dr. Fisher was called to Sweden as assistant engineer in one of the largest technical plants of the country. He erected Sweden's first private telephone station.

In 1923 he was called back to the United States by Princeton University and later began engineering work with the de Forrest Company in New Jersey. In 1925 he was made chief engineer of the Press Radio Corporation of New York.

From there he was brought to Palo Alto by Dr. Frederick Kolster the radio inventor.

Each Puff Less Acid
A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

For twenty-five years the research staff of The American Tobacco Company has worked steadily to produce a measurably finer cigarette—namely, a cigarette having a minimum of volatile components, with an improved richness of taste—"A LIGHT SMOKE."

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.
