Arm Forces Need Best: War II Vets

WASHINGTON, July 26 (UP)—The Armed forces were striving today to meet their manpower needs with reservists so that a new call for draftees in the immediate future may be unnecessary.

They want at least 600,000 and possibly 700,000 officers and men, preferably veterans. Each branch of the service has more than enough reservists to make up its quota.

Selective service so far has been asked to furnish 20,000 recruits. But the Armed services emphasized that their greatest need now is trained specialists—not raw recruits.

The Marine Corps is in for the biggest percentage increase. It now has 74,000 officers and men. Under President Truman's mobilization program, it will be increased to 131,000 men—a jump of about 80 per cent.

Some Congressmen believe the corps should be even larger. Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., who said the corps must be "substantially enlarged," called Gen. Clift to say how many or what type units were affected.

Vinson told the house that Truman's military manpower goal of 2,100,000 was far too low. He urged Congress to give military leaders all the men they need, despite any limitations the President may impose.

The committee also planned to hear from the Air Force. The Air arm called up a "very limited number" of its organized reserves yesterday but a spokesman declined to tell his House armed services committee exactly what he wants.

The House then passed and sent to the Senate legislation to abolish the present 2,065,000 ceiling on the combined strength of the armed forces. It also adopted and sent to the White House a bill extending all enlistments for one year.

Eleventh Dublin Rodeo Prepared

Dublin, July 26, (Spl.)—Preparations are now being made for the gigantic Pre-Madison Square Garden Rodeo which is to be held in Dublin August 23-24-25-26.

The 1950 show marks the eleventh anniversary of the "big show" which is produced by Everett Colborn - Gene Autry and Associates. Mr. Colborn will again act as arena director.

Many high class special events have been planned by Mr. Colborn, some of which are new and very entertaining. The Bewley Chuckwagon Gang will play before each performance.

One item of special interest is the miniature Santa Fe train which will be entered in the big parade. This train has been shown all over the United States.

Ticket reservations are now being made. Mr. L. R. Keller is the ticket chairman.

Protect Individual Needs, Boswell Tells Lions Club

"We must protect the things the individual needs, the rights to liberty, life and the pursuit of happiness," Dr. G. C. Boswell, president of Ranger Junior College, told members of the Lions Club at their regular weekly meeting at the Methodist Church yesterday.

Boswell addressed the group on the development of the American heritage of Democracy, and the preserving of that heritage.

He was introduced by Homer Smith, Judge Milburn Long presided at the meeting.

Boswell pointed out the United States as the bright spot of the world.

"What would the world be if it had not been for America, the United States, if you please," Dr. Boswell asked.

Boswell pointed to places in history where the United States had saved the world from aggression.

He ended his talk with a plea that U. S. citizens continue to carry on with their heritage.

"The youth of your community is the most important thing that you have," he said, "we are a great nation because of the free things we have. The continuance of our heritage depends on how we lead our youth."

GIs Counterattack In South, But Retreat Further In Yongdon Area; Headquarters Minimizes Retreat

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Thursday, July 27 (UP)—American troops today opened a surprise counter-attack on the Korean south coast to save the vital port of Pusan. They were reported to have captured Hadong astride the coastal road.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's midnight war summary said Communist forces kept heavy pressure on all fronts, but did not mention the fighting in the new sector where U. S. infantrymen went into action to check North Korean forces racing eastward within 75 miles of Pusan.

But U. S. Fifth Air Force headquarters announced that the Americans had attacked South coast ports with the support of rocket firing jet fighters. The first assault set fire to Hadong, 73 miles west of Pusan, and a headquarters spokesman said the Americans were reported to have captured it later.

A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters refused to identify the American units fighting on the South coast, where the left flank of the vital Pusan port area had appeared to be wide open to the Communist forces.

But it was believed here they might be American troops which had been held in reserve until now to see where they were needed most. There was no indication of their strength, and headquarters intended to keep the Communists guessing as long as possible.

However, field reports later than the period covered by the summary said two American divisions manning the central front dropped back as much as five miles to new positions.

The appearance of the fresh fighting force on the left wing explained the air of unconcern which has been manifested at headquarters here regarding that sector.

"Communist forces continued exerting heavy pressure along all fronts tonight," MacArthur's summary said. "But indications were that the American and South Korean divisions were holding on stubbornly to positions they held yesterday."

A spokesman at headquarters here acknowledged the withdrawal south, east and northeast of Yongdon in the hills of central Korea, but said it was only an adjustment of the line. He said the front situation there has been stabilized somewhat.

MacArthur reported that the U. S. First Cavalry beat off several attacks in the Yongdon area and inflicted heavy casualties on the Communist troops and tanks.

He reported that South Koreans were moving up in the southwest, where the Communists had pushed down the west coast and across the south coast toward Pusan. The Republicans recaptured some towns on the fringe of the Communist advance, the summary said.

The Loves of Carmen

SOPHIE KERR Copyright, 1948, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Don Jose, young officer in a fashionable Spanish regiment, falls victim to the charms of the bewitching Carmen. He kills his command, the officer in a sword-fight over her and is forced to flee to a mountain hide-out, where he joins the band of gypsy rogues who are Carmen's associates. His last illusion is shattered when he learns that Garcia, the leader in Carmen's band, is her husband. Jose remains in the camp while the others go off on an expedition. Carmen is to pick up a victim in town and lure him to a deserted house, where the men will beat and rob him. But Carmen changes her mind, decides to have a fling of her own, she meets and flirts with Lucas, the musician, but does not take him to be robbed. When she gets back to the camp, she finds Don Jose alone. Garcia returns shortly afterwards. Enraged at Carmen's double-cross, he strikes her these days for him and the two men fight it out with knives. Garcia is slain. Jose later tells Don Jose that he intends to marry Carmen. "It won't work, Navarro," says Don Jose. "Don Jose and I were made to live together. You'll see."

THE outlaw band rode slowly across the fat, hot, dusty valley with a string of pack mules behind Don Jose's lead horse. Carmen rode with Jose, her arms around his waist. They were both exultantly happy.

He talked to her over his shoulder. "Isn't one camp the same as another? Why are we moving?" Carmen shrugged. "We move when the birds move. They have an instinct about these things. We go now to our winter home, Jose-ito." She leaned her cheek on his shoulder and pretended to be a lady of fashion. "We should send out invitations, I think. The Senor and the Senora Liza—"

Carmen didn't try it again. "We will be at home for the winter in the caves at Granada." "Won't it be cold, living in a cave?"

mercy, but still he could not always think of himself this way. He would tell himself then that he had been trapped by an irrational fate into this nightmare of blood and brutality. But although these things were said to have happened, they had happened only to Jose el Navarro, not to the rest of the Lizarabengoa. This was his illusion, but each day it grew harder to maintain. And at night, when he could no longer indulge in self-deception, he knew what he had become.

At night he sat sleepless, his hands clenched within each other, staring at the arms who slept in consequence of peace. His eyes would implore her for a sign which might promise his release.

LATE one afternoon, the hot wind coming behind them into the valley, the bandits stopped a stage coach. The passengers, terror-stricken under the menace of drawn guns, pulled out their hands were raised high over their heads. Don Jose advanced, prodded them, and spoke roughly in a cold, business-like way. This had become a day's work to him. "Line up. Keep your hands over your heads and no talking."

He stopped as the last passenger, a uniformed dragoon, descended. Don Jose went white at sight of the fine-looking young soldier—the very counterpart of what he used to be. Their eyes met and the dragoon's eyes widened as he recognized the bandit.

Don Jose's face set with fury. He hated the soldier for reminding him of the past. "Dancaire, get the lugs! Fabio, keep your gun on these screaming pigs." Then he went to the dragoon. "All right, hand it over!" The dragoon removed a little pouch of money from his pocket and held it out contemptuously to Don Jose. The gesture was too much to stand. Don Jose brought his gun down on the dragoon's hand viciously. The soldier dropped the pouch of money, flinching at the pain, but the contemptuous look on his face remained. Don Jose turned away. His rage, turned toward himself, mounted within him.

U. S. ARMY SOLDIER SERVES ALSO AS CIVIC LEADER—Master Sergeant Eugene H. Lansing, veteran of the China campaign with the Flying Tigers with the Army Air Force, now serving his second enlistment, has been designated as the first "Serviceman of the Month" and elected President of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Boise, Idaho, where he is on an Army assignment. His career exemplifies how an American soldier has opportunities to display his varied talents. He is active in several civic organizations, the Boise Community Chest and a local glee club—all these in addition to his duties as recruiting officer in the Idaho Military District.

A native of Glenwood, Idaho, he was graduated from the Yakima, Washington, High School in 1937 and the same year enlisted in the Army Air Force, and in the Hawaiian department he qualified as an aircraft mechanic. After Pearl Harbor he was ordered to Australia and thence to Karachi, India, as shop foreman in an Air Force maintenance group. He next went over the "Hump" to China and served in the Flying Tigers, enduring vicissitudes in operations which soon had the Japanese on the run. At Kunning he was in charge of the only propeller shop in China. During this period he was promoted to master sergeant.

Leading in Reverse MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Mrs. W. E. Price claims it was the doggondest thing she ever saw, like nutting the cart before the horse. Instead of walking the dog on a leash, she saw a woman steering it with a firm grip on its tail. Hog cholera was first reported in the United States by an Ohio farmer in 1833.

Most Of Fight Mob Thinks That Louis Delayed Return Too Long

By Oscar Fraley
United Press Sport Writer
NEW YORK, July 26 (UP) — So Joe Louis says he is willing to fight Ezzard Charles in September, but most of the fight mob believed today that the Brown Bomber may have lost his chances of winning because he waited so long.

Jacobs Beach, the waterless concrete strand fronting Madison Square Garden where the cauliflower club spends its summers, is in the doldrums. But the lethargy disappeared when the retired heavyweight champion announced he will train to meet the man recognized by the National Boxing association as his successor.

Louis, succumbing to the need for ready cash, said, "I've got to pay my income tax just like anyone else and fighting Charles seems like the best way I could do it." It had been reported that Joe would fight if the government would take his share of the purse to square his tax debt, which might be as much as $200,000.

There are two distinct schools of thought among boxing men as to what the outcome of the fight would be. One, favors Louis to wear down the fleet-footed Charles and knock him out. The other favors Charles to outpoint Louis easily in 15 rounds.

The major questions are: How far back has Louis gone and how underrated is Charles. These are the issues debated along Bash boulevard.

Dumb Dan Morgan, the venerable fight manager of thousands of well-chosen words, is one of those who believes that Louis would flatten Charles. Shrugging off the fact that Louis is 36, Morgan pointed out that his Jack Britton made a successful comeback at 44.

"Louis has too much natural ability," Morgan announced. "And if you can't hurt him, how are you going to lick him? Louis would have about a 30 pound edge in weight and would lay on Charles and slow him down. And Louis will never lose that punch, so when he got close enough to Charles to hit him, that's all, brother."

Other believe that Charles, who was 29 last week, is a vastly underrated fighter. They point to his speed and finesse and argued that a man with 42 knockouts to his credit must have some sort of a punch.

But it was generally agreed that Louis needed all the time he could get to be in the proper shape for Charles. Last year the Bomber fought 34 exhibitions, for a total of 166 rounds, and has been playing golf regularly. Still, he is far from in fighting trim and the two months of training between now and September is regarded by the mob as the bare minimum on which he could get ready.

B-29 Super Forts Lash Out At Targets In Seoul Area Of Korea

U. S. AIR BASE IN JAPAN, July 26 (UP)—American B-29 super fortresses of the Far East bomber command dropped between 60 and 70 tons of bombs today on targets in the Seoul area of Korea.

Lt. Col. Clyde Zumwalt, 30, of Richmond, Tex., executive office for a B-29 group, said the results appeared to be excellent. Anti-aircraft fire was described as fairly accurate but all planes returned safely. No fighters were encountered.

Zumwalt said the planes hit a rail bridge across the Han river, 14 miles Southeast of Seoul, the Seoul railroad marshalling yards and a Han river highway bridge.

First Lt. Carlyle G. Townswick, 28, of Story City and Des Moines, Iowa, said his superfort hit the rail bridge in three bomb runs amid enemy flak fire.

There seemed to be four (anti-aircraft) batteries of two guns each," Townswick said. "They were laying them in 100 feet off our wing. By the third run they really had us zeroed in but did not hit us."

Seven planes made the flight from this base to Seoul and bombed from 11,000 feet. "They were only part of the day's total B-29 operation.

Former County Man Runs For Court Judge

Joe Burkett, formerly of Eastland, now of San Antonio, was a candidate for Associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals at San Antonio in last Saturday's election. In a four man race, according to press reports, Judge Jack Ppoe of Corpus Christi was leading the field and would apparently be elected without a runoff.

The term "caddie" originated in the birthplace of golf, Scotland. Mary, Queen of Scots, had her golf clubs carried by an army cadet and from cadet evolved caddie.
