Home Health care on the rise

by Bill Galusha
With the rising costs of health care many people are looking for ways to save money and still get the best possible medical care they can. One way to save money and still receive expert medical attention is through home health.

Home health has been around since man has been on the earth. Before hospitals and nursing homes, there was nothing but the home. Home is where people stayed when they became ill or were injured. The doctors came to the home. As medical technology advanced, scientists insisted the only place to become well was at the hospital, or a medical facility. House calls stopped.

In the last 20 years home health has been on the rise. "Not all medical illnesses or injuries can or should be treated at home, but for those that can be it is more cost effective than a hospital, more comfortable in most cases and more convenient for the patient," said Freda Kelly, R.N. for Total Home Health.

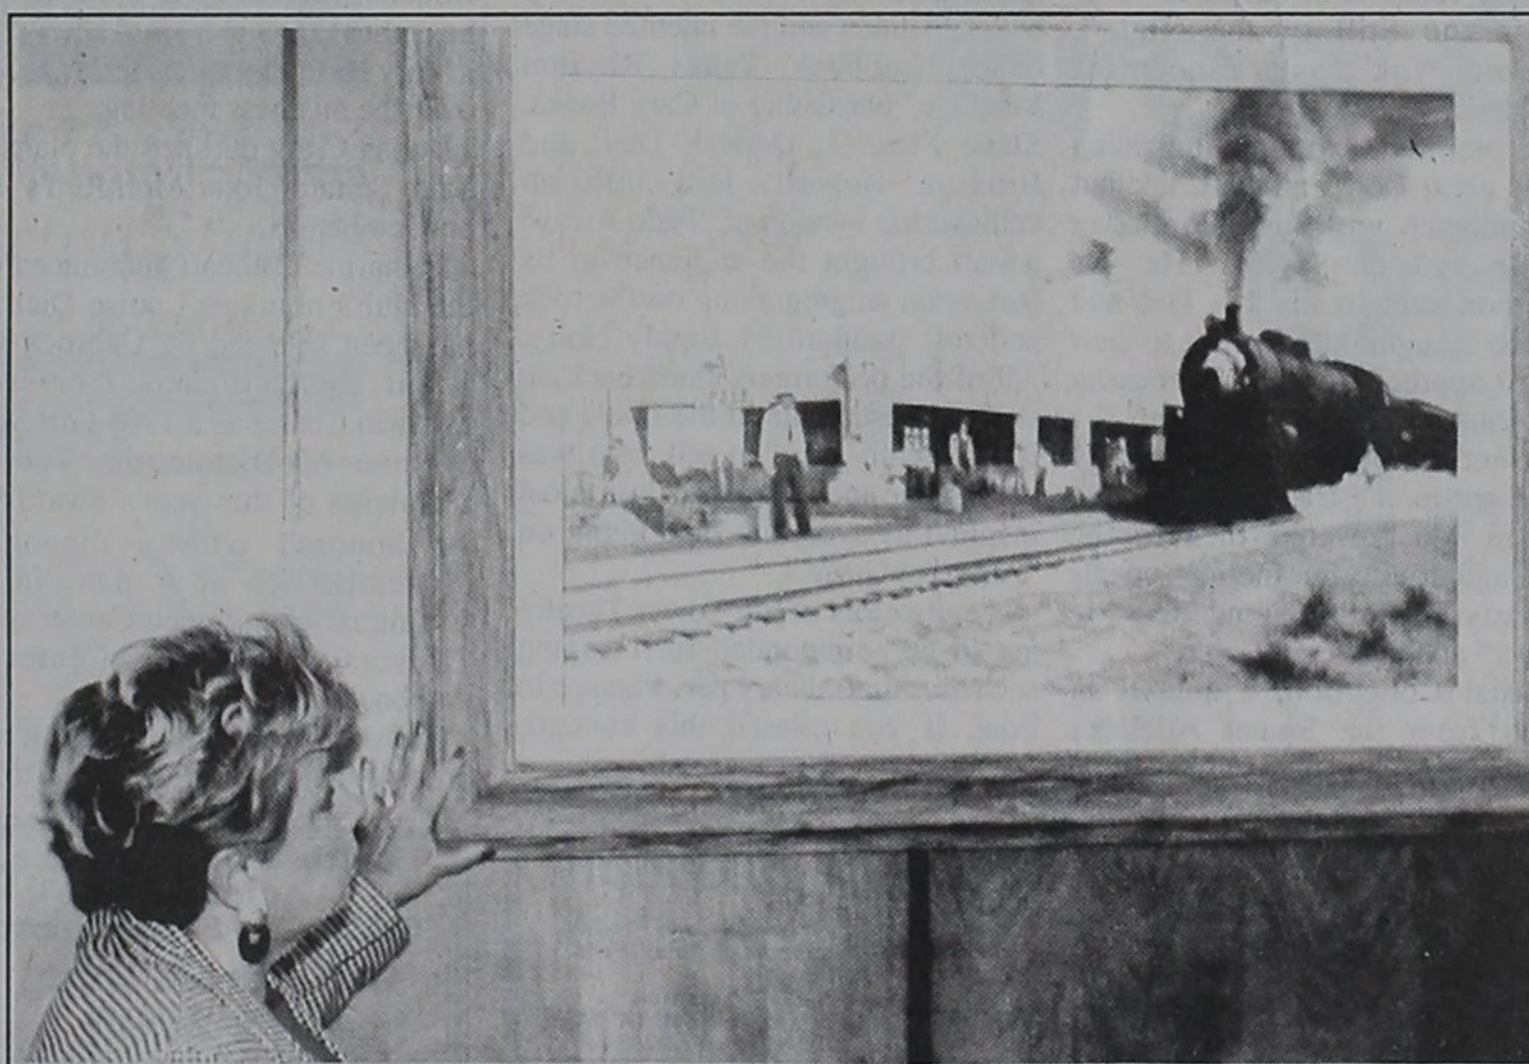

"In our company we have nurses and home care aids who specialize in certain types of health care," Kelly added. If a patient needs a special type of treatment, such as chemotherapy, OB

GYN, or IV therapy the nurse that would be assigned to the patient would be specially trained in that particular field. HCA's are required to meet state and federal regulations, and receive special training in home health.

Home health is a Medicare benefit with certain criteria that must be met for the patient to qualify. The patient must be homebound, must have a skilled need, need a nurse or medical professionals care. Some skilled needs are Occupational therapy, physical therapy, or an illness that needs frequent professional medical attention, and the need must be ordered by a doctor.

Home health can provide quality care when hospitalization may be unnecessary, or when the length of a hospital stay may be shorter than expected. "Home care increases patient satisfaction, comfort, and provides cost savings to patients and third party payers."

"We have six skilled medical people in Post, and five in Slaton. If we need to we can call on any one of our over 200 people who work for us in home health," she said in closing.

Expanded Calling Ballots in the mail

Expanded Toll-Free Calling will be granted to each exchange with a "YES" vote of 70% of the people who actually return the ballot. It is important that the ballot people have received in the mail be filled out and returned if you are in favor of obtaining Expanded Toll-Free Local Calling to a listed exchange. If you are in favor, darken the circle labeled "YES" next to that exchange.

After marking your ballot, sign your name and return it to the Public Utility Commission of Texas in the enclosed self-addressed envelope. Your vote will not be counted without your signature and telephone number.

Expanded Toll-Free Calling will allow you to call and be called by requested exchanges on a local call basis (NO TOLL CHARGES). All exchanges that pass the ballot will be added to your local calling areas for a monthly per line charge of up to $3.50 for residence and $7 for business customers.

This mandatory charge is in addition to your basic local telephone service rates, and will apply until GTE's next general rate case, at that time, all service rates will be subject to change.

October 16-22 National School Bus Safety Week

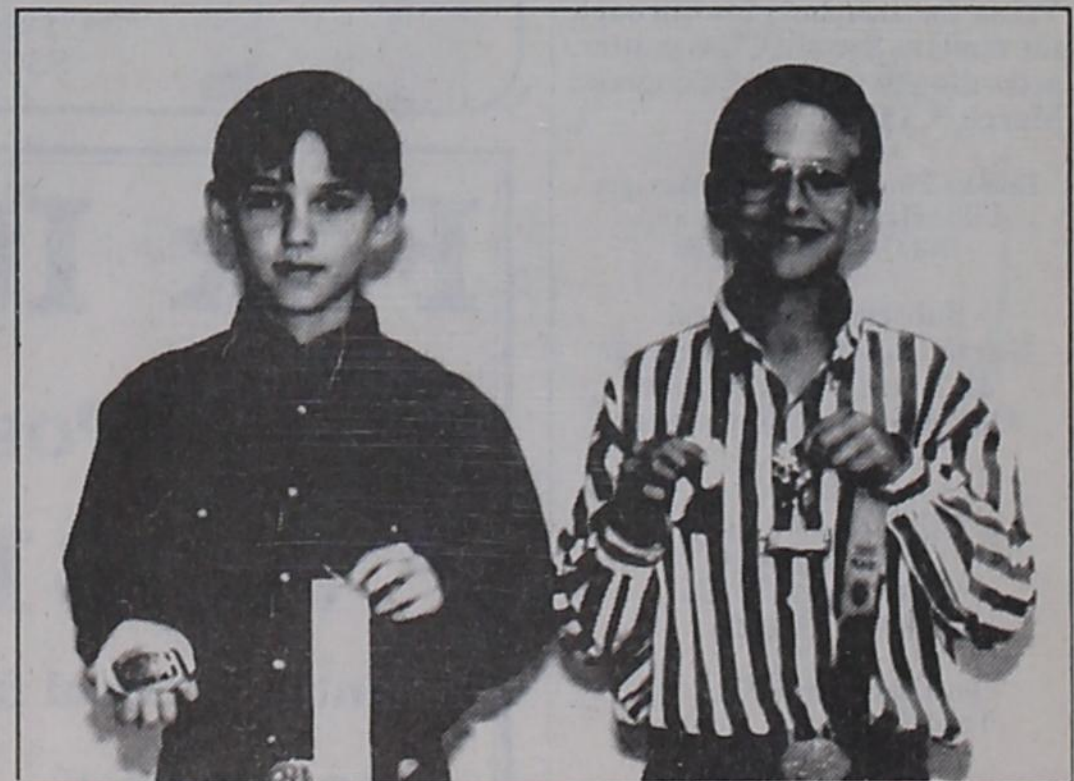

Superintendent Dr. Bobby Bain of the Post Independent School District announced that the week of October 16-22, 1994 is National School Bus Safety week. "Governor Ann Richards has signed a proclamation and called on the citizens of Texas to exercise constant courtesy and caution when near school buses," said Dr. Bain.

In Post, we have over 16 school buses. They transport more than 125 students to and from school each day and travel nearly 250 thousand miles a year, added Dr. Bain. "During School Bus Safety Week, added Bain, "we want to inform the citizens of our district about our pupil transportation program. We are also asking for their cooperation in helping us to maintain or even improve our safety record. Our school bus drivers are doing a great job, but they need the cooperation of other motorists."

One of the most common driver complaints, according to Bain is that other motorists frequently violate the school bus stop law. "Motorists are required to stop for stopped school buses that are displaying flashing red lights and a stop arm," said Bain.

"Sometimes the drivers are not fully alert and pass a stopped school bus. This is a very dangerous situation for the children, especially the younger ones who may not be watching traffic as closely as they should."

Barrett Scrivner and Matthew Ramsey won 2nd place in junior Overall Competition in Saturdays 4-H Awards Banquet.

Kraft General Foods and I both consider it a pleasure to strengthen the bond between the university and the city of Post through this scholarship program," said McCrary, who ended his 22-year tenure as mayor in 1991.

Fabulous fifties — fantastic success!

Rock, pop, do-wop, and a little bit of country soul combined with excellent presentation, talented musicians and an enthusiastic audience kept the Tower Theatre rocking last Saturday night during the Fabulous fifties concert. Ryan Oldham kicked off the concert with his stirring renditions of tunes by Elvis Presley ranging from ballads to "Jail House Rock" and the excitement and intensity never let up. Tommy Stewart followed with the smooth crooning of pop songs such as "Blueberry Hill" and "Misty". Master of ceremonies Rick Gilbert of KLLL radio kept the audience entertained and reminisced about the 50's while introducing the different acts.

An engaging group of students from SPC stirred memories of gathering around the drive ins and harmonizing with the gang in their acapella versions of such standards as "In the Still of the Night", "Yackety Yak", and "Goodnight Sweetheart."

The premier saxophone musician of the area, Don Caldwell, thrilled the audience with his smooth yet intense style of playing. He was joined on stage by his son, Tod, and the two brought the audience to their feet in appreciation with a rousing infectious rendition of "Tequila."

The entire concert was masterfully paced and orchestrated to bring the audience to the edge then soothe them again with the mellow vocals of Marty Edwards singing "Cry Me a River" and the fiery "Fever."

Crystal Collection, a quartet of ladies from the Sweet Adelines entertained with perfect harmony and subtle humor. Ok, maybe the humor was not all that subtle, but it was funny. Just when the audience was catching its breath, Bill Gammill fired up the keyboards Jerry Lee style with "Whole Lot of Shakin'" and a hot version of "Great Balls of Fire."

Plainview performer, Abby Hutchinson celebrated her tenth birthday on stage with a cute version of "Nickelodeon" and "How Much is That Doggie in the Window", then Rex Thomas brought to life the old standards of Hank Williams hits such as "Take These Chains", "Hey Good Lookin'" and "Jambalya" in a way that only he can do.

Donnie Allison, formerly with The Nelsons brought the concert to a rockin' and rollin' climax with beautifully strong vocals on "Crying" and "True Love Ways", and "Rave On." Just when the audience thought it couldn't get any better, Allison and the talented stage band "Lubbock Texas Rhythm Machine" consisting of Cary Banks, Steve Meador, Derrick Day, and Braxton Howell, laid into an enthusiastic version of "Fade Away" which brought the audience to its feet again singing along on the rock and roll standard by Buddy Holly. All of the performers came back on stage to participate in the finale and it was really hard to tell who was having the most fun and was most inspired as everyone sang along on "Amazing Grace."

The directors of the Tower Theatre are to be commended for bringing such an extraordinary performance to Post. If you missed this concert, you missed a "Happening."

Tax 'n Facts

by Terri S. Cash, CPA

IRA OR ANNUITIES?

Where are you going to put your retirement money? Both IRAs and annuities enable you to let savings grow tax-deferred until you take the money out. Both penalize you if you try to withdraw funds before you reach the age of 59 1/2. But there are differences.

The IRA generally grows faster than an annuity, because average expenses are lower. The amount you can contribute is limited to $2,000 a year if you have invested both deductible and non-deductible funds, distributions will be proportionately taxable and non-taxable.

The major advantages of an annuity is that there is no limit to the amount you can invest, and no time when withdrawals must begin. Also, variable annuities usually permit savers to switch money among investment vehicles with no tax obligations. Many buyers like the guarantee of income for life and the death benefits.

The best bet for most people is first to make deductible contributions to a 401 (k) plan or Keogh, then fund an IRA, and then an annuity.

Performances scheduled for school musical

Advance tickets for the Post High School musical, Carnival, went on sale October 8 for the Friday, October 28 and Saturday, October 29 performances. The musical will be held at the Primary Auditorium and tickets for the performance are available for $4 in advance and $5 at the door.

The performances, songs, wonderful images of dancers and the delightful puppets will win a heart of gold. The effect is one of enchantment from the moment the house lights go down. The curtain is already up on a bare stage when a carnival takes shape before one's very eyes setting up the tent, marquees and wagons.

The mechanical complexities of the staging seem to vanish under the direction of Candace McConnell and the musical direction of Derek Sneed and accompanist Georgie Willson.

Row crop producers will find plenty of educational information at the field displays on acre after acre of cotton, corn, sorghum, seed plots, soybeans, and conservation plots. Beef Up Your Word Power with Charles Somervill

assertive adj. - to clearly state something in a positive way.
behavior n. - the "doing" of something.
appropriately adv. - doing it correctly or suitably.
Example of usage when foregoing are combined:
Meanings are in people, not words. (It's people that put meanings in words, not the other way around.)
For example, when my spouse raises her voice, it means "assertive behavior appropriately applied;" when I raise mine, it means "a vicious attack on family and pets!"

Varsity whips Sundown 21- 14

Post overcame a tough Sundown defense and turnovers to secure a 21-14 victory last Friday in Sundown.

The Roughnecks opened the scoring in the first period of play. The Antelopes turned the ball over to the Roughnecks at the Antelope 25-yard line. The scoring drive was a five play drive that was totally a ground game.

The big play was a 17-yard sweep play that had a reverse look to the Antelope defense. The play was whistled dead at the 4-yard line. The next play saw the Roughnecks hit pay dirt first. The PAT was good and the lead was Sundown 7 Post 0.

The Antelopes wasted little time in tying the score at 7-7. On the first play after the kick off, quarterback Bodie Simpson faked into the line, reversed his field and found end Cody Bain open at the 40-yard line. Bain hauled the ball in and ran the remaining 60 yards with only a single Roughneck having a shot at bringing him down. The scoring covered gem 84 yards and came early in the second quarter with 11:53 showing on the clock. Simpson's PAT was good and the score was Post 7-Sundown 7.

The Antelopes next scoring drive was one of the longest of the season. The Bold Gold offense used a 10-play drive to score. Tailback Brad Lawson scored the touchdown on a 1-yard quick pitch play to the left. The left side of the line sealed the Roughnecks inside and Lawson followed Stewart Childers and Bodie Simpson into the end zone. Simpson's PAT was good and the Lopes led 14-7.

The second half saw the Lopes block a Roughneck punt early in the third period. The punt was blocked by Stewart Childers and the ball was recovered at the Sundown 34-yard line. The antelopes drove to the 15-yard line, but Sundown intercepted a pass at their own 4-yard line. The Roughneck offense then cranked up an 86-yard scoring drive. The drive was aided by a tough ground game and a 49-yard run by fullback Jose Bocanegra.

The final play was a quarterback option play that consumed the final 4 yards. The PAT was good with 4:23 to go in the third quarter. The score was 14-14.

The Antelope offense retaliated by turning in a nine play 55-yard drive that featured the running of fullback Saul Martinez. The Lope fullback ran 33 of those tough yards. The scoring play was a 2-yard option play that quarterback Bodie Simpson ran to perfection. He dived into the end zone with 0:50 left in the third quarter. The Lopes led 21-14.

The fourth quarter saw both teams with possessions that were shut off by good defensive play or turnovers that ended the drives. The Roughnecks had one last chance, but halfback Cody Bain tipped the ball away from a Sundown receiver and the Antelopes took over on downs.

The Antelopes will host Crosbyton Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

THE $51 PER BALE ADVANTAGE FOR COTTON PRODUCERS

More than $51 per bale paid in cash for the 1993 crop.

Your local and regional cotton cooperatives offer a vertically integrated system that takes your cotton from the field to the textile mill. It's a system that adds valuable income to your farming operation. Ginning, warehousing, marketing, textile manufacturing, and cottonseed processing all work to increase the value of your cotton crop every step of the way. For the 1993 cotton crop, combined cash payments from the local and regional cotton cooperatives averaged $51.62 per bale, over and above the value of your lint cotton. Thus, the more cotton you send through the cooperative system, the more you can add to your net profits. Consider the cooperative advantage for your cotton crop. From your local cooperative gin to the warehouses, the oil mill, the marketing association and the denim mill - it's just good business. See your local or regional cotton cooperative today.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
This letter is unauthorized, unsolicited and expresses only the opinions of the writer. It is an announcement, an invitation and a request.
The Administrative Board of the First United Methodist Church of Post voted to install an elevator. This decision was not made lightly but only after much study and many prayers. In the words of Bob Collier we will be reaching for "Higher Ground", physically and spiritually.
A fund raising committee was formed and their first project is to be a "Garage Sale" October 21 & 22 on the east parking lot.
I thought and thought on this after church and it came to me "why not ask others to share in this worthy project?"

Very few people in Garza County have not been touched by our church. They may have attended weddings and/or funerals of loved ones and friends. They may have attended receptions, reunions, club meeting or the Christmas music programs.
The steps to our sanctuary are high and steep. Ask older men how it was to have been a pallbearer at our church in the "olden days". Those men kept the casket level, too.
So...if any non Methodist would like to take part and donate items that I can lift and load, I will be happy to pick them up and deliver them to the church.

Thank you,
Louella Bilberry - 495-3746

To the editor,
Should the City of Post decide to hire a "good-will ambassador," may I suggest Mr. Lewis. I'm not sure which Mr. Lewis as I did not get a first name, but this Mr. Lewis grew up about six miles out of Post and drives a white pickup. He has two grown sons and he sacrifices his lunchtime to change tires.
On a Labor Day visit to the Post area, the tire blew out on my conversion van between Post and Lubbock. Although I had three children with me, I was not extremely concerned. I have changed my share of tires - but never on this new-to-me van. The lug wrench looked like a toy. The jack (a little folded-up job that is so compact, it fits under the hood looked like a mechanism from another world. It also didn't fit right since the addition of running boards obstructed the area in which the jack was supposed to be positioned.
Needless to say, upon discovering all of this, I was ready to walk!
Mr. Lewis arrived. He changed the tire and would accept no payment. Even when the stupid jack fell, he calmly said, "Hum-good thing I already had a couple of lugs on the spare."
My three boys learned a valuable lesson that day and it had nothing to do with the mechanics of changing a tire.
Mr. Lewis, thank you. I love visiting my husband's Aunt Mae Hundley in Post and now I have another positive "Post story" to tell to others.
Post should be proud to have a good Samaritan like you as one of its citizens.
Sincerely,
Becky Young

by Sharla Wells

It's hard to believe we have already completed seven weeks of school. Things have been extremely busy at Post Middle School for the staff and students. We are all adjusting to Block Schedules that include A days and B days (which seems more confusing to staff than students at times), and are caught up in activities such as football, band, one act play, STARS, student council, peer mediation, etc. etc. I've noticed that there seem to be signs of "stress". It is easy to understand how adults can become "stressed out" but we all need to understand these days and even though the child's source of stress might seem trivial to parents, they are very real-and potentially very threatening-to the child.

Parent should first learn to recognize the symptoms of stress in their children. The National School Public Relations Association has published these guidelines:

- moody
- insomnia or other sleeping disorders
- lowered body resistance to colds, flu, or other diseases
- preoccupation with negative thoughts or angry

thoughts and feelings

- loss of appetite or eating disorders
- experimentation with alcohol or drugs

Parents can help their children deal with the pressures in their lives, which will help them to become healthier and happier adults. Here are some things a parent can do:

- Spend time alone with each of your children. Walk with them; play games together, go to movie, park or museum.
- Give your children some of your undivided attention each day.
- Give them a chance to talk about both the happy and stressful events in their lives. Some everyday concerns that cause stress are school pressures, feelings of alienation and demands that they succeed at everything. Show them you understand their concerns and take them seriously.
- Help your children limit or expand the number of activities based on their time, energy and capabilities. They should have challenges but not be overwhelmed by them.
- Make sure your children have some free time where they can be alone, listen to music or just enjoy some quiet. That's especially important when every hour may be structured by school, extracurricular activities and family responsibilities.
- Set a good example. When you are under stress yourself, don't take it out on your children.
- Have weekly family meeting to discuss activities, routines and problems. Give everyone a chance to speak, and avoid anger or negative feedback.
- Show affection. Hug your children often. Tell them often that you love them.

First National Bank of Post is now Norwest Bank Texas, Post!

Texas, the "Lone Star" state, has a history and heritage that many envy. The stories of this giant land are rich and colorful. In every story it is the people of Texas and their bold independent spirit that shines through. It is a similar spirit that has guided Norwest on its way to becoming one of the nation's leading financial institutions. Even though Norwest Bank is new to this great state, our employees are not. Inside all Norwest locations scattered across Texas you'll find people who are your neighbors, your friends and fellow Texans. All are a part of the Norwest team that will continue to make their decisions locally. Everyone is committed to providing service that exceeds customer expectations, providing innovative new products that respond to customer needs and lifestyles, and supporting the civic and charitable work of their cities. That's what community banking is all about!

We hope we'll have the opportunity to tell you more about Norwest. In fact, consider this an invitation to call or come by any of the 18 Norwest Bank Texas locations. We promise a friendly face will be ready to tell you about Norwest. That's because our people are pretty proud about being a part of the Norwest family. But, no one is as proud as Norwest Bank is about being a new Texan.

TNRCC Tips

by Bill Galusha

Recycling is a smart and considerate way of doing your part in preserving the earth and its inhabitants. Smart shopping can also make a difference. If we make decisions when we buy, we can purchase products made with less harmful materials that are in turn less harmful to the environment.

- Buy concentrates and dilute them yourself, rather than buying large size containers.
- When buying gifts, choose items with the environment in mind, such as recycling bins, a battery charger, or a coffee mug for the office to discourage using disposable cups.
- Buy rechargeable batteries, rather than the type that can only be used once.
- Buy high quality products that are durable, repairable and re-usable. For example, use cloth towels, handkerchiefs instead of disposable ones.

From the Pulpit Fishers of men

In his book, In the Eye of the Storm, Max Lucado makes the insightful observation, "When those who are called to fish, don't fish, they fight." To illustrate this truth Lucado tells the story of a fishing trip he, his dad and best friend took in high school. The three had anticipated the Spring Break fishing trip to the lake for some time. The camper, equipment and food were all loaded up. But the first night they were there an unusually strong cold front blew in. And the trio was stuck in the little camper that day because of the bad weather. Lucado noticed that on the second day that things began to change with the camaraderie in the group. Personality flaws became apparent. Irritability arose. Edginess surfaced. Feelings became touchy. Finally the "togetherness" became too much and on the third day the fishermen packed up and went home. Lucado's conclusion is, "When those who are called to fish, don't fish, they fight." When we as Christians who are called to be "fishers of men" by Jesus don't fish and our focus turns inward on ourselves, conflict is inevitable. When we are no longer looking outward to the needs of our world, dissension is bred within. But please know the converse side of this truth, "When those who are called to fish, fish, they flourish." When we are busy focusing on the needs of a lost world, unity is created and time cannot be consumed with bickering among ourselves. Let's take this challenge and get busy doing what Jesus called us to do—being fishers of men! Darryl Smith

A step into the past

Purchased by R. E. Cox in 1917, Wallace Lumber is the oldest lumber yard in Post Cox / Wallace Lumber Yard, now and then

by Bill Galusha

R. E. Cox had been in the lumber business for over 12 years before he came to Post City in 1917. Living in Snyder and working in a lumber yard, Robert received plenty of experience in the business. Married and with the birth of a son, Robert Jr., Cox was looking for a business of his own.

In 1917, when he arrived in Post City, a man by the name of John Bond had a lumber yard on the dusty back street of Ave. N. Cox with some other partners made an offer to Bond to purchase the lumber business the offer was accepted. Cox Lumber Yard was opened and remained in business in the same location for over 50 years.

In 1942 with World War II in full swing, Robert Jr. joined the Army Air Corp. Robert served his country in the air corp. for three years until 1945 when he returned to Post. His father and his partners business was still open and doing business in the same location. Wanting to join his father's operation, Robert Jr. purchased their part of the business.

Robert and his father formed a partnership in the lumber business in 1945. They operated the business together until 1964 when his father retired. Robert Jr. purchased his father's interest in the business at that time and continued to operate it until 1982.

Charles Wallace went to school in Graham, until in the late 1950s, at that time the Graham school consolidated with the Post Independent School District. After graduating from Post High School he joined the air force in 1967. In 1969 he was shipped to Vietnam where he was stationed with the 18th Special Operations Squadron. Wallace worked as an airplane electrician in Vietnam until his discharge from the service in 1970.

He returned home to Post and worked at several jobs in the area. He worked at the Graham Gin, he tried his skill at farming and he worked for what was then Garza Auto. Finally in 1976 he went to work for Cox Lumber. Wallace learned the lumber yard business and enjoyed his work.

Wallace had worked there for six years when Mr. Cox decided he was ready to retire.

Wallace liked the lumber yard business and saw a future in it, so he decided to buy it. The name has changed and the buildings have had a few face lifts over the years, but the business and location have remained the same. "The only thing I've changed is the normal expansion of merchandise, just like any other business has done," said Wallace.

Wallace Lumber has been in business in Post in the same location since first being founded during the early years of Post City.

Old Number Three arriving in Post City in the early 1920s. After the railroad was finished in January, 1910 Post City's population exploded. Five industrial tracks were built for handling 125 freight cars for loading and unloading. During the first few years these tracks were full of cars loaded with all the material needed to build and supply a town. As many as 10 to 15 immigrant cars arrived daily.

From railroads to hotels, C. W. Post saw to his towns every need.

The Algerita Hotel was finished in 1908. The building was erected from native stone quarred from Alexander's Quarry. The stone quarry was discovered when a road was blasted down the caprock in order to move the city to its central location. The hotel boasted 30 rooms, a barber shop, fine food and water closets with running water. C. W. Post oversaw every step of the hotels construction, including setting up the menu.

Eddie Warren came to Post City in 1926 and tried to purchase the Post City Post, unable to make a deal he started the third newspaper:

Post Dispatch, founded in 1926 by E. A. Warren

by Bill Galusha

Back in the early years of this century small towns were springing up all around the country. Some were because of railroads, some were because of mining ventures and others were because of enterprising people like C. W. Post, a man with vision.

These small towns soon began attracting newspapers, and Post City was no different. In August of 1909, Post City had a population of approximately 300 people. An amount Stockton Henry felt was the right size to support a newspaper. Henry was the editor of a paper in Stanton at the time, but he was ready for a change. It was not unusual for editors to move around in the early days. Editors were constantly on the move looking for a better place to settle and better news to write.

When Henry contacted Post City to see about opening a newspaper, he was put in touch with W. O. Stevens and A. E. Fletcher, board managers for C. W. Post. They interviewed him and then wrote to C. W. Post in Battlecreek informing him of the nature and appearance of Henry. Post wrote back to them with the following reply, "I would be glad to have Henry start up a newspaper, provided it is not a mouthpiece for socialists or for labor agitators."

The first issue of the Post City "Post" appeared on November 4, 1909. At the request of Henry, C. W. Post wrote an article in the paper entitled, "Mr. Post Talks about Post City, An article from the founder of the town." The article was well received by readers and continued for quite some time.

Not long after the paper began Mr. Post was in Post City visiting when he obtained a copy of Eugene Deb's paper, The Appeal to Reason. The topic of the paper was one that Post hated, socialism. He was furious and went straight to Henry's office.

"Look at this, let the folks know what you think about this," he said to Henry. Henry worked all night, writing the article several times until finally he felt he had written a worthy response. When the paper came out the next day Post received a copy and went straight to Henry's office. His reply is unknown but it was apparently one of pleasure. He reached into his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills and laid them on Henry's desk saying as he did so, "I'll take a full page ad until further notice." The ad remained in the paper until Henry sold out about a year later.

Hal Murray purchased the Post City Post from Stockton Henry sometime in 1910. At that time the paper was published in a frame building on Ave. I. The building is still standing and is next door to what is now Dr. Larry Leininger's office.

The name H.B. Murray appears on the list of people who attended the picnic on the OS Ranch in 1906 to make plans to organize the county. The name Hal Murray also appears on the list of names of men who were on the first Petit Jury and the first Grand Jury in Garza County. It is not certain if this is the same Hal Murray who purchased the Post City Post or not. Hal Murray was the first County Clerk of Garza County though.

It is not known if he did any actual writing for his newspaper or not. It is known that in 1911 and 1912 Mattie Morris worked for Murray setting type and dumping it into a galley. It is believed she also did a large amount of the writing. A sign was hung out in front of the paper that read, "Post City Post—Get down and Hitch," and a subscription cost one-dollar a year.

Sometime in 1917 or 1918 a man by the name of Pinkerton ran the paper for Murray. He was apparently new to Post City and ran the paper for about a year before his wife became ill. She blamed her illness on Post City and wanted to leave. They purchased a farm near Slaton after her illness and they never returned.

E.A. Warren Sr., a newspaper man took over the job of running the paper during her illness and continued to run the paper until around 1926. That year E.A. Warren Sr. died and left Mrs. Warren Bailey alone to operate the paper. Her stepson, Eddie Warren had been operating a newspaper in Southland

The Southland Sun, since 1923. Eddie came to Post City in 1926 and tried to buy the Post from Murray, but could not reach a satisfactory agreement.

The building the paper was in needed repairs and had a dirt floor in it. Eddie Warren decided the asking price was too much. Warren and his step-mother, Mrs. Warren Bailey went partners and built a new building where the Post Dispatch is now. Warren moved all his printing equipment to Post City and opened up his paper. Eddie Warren and his step mother remained partners until after World War II.

The Post City Post closed shortly after the Dispatch opened. There was also another paper in Post City at the time, The Garza County News, it was published by Sterling Williams. It was located on the corner of Main and Broadway it closed down shortly after the Post Dispatch opened. Sheriff O.B. Kelly ended up taking the building and contents for taxes and selling it.

Warren and Sterling Williams traded subscribers. Warren took over his subscribers in Post City and Williams was to take Warren's subscribers in Southland. Williams left to go to Southland but never showed up. He left all his printing equipment and presses in Post City and never returned for them. They were eventually sold at auction.

Eddie Takes Over

When Warren first opened the Post Dispatch in 1926 he built a 20x80 building and operated in it for a few years. After purchasing a new press and all the equipment that went with it, Warren needed more room to print the paper. He then added on to the existing building, a 20x20 press room. Pauline Warren, Eddie's wife, sold all the advertising and the circulation. "We worked as a team, we were good partners," Eddie said.

In December of 1943, Eddie was called to war. The war was raging in the South Pacific and aerial photographers were needed for reconnaissance. Eddie joined the Navy and Pauline took over as head of the paper. Dan Cockran was working for Eddie at the time and was familiar with the press and its operation. Pauline and Cockran ran the paper and never missed an issue until Eddie returned from war.

In 1945 the war was coming to a close and Eddie was transferred from Guadalcanal to Okinawa. The skipper of the ship Eddie was on had an interest in photography. Eddie and the skipper took off in a small reconnaissance airplane and began photographing the islands of the South Pacific for the next eight months. After taking aerial photographs they went to the Islands and took pictures of primitive natives. Many of these photos (over 100) Eddie and Pauline have loaned to the OS Museum for display.

After Eddie returned from the war and to the paper in late 1945, he and Pauline continued publishing the Post Dispatch until 1975. Late in 1975 Jim Cornish purchased and published the paper until his death in 1985. The Post Dispatch was then purchased and operated by Wes Burnett until late 1992. In the fall of 1992 Burnett sold to Todd Newton, who still owns the paper today.

A look into the future

First drug store in Post City, originally opened in back of Double U company store in what is now Winns variety store on East Main

Collier Drug, founded by R. H. Collier in 1909

Collier Drug as it looks today. Collier Drug has been operated by the Collier family since 1908.

by Bill Galusha

The Collier family has owned and operated a drug store in Post City since it was first founded. The late R. H. Collier moved his family to Post City in 1909. His wife, Ida Thomas had two brothers who owned and operated Thomas Brothers Drug Store in Tahoka. It is uncertain if the move was made to be closer to her brothers or if it was strictly a business move. Collier was in Post in 1908 and sent a postcard to his wife back in East Texas. The card was a picture of Post City, and on the card he wrote, "how would you like to live here." Apparently the answer was yes, they made the move. Collier was a traveling pharmaceutical salesman selling anything from elixirs to quinine. His uncle owned what used to be Saint Joseph Aspirin Company, a pharmaceutical manufacture. Collier's territory covered an area from Tennessee to Texas. Selling pharmaceuticals as a traveling salesmen kept him away from home a lot. This move to Post was a chance to settle in one place and raise a family.

The Thomas Brothers came Post in 1908 with a wagon load of toys to sell on New Years Eve. They sold the entire load in 24 hours. This apparently impressed them on the ability to sell merchandise in Post. C. W. Post had his company store, The Emporium. This store was located in the building where Winns and Handy Hardware is located now. The drug store was in the back of the store by the old wood stove where the men spent many hours playing checkers.

Collier and his brothers-in-law, the Thomas brothers, purchased the small drug store business from C.W. Post, with the stipulation they would not sell whiskey. They operated as partners for a short while, less than a year. Collier bought out his brothers-in-law part of the business, and the name remained Collier Drug. Many days were spent sitting in the back of the store around the old wood stove telling stories and playing checkers.

O. B. Kelly was the first sheriff of Garza County and was well acquainted with Doc. One day Kelly came to Doc and asked for a laxative. "Doc, I'm so stopped up I don't know what to do, can you give me something." Doc went to the back room and mixed up a concoction of various things and gave it Kelly. It was about three days later when Doc next saw Kelly. "How are you feeling," Doc asked Kelly. "I don't know what that was you gave me but I had to ride like the devil to make it to Sand Creek," Kelly said.

Operating in the same location until the early 30's, Collier decided his business warranted a larger store. He opened his new Collier Drug in what is now Kidstuf, at 213 E. Main. The new store was not only a drug store, it had the first soda fountain in Post City. People would congregate around the fountain on Friday evenings and weekends. The new store with its soda fountain soon became the place to meet and visit with friends. Doc built and owned the building that Collier Drug is located now at 203 E. Main also.

In 1927, Collier's oldest son, Wynne went to Baylor Pharmacy School of Dallas. After graduating and returning to Post City, Wynne Collier bought out his uncle's store in Tahoka, the Thomas Brothers Drug Store, and changed the name to Wynne Collier Drug. Wynne operated the drug store until his death in 1964.

Doc had another son, Robert (Bob) Jr. who wanted to become a pharmacist. In 1941 and 1942 Bob went to Texas Tech University in Lubbock and transferred to the University of Texas in the summer of 1942. He enlisted in the Army in March 1943. After returning from the service in late 1946 Bob enrolled at The University of Texas where he received his degree in pharmacy in 1948.

Bob and Mattie, his childhood sweetheart, returned to Post in 1948. Mattie and Bob were married in 1945. Bob opened Collier Drug at the location it is at now in 1948. Doctor Williams and Doctor Surman were located in the back of the old Algerita Hotel and Bob figured by having a drug store as close to the doctors as possible would be good for business. Apparently it was a good move. The store is still in operation under the same name, Collier Drug, and has filled prescriptions in Post for five generations.

Not all prescriptions would come during business hours. Many times Bob has been called to fill a prescription in late hours of the night or holidays, sometimes driving miles in the worst of rain and snow storms to serve the people of Post.

Bob has served his community in many capacities and has been active in many local and state organizations, including President of the TPA in 1966. Other organizations he has served are the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, the Rotary Club, the Men's Chamber of Commerce, and he has served in every office of the 1st Methodist Church.

Bob and Mattie raised two children, Don and Dianna. Dianna has worked in the store alongside Bob for 21 years. Mattie and Bob will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary in January, 1995.

Collier Drug is still owned and operated by the same family that it was when it opened nearly 90 years ago.

Corner Store first opened by W. R. Graeber in Post City, 1915

Marvin Williams behind the counter of Corner Store 1940s

by Bill Galusha

The first grocery store to open in Post City was one operated by the C. W. Post Company, The Double U. It opened in the Emporium built by Post in 1908.

James Leach Power, his wife two sons, and son daughter-in-law came to Post City in 1909. Power purchased the Post Commissary store and operated it as Power, Power and Power. The oldest existing store in Post is the Corner Deli and Market. Though the store name Power has changed it has continuously remained open. The store was started by W. R. Graeber in 1916. Through the years, Graeber's store was to become the talk of the town.

The store became affiliated with the Packing House Market, South Side Grocery, Graeber-Carter Grocery, Parkers Bakery and the M-System.

The store began in the middle of the 200 block of East Main Street. The company then moved to the corner (The old Algerita Hotel) and became affiliated with Red and White Stores in the 1940s. The store, after moving to its new location changed its name to Corner Grocery.

In 1941 Lester Preston moved to

Post from Oklahoma and became partners with Graeber. Graeber died in 1940s., and Lester assumed full ownership. Mrs. Lester worked with her husband until 1958.

After the hotel started to deteriorate and become unsafe for occupancy in 1958, the Corner Grocery moved into what is now Ammon's Printing. Mrs. Lester retired in the 1960s and long time employee, Marvin Williams purchased her half.

After working in the store for many years, in 1970 Kenneth Williams and his brother, Marvin, became partners in the store. In 1989 the Corner Grocery moved to its present location on the East side of the railroad tracks on Main Street. Kenneth and Marvin remained partners until Marvin's death in 1991 at the age of 66.

Marvin's wife, Ruth, retained an interest in the store after Marvin's death until 1992. She held an ownership in the store for a brief time and sold her interest to Greg Williams later that year. The store is still a family owned store, Kenneth and Greg are father and son. The store has remained in operation since first opening in 1915.

Tables and booths were added for indoor dining and the deli has been expanded for a wider variety of selections. A steam table has been added and lunch specials are served Monday through Friday. The Corner's Deli and Grocery Market is still located on Main Street just East of the railroad tracks. They are open seven days a week including some holidays.

First National Bank, founded in 1907

by Bill Galusha

In 1907 when he founded his dream town in the wilderness many of the local cattlemen began talking to W. E. Alexander, town manager, about opening a bank in Post City.

Post was not ready for a bank and the idea was put to rest until 1909 when he was approached with the idea again. This time he was prepared to act on the request. In June of 1909 a bank was organized and named The First National Bank of Post City, Texas. When first opened the bank had capital stock of $50,000, with Post holding the controlling interest of $26,000. Other large stock holders in the bank were: H. B. Herd, W. O. Stevens, J. F. Hartford, and J. M. Boren.

The first president of the newly founded bank was Herd. Upon Herd's recommendation W. O. Stevens was appointed cashier. Stevens was a half brother to Uncle Tom Stevens, who was a close friend of C. W. Post and had experience in the banking business. Stevens had been assistant cashier of a bank in Bridgeport.

T. P. Stevens (Uncle Tom Stevens) became associated with C. W. Post in Fort Worth in the fall of 1906. Post hired Stevens to look over some ranches in West Texas that he was interested in purchasing. By January of 1907 he had bought 213,324 acres of West Texas ranch land, approximately 333 square miles. Stevens soon became Post's right hand man in the business of operating and organizing his ranch interests.

Stevens helped to organize the barbecue at the OS ranch, where the county was organized and Post's mule and freighting ventures. The freighting included seventy-two Missouri mules, twenty-four wagons and harness, mule skinnners and all the supplies to begin the new town.

The first bank was opened in the Double U store building (where Winn's is located today) in July, 1909. The store is located in the 200 block of East Main. On opening day of the new bank, total deposits received were $16,109.50. At the end of the first year of operation, the bank statement showed over $214,000 in deposits, over $138,000 of the total came from accounts of C. W. Post and his Double U Company.

In July of 1916, bank directors felt it was time to erect a separate and new building for the growing bank. J. M. Morgan of Big Spring was the general contractor. James Sampson received the plumbing contract, George (Scotty) Sampson and James Napier did most of the building. The bank was opened for business October 1, 1916.

In 1915 W. O. Stevens resigned from First National and opened a private bank. This bank was housed in the original Algerita Hotel and later became known as First State Bank and still later Citizen's National Bank of Post. In 1932 the depression had hit the country and Post was not by-passed, Post's two banks, First National and Citizens National Bank consolidated.

First National Bank grew stronger and in 1960 the present bank building was completed and on March 20 of the same year, an open house was held in celebration. The new building housed 9,800 square feet of floor space. The bank featured a Community Room and eleven tons of steel for the vault along with 100 yards of concrete. In 1972, the bank lobby was renovated, their art collection was added and a bronze collection was started.

In January of 1994, Norwest bought the First National Bank holding company. The official name change celebration took place Tuesday, October 11, 1994.
