By Alben W. Barkley United States Senator from Kentucky

IN the consideration of public as well as private indebtedness we must consider the condition of the debtor, his income in proportion to debt, and the interest required to be paid on the debt.

Let us assume that in 1933 a man—for convenience we will call him Mr. Hoover—had an income of $2084 per year. His indebtedness on that date was $37,719 on which he was required to pay interest amounting to $22,539.

Let us assume that in 1936 another man—for convenience call him Mr. Roosevelt—had an income of $4116 per year, and owed $37,719 on which he was required to pay interest.

Mr. Hoover's income was three times his interest charges. But Mr. Roosevelt's income is FIVE AND ONE-HALF times his interest charges.

THE mathematics of this proposition cannot be denied. No amount of partisan politics can change it. As you have probably surmised, the Mr. Hoover to whom I am referring was president of the United States. The Mr. Roosevelt referred to now occupies that high station.

Therefore, although as a result of the depression President Roosevelt has been compelled to increase the national debt to a net amount about equal to the increase under Mr. Hoover, yet the income of the treasury under Mr. Roosevelt is 5 1/2 times the government's interest charges, while under Mr. Hoover it was only three times these charges, notwithstanding Mr. Hoover's increase in taxes during his administration.

THE criterion by which every lender and every wise investor judges an enterprise is this ratio of earnings to interest. Alongside this showing, as indicated above, the screams of some of the recovering industrial and financial patients, to the effect that our government is plunging headlong into overwhelming debt, are nothing but hysteria.

NEXT: Representative Chester C. Bolton, chairman, Republican Congressional Campaign committee, discusses "the most stupendous propaganda machine in the history of man."

We Need More Realism in Our 'Whodunits'

Away back toward the tail end of the 1929 boom, the newspapers carried the interesting information that President Hoover was an ardent reader of detective stories.

That was an odd little landmark in the literary history of our times. The detective story suddenly became respectable. When the head man himself law awake nights to find out who had committed the murder, the circulating library patron could hold up his chin. The detective story became, and still is, a leading staple of the publishers' trade.

But there are beginning to be signs that this field has been pretty well exploited. The traditional detective story, more or less a mathematical exercise in ingenuity, is beginning to change; and the chief reason is the fact that it seems to be almost impossible to write such a story in the accepted vein without making it—for American readers, at any rate—violently unreal.

In the detective story, the sleuth fastens upon certain clues and follows them relentlessly to the goal. The purest logic prevails. It may be necessary for him to grill the hide off one of the richest men in America, or to send a most beautiful maiden to the electric chair, but neither he nor the narrative ever falters.

Now any American who reads the daily papers knows that we don't do things that way in real life. The homicide squad sergeant who got rough with a Vincent Astor or a DuPont would lose his buttons before night, and we all know it; the beautiful maiden who is connected with the murder by a tenuous chain of circumstantial evidence may shudder in terror, in the story, but in real life she would go blithely before a jury, announce that she had shot in defense of her honor, and get off scot free.

Against that background, the ordinary detective story is exceedingly unreal. The reader has begun to rebel against it; and it would seem that there are just two things the authors can do about it.

They can give us hard-boiled and more or less realistic yarns in the vein of Dashiell Hammett and Erle Stanley Gardner, wherein the imperfections and odd quirks of American justice are fully recognized; or they can lay the scene of action in England—where, as all of us are quite confident, the law is the law, and rich men and beautiful maidens can be dealt with on a hard-boiled basis.

What they can't do is go on feeding us the traditional kind of yarn, in which high-priced private detectives or gentleman amateurs go gaily along doing such things as were never seen on land or sea.

America just isn't the country for that. Even the mystery story, sooner or later, must become recognizable as at least a faint imitation of the real thing.

New York scientists have developed a transparent model of a human being—a lot of trouble when there are so many persons anyone can see through.

The life of the party in midwest heat areas this summer was the man who could spin yarns so thrilling they made the blood run cold.

Argentine Corn Imports Show a Sharp Reduction

WASHINGTON—A sharp decrease in United States imports of Argentine corn during the current marketing season was reported today by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Imports since the beginning of the Argentine marketing season on April 1 through August 31, totaled 4,872,000 bushels—a reduction of 80 per cent from the 24,805,000 bushels imported during the same period of 1935.

year's Argentine corn crop, which is 379,900,000 bushels, compared with the record crop of 451,943,000 bushels in 1935.

Stocks of corn in Argentina totaled 300,200,000 bushels on August 15, 1936. Deducting exports between that date and September 25, and deducting estimated consumption during the remainder of the season, leaves an exportable balance of about 195,000,000 bushels as of September 25.

Bureau officials said that some Argentine shipments destined to the United States may be diverted to Canada which last week removed all import duties on Argentine corn for the remainder of the year.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By NEA Service
WOMEN still do the cooking. But the men seem to be doing the asking. In the last few weeks several good wives have written rather desperately, saying their menfolk have suddenly started a butterscotch hunt. They want more butterscotch pies, bigger and richer butterscotch cakes, and butterscotch sauce on everything from ice cream to hot waffles.

Butterscotch Pie
Here's a butterscotch pie recipe with authority. For the crust, use 1 1/2 cups pastry flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup lard or other shortening, ice water. Begin by mixing salt and flour. Reserve 2 teaspoons lard. Then with finger tips, case knife, pastry mixer or what ever you like to use best blend rest of flour and lard. Moisten dough reservedly with ice water. Turn on floured board. Pat with affection. Roll out and then work in those other 2 teaspoons of lard.

Cover an inverted pie plate with the dough, pricking it in several places to prevent formation of air bubbles. Bake in very hot oven about 12 minutes. Remove from tin, invert tin to original position, and rest crust gently on it. Return to oven just long enough to brown the inside of the pastry shell. That's your basis for the butterscotch answer that will silence any husband.

Cook together in a sauce pan for two minutes 1 cup brown sugar and 4 tablespoons butter. It should make brown syrup. The cooking is done in the top of a double boiler, placed directly over a low flame. Now place the top over hot water. Add to sugar syrup 1 2/3 cups milk, and bring to the boiling point.

Mix 1-3 cup bread flour and 1-3 teaspoon salt with 1-3 cup milk. Add this to the hot syrup mixture and cook another 15 minutes. Beat 3 eggs until light, then add to hot syrup. Cook another 2 minutes. Remove from fire and add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

This is the secret of contentment which fills that perfect pie shell. Over it all, spread a cool coating of whipped cream. A meringue can be used instead, but it seems, according to statistics that gentlemen prefer whipped cream.

Banana-Butterscotch Cake
And surely nothing but loving kindness could fill a man's breast after his hungry eye has lit upon a banana-butterscotch cake. Use your favorite layer cake recipe for the batter. When it is made, grease a square cake pan. Over the bottom arrange sliced bananas to form a mellow base for the cake to rise from. Sprinkle the bananas with lemon juice and pour in the batter to about 3-4 inch thickness. Bake in moderate oven until done. Cut in round squares.

Cover with butterscotch sauce either home-made or bought in glass bottles, heated and then poured out for royal service. Pour a tablespoon of whipped cream on top just before eating.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—Al Smith, in addition to attacking the New Deal with his bitterest brand of scorn, will endorse Governor Landon by name, says an inside tip.

That's the answer to a question many politicians have been asking themselves—assuming, of course, that Smith doesn't change his mind.

Some of the Republican strategists now say privately that Smith will cut more heavily into the Roosevelt vote than they previously anticipated, mainly in large cities such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and Detroit.

Democrats consulted on that point are divided between those who say Smith will give votes to Roosevelt as often as he speaks and those who feel that Smith will be helpful to Roosevelt in some areas and harmful in others.

The question as to whether Smith, in campaign speeches, would actually come out for Landon has been a question of whether this lifelong Democrat could actually be persuaded to declare for a Republican candidate other than by implication.

The inside tip from Republican sources is that Smith has so decided. Old associates of both Smith and Roosevelt admit that the bitterness which has grown up between the two men is now almost in the incredible stage.

It may also be considered news, especially when you consider the prodigious oratorical activities of Col. Frank Knox, that the Democratic vice presidential candidate is lined up for only one speech. But others are expected to follow.

It is common talk in Washington that Garner does considerable grousing in private about the New Deal. One story is that he blames the New Deal because he now has to pay peacn pickers 75 cents instead of 50 cents a day.

But Jack does keep reasserting his loyalty to Roosevelt in private conversations and has pointed out to many bosom friends that no one could possibly agree with Roosevelt or any other man on all points of a program as big as that which Roosevelt initiated.

The real strategists in the Democratic high command have finally concluded that they have only one speaker this year worth mentioning. That's Roosevelt.

The other New Deal speakers are local heroes, just window dressing.

One question this raises is whether Roosevelt can be more effective than Landon and all the other Republican orators put together.

There were those who felt that Secretary Harold Ickes would be the nearest thing to a tower of strength among New Deal speakers. But they have been more pessimistic since Ickes undertook to wipe the floor with Hearst in a radio speech.

The delivery wasn't very exciting and the content wasn't up to expectations of those who wanted to see Hearst thoroughly smeared (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

VICE PRESIDENT JOHN N. GARNER will make a radio speech for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket. This is news to Republicans, who have been asserting that Garner had gone into the silence because he was personally

Nominees Urged To Support the National Ticket

AUSTIN — Every Democratic nominee for public office in Texas will be urged to exert his efforts toward the re-election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, under a plan announced here this week by Roy Miller, state director of the national Democratic campaign.

Mr. Miller estimated there are more than 5000 such nominees for precinct, county, district and state offices.

"Active work by them among their friends and supporters in the interest of the party's Presidential ticket would be invaluable," Director Miller declared. "I'm sure they will all be glad of this opportunity to aid the party which nominated them for public office."

Personal letters, soliciting the support of the 5000 or more Democratic nominees in Texas and urging that they make active campaigns in their respective counties for the re-election of President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner will be sent from state headquarters over Mr. Miller's signature.

Many of the county clerks in the 254 counties in Texas already have furnished the state office with lists of the Democratic nominees in their counties, and letters to the nominees will be mailed out as soon as additional lists are received.

"We will urge each Democratic nominee to work not only in behalf of his election at the polls on Nov. 3, but to work untiringly for his party's Presidential nominees, so that Texas may roll up another mammoth Democratic vote," Director Miller said.

A large Democratic vote in Texas is essential because of the abolition of the two-thirds rule at the national Democratic convention last June.

Southern Democrats who unsuccessfully opposed abolition of the two-thirds rule, nevertheless gained a partial victory in the promise to base future representation in the convention on the Democratic vote in each state.

"For that reason," Mr. Miller explained, "it is all-important to Texas Democracy that we poll as large a vote as possible in the November Presidential election."

Musical Pillows May Lull Sleepy Passengers to Sleep

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON — America's railroads are considering — honest injun — the problem of whether they ought to sing lullabies to their passengers at bedtime, or let them continue counting sheep. The slumbered melodies would waft softly from musical pillows, installed in every berth. If a passenger rested with his ear on the pillow, he'd hear sweet music. If he slept on his back, he'd hear nothing. He could snore in peace. The transportation moguls, members of the telegraph and telephone section of the Association of American Railroads and representing practically every big railway in the country, worried about songs-for-sleepy-travelers at an executive session here at the Mayflower hotel.

Q. How many states are now claiming the right to tax E. H. R. Green's $80,000,000 estate under their inheritance tax laws? G. B. A. Four states are claiming that he was one of their citizens in a way to subject the estate to inheritance taxes, which in Texas would amount to about $12,000,000. They are Texas, New York, Massachusetts and Florida.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By NEA Service DINNER cooked practically all in one dish and fish for Friday — there's a problem in labor economy and menu making. The answer is as easy as one, two, three—first quality canned fish, a medley of vegetables, and buoyant biscuits keeping everything shipshape. Pare and dice enough potatoes to measure 2 1/2 cups. Plunge these into boiling salted water; and add immediately 1 onion, chopped, and 1/4 cup chopped raw celery. Cook until tender, drain. Save the vegetable stock to use later in the recipe. Drain Off Oil You need 1 1/2 cups flaked fish with canned salmon is one of the best. When you have drained off the oil and flaked the fish, mix it with 3/4 cup canned peas, 1/2 potato cut in narrow strips, and 1-3 teaspoon black pepper. Stir in the cooked potatoes, celery and onion. Grease a 1 1/2 quart heat-resistant glass baking dish. Place in it the fish mixture and over it pour 1/2 cup vegetable stock and 1/2 cup milk, perked up with a few drops lemon juice. Use a fork to blend the liquid and solid into a smooth texture. Dot with bits of butter, using in all 2 tablespoons. That's almost a meal, right there. But fluffy, sea-going biscuits crowning such glory will turn Friday dinner into a gala event. Use your favorite biscuit recipe. Cut dough into small biscuits and arrange on top of the fish mixture. Place in hot oven for about 20 minutes. When the biscuits are brown, rush this hot, pungent dish straight to the table. And don't forget that glass of tart currant jelly. he can turn it off if his ears begin to hurt. The expert who explained all this said the harmony would be so soft and so sweet, that nobody could hear it unless he rested his ear against his own pillow. He said that the pillows not only were intended to lure the sandman for all the passengers, but also to entertain them during the day. Travelers thus may hug their pillows and hear, while speeding 30 miles an hour at noon, how to bake an angel food cake, how hogs are selling at Chicago, and how the weather is back home. The experts pondering the pillow problem and other communication developments peculiar to railroading, include J. M. Symes, vice-president, Association of American Railroads; H. C. Chace, Superintendent of Telegraph, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, and numerous telephone and telegraph officials. We asked for an invitation to the session, but the association said no, it didn't think we'd be interested, account of its technicality. That's where the railroaders are mistaken. If we had two of those pillows, one to sit on and

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a run-down Blue Grass farm with their lovable, indolent grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKE.
 Kate is engaged to MORGAN PRENTISS, but is neglected by him for EVE ELWELL, just home from college.
 Major Meed goes on a spree and is cared for by the girls and Althy and Zeke. Kate and Caroline start to Louisville with Zeke to deliver four baked hams ordered by a club. Their sedan is struck by a car with an eastern license. The driver, a stranger, gives them $50 for repairs and consents to take the two girls and the hams to the city. En route he asks to buy the hams. Kate writes out the formula for curing and smoking the hams. Kate asks $500 for it. He hastily pays the sum when Kate informs him that she has seen him steal the license plates from their damaged car. The girls bank the money and buy a new dress for Kate to wear to a dance.

Jeff flushed angrily. "Tryin' to get me back to the mountains, are you?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V
 DOWN at State University a young man of 24 had just received his diploma.
 Thomas Jefferson Howard was his name.
 There had been no one there to see him graduate—no one who belonged to him, that is. He was the last of his clan in that rough mountain county that fringed the lowlands and was yet a part of the hills.
 He had come down at 21—three years ago—"to finish his learnin'" at the university of his native state. During those three years he had accomplished a four-year course, studying even during the summer weeks to win his credits. Through it all, he had been shy and proud and sullen, knowing himself to be "different" and resenting it. It was not merely that he was older than the youths around him. He was unmistakably "mountain" in speech and gesture and appearance. Mountain, too, in his silences and his suspicious reserve.

A girl had laughed at him as he had crossed the campus, half an hour ago. A very pretty girl. She had been strolling between two dapper lower classmen in white flannels, and as Jeff Howard passed the trio they had looked at him without troubling to veil the amusement in their eyes.
 The girl's laughing voice had floated back to him, "who's the big scarer?"
 "Thomas Jefferson Howard," he heard one of the boys say, accenting the high-sounding name with a diabolical drawl.
 He could imagine the rest. They'd told the girl about his nicknames, of course, "Old Constitution" and "Old Democracy." About his futile attempts at dancing. His eternal selection of the wrong clothes. His tucking his napkin under his chin that time at the freshman banquet. Yes, they could have kept that pretty girl in stitches for an hour, if they'd wanted to, just telling her the things Jeff Howard used to do when he was trying to be "one of the boys." . . . After that first year he'd quit trying.

HE repeated his own name with a laugh, "Thomas Jefferson Howard?" No wonder there'd been a titter when that name was called in the graduate list and he had responded. What had his parents meant, tying a name like Thomas Jefferson to a child in a cabin in clearing?
 He put his head between his hands and cursed in bitterness and defeat.
 Presently he discarded the cap and gown, picked up his hat and went purposefully from the room and the house. Gaining the street, he went striding toward a town-bound street car and swung aboard it.
 Actually, Jeff Howard was not homely. He was six feet three in height and large of bone. His head was superbly moulded, his features strong and good. But, like many mountain people, he was thin and awkward and slightly stooped. His brown hair stood up crazily. His sharp blue eyes wore a narrowed expression, as if looking intently down the barrel of a shotgun.
 When he had reached the business section of the town, Jeff Howard went into an office building and took an elevator to the office of his lawyer.
 "Mr. McBain will see you, Mr. Howard," a secretary told him immediately. She was deferential, but he did not notice it.
 Here, indeed, was the irony of the thing—this awkward mountain man was wealthy. During the last year of his parents' lives, an especially fine vein of coal had been found on their land. Jeff, at 20, had inherited it. For a year thereafter he had studied with a tutor in one of the semi-mountain towns, laboriously filling in the gaps of his patchy elementary education and preparing himself for college. He had believed that a college degree would make him like the people of the cities and the lowlands.

JEFF HOWARD sat across the desk from his lawyer and wasted no words. "I've graduated," he said. "I'm ready to get out of this town." Waving aside Mr. McBain's congratulations, he went on curtly: "I want to talk to you about the mortgages I hold. You told me most of 'em are in Blue Grass property, didn't you?"
 "Well," he continued at a nod of assent from the lawyer, "I want to take over the best farm I can lay my two hands on."
 Mr. McBain rang for his secretary and called for Mr. Howard's papers. He was glad to see the young mountaineer taking some interest in his property at last.
 After McBain had looked over the papers he cleared his throat and said uncertainly: "There's Major Sam Meed's farm over in Shelby county. It's been practically yours for a year now, but I've held off, trying to give the old man a break. You don't like to foreclose in a case like that."
 "A case like what?" asked Jeff Howard coldly.
 Mr. McBain took off his glasses and held them in his hand. He looked thoughtful and regretful. He was trying to think of what he could say to induce his client to forget old Major Meed's farm. He did not realize until too late that he had said the wrong thing entirely.
 "Major Meed is as fine an old gentleman as you'll find in Kentucky," he explained, not dreaming of the bitter feeling in the young man's heart. "His people were aristocrats, yet simple and genuine. His family has held this farm for generations. The house has never been lived in by anyone not named Meed."

 "What's the house like?" asked Jeff Howard. It was significant that he asked about the house, rather than the land.
 "It's situated about five miles beyond Shelby on the Louisville pike," Mr. McBain replied. "A big red brick house, sitting about a quarter-mile off the pike beyond a woodland. I believe it's considered pretty good, architecturally."
 Jeff Howard filled his briar pipe, lit it and took several deep puffs. "Get in touch with Meed's lawyer," he said briefly, "or his banker—whatever's handlin' it. I'd like to take over the place as soon as possible. I'm lookin' for a suitable place to live. This location sounds all right to me."

MR. MCBAIN shook his head. "I wouldn't advise it, Howard. I wouldn't advise it at all. You'd find yourself in a hornet's nest of ill will. The entire county would be down on you. Major Meed's a sort of institution in that neck of the woods. People respect him, love him."
 "But not enough to pay his debts for him," interrupted Jeff Howard. "Well, I don't neither. He's nothin' to me. Get me the place as soon as it's legal."
 "Look here, Mr. Howard," said the lawyer earnestly, "you've got a couple of other farms that would do you just as well. Maybe better. Now there's one near Berea, closer to your old home—"
 Jeff flushed angrily. "Tryin' to get me back to the mountains, are you? Well, I'm not goin' back. I'm through with the tall hills. I'm settlin' in the Blue Grass, and if the snobs don't like it, then they can lump it. . . . Look here, McBain. I'll tell it to you straight. I'm sick as hell of havin' these blue-bloods and near blue-bloods crackin' their faces in a grin when they hear my hillbilly twang. Well, I'm ready to give 'em somethin' to think about. Somethin' to hate me about, if you want to put it that way."
 The lawyer tried to speak, but the angry boy brushed him aside. "I'll take the best farm I can lay my hands on. You've already admitted that's the Meed place. Well, I'm goin' to settle down on it with a horse and a shotgun and a couple of dogs. I don't need to farm. I'll let it go to ruin if I please. I'll cut down all those trees they're so stinkin' proud of and plant tobacco round the stumps. I'll—"
 As he talked on, volently but purposefully, Mr. McBain knew that the Meed case was lost. He'd have to wire the old man's lawyers, Prentiss and Elwell down at Shelby, and tell them his client meant business.
 "Very well, Mr. Howard," he said formally. "If that's your last word I'll attend to the foreclosure at once. You realize, do you, that you get the house furnishings also in this case?"
 "I didn't know it," answered Jeff Howard, "but I'm right glad to hear it. I'll save me trouble. I'll need suitable furniture."
 He went back to his boarding house, grimly pleased with himself. He was about to humble a Blue Grass family. Maybe there'd be a girl. Like the one who had laughed at him this morning.

Reading, Studying, Sewing . . . Are Easier with Better Light

You can see by candle light and you can dig with a spoon. But when real work is to be done, seeing or digging, the job is less tiring if you use a good light or a good spade.

Reading, studying and sewing are "seeing tasks" that require both muscular and nervous effort. GOOD LIGHT reduces the nervous energy required to a minimum and safeguards eyesight. The new I. E. S. Better Sight Lamps are scientifically designed to provide a soft, glareless light that makes seeing easier. See these new lamps at our store and at electrical dealers.

Dog Population of Fort Worth Grows Despite Death Toll
 By United Press
 FORT WORTH—Thousands of dogs, probably 25,000, die annually in Fort Worth, but a high birth rate keeps the population on a constant increase.

City dog catchers kill more than 6,000 wandering canines each year. They pick up another 4,000 that die in various parts of the city. Hundreds of deaths are never reported.
 Despite this heavy toll, Dr. H. V. Cardone, city veterinarian, said Mother Nature gives Fort Worth all the dogs it needs—and more. Litters of puppies range in number from three to ten. Large dogs usually give birth to six to ten puppies, small ones three to six.

MARY HAD A LITTLE GOAT

This time it's a goat instead of a lamb, and it didn't follow her to school. But it came all the way from Turkey to show American children and others interested just what mohair looks like in its original state. Many and her brother seem on quite friendly terms with the fellow, but he's stuffed, you see, and quite harmless. Used now as an educational exhibit, the goat was first presented to Montgomery Ward in recognition of the fact that the company sold more mohair in one year than any other of the world's retailers. Furniture upholstered with this silklike but tough material may be seen at the Ward store, where it is being featured during Ward Week.

Courtesy Extended the Jarvises Before Leaving for New Home
 Early week social events were begun with a hospitable affair on Monday night when co-hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. White, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Fontaine, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. John Hassen, and Dr. and Mrs. E. K. Green entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hassen, 203 Sue Street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jarvis, Jr., who leave Ranger Friday for their new home in Dallas.

The gala hour was opened with a piano and violin number with Mrs. Weldon Webb at the piano and Miss Evelyn Long playing the violin. Members from the Little Theatre, directed by Mrs. L. E. White, namely, Jewel Christine White and Lozelle Johnson, gave readings.

P. O. Hatley offered clever remarks, followed by Mrs. E. R. Green appearing on the program and directing the men guests in the game, "On the Road to Mandalay."

Musical selections by the above musicians were given at intervals during the evening, and delicious refreshments served a number of friends, chiefly made up of associates of Mr. Jarvis, who tendered his resignation at registrar of Ranger High School and Ranger Junior College, and members of the Church of Christ, the church which holds Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis' membership.

The loss of this popular couple and their family will be greatly felt since they have made Ranger their home for the past seven years, and have at all times taken full interest in all better undertakings for Ranger. They take with them a host of sincerest good wishes from those who have enjoyed their friendship and contact in so many pleasant ways.

Man Forces Son To Sleep In Pen With the Chickens
 HOUSTON — Neighbors complained to police that L. L. Lewis, 42, relief worker, forced his five-year-old son, Bobby, to sleep in a pen with chickens and a goat.
 Officers investigated and found the child sleeping in the pen, as reported. Jurors found the father guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and sentenced him to serve 60 days in jail.
 Frank Williford, county judge-at-law, suspended the sentence, commenting that he did not wish to take the father from his family and saying that "this is a case for a welfare agency."

HUMBLE 997 MOTOR OIL

That quality of a motor oil which makes it a fine oil for one man is a minor consideration for another. Humble 997 Motor Oil is a universal favorite; it gives every user everything he asks for in a motor oil, with a little added. It is a superlatively fine oil that stands alone. It costs a few cents more than ordinary oils, but it gives you value plus for that slight extra cost. Try Humble 997 Motor Oil—you'll use it regularly.

Humble 997 Motor Oil is made from the heart (a very small percentage) of specially selected crude stocks by a special patented process. It is, moreover, a 100 per cent paraffin oil. Like all Humble products, it's continuously improved. Available in bulk or refinery sealed cans as you prefer.

HUMBLE OIL & REFINING CO.

Typically Texan is the story of the growth of the Texas ports

In 1836, the whole long Texas coastline was practically unknown to shipping. Now, wherever seamen gather, the ports of Texas are richly praised. The story of the building of the Texas ports is a story of far-sighted men, of projects broadly conceived and faithfully executed; a story of determination and the will to win; in short, a story typically Texan!

AS THE PORTS of Texas receive the praise of mariners, so Humble products are recommended by Texas motorists. Texans know that the Humble sign stands for this fundamental Humble policy: Humble motor fuels and Humble motor oils must be the best you can buy.
 So Humble motor fuels and Humble motor oils are continuously improved; slight day-to-day improvements keep them always up to date—always a little ahead of the rest.

Try Humble Motor Fuels and Humble Motor Oils; test them the sure way—in your car. Stop today at a Humble Service Station or at a Humble dealer's; fill your tank with a Humble motor fuel, drain and refill with a Humble motor oil.
