War Helps Natural Foes of Human Race

Typhus fever has seen its opportunity once more. It is now appearing in Spain, taking advantage of the opening always created by war, hunger, and dirt.

Typhus is a strange and terrible disease. It almost seems, sometimes, as if it had been devised as a course to punish man's own folly.

It is caused by a virus which is transmitted by the bite of the body louse or the rat flea. Whenever men create one of those confused and disordered situations in which thousands of people are made subject to the bites of these tiny creatures, the door is opened wide and typhus is invited to step right in.

It is obvious, of course, that typhus is a plague which can appear only when human civilization has temporarily broken down. It does not go sweeping across America, England, or the peaceful nations of Europe, for the simple reason that the people in those lands live in a way that makes a typhus epidemic impossible.

The normal procedure of ordinary social life is their protection.

But when war or revolution or other upheaval breaks into that routine, typhus can and does appear. And its appearance ought to be warning enough that mankind occupies this planet on sufferance, after all.

All humanity's intelligence and energy are needed for the simple job of making the earth a safe place to live. The day when the Black Death killed two-thirds of the people in Europe is not so far behind us that we can afford to forget about it.

And it is in that connection that the threat of a new world war takes on its most frightening aspect. The killing and destruction would in themselves be bad enough, heaven knows; yet the chief danger would be the fact that the fabric of modern civilization itself—the intricate web that staves off such age-old threats as famine and pestilence—would be torn apart.

If you could once get this picture of ourselves as occupants of a world which is more than ready to blot us out of the picture if we give it a chance—if we could see what a narrow margin it is, after all, that saves us from death by starvation and plague—we might get sense enough to stop destroying our defenses by making war on one another.

The race has enough of a job defending itself against its natural enemies. As it increases the complexity of its social organization, it increases its defenses—but, also, it make itself all the more vulnerable, if those defenses ever break down.

Can we, some day, recognize that fact—and, discovering thereby that war is too great a risk to be taken, devise some way of living at peace?

By NEA Service HOT pineapple muffins understand the amenities of early morning breakfast. To make 12 of these specialties, sift flour, then measure 2 cups. To it, add 2 teaspoons combination baking powder or 2 1-2 teaspoons tartare baking powder, 3-4 cup sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Sift all together into mixing bowl. Beat together until fluffy 1 egg, 1 cup milk and 4 tablespoons melted butter. If you want to keep the high cost of butter worry out of your budget, use a good quality of oleomargarine instead. Or better, use 1 tablespoon of butter for flavor, and 3 tablespoons of the substitute for fat and economy. Add the egg mixture to the flour mixture, beating only enough to dampen all the flour. Now fold in 1-2 cup canned crushed pineapple. Grease 12 muffin pans, fill three-quarters full with the dough and bake in quite a hot oven for about 20 minutes.

Texans Are Urged To Conserve All Supplies of Water

AUSTIN—Texas today was urged to conserve all underground and surface water supplies by the Texas Planning Board's water resources committee in a statement of policy made in connection with an exhaustive survey which is being made of the state's water supplies. Agriculture was asked by the committee to conserve water through methods as terracing, contour plowing, strip cropping, rotation of crops, destruction of weeds in pastures, control of livestock grazing and the retirement of timber of such areas as are best adapted to the growing of timber crops.

The committee also advised the construction of storage dams on all tributaries as well as on the main streams of Texas for the purpose of storing water for every useful purpose, as well as for the prevention of floods and the regulation and control of stream flow. Legislation which will enable the State Board of Water Engineers to assert a positive control over the utilization of underground and surface water, including drainage water in artificially constructed channels, was proposed in the committee's statement of policy.

The State Department of Health was requested to strictly enforce existing regulations against pollution of Texas streams and the cooperation of the Texas State Parks Board and the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission was asked in the development of water recreational areas in the state.

Turning to the threat of future floods, the committee recommended the construction of a co-ordinated system of levees in connection with flood storage along the main streams for the purpose of protecting and reclaiming alluvial lands and protecting municipalities against flood damage.

The committee also recommended the encouragement of friendly cooperation between Texas and Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and between Mexico and the United States, for the conservation of the waters of the Pecos, Canadian, Red and Sabine rivers, and the Rio Grande.

Dr. Herty's research has been sponsored by the industrial committee of Savannah.

Dallas Sees Hope For Improvements During Next Year

By JAMES P. DOBBS
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Tex. — City officials turned their vision toward scheduled and hoped-for construction projects during the next twelve months as the 1935-36 fiscal year passed with $161,000 still in the treasury till. Three and a half million dollars in bonds were issued in the "Centennial" fiscal year along with regular expenditures totaling $10,005,314, including interest and sinking funds.

One of the greatest monuments to the present city administration—the civic center at the Texas Centennial exposition—was erected at a cost of nearly $3,000,000. Improvements throughout the municipality have been many.

The fire department, in order to operate more efficiently, rebuilt an engine truck, a pump truck, and a ladder truck and has purchased three new district chiefs' cars.

From the WPA the city has obtained approval of construction and improvement jobs whose construction costs total $1,142,848.47 of which the city contributed or obligated itself to pay $156,781.80 and of which Federal funds amounted to $986,066.67. Of the total construction cost jobs already completed have accounted for $143,783.89. Construction cost of

Ordinance May Be Protection for Men Against Women

By JAMES P. DOBBS
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Tex. — An ordinance providing a penalty for women accosting men as well as men accosting women will be proposed to the city council by Municipal Judge King Williamson who is conducting a strenuous campaign to curb prostitutes.

"A few cities have ordinances providing just as heavy fines for females accosting males as they do for males accosting females," Judge Williamson said, "and I think passage of an ordinance of that kind here would be one of the most effective measures we could take against vagrant women."

The Dallas ordinance prohibiting males from accosting females provides fines of $1 to $100.

Capt. Max Doughty, police vice squad, concurred with Judge Williamson. He said the plan would be feasible and effective, because officers at present have difficulty in obtaining evidence against street women.

Under the new ordinance the testimony of a man would be all that would be necessary for a conviction unless the woman had witnessed the contrary.

Judge Williamson's attempt to curb the illicit trade was due to complaints from fathers of high school youths who had been tempted to spend their lunch money in the house of prostitution.

Capt. Doughty assigned plainclothesmen to watch various neighborhoods and pick up the women and warn them to stay away from students.

Other suggestions made by Judge Williamson in the effort to control the prostitutes were:

1. The primary answer to the problem is in the homes, where people must have the proper social training to keep them from the clutches of vagrant women—many of them diseased.

2. State laws should be amended to give police powers to force internment of diseased vagrant women until they are cured.

3. A program of education in the physical and scientific factors of the sex problem should be instituted in the public school system to supplement present moral training.

4. Young people of both sexes should be able to obtain information about prophylactics.

5. A 'red light' district should be established with all vagrant women allowed to operate freely in that area of the city.

City officials predicted that by 1937 an enlarged municipal social disease clinic to treat between 1,500 and 2,000 patients a week would be installed at the city hospital.

Although the present clinic is capable of examining only about 60 patients a week, Dr. J. W. Bass, city health officer, said there were 4,800 social disease cases in Dallas. However, not more than a third of them would be eligible for treatment in the clinic.

PATHFINDERS for the PURSE

There have been many definitions of advertising . . . some of them simple, some of them profound. There is room for another one. Let us say simply, but truly, that the advertisements in this paper are Pathfinders for the Purse.

Figuratively and literally, that's what they are. Pathfinders. Trail-blazers. Official guides to the best values in merchandise and service. Time-savers. Money-savers. Menu-cards, if you will, for the diet to be found in stores and shops.

The modern mother has many things to do with her time. She simply cannot afford to fritter her time and frazzle her temper by tearing all over town to find the merchandise she wants at the price her purse permits. She therefore reads the advertisements before setting out.

There's a tip here, then, for mothers . . . mothers and fathers and sisters and brothers. Read the advertisements, as you read a radio or movie guide. Let the newspaper in the home spare you the turmoil of town. Read the advertisements.

Presenting the phenomenal facts about GULFPRIDE THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

THE facts on this page sound hard to believe. But here is the reason why GULFPRIDE—and only GULFPRIDE—can accomplish such results . . . Gulf begins with selected Pennsylvania crude, refines it to a motor oil that equals the best—then further refines it by the exclusive Alchlor process. Only GULFPRIDE is made by this process—result of 15 years' research—the same scientific research that has made every Gulf product a leader. Read the facts below. Then drain your dirty summer-worn oil and refill with GULFPRIDE now. At all Gulf dealers.

THE U. S. NAVY specifications for motor oil, as well as those of all other government agencies, are bettered on every point by GULFPRIDE. For instance, this oil forms only 1/4 the amount of carbon allowed by Navy specifications. That's why GULFPRIDE almost completely banishes carbon cleaning.

AN AMAZING TEST. Bottle No. 1 shows a mixture of 6 famous Pennsylvania motor oils. Bottle No. 2 shows them after being put through Gulf's Alchlor process. Bottle No. 3 shows the 20% waste removed from these already highly-refined oils by Gulf's Alchlor process. This process starts where others stop! That's why GULFPRIDE is the world's finest motor oil.

TOPS IN THE AIR—8 out of the 11 winners in last year's National Air Races used GULFPRIDE OIL, the identical oil you can buy for your car at any Gulf dealer. This "aviator's oil" will take you farther before you need to add a quart than any oil you ever used!

Crayon Projects
In Texas History
It is easy to teach children history with penciled outline pictures of historical subjects and colored crayons. History taught in this way is never forgotten and a taste is created for more information.
"Centennial Projects, Texas Under Six Flags," contains 26 pages of outlines on many phases of Texas history and events, with cover showing the Texas Capitol under six flags, each in its correct colors. This beautiful project book mailed postpaid for 25 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

with federal officials regarding the project.
"Or," he added, "that money would have taken care of the construction of 50 or more small dams and reservoirs that have been contemplated from the beginning over a widespread area in West Texas on the headwaters of the main stream and its tributaries and on some of the minor tributaries."
He pointed out that the 13 major dams have been contemplated from the state merely to provide a nucleus around which would be grouped a large number of smaller dams and reservoirs that would provide the much needed water and flood protection to the fan-shaped area lying above and around the main reservoir.
"A careful and thorough investigation of the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation district yields the startling fact," the general manager declared in his statement, "that the tangible losses in 31 counties in the Brazos watershed as a result of the floods of late September and early October showed a total of something like $8,000,000."
"To be sure, this amount does not by any means represent the total loss resulting from this flood, because the intangible losses very frequently aggregate more than the tangible losses."
"And further, the records show that this was not the maximum flood, but on the contrary, has been exceeded several times within the history of the Brazos and its tributaries.

"While it is true that there is nothing especially remarkable about this particular flood, still the amazing feature is that with the natural facilities at hand to prevent the all too frequent recurrence of such catastrophes, we have all these years permitted ourselves to be at the mercy of the elements."
"It must be remembered that immediately prior to this flood devastation, many of the counties that suffered the flood loss had been included in what was known as the "drought stricken area," so that we see ourselves within a period of 30 days subjected to the extremes of drought and flood.
"So the word 'amazing' seems to be well used when we consider that by the use of our natural facilities of storing flood waters and thus preventing the damage from inundation, we may at the same time provide the means for relieving in large measure the harmful effects of droughts.
"The Brazos project was conceived and is now put forward as a project for both conservation and flood prevention, and when we consider this last damage of $8,000,000, we cannot help but consider at the same time what benefits would accrue from expenditure of this sum in the construction of dams within the watershed."
Dams on which surveys have been completed are the Leon (Bell County), $2,379,831; Cordova Bend (Hood County), $1,965,558; and Lampasas (Bell County), $1,876,440, or a total of $6,021,829, compared to the recent flood loss of $8,000,000.
Other dams, most of them being surveyed now, are: Breckenridge, (Throckmorton County), $3,367,687; Seymour (Stonewall County), $3,113,301; Turkey Creek (Palo Pinto County) $1,873,168; Inspira-

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a Blue Grass farm, Meed Meadows, with their idyllic, lovable grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKI. Kate is engaged to MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE ELWELL, beautiful and wealthy.
Major Meed, addicted to drink, loses Meed Meadows to JEFF HOWARD, bitter young mountaineer who owns coal lands. The Meeds move into a dilapidated tenant house nearby. In her resentment, Kate treats Jeff rudely. He responds with insolence. Kate and Caroline go to Shelby to attend a dance at the home of their friend, CYNTHIA CHENAULT. Major Meed, at home, dreams of buried Meed silver, now lost. At the dance Kate discovers that Morgan is fascinated by Eve. In desperation she asks him to sit out a dance. When he makes love to her she is happy again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII
THE day after the Chenault dance found Kate at home again and strangely restless. She said to the old servant in the middle of the afternoon, "Go rest yourself, Althy, and let me do the ironing!"

"No, m'am," came the reply. "It's perticular 'bout my ironin'. You go take a nap."
But Kate was not sleepy, in spite of the fact that she and her sister had risen quietly at 9 and driven home before the rest of the house-party was awake.
At this moment a commotion among the fowls in the yard sent Althy hurrying outdoors, and Kate took up the iron to finish a half-ironed sheet.

Kate as she worked, thought of the electric iron and sweeper and refrigerator that had been theirs at Meed Meadows. Those things that had lightened their housework.
Caroline came into the kitchen in kimono and bedroom slippers. Caroline's face was flushed from her nap. "Hello, Kate honey, let me help you? Where's Althy?"
Kate said, "No help. Just sit, I think Althy's killing a snake. The chickens were making an awful stir, and after she went out I heard a lot of pounding and muttering. What was it you wanted to be reminded of today? Something about old Mrs. Dodd Chenault and a teap?"

"Oh yes!" Caroline said. "The old lady's visiting the Chenaults, you know. She came from Lexington last week. Well, she came downstairs last night just before supper to look the party over. Didn't you see her, by the way?"
"No," Kate answered, not looking up. "I was outside with Morgan. Wasn't it sort of late for her to be up?"
"It was, of course, but everybody thought it was awfully cute of her. Going on 90, and coming down in a lace collar and false curls to look things over! The nurse was with her and she used a cane, but it was a risk on account of the slippery floors. We were all presented to her, and when she heard my name she began to talk about Meed Meadows. It seems she used to visit there when she was young. Before the Civil War—can you imagine that? Well, she wanted to know if the family'd ever recovered the tea service, and when I asked her what tea service, she said, 'Why, the big sterling silver one they used for General LaFayette, of course!'"

They found the old gentleman seated in a chair, gently swishing at a fly with his ancient Panama hat. Kate exclaimed, "Did you ever hear anything about any buried silver over at the old place, Granddad?"
Major Meed snipped swishing and looked at her. "I thought I told Zeke to keep his mouth shut about that dream. I'd like to whack his black hide for him! That silver's gone forever!"

Caroline interrupted hastily. "Zeke didn't do it, Granddad. It was I. It's just a coincidence. I've been telling Kate the story old Mrs. Dodd Chenault told me last night at the party. She's Cynthia's great-great aunt, you know, from Lexington. Well, it seems she used to visit at Meed Meadows when she was young, and she was recalling a big silver tea service that was used for LaFayette. She said it was buried for safe keeping during the Civil War and never found again. Kate and I would like to know if it's true."

"It's true," Major Meed replied. "but I'm right sorry it's come up. Things like that just prey on the mind and do no good. I reckon it was intended for that silver to stay underground. My mother had every tree in the back yard and orchard dug around, but never a sign of it."
"Why didn't she know where it was buried?" Kate demanded.
"Well," said Major Meed, "it was this way. Ma had a sick child to tend. My father was off at war and most of the slaves had left. One day—one August morning, it happened—she heard a raiding party was coming through, so she wrapped the silver in some old velvet curtains and told Pompey, the butler, to bury it quick. She pointed out a spade to him in the flower-bed and told him to bury the stuff under a tree either in the back yard or orchard. 'Dig deep,' she said, 'and put the sod back carefully!' She went upstairs then to see the sick child, and that's the last she thought of it for a month, for little John died of typhoid, and she just gave herself up to her grief. Pompey himself left the day the soldiers came through. He just laid down some pans he was scouring, they said, took off his apron and walked off with the troops. But they don't think he ever betrayed the family about the silver. He was honest and loyal. Pompey's only fault was being lazy."

The girls listened to their grandfather intently. To Caroline it was merely a sweet old romance, colored with sadness. To Kate it was a tale "to be continued." Already she was plotting.
"Wives are needed for Alaskan bachelors." Volunteers should remember that when northern men sit up all night with a sick friend, they sit up six months.
"He's daid all right," Althy assured her. She was about to go into gruesome details when Kate interrupted her impatiently. "Never mind that, Althy. Where's Granddad?"
Althy was resentful. It was not every day that she killed a snake. "Major Sam's jus' went in de front door," she said sullenly. "I reckon he went to get hisself a nap in de parlor. Leave 'm lone."
"He'll have to talk to me first," Kate replied. Caroline followed her, genuinely alarmed over the

Meeting Pleasant Entertainment

The home of Mrs. Edna Williamson proved most hospitable on Wednesday for members of the Julia Alexander Grove, No. 1954, of the Woodmen circle chapter, when they were entertained with a buffet luncheon carrying pretty appointments of autumn colors.

Foursome tables were neatly surfaced and centered with fall flowers.

The luncheon plate of baked chicken with dressing had all the trimmings served with a dessert and coffee course.

After a business session was disposed of the afternoon was spent in quilting.

Wednesday afternoon, October 28th will bring for the entertainment of the grove a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. Lena Patterson, at 2:30 o'clock.

On November 6th, the district convention is to be held at Mineral Wells. The local grove has made extensive plans to attend the session.

Present at yesterday's session of its personnel was itself a stroke of genius. Robert Z. Leonard, the man who directed "The Great Ziegfeld," followed with his new picture and his technique is evident throughout.

Robert Montgomery, in the title role, performs what last night's audiences considered his finest part, if applause is any indication. Madge Evans, opposite him, was delightful. Frank Morgan, of "The Great Ziegfeld" cast, appears with Billie Burke, widow of the famous impresario, in her first role under her new M-G-M contract. Eric Blore, Robert Benchley, Ralph Forbes and others give remarkably good performances in their respective roles.

The story of the clever young cartoonist created by Wodehouse is one that has sent uproarious laughter around the reading world. On the screen it is even more hilarious. "Piccadilly Jim" definitely established itself on its opening night as one of the most popular screen plays to reach this city in recent years. It is amusement of a high order, with no other purpose, and it succeeds admirably.

RANGER RAISES $350 FOR THE PARTY'S FUND

M. R. Newnham, who had charge of the two-day drive for funds for the national Democratic campaign, today reported that more than $350 had been secured in Ranger during the drive.

"It is remarkable the response with which my canvass for the fund met," Newnham stated today in making a written report of his work. "I was really surprised that everyone was so willing to help the cause with such nice contributions, and a number whom I had not been able to see called and informed me that they had donations for the fund."

The written report of the drive follows in full.

October 22, 1936.

I am happy to advise you that we have already collected more than $350 in Ranger for the Democratic National Campaign Committee, which is being sent to headquarters today with the name and amount of each subscriber as required. As you know, we are not permitted to collect funds from corporations, but individuals in the whole have been liberal in the giving considering their income and circumstances and they have certainly been whole-hearted and enthusiastic in supporting our gallant leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, that has done so much for this United States, especially the average citizen. It has been a real pleasure to work on this drive because so far in all the contacts I have made, I haven't been turned down but one time and that was by a man whose heart was right but who didn't have the money just now.

Yours very truly,
M. R. NEWNHAM.

Weather Fails to Keep Crowd from Revival Meeting

In spite of the sudden wintry snap a fair crowd turned out Wednesday evening to hear Dr. J. L. Cleveland at the First Presbyterian Church.

The speaker used as his theme, "Prayer." In a simple and earnest manner he told of the power prayer brings to those who have faith and wish to exercise it. He stated his earnest belief that the only thing which can fill churches today is the devout prayers of a praying people. God answers the prayers of those who are right with Him. Dr. Cleveland stressed the importance of family prayer and the unselfish prayer for all churches and all people. He asked his hearers to pray for the power of God in the meeting.

Services will be at 7:30 tonight and each week-day night. The revival meeting will close with the Sunday night services.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, humpago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, setting up night sweats, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hodges and Young Win Wednesday

Two fast and snappy football games were played on the ward school field on Pine street Wednesday afternoon, with a large crowd along the sidelines cheering for the four teams.

In the first game Young defeated Cooper by a score of 13 to 0 and in the second game Hodges Oak Park won from the high school by a score of 12 to 0.

Good football, showing that the teams had all been well coached, was played in both contests, with blocking, passing, punting and other football teamwork displayed throughout the games.

The games played by the ward schools are short, the quarters being only 10 minutes and no time being taken off for time out, making the contest last but slightly over 40 minutes, with time out between quarters and at the half.

Next week High School plays Cooper and Hodges Oak Park plays Young, the first game being scheduled for Monday afternoon and the second game being played Wednesday afternoon.

Band Benefit Game Will Be Postponed

J. C. Carothers, who has charge of the benefit softball game, sponsored by the Elks club for the Ranger Band, announced today that on account of the inclement weather the game had been postponed from tonight until next Thursday night.

All tickets that have been sold for the game tonight will be honored on next Thursday night, Carothers stated in making the announcement that the game would be played on Thursday night, Oct. 28th.

Tickets for the game are still available, it was stated, and all receipts from the game, other than the actual cost of lights for the night, will go to the band to help pay for new uniforms.
