INCOME FOR TEXAS PEOPLE EQUALS 1929

LONGVIEW Texas—Income of the people of Texas is approximately the same as in 1929—the last pre-depression year—despite the fact that the population of the State has increased 10.2 per cent during the 10-year period and this is the most potent argument against new or increased State or local taxes in 1941, Hubert M. Harrison, vice president and general manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, declared here today.

"Actual income of the people of Texas in 1929, was $2,520,000,000, and in 1940, the total estimated income of the state is approximately $2,500,000,000," said Harrison. "The recent census figures announced in Washington show the population of the state was up 10.2 per cent over 1930. "We have more than $12,000,000,000 of new extraordinary Federal appropriations on the defense program alone this year," he added. "And most authorities agree this is only a beginning.

"In Texas, the State has increased its expenditures from $84,500,000 in 1929, to $164,300,000 in 1939, and there are continued demands from certain groups for large additional state expenditures, which would have to be financed by additional taxation.

"The East Texas Chamber of Commerce, extending its policy of economy in government, and lower taxes, feels that the extension of costly governmental services and benefits in Texas should be deferred at present, and state and local public officials should retrench in every possible way, so that our share of the burden of the defense program—which cannot be deferred or curtailed—may be shouldered by the people of Texas without disastrous consequences to our people. Taxpayer groups which have been organized throughout our 70-county region during the past two years in connection with our highly successful local tax control and economy program will urge this viewpoint on legislators and state officials, taking as their slogan during the coming months, 'No new or increased state or local taxes in Texas during 1941.'"

150 Ginning Years Being Observed

COLLEGE STATION — The month of October, 1940, marks the 150th anniversary of the invention of cotton ginning by Eli Whitney.

Prior to 1790, seed and lint were laboriously separated by hand. No other event can claim equal economic importance in Texas and the South. F. E. Lichte, ginning specialist of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service, has pointed out. It paved the way for great development in agriculture, industry and world trade.

While the first cotton was ginned on Whitney's gin at Mulberry Grove Plantation near Savannah, Georgia, the first complete bale was turned out in Wilkes county in the same state, where Whitney established a gin house in 1793. He made many improvements on his gin in Wilkes county. One of these was removal of the lint from the saws by means of a brush.

When Whitney's patent was granted March 14, 1794 by President George Washington and signed by Thomas Jefferson, it was for a period of 14 years. At the end of that time he faced competition from a number of gins that had been developed in the region.

When his application for renewal of the patent was refused, Whitney became discouraged with the whole cotton business and moved to New Haven, Conn., where he was successful in the manufacture of fire arms.

Although many improvements have been made in gin machinery, the actual principle of ginning as worked out by Whitney remains unchanged.

EXHIBITION SPACE

H. J. Tanner of the Eastland County Fair Association states that there is still some exhibit space under the big tent at the fair grounds available to exhibitors. This, Mr. Tanner said, is a good opportunity for out of town exhibitors.

THE WEATHER

WEST TEXAS: Fair north portion, considerable cloudiness south portion tonight and Tuesday. Not much change in temperature.

Parting Shot

BIG CARNIVAL AND SHOW TO OPEN TONIGHT

With everything in readiness for the opening of the T. J. Tidwell carnival and shows on the Fair grounds tonight, Eastland is taking on the carnival spirit which is expected to prevail throughout the County Fair, which will open for a three day run, Thursday.

Presenting an ultra-modern array of attractions and riding devices, amid a gorgeous panorama of dazzling beauty, the Tidwell shows are larger and better this season than ever before, truly living up to their slogan of "A Modern Midway."

The business men and Fair committee and others responsible for bringing the show here are giving of their time and efforts in making the necessary arrangements and have spared no expense in bringing to the people of this community the best entertainment possible. These popular shows will be here all throughout this week and many youngsters as well as grown-ups will no doubt be on hand for the opening tonight at the Fair grounds.

Draft Lottery To Be Held Oct. 29 By the President

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Director Clarence Dykstra, announced today that President Roosevelt will draw the first number in the selective service lottery at 11 a. m., CST, Tuesday, October 29.

The lottery will determine the order in which 16,500 men will be classified for induction into the army. About 800,000 in Class One—without dependents, physical defects or vital jobs—will begin training by next June 5.

All registrants, however, will be numbered in the lottery. Each local board will make public the numbers of each registrant who will be notified by questionnaire if his number is called.

El Paso Has Big Alien Population

By United Press
EL PASO—There are more than 15,000 aliens in this border town, population about 100,000, according to estimates of postal officials who have charge of alien registration in compliance with the law enacted this summer.

An official of the postoffice department said that more than 15,000 special registration forms had been distributed to El Paso aliens for completion.

EX-STUDENTS BANQUET

Teachers who are graduates of Texas State Teachers Colleges have been advised that 5,000 bulletins will bring to members of the Federated Ex-Students Association of the Teachers Colleges, the program and other details of the annual banquet to be held in Ft. Worth Friday November 22, at the Blackstone Hotel. The association is composed of graduates and ex-students of Texas State Teachers colleges and the banquet is a feature of the annual meeting of the Texas State Teachers association.

RAF BOMBERS BUSY AS CHURCHILL DEFIES AN ATTEMPT AT INVASION

British bombers ranged from Norway to Italy today as Prime Minister Winston Churchill predicted that within a year the Royal Air Force will control the skies as the navy now controls the seas.

Scoffing at German invasion threats, Churchill said that Britain's only war aim is to crush Hitlerism. He warned the French people that the axis powers intend to divide up the French Empire.

"We are on Hitler's track" said Churchill, "and so are our friends across the Atlantic Ocean."

Violence of German protests against British bombings last night indicated that the attacks on Berlin and other German cities as well as on Italy's industrial section, were the heaviest of the war. One British plane was reported lost in the widespread bombing raids.

London sources said that Russia was pleased over Turkey's determination to resist the Nazi advance and said that a Russo-Turkish trade pact is now being negotiated. The Russians raised the bread price 15 per cent today despite prospects of a good wheat crop, reminding observers that the price of bread also went up just before the Finnish war.

On the English Channel today "good invasion weather" was reported and German long-range guns fired at Dover in an exchange of artillery blasts with the British.

Rome reported that Italian bombers had attacked British oil concessions on Bahrain Island in Asia, which Standard Oil Company officials protested today to officials in Washington. The Standard Company said its property damage was slight, but that the property was on neutral territory.

Four Pensioners of Texas' War for Independence Receive $37.50 Each

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Tex.—Four pensioners of Texas' war for independence receive $37.50 quarterly from the state. All are widows of men who participated in the struggle that resulted in establishment of the Republic of Texas more than a century ago.

A bounty of 640 acres of land was given to the soldiers who fought in that war, when the republic took over the vast land areas that formerly had been under Mexican control.

Later pensioners were granted to the families of Deaf Smith and other participants in the war by individual pension acts. Some of these acts provided money grants; others grants of public land.

It was not until 1870 that a general pension act for the survivors of the Texas war for independence was passed.

Curiously enough the annual appropriations to pay these "widows' mites" are classed as payments for widows of soldiers of the Mexican War. For this reason many have confused the recipients with widows of soldiers who participated in the later war between the United States and Mexico. The "Mexican War" referred to is the one between the Republic of Texas and Mexico.

At least two of the remaining pensioners married a participant in the decisive battle of San Jacinto, in which the Texan forces under Gen. Sam Houston defeated the Mexicans under General Santa Anna. The husband of another of the pensioners was Santa Anna's guard after capture of the Mexican army commander.

This pensioner is Mrs. Julia Kersting Redfield of Giddings, Texas. She married Henry P. Redfield in 1872. Redfield threw in his lot with the Texans when a mere youth. Born in New Hampshire in 1819, he came to Texas in 1830, settling near San Felipe. He is said to have taken part in the opening battle at Gonzales in 1835. He later participated in Indian battles and was in Gen. Zachary Taylor's army in the war between Mexico and the United States. He served also in the Confederate army.

His widow was a native of Washington County, born near Long Point, Nov. 8, 1855.

Mrs. Mary C. Berry, living near Baird, is the widow of Tomas Freeman Berry, who fought at San Jacinto. He was Andrew Jackson Berry, born in Indiana in 1816. His father brought the family to Texas in 1828, settling on what is known as Berry Creek in Williamson County. Young Berry became a member of Capt. Jesse Billingsley's company of volunteers. He served later in the Confederate army.

In 1847 he was given 640 acres of land for his participation in the battle of San Jacinto. Mrs. Berry was a girl of 18 when she met Berry while visiting in Williamson County. His first wife had died and they were married in 1871. The couple lived for a time in Lampasas County, later removing to Callahan County, where he died in 1899. Strange enough this man who had served through two wars met his death in a peace-time accident when a team of horses ran away with a wagon in which he was riding.

Mrs. Mary Langley, 3118 South Seventh Street, Abilene, another of the pensioners of the war for Texas independence, is the widow of Campbell Langley. Records of the Texas Veterans' Association show that he was born in Tennessee about 1818. He apparently came to Texas for the purpose of joining the Texans in their fight for independence for he arrived in the state in 1836 and enrolled in Slias M. Parker's Ranger Company. He lived until the 80's near Salado, Bell County.

The other pensioner is Mrs. S. R. Freeman who lives near Elkhart, Anderson County. There were several Freemans in the Texas army, among them Sylvester Freeman. Provision for Confederate pensioners is made in the state constitution which levies seven cents on $100 property valuation to pay the grants.

The roll of pensioners from that war are shrinking rapidly. Latest report counted but 11 veterans of the South's army now living in the home built for Confederate veterans at Austin. There are 43 other veterans who are married and receive $50 monthly grants for themselves and wives, and 143 veterans who are single and receive $25 grants. There are 72 widows of Confederate veterans in the home established for them at Austin and 3,166 widows of Confederate soldiers drawing pensions.

No state pension has been granted veterans of later wars, all such grants being left to the Federal government. In recent years there has been a proposal to use the Confederate home at Austin for care of veterans of the World War by permitting them to pay actual cost of their care from their Federal grants.

Legal questions about the grant of the site for the Confederate home and other details have delayed consummation of the plan, which is expected to receive further consideration by the next Texas legislature.

Breckenridge Negro Escaped Saturday

Word was received here over the week-end by local law enforcement officers that a negro, whose name was not given, had escaped from Stephens county authorities.

According to the report received here the negro complained of a toothache, and when being taken to a dentist he seized an officer's gun and fled. It was reported that the gun was returned by another negro, with the message that the gun had been taken to keep the officer from using it as the prisoner fled.

The negro was described as being five feet eight and a half inches tall, weighing about 190 pounds, with very large shoulders and neck and a small body. He was wearing, at the time of his escape, a faded blue shirt and wore no hat. His other clothing was not described by the officers.

Weekend Accidents Take A Heavy Toll

Seventeen persons died violently in Texas over the week-end with traffic accidents leading the list of casualties, and accounting for 12 of the 17 deaths.

The worst tragedy was at Giddings, where three Travis county men died when their car was struck by a train.

Fire Losses Over State Increase In Past Eight Months

AUSTIN, Texas—An increase of approximately 19 per cent in insured fire losses for the first eight months of 1940 over the corresponding period of 1938, was reported today by Marvin Hall, state fire insurance commissioner. The figures were based on fire reports of city fire marshals.

There was an increase of 67 per cent in insured fire losses in 1939 over the year 1935, and each year has brought a decided gain in losses. The total for the first eight months of this year is $3,827,814. January, with insured losses totaling $1,003,598 was the worst month by a margin of more than a half million dollars. Best month so far this year has been June, when losses totaled only $293,281.

The Commissioner listed four things that should be done in each Texas community annually as a fire prevention measure to maintain a low loss level, (1) one or more inspections each month of mercantile and manufacturing districts, (2) a vigorous investigation of suspicious fires, (3) a dwelling house inspection, (4) and careful underwriting by local fire insurance agents and representatives of fire insurance companies for two reasons, (a) to determine moral hazard, (b) and the inspection of the risk involved will reveal the physical hazard and the sound value thereof.

Malnutrition Is Not Always Due To Lack Of Food

AUSTIN, Texas—"There is a popular though entirely false idea that malnutrition is due solely to lack of food. Of course, an inadequate food supply will result in undernourishment. On the other hand, quantities of the wrong types of food to the exclusion of the proper types can result just as effectively in malnutrition for both children and adults. Usually, in this country at least, malnutrition is associated by the public with young people. However, if it were possible to take a census of adults who are victims of this condition, the results might be surprising," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Many young women, and indeed others who are older, listen too intently to the siren voice of 'reducing for beauty's sake.' Without securing professional advice, and relying on dietary suggestions of friends or faddists, a number of normal weight individuals deliberately deprive themselves of nourishing food. Cutting down acutely on the daily intake of essential sustenance, such persons run real health risks which often become realities. Again, numerous men and women who have partaken of fat-producing food too lustily over a long period find themselves in the overweight class. Suddenly impressed with their rotundity, they also become extremely vulnerable to non-professional diet suggestions. Forgetting that possibly years were required to develop the now unwelcome cushion, some of these folks suddenly become extremists and make foolish efforts to remove in three weeks or a month the penalty for which their extended indulgence was responsible. Near-tragedies, as well as actual ones, sometimes follow in the wake of such senseless body-tinkering.

"Finally, children who habitually refuse at meal-time to eat the sustaining foods in sufficient quantities are in need of parental investigation and discipline. When resistance to the suggestions is difficult to overcome, the influence of the family physician often is most effective. In any event, for the sake of the child's health, his misdirected indulgence of luxury foods must be removed."

L. W. Forgason To Be Buried Tuesday

Funeral services for Lucian W. Forgason, a long-time resident of Eastland county, who died Sunday afternoon, will be conducted Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in Eastland.

Mr. Forgason had been ill for several months. He had lived on a farm until 12 or 13 years ago, when he moved to Eastland, and had resided here since.

TOM OVERBY DIES AT HIS COLEMAN HOME

T. L. (Tom) Overby, former district clerk of Eastland county and for a number of years in the banking business in Eastland, died at Coleman early this morning, where he had lived the past few years. He died following a stroke Sunday.

T. R. Overby, a son who resides in Eastland, went to Coleman Sunday upon receipt of a message advising him of his father's condition and was at his bedside when death came.

Friends in Eastland said that funeral arrangements had not been made this morning. The Hamner Undertaking Company sent an ambulance to Coleman this morning to bring the body to Eastland.

Renewing Farm Lease To Get Eye Of F.S.A. Meeting

A meeting of the Eastland County Farm Debt Adjustment committee will be held Tuesday, November 5, at 9:30 a. m. at FSA office, according to George I. Lane, Farm Security Administration supervisor.

In setting the date for the meeting, he said that special attention of the committee would be given to problems of farmers who are unable to renew their land rental agreement because of an excessive accumulation of debt.

"We hate to see a single farmer have to move this year," Lane said. "The debt adjustment committee can help these people who are staggering under a load of excessive debt by working out agreements with their creditors which bring their debts within their ability to pay."

He stated that after a farmer's creditors have granted him an extension of time or reduction in interest or principal, the FSA will finance him and furnish guidance in good farming practices so that he can eventually pay off the remainder of his debts. He invited both farmers and creditors who can take advantage of such agreements to attend the debt adjustment meeting.

On Whom Does U. S. 'Put the Touch'?

Uncle Sam—which means the United States government, which means you and your neighbor—is now about 50 billion dollars in the red.

To get a rough idea of how much money that is, consider the fact that there are only about 6 billion dollars actually in circulation in the United States today.

Whom do we owe? Where did Uncle Sam get all this money in the first place?

Creditors for more than half of the national debt are holders of treasury and savings bonds. More than 30 billion dollars worth of such bonds are now outstanding.

Another way in which Uncle Sam has managed to get his hands on active capital is to take over the reserves in pension funds, including payments of workers and employers to the Social Security kitty, and to deposit bonds in their place.

Short-term notes and bills, sold to banking institutions, have brought in $7,682,000,000. The government is especially fond of this method of borrowing because the interest rates are low—often only 1 per cent.

Banks also hold $1,803,000,000 in adjusted service certificates. The remainder of the public debt—$5,788,000,000—is held by citizens in the form of guaranteed obligations.

There will be no budget-balancing in the middle of a defense program. But suppose the federal government suddenly decided it would wipe its slate clean by taking the deficit out of the national income for one year, how would you come out?

Last year the national income was about 70 billions. In addition to your normal taxes, you would have to pay Uncle Sam about 71 per cent of your income for a whole year.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

CONSCRIPTION LAW PLAYS HAVOC WITH SOCIAL SECURITY; CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO ACT

By BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Passage of the conscription act has tossed a hefty monkey wrench into the machinery of the Social Security Act.

Catton

As things stand now, men called up for service stand to lose certain rights, both under the federal old age and survivors' insurance acts and under the unemployment compensation law.

For instance: The amount of unemployment compensation a man is entitled to depends on the amount of insured employment he has had during the preceding year. A man who is in the draft army is not, of course, going to need unemployment insurance while he is in uniform; but when he finishes his year of training he will have spent an entire year in a non-insured job—and hence, for the following year, will be extremely shy on unemployment insurance protection.

In other words, his year of service will simply cancel the protection he has built up.

AVERAGE WAGE WILL GO DOWN

The draftee's rights under old age and survivors' insurance will be somewhat less drastically affected. He will spend an entire year in a non-covered occupation. Hence, on the Social Security Board's books, his average wage—on which the insurance he or his survivors will ultimately get is based—will go down. Thus the amount coming to him or to his survivors will be lower than it would have been if he had stayed out of the army.

It is the unemployment insurance angle which is worrying officials of the Social Security Board most. They expect that when the first year of training ends, a great many draftees will meet some delay in finding jobs. Legally, a draftee worker is entitled to have his old job back; in practice, it is believed this will be rather hard to enforce.

TWO REMEDIES SUGGESTED

TWO ways of remedying the situation have been suggested. One is simply to "freeze" every draftee's status as of the date of his entering the service; to rule that his rights to all benefits under the social security act would be the same when he came out of the army as they were when he went in.

The solution preferred by Chairman Altmeier of the Social Security Board would call for amending the social security act so as to make army service a "covered" job. The army then would report to the board the man who had accumulated no benefits before he was drafted; another is that the states might thereafter be called on to pay unemployment insurance for a period during which they had collected no payroll taxes.

If the act is to be amended, Congress will have to do something this fall. Any change in the unemployment insurance title would require action by all the state legislatures. They convene in January; if they are to act, Congress must complete its part of the job ahead of time.

MODERN MENUS

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Service Staff Writer

CRANBERRIES are an all-American flipp to any budget menu. Lots of flavor and color for very little money, plus a relatively ample supply of vitamin C, and a fair amount of vitamin A. These tart and brilliant American berries supply iron, calcium and iodine, too.

CRANBERRY MEAT LOAF

Two cups ground cooked ham (leftover), 1 pound ground raw veal, 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups 10-minute cranberry sauce. Combine meat, bread crumbs, eggs and seasonings. Add 1/2 cup cranberry juice (from sauce), and blend. Form mixture into loaf; bake in moderate oven (375° F.) for about 1 hour. Pour over remaining cranberry sauce during last 15 minutes of baking. Baste with sauce once or twice to glaze top of loaf.

SPICED CRANBERRIES

Two and one-half cups sugar, 1/2 cup water, 2 2-inch sticks cinnamon, 1 teaspoon whole cloves, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 pound (4 cups) fresh cranberries. Combine sugar, water, spices, lemon juice and rind and boil together for 5 minutes. Add cranberries and cook slowly, without stirring, until all the skins pop open. Seal in sterilized jars or chill for immediate serving.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Stewed plums, fried oatmeal, syrup, crisp bacon, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Cream of tomato soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, apple sauce, nut cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Cranberry meat loaf, French fried potatoes, snap beans, raw cabbage and celery salad, steamed ginger pudding, lemon sauce, coffee, milk.

TEN-MINUTE CRANBERRY SAUCE

One and one-half cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 pound (4 cups) cranberries. Boil sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Add cranberries and boil without stirring until all the skins pop open. (Five minutes is usually sufficient.) Remove from fire and allow sauce to remain in cooking dish until cool. One pound of cranberries makes 2 1/2 pounds of sauce. For a thinner sauce, just bring sugar and water to a boil, then add cranberries and cook until they start popping.

It Takes Common Sense to Deal With FACTS!

LEGAL BEER IS THE ONLY ANSWER to TWO PROBLEMS

Whether you vote for or against the legalization of four per cent beer in Eastland county Wednesday, you should take into consideration two things:

- 1.—The moral question. 2.—The business question.

Both are so closely bound up that it is impossible to separate one entirely from the other, but a general distinction can be made. Our dry friends argue that legalization of the sale of beer is legalization of drunken driving, the debauchery of youth and general immorality. They admit that there is drinking under prohibition. It is impossible not to admit that fact when one counts the empty beer cans and whiskey bottles that litter the barrow pits of our highways and the city dumps.

But, say our dry friends, if we make the sale of beer illegal we are taking a step toward real temperance.

That argument sounds well in theory, but the facts do not support it. There is no law against drinking beer. If you believe such a law could be enforced, ask yourself this question:

How would you react toward a law which said you could not drink coffee? Remember, those who drink beer feel just like you do about coffee. The point is, therefore, that beer cannot be outlawed by law. It can only be outlawed by the refusal of people to drink it. Since they do not refuse to do this and there is a great demand for it, those who want it are going to drink it and as long as there is a demand there will be a supply.

The question then is: How to handle the demand in such a way that it reflects the least injury upon the morals and the business of the community?

Here we come to the issue of good roads and easy access to nearby towns where beer is legally sold. It is easy nowadays to drive 15 or 20 miles, or even 50 miles. And when those who want beer drive to these communities they take not only the money they spend for beer with them, but money which they spend for food, car expenses, even clothing. That money, belonging in Ranger, is definitely lost to Ranger. Instead of going into local trade channels to make business and employment better here, it goes into the trade channels of other communities to help them.

Moreover, the trade which would normally come into this community from tourist traffic and visitors from other towns is greatly reduced. These are facts which the business men of this city are compelled to confront. They are facts which are reflected in bare streets, idle clerks, fewer rings of the cash register.

IT IS STILL SOLD

This, in spite of the fact that beer is still sold in the community. It is sold behind closed doors, in out-of-the-way places. It is sold in places that have no regards for morals, but are entirely concerned with money.

It is not the profits from beer that the business mep want. It is strictly a question of handling the sale of beer in the most effective manner and curing a situation that is costing the community a loss in business and revenues and in taxes.

It is our belief that the best way to handle the sale of beer and to govern the bad conditions that are likely to arise about its sale, is to keep that sale open. When that is done the illicit dealer cannot sell it at a profit and those who drink it do so in public. The opportunity for undesirable places to operate and for bad conditions to grow up around the sale is greatly restricted.

Moreover, those citizens who want it can get it at home and keep their trade at home.

If legal beer is voted in Eastland county next Wednesday, it will not affect the status of the precincts which now have local option laws against its sale. Only Precinct No. 1 and Precinct No. 4 can sell it legally. Precincts No. 2 and 3 cannot do so. They have local option laws against the sale.

If the sale of beer is approved Wednesday, the business men of Cisco, Eastland and Ranger who favor its sale will place before the commissioners court a program for confining the sale to establishments that do not exist primarily for the sale and to refuse licenses to dealers who do not in every particular meet the strict requirements of the law which prohibit the sale to minors, to drunkards, to disturbers and to others who do not properly conduct themselves.

They will support public officials fully in the regulation of the sale to the best interests of community morals and business. They do not want bootleggers, blind tigers, illicit places which are harmful both morally and economically.

They do want the benefits of a trade which otherwise would go to these places out of town. They want the business it will bring to the community to help keep open other doors that may have to close, that will help them employ more people, carry better stocks, pay their taxes and provide better all-around service to their town. They want the revenues that legal beer will bring in to help ease the burden of taxes on community property.

They ask you to vote for legal beer Wednesday as the most satisfactory way in which to handle a situation which will exist regardless of whether or not beer is sold legally or illegally.

They ask you to vote for a practical solution to a practical problem next Wednesday.

SERIAL STORY

NEW YORK JUNGLE

BY WRAY WADE SEVERN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Braitwood tries to figure out the puzzling crime, reaches no decision. Summoned by Nella, he goes to Adam's room, overhears Pat and Gaudrum. Nella believes Adam feared his wife, offers no other explanation. As he returns to his room, Sidney hears a step on the third door, and the whimpering of a dog.

DOWN THE SECRET PASSAGE

CHAPTER XIII

EVIDENTLY Marta, too, had heard a dog whimper, for she stood at the door of her room looking up and down the hall. Clad in a lounging suit of soft yellow silk, she had a compelling loveliness which, for an instant, drew Braitwood's mind from his weird search.

"Did you hear it, Sidney?" she breathed, as he reached her side.

"I thought I heard a dog whimper, Marta. Was that what it sounded like to you?"

"Exactly. But who could have brought a dog up here, at day-break?"

Daybreak. Yes, another day was breaking; a day which Adam Langdon would not know, and no one in the house had slept.

Fighting down his emotion, Sidney told Marta of the paw prints Plowman had found near the storeroom.

THE only unoccupied room on the third floor was a billiard room at the end of the hall. There had been no dog there earlier in the evening when Sidney and Hugh had searched the house for fire; there had been no dog in the house at all. But the billiard room seemed the most likely place for one to be hidden, had it been brought in later. As Braitwood stood explaining to Marta, a second feeble whine came from that room.

"Go back to your room, Marta; I'll take care of this," Sidney commanded.

"I'm going to see who, has brought a dog here, myself," Marta replied, and before he could prevent it she had run lightly down the hall.

He followed, reached the room first. Motioning her to stand aside, he quietly opened the door. The light had been extinguished, but a faint gray at the window brought the room and its long, baize-covered table into shadowy relief. A faint, sickening odor of chloroform permeated the air. The room was empty.

"Someone went through that open window," Sidney whispered. "It was closed when Hugh and I were here a few hours ago, and there was no odor of chloroform." "There is a fire escape outside the window," Marta reminded him. "Anyone could leave this room and re-enter the house on the floor below, through the window of the vacant room at the end of the hall."

Sidney looked out, searching the fire escape. In the lifting darkness outside he could see the garage and its gay weather vane, and behind it, the trees of a grove.

"Marta, will you please go back to your room," Sidney begged. "God knows what may happen next."

"No, Sidney, I will not. I'm as keen to see this through as you are. A bullet holds no terrors for me. Not now."

"All right. Stay close, then."

ON the floor below, they picked up a trail. Damp prints of a man's feet led from the fire escape in the vacant room to the door of Adam Langdon's chamber.

"If it hadn't been pure invention in Craig Gundrum's mind, I'd believe that wild story of a map hidden in Adam's bedroom," Sidney said.

For the third time since the murder he crossed the threshold of his dead friend's sleeping quarters.

Here the footprints ceased. Either the maker of them had taken off his wet shoes or the soles had been wiped dry by his walking.

Wishing with all his heart that Marta had remained in the safety of her room, Sidney looked cautiously about. The intruder had vanished. Noiselessly, Braitwood tried the door leading into Pat's room. It was locked. He looked in the closets. They were empty of all save clothes.

"He must have come in here," Marta said.

"Hugh told me there is a way of getting into a passage that leads up to the roof and down to the Jungle, through this fireplace. Have you ever heard of it?"

She shook her head. On the table was a reading lamp with a long cord. She lighted it and, kneeling, held it up to the flue.

"There is an opening here, Sidney," she said. "It looks like a sliding door. It's about the size of the entrance to a dumb waiter."

Eagerly, Sidney pushed himself into the wide chimney.

"Take the stairs, Sidney. You may be going into a death trap," Marta begged.

"If I go by the stairs, I can't see what the fellow is up to. He must have gone into the Jungle for reasons of his own, and he'll have no idea that anyone but himself knows of this passage. I'm taking the chance."

HE reached the opening with little difficulty. The door had evidently been left open so that whoever had descended could return, but no person was in the passage now. There was no sound of movement below, though the strong odor of chloroform persisted. There were rungs on the side of the wall, so that descent was not difficult and the width appeared ample.

Danger lay in the man below starting back before Sidney had completed the descent. He would have to go feet first. The other fellow would be looking up at a clear target for a shot.

Sidney had descended perhaps half way when he became aware that someone had entered the passage above him. Marta, he told himself. It could be no one else. She would have screamed had she been surprised. She could only hamper him—but there she was.

HE had expected to find the Jungle lighted, but here, too, the lights had been extinguished, though a graying dawn ameliorated the darkness. He eased himself noiselessly into the great fireplace in the center of the museum, drew a breath of relief. He could now see the shattered door, the world of wild life; the simians, how human they appeared; the great elephant, the lioness, the collection of weapons. But of the man who had preceded him down the ladder there was no trace.

Silently he moved forward to make room for Marta to descend. For a moment the two stood there, their eyes searching. Presently Marta pointed at the great ape near the door.

The man-like creature had been mounted on its hind legs with its low-browed, grotesquely frowning face glaring toward the door. Its long, hairy arms were uplifted, sinewy fingers curled toward palms.

In the gray light, the figure at first appeared slightly thickened, but as Sidney continued to stare he saw what Marta's keener vision had already detected. A double shadow slanted from the animal.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT URGES NO DISCRIMINATION UPON COTTON

WASHINGTON—The agricultural department has recommended to the national defense commission that there be no discrimination against cotton grown on irrigated land in textile purchases for the national defense program. Members of the commission, it was learned, have studied the differences in growth of cotton and the agriculture report was made in response to their queries. The report asserted that use of cotton from irrigated land for uniforms, blankets and other items.

The report, based upon experiments performed in May of this year, said it might be desirable to include among contract requirements a specification that the yarn from which a fabric was woven be of certain grades or that the fabric be free of neps and foreign particle matters. This, it was pointed out, would not refer to the type of soil upon which the cotton was grown.

"By following this procedure it would be unnecessary to include any reference in the specifications to the growth of the cotton used," the report declared. "We feel that the quality of many fabric purchases could probably be satisfactorily met with irrigated cotton and that it would be unfair to prohibit its use providing the quality of the product came up to the required specifications."

The defense commission, officials said, became interested in the question following the receipt of complaints from growers in New Mexico, Arizona that army inspectors were rejecting textiles made from irrigated cotton. These complaints were repeated before senate appropriations subcommittee by Sen. Carl Hayden, D., Ariz., during hearings on the third supplemental national defense bill.

Sen. Carl Hatch, D., N. M., held a conference with officials of the agricultural department to learn whether the refusal of Great Britain to take cotton from irrigated land in the rubber-for-cotton deal negotiated between the United States and that country last year could be behind the alleged actions of the army inspectors.

The New Mexico senator, it was said, "received satisfaction" with the results of the conference. Army officials denied vigorously that any war department specification required the use of upland or irrigated cotton. They asserted they had received complaints concerning the alleged actions of their inspectors but had been unable to find "any substance" to them. "Army policy has never rejected the use of cotton from irrigated land," one official said. "It may be possible that an inspector at some time rejected such cotton but it was on the basis of individual quality and not on the basis of the type of land used for

TAIL WAGS THE BIRD

SYDNEY, Australia.—A bird of paradise in New Guinea has outdone the dog that grew a tail so long, the dog was wagged by the latter. The bird, 9 inches in length, has grown a tail three feet long. It has been named the "McNicoll's ribbon-tailed bird of Paradise," after Sir William McNicoll, administrator of New Guinea, who sent a specimen to the museum here.
