ASKING AID TO RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Declaring that the American Red Cross has "an essential place in the great program of national defense," President Roosevelt urged "all who can possibly do so to support the annual Roll Call.

"The annual membership Roll Call of the American Red Cross, which is about to begin," the chief executive stated, "is vitally important to all of our citizens. As an auxiliary to all of our armed forces, the Red Cross has an essential place in the great program of national defense in which we are now engaged.

"Our people have learned through the years to turn to the Red Cross for practical aid in any emergency and that high trust always has been fulfilled. Behind this great voluntary relief organization is a record of public service, both in time of war and peace, which makes it an inseparable part of our national life.

"Under its congressional charter one of the primary duties of the Red Cross is to render aid to our armed forces and to act as a medium of communication be-United States. The rapid expansion of our defense man-power calls, therefore, for a corresponding increase in Red Cross service to our soldiers, sailors, and their families at home. Modern war-fare, in transferring the tragedy of the battlefeld, with all its suffering and destruction, to the heart of civilian populations, has emphasized the importance to our civil defense of such Red Cross and emergency relief.

A conference today at Berlin between Adolf Hitler and Russian Foreign Minister Molotov, overshadowed developments on the European fighting fronts, as one Italian newspaper declared that Russia will join the German-Italian-Japanese military alliance. The British took a gloomy view of the Berlin meeting, but continued to support the Greeks against the Italians in Albania, where the Greeks were reported to have scored further successes today, completely routing Italian troops along some of the fronts.

The Italians admitted that some damage had been done last night by bombing planes over Yatanto, the great Fascist naval base, where the British claimed that one big Italian cruiser had been severely damaged. Air raids over England were lessened today, chiefly because of bad flying weather, but the Brit-ish reported that they had driven off a combined Italian and German air raid on shipping in the Thames Estuary, when 15 German and Italian planes were shot down without the loss of a single British plane.

Last night British planes continued to hammer at German

Fires of Light, Fires of Darkness

Fire destroys, but it can also purify. Bonfires in Chicago and in Berlin remind us of that.

The bonfires in Berlin lit up the night sky in May of 1933. In open squares of the city the flames leaped upward. Men were burning books.

The bonfires of Chicago (and there were such bonfires also in Salina, Kansas, and other places) were burning campaign literature.

There are essential differences between these bonfires. Those differences mean much to America.

In the Berlin bonfires the flames licked at boks snatched from libraries by zealous young Storm troopers obeying a mandate from above. In Chicago, men came voluntarily and eagerly to cast into the flames the printed pamphlets and circulars of a spirited political campaign—material no longer of value after the people had made their decision.

In the one case the product of the mind of thoughtful men was burned because Authority had said "It is not good for you to read these things." In the other, men came of their own free will to destroy symbolically the animosities which had temporarily divided them.

And when the bonfires of Berlin had burned low and flickered out, there was a deepening of the darkness over the land, while in Chicago the very ashes of the fires seemed to glow with illumination, and a dawn of good-will supplanted the dancing flames.

It was precisely because men were unable to set aside political animosities in Germany after election, that the German Republic sickened and died. Among multiple ed but three of their 15 passes half. parties, none ever attained a majority. Even when in Monday afternoon against the power, any party always had the others hanging to its Cisco Loboes, but one of the ond half also ended in a touchpower, any party always had the others hanging to its three accounted for the only down when Lassater stepped off touchdown made in conference 59 yards for the last Cisco score, even in opposition, but in a savage obstructionism. This Means ... Better Electric Service For You

One of our employees had to go to the hospital for an operation. But neither he nor his family worried about the expense, for the Texas Electric Service Company has a plan for joint contribution by employees and the company whereby the financial blow of an operation or prolonged illness is greatly softened.

We don't feel that such consideration for our employees is anything out of the ordinary . . . it shouldn't be . ". it's the West Texas way of doing things. Such an attitude on the part of our company, we believe, brings greater happiness and security to our employees and that means better electric service for you!
