

YOUR HEALTH

State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox has turned the bright light of optimism on the heretofore dark picture of polio in Texas.

Observing that the state's 1,000 cases of polio since the year's beginning has occurred among a population of 7 1/2 million people, the health official Thursday deplored "the attitude of hysteria that polio creates in a community."

That didn't mean people should not be concerned, the doctor commented, for a case of illness in any form is good reason for great concern.

"I'm talking about the fear that keeps a person or a whole community from thinking straight. Of course each case of polio is an individual tragedy for the family involved, but wholesale public panic simply is not justified."

He doesn't want to encourage complacency either, the state health officer said, adding:

"Every clear-thinking effort must be made to keep every home, every community, every vacation camp consistently clean and sanitary. Briefly, elimination of fly and insect breeding places, personal cleanliness, and getting milk, water and food from safe, approved sources will aid in preventing a number of communicable diseases."

National statistics, Dr. Cox asserted, show good reason for optimism in most cases of polio. Ac-ording to the figures, from 40 to 60 per cent of all victims recover completely and can do anything they choose.

From 25 to 40 per cent recover with only minor disability, and can, within very wide limits, lead perfectly normal lives. From 15 to 20 per cent are more severely handicapped, and 5 to 10 per cent terminate fatally.

"It all goes to show that polio is actually a minor cause of illness, and an even less significant cause of death, when compared to certain other communicable diseases," the health officer concluded.

THE 2,500 TEXANS encamped at Valley Forge with the big Scout Jamboree did a good job of selling Texas to the boy scout world during the 10-day encampment which ended last week.

They bartered and sold Texas wares, including horned toads and cockle burs; put on frontier exhibits that were the envy of those less fortunate; and in general whooped it up for the good old open spaces.

In the Texas camp area could be seen a covered wagon right off the cow range, an Angora goat exhibit, elaborate entrances to the various sections where the various groups were encamped. A replica of the San Jacinto monument, the Alamo, and several maps of the United States with Texas superimposed so as to make it look bigger than all the rest combined, were much in evidence.

"We're not bragging — because telling the truth is not bragging," said one Texas scout without squinting an eye.

Horned toads sold for as much as $3.85, as the available stock became depleted; and they say a good many cockle burs were sold as porcupine eggs to Yankee buyers.

Nearly every Texas entrance was studded with a bunch of sun-bleached skeletons of steer heads. WEST TEXAS was well represented by scout groups from nearly every town and hamlet in our area. Rex McElroy headed a group of 36 from Kerrville, with Charlie Swartz the scout leader at camp.

THE JAMBOREE ITSELF was the biggest encampment of boys in the history of the western hemisphere. In addition, some 20 foreign countries were represented. And it was the second meet of its kind in this country. Back in 1937, 25,000 scouts camped in Washington, but this time there was not enough space in the capital for the increased crowd. All together 46,634 scouts and scout leaders pitched their tents at Valley Forge. Actually, between 80,000 and 100,000 applied, but facilities would not take care of them and the number was finally cut to the 46,000 mark.

THIS YEAR marked the 40th anniversary of the boy scout movement in America. And the jamboree helped to celebrate the occasion. There may be another one in four years, according to Frank Rosen-craft, of Dallas and Washington, a member of the National Boy Scout Council. Next year an international encampment will be held in Austria. In the U. S. there are now 2.6 million scouts, and this great character building outfit is growing steadily.

A LOOK AT THE BOOK

By DR. BOB JONES, JR.

PRESIDENT OF BOB JONES UNIVERSITY GREENVILLE, SOUTH CAROLINA

Sometimes as we study the life of the Saviour, we overlook the sorrows which His friends must have caused Him. The disciples were so slow to understand the truths He sought to teach them. They were greedy for preferment and place. They were such poor representatives of His perfection and love. They protested so much and did so little. In the hour of His betrayal and suffering they forsook Him or followed afar off.

One of the saddest examples of the disciples' lack of sympathy and understanding of the Saviour is recorded in the tenth chapter of Mark (vs. 32:45). There we are told, "He took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto Him." He wanted them to understand that in Jerusalem, to which they were now going, He would be delivered unto His enemies, condemned to death, crucified. Just as Christ finished describing the anguish and sorrow which lay ahead of Him, James and John spoke up asking for the positions of highest importance and greatest glory in His kingdom. These two disciples had their minds so occupied with their own greedy ambitions that they seem not to have heard at all the Words of the Lord. In the very moment when He was describing the suffering which He must endure they were asking for honor and glory.

With this attitude of heart and minds so preoccupied, it is no wonder that the disciples failed to understand the truths Christ spoke concerning Himself and His redemptive work. It is no wonder that the death of Christ on the cross left them feeling that everything was at an end. It is no wonder that the resurrection seemed to take them by surprise. They listened so half-heartedly, so absent-mindedly to the Words of the Saviour as He showed them the suffering and the cross and the open tomb which lay ahead. Their minds were on the kingdom and power for themselves. Their selfish dreams and ambitions shut from their consciousness the necessity of the cross. Even Peter, who seems at least to have listened when the Lord foretold His death, cried out, "Be it far from

SOCIAL SECURITY RECORD KEEPING COSTS HELD DOWN

It costs less than 13 cents to keep track of a worker's earnings under social security for an entire year, according to figures furnished by George Clark, manager of the San Angelo office of the Social Security Administration.

As explained by Clark, the old-age and survivors insurance system is based upon individual wage accounts in which the government keeps a record of each worker's earnings in jobs subject to the law. So far accounts have been set up for about 80 million individuals who have wage credits, with the entire job of establishing and maintaining these millions of accounts costing about 3/4 of one percent of the taxes collected. The overall cost of the complete program, including collection of taxes, record keeping, and payment of claims, is now approximately 3 percent of tax income and is declining steadily.

Calling this a record that few, if any, commercial companies can equal, Clark stated that the results have been achieved by use of the most modern technical methods and by strict attention to economy and efficiency. In support of this statement he cited figures which show that the same amount of work which required 100 employees in 1941 was done by 60 in 1949.

As an example of his agency's Thee, Lord (Matthew 16:22). The disciples had not learned the lesson that suffering must come before glory and that through the low gateway of anguish and death leads the path to a throne.

speedy action, Clark mentioned the furnishing of wage statements. These statements are furnished upon receipt of signed requests from account number card holders, in much the same way that a bank balances its depositors' accounts. In spite of the fact that requests are received at the rate of about 3,000 every day, each individual's account is located among the millions in file, a summary of his earnings is prepared, and the statement is in the mail within 72 hours from the time the request is received.

Texas' New School Laws Improving Education

AUSTIN, Texas, July 3—Texas' new school laws, in force one year, have had the desired effect of providing better education and of bringing more children into the classroom.

Average enrollment skyrocketed more than 100,000, L. P. Sturgeon, state associate commissioner of education, said here today.

"A renewed interest among educators in getting children into the schools, plus more attractive programs offered the pupils have had the desired effect," Sturgeon said. "The spotlight of publicity thrown upon the schools while new education laws were being studied by the public and enacted by the last legislature has caused Texans to take more interest in their schools than ever before.

"An illustration of this is the fact that in some districts members of civic clubs have designated themselves as attendance officers. They have been extremely helpful to the school administrators in urging attendance so that Texas children can have a better education."

Every district in the state has waged intensive campaigns to get children in school and keep them there, Sturgeon said.

Schools have expanded or instituted classes in shop work to interest older children.

Classes for handicapped children have increased 50 percent. They, like many other special school services, were made possible by allocation of state funds under Gilmer-Aikin school laws.

Visual aid facilities have been augmented, Sturgeon said, increasing the interest of children in school work.

School terms of six weeks to two months during the summer are popular in many sections of the state, according to Sturgeon. These make it possible for students to complete their annual scholastic work and yet allow schools to be dismissed during cotton picking time.

Sturgeon also reported that inroads are being made on the problem of regular attendance of Latin-American and Negro pupils. Itinerant workers are prone to leave their children in school only two or three months of the year, at most, Sturgeon pointed out.

Some districts which have heavy Latin-American and Negro populations reported gains in attendance of 15 per cent and more during the last school year as compared with less than 5 per cent state-wide gain.

But even with the increase in attendance there are still approximately 150,000 children of school
