Edwin Sawyer Named Rancher Of The Year

Edwin Sawyer was presented the 1976 rancher of the year award at the 16th annual Sutton County Game and Wildlife Party. George Brockman, chairman of the Edwards Plateau Soil and Water Conservation District made the presentation.

This award is given by the Sonora Lions Club each year to a rancher in the Edwards Plateau District accomplishing the outstanding job in conservation on his ranch in the district.

Sawyer was elected to the board of directors of the Edwards Plateau district when the district was organized in 1946. He served as a director for 29 consecutive years and retired from the board in 1975. As a conservationist and director, he influenced many people to do a better job in practicing conservation by protecting their land from erosion.

Through the years Sawyer accomplished many conservation practices on his ranch with the technical help of the Soil Conservation Service, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. He has had a four pasture rotation grazing system on his ranch for the past 14 years, which has helped to increase grass production and a variety of grasses. It has also improved calf and lamb crops. The rotation system worked hand in hand with cedar dozing and seeding.

In 1971, Sawyer entered into a Great Plains Contract with the Soil Conservation Service to help him accelerate his work of brush control and water distribution. During the term of the contract he controlled brush and seeded approximately 4700 acres and laid approximately five miles of pipeline. Troughs were located in areas of pastures so that better distribution of grazing could be accomplished. Waterholes were dug along the pipeline and floats installed in the waterbrake for wildlife watering facilities.

Wildlife has benefited greatly by excellent conservation being practiced on the ranch. Brush was dozed selectively by leaving oak, hackberry, and other mixed brush for food and wildlife cover. This allowed forbs to grow, thereby providing a better selection of food for wildlife.

Presently a ranch demonstration has been set up on the ranch to study nutrition problems. The combined efforts of the Texas Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Soil Conservation Service, are working to collect data on deficiencies that might exist on our range. Sawyer has agreed to cooperate by furnishing livestock and the ranch so that this work can be accomplished.

As an outstanding Conservationist he is always exploring new avenues of range management whereby his fellow man might benefit.

George Brockman presents Edwin Sawyer with plaque for "Conservation Rancher of the Year Award."

City Receives $4,651.95 Rebate

Comptroller Bob Bullock announced that his office mailed checks totaling $13.2 million to 640 Texas cities as their November rebate of the one-cent city sales tax. Of this total $4,651.95 was rebate to the City of Sonora.

Bullock said this raises to $252.2 million the amount that the cities have received in rebates this calendar year, an increase of $28.5 million--or nearly 13 percent--over the same period a year ago.

"This increase in consumer spending is a good sign that the Texas economy is on the right track," Bullock said.

The rebate checks ranged from $2,532,776 for the City of Houston to $501.38 to Springtown.

The city sales tax is collected along with the state sales tax by retailers. The Comptroller's Office rebates to the cities their share on a monthly basis.

Large Crowd Enjoys Wildlife Party

Over 800 persons enjoyed the food and festivities last week when the Annual Wildlife Party was held at the 4-H Center. The largest crowd in the history of the party was on hand to enjoy a menu of barbado sheep, quail, venison, chili, son of a gun stew, javalina, goat fries, smoked turkey and side dishes of beans, slaw and peach cobbler. The first wildlife party was held in 1961 for hunters and members of the community so that persons might become educated in the conservation of wildlife.

Tickets to the affair were sold for $2 each entitling the ticket holder to a meal and eligibility to the many door prizes that were given away during the night. A total of $2,978 was collected to be used for next year's hunting party.

The fifty-seven door prizes that were awarded during the night ranged from cash to a television set. Numerous merchants in town, as well as the many new oil-related businesses, the Sonora Lions Club and the Edwards Plateau Wildlife Association were donors of the prizes.

Mrs. Bobby Doran goes through food line...

While husband Bobby purchases tickets from Mrs. Turney Friess.

Clay Hicks and Ben Montgomery get in some visiting.

After their bi-district win over Wink Friday, the Sonora Broncos will meet Seagraves for the regional tilt. The game will be played in Andrews.
Sonora will get the "new look" in the telephone systems starting November 30, according to J. E. Robbins, Division Manager of General Telephone. The big change will be the seven digit dialing system. Each telephone in Sonora will have the numbers 387, followed by four numbers.
Miss Ronda Jan King and Dr. Thomas Owen Warner were married in Grace Presbyterian Church in San Antonio, November 23.

November 23, 1956
The Sonora Broncos, playing their outstanding game of the year, copped the District championship Friday night defeating the Eldorado Eagles 37-6. As far as can be determined Bronco George Johnson, is the nation's top scorer in high school football. Friday night he broke last year's record of 228 points by scoring 37 points, raising his season's total to 250.

All school favorites named this year by popular vote were Kay Kiser and George Johnson. Named class favorites were Lennie Mayhew and Harold Garrett, seniors; Roy Jean Pope and Rodney Davis, juniors; Patsy Rode and Wallace Anthony, sophomores; Claire Jones and Albert Sykes, freshmen, and Gerry Mayfield and Johnny Fields, eighth grade.

November 22, 1946
Dr. J. F. Howell and Wes Hill shared hunting honors this week as some 40 hunters brought in bucks killed in Sutton County to be stored in the ice house. Hill's buck was the heaviest and had the most points. Dr. Howell was the first to register a buck at the ice house.

The Sonora Broncos proved their ability to take it on the chin and come back fighting when they closed the 1946 football season Friday night at Menard by smothering the Yellowjackets 33-6.

J. B. Newman, Keyes Faucett, L. Q. Richardson, Ed Glenn, Charles Cling and Will Anderson, all Val Verde County cattlemen, were in Sonora Thursday morning.
There is a valuable trade in Edwards county that Sonora could obtain with a very little effort: As a market for supplies, Sonora is the cheapest all round trading place in West Texas, and on ranch supplies can discount the towns south, east and west of Sonora. Good roads and mail routes are the foundation to secure trade.

Attorneys and Child Abuse

(This is the fourth article in a five-part series on child abuse and neglect and is part of a regional campaign sponsored by the Texas Department of Public Welfare. This week's article is on what the attorneys say about child abuse and neglect.)

"One of the most important trends that we've seen recently in dealing with child abuse and neglect is that more and more parents just don't care about their children and feel little if any responsibility toward them."

Patricia Elliott, Abilene assistant district attorney. A 16-year-old girl was found suffering from malnutrition, having been locked in her room for two years, allegedly by her parents.

A nine-year-old child jumped out of a window to his death to avoid being beaten by the man who lives with his mother.

These two cases of child abuse and neglect could have happened to one of your friends, or could be happening right now in the home next door.

In an interview with the two Abilene assistant district attorneys, Patricia Elliott and Patrick Millar, it was found that the reason for a lot of the child abuse and neglect cases is the inability of the parents to cope with the child's problems.

"When the parents find they cannot cope with the child," said Miss Elliott, who has been dealing with child abuse cases for the last four years in Abilene, "their next resort is to either ignore the situation (neglect) or to beat the child (physical abuse)."

"We have found that parents are exercising less and less supervision over the children," said Millar, who has been dealing with child abuse and neglect cases in Abilene for the last year. "Some of it is ignorance, and some of it is just omission. Parents need to realize that there are services available to help them with their problems with children, and a call to the child welfare office could help remedy the situation."

The child welfare office would send a caseworker to the home, discuss the problems with the parents, and suggest possible avenues of immediate help.

"A lot of times," said Millar, "If parents would have been able to avoid the confrontations with the child if they knew about some of the welfare services available."

Miss Elliott said many of the problems with child abuse and neglect have been caused by our changing society.

"Our society is more mobile today," she said. This causes parents to be more unstable. Some parents are not ready to have children, are younger, and too immature. The younger parents just need to be continually aware of the child welfare services available and how to take advantage of them.

The two attorneys said that child abuse and neglect cases could be classified into three categories—physical, sexual and neglect, and both attorneys agreed that all three categories have increased in number recently.

"The physical abuse cases usually involve children under six years of age," said Millar, "and include such incidents as beatings, scaldings, etc."

"Sexual abuse cases usually involve an unstable situation," said Miss Elliott. "In many instances, it involves the children of a woman who has been jumping from man to man."

Millar said that the neglect cases usually come from situations "where parents have left their children unsupervised."

"We've found cases where the parents have left their children at home all day by themselves and did not make any attempt to have the children at school that day," said Millar. "And the child is the victim of it."

Miss Elliott noted that because of this disinterest on the part of the parent, there have been more termination suits filed this year than ever before.

The suits are the preliminary steps to permanently remove the child from the home and move them into a foster home.

While the parents are becoming disinterested in the care of their children, the general public has become more interested in the children.

Miss Elliott said that the district attorney's office has handled more cases of child abuse and neglect this year than ever before.

"It's because the public is becoming more aware of their responsibility toward children," she said, "and then they are doing something about it by reporting possible cases of abuse and neglect to a child welfare office, or to a law enforcement agency."

What can the public do to help?
"They can help by being willing to get involved," she added. "By reporting the possible case of abuse and neglect, and then to testify or serve as a witness for the incident."

Barry Fredrickson, regional administrator in Abilene for the Texas Department of Public Welfare, further stated the problem with today's society.

"Our society makes a terrible mistake," he said. "We think children are the property of their parents. They are not."

"They are in the care of their parents at this time. But how they are reared concerns us all. We are all influenced by how they are raised. Children are the responsibility of all of us. But they and their parents are low on the list of our priorities."

"Stop and think. Today's children are the next generation. What can be more important than raising them?"

Fredrickson said that persons knowing of possible cases of child abuse or neglect can report it at any hour of the day or night by calling their local welfare office or by dialing the statewide, toll-free, hotline number at 1-800-292-5400.

The local and statewide numbers are maintained by the Texas DPW, the legally responsible agency for the investigation of suspected child abuse.

"Child abuse or neglect can leave a physical or emotional scar that will never be erased," he added. "The public must get involved so possible future cases can receive immediate attention. You may save a child's life."

(Next week: Tracing a Child Abuse or Neglect Case from the moment it is reported to the procedure that follows at the child welfare office.)

Many Contribute To Success
Of Annual Wildlife Party

The annual hunting party, which was held November 16, was termed a tremendous success this year and Turney Friess, past president of the Edwards Plateau Wildlife Association, states that the reason for this success goes to those who work to make it so.

He would like to extend thanks to the Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Jaycees, County Agent Clint Langford, the Sonora Independent School District, Sonora Golf Club, the many oil related businesses who contributed wholeheartedly, Sonora merchants who donated prizes the many ranchers who donated food, the Parks and Wildlife Association, to L. P. Bloodworth who served as emcee, to the firemen who gave of their time to park cars, to Bill Stewart, who devotes

THANKSGIVING —our American Heritage

A Bishop

Looks At Life

by Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop, Episcopal Church

WE CAN BE THANKFUL FOR TESTINGS. (Editor's Note: This is the second in a series on how we can become a more thoughtful people.) We make a mistake if we limit the giving of thanks to the good times in our lives, the times when all goes well and we are free of trouble. St. Paul said to the Christians in Ephesus: "Give thanks always for all things."

We look back on this Bicentennial Year we realize how much of our remembrance has had to do with difficult times, with testings we have survived and thru which we have grown as a nation.

The Revolutionary War was such a testing, as were the days of decision that followed. The Civil War was a cataclysmic time of testing. Watergate was a testing of our democratic system and of our ability to recover national morale. Every national election such as the one we have just experienced is a test of our ability to accept the will of the majority without dissention. How grateful we can be that this year there has not been the violence and bitterness of some earlier elections!

I have found it valuable in my own life to make a list of critical times thru which I have passed. This list includes times of illness and suffering, of disappointment and setback, of sorrow and bereavement.

As I recall these times I am grateful for the help which came from God and for the lessons I learned. I believe my life would be less complete, my outlook more superficial, if there had not been these testings. Especially, these experiences made me see in a new way that the God who was my strength in problems of the past will be the same God I can turn to when I have problems in the future.

Dr. Joseph Parker was the beloved pastor of a large congregation in London during the past century. On the Sunday after the death of his wife, his congregation was surprised to see him in his pulpit as usual. They were still more surprised when he said to them: "Bless God for the wilderness; thank Him for the long nights, be thankful that you have been in the school of poverty and have undergone the searching and testing of much discipline. Take the right view of your trials; you are nearer Heaven for the graves you have dug if you have accepted bereavements in the right spirit; you are wiser for the losses you have bravely borne; you are nobler for all the sacrifices you have willingly completed; sanctified affliction is an angel that never misses the gate of Heaven."

Woman's Club To Host Tour of Hunt Residence

The Sonora Woman's Club will host a family home tour December 5 at the James Hunt Home. The tour will begin at 4 p.m., and conclude at 8 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased for $2 from any member of the Sonora Woman's Club or from Mrs. Larry Maddux or

FACTS & FIGURES

Texas has more cows than people, as Texas writer Bill Porterfield points out in a special issue of Context, the Du Pont Company's current affairs magazine, devoted to Texas.

Linda Johnson. All proceeds from ticket sales will be used to benefit the Sonora Woman's Club Library.

The Hunt home will feature Williamsburg Christmas decor and Early American Christmas goodies will be served. Members of the club will conduct the tour, wearing costumes of the early period.

The Hunt home, which was completed in February, features fixtures and furnishings of all antique pieces or faithful reproductions of the 18th century time period. Not one detail of the house or its contents differ from that period.

The two-story brick home contains ten main rooms. Downstairs there is a spacious entry with a formal dining room to the left and a formal living room to the right. The entry ends past the staircase in the back of the house in what the Hunts call the morning room. Behind the formal dining room is the kitchen and pantry and behind the living room is a library-study, guest bedroom and guest bath.

Upstairs, a sitting room separates the master bedroom and bath from the bedrooms and bath of their two children.

Wide plank wood floors are used throughout the house with the smell of rose petals in bowls and the heavy aroma of candle wax evident. Also featured are dark stained woods, and colors of bricks, reds, grays, greens and old blues of that period. The shades of paints were easily obtainable by the Hunts because they had been commercially manufactured after work men had scraped down to the original paint in colonial Williamsburg homes and duplicated it for restoration.

Decorating elements for colonial homes were simple and tasteful, as a look around the Hunt house will tell you. Dried flowers were used as much back then as they are today. Bird cages were also widely used for decoration. Oriental rugs were popular too and samplers made by members of the family and botanical prints were favorites for wall hangings.

Furniture throws, bed coverings and draperies throughout the Hunt house are reproductions of patterns popular in Colonial America. Sitting room furniture is upholstered in carnation flame stitch. Wool fringe and venetian blinds accent windows, and mirrors are in abundance. Wallpapers throughout the house are copies of authentic designs of the day. Woodwork in the kitchen was made of a blue color by use of a process called "pickling", by which the watered-down paint was used to let the woodgrain come through.

Also predominate in the house is the use of brick. Kitchen ovens and cooktops are enclosed in brick to resemble colonial ovens. Brick also forms the inside wall and floor of the morning room.

The Hunts say their house exterior is a scaled down center section of Westover, a James River plantation house located near Richmond and Williamsburg, Virginia.

The Devil's River Philosopher Sez.....

Backward Cities Have Right To Same Help As Nations

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River takes up for the troubled big cities this week, perhaps.

Dear editor:

Although it took them a long time to catch on -- farmers caught on years ago -- big cities are now organizing to get some financial help from Washington. In fact, they want a Department of Urban Affairs established, along with an Urban Bank to lend them money at a reasonable, that is to say a foreign aid, rate of interest, say 2 or 3 per cent and certainly not more than 4.

The reason they need help is that a lot of them are almost broke, their finances and services in shambles and everybody taxed all he can stand, which I don't understand as I've always been told that most of the brains of the country are located in big cities. In fact, the notion was that when a young man in a small town suddenly demonstrated exceptional ability, some big city would snap him up.

Looks like the small towns have been double-crossing the cities and sending them the wrong people.

Anyway, about this Department of Urban Affairs the cities want established in Washington. They say farmers and ranchers have a Department of Agriculture, why can't cities have something too?

I'm in favor of it, maybe it'll get the cities' minds off the mess they've made, but my advice is don't expect too much. I mean, we've had a Department of Agriculture for generations and the price of cattle is the same today it was 25 years ago. On the hoof, not at the supermarket.

Nonetheless we shouldn't discourage cities from trying. If backward countries can get help in Washington, why not backward cities? After all there are human beings in those cars stacked up bumper-to-bumper every afternoon at 5.

By the way, there are two kinds of backward countries: (1) those that, despite their backwardness, know how to get in touch with Washington and (2) those so backward they never heard of the place. Our cities have now moved up into the first category.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Consideration of Meat Quotas

Asked For By ICA President

The president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, T. A. Cunningham, called for William E. Simon, chairman of the Economic Policy Board, to consider the policy concerning the negotiations of the 1977 meat quotas. If the United States continues formal country by country import quotas to restrict 1977 meat imports, the USDA is authorized by law to implement formal quotas. However, if it's agreed that voluntary restraint agreements should be again negotiated between the U.S. and foreign exporting countries, the question that is of utmost importance is whether the USDA or State Department should be the chief U.S. representative in these negotiations.

Cunningham urged Simon to allow officials of the United States Department of Agriculture rather than the State Department to negotiate these voluntary restraint agreements with the countries exporting meat into this country. Cunningham contends that the USDA is the most suited governmental entity to negotiate effective quotas as "the important data necessary for input in determining allowable amounts of meat imports as specified in the 1964 Meat Importation Act is readily accessible to the officials within the USDA. If these negotiations are spearheaded by the USDA agreements could be made to eliminate any attempts of circumvention of meat import quotas from the beginning of 1977. The cattle industry of this nation can not withstand another situation such as we have experienced in the free trade zone at Mayaguez, Puerto Rico", Cunningham concluded. The ICA represents a membership in the excess of 100,000. As members are directly affected by decisions concerning the cattle industry, the Association believes that it is time that agricultural decisions be made by the Department of government that is directly concerned with the importation of foreign meats.

In 1925 it was possible to buy an automobile for as little as $260!

Bob Krueger's Weekly Report

The Prospects for the 95th Congress

Now that the elections have passed, we have a new President, and the Members of Congress are beginning to return to Washington in order to prepare for the coming year, speculation naturally turns to what sort of Congress it will be and what kind of legislation it will produce.

The new Congress reflects some basic changes in the way our government functions. First, nearly a third of the Members will have served one term or less. Second, many of the more powerful committee chairmen are retiring, so there will be new leadership, and newer Members will have an opportunity to participate fully in representing their constituencies. Although the Congress will be more receptive to new ideas and innovative policies than it has been in the past few years, I would not expect to see any sweeping changes immediately. As Jefferson said, "Great innovations should not be forced on slender majorities." President-elect Carter has indicated that although he wants to lead the government in some new directions, he will move cautiously, carefully considering each move. This type of "businessman's perspective" should be a welcome change in Washington.

I will be working again in this Congress to help direct our nation toward a national energy policy which is sensible and does not depend too heavily on foreign energy sources. Similarly, I intend to pursue steadily the goal of a balanced budget and will, wherever possible, vote against wasteful spending.

On the basis of the agricultural research tour which I took in October, I will be looking for new ways to encourage and support agricultural research. My hope is that with a farmer in the White House, this will be an idea which is warmly received. Other matters such as health care and our national defense will require careful consideration. The world will be looking to the United States for guidance, and I will work to see that the decisions which we in the Congress make will be in the best interests of our nation and the world.

The Congress will face a number of difficult issues in the next year, and I think all of us in Washington are committed to doing what is right, what is best for our constituencies and for our country. In achieving that worthy goal, we will need the support, advice, and guidance of the people we represent. Working together, I am optimistic that we can, in the words of our new President, have "a government as good as our people are."

Texas 4-H'ers To Attend Congress

Forty-two of Texas' top 4-H members will be a part of the 55th National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 28-Dec. 2.

The Texas delegation will be among 1,600 4-H'ers from throughout the nation who have been winners at the state, regional and national level in 4-H projects and activities supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

During the Congress, 4-H'ers will meet prominent government, education and business leaders and will exchange ideas about the American economic system, points out a 4-H and youth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Sheep & Goat Industry News

Compiled by

Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association

As any rancher who belongs to a flock of Angora goats can tell you, there's a pot of gold in their hair. More than a few producers have been able to buy new boots with a clear conscience after marketing their clip, and it's actually become profitable to think of ways to increase both mohair and replacement animals.

To that end, the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association appointed a committee at their July annual meeting to recommend practices calculated to improve Angora goat kid crops. The committee, chaired by Armer Earwood of Sonora, and made up of representatives of producers, the Texas Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Extension Service and various feed and drug manufacturers, released its report during a recent Angora Goat Field Day at the Sonora Experiment Station.

Sponsored jointly by TS&GRA, the Texas Wool and Mohair Warehouse Association, the Mohair Council of America and the Texas Mohair Producers Board, the report offered clear and concise guidelines for dealing with the major crucial areas of mohair production.

At the risk of riding our horse before he's broke, it might be important to note the conclusion of the four-page report first. Simply stated, the committee felt that "nutritional needs of goats should be the number one concern."

Beginning roughly two weeks prior to breeding, the committee recommended flushing does with 1/2 pound of corn or 20 percent cubes. Feed flushing could be avoided if deferred pastures are available in good condition. The report also gave tacit approval to feeding throughout breeding, to "help insure bucks and does getting together, as well as stimulating does to ovulate."

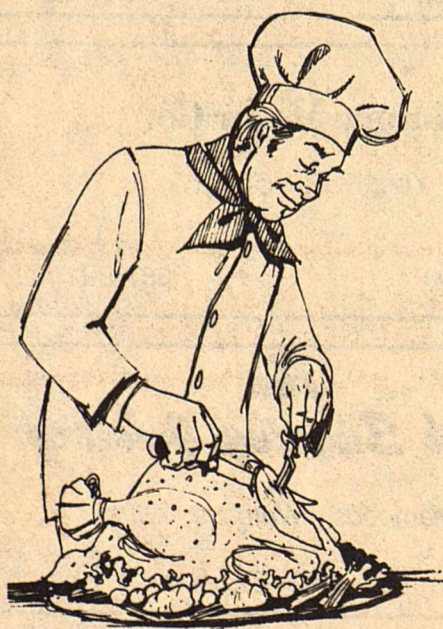

As for general supplemental feeding, the committee suggested that goat condition, rather than range condition, be the deciding factor. It was recommended that supplemental feeding be instituted "as soon as goats begin to lose weight or condition." Range offerings should not be overlooked, however, and the report stressed that producers be familiar with vegetation and its composition in their pastures, mostly as an aid in estimating what and how much to feed, rather than when.

The focus on the Angora goat report, of course, is on increasing reproductive efficiency, and a major factor in reproduction is condition. The final third of the pregnancy term, along with the early portion of lactation, are easily as important from a nutritional standpoint as the breeding period itself, and the committee report suggest 1/2 to 1 1/2 pound of grain cubes during this period, either on a hand-fed or self-fed basis.

Again, range conditions will affect does' needs, but adequate protein intake is termed "imperative", otherwise "abortion may occur or does fail to mother the kids properly."

As a final note on feeding during these crucial periods, the report suggests careful control of feed limiters, plus proper feeding procedures. Correct procedures include feeding within no more than 100 yards of water, and distribution in areas away from pens. They warn that feeding near pens or pasture entrances can disturb grazing patterns.

IT'S THE BEST

Though many Americans know that prime is the best cut of meat, few are aware where the best meat in the world is produced.

It comes from Argentina, report many experts. Specialists say that the quality of the soil is perhaps the key to Argentina's secret. In addition, the introduction of improvements in the herds—especially the beef-producing breeds—has combined with natural factors to obtain this result.

Interestingly, according to the latest reports, at this moment the possibilities of Argentine exports of beef and agricultural products are improving rapidly. This may mean that the next steak you sink your teeth into could come from Argentina.

Comptroller To Ask For Inheritance Tax Relief

Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced that he will ask the legislature in January to grant Texans some state inheritance tax relief by increasing exemptions for surviving spouses to $100,000 and for surviving children, grandchildren or parents to $50,000 each.

Bullock estimated the proposal would exempt an additional 18,000 beneficiaries per year from the basic state inheritance tax. If enacted into law, it would mean 77.7 percent of all beneficiaries would be totally exempt from state inheritance tax, he said.

The comptroller said current law provides an exemption of only $25,000 for all Class A beneficiaries...surviving spouses, children, grandchildren and parents. "That law was written in 1923 and hasn't been changed since," said Bullock. "A $25,000 estate back then would have been sizeable. Today it would be considered modest."

Because the dollar is worth so much less today, Bullock explained, "the state inheritance tax has become particularly burdensome to farmers and ranchers."

Bullock said his proposal was selected after extensive research by his Inheritance Tax Division of actual 1974 inheritance tax returns. He added that his office has worked closely with various farm and ranch groups and the House Ways and Means Committee in developing the proposal.

Heart Association To Meet Monday

The American Heart Association of Sutton County will hold their regular monthly meeting Monday, November 29 at the Sutton County Steakhouse. The meeting will start at 6:30 p.m., for those who wish to eat first and 7 p.m., for the business session. All officers and board of directors are encouraged to attend. The meeting is open to the public.

Post Office Suggests Early Christmas Mailing

The Postal Service has advanced its suggested Christmas mailing deadlines for domestic parcels and letter mail to December 3 and 10, respectively, in anticipation of an exceptionally high mail volume.

Citing the impact of greatly increased mail volumes generated by the 15-state United Parcel Service strike in the East and South, and its residual effect on other parts of the country, the Postal Service said it is compelled to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal.

Parcel volume has already more than doubled in the strike area and is up significantly nationwide, and letter mail is also on the rise, the Postal Service said. It said most of the increase, to date, has been from large volume business mailers. For example, the Service said it is working closely with shippers of perishable goods to handle millions of gift packages normally moved by other shippers.

As Christmas nears, however, more and more of the mail will be from the general public, deposited at neighborhood post offices, on top of the already unprecedented business mail volume, the Postal Service said.

As a result, the Service said, while priority will be given to letter mail, many postal installations normally dedicated to letter mail may have to be used to prevent an unmanageable backlog of parcels.

Therefore, the Postal Service said, it strongly urges the public to deposit their parcels by December 3 and their letters and greeting cards by December 10 to assure delivery by Christmas.

It asked that customers mail as early as possible, use proper packaging, and properly address and ZIP Code their mail.

Police Reports

On November 16 city police investigated the theft of a bicycle stolen from 310 Mulberry Street.

On November 18 Mrs. Catherine Walker advised city police that her car had been hit in front of the bank building and the driver of the car had driven away.

At 4:45 p.m., on that day an accident at the intersection of Highways 277 and 290 was investigated. Minor damages to the two vehicles involved was reported. Drivers of the cars were Marvin Shurley and Esperanza Salinas.

Police Chief Bill Webster stated that he had received numerous calls concerning the traffic situation around the school. Persons are reminded of the danger of double parking to pick up their children. Children should only be picked up on the right side of the street and at walkways designed for this purpose, added Webster.
