Jamie Newbury, acting spokesman for the Band Boosters, told the Board that the Boosters had $7,500 set aside as a donation toward the purchase of 150 new uniforms for the band. In answer to questions, Mr. Newbury also said the organization had additional funds to pay toward band camp expenses, T-shirts for freshmen band members, and heavy duty garment bags to protect the proposed new uniforms.

A brief discussion followed with Board members expressing thanks to the Boosters for their patience in planning this major purchase. Band director Bryant Harris told the Board the total cost for the uniforms would be around $37,000.

Authorizing the superintendent to call for bids on the uniforms, the Board chose unanimously for the district to pay the entire cost of the new uniforms if the bids came in at the estimated cost of around $37,000.

Sometimes the law just doesn't seem fair-but don't quit trying desperate and I need help quickly. My husband lost his job last week leaving us with four children to feed and only my income. He went to the Texas Employment Commission, filed for benefits and assumed he would get them. We learned today that he was denied benefits because his ex-employer said my husband was laid off because he was going out of business for himself.

Not only is that untrue, it is impossible. My husband is an electrician who is only licensed to work for someone else. He does not even have the necessary licenses to go into business for himself.

I suppose we will eventually win this case. BUT HERE'S THE PROBLEM-we cannot survive for the four to six weeks that it will take us to appeal this case through the TEC system.

What can we do? The TEC made a mistake but we are the ones who are suffering. It's not fair!

MAN'S OPINION

by T. Driskell

An expert at survival is well and late reptilian period, eating the thriving here in our community. It has survived since before the dinosaur came on the scene. Most likely it watched with some doubts as the small quadraped emerged from the trees without claws nor fangs; armed only with an opposed thumb and an abnormally large cranial cavity, to feed on reptile

Our survivalist must have learned to adapt quickly because he has overcome ice ages, the most probable impact of a gigantic meteorite, or a gigantic volcanic explosion which brought on a period of cold weather that destroyed the dinosaur. He began an association with the mammal in the remains of the mammal's reptile egg diet, exercising extreme caution lest he became a portion of that diet.

The mammal, who had begun so lowly with such an unlikely bag of traits, also survived. He was forced to develop the brain in that large cranial cavity, and to utilize the opposed thumb to develop tools and weapons to facilitate survival, with the assistance of the partial mastery of fire (it still occasionally gets out of hand). After developing a language, he chose the name "homo sapiens" for himself. Then he launched a program to get rid of the other survivor; the humble but (everlasting?) cockroach.

It seems that we need to look at our sewers. I watched the other night and a roach came up out of the drain and ran across the bathroom floor. They are waterbugs or have many of their traits, so the trap is no barrier to them. The plug on the "Y" (for putting a stop-up removal tool into the sewer) was pulled to see the size of the problem. It was a real pest control subsidy program, about fifty roaches came out. We have a genuine problem, the city should look at the possibilities of reduction of roaches in the sewer system, we cannot tolerate such a breeding stock. Each home owner, before he is absent for several days, should have a strong insecticide to put in the traps in his house.

I have been remiss. Recently, a lady I know stopped me and said she hadn't read anything about the cookies she brought to the nursing home during Christmas! Well . . . gee, lotsa people bring cookies to the patients during Christmas (This was my first thought). But then, does an act of kindness and thoughtfulness mean less because others do it? Is it only spontaneous, individual gifts of thoughtfulness that are important? Or is kindness worthwhile and welcome no matter whether it comes alone or in a I said at the beginning, I have been nursing home staff.

So many nice people have come by, brought gifts (to the patients and staff), donated money or Christmas decorations (or more) that I know I cannot list them, but even though I shouldn't try, I will.

The First National Bank paid for our Christmas tree and some of the decorations. This is the third year they have done that for us! The ladies of the Hospital and Nursing Home Auxiliary not only gave the usual parties for the patients, but individuals made cookies and candy crowd? I think it's the latter, and as to be distributed to the hospital and

She gazed long and earnestly at the books on our book shelves, then exclaimed "We get books from the library, too, but we always take them back when we are through reading them." (Lura Sawyer sees that ours are returned on time.)

Our beauty shop volunteers have been on the ball, even braving the elements last week. Ilene Stewart, Mandy Turk, Ethelda Holland, Landa McIntyre and little daughter, and "Granny" Webb have graced us with their presence.

Does child care effect school performance?

children may affect more than the own every day may have a different parents peace of mind or the child's safety. Research indicates that after-school arrangements for children may effect acceptance by peers, parents and teachers ratings, and how well children do in school and on standardized tests.

In a Dallas study, researchers noted that although children who were supervised after school by their mothers and latchkey children did not differ, children who attend day care centers after school received more negative ratings from peers, but otherwise function as well as mother-supervised and latchkey

Does this mean that leaving children unsupervised after school is an appropriate arrangement? According to the researchers, it is probably safe to conclude that latchkey care is not necessarily negative, but caution must be used in recommending latchkey care as a positive experience for all children.

According to Dr. Sarah Anderson, Extension Family Sciences Specialist at Texas A&M University, latchkey arrangements vary widely from situation to situation and a number of factors may impact the latchkey experience.

"Individual children will respond to identical situation in different ways, therefore, what is appropriate for one child may be inappropriate for another child," said Dr. Anderson.

Parents need to consider how frequently the child is left alone, how long the child is alone each day, and the developmental level of

Choice of care for school-age the individual child. Being on their impact on children below third grade than it does for older children. Also, it's possible that the adverse effects of self care are cumulative and will not show up until later

The latchkey experience is not appropriate for all children or all families, nor should it be undertaken lightly. Parents must prepare children for self-care by setting rules and guidelines for behavior, extablishing routines, and teaching what to do in imergency situations.

A number of educational materials are available to help families plan and prepare for self care. Some of the materials are targeted toward parents to help setting up the latchkey situation.

Other materials are directed toward children. A number of self care handbooks exist which are aimed at providing the child with a "self-study" system for preparing for self care. Dr. Anderson warns however, that "parents should study the materials with their child, not iust hand the materials to children to read on their own."

Hypoglycemia

One day I figured out that hypoglycemia is an infectious disease that you catch in a doctor's office down in Houston.

About the time our oil industry became troubled by falling prices and almost everyone got hungry for business, some of my patients in a small western Kansas town became involved in an "epidemic" of unusual dimensions. It went like

A person of long-standing good health crosses the Kansas-Oklahama border on the way to Houston to visit relatives, arriving healthfully and fit in Houston, there to be met by relatives who enthusiastically bined the Form 1040 package with the report that they have been to a new special forms and instructions needed doctor and found out how sick they really were and were now "better." The visitor goes to the miracle worker and has a complete physical exam (all findings normal) and an exhausting series of lab tests without dietary preparation, including a six-hour glucose tolerance test, a more or less standard examination performed on a fasting patient who is given a whopping big dose of pure glucose and then suffers blood sugar tests every thirty to sixty minutes for six hours. Results: everything normal except on six-hour glucose tolerance test the patient became "hypoglycemic" (blood sugar below published normal). Patient receives very explicit instruction for a highprotein, low carbohydrate multiple feeding diet to be followed with religious determination and a missionary zeal in order to prevent the ravages of hypoglycemia--weak spells, sleepiness after lunch, headaches, irritability, nervousness, of warm skin, clammy skin, poor grades in school and inability to be elected president. Some patients bought medication in the form of shots of adrenocorticotropic hormone or vitamins to be taken two or three times per day. The patient reports to me with a diploma certifying his "new disease," a sheaf of paperwork to back up this diagnoses (everything else is normal) and a happy smile as an indication that he is "better" (this is the first time that I had heard that he had ever been "worse"); consequently, I figured he caught it in Houston. Since I've seen a lot of people come back from Houston healthy, it must have been something he caught in the Hypoglycemia is normal. A low blood sugar results in a rise in adrenalin to help the lion to run two or three miles an hour faster and therby to catch his impala for lunch that he would have missed had he been well-fed, sorporous, with a high blood sugar. When you hear the lion roar, that's about how mean and tense I feel just before lunch when my blood sugar falls down to about 50; but, after all, frustration, aggravations, and irritations represent the tensions in human life that are responsible for most of human progress and inventions. Without proper diet preparation, almost anyone will "fail" a glucose tolerance test. A six-hour glucose tolerance test is an unnatural challenge because few people eat only sugar at mealtimes, and they don't wait that long till the next meal.

Hypoglycemia becomes a medical problem when a person becomes unconscious from his low blood sugar or when he becomes shocky, sweaty, tremulous, confused and has a blood sugar around twentyfive when the normal is expected to be seventy-five or more. There are several extremely rare tumors of the intestinal tract and pancreas that are able to cause these symptoms. If you think you have symptoms of hypoglycemia, it would seem logical to draw the blood when the symptoms are present, whatever they may be. If your blood glucose measures mormal, these symptoms can't be hypogleemia and your chances to be the 1989 poster boy or pinup girl for the Hypoglycemia Society are out the window.

Child abuse prevention program to reach 200 Texas counties

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Children's Trust Fund of Texas have launched a twoyear effort to help parents and professionals in 200 Texas counties prevent child abuse in their communities.

The project, called "Partners for Parenting," involves training county teams composed of extension home economics agents, other professionals and volunteers to develop and implement parenting education programs.

To support the programs, a statewide lending library of parenting resources, ranging from model curricula to teaching videotapes, will be established at Extension headquarters on the Texas A&M University campus.

"Lack of parenting knowledge is one of the major contributors to child abuse," said Janie D. Fields, director of the Children's Trust Fund (CTF). "Through this program we will be able to reach over 100,000 parents and reduce the numbers of children at risk for abuse and neglect.

With more than 68,000 reported cases of child abuse and neglect and an estimated one to two times as many unreported cases in 1987 alone, Texas has a significant child abuse problem.

That was the reason the 69th state legislature established the Children's Trust Fund of Texas in 1987 and designated a portion of marriage license fees to support it. In 1987, 44 community prevention programs were funded by CTF.

which is headquartered in Austin. According to Diane Welch, Extension family life specialist and project director, the $100,000 in funding from CTF will enable Extension to facilitate development of prevention programs in communities where they might not otherwise exist.

"Parents involved in abuse and neglect frequently lack parenting skills and are lonely, isolated, inexperienced, overwhelmed or having to cope with periods of great personal or family stress," she said. "Local teams will learn how to initiate prevention programs targeted to these parents."

Community efforts may include education and support for at-risk new parents both before and after the baby is born; programs to teach parents techniques of guidance and discipline; or supports for parents in special situations, such as single parents or teenage parenting, Welch

"With the library of educational materials we will also be able to assist local groups in actually conducting their programs once they are set up, since the funds to purchase teaching materials is often a problem, especially in smaller communities," she said.

Welch said that youth workers, social workers, teachers, clergy and lay church workers and interested volunteers will be recruited to participate in the training program through county Extension offices.

93rd Fort Worth Stock Show

The Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show will make its 93rd annual call on Fort Worth January 20 through Febuary 5 amid records of premiums, auction sales and a rodeo purse. And, there's a strong possibility for a record number of visitors that would surpass the high of 797,100 reached in 1988.

All the activities are scheduled during the 17-day run of the Stock Show at the Will Rogers Memorial Center in West Fort Worth. Exhibitors are expected to present over 16,000 head of top quality livestock to official judges who will be responsible for awarding a record $600,000 in purse money and premiums.

New breed and specialty shows will join the traditional shows for cattle, sheep, swine, horses, donkeys, mules, sheep dog trails, llamas, poultry, pigeons and rabbits. New this year will be classes for draft horses, team penning, open barrows, plus new classes in the junior show and horse department.

Scheduled as part of the exposition are a dairy industry show and special ostrich and llama displays. These educational exhibits are in addition to the FFA Children's Barnyard and the Stock Show Milking Parlor.

A record of eleven auction sales are set this year for cattle, four for horses, a rabbit sale, and the Sale of Champions from the Junior Show. The youth sale is scheduled at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Febuary 3, in the West Arena of the Equestrian Center.

Making a special appearance at the Stock Show will be Willard Scott, the favorite weatherman on the NBC Today Show. Scott will broadcast his weather reports January 26 from the show grounds, working with KXAS-TV Channel 5 which is the television media special event sponsor for the Stock Show this year.

The animals will initially be fed in large groups sorted by size, but will later be moved to sire or ownership groups for inspection and display.

An individual breeder will be limited to no more than twelve animals, except with special permission. A minimum of four animals per owner is suggested, but this is not a requirement.

Ideally, the goats (male kids born in Spring 1988) submitted for testing should be in fleece when they arrive at the Station. The fleece will be returned to the owner. Shorn animals will be accepted, but it will be necessary to reshear them, The animal's feet should be trimmed before delivery and producers are advised to make sure they are free of internal and external parasites and have been vaccinated

USDA seeks comments on 1989 support prices

The U.S. Department of fifteen percent from the comparable Agriculture is seeking comments on the method for calculating the support price for pulled wool and proposed price support levels for pulled wool and mohair for the 1989 marketing year.

The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, says that the support price for pulled wool shall be set at a level relative to the support price for shorn wool to maintain normal marketing practices for pulled wool.

The law also provides that mohair must be supported at a level, determined by the secretary of agriculture, that is necessary to maintain approximately the same percentage of parity as for shorn wool. The deviation of mohair support prices shall not cause an increase or decrease more than percentage of parity at which shorn wool is supported.

The shorn wool support price is determined based upon a formula prescribed in the Wool Act. Based on current reported indices, the 1989 shorn wool support price will be $1.77 per pound (grease basis).

A preliminary regulatory impact analysis on the options may be obtained by writing to: Director, Commodity Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013 or by calling (212)475-4645.

Comments must be received at the above address by January 27, 1989 and will be available for public inspection in Room 3760-S of USDA's South Building during regular business hours.

Small employers should check wage reports

People who hire only a few workers should take special care in reporting their employees' wages for Social Security purposes. Our records show that the annual wage reports due to Social Security by the end of February often contain errors made by small employers.

Employers are required to keep a record of wages paid, withhold the Social Security tax due from the employee's wages, and pay a matching amount. The taxes withheld are reported to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) at the end of each quarter on IRS Form 941. A Form W-2 Wage and Tax Statement

Similarly, some self-employed persons are filing quarterly tax reports with IRS on their earnings. Such employers should instead file as self-employed persons on their income tax returns, paying the tax to get proper credit for their selfemoyment income under Social Security.

Other employers apparently have trouble determining when to include fringe benefits in wage reports. A good rule of thumb is if the fringe benefits are subject to imcome tax, people should pay Social Security taxes on them and report them as

Behind the Iron Curtain

East German Police were quick to arrive on the scene that afternoon in late July, 1974. Only ten minutes had passed since my engine blew up and left me stranded beside the autobahn. The village of Steinberg was about a half-mile south; I was fifty miles from the nearest point in the "free world."

As the Policemen exited their car, pistols pointed at me, I remembered the words of the officer back at Check Point Bravo in Berlin.

"You are not to acknowledge nor comply with any directions or orders given by the East German Police. You will simply state that you wish to speak with a Soviet Officer and cease communications with the "third-world" official."

Though I understood his question and my job as a soldier was directed against the USSR, he didn't have to know that and I simply asked, "Do you speak English?'

You would have thought he had been born and raised in London as he replied, "Yes, I do. What is your name and occupation, please?' Having filled the front side of typewriter size paper with census type data on me and my vehicle, the interrogation was ended.

At this point, the Soviet Lieutenant dismissed his men, turned to me, snapped open his overcoat and asked if I wanted to trade for any of the military items 5 inside. He motioned toward the three popular men's magazines and carton of cigarettes laying in the front seat of my vehicle. I was quite surprised but traded the books and seven packs of smokes for several articles, thinking an opportunity such as this doesn't happen frequently.

Our transaction complete, he returned to his convoy. They proceeded a quarter-mile down the highway and stopped to watch me until I was rescued eight hours later. During this time, many vehicles stopped inquiring about my situation and offering food and beverages.

The first few hours of this ordeal was fearful; my imagination picturing years of imprisonment somewhere in Siberia for being an "American spy." In retrospect, I would not have traded the experience for a million dollars. It showed me that compassionate 'real' human beings lived on the other side of the Iron Curtain, too.

Girl Scout cookie sale

The Girl Scouts in Sonora will be taking orders for Girl Scout Cookies January 13 - 26, 1989. The Girl Scout Cookie Sale is a great American tradition and we encourage you to join in this tradition of supporting Girl Scouting by buying Girl Scout Cookies The El Camino Girl Scout Council will be offering seven great varieties of cookies this year. The cookies will include our four traditional varieties of cookies: Thin Mints, Shortbread, Peanut Butter Sandwich, and Peanut Butter Patties. In addition, this year we will be offering three new varieties including Chocolate Creme Sandwich, Caramel deLites, and Lemon Pastry Cremes. The El Camino Girl Scouts will be delivering the cookies February 23 through March 12, 1989. The cookies will sell for $2.50 per box.

For nearly 70 years, Girl Scouts have knocked on the doors of their neighbors and offered delicious cookies for sale. In 1987, over 144 million packages of cookies were sold. The sale proceeds benefit the troops which make the sales as well as the Councils providing the girls facilities and services.

So when a Girl Scout knocks on your door-or calls you on the phone-buy some extra boxes for the freezer. The cookies are baked with vegetable shortening, have no preservatives and no artificial colors.

If the Girl Scouts miss you, visit their sale booths or call one of the leaders at 387-5617, 387-3133, 387-5327 or 387-5286 and ask to place your cookie order.

Head of Household To List Children

Many taxpayers filing as head of household have been needlessly delaying their tax refunds by forgetting to list the names of qualifying dependents or children, the Internal Revenue Serv-

To file as a head of household, a taxpayer must be unmarried or qualify to file as unmarried, and provide more than half the cost of keeping up a home that is the principal home of the taxpayer and the taxpayer's unmarried child (who may be either a dependent or not), or a married child who must be the taxpayer's dependent.

Other qualifying relatives such as an uncle, sister, niece, or son-in-law, must be the taxpayer's dependents, and actually live with the taxpayer the entire year. The taxpayer's dependent parents, however, may qualify even though they do not live with the taxpayer. The taxpayer must have paid more than half the cost of keeping up their home in order to qualify for head of household filing status.

To be considered unmarried, the IRS says, one must be single, legally separated, divorced, married but living apart for at least the last six months of the tax year, or widowed. Without at child or qualifying dependent, the IRS stresses, unmarried taxpayers are not eligible to file as head of household, and if they do not qualify as surviving widow or widower with a dependent child, they must file under the single status.

News from Sonora High School by Cynthia Kepler

Now's the start of the real new year for student! Semester exams finished last Monday to the relief of everyone in the high school! Students enjoyed a midweek break while the teachers were figuring final grades and getting ready to close out the semester. Now's the time for a new start--Let's make this semester the best yet!

On Saturday, the U.I.L. literary and speech teams braved the weather and traveled to Colorado City to participate in a practice tournament. All the students made a great showing. Results are 2nd place, CX Debate, Michael Todd and Mark Rogers; 2nd place, Typing, Jesse Lynch; 4th place, Typing, Tracy Love; 1st place Number Sense, Cynthia Kepler; 5th place, Number Sense, Jesse Lynch; 1st Place Science, Jesse Lynch, 3rd place, Science, Tracy Love; 4th place, Calculator, Cynthia Kepler; 3rd place, Poetry, Christi Spain. Tammie Adams made the Semi-Finals in Informative Speaking, Cynthia Kepler reached the Finals in Persuasive Speaking, and John Russell reached the Finals in Prose. Overall, Sonora ended up with 122 points.

As for basketball, the Sonora teams had to delay their Friday game with Coahoma due to weather. The girls varsity chalked up another point in the "wins" column as they beat Coahoma 61-40. Wheless Baker was the high scorer with seventeen points. The boys varsity pulled out another heart-stopper. Abel McGee made two free throws in the last 7 seconds to pull the Broncos ahead 57-56. The high scorer was Michael Harris with twenty-five points.

I'd really like to see some more people coming out for the games! Our basketball teams are having really great seasons this year and deserve all of Sonora's support. Check the Devil's River News for times and places.

One more note on the Band, Last week's All-Region Concert took place in Stephenville. As I reported earlier, Angie Stewart, Catherine Kepler, Mark Wootten, and Chuck Harris all made the band at the tryouts. However, Jessica Johnson, clarinet, was informed a few days before the concert that she would be playing in an alternate's position Sonora was well represented in that concert. Now, members of the band are working toward Solo and Ensemble Contest in February.

Remember, if you have some announcement dealing with the high school, I want to hear about it. Thanks and best of luck in the second semester.

Well, it's the first of another Wilma won Guest Bingo. year, another new beginning, time to take stock of what we have, and what we want for the future-for ourselves and for Sonora. It is January 1989 and we have to decide soon whether or not we, who are Sonorans want to have a Centennial in 1990 or not. We cannot wait until January of 1990 to decide.

The Sutton County Centennial is a once-in-a-lifetime event, and much planning and hard work will have to go into it to be successful. Each of you has a talent that is needed. Please think of what you'd like to contribute and let a member of the Historical Planning Committee-Patricia Johnson, Preston Love, Seco Mayfield, Charlotte Gilmore or Anne Mayknow-or please attend the next Historical Society Meeting.

Bits N' Pieces: Charlotte Wilson has returned home from visiting her sons and their families-Jim and Cherrie Wilson, Russell and Scott from Midland and John K. and Karen Wilson, Heather and Perry from Lake McQueeney.

Rhonda Gulley, Caleb and Julian, Betty and Don Hooper, Midland and Tony and Linda Hooper, Whitney, Joli and Colton, Odessa helped celebrate Ollie Belle Majors 85th birthday in Greenville, Alabama. Mrs. Majors is their mother and grandmother.

Becca Powers, Anita Balch, Joe Will Ross and Mary Ross have returned to A & M after the holiday break, Davey Ross is back at Tarleton and Carrie Cox is back at UT in Austin.

Lenora and Ben Pool have returned home from a 5-day cruise to Nassau and Freeport, the Bahamas, on the Norwegian Cruise Lines Ship, Sunward II. They enjoyed Las Vegas shows on board, grand food, shopping, and snorkeling and the beaches.

Cynthia Ward was hostess to the Tuesday Bridge Club on January 10. Members present were Rosalie Richardson, Bobbye Thompson, Marti McLain, Doris Rousselot, Joan Cusenbary, Faye Morgan, Liz Hemphill, Martha Wallace and Jerry Wallace. Guests were Mae Ward, Pat Merrill, Wilma Jones and Vivian Crites.

Take care of yourself to fight stress

We all experience stress at one time or another, and typically it affects us in similar ways. Symptoms include impatience, irritability, and loss of self assurance. But stress affects more than just emotional stability. Prolonged stress weakens the body's immune system and can lead to heart problems, high blood pressure, and headaches. Taking care of yourself is half the battle. Here are some reminders about how to do

*Awareness-recognize how stress feels, emotionally and physically. Then pinpoint the circumstances that triggered the stress and decide

*Nutrition-healthful eating habits include obtaining a balanced and varied diet and drinking plenty of

*Exercise-keeping your body active is good for health, happiness, and self-esteem-all great stress fighters.

*Relaxation-whether it's deep breathing exercises or a getaway weekend, a break in tension can be

ASK ANN RICHARDS

It is safe to invest in an out-of-town bank? Reading newspapers from around With annual fe the state, I've noticed some banks offer a higher interest rate than my local bank. Is there anyway to invest my money in an out-of-town bank? Is it safe?

With electronic transfers, moving funds from one institution to another offering better rates is easy and safe.

If the amount of money or the difference in interest rates is very small, you may not find it is profitable to warrant moving your money from bank to bank.

Factors other than higher rates should be considered when rate shopping.

Ask how quickly you can get money from that out-of-town account.

Find out if the interest rate quoted is compounded daily, weekly, monthly, quarterly or yearly. The higher the interest rate and the more often it is compounded, the higher the yield will be.

When it comes to your hard earned money, play it safe and shop around for the best yield.

When I was visiting friends in New England, I saw an ad for "annual fee checking." How does it work, and is it available in Texas?

With annual fee checking you pay a charge on your checking account once a year. The fee usually runs around $25. If you write a lot of checks every month and keep your average balance fairly low, you may benefit from this service. Since there are no monthly service charges, you could write as many checks a month as you wanted without worrying about keeping a sufficient balance to cover fees.

Bankers with whom I have spoken are not aware of any Texas Banks that offer this feature, but if it is successful in New England you may find it working its way down here.

The check is in the mail...

When a Social Security check fails to arrive on the third of the month, chances are it's due to something the beneficiary had failed to do. The risk of a missing or delayed check may be substantially reduced by taking a few easy precautions.

Failure to report a change of address is the most common reason for not receiving a check. A change of address should be reported both to the Social Security office and the post office. The post office forwards mail for only one year, after which any mail that does not contain a new address is returned to the sender. Changes of address may be reported to the Social Security office by phone or mail.

A check may also be lost or stolen. Avoid problems with lost or stolen checks by signing up to have the payments sent directly to a bank or other financial institution. To survivors, or disability.

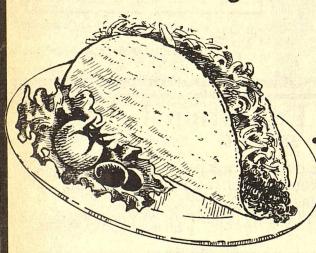

arrange direct depost, all a beneficiary has to do is call the nearest Social Security office.

In many cases, failure to receive a check results from a change in the beneficiary's status. For example, a parent's check may stop when a child turns 16. To assure getting checks on time and in the correct amount, learn how changes in status may affect your eligibility for benefits or the benefit amount. These changes must be reported to the Social Security office as soon as they occur.

The changes that must be reported vary depending on the type of benefit. To find out what changes may affect your check, ask the Social Security office for the "rights and responsibilities" booklet that deals with the type of benefit you are receiving; retirement;

Reduce exposure to gases That crackling fire in your monoxide. Adding venting or In homes where the garage is purchasing vented heaters can solve attached to the house, a little extra rireplace has something in common with the automobile in your garage--both may release carbon monoxide into your home.

There are many sources of carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide and respirable particles in most homes, according to Dr. Susan Quiring, a housing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

Some of those include kerosene and gas heaters, chimneys, furnaces, wood stoves, fireplaces and gas appliances.

'The problem is not with the heat source itself, but with inadequate maintenance and poorly ventilated homes," she said.

For example, Quiring said unvented kerosene and gas heaters are a prime source of carbon the problem.

"People who own or are considering purchase of a wood stove should make sure it's properly sized for the room and is certified to meet U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) emission standards, said Quiring.

She also said owners should make certain the doors on wood stoves fit tightly to prevent both gas and particle release.

Even a standard gas furnace can create problems if, for example, the heat exchanger becomes cracked.

The housing specialist said the best prevention is having a trained professional inspect, clean and tune-up the central heating system, including all furnaces, flues and chimneys annually.

Changing the filters on central heating systems and air cleaners as instructed in the manufacturer's directions also is a good preventive

"People often forget that gas appliances may need to be adjusted occasionally. If you have a gas range, it's a good idea to install and use an exhaust fan which is vented to the outdoors. An older gas range with a manual pilot should be checked frequently for gas leaks," care can decrease the amount of car exhaust that gets inside. Make sure that the door into the house is closed and the garage door is open before starting the car. Don't idle the car in the garage.

"Since tobacco smoke also contains gases and particles, homes where people smoke should be especially well-ventilated," said the specialist. "If people do smoke, it's best if they do it outdoors.

According to the EPA "indoor pollution" can result in health effects, such as eye, nose and throat irritation and increased respiratory infections.

Higher concentrations of carbon monoxide can cause headaches, dizziness and flu-like symptoms that clear up after leaving home. Very high concentrations of carbon monoxide can be fatal.

People concerned about the indoor air quality in their homes can get up-to-date information from a booklet published jointly by EPA and the Consumer Product Safety Commission. It's called "The Inside Story: A Guide to Indoor Air Quality," and is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, CO., 81009, at 50 cents
