Lawyers' Guild Chieftin Backs Proposed Court Revision

Lamont Quizzed

Denial that J. P. Morgan & Co. policies contemplated secret removal of the Van Swearingen brothers from control of their real estate and rail empire was made by Thomas W. Lamont, ranking partner in the Morgan firm as he testified, above, at a Senate committee probe of rail financing. Removal of the Van Swearingens was suggested, testimony showed, by an officer in a subsidiary of the Guaranty Trust Co.

ENACTMENT URGED BY DEVANEY AFTER SENATE QUESTIONS

Devaney Formerly A Member of Minn. Supreme Court
'ONLY REMEDY'
Says Progressive Legislation Is Needed Now

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12. (P)—John P. Devaney, president of the newly formed national lawyer's guild, urged today enactment of President Roosevelt's court bill as "the most constructive remedy available to make possible progressive legislation imperatively needed."

Devaney, who resigned last month as chief justice of the Minnesota supreme court, appeared before the senate judiciary committee for third day hearings.

He said that many critics of the Roosevelt proposal fear the new justices "will be sufficiently independent to interpret the constitution as it is written, rather than torture it to their own desires."

Mrs. Mary, Wiley Bell Are Victims

RANKIN, Mar. 12 (Special)—Mrs. Mary Bell, 71, her son Wiley, 46, both lay dead at their ranch home 12 miles west of here and two other sons, Cody of San Angelo, and Russell Bell, of Fort Worth, were in hospitals suffering from bullet wounds today as the result of a shooting scrape at the home this morning about 1:30.

Cody Bell, who had recently leased his Castle Gap ranch and moved to San Angelo, staggered into a Texon hospital shortly after the shooting with Jim Horton, a cowboy on the ranch, and told attendants that there had been a shooting scrape on the ranch and that his mother and brother were dead. He was suffering from a gunshot wound in his left side.

OWNERS ARE URGED TO PURCHASE NEW LICENSE PLATES

Last-Minute Rush Is Certain, Buy Now To Avoid It

There is no way that a last minute rush can be avoided but persons buying car license plates now can dodge it, officials of the tax collector's office said this morning.

Only 400 passenger car license plates have been sold out of the total of 3,500 to be disposed of during the remainder of the month. At that rate, employees will have to write out approximately 200 per day, almost an impossibility with the limited force in the office.

Officers in the tax collector's office have announced that the 20 percent penalty for not having the plates will be put into effect immediately after midnight March 31. All plates purchased after that date will cost just one-fifth more than the ones purchased prior to that date unless the applicant swears to an affidavit that the car has not been driven since the deadline for purchasing the license plates.

Employees of the office have asked that all persons applying for new plates bring their receipt for last year's license, thereby saving a lot of time to themselves and the office.

MANNING FUNERAL HELD HERE TODAY

Early Ranchman, Auto Dealer Succumbs Thursday

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock this morning for Will Manning, 63, who died late Thursday afternoon at the family residence on East Kentucky street, Midland. He had been in poor health for a year and suffered a severe stroke about two weeks ago, having been brought here then from McCamey where he had business interests.

The Rev. J. E. Pickering, pastor of the First Christian church, conducted the service at the Ellis funeral home, with burial services at Fairview cemetery. Pall bearers were T. O. McKiff, W. P. Estes, T. E. Steele, J. C. Roberts, S. G. McLaughlin and T. Paul Barron.

NEGRO QUESTIONED IN DEATH OF BROWN

Funeral Today For Winkler Baby Girl

Funeral services were held this morning at Barrow's for Norma Jean Winkler, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Winkler, who died at birth Thursday about 8:30 p. m.

When oil was discovered in the McCamey fields, he and J. Wiley Taylor started the oil town of Cross-set, and he was postmaster there for several years. Since then he had operated business interests at McCamey.

The cowboy, Horton, left the hospital early this morning to get the body of Mrs. Bell and was to be questioned by officers later. Cody Bell had not yet been questioned by officers but they expected to get his version of the affair just as soon as his condition would permit.

Russell was moved to a San Angelo hospital where he is being held for Upton county officers.

18 ARE TRAPPED IN MINE EXPLOSION EARLY LAST NIGHT

Body of One Man Is Found By Group Of Searchers

LOGAN, W. Va., Mar. 12. (P)—Rescue workers in the MacBeth mine flashed word today they had reached a "cluster of bodies."

Three other bodies had already been found and 15 are missing from an explosion that wrecked the mine.

LOGAN, W. Va., Mar. 12. (P)—One man died last night and 18 miners were missing after an explosion far back in the workings of the MacBeth mine of the Hutchinson Coal company.

Searchers found the body of Joe Frye, a motorman.

Company officials declined to express an opinion on the fate of the missing men.

Rescue crews were entering the mouth, feeling their way cautiously toward the center of the blast.

They made their way through a crowd of persons about the opening, many of them relatives of the missing men. The explosion occurred two miles inside.

An hour later, the only word from them was that Frye's body had been found.

One In September

An explosion in the mine last September 2 killed 10 men just after they started to work on the night shift.

At that time rescue workers labored for hours, cutting through the debris with the hope that some of the 10 had escaped. The last of the bodies was not recovered until about 40 hours after the blast.

MacBeth is a hamlet about eight miles from Logan. A majority of those living there work in the mine.

The mine ordinarily employs about 200 men. There was 120 in the operation at the time of the September blast but most of them made their way to safety.

Mine officials listed the mine as "gaseous" but said safety precautions were taken at all times, with two fire bosses on duty.

Harold Hutchinson, son of the owner, announced the explosion occurred in the second west main of Macbeth, more than two miles from the mouth of the mine.

Three rescue crews were at work, but officials said they had heard nothing to indicate conditions on the interior and whether it was likely that many had escaped.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12. — Aspirants for presidential nominations in 1940 are not entirely relieved by Roosevelt's assurances that he looks forward to retiring to private life on Jan. 20, 1941.

They won't be entirely happy until the president gives them a signed affidavit, couched in solemn language, officially sealed and riveted on the White House front door.

Roosevelt said at the Democratic "Victory Dinner" here:

"My great ambition on Jan. 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be."

But there are those who predict that when the time comes, the president may feel himself unable to realize that "great ambition."

They fear—perhaps in some cases, pretend fear—that he will feel the country needs him desperately. And so they're whispering that his statement is comparable to the rather enigmatic remark of Calvin Coolidge: "I do not choose to run."

There seems to be no sound basis for supposing at this time that F. D. R. has any thought of seeking a third term. Suspicion appears to rest chiefly on the tradition that no president has ever been happy at leaving the White House, after two terms.

Presidential intimates scoff at the thought. Some already are busy speculating as to Roosevelt's 1940 successor, if not actually laying unobtrusive groundwork for certain candidates. They say there isn't any more reason for supposing Roosevelt harbors third term ambitions than there is for paying serious attention to suggestions Mrs. Roosevelt might succeed him. Mrs. Roosevelt herself branded that last idea as "idiotic." The mere fact any such phantasy reached such a point that it was raised at one of her press conferences, amply demonstrated that people do get some funny political ideas into their heads.

PAVED WAYS FOR GREAT DISCOVERIES

THREE centuries ago a Dutch mathematician and astronomer made certain discoveries that later enabled the great Sir Isaac Newton to develop some of his theories on gravity, and that made it easier for succeeding astronomers to study the heavens.

The scientist was Christian Huygens. He was first to design a pendulum clock and to use the swinging weight to determine the rate of increase in speed of a falling body.

Huygens built the first telescope of any considerable power, and with it discovered the ring around Saturn, besides one of the planet's moons. In describing these discoveries, he also revealed an invention of his own by which astronomers could measure small angles between objects seen through a telescope. Finally, Huygens proposed the wave theory of light which now is challenged by advocates of the "corpuscular" theory.

For all this Huygens was highly honored, both at home and abroad. A sketch of him appears on one of Netherlands' "child welfare" stamps of 1928.

Previously, he said, "an informer was held in higher esteem than the exact findings of science."

"Today, approximately 50 scientists are steadily employed in the bureau, and the work is increasing by bounds until we can look forward to the time when the unethical 'so-called' expert, willing to testify for whichever side offers the most money—the prosecution or the defense—will become a thing of the past."

Hoover cited the growth of civil fingerprinting, and asserted that the work of education is "proceeding against what was a solid wall of ignorance and that the inhibitions of the average citizen against having his fingerprints on file gradually are broken down."

New Tackle Catches Fishermen as Well as The Fish With Balanced Outfits Stressed

Steel vs. Bamboo Still Battle In Rods

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer

Some day some one is going to declare a Christmas in March for fishermen. For March, besides being windy, is the month of preparation and anticipation for anglers and they'd just as soon have Santa Claus fill their socks with various items of tackle they've ogled at in stores and magazines, as the usual assortment of ties, handkerchiefs, and vari-colored shorts.

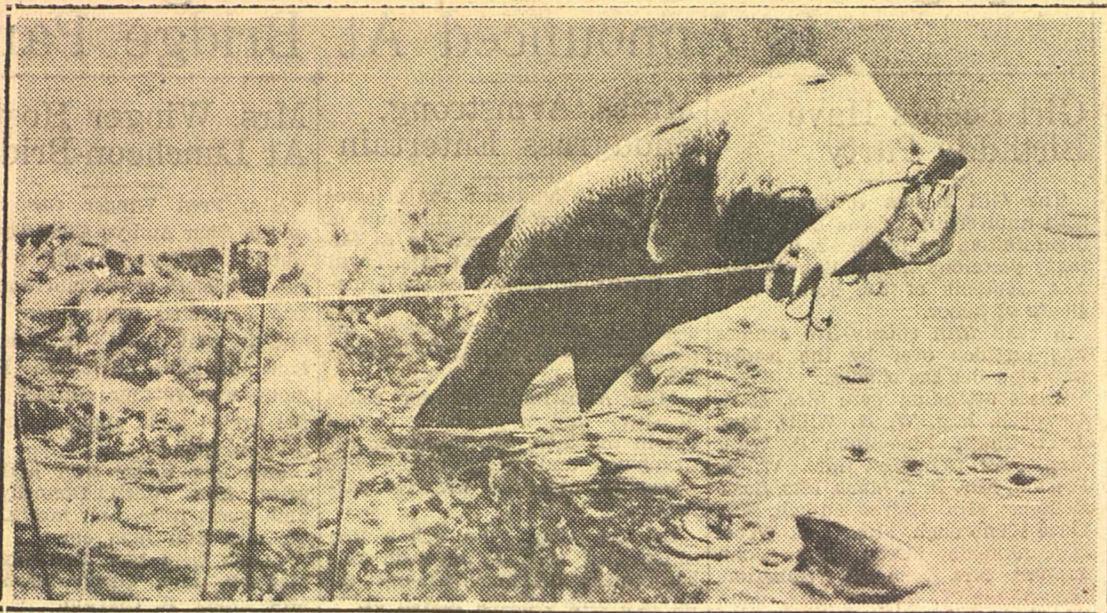

Right now avid anglers are busy overhauling tackle, replacing worn items, and falling easy prey to lures that have been developed over the winter not only to entice fish, but fishermen themselves.

This year is no exception. Counters are groaning under an assortment of baits that resemble anything from a sickly looking frog to an over-the-hill general. Much of this tackle is good, a lot is fair, and some of it wouldn't catch fish with the help of a net.

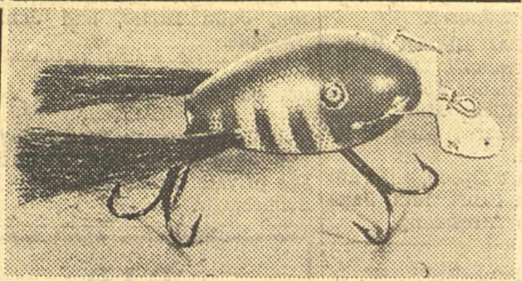

But your modern Ike Walton isn't fooled by the latter. He doesn't spend millions of dollars a year for tackle without learning a lesson. They're able to discern the difference between fish getters and fishermen's goat-getters.

Fly-Casting Is Fine
All types of fishing tackle show a big improvement this season. In the fly casting division there is a noticeable trend toward finer tackle, with tapered lines better than ever, longer and finer leaders more in demand and flies of the midsize variety, tied on hooks size 18 and 20 getting more and more use as their value in the hot summer month is realized.

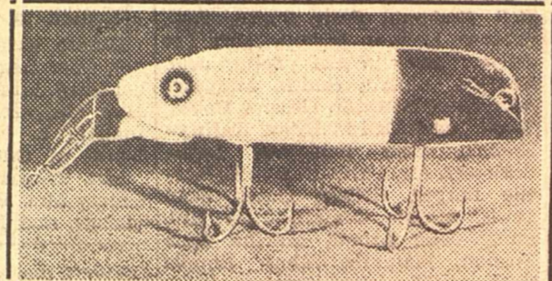

There's still the battle between hollow steel and bamboo in the rod department. The steel weapons have been further developed, having been pulled down to a weight as low as four ounces in order to give greater flexibility. Bamboo, in an effort to keep pace of the development of steel, has been incorporated into double-built sticks, and rods with steel centers.

A gallant warrior stages his last stand as Mr. Bass leaves his haven in pencil weeds and lily pads to fight that wooden plug.

Hair legs and a wicked wiggle in deep water is the new "ding-bat."

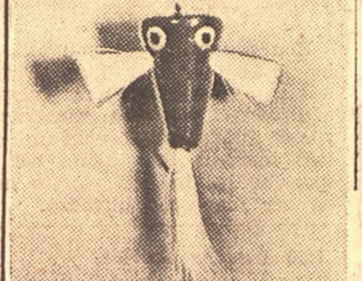

Two lures in one is this plug, which travels just under surface of deep.

In the matter of reels, there is a wider trend toward the automatic variety, which has been lightened considerably, and brought within a fair price range.

Greater effort is being made to educate the fisherman to balance his reel with rod and line.

In this connection one concern, featuring balanced tackle, has employed Tony Accetta, former amateur casting champion and now king of the pros, to make a tour of the country preaching the gospel of correct balance.

In bait casting, as in fly fishing, the battle wages between steel and bamboo in the long rod, but favors hollow steel in bait casting, because metal rods can stand a lot more punishment.

The power steel rods with double grips are mighty effective weapons in tolling big spoons and plugs for "lunge and big pike—and who would want to manhandle a good bamboo rod in that fashion!

improve, with finer development of the level wind feature. One company has gone so far as to dispense with the line carriage and worm entirely, using a spiral wind device that spools the line evenly. Wider use of aluminum alloy in spools and chassis is making for less weight and wrist fatigue.

Getting down to lures themselves—there are a legion.

There's the new "ding-bat," a creation featuring two sets of hair legs and a mouth piece that gives the plug an erratic action while it runs deep. The bukkait legs impart a sinuous attraction that has been missing in wooden plugs for years.

A new "devil" bait development of the old ace-king-queen series spoon, also incorporates a bukkait. It's a wobbler that dives deep.

Development goes forward fast in the bass bug division. Three new eye-catcher this year are the pop-eyed frog, with wriggly hair legs; a plunker bass bug, and a small brother of the river runt.

In the fly department, in addition to a wider manufacture of midsize and small flies, there is a growing popularity among the b-ivisibles. This fly has been comparatively slow in catching on in this country because, in the quiet chalk streams of England, where our fly fishing art came from, there was little reason to employ it. However, in the rushing mountain streams of the United States, where fast white water is apt to suck under a finely tied dry fly, the heavily-hackled bi-visible is right at home.

Application has been filed this 10th day of March, 1937, in the Commissioners' Court of Midland County, Texas, by Elizabeth Garrett, Executrix of the estate of H. N. Garrett, deceased, for permission to cancel 'Hill Crest' Addition to the town of Midland, Texas, same being in and part of Survey No. 33, Block 39, Township One, South, in said Midland County and State, and to throw the lands therein contained, heretofore subdivided into blocks, lots and other subdivisions, back into average as it was before such subdivision, and to cancel and revoke certain dedications and restrictions made in the said 'Hill Crest' Addition to and against the public Any persons interested in such lands are hereby commanded to appear before the Commissioners' Court above named on Monday, April 12th, 1937, at a regular term thereof, to protest such cancellation if they so desire, or show cause why it should not be allowed.

The PAYOFF

BY RICHARD McCANN
NEA Service Sports Writer

The subject of commercialism in college football is like a poor relation—it's liable to drop in on us any time of the day or year. It's also a lot like the weather. As Mark Twain would say, everybody talks about it, but nobody does anything about it.

The matter has dropped in on the sports pages twice during the last few days, brazenly squeezing its unwelcome person in between pictures of the baseball training season.

First, Paul Schwegler, former All-America tackle at the University of Washington came out in the public prints as being in favor of a no pay, no play movement among college football players. "What college football needs," said Mr. Schwegler, "is a sitdown strike. The players should wear out the bench until they get paid—nice, clean, fresh money from the controller's office."

Shortly after Mr. Schwegler had uttered these blasphemous words, authorities at John Hopkins University announced that they wouldn't charge admissions any more for their sporting events to avoid, so they said, any taint of commercialism in athletics.

A de-lovely attitude, to be sure, but quite unnecessary. It was the same as you walking into the nearest police station and saying, "Officer, I understand Charley Ross has been kidnaped—well I didn't do it."

All Don't Want Wages
No one, you see, had accused John Hopkins' players of being professionals. Their record is above reproach, although it has been somewhat below par for the course.

But they do have the right idea, those John Hopkins authorities. Either give your followers amateur sports at amateur prices, or give the players part of the proceeds if they are attracting vast throngs at $3.30 and $4.40, or more, per flask.

However, you may be surprised to know that all college football players, active and former, don't agree with this viewpoint. They don't all think with Mr. Schwegler that they should be paid a salary or a percentage of the profits for their efforts on the field. Some of them think that a scholarship—a free education—more than repays them.

"Of course," one of them said recently in discussing commercialism, "I'd like to have gotten a sizable weekly wage at the same time, but I don't think it was coming to me. I've got to admit that football did more for me than I ever did for football. Football and my university had gotten along without me before and could have continued to get along without me. But I doubt if I could have gotten along without them."

"My family was poor, you see, and they couldn't send me to school and if I hadn't been able to play football I couldn't have gone to college."

More Are Helped Than Hurt
He profited by his free education, earned a degree and is now a prosperous professional man. "Some of the boys don't take advantage of the free education, of course," he said, "and they turn out to be bums the minute they leave school. But that's not the fault of football. They would have been bums anyway. A weekly salary wouldn't have helped them."

Mr. Schwegler, himself, is a living argument against his remarks that college football demands more than it donates. I don't doubt that he would have succeeded in business without the aid of his football reputation but certainly it hastened and helped his progress in Hollywood where he is a well-paid technician.

USE THE CLASSIFIDES

There are scores more like him out there in movie colony, not to mention other professions and businesses.

Johnny Mack Brown, of Alabama and Nick Luke, of Notre Dame and Dale Van Sickle, of Florida and Cotton Warburton, Aaron Rosenberg and Russ Saunders of Southern California, to name a few, capitalized on their football ability and publicity to make good in the movie industry—not as actors, necessarily but as directors.

Football gave most of these young men college educations which they couldn't have had and the college educations gave them contacts and social standing, and their contacts and social standing got them well past the 50-yard line down the field to success.

Six Pitchers Out For Aggie's Nine

COLLEGE STATION, Mar. 11.—Six pitchers, upon whom probably will rest the burden of the Cadet's fate in coming Southwest Conference play, will work for the Texas Aggies Friday and Saturday, Mar. 12-13, when they will open their baseball season after two weeks of intermittent practice.

The Aggies will play the Austin Seven Uppers here Friday afternoon and will entertain Grand Prize, of Houston here Saturday afternoon. Coach "Sikj" Sikes plans to start Kyle (Chunky) Riddle, of Decatur, ace conference portside the past year, against the Austin team for the first three innings. Hal Welch, sophomore from Sabine Pass, and Homer (Doc) Pitner, senior letterman from Denton, are slated to divide the last six innings.

A trio of comparatively untried hurlers are to pitch against the Houston team under Sikes' plans. They are: Harry Cohn, sophomore from Fort Worth; John Spreen, squadman from Brenham, and Bailey Timmerman, sophomore from Rockdale. A seventh Cadet hurler, left-handed Herb Knowles, letterman from Beaumont, has had too little time to get his arm in shape since the close of the basketball season.

The remainder of the Aggies' lineup will be manned by hard-hitting veterans except at first base and left field. Rube Williams, south-paw sophomore from El Paso, probably will start at first, and either Woody Bell, New Braunfels, or Bill Stages Fort Worth, both of whom are squadmen, will get the left garden call.

An infield shift from the past year will see Johnny Morrow, Wortham, all-conference first sacker, move to third, and Jess Landrum of Beaumont, switch from third to second. The Aggie batting order probably will be:

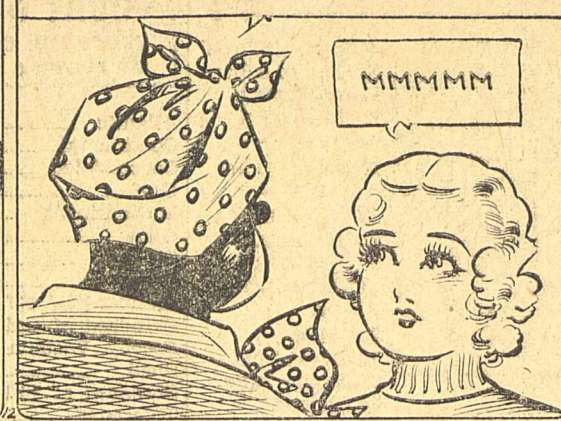

Waylon (Chink) Manning, Beaumont, 1b; Landrum, 2b; Morrow, 3b; Capt. Pete Dowling, Houston, c; Foster Smith, Blanco, rf; Chris Planagan, Houston, ss; Williams, lb, either Bell or Stages, lf; and the pitcher.
