It Takes Some Kind of Taxes To Pay Expense of Government

An organization called the National Consumers Tax Commission sends The Reporter-Telegram an article to the effect that Midland is paying $164,869.60, based on a per capita load of $49.90. Texas residents, according to the commission's findings, pay $308,060,375 a year in taxes to local, state and federal governments. The commission then makes its point, that "more than 63 per cent of that amount is paid 'blindly' by Texas' shopping public in hidden taxes that increase the price of every purchase."

The commission enclosed an editorial, prepared for use of The Reporter-Telegram, in which the newspaper would take up the fight against the so-called "hidden or unseen" taxes which the people pay blindly when they purchase their merchandise.

But The Reporter-Telegram is as blind to the purposes and background of the National Consumers Tax Commission as it is to the taxes which raise the price. No organization exists without a motive. The Consumers Commission should bring out its motive and who it represents when it begins to write editorials for the newspapers.

Some method of taxation has to be used. It can't all be property tax and meet the present bill. There are cigarette taxes, amusement taxes and all sorts of taxes which we pay, even though we regard it as the price of the article at the time. Does the National Consumers Tax Commission have a better form of taxation to take the place of these necessary revenue producing measures? Don't keep us in the dark, Consumers Commission.

SO THEY SAY

WILL PRODUCTION CONTROL BE PERMANENT?

(Farm and Ranch.)
What once appeared to most of us to be emergency programs regulating the production and marketing of agricultural commodities now bid fair to become permanent programs with the industry almost entirely under control of Government agencies. The tendency to take advantage of the needs of those engaged in the industry and to capitalize on an abnormal economic situation, is becoming more and more apparent every month. Programs which are publicized as voluntary are in reality coercive. The only element of Democracy in them is found in the opportunity to vote for or against acreage or marketing quotas, and in such cases farmers are virtually told to vote "yes, or else." Payments to farmers who have complied with every detail of the program one year are withheld until they promise to accept the program the coming year, and they make these agreements without having any idea as to what the program will consist of. If that is voluntary compliance, then our dictionary needs revision.

We would not have our readers receive the impression that Farm and Ranch does not recognize the need for aid from the National Government in adjusting farm programs to meet the problems that wars and threats of wars have brought upon us. We have supported the programs thus far even though we recognized from the beginning some of their imperfections. We do not believe that the emergency is over, but we are unalterably opposed to the idea that it never will be over and that from now on our farms will be operated from Washington by remote control. We do not believe in any program that will unduly slow down the development of the natural resources of one section of the country in order to appease the producers and politicians in another.

While we recognize that soil and water conservation and flood control are of national concern, and that we may still be in a period of our history requiring emergency measures, the plan to continue indefinitely the control of the farming industry by Washington, as many believe is contemplated, will not meet the approval of citizens who believe in a Democratic form of government.

It is beyond the capacity of those who formulate programs to deal equitably with every section of the country. To give one section what it wants will invariably result in injustice to the producers of another. Texas, for instance, normally cultivating 32,000,000 acres. Texas, in 1926, planted 18,300,000 acres to cotton. The average acreage in cotton has been around 16,000,000. Today Texas is cut down to 9,600,000 acres. This is undoubtedly as many acres as ever will again be planted to cotton in the State. That leaves, however, approximately 22,000,000 acres for other uses. Will Texas farmers be given the opportunity to expand the dairy and other livestock interests? Or will the Administration, at the request of Congressmen from other sections where votes are more numerous, limit our production of dairy and other livestock products because they come into competition with the products of Wisconsin, Iowa and other States? The Secretary has that authority. Will he exercise it? Uncertainty as to what he will do is confusing to Texas and other Southwestern farmers. Will Southwestern farmers balance their programs by the practice of the fundamentals of good agriculture, formerly emphasized by the Extension Service or will they live off the meager returns from a limited production of cotton and whatever the Government condescends to pay them?

A farmer in Ohio found gas and oil in his land the other day. He hasn't checked it for water yet.

Preface to War

ARE WE ALL ON RECORD FOR PEACE? FINE! THEN LET THE SLAUGHTER BEGIN!

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Although so many Democrats walked out on the President in the primaries that the "purge" became largely a flop, believers in the celebrated "Roosevelt luck" still have their heads up.

A European crisis and a disastrous hurricane in the northeast came along just in time to bury the "purge" debacle as a major news story and to spotlight F. D. R. in two roles wherein he could hardly miss gaining public support.

It always happens that way, according to those who think Roosevelt's luck never fails.

TOOK HIM A SPOT.

With no war clouds to face or hurricane wreckage to clean up, the President would have had to stand and answer questions in the wake of his failure to beat a single conservative Democratic senator among those for whose defeat he worked or hoped.

But his failure in the primaries is blurred, temporarily, at least, as the national picture shows Roosevelt assuming his place as the national leader in a situation of international peril and as the benevolent leader in Washington extending federal aid to storm-stricken areas. Harry Hopkins, strongest single individual behind the "purge" except Roosevelt himself, becomes an agent of mercy as he goes to confer with the New England governors on hurricane-flood relief.

Finally, the last act of the "purge" primaries turned in the one Roosevelt victory over an anti-New Deal Democrat when Congressman John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee, won the Republican bid but lost the Democratic nomination.

O'Connor may be re-elected, but he loses the strategic post which enabled him to block administration bills. Thus even some of the sourness of the "purge" debacle was mitigated at the last minute.

None of this means, the President won't eventually have to face the consequences of his lost battles against Senators George in Georgia, Tydings in Maryland, Smith in South Carolina and Gillette in Iowa. In the next Congress men are going to be "fired" Roosevelt or "against" him and if Roosevelt doesn't adopt a more conciliatory attitude toward the Democratic conservative wing, Capitol Hill will be the scene of a running cat-and-dog fight rather than an agency for producing legislation.

AN IMPORTANT CHOICE.

Roosevelt must choose whether he prefers to compromise with men of the type he has tried and failed to defeat in the primaries or to continue to wage war in the hope of forging 1940 issues by accentuating the liberal-conservative cleavage. The first course means inevitable retreat, the second a strong possibility of defeat.

Tentatively there are three main points of the Roosevelt program on which he must have congressional co-operation if he is to get anywhere. They are: 1. Anti-monopoly legislation, which Roosevelt would like to see go far toward changing the American business system. 2. Government reorganization. 3. Tax revision, which New Dealers would like to see enacted along lines of social-economic reform.

On these fronts Roosevelt can elect to wheedle a little bit from Congress or to refuse compromise and seek to popularize the issues pending an effort to dominate the party and its presidential nomination in 1940.

local bodies.

The Public Works Administration, through loans and grants, has completed 555 projects covering the following: 187 schools, 116 water-works projects, 14 disposal plants, 40 sewers, 18 road and bridge projects, and projects covering hospitals, pails, and courthouses.

The Works Progress Administration has constructed through its works program, more than 2,400 miles of new highways, road and streets; improved 8,850 miles of other roads, and constructed 1,673 highway bridges. A total of 503 new public buildings were erected, and 177 additional buildings were improved. Of those improved, more than half were school buildings and 28 were for recreational purposes. The remainder included 6 courthouses, offices, and other administrative buildings.

One WPA project completed included 69 new athletic fields, 39 playgrounds, 34 new swimming and wading pools, 4 golf courses, 202 tennis courts, 13 new parks, 62 miles of new water lines, 134 miles of sewer lines, and the reconditioning of an additional 128 miles of water mains.

WPA non-construction projects included the production of approximately 10,500,000 garments, the sewing of more than 90,000 hot lunches to school children, and the repair of 860,000 public school and library books.

THE CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (AP). — Tourist travel in Texas during the winter months is increasing annually. This is the word that comes from the state highway department and the state planning board.

The increase is said to be due partly to the advertising which Texas received from its centennial celebration in 1936 and some carefully-planned advertising by several cities since.

It also is said to be a result of a general spread throughout the country of information on the latest state in the union and growing curiosity about it.

Most of the strictly tourist traffic through Texas in the winter, is headed for Mexico or its transcontinental.

Usually all the Mexico-bound travelers pass through Laredo because the best highway from the American border to Mexico City begins at that point.

One of several information booths maintained at Texas state-line ports of entry by the highway department is located at Laredo and designed especially to serve travelers in Mexico. It is operated in cooperation with the Mexican government.

There tourists can learn almost anything they need to know about Mexico, where to eat, sleep, get water and gasoline, what to do and what not to do.

Advertising by the Mexican government in American newspapers and periodicals has greatly stimulated tourist travel in the winter, the planning board says.

The government has been advertising that winter is the best time to visit Mexico and a booming tourist traffic has developed. It moves through Texas from north, east and west.

El Paso and San Antonio, according to the planning board, are going after winter tourist, or winter resident, business in a determined way and are benefitting.

The lower Rio Grande valley long has been a great attraction for winter travelers seeking to avoid the rigorous northern and eastern climate.

Under an act of the legislature, El Paso voted a special tax for advertising purposes, obtaining about $26,000 a year in revenue.

It has sought to attract specific types of persons.

(1) Those who are ill from respiratory afflictions, including tuberculosis. Advertisements aimed at these are placed in medical and health journals.

(2) Those who want to pass a short time, perhaps a winter, in some interesting place, for the purpose of playing and resting.

(3) Those who are travelling across country, probably en route to or from the Pacific coast, especially California.

El Paso has instituted its "Sun Carnival" which rapidly is becoming one of the outstanding winter amusements and spectacles of the country. A feature is a football game New Year's day.

"He has been getting some mighty good results from the advertising campaign," a planning board official said.

There is quite a winter resident "colony" in San Antonio made up largely of people with moderate independent incomes who delight to bask in the sunshine of the south Texas city while perhaps their friends and relatives up north are trying to keep from freezing.

A "tourist club" in San Antonio each winter has about 600 members. These and other winter residents may be seen on bright days playing croquet or golf or pitching horse shoes in the parks.

San Antonio has an interesting experience in advertising for tourists. Its initial advertising campaign, generally directed, attracted many "tin can" tourists, those comprising large families travelling in broken-down automobiles, and more often than not financially in bad shape and likely to become dependent on the community.

This type of advertising was stopped and advertisements were placed in medical journals and specialized periodicals read by people likely to be those San Antonio wanted. The planning board reports this switch-over was a success, judged by the persons drawn to San Antonio.

In recent weeks the board has been receiving quite a number of inquiries from writers who say they are retired business men with homes in Wisconsin, Idaho and Iowa and want to "rough it" in a warm climate. These are being directed to camps in the Big Bend area where they won't be bothered by telephones and can get back to nature without strenuous effort.

Other queries concern business opportunities in Texas, coming from men who say they want to combine business and pleasure.

Texas does not catch the very wealthy winter travellers, the "play boys," officials say. These usually go to California and Florida for the elaborate resorts.

"One type of traveller on Texas"

The Town Quack

do the trick, along with the well coached, fast Bulldog squad.

Sometimes the most overrated teams and players can look the most helpless against opposition. For instance, Ernie Lain of Rice, after the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers has led him up to All-American before the season started. When those Oklahoma ends got hold of him Saturday, he was somewhat at a standstill and finally found his way to the bench. His running mate, Ollie Cordill, had much better luck gaining against the Sooners.

The only point I am trying to make there, however, is that Wink can be stopped, and these Bulldogs are the boys to stop them. Wink is said to have the best team in 7-B, everybody admits 7-B is the fastest district in Texas, so all Midland has to do is win the district and beat Wink to be rated as good as most Class A teams of the state.

Invites Carol Lombard.

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Carol Lombard, who recently rejoiced in print that she paid $397,575 in taxes out of her $465,000 income has been advised that if she will move to Nevada, her savings will be nearer $100,000 instead of the $20,000 she reported. Nevada boasted to her that it has no income tax, no inheritance tax, no sales tax and is planning to recall its personal property tax.

A few years ago, when the Midland Bulldogs were being kicked about in Class A, they gave San Angelo and Sweetwater the scare of the season. Especially Sweetwater. That was when Sammy Baugh was at his best in high school football. They came over to set a scoring record and were lucky to get home with 7-0 win. Lloyd Burreis, G. E. Hallman, Frank Minkoff and Allen Sherrard threatened them from whistle to whistle.

The way that happened, the Bulldogs built up their morale especially for the Sweetwater game. And they almost won it, after Big Spring had previously trounced our boys about 39 to 0. The same thing can be done for this Wink game. Midland has been a great attraction for winter travellers seeking to avoid the rigorous northern and eastern climate.

In recent weeks the board has been receiving quite a number of inquiries from writers who say they are retired business men with homes in Wisconsin, Idaho and Iowa and want to "rough it" in a warm climate. These are being directed to camps in the Big Bend area where they won't be bothered by telephones and can get back to nature without strenuous effort.

Other queries concern business opportunities in Texas, coming from men who say they want to combine business and pleasure.

Texas does not catch the very wealthy winter travellers, the "play boys," officials say. These usually go to California and Florida for the elaborate resorts.

Another Doll Hat

Here's Mrs. Al Davis, attractive young society matron, in a short-sleeved wool dress, sable neck-piece and a saucy little doll hat. The hat is simply a saucer-sized disc of felt trimmed with small feather pompoms and held on by a ribbon bandeau at the back. Her gloves are classic pull-ons, and she carries a very large bag, the clip earrings are small gold ones. Her coiffure is a compromise with the new upswept mode—it's up in front, but down at the back.

How to Dress Your Best Choosing Right Dress for Fall

By MARIAN YOUNG.
NEW YORK—When selecting a fall dress, first and most importantly, the Woman Who Always Looks Smart values excellent fabrics and good lines above all else. She'd rather have one good frock of fine material than three shoddy ones. And because that one is fundamentally simple—in other words, a background dress which can be worn with several different sets of accessories—she doesn't tire of it.
Her dresses really fit perfectly and they are one hundred per cent right for her figure. When skirts are shorter, as they are this season, she wears hers shorter, too. But not too short, especially if her legs themselves are pretty short or if they aren't beautifully shaped.
If she's tall and statuesque and tailored, she'll buy bloused-back dresses with flaring skirts for fall. And her old love, the shirtwaist frock, will get attention, too—particularly in lame, velvet and other luxurious fabrics for formal afternoon and informal dinner wear.
If she's very large, she'll wear two-pieces with tunic-length bodices. For dressier occasions, simple, moderately draped dresses of smooth, suave crepes with splashy white lingerie touches will be her forte.
If she's a very feminine individual, the draped effects will make her happy. If she's a coed, or a very young, quite cute little thing, she'll like dirndl dresses, both for street and for afternoon.
If she has a long face and a long neck, she'll wear scarfs tucked into low V necklines. She'll like softly draped necklines, high, tailored ones and square types. But if her neck is short, deep Vs, boat-shaped and soft cowls will be her choice.
Whatever her type, she'll make sure that every dress she gets will go well with her fall coat. And nothing—either dresses or accessories—will be frou-frou. Long ago, she ruled out flossy, cheap-looking trimmings such as badly-made artificial flowers and frowsy, imitation lace.

Nothing is more autumnal in spirit where color is concerned than tans or browns combined with green. For instance, a tan knit skirt (woolen knit) worn with a tunic blouse with a front of green suede would make any girl feel like the goddess, or at least a nymph, of fall.

Something different in the way of front-door gadgets came to our notice yesterday.

It was a gourd of the round, rather flat, type with letters from 1 to 12 and clock hands which may be set to any desired hours. Above the clock face is the legend "Be back by" and "Leave a note."

In the hollow back of the gourd is a pencil and a pad may be suspended beneath for the use of visitors who come while the housewife is away.

It's a unique and original little convenience which should be welcomed by the woman who is much away from home.

The "Western Cook Books" are the most novel volumes of their kind that we've seen in ages. They are bound in wood with crude hinges reminiscent of pioneer days, and a gay Mexican figure is painted on the cover. The pages are plentifully illustrated with black and white drawings of Western, pioneer, and Indian characters and scenes and extracts from famous Western cowboy songs and ballads.
If the recipes are as pleasing as the book format, the volume should be a delight to any housekeeper. At

A Wrestling Nut Sundae

All Joe Reno, left, and Roughhouse Ross needed was chocolate sauce and almonds to top off the evening in good shape when they put on their wrestling match in 315 gallons of ice cream in Minneapolis. Referee Bobby Bylund finds the going slippery and takes a dip in chocolate, strawberry, and vanilla. As far as anyone was able to tell, Reno won.

Greater DeCorrevont Just Another Freshman at Northwestern Univ.

You Can't Keep Good Man Down

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD, NEA Service Sports Writer. EVANSTON, Ill. — No collegiate football player — no even Red Grange, nor anyone else you might name — has ever been so much on the spot as 19-year-old Bill DeCorrevont, late of Chicago Austin high school and now a freshman at Northwestern.

Bill DeCorrevont at work in the equipment room.

But after a couple of weeks spent with the Wildcat yearlings, it appears as though the 180-pound youngster will surmount the obstacle of having been the most highly-publicized prep footballer in the history of the sport. Because DeCorrevont has poise — more poise as a freshman than many athletes attain at the very height of their varsity careers. Freshman Coach Maury Kent, who has seen and worked with a lot of Northwestern greats — such as Moon Baker, Hank Bruder, Pug Rentner and Don Heap — says Bill reminds him most of Baker. "He has the same relaxed attitude and ability to spring into top speed when the occasion demands that made Moon such an outstanding back," says Kent. "He doesn't have Rentner's speed or Bruder's drive, but he has loads of natural ability."

DeCorrevont Has No Illusions.

"Bill is a fine runner, though not fancy, mind you, but very effective. He moves easily and strongly — never tightens up. He has a natural change of pace and knows how to swerve and cut. His passing and kicking is just fair, but that poise of his should overcome any shortcomings he might have."

On opening day of practice, pictures were widely printed showing DeCorrevont posing with Head Coach Waldorf. The two are seen together, however, in pictures only.

As far as Waldorf is concerned DeCorrevont is just another freshman football player. He leaves the boy's development entirely in the hands of Kent.

Which is just the way DeCorrevont himself would have it.

"I've got no illusions about being a great football player," he admits. "I happened to go pretty good in high school and got in a lot of headlines, but I've still got plenty to learn — plenty."

"Certainly, I hope I'll make the varsity as a sophomore, but if I don't I'll be the least surprised person of all. Right now I'm just one of 70 freshmen out here with the same idea, and there might be a lot of boys who will be able to put their ideas into better effect."

Because he is so modest and unassuming, Bill is one of the more popular boys on the freshman squad. And while the varsity is eager to stop him in his tracks every time he carries the ball in scrimmage against the regulars, there's no deliberate ganging on him — no feeling of resentment against him.

Austin Teammates With Star. School to this glittering freshman is a whole lot more than just football. He's working his way through and his chores aren't merely a matter of putting in time.

He has a job in the athletic equipment room and a part-time job at the co-op book store. In addition, he works on tables at the Sigma Chi house, where he is a pledge. Week-ends he goes home to Austin, a Chicago suburb, to spend a couple of days with his widowed mother.

Otherwise he has plenty of company from his own neighborhood. Also sarring on one of the best Northwestern frosh teams in years are three teammates from Austin high school — Alf Bauman, 215-pound tackle; Don Johnson, 266-pound center, and Sonny Skor, quarterback.

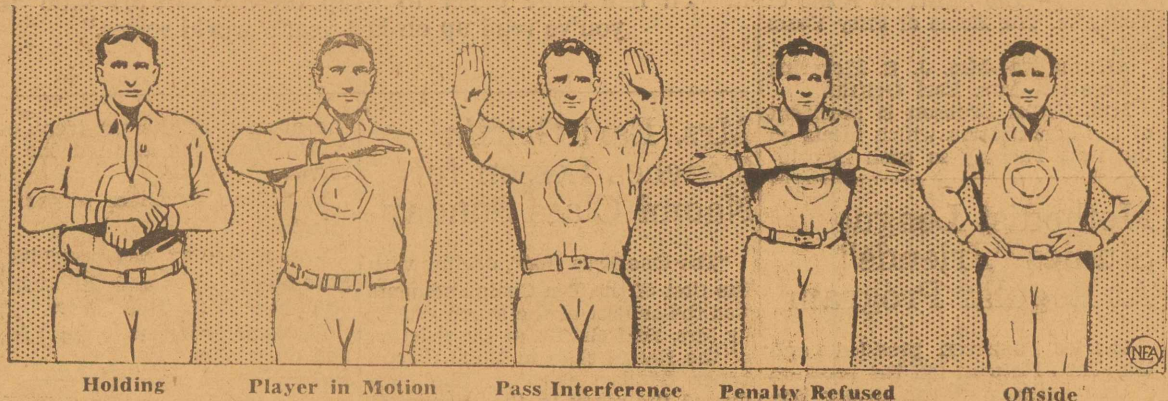

They, too, are somewhat on the spot for having played on Illinois' outstanding high school eleven, but none draw the measured stares directed at DeCorrevont.

Who has Northwestern fans waiting for '39 before 1938 season is well under way.

Target of an assassin's bullets a few weeks ago, spry, 69-year-old Gov. Blanton Winship of Puerto Rico has not secluded himself since the attempt on his life. He is pictured here about to descend 30 feet to the famous submarine gardens of San Juan. Adjusting the diver's helmet is noted author and deep-sea diver John D. Craig.

CHURCH BASKETBALL LEAGUE WILL BE STARTED HERE WITHIN NEXT 2 WEEKS

Only election of officers remains for perfecting a Church Basketball League that will open here just as soon as the Midland high school gymnasium is completed, tentatively scheduled for October 15.

Four pastors have signified willingness to sponsor clubs in the league and others are expected to place entries. Schedules to care for either a four-club or six-club league have been drawn up and play will be started as soon as possible.

Churches will enter boys in both senior and junior divisions, thereby getting together a couple of leagues, if plans work out. Boys under 18 years of age will be eligible for the junior team, all over that age must compete in the senior division. However, boys under 18 will be allowed to play on senior division clubs if they forego playing with clubs in the junior league.

The church league is expected to last until December 15, at which time play will start in an Industrial and a City league.

Organization of the basketball league here is being urged by school officials in an effort to get more interest aroused in the game here. The high school has turned out good teams for the past two years, marching to the finals in regional play in 1937, and to the finals in district play this year. However, interest in the game here has been light be-lights at LaGrave Field here, with Weatherford Junior College furnishing the opposition.

"After trying to stop the Horned Frogs for two weeks of practice scrimmage, we ought to be fairly good on defense," says Freshman Coach Walter Roach. "How effective our offense will be I don't know."

Coach Roach will be without the services of Ruel Hoffman, former Paschal High (Fort Worth) quarterback, who broke his ankle in practice. Practically all of the Wogs will get a chance to show what they can do in competition. The starting lineup will probably consist of: Ends, Ronald Brumbaugh, and Phil Roach, Fort Worth; tackles, Dick Everett, Dallas, and Woodrow Adams, Midland; guards, Bill Crawford, Fort Worth, and Billy Lowden, Midland; center, Buster Nicks, Dallas; quarter, Dan Reese, Fort Worth; halves, Nolan Sparks, Panhandle, and Dave Wafford, Midland; full, Frank Kring, Fort Worth.

All SW Conference Clubs Out of State This Week Except 1

FORT WORTH, Oct. 3. — Play football in the Southwest Conference and see the world.

If travel isn't emphasized as part of the lure of the game in these parts, it ought to be. This week is going away week for the conference and the travels of six teams will total around 6000 miles.

Only one conference team will play in Texas this week, and that one will perform away from the home grounds. The Texas Longhorns meet the Oklahoma Sooners in their annual Dallas fray. For the second time this season, Coach Dana Bible's boys play a Big Six members. The Steers almost took the measure of Kansas (18 to 19). Texans are inclined to believe they will take Oklahoma.

Two elevens join the night shift as strangers in strange cities. The Southern Methodist Mustangs are favored to win over the Marquette University Golden Avalanche in a Friday night game at Soldier's Field, Chicago. Proceeds of this contest go to charity.

Also performing under the lights Friday night, the TCU Horned Frogs go up against Pop Warner's Temple Owls in Philadelphia. Coach Dutch Meyer distrusts night football and there is some difference of opinion as to what luck his charges will have, but Frog followers are actively hoping.

The Aggies will have a real battle on their hands in San Francisco. They meet the Santa Clara Broncos there Saturday afternoon. The Broncos have been the Sugar Bowl champions the last two years now. TCU was the last Southwest team to play them, the Frogs winning 9 to 0 in San Francisco Dec. 12, 1936.

The Rice Owls will not travel so far — only from Houston to Baton Rouge — but they will meet plenty of opposition when they tackle the Louisiana State Tigers there Saturday night. The Owls will be out to revenge that 13 to 0 defeat of 1937, and Ole Miss has pointed the way.

Arkansas and Baylor stick to their Southwest knitting. They meet in Fayetteville in the only conference contest of the week. Who will win? Well, you might flip a coin, or simply vote with your heart.

Colored Gasoline Use Is Suggested

AUSTIN, (P). — Bright blue or mahogany colored gasoline might be required by state law.

The peculiarly shaded motor fuel would be for use only in vehicles and machines not used on the public highways and would be entitled to refund of state gasoline tax paid at the time of purchase.

Gasoline now used for such purposes is eligible for refund of the tax and the use of colors has been suggested as a means for defeating evasions. If amended, as some legislators have proposed, the law would make it a penalty for any gasoline of the particular color to be used in motor cars — the theory being the tax is for highway construction and maintenance.

Some legislators have expressed the opinion the exemption should be eliminated, claiming that although the tax was originally a highway tax it is now diverted in part to the school fund and to partial payment of county and road district debts.

They point to increasing yearly refunds. In the fiscal year ended last Aug. 31 refunds totaled $6,871,362 or 13.9 per cent of the total gasoline tax collections. In the previous year refunds were $5,780,486 or 12.4 per cent of collections and the year before that $4,837,890 or 11.7 per cent.

Claims for refunds are filed with the comptroller's office which audits or investigates each one before authorizing payment.

Two states, New Mexico and Mississippi, now require coloring of motor fuel which is exempt from taxation. The former state specifies blue and the latter mahogany gasoline for non-highway use. Reports from Mississippi indicate the color experiment is a success whereas in New Mexico authorities have yet to make up their mind whether to stick to blue or switch to another color. There is a question of whether the chemical matter used to make fuel blue is distinguishable in all types and grades of gasoline.

Begin New Capital.

RABAUL, New Guinea (UP). — The Australian government has begun the construction at Salamaua of a new capital for its mandated territory of New Guinea. Like Washington, it will be one of the few carefully planned capitals of the world with every modern idea incorporated from future artistic development to earthquake proof buildings.

VERNON, N. Y. (UP). — Two employees have inherited the general store of the late Frank J. Johnson. The business was valued at more than $24,000. In addition to leaving the store to A. Leslie Burleigh and Estella M. Franklin, Johnson's will left $10,000 to the village library.

T. C. U. Has Six Letter Ends for 1938

Coach Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian ought to get the job well done at ends. He is better fortified with lettermen for the wing positions than at any other spot. These six "T" wearers are all hot contenders for the first-string call, and all of them are likely to see considerable action before the season ends. Hensch, Jordan, Snow and Williams are all seniors; Horner and Looney are juniors.

Candid Camera Fiends Have Day

Candid camera enthusiasts shot to their hearts' content when they were allowed on the field and in the dugouts of Sportsman's Park, St. Louis. A Camera Day was declared, and lens lads and lassies swarmed all over the place, making the noble athletes pose in every possible manner. It was one way of having the Browns photographed and to get someone to come out and see them play. STORIES IN STAMPS

Enlarging Greatest Port Of Continental Europe

MINUTIVE Belgium, with a frontier of only 831 miles, has a seaboard of 62, and the government is making the most of it. Below Antwerp, the Scheldt river flows to the North Sea through the Netherlands. Today Belgium is spending 350,000,000 francs dredging the channel as far as Flushing and improving the port of Antwerp, now greatest port of continental Europe. More than 20,000,000 tons of shipping clear Antwerp's docks and quays every year.

City of 424,000, including suburbs, Antwerp lies on the right bank of the Scheldt, is the capital of the province of the same name and chief commercial center of the country. Its great docks are maintained at a constant depth of 39 feet, cover a dock water area of approximately 1334 acres with a quayage length of 28 miles. The necessary railway extensions bring the total port railway system to a length in excess of 500 miles.

But commerce is not all that is modern Antwerp. The city is famous for its broad streets and fine houses and its many memorials to its early grandeur. Chief of these is its great cathedral, begun in the 14th century and not finished until 1518. Here are also myriad old masters in several collections.

The city is heavily fortified. The harbor is shown here on a 1929 Belgium stamp. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Sunday Shutdowns To Be Lifted One Day

AUSTIN, (P). — Though an unusual circumstance, the vast majority of Texas oil wells on October 30 will be permitted perhaps their only Sunday flow during the last 11 1/2 months of 1938.

Sunday shut-downs have been effective since the middle of January and there appears almost no possibility of their being lifted this fall. They will be discontinued, however, for one Sunday. The fact October has five Saturdays and five Sundays is the principal reason. The Texas railroad commission decided it wanted the same number of shut-in days in October as in September or a total of eight. Therefore it ordered statewide closings for the first four Saturdays and first four Sundays in October and said wells would be allowed to operate on the fifth week end.

Whether Saturday shutdowns are lifted at the end of October depends on condition at that time. Even with both Saturday and Sunday closings applying to most fields, the daily allowable production in October is less than 100,000 barrels below that recommended by the United States bureau of mines.

Ranchmen Move to Kill Out Bitterweed

SONORA, (P). — Ranchmen of Sutton county have sown dallas grass and Italian rye in an effort to hasten the choking down of bitterweed, where it has cropped out on the sheep range.

A boon to the stockman with bitterweed infestation were recent rains, ranging from 14 to 26 inches over the ranchland. It came early enough to build up the weeds and turf and push the encroachment of bitterweed to present stock from eating it.

Cat Was Waiting on Deadline to Work

CLARKSVILLE, (P). — John W. Reece of the Bogata News tells this one:

The Rev. J. J. Sullivan, Bogata minister, owns a six months old pure blooded kitten that had grown notorious for its adversity toward performing its duties of catching rats and mice. Fed up with the feline's indifference, Mr. Sullivan remarked the other day that since his pet was so lazy he might as well dispose of it.

The cat disappeared, but was back in a few minutes, a good sized rat in its mouth.

Attorney Attends Court 38 Years

BRYAN, (P). — When Lamar Bethea, Brazos county attorney-elect and acting in the absence of county attorney W. R. Allen, attended the opening of the September court term this week by Judge W. C. Davis, he celebrated his 38th anniversary of his first appearance in a local court room. Mr. Bethea also claims the record of not having missed the opening of a court term in this county in the 38 years of his residence and legal practice here.

He was elected county attorney without opposition and Jan. 1, will return to the office he filled for 12 years, in the earlier days of his career in Brazos county.

Calm British Public Backs A Calm Cabinet in Crisis

BY MILTON BRONNER.
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON. — Current war scares have not really succeeded in jarring John Bull out of his traditional calm. True, crowds assembled in Downing Street during critical cabinet sessions and radicals have made "scenes" at various public gatherings, but the average Briton has been only mildly excited.

The British have a philosophy. They remember they always have "muddled through." And no doubt it was the knowledge that they had behind them a stolid, steady public disinclined toward war that encouraged Britain's Ministers to pay Germany a dear price for peace.

The sensational fact about this late summer and early autumn European crisis has been the lack of a sensation, so far as the British are concerned. It was their Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, who was moving heaven and earth to prevent an armed conflict. It was their fellow citizen, Lord Runciman, who was sitting in Prague as the good broker between Czechs and Sudeten Germans.

IN many capitals in such a time you would have seen anxious, nervous crowds thronging about newspaper bulletin boards where the latest telegrams were displayed. Nothing of the sort was to be seen in London. For a very good reason. The newspapers do not have news bulletin boards. And the public does not demand them. The papers here have issued no extras. But you do see people grabbing the latest afternoon papers as issued.

"Ah," you say, "at last the British are getting stirred up!" But come closer and rubber over the shoulders of the purchasers. What they are reading is not the crisis news. They are looking at the results of the last horse race run somewhere in the tight little island. And that gives you a good clue to this people.

IN the first place, they are an outdoor folk. Perhaps the greatest in the world. Every Saturday afternoon and Sunday they pour out into the parks or further on out into the open country. Many simply walk. Many others play tennis or golf or cricket. But they all take some kind of exercise. That accounts for their steady nerves.

Also they are the greatest gamblers in the world. That also serves to take their mind off crises. There is hardly a day in the year except Sundays when races are not being run somewhere in Great Britain. And millions of Britons have their "butter" on the horses. Even in the poorest quarters of London, Glasgow, Birmingham, Manchester and Liverpool, bookies dodge the police and take dime bets.

Football gives another chance for wagers. There are pools where people make bets or rather guesses on the results in a certain number of professional football games. The wagers are small, only a few pennies, but the winnings are often high. Not so long ago and unemployed man — who bet out of his dime money — won thousands.

NOR must it be inferred that the calmness of the British is due to the fact that they are kept in ignorance. This is not Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy or Bolshevik Russia. This is Britain, with a free press and a broadcasting system that tells the people the truth. The papers give their readers the whole story, in so far as they can get hold of it themselves. The British Broadcasting Company keeps its listeners fully informed. It does not sensationalize. It does not seek to make the listener's blood run cold (in contrast to some of the more hysterical news broadcasters in America). It does not color the facts. It presents them objectively and without passion. And ever so politely.

It is quite conceivable that if Britain were at war and an enemy air fleet were about to bombard the big cities, the very "refined" announcer would say: "We are ever so sorry, but will listeners please switch off and run for the cellars? The enemy bombers are on the way. Cherrio!"

How to Be a Jitterbug Champion

This is the dance that won the jitterbug contest in the American Legion stadium in Los Angeles as thousands of swing-mad cats, alligators, etc., cheered. Pattie Lacy and Ray Hensch are the youngsters. They got themselves untangled in time to receive the honors.

Chained for Sake of Love, Etc.

Found contentedly sitting in an automobile with her wrists chained to the steering wheel, Wilma Leaycroft, 18-year-old waitress from Neptune, N. J., told reporters and police that her sweetheart, Louis Tortariello, 24-year-old welder, had thus emmeshed her to keep her true to him while he was at work in a Linden, N. J., factory. Then, while a crowd watched, Tortariello came out and, as shown above, unchained her to take her for a walk and lunch. On being questioned by police, Tortariello admitted it was all a publicity stunt to be followed up by a wedding to Miss Leaycroft on horseback.
