DRIVE STILL ON TO RAISE M. E. ENCAMPMENT FUND

Teams at Work Soliciting Money for Purchase of Camp Grounds—More Generous Response Needed.

The drive to raise $11,500 for the purchase of the 200-acre site accepted by the locating board of the Methodist Encampment, started last Friday, is still under way with the goal several thousand dollars ahead of the amount subscribed.

Teams have been at work daily all over the city and in the territory immediately surrounding Kerrville soliciting subscriptions from everyone who can contribute any amount.

The committee in charge of the drive held a preliminary meeting at which every business and a large number of residents of the city were assessed amounts proportionate to their resources and collectors set to work collecting the assessments.

At the last tabulation before the Sun went to press the fund was still some distance from the mark set with collections and contributions getting fewer. Every effort is being made to round up every available dollar in order to put the drive over the top.

The location of the encampment here, which is one of the biggest things Kerrville and the Hill Country has landed for some time past, is contingent upon the raising of the $11,500 necessary to purchase the site. If the drive fails and the site cannot be purchased, this section stands the best chance in the world of losing a big thing, not only from a commercial standpoint, but also from a moral, social and religious angle.

The committee in charge of the drive urges every one who possibly can to contribute to this worthy project. The larger the amounts the better, of course, but small contributions ranging from $5 upward will be welcomed and will help swell the total.

Kerrville and the Hill Country has the reputation of going over the top with every project worthy of the public support. The committee feels sure that with more generous response this drive will go over the same as many others that have been put on.

Every citizen of Kerrville and the Hill Country is requested to contribute as much as possible in order that the full amount may be raised and the Encampment located here. Cash is the thing that is needed to put over the campaign and land the project.

Checks or cash should be given or mailed to H. E. Butt, chairman of the drive, or to Ally Beitel, secretary, at the earliest possible moment in order that the amount may be raised at once and the deal closed up.

COUNTY AGENT ORGANIZING BOYS AND GIRLS AGRICULTURAL CLUBS

Interest in Work Shown By School Students—State Report of Clubs for 1923 Shows Good Results.

During the past few days County Agent J. C. Yearly has visited a number of schools of Kerr County in the interest of boys' and girls' agricultural clubs and a great deal of interest is being manifested.

Mr. Yearly has explained the work of the clubs to the students who are asked to talk with their parents relative to the matter. They are then to decide upon which club they will enter and organization is then to be made.

The County Agent expects to get a number of clubs organized and working within a short time. Poultry, sheep and goat, hog, corn and other clubs are to be organized among the boys and girls of the county.

The following report of the work of boys' clubs in Texas during 1923 will be interesting to those eligible for membership:

Thirty thousand boys and girls were enrolled in 882 organized clubs with 469 adult leaders, giving an average of 144 members in each county. Entries of members in community, county and State fairs numbered 4,331 with a total value of prizes won of $26,182.

Two State, eight district and 120 county contests in judging grains, poultry and livestock were held with 6,000 entrants. Fifty counties were represented by 160 boys in livestock judging contest held at State encampment.

Over 18,000 head of purebred livestock, including poultry, and 1,365 head of grades were distributed to club boys.

Club boys borrowed from 214 banks and other business men the sum of $19,608.60, of which only $105 was delinquent December 1. Over 1,600 club boys reported as having bank accounts of their own. Two boys made two bales of cotton per acre, another 249 bushels of potatoes, and another 500 gallons of syrup and another made more than $400 on his turkey project. Reports from about thirty per cent of club members show them to have produced $334,868 worth of products at a cost of $190,141, thus leaving a profit of $144,727.

The average estimated yield per acre of corn in Texas on about six million acres is 38.5 bushels. Club boys averaged 29.5 bushels. If this six million acres had yielded this average it would have increased the total yield by sixty-six million bushels or enough to feed thirty-six bushels to each head of horses, mules and donkeys in Texas and have left a lot of nibbins for the hogs.

The average yield per acre of cotton was 144 pounds on about fourteen million acres. The average yield of club members was eleven pounds more or 30,000 bales, worth $4,500,000, or enough to buy a $500 automobile for every family in the state or to equip every farm with a good seed planter.

ENTHUSIASTIC BUT SMALL CROWD ATTENDS RALLY AT HIGH SCHOOL

Horace Kelton of San Antonio Delivers Main Address—Supt. Franklin Reads Interesting Paper.

A crowd of more than 100 people were in attendance at the rally held in the auditorium of Tivy High School last Friday night. This number was somewhat smaller than expected, but enthusiasm and interest to a marked degree were manifested. Horace Kelton of San Antonio was the main speaker.

Dr. G. M. Macdougall acted as chairman of the meeting and called upon several patrons of the schools. Short and interesting talks were given by Jno. R. Leavell, A. B. Burton, J. L. Adkins, F. E. Garrett and Mrs. H. Schulze for the Parent-Teachers' Club.

Dr. E. Galbraith, president of the school board, introduced the main speaker, Horace Kelton, a prominent business man of San Antonio who is well acquainted with the public school system.

Better co-operation was the keynote of Mr. Kelton's address. Parents were urged to take an active part in the Parent-Teachers' Club and thus co-operate more with the teachers and foster a better spirit among all concerned.

Mr. Kelton was followed by Supt. R. A. Franklin who delivered a fine address on education of the pupil, bringing out many points advocated by leading educators of the country.

Mr. Franklin based his address upon social efficiency of students, outlining five phases in which they should be given training, namely, physical, moral and religious, civic, vocational and avocational.

Under the first division, athletics, calisthenics, physiology, etc., provide the development.

Religious training must be left, Mr. Franklin said, to the church and the home. But through co-operation the public school may teach him morally with co-operation of parents in knowing more of the pupil's school life, both from his side and from the teacher's viewpoint.

Under the head of civic training the speaker outlined how the student learns of the functions of governments, his duties as a citizen of his government, neighbor and to society in general. Through this training he acquires the grace and polish necessary to carry him into any business or social group.

In discussing vocational training, Mr. Franklin outlined the benefits to the student of course in certain professions, trades, occupations, etc. In this connection he mentioned a preparatory department, work shop, business school, and agricultural department as parts of the course of study to follow this training.

Avocational training was outlined by the speaker as instruction in the finer arts, literature and history. This training is necessary, he said, in order that the people of today, whose working hours are shortened, may spend more profitably their increased leisure.

"When we can turn out our boys and girls," Mr. Franklin summarized, "with well developed, healthy physical bodies, good, sound moral training; fitted to take their place in society socially, politically and in their business relations; teach them something by which they can earn a living; and so educate them that they will spend profitably their leisure time, then you are going to feel that we are accomplishing something big for the country and for future generations."

Suggestions offered by the speaker as necessary to the existence of that condition are active membership in Parent-Teachers' Association, help and not criticism of the schools, proper home atmosphere for development of obedience and good, regular habits, and the moral, physical and financial support of parents for the schools.

Retailers to Meet

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants Association will be held at its offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All members are asked to be present.

At this session reports will be given by the representatives to the Retail Convention in San Antonio last week. Chas. L. Mason, Chas. Rawson, Ally Beitel and Walter Saenger represented the local organization at the convention and will give interesting reports of their observations there.

The secretary recalls to the attention of local retailers the importance of filling out and mailing at once the questionnaires recently sent out by Harvard University to obtain statistical information on the retail grocery business.

BOARD OF SPECIAL ROAD COMMISSIONERS ENDED

Dissolved at Termination of Duties by Court—Designation of Scenic Loop To Bandera Endorsed.

The regular February term of Kerr County Commissioners' Court opened Monday afternoon with all Commissioners present and the County Judge presiding. A heavy docket of business faced the court and after hard work the business was cleared late Tuesday afternoon.

Probably the most important matter coming before the court was the dissolution of the board of special road commissioners in view of the termination of their duties. The final accounts of this board were audited and allowed and a vote of thanks was tendered the members collectively and individually for faithful and efficient service rendered.

The special road commission was composed of H. Remschel, chairman; Gus F. Schreiner and T. A. Duerstadt. These men have served the people of Kerr County for the past several years during the erection of the highway west of Kerrville and are due great credit for their work.

Transfers included $155.37 from road and bridge warrant fund, first series, to the road and bridge fund, and $71.29 from road and bridge district No. 2 to road and bridge warrant fund, third series.

Various claims against the county were allowed, estimated at $2,500. Pauper allowances were granted to seven persons for the current quarter. Road work and material amounting to $322.58 was allowed and scrip issued to be funded by last installment of road and bridge funding warrants, second series.

A total of $1,669.53 was allowed for labor and material on the highway, as follows: Precinct 2, $579.30; Precinct 3, $195.90; Precinct 4, $771.33, and $123 for labor on highway in Real County. This entire sum is to be repaid to the county by the State under the highway maintenance contract.

The account of Frank Krueger for $43.55 against McCall-Moore Engineering Co. was allowed.

Road and bridge funds amounting to $5,000 were apportioned as follows: Precinct 1, $2,300; Precinct 2, $650; Precinct 3, $500; Precinct 4, $1,500. Precincts 1 and 4 transferred their allotments to road and bridge funding warrants account and Precinct 2 transferred the same amount.

Apportionment of $6,000 State Highway money was made thus: Precinct 1, $2,820; Precinct 2, $780; Precinct 3, $600, and Precinct 4, $1,800.

Election judges were appointed for the coming year by the court. A complete list of these appointments will be given next week.

The quarterly Justice of the Peace report of E. H. Turner was approved and that of J. W. Orr was tabled.

An advance of $200 on the County Assessor's salary for 1923 was allowed.

A committee from Bandera County, consisting of D. S. Palmer, Ed Caton, E. H. Sewall and Julius Reel, met with the court on the matter of connecting Highway 81 and the Old Spanish Trail by designating a scenic loop as a highway from Bandera to Medina and by way of the Medina and Turtle Creek road to Kerrville. The court endorsed this move and signed a request to the State Highway Department that such connection be made.

In lieu of a retentive suit of the State against Kerr County on balance drought relief debt, the court authorized County Attorney W. G. Garrett to collect outstanding seed accounts due the county by suit or otherwise.

The 1923 dip account due Wm. Cooper & Nephews, amounting to $1,231.25, was audited and allowed.

A number of paid bonds, warrants, scrip and coupons were burned and destroyed in the presence of the court.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES ENTERTAINED BY THE MEN'S CLUB TUESDAY NIGHT

Banquet and Fun Feature Event Held in Dining Room of Church—Over 100 Were in Attendance.

The Presbyterian Men's Club were hosts to the Women's Auxiliary and ladies of the church Tuesday night at a sumptuous banquet spread in the dining room of the new building. Over 100 men and women were in attendance, and judging from the laughter heard all evening and the happy faces encountered on all sides, everyone had a good time.

One feature of the refreshments was that no lady had anything to do with preparing or serving the viands—the work being done entirely by the men. Artistically prepared menu cards gave the following as the bill of fare: "A Family Mixup," "Still at Last," "Whittler's Remains," "Bachelor Faces," "Guest's Emergency Rations," "Muddled Waters," "A Strained Affair," (with a sweet application), "Pompeian Night Speciality," "The Eternal Triangle," "Pecuniary Embellishment." Transposed into plain English the bill of fare was as follows: Salad, cold boiled tongue, potato chips, dill pickles, crackers, coffee, tea, sugar, cream, lemon pie, after dinner mints.

One important feature of the banquet was the cleverly designed and worded place cards, each one of which was individual and illustrated in harmony with some particular characteristic of the one whose name was thereon. The Club Orchestra rendered special music during the earlier part of the meal.

E. H. Prescott acted as toastmaster and the invocation was delivered by Dr. J. V. McCall. Rev. W. P. Dickey gave the welcoming address on behalf of the Men's Club and Mrs. A. C. Schreiner responded for the ladies.

Herbert L. Crate had charge of the amusement features of the evening and as is customary with any Crate-managed affair, this part of the program went over big. Mr. Prescott delivered a well worded and timely address on "The Club's Business," as the serious address of the evening.

GRAND JURY RETURNS NINE BILLS OF INDICTMENT AGAINST VIOLATORS

Seven Are for Bootlegging, Others Are for Theft and Fraud—Criminal Docket Taken Up Monday.

The second week of District Court swung off Monday with cases on the criminal docket coming up for trial. Twenty-two of these cases were acted upon, ten of which were continued for service and four because of the absence of witness.

The Grand Jury adjourned last Saturday after a week's session and reported nine bills of indictment against law violators. Seven of them were for bootlegging, one for theft of property under value of $50, and the other for embezzlement over $50.

Arrests have been made in five of the indictments and principals in the remaining four are expected to be apprehended before the end of the week.

Judge R. H. Burney impaneled the petit jury Monday morning and delivered the charge. He opened by explaining that the system of trial for law violators in this country is the fairest in the world, the defendant having the right to call witnesses in his favor and in having an impartial jury to make the decision.

He gave the jurors detailed instructions as to what they should base their decision upon and the extent to which they might discuss the case in the jury room. In this connection the Judge stated that jurors must be governed by the evidence taken at the court room and not by any information that they might obtain in consultation. The speaker showed that the law provided the defendant must be confronted by witnesses in open court.

Judge Burney continued with the explanation that the defendant had the right to refrain from taking the stand and the jury must not take such action as being evidence that he is guilty or is afraid to testify. Should the question of any defendant not take the stand be asked in the jury room and become known, their decision would be reversed.

The Judge concluded his charge with the statement that each juror was under oath to stand by the law whether he agreed with it or not, saying that it is not for a jury to question the law, but to carry it out as it exists.

Following are the bills returned by the Grand Jury in which arrests have been made: State vs. J. E. Welch, and State vs. J. D. Langston, for unlawfully transporting intoxicating liquor; State vs. D. C. Williford, unlawfully possessing mash; State vs. Jody Blanks, unlawfully selling intoxicating liquor.

J. D. Langston and J. L. Powell were granted writs of habeas corpus with bail reduced and fixed at $500, in each case.

Disposition of cases tried was made as follows:

State vs. Arthur Hagens, defendant pleaded guilty to charge of aggravated assault and fined $50 by J. S. Wheelers, special judge; State vs. Frank Phillips, ordered dropped from the docket; State vs. E. B. King, same as preceding case; State vs. Granville Jackson, three cases continued by State on third application on account of absence of witness Aaron Stone; State vs. Florencio Sanchez, same as above; State vs. L. A. Mitchell, two cases, defendant fails to appear, bond forfeited and alias capias writ ordered issued returnable instant; State vs. O. J. Bean, two cases continued on application of State; State vs. Jose Ortiz, indicted in June, 1913, for theft of horse on October 20, 1912, dismissed on motion of District Attorney; State vs. J. E. Welch, instructed verdict of not guilty; State vs. D. C. Williford, verdict of guilty of unlawful possession of mash and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

Dale Won the Dog

In a fishing discussion at Ben Smith's office Monday morning, S. H. Huntington was unanimously voted the dog when he told of catching during his boyhood days near Cincinnati, Ohio, catfish that had been crossed with goldfish.

It seems a neighbor had been raising goldfish and when they became too numerous turned the surplus loose in a canal, so Dale had good grounds to back up his statement. However, he never was able to convince Uncle Ben, who, at last reports, was trying to cross a bull frog with a mud turtle.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SPEAKER ADDRESSED LARGE CROWD HERE

Lecture on "Shall We Go Back to Wine and Beer" Given at First Baptist Church Tuesday Evening.

Lewis R. Horton of Spokane, Wash., was greeted by a crowded house at the First Baptist Church Tuesday evening, and his lecture "Shall We Go Back to Wine and Beer" was received with attention and enthusiasm.

After a short introduction by Judge H. C. Geddie, the speaker, who is touring the State under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of America and the State League, pointed out the many advantages of prohibition, stressing especially the great increase in savings accounts since the saloons closed. However, he warned his hearers that the fight was not yet won and that the Anti-Saloon League would continue the battle as long as there was opposition.

Toward the close of his address Mr. Horton forcibly and eloquently pointed out the need of assistance to meet the present movement for light wines and beer, and a large number of cards pledging financial support were signed by the audience.

The large American flag, which had been promised to the pupils of the grade turning in the largest number of cards signed by those who attended the meeting was won by Miss Bessie Biehler's room.

At the close of the address Rev. Briggs dismissed the large crowd with a short benediction.

Officers of the U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 93 present were Doctors Denson, Happel, McClung, Moore, Rothrock, Fryar, Klein, Matz, Garrett, Carney, Walker, Farnsworth and Schwarz.

MORE ENTRIES EXPECTED IN HILL COUNTRY TRACK MEET THIS YEAR

Second Annual Meet Set for March 21 and 22—Two Additional Counties Included in Organization.

Dates for the second annual Hill Country Track and Literary Meet have been set for Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22 this year. The contests will be held in Kerrville. Final details and arrangements are fast nearing completion and everything is expected to be in readiness long before the meet opens.

Eight counties are included this year in the organization. They are: Kerr, Kimble, Edwards, Gillespie, Kendall, Real, Bandera and Mason. Real and Mason Counties are the new members, the meet starting last year with but six.

Schools participating will be divided into two classes. Class A, composed of schools with four or more teachers, and Class B, schools with one to three teachers, are the classifications. These divisions will eliminate competition between small or rural schools and larger independent schools.

All events with the exception of debating, tennis, girls' basket ball, volley ball and music memory will be divided into the two classes. All schools, regardless of number of teachers, may enter contestants in the five events named above.

Reports reaching here state that practically every school in the territory of the organization will have entries. Between 400 and 500 contestants were in attendance at last year's games and the number is expected to exceed that this year.

It is expected that a full list of entrants will be available a few days before the dates set for the meet. Arrangements are being made to care for the visitors Friday night and fuller announcement of this will probably be made within a short time.

The following literary events will take place: Debating, declamation, essay writing, spelling and plain writing contest, and music memory contest.

Athletic events include junior boys' 50- and 100-yard dashes, 440-yard relay, running high jump, running broad jump and chinning the bar.

Senior boys' events include 120-yard low hurdle, 100-yard dash, mile run, 50-yard, 220-yard, 440-yard and 880-yard dashes, mile relay, discus throw, running high and broad jumps, pole vault, 12-pound shot put, tennis singles and doubles.

Junior girls' events are 35- and 50-yard dashes, running high and broad jumps and standing broad jump.

Senior girls' events include 50- and 75-yard dashes, 220-yard relay, running high and broad jumps, standing broad jump, basket ball, volley ball, tennis singles and doubles.

The meet will be conducted under the Interscholastic League rules and officials will have charge of each department. A definite program of the order of events has not yet been completed, but it is thought it will be ready within a short time.

Medals and ribbons will be awarded to individual winners and cups will be awarded in each division for high point schools.

Intelligent Use of Copy Is Bound to Show Real Results

L. M. White, Mexico (Mo.) Ledger: Personally I try to watch my own reactions to advertising and find that my response to display space is both easy and most frequent. However I find that when price is not quoted interests lags.

That there should be any question concerning the pulling power of display advertising is as absurd to me as to question the immutable laws of nature. Some display space is wasted because of ignorance, but where it is used intelligently there can be no question concerning results.

Display space used with a proper illustration has both an attention compelling force and a selling angle that is possible in no other form of copy. But I am not going to argue the case. To me the person who questions the selling value of display space is not worth wasting time with. They are driving a one-horse shay, eating bulk oatmeal, bathing when the water gets warm in the creek, and depending upon the pony-express to give them rapid transportation.

Advertising is no longer in the stage of experimentation. It has arrived at a definite thing. The man who attempted to conduct a business without advertising is simply adding to the economic waste and has signed his reservation on the business scrapheap.

Auxiliary to Meet Today

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Presbyterian Church will meet Thursday afternoon in the church parlors.

The pageant, "The White Field of Japan," will be presented by the foreign mission study class. Mrs. Henry Henke and Mrs. J. D. Jackson will be hostesses for the afternoon.

Tables will be provided for those who wish to play bridge or other card games, as well as dominoes and all who wish to enjoy a pleasant social afternoon as well as assisting in a most worthy cause are requested to call Mrs. W. B. Brown or Miss Keapner for reservations. Money derived from this party will be used to defray expenses of the city park and in beautifying same.

Cattle Clatter, San Antonio Express, Feb. 8th: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hudspeth of Sonora, after visiting in San Antonio for about three weeks, returned home Wednesday. When these two good people feel the urge to go somewhere, instead of thinking of Los Angeles or Atlantic City, why, they just think of San Antonio. Then they pick up and come along. Do this way once or twice every year. Both of them have old friends here, and it just seems like visit enough for them while here this time they went over to Austin for two or three days to visit other old friends. Roy and his more famous brother, Claud, are just about the best known and most popular pair of brothers in the West Texas cow business. Roy has annexed sheep and goats to his repertoire—and finds it a mighty pleasant sideline. In fact, it has nearly got to be the main line. Claud, when he isn't working at his job in Washington, spends a lot of his time on his ranch near Comstock. Roy maintains his home in Sonora, but he is investing quite a lot in Del Rio, for he says that is a good town. As a matter of fact, he runs down there so much and attends to his business interests there that he has come to feel that he is not going visiting when he goes there. Hence, he has to put the car in the garage and come on to San Antonio to feel like he actually is getting away from home and going visiting.

WINNING JIM

By NAOMI

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT SEEMED all I'd heard since I came to Aunt Matilda Travers' was how this one, or that one, was going to entertain a certain Jim. He must be mighty important, I thought, to cause all that excitement. I found later that he was rich and unmarried, which in some cases is important enough. This Jim's father had lived in Greenbrook when he was a young man, and all the older ladies remembered how fine he was, and wanted their daughters to have a chance with the younger Jim. I know that is a horrid way to put it, but that's exactly what I heard several visiting mothers say to Aunt Matilda.

In the first place, Aunt Matilda is only my aunt by marriage, and I console myself with the thought that if she had been mother's own sister she would not have made me work so hard in her big home for my living. When father died, and I was left a very young girl in my own home, Aunt Matilda promptly sent for me to come and make my home with her. I thought it was perfectly charitable of her at the time and hurried on here to Greenbrook. But from almost the moment of my arrival I've been kept so busy attending to housework—aunt calls it house-management—that I've not had any time to keep up with my music or my books.

You see, Aunt Matilda, left a widow in a big downtown house, had to turn the house into money one way or another to earn her livelihood; so she took in boarders of a very respectable sort. So, when I heard that this Jim, whom every one thought so much of, was actually going to board at our house during his stay in his father's old town, I was thrilled in prospect!

I loved to answer the bell Aunt Matilda had placed in Mr. Jim Meredith's room because he had always something cheery or joking to say; and when he saw how very illiterate I was he loaned me books which were easy to understand and instructive. I didn't wonder that parties had been planned for him all over the town, and that the young ladies dressed up prettier wherever he went. He drove with one or another of them in his big car, and I used to sit in my attic window when I could snatch a moment just for the pleasure of seeing him go through the gates.

But by and by I didn't like to watch Mr. Jim so well; it made a lump come into my throat, and I could not have told you why. Maybe because I could never entertain with parties or look pretty in the plain dresses that were made over from aunt's discarded ones. I often dreamed, ungratefully, of leaving aunt and going out into the world to earn my own fortune, like a happy beggar maid. But always the fact of aunt's present need of me kept me here.

I heard them in the living room one day speculating which of the pretty young ladies had—as they put it—captured Mr. Meredith's fancy. "If it's Luella," remarked my aunt, "her nest will be well feathered." "And if it's Luella," answered my aunt's companion, "she will need all she can get!"

I hated to have them talk about Mr. Jim's wealth as if he were not the great gift himself, and blessing that a good woman might proudly claim. It made tears come into my eyes at times to recall his ever kindly thought and concern for me—the serving maid. When Mr. Jim was taken ill, I, myself, arranged his bed, that not one soft wrinkle might annoy; I carried his broth to him and when the white-clad nurse would have waded me outside, Mr. Jim raised himself upon the pillow. "Why," he told the nurse, surprised, "my little Naomi could never disturb me!" And when I went into the room he gave me an armful of his gift flowers.

There were two others in aunt's house at the time, ill with the influenza, so I was busy running to their needs. But I never passed Mr. Jim's door that I did not throw a smile at least, inside. And when the nurse was gone and he was, as he insisted, only lazy, he begged aunt to let me read aloud to him, because his eyes were not strong.

It was wonderful in the front room—the fire low in the gas grate, the gift flowers everywhere, Mr. Jim stretched big and long in aunt's chaise chair—and I on a little stool in the light of the window, reading, and looking back now and then for help in the pronunciation of a word—and Mr. Jim's smile—oh, his smile!

The pretty ladies inquired each day as they left their flowers. "Which," asked aunt smilingly, as she placed the choicest ones in a blue vase, "which is the 'flower maid,' Jim?" You remember, aunt and Jim's father had been friends long ago. Then Jim Meredith leaned forward in his chair and put out his hands to me—I went to him.

"This is my own flower maid, Mrs. Travers," he said—his dear voice trembled. "My own flower maid—if I may teach her to care for me."

Teach me! I stared at him. "Why, don't you know," I murmured—"don't you know!"

And Jim did know. Aunt says she will come with us to the big house in the city square, for there are rooms many. And what might she do in this boarding house with no maid of all work?—which thought of mine Jim says, goes with all before, to wease the charm that won him.

AMERICAN LEGION PLANS $25,000,000 WILSON MEMORIAL

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 12.—A national memorial to Woodrow Wilson costing not less than $25,000,000 and surpassing in grandeur and magnificence the stateliest yet built to any ruler or potentate on earth, represents a movement initiated here by the Tennessee division of the American Legion.

John R. Quinn, national commander of the legion, was present, asked the resolution's adoption, and will pass it to the heads of the organizations in the various States. He will likewise present the matter to the executive committee of the legion when it meets at Indianapolis May 18 and 19, to be followed, if adopted, by a campaign for funds, the most stupendous for a similar purpose the world has ever known, officials said.

According to the plan as proposed, the memorial will be located on the banks of the Potomac where the War President broke his health and gave his life.

The idea was conceived by William F. Fritts of Chattanooga, commander of Davis King Summers Post.

The monument as proposed would far exceed the Washington or Lincoln memorials, the glory of Westminster Abbey or the tombs of the Egyptian rulers in the Valley of the Kings.

Among one of the first sanitary acts passed in America was a quarantine act in Massachusetts in the year 1648.

AVIATOR DEFENDS SOLDIER WHO SAVED HIS LIFE FROM BURNING AIRPLANE HERE

San Antonio Express: The unusual sight of an army officer appearing in a civil court to defend an enlisted man, accused of embezzling and converting army property to his own use by sale; the still more unusual sight of a member of the military judge-advocate's staff, the prosecuting branch, appearing for the defense in such a case, was presented in the United States Court for the Western District of Texas, Monday and Tuesday, when Lieut. Park Holland of Kelly Field, appeared for Pvt. (formerly supply sergeant) Roger C. Schenck. Schenck was accused on alternate indictments with theft and embezzlement of Government supplies valued at approximately $800 from the 90th Squadron, Kelly Field, and was found guilty of embezzlement late Tuesday. Sentence was deferred until Wednesday.

Still more peculiar than Holland's appearance for defense was the fact that he had obtained official permission from Headquarters Eighth Corps Area so to do.

No fee was paid Lieutenant Holland. It was a debt of gratitude he was repaying in as great a measure as possible.

On October 8, 1922, the Kelly Field football team flew to Kerrville for a game. The air was unusually rough, with many cross-currents. Reaching Kerrville, five of the fleet of six ships made a safe landing.

The sixth ship was flown by Lieut. Holland as pilot and Sgt. Schenck as passenger. As the DeHavilland hovered but a few feet over the field preparatory to landing, a sudden gust of wind lifted the right wing and sent it left into the ground. The ship spun around, then crashed, nose first, into the earth, its engine still running.

Schenck was thrown clear of the ship. Lieut. Holland was caught in the wreckage, his ankle jammed. The gasoline tank broke and in a moment the injured officer was surrounded by a veritable sea of flame as the plane caught fire.

Pulled Holland From Fire

It is unusual for a man to be rescued from a burning ship, almost unheard of, in fact. But without hesitating a moment, Schenck ran to the side of Lieut. Holland, reached through the flames surrounding him and gave a terrific tug. Schenck is a large and powerful man, while Holland is slender. The strength of the enlisted man broke the belt which held the pilot in the ship, tore away a piece of his shin bone as his foot was extricated from the weight of the wreckage, but Holland came clear. Most of his clothing was burned off his body and there were numerous burns on his face and body. His jaw was broken, part of his teeth were knocked out, and a number of cuts and bruises inflicted on his face and body. So thoroughly dazed was he that unassisted he never could have escaped.

So extraordinary was Schenck's presence of mind and heroism, for in accomplishing the rescue he had received deep burns about the face and arms, that Gen. Berghain commended him in general orders of April 7, 1923.

It was three months before Lieutenant Holland could leave the hospital and for many more months he walked with the aid of a stick. But as he lay in bed he registered a vow that some day, in some way, he would repay Sergeant Schenck, if opportunity ever arose.

Approximately a year after the act of heroism thus recorded in army orders, Sergeant Schenck was placed under arrest, charged with being the principal in the theft of quantities of supplies entrusted to his care as supply sergeant of the 90th Squadron. He was liberated on bond pending trial in the Federal Court, because of the nature of the charge, he was "busted," reduced in rank to private.

Private Schenck had no money to pay a lawyer, but it so happened that for 10 years prior to entering the air service, Lieutenant Holland had been a practicing lawyer in New York, and, as his record showed, he was a good one. Schenck wrote Lieutenant Holland, formally requesting that he act as his counsel. Lieutenant Holland seconded the request. He stated that the man had saved his life, at risk of his own, and forwarded the request to headquarters, Eighth Corps Area, asking that he be permitted to discharge in some part the debt of gratitude and serve, without fee, as defending counsel.

In its reply, headquarters specified that while it was against the general policy of the military establishment to allow an officer to defend a man charged with theft of Government property, yet, under the extraordinary conditions presented, permission was granted in this case. It was requested, however, that Lieutenant Holland should state publicly in court why an officer of the army was appearing for an enlisted man accused of such an offense.

Admitted to Practice

When the case was called, Lieutenant Holland applied for license and was admitted to practice before Federal Court, a privilege for which he formerly was licensed in New York. Upon this request being granted, he took his place beside the prisoner, ready to exert his every talent in his behalf.

As the trial proceeded, Holland's intimate knowledge of army affairs proved of inestimable benefit to his client. He fought every inch of the way, and brought out strongly the excellent reputation and reputation Schenck always had enjoyed previous to his arrest on this charge.

It was in the final summing up of the case that he shone, however, as he exerted in behalf of his friend and benefactor his mental energy and the knowledge of human nature he had gained in his wide experience, in one of the most telling appeals to a jury ever delivered in the Federal courtroom here. It was as though he, mentally, was tugging as hard to save Schenck from the jeopardy of prison, as Schenck had tugged, physically, when he pulled Holland free from under the encumbering weight of the burning plane and through flames that threatened to devour Holland's body.

Not once during his appeal did Holland mention the debt of gratitude he owed Schenck, but this had become known in other ways.

The engine of the wrecked plane mentioned in the above story can still be seen lying beside the road opposite Kerrville's Tourist Camp.

The whale is disappearing off the Pacific Coast. The total catch in four months was 377.

WATCH THE USE OF THE PEOPLE'S FUNDS

Junction Eagle: When will the people of the Nation awake to the yoke which is being placed upon their necks by unnecessary taxation—unnecessary because it is the cost of graft and waste? When will the people of the State and County, arouse themselves to consciousness of the burden they are carrying, that they need not carry?

When an employe of a private concern becomes wasteful he is soon discharged, or the concern will soon be in bankruptcy. The only reason our political units are not in actual bankruptcy is the fact that they have the taxing power. Stockholders will quit paying into badly managed concerns—taxpayers cannot quit.

When an employe steals from a bank, especially a National bank, he is pretty sure to go to the penitentiary. Why are so few of those who steal from the public there. The people hold the answer.

The faith of the people in their servants is being shaken just now as revelations are made that throw suspicion on those who are in high places, and those who have held high places. The confidence of the people is weakening as public officials show their incompetence, or carelessness, in handling the public money.

But we, the people, are more to blame than anyone else. We pay too little attention to the choice of those who are to manage our public affairs for us. We follow a party standard blindly and are too busy to choose wisely and to follow the acts of men we do choose.

It is true that we are also contributing factors to public negligence when we frame our governments and approve our laws so that it is hard for honest and competent men to serve without begging themselves. It is true that we do not often volunteer our services in public affairs.

We ought to raise a higher standard of public service. We ought to show ourselves ready to bear a part of the civic burdens which are assumed for all the people's benefit and must be borne. We ought to see that condign punishment falls on those who betray the public confidence and misuse the public money.

And we should not stop with putting an end to actual graft, to theft of the people's money. We should make it understood that waste and incompetence on the part of public officers are worthy of, and subject to, severe punishment.

San Antonio Express: That "bog-hole pirate" near Round Rock who was compelled to take $250 instead of the $25 he demanded, or nothing—said injunction being enforced by an irate captain of the United States Army with a service revolver backing up his words—got something of his due when he asked the sum named for pulling the officer's car out of the mud. There should be a law to cover such cases. There isn't, but a little pitiless publicity will work wonders without a statute. There have been "rank" cases of this sort in many sections up to a very recent date. But this is just about the rankest of them all. There are no better communities than Round Rock—than all of Williamson County. The pirate is out of place as a permanent resident of that section of Southwest Texas.

EASTERN CAPITALISTS PLAN THIRTEEN NEW POWER DAMS

Austin, Tex., Feb. 7.—The building of 13 dams on the Guadalupe River is contemplated by Eastern capital represented by two visitors who called at the office of the State Board of Water Engineers and obtained data on the file there with reference to the pre-emptions of the Guadalupe Water Power Company. This follows the co-operative work with the United States Geological Survey in the broad program of conservation and reclamation.

F. H. Willmot and C. W. Besaucon examined the maps and data and will make report to the capitalists. These men were interested in the huge power project at Alexandria to furnish power for New Orleans and advise that the same interests may take hold of the Guadalupe River projects. They said an option on these holdings had been obtained from W. B. Dunlap of Beaumont and would be exercised if the engineers approve the plans.

The highest up-stream dam would be in Kendall County above Boerne and for storage purposes only. Then there would be seven for power purposes between Boerne and New Braunfels, four between New Braunfels and Seguin, and one below Seguin a short distance. There is a fall of 540 feet between the first seven dams.

According to the report on file dams one to seven would have a yearly output of 53,000,000 kilo-watt hours energy and Nos. 1 to 13 a total of 338,100,000 k. w. hours.

Originally the 13 sites were filed upon and permits issued to Dr. E. B. Brown of Orange and W. B. Dunlap of Beaumont. Dr. Brown died and his rights were bought by Mr. Dunlap.

GEOLOGISTS TO EXPLORE CANYON OF ST. HELENA

Austin, Tex., Feb. 8.—A party of scientists contemplate exploring the Grand Canyon of St. Helena of the Rio Grande, which is about 120 miles south of Alpine. The party would be headed by Dr. Walter Elmer Ekblaw, professor of geology at the University of Illinois, and they would make an exploration and take pictures for the National Geographic Society. This information was communicated to Dr. J. A. Udden, director of the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology, by H. T. Fletcher of Marfa. The Texas Bureau will probably be represented by a botanist.

Mr. Fletcher asked if such an exploration would be resented by the Texas Bureau, and Dr. Udden replied in the negative, and enthusiastically invited the party to make the trip, adding:

"Texas is so great that I think it a good point to invite all who so desire to help us in our great work of exploring our State."

Dr. Udden pronounces the St. Helena Canyon one of the beauty spots of America, and more inspiring than some that have international reputations. It is a big canyon, with perpendicular walls extending up over 2,000 feet. Only a very few white men have ever been through this rugged gorge and Dr. Udden has personally talked with the first who made the venture. They were two Swedish brothers, John and Eric Westerlund, who, to avoid the Indians on the plains, followed the river and used a canoe to traverse the canyon. That was in 1852. They were returning from the California gold fields. They told Dr. Udden that when at the deepest part of the canyon it was dark. They feared the river was going down underground to some great cave, and were greatly relieved when they emerged on the plains south of the Chisos Mountains.

WILSON MEMORIAL

As soon as word was received of the death of our great war president, Woodrow Wilson, the big American flag was half-masted at Notre Dame Institute and remained so during solar time until all that was miring of the peace enthusiast was deposited in his simple tomb.

Another great war president, Abraham Lincoln, was remembered on Tuesday of this week by the grade pupils at Notre Dame.

The faculty and students feel proud of the new awards and diplomas conferred by the Palmer College of Business Writing. Besides these distinctions, the Notre Dame penmen were honored with a special cut in the last issue of the "Palmer Penman," which monthly enjoys a Nation-wide circulation.

Next week the big chicken supper will be held in Washington Hall, after an entertainment in honor of the Father of Our Country. Specific data about this anticipated event can be announced better in the next issue.

St. Valentine Like St. Valentine, whom the Church honored on the 2nd inst., St. Valentine was a priest, physician and martyr of the early Fourth Century. His festival was observed in a Christian manner at the Guadalupe Chapel this Thursday morning.

Thursday of last week, Rev. A. G. Grattan of Port Arthur read Mass for the Notre Dame students in the Convent Chapel. While in Kerrville, he called on his friend, George Dryden.

Last Sunday the customary engagement at Comfort was filled.

The Holy Ghost Sisters, who devote their lives to the education of negro children, received into their novitiate last week, Miss Josephine Stanton, a relative of Clarence L. Mosel. A few years ago this religious order seriously considered the transfer of their novitiate from San Antonio to Kerrville.

Funeral of Mrs. Perez Vincent Perez, secretary of the men's division of the Guadalupe Society, was torn by Death from the companionship of his dearly beloved wife, Dona Carmen. On the subsequent day, Friday of last week, both branches of the Mexican benevolent fraternity marched in funeral procession from the home to the Guadalupe Church, and thence to the Harper Road Cemetery.

Another big healthy boy swelled the growing family of Rudolph Stehling last week. District K. of C. supervisor, Al Oldham, was here last Thursday with Ben Newman. The good news of the Methodist Encampment reopened the discussion of suitable summer quarters for the Knights of Columbus and Catholic Daughters of America who have twice before chosen our pleasure resort for their vacation rendezvous.

Horace Aubrey, a charter member of the Beaumont Council welcomed his relative C. J. Hebert, who arrived this Monday for an indefinite stay.

Good Roads Boosters

Bandera New Era, February 7th: Judge C. W. Harris, E. H. Sewall, Joe Newcomer and Vernon Powell were here from Medina yesterday, talking good roads. They are interested in a movement to improve the road from Bandera to Medina, and on up the North Frong to follow Trail Loop No. 10 to Kerrville, and they are of the opinion that a bond issue for the improvement of that highway is the proper step to take right at this time.

And we heartily agree with them. We commend them for their good judgement and we believe those Medina people will vote solidly for the improvement of the road that will become a great artery of traffic and tourist travel. Surely, old Bandera County is awakening!

EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

By Member

The Sunday School was as usual very well attended. New members continue to join every Sunday, which is very encouraging. Service was held at 11 o'clock and a good choir led the singing. Miss Maybelle Roberts, accompanied by Mrs. Young, played a beautiful violin solo during the offertory.

After morning prayer the rector requested Dr. E. Galbraith to tell us something of what he had heard at Council. He began by telling of an old friend that Bishop Johnston made for our Diocese 30 years ago when it was a struggling frontier missionary district and had to appeal to the North for financial aid. This friend is now rejoicing in the fact that he can return to the North and tell all who helped establish the Church here that it has now attained independence, vigorous growth and is a vital power for Christ in West Texas.

He next spoke of Mr. Gill, a returned missionary from China, who has had many wonderful experiences over there one of which is as follows: During the Boxer uprising a Chinese woman, an Atheist, full of the love of humanity and daughter of a Governor of one of the Provinces, begged Mr. Gill's aid in protecting 500 orphan children she was caring for. He got a few men, hung a Red Cross flag over her home, but in a few days an urgent call came and he had to leave. The lady was in despair, but he told her of our Saviour the Lover of Children, commended them and her to His care and giving her a copy of the Bible in Chinese, advised her to read the 14th Chapter of St. John's Gospel.

After studying these verses she retired peacefully for the night. She was awakened by a Presence in the room, and opening her eyes saw our Lord. All her fears and anxieties subsided, and she was calm and strong in the certainty of the knowledge that she and those committed to her care were perfectly safe under the protection of Him, who said "I will not leave you desolate, I will come to you." "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be fearful."

This woman is now a devout Christian, and has been instrumental in leading many to Christ. Cyrus Dolph then gave his report on the Y. P. S. L. to which he is a delegate. He told us of the splendid work it is doing everywhere, and of how much he enjoyed hearing Bishop Quinn, whose fine address filled all with enthusiasm, saying he would not leave the banquet as it was the peppiest affair and the best fun he'd ever had.

The rector gave notice that the young people would meet at 7 o'clock Sunday evening to organize a branch of this useful organization.

The Guild met February 5 at the residence of Mrs. Ed Mosel. Several important matters came up for discussion and Mrs. A. F. McClellan gave us a very full report of Council. She attended every session of the Woman's Auxiliary and gained much useful information which she passed on to us, after which the meeting adjourned and our hostess served a dainty salad course, cake and tea, to the accompaniment of much friendly chat.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the residence of Mrs. Emil Dietert

Snow, of Route 1, near Paris, Tenn., tells the story of her experience as follows: 'I am 62 years old and I have been a practical nurse for more than 20 years, taking mostly maternity cases. One of my daughters suffered from cramping at... She would just bend double and have to go to bed. CARDUI The Woman's Tonic was recommended to her and she only had to take about two bottles, when she hardly knew that it was... she suffered no little pain. My youngest daughter was run-down, weak and nervous, and looked like she didn't have a bit of blood left—just a walking skeleton, no appetite and tired all the time. I gave her two bottles of Cardui. It built her up and she began eating and soon gained in weight and has been so well since.' Cardui, the Woman's Tonic, has helped suffering women for over forty years. Try it. At all druggists. Friday at 3 p. m. These meetings are for the purpose of learning about, and working for missions. It is hoped that all the women of the church, especially those who do not believe in Missions if there are any of these, will come and assist in carrying out our Lord's words, "Go Ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Calendar for the coming week: Sunday services: Sunday School, 9:45 a. m.; Sermon by the pastor 11 a. m., subject, "Steadfastness"; Junior B. Y. P. U., 3 p. m.; Senior B. Y. P. U., 6:15 p. m.; song service, 7:15 p. m.; sermon by the pastor, 7:30 p. m., subject, "The Power of Influence."

Monday afternoon the Y. W. A. meets at the home of the pastor. Wednesday, 7:15 p. m., prayer meeting. Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 the pastor was called upon to conduct the funeral services of Brother John Willis Brown, who passed to his reward from the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital last Sunday evening, Feb. 10th, at 8:30.

Brother Brown was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brown, who followed their son to this place from Anniston, Ala., and have been living in this city for some time. Brother Brown was nearing his 32nd year. While only a boy of about 14 years he was baptized into the Mt. Andrew Baptist Church of Alabama. He was born at that place June 19, 1892. After the services in the undertaker's parlor, which was filled with friends of the family of the deceased and comrades, the body was laid to rest in Glen Rest Cemetery, the concluding services being conducted by Rev. J. Y. Lindley, chaplain. Brother Brown was a member of the Anniston Baptist Church at his death. We join our hearts in sympathy for the bereaved family that mourns his loss.

Tuesday evening our church was packed with a throng of hearers to listen to the lecture of Hon. Lewis R. Horton, from Spokane, Wash., who addressed us on the subject, "Shall We Go Back to Wine and Beer?" We were well paid for the attention which we gave.

LOCAL CONTESTS ARE BOOSTING KERRVILLE

The Sun this week carries two advertisements offering cash prizes for suitable names for local products. The American Creamery Company is offering ten dollars in gold for the best and most acceptable name for their butter, which is a Hill Country product of which they are justly proud. This contest closes Feb. 16.

The Kerrville Milling Company is offering $50.00 in prizes for the best name for their flour. See their ad in this issue for conditions of contest, which closes April 1.

Besides the cash prizes offered these contests will be the means of valuable boosting for this section as both products will extensively advertise Kerrville and the Hill Country and the competition should be keen in both.

The death rate of the United States steadily declines. Registration which now includes eighty-five per cent of the entire population shows deaths last year to have been only 11.8 per 1,000.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Attendance at Sunday School last Sunday morning was only 126, ten below the record of the previous Sunday. The falling off was without doubt due to the cloudy, threatening weather.

Senior Christian Endeavor, with Lucille Taylor as leader, met at 6:45 p. m. Much interest is being manifested by the young people in these meetings.

Our pastor will be away next Sunday, attending an educational rally at San Angelo. Dr. J. V. McCall will preach at the morning service and a special program by the choir will be the feature of the evening service.

Rev. Dickey preached both sermons Sunday. His sermon at the morning hour was on "The Purpose of Redemption." The scripture reading was the second chapter of Ephesians and part of the 10th verse was used as the text: "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works."

Dr. Dickey brought out the fact that it is impossible to interpret our relationship to Christ; He must make that interpretation; that we find the fellowship with Jesus in everything; that our Christian grace and service are outgrowth of our life with Jesus; that the result of our union with Christ is that we become fellow citizens of the Kingdom, members of the household of God, living stones in the House of God.

Mrs. G. M. Doyle sang "Oh, Eyes That are Weary" as solo for the morning service. In the evening the subject given by the pastor was "Let the Redeemed of the Lord Say So." The scripture used was the 107 Psalm, with special reference to the second verse. This sermon was a continuation of the subject of the forenoon service.

MEXICAN BAPTIST CHURCH

E. V. Rodriguez, Pastor

Our work is progressing rapidly. Several new members have joined our church. Last Friday the pastor preached at the First Baptist Church to a small congregation, many being absent on account of the Parents-Teachers' meeting which was held at the Tivy school. The subject was on prayers.

Last Sunday we had for our study subject, "The Failure of Israel at Dodesh," how many Christians throughout the world are kept out of many promised lands and blessings on account of the unbelief like Israel. At the evening service the pastor preached to a large congregation on the Ten Commandments.

Our church wants to congratulate our Presbyterian brethren for their beautiful new house of worship, also our Methodist brethren for getting the encampment here. We hope both will be a blessing to our town. Everybody is welcome at all times to our services.

IN MEMORIAM

By KARIN C. SUNDELEF

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

IT WAS the face of the youthful prisoner that made the biggest impression on the crowded courtroom. It was as if the knowledge and experience of a man of fifty had been stamped upon that face, drawing together the lines of defiance, silliness and bitter hatred, which served to mar a profile otherwise perfect.

His sentence had been, "up the river for six months" on a charge of theft. The boy—for he was scarcely more than seventeen—turned a pair of smoldering eyes on the judge as he pronounced the sentence, with a malevolence which caused a shudder to ripple through the court.

The judge, about to dismiss the case with an airy sweep of a plump white hand, was suddenly interrupted.

"Your honor, this is entirely out of form, but by your leave, may I say a few words that may bear on this case?"

His honor, too surprised to refuse, gave his consent. The speaker, a tall, spare, fine-looking man with kindly gray eyes and the straight, white collar of the priesthood, paused a moment as if to make sure of his method of procedure. There was a pregnant hush in the courtroom. The boy in the dock turned his indifferently distrustful eyes upon this new man, and the smoldering fires in their depths had died down.

"When I was seventeen," began the stranger—and every eye was upon him—"I stood in exactly the same place as my young friend here—the same room, the same bars, the same sentence, the same defiance towards my fellowmen, but not, your honor, the same judge."

"My mother died when I was seven. I was brought up by my father, an indulgent man, who took little notice of my whereabouts, of my pleasures or my companions. I lied, I swore, I smoked and drank. When I wanted anything that I could not get any other way, I took it. When I was fifteen my father married again. I was resentful. I made up my mind to make the life of my new mother miserable, and heaven knows I succeeded. She was a little woman, and frail, and it is a marvel to me now that she did not go under through the strain of that long year.

"Then I was arrested for stealing. When the case came up, my stepmother came. My father did not. Again I was resentful. She was there only to gloat over my disgrace! She was glad that at last I was to be put away and she would have at least a few months of relief. My sentence was six months. Those six months loomed ahead of me like a black nightmare.

"Imagine my surprise when she, the aged woman whose life I had made unbearable for fully a year, approached the judge with a light in her eyes that I had never seen there before. She pleaded for me as I have never since heard anybody plead. She told him of her love for me. She begged for a few months' probation for me. Entirely out of form, your honor, just as my talking about is now. But I am pleading for the memory of a woman who was dearer to me than life itself, and through whose indomitable courage and sacrificing love I have become what I am today."

The speaker paused. The silence was a thing that could be heard in itself, beating itself against the heart-strings of all present, and heavy with a coming crisis. The judge stirred uneasily in his chair.

"What would you?" he asked.

"Before there was time for any reply, a woman detached herself from somewhere, among the crowd, and worked her way forward. She walked quickly up to the front of the big room, straight to the dock where sat the boy, and in a voice choked with tears, she cried: "Give me another chance, your honor. Let me have him. Just a few months' probation. I promise to vouch for him."

She was a small woman, and frail, neatly dressed in gray, with a white, quiet face, and large, calm blue eyes. She reached her hand through the bars and laid it before one of the boy's.

"Who are you?" asked the judge.

"I am his stepmother," she replied, with head bowed.

The defiance had died entirely out of the prisoner's eyes, and he stroked softly, almost mechanically with his free hand, the hand that held his. The judge rose, and cleared his throat before he spoke.

"Leonard P—six months on probation. I give you in charge to this woman. Madam, you will report to this court every week."

The lad was released. He clung to the hand of the little woman in gray as a drowning man clings to a spar.

"Mother," he said, "we must thank him."

But the man with the kindly gray eyes, and the straight white collar of the priesthood had gone, leaving behind his "In Memoriam."

All Wrong.

"Where shall you spend your vacation?"

"In the country, where knighthood used to be in flower."

"I see. First merrie England, where Henry VIII prepared to meet King Francis on the field of the cloth of gold. You follow in his footsteps—you reach old Aquitaine, where sang the troubadours. 'Twas the home of fair Queen Eleanor. To win a smile from her many a prince broke a lance. Thence to Spain, the land of romance."

"No, no. You don't understand. I'm going to Indiana."

Remedy for Unrest.

The solemn man in the smoker said never a word for many a mile. Finally, however, he turned to his seat mate and remarked: "There is much unrest in the world just now, my friend; much unrest."

"You're right."

"I hope you are not unmindful of the fact that we each have a duty. We must combat this unrest."

"I'm doing my best," said the other man.

"As to how, my friend, as to how?"

"I manufacture mattresses."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Jasper Y. Lindley conducted morning exercises as Chaplain of the Hospital at 10:30 Sunday. He delivered a very instructive sermon, the subject of which was "Ways of Redemption." Mrs. Chas. Schwarz assisted with the song service.

A very enjoyable Valentine party was given for the benefit of the patients at the Veterans' Hospital by the Ladies of the American Legion Auxiliary of Kerrville last Friday night. Approximately 100 men were in attendance, and all were presented with tiny red and white cupid's souvenirs.

The group of men was divided into two teams which chose a captain each, for the ensuing games and contests. Tissue paper hats and toy trumpets were next distributed and each team was designated by its particular color of hat and trumpet.

The side wearing the red and white hats won the greater number of the contests during the evening and their captain, Miss Lucille Taylor, was awarded a prize.

Refreshments of spiced cake and white ice cream were served. The Band Cross Hall was decorated with strings of red hearts suspended from the four corners of the room to a decorative heart design in the center. A life-sized comic valentine faced the audience from the stage.

DR. G. M. MACDOUGALL RESIGNS AS RECTOR OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Will Serve Here Until After Easter When He Goes to Los Angeles, Cal., to Accept Rectorship of Church.

Rev. G. M. Macdougall has tendered his resignation as rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, it became known a short time ago.

A wide circle of friends learned with regret of Dr. Macdougall's resignation, for his four and a half years of work with the local church has netted excellent results in membership and other phases of church life.

The resigned pastor had received his discharge from the Canadian army but a short time before accepting the post here.

Probably the news of his leaving will affect more the many health seekers, shut-ins and hospital patients as much as the members of his own congregation.

Rev. Macdougall has also been active in Boy Scout circles, serving as Scoutmaster for the past several years.

He has also figured prominently in activities and entertainments at the Veterans' Hospital No. 93, where he made regular visits to the patients.

A majority of funerals of ex-servicemen in Kerrville have been conducted by Dr. Macdougall, acting in the capacity of Chaplain of Garrett Baker Post No. 13, American Legion.

CEDAR A DEPENDABLE SOURCE OF REVENUE IN HILL COUNTRY

Ready Market for Products of Large Brakes Gives Rise to Growing Industry With Steady Income.

One of the sources of revenue in the Hill Country that is but little noticed, and yet is steady and unflinching, is the cedar industry.

Back in the mountains are extensive brakes with age-old trees ranging from large to small whose value is as stable as sugar, coffee and flour.

Cedar in any size, shape or quantity always finds a ready sale and commands a price that makes it well worth while to owners of cedar brakes.

The firm of Mosel, Saenger & Co. has done as much perhaps toward the development of the cedar industry in the Hill Country as any other one agency.

Since the opening of the yard by Mosel, Saenger & Co., another yard has been opened and is now owned by Wilkens & Beckmann.

Beginning in a small way both yards have grown to proportions placing them among the larger business concerns.

Chiefly, cedar is handled in the rough or what is called round cedar. This includes posts, poles, blocks, piling and all the various sorts and sizes of round or rough cedar.

SOUTH AFRICAN STUDENT VISITS GOAT-SHEEP MEN

Junction Eagle, February 8th: N. G. Wessells, of Vinburg, Union of South Africa, a student whose expenses are paid by the Provincial Government, was here this week visiting with the goat and sheep men of this section.

of selling wool and mohair in this country were entirely different from those practiced in Africa.

Very few of the breeds that predominate in America are bred exclusively in his country.

While he did not wish to be quoted as comparing the general run of goats in the two countries, he stated that the African Province was very rigid, and all registrations are by inspection.

Mr. Wessells was authority for the statement that the majority of the wool and mohair produced in South Africa was marketed in the United States.
