The Methodist conference delighted the residents of Hagerman by returning to our community the Rev. J. W. Slade, who has been the well loved pastor of the local Methodist church for one year.

NUMBER BIG GAME HUNTERS IN HILLS

Hagerman, which contains more true sportsmen than any other town its size in America, this year upheld tradition by sending nearly forty-five of her loyal sons to the mountains in search of big game.

They are scattered all over the southeastern section of the state. One party is camped in Shelton's Pasture in the Sacramento, another is in Culp Canyon. Still a third is on the Bluewater, and others have ventured as far as the Black Range.

Forty-five big game licenses have been issued by Vedder Brown in the last few days before the season opened. Of this number at least half will be tagged on bucks if former records mean anything.

The Hagerman Men's club has issued invitations to all these big game hunters to attend the next meeting Tuesday night (at forty-five cents per plate) and the biggest liar in the bunch will receive the surprise of his life.

MEN'S CLUB

Owing to the fact that so many of the men were out deer hunting, the Men's club Tuesday night was just attended by twelve members. However, the men present enjoyed a fine feed which was prepared by the Methodist ladies.

FEDERAL FARM LOANS LIBERALIZED FOR THE WESTERN STATES

WASHINGTON—Liberalization of regulations for government loans on property in western United States on which the owners do not hold title to sub-surface rights was announced Sunday by the farm credit administration.

The announcement stated that the value of farm property may be affected for loan purposes by the absence of mineral rights, but if there is remaining value to the property upon which loans may be based, such value will be considered by the federal land banks in making bank commissioner's loans.

The new regulation was issued for the guidance of federal land banks in making loans in cases in which the applicants have no title to any of the minerals underlying the farm, or title to only part of the sub-surface rights.

Commissioner's loans are made from the $200,000,000 fund made available for refinancing farm debts. They are handled by the federal land banks as agents for the commissioner but are not land bank loans.

Land bank commissioner's loans are based not upon the minerals, but upon the agricultural value of the land. The result of mining operations, however, is such that the agricultural value of the surface land "may be seriously impaired or even destroyed by the sinking of shafts, drilling of wells and similar projects," the announcement stated.

"In cases where there are no substantial indications from geological reports, actual development or other available information that there will be mineral operations, the banks are instructed to make loans provided the applicant and his security are otherwise eligible," the announcement recited.

It stated further that in cases in which the mineral operations may impair, but not destroy, the surface value for agricultural purposes, loans may be made, taking into consideration the probable amount of damage to the surface for farming purposes.

Loans may also be made in which the applicant will be entitled to royalties, damages or other compensation from any mining operations on which a lien can be obtained as part of the security for the loan.

Mrs. Crosby Is Appointed County Treasurer

At a special meeting Monday morning at Roswell, the Chaves county board of commissioners, appointed Mrs. Harold E. Crosby as county treasurer to fill the vacancy created by the death of her husband.

State and National Briefs of the News

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt signed the code for the retail stores just before midnight Sunday night, with an exemption to the little store keepers in towns of 2,500 or less.

The act made it possible for the code to go into effect a week from today at the beginning of the new month.

It forbids sales at less than invoice cost.

The provisions apply to chain stores in small towns.

Six States to Vote on Repeal

WASHINGTON—Prohibition repeal votes in six states will hold the nation's attention in the off-year elections on November 7.

Administration officials confidently predict the Eighteenth Amendment will be stricken from the constitution on that date. Thirty-three of the necessary 36 states already have voted to ratify repeal.

The balloting will be in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Utah, North and South Carolina. Reports from those states indicate the anti-prohibitionists expect to carry all. But drys are making a strenuous fight and threaten some tight squeezes, especially in North Carolina and Ohio.

Actual repeal, depending upon the vote in these states, cannot come before December 5 or 6, dates set for their ratification conventions.

No doubt the governor will make a few enemies over the state by this move, but they won't be the taxpayers.

E. G. BENNETT

E. G. Bennett of Ogden, Utah, has been appointed one of the two directors of the Federal Deposit Corporation, which will be set up by January 1, 1934, to insure bank deposits of $2,500 or less. Mr. Bennett is vice president and general manager of the First Security Corporation of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming.

NAZARENE GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATED

Although comparatively young in years, the Church of the Nazarene, which Monday began the celebration of its Silver Jubilee Anniversary, has a record of outstanding achievement since the merger a quarter of a century ago at Pilot Point, Texas, of the Pentecostal Churches of America, representing the eastern section of the country, and the Holiness Church of Christ, representing the southern states, with the Nazarene church, which represented the west.

So, for five Sundays, Nazarene churches all over this country, as well as those in foreign lands, will have special programs. Monday was "rally day," culminating with an attendance of 200,000 in the Sunday schools, according to the Rev. C. W. Gardner, pastor of the Hagerman Church of the Nazarene.

After the union of the three bodies now comprising the Church of the Nazarene, the total membership amounted to 10,414, with 606 ministers and 228 churches. Now the membership is well over 100,000; there are 3,335 ministers and 1,861 churches.

The first Nazarene church was founded by the late Dr. Phineas F. Bresee at Los Angeles, California, in October, 1895. Dr. Bresee, born December 31, 1838 at Franklin, Delaware County, New York, was the son of a Huguenot refugee. His parents were devout Methodists and their teaching led him to seek the ministry when he was 17 years old. Dr. Bresee's first preaching was on a circuit in Iowa county.

From this small beginning the church grew until a general assembly held at Chicago in October, 1907, ratified the union of the Associated Pentecostal churches of America with the Nazarene church. But it was not until the next year that the Holiness Church of Christ came in. At both of these general assemblies, Dr. Bresee presided. The founder died in 1915.

At the services Sunday morning, the Rev. C. W. Gardner will outline the program of the jubilee anniversary. Each of the five Sundays will be devoted to some phase of religious work. November 5 will be Church Appreciation Day, with emphasis on the aims and development of the church. The program will close November 26, designated as "Thanksgiving Jubilee Anniversary," at which time a contribution of a dollar from each member will be used as a fund for foreign missions and other purposes.

URGES REDUCTION OF EXPENSES

Governor A. W. Hockenull last week sent out a letter to all state officials, heads of departments, institutions and boards, urging the reduction of expenses of all public service. Governor Hockenull laid special stress on the elimination of one item, that of traveling expenses connected with unnecessary trips, inside or outside of the state.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS

Captain H. W. Macdonald, world traveler and missionary, spoke at the Methodist church last night on missionary topics. Captain Macdonald exhibited some very interesting curios which he had collected in many parts of the world.

MRS. E. R. MCKINSTRY DIED SATURDAY A. M. AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Auda Barnes McKinstry, wife of Edmund McKinstry, one of Hagerman community's finest young women, died in St. Mary's hospital in Roswell Saturday morning after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Becoming ill Wednesday with a severe case of what was apparently influenza such as the 1918 epidemic, and which developed rapidly into pneumonia, her sickness was very brief.

Mrs. McKinstry was born in Skedee, Oklahoma, March 12, 1909. She came with her parents when thirteen years of age to Dexter where she lived until her marriage with Edmund R. McKinstry September 8, 1927. Since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. McKinstry have made their home in Hagerman.

Always trusting, ever patient, and a true Christian—her church work was one of her greatest privileges, she made friends of all she met. Her motto: "Never any task too hard to try" was characteristic of her entire life. The memory of Auda Barnes McKinstry will live on in the memory of her friends here and in Dexter.

Besides her husband, Mrs. McKinstry leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Barnes of Hagerman, a sister, Ava Lee, of the New Mexico Normal University at Las Vegas and a host of other relatives. Relatives who came from a distance to be present at the funeral services were: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Russell, of Skedee, Oklahoma, Mrs. Celeste Collins and son Wayne of Pawnee, Oklahoma, and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barnes of Los Angeles, California.

Funeral services were held in the Methodist church with Rev. J. W. Slade officiating. Burial was in Hagerman cemetery with Mason Funeral Home in charge.

THE COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

Cotton classed this week from Arizona, New Mexico, California and Texas, district 1, showed an increase in the proportion of strict middling extra white; a slight decrease in good middling, and a sharp increase in spotted cotton, and longer increased very markedly over the previous week. With the exception of California, the proportion classed as 1-1/8 inches and longer was more than double that of last week.

For New Mexico, the proportion of cotton strict middling and better was only slightly less than last week, the percentage being 87.8 and 92.0 respectively. Good middling fell off sharply but strict middling increased. Spotted cotton increased from 7.3 to 10.3 this week. The proportion of cotton classed as 1-1/8 inches and longer increased from 11.2 per cent to 24.9 per cent. To date 94 per cent has been classed as strict middling and better and about 95 per cent as 1 inch and longer.

HUNTING ACCIDENT REPORTED TUESDAY

SILVER CITY—One man was accidentally shot and wounded severely Tuesday as hundreds of hunters moved into the Black Range and other mountains of southwestern New Mexico in preparation for the opening of the state's deer season at dawn Wednesday.

He was K. M. Stewart, locomotive engineer for the Nevada Consolidated Copper company at Santa Rita, who was accidentally shot in the abdomen with a .22 calibre rifle.

Stewart was driving his car into the area when, as he shifted gears on a hill, the rifle was accidentally struck and discharged by the gear shift rod. A hunting partner took the wheel of the car and rushed him to a Santa Rita hospital where they arrived at 10:30 p. m. about two and a half hours after the accident. Doctors did not immediately determine what chances Stewart had of recovery.

W. A. Losey, Jack Sweatt, Ed Lane, J. T. West, Edwin Lane, Jr., F. L. Mehloph N. S. West, Jim McKinstry and Herbert Williams, left Monday for Shelton's Pasture in the Sacramento after bucks.

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

HUNTERS WARNED ABOUT C C C CAMPS

The New Mexico Game Department calls attention to the fact that there are located within the forest lands of New Mexico a total of 18 C C C camps, with 100 or more men and officers in each camp.

Many of these camps are located adjacent to, or within the heart of some of our principal hunting areas, said Elliott S. Barker, state warden, in an interview.

Men and officers have a deal of leisure time and will make excursions individually or in groups considerable distances from the camps, and with a large number of hunters in the vicinity it is feared that some unfortunate accidents may occur during the big game season.

Hunters are requested not to hunt in the vicinity of these camps, said Barker, and he requests every hunter to use extraordinary caution while in the vicinity of these camps this season to be sure that he is not shooting at a man.

It is shown, said Barker, that there is one or more deaths in each year from accidental shootings during the big game season. Let's try to get this year with no accidents, and use special precaution when in the vicinity of all C C C camps. The cooperation of all hunters will be greatly appreciated by the game department.

EDUCATIONAL WEEK NOVEMBER 6 TO 12

The thirteenth annual observance of American Education Week will be held November 6-12. This annual celebration is observed in thousands of communities throughout the nation. Its purpose is to focus the attention of the people upon the needs, aims, and achievements of their schools, and to encourage the participation of all citizens in plans to improve education. The schools belong to the people. In some foreign countries, parents can not attend the schools and observe their children at work without special permits which are frequently hard to obtain. In the United States the school doors are always open to parents and other interested citizens. During American Education Week the public is asked to help plan the objectives of education and appraise its results.

The invitation to visit the schools is especially extended during Education Week. People are urged to participate in decisions regarding the aims and results of education. What is taught to the children in our schools soon greatly affects American life. All our educational institutions help mold the future. Shaping the future is as important a privilege in a democracy as is control of the present. Popular government can not long endure where today is of great concern and tomorrow is left to take care of itself. Popular control of the future is an American right and opportunity. American Education Week was created to make that opportunity available. Visit your schools during American Education Week, November 6-12.

Blanket Makers in Caste

In a rural district of Meerut, India, there are 55,000 sheep, which yield 51,000 pounds of wool for blanket weaving. Caste plays a part there, says the British Empire Chamber of Commerce Magazine, and one may see Gadaras or Hindu shepherds tending these sheep while Mohammedan kamalas carry on the actual manufacture of the blankets. When the industry enjoyed a boom, these workers were assisted by Julhas, who are otherwise engaged in cotton or silk weaving.

Kismet—Fate

In Arabic the word kismet is "kismet" and means fate. This word was used by Mohammed when he preached in the Koran the duty of submission to all that God had ordained. He believed that a man's every action was predestined, yet he never suggested the folly of struggling against an adverse doom. The doctrine of Kismet has prompted Mohammedans to utmost heroism and fortitude in the cause of their religion.

Ruskin's Philosophy

A good story is told of one of Ruskin's disciples who, having read the master's diatribes against "foul and filthy railways," resolved to prove his belief by walking from his home to Ruskin's, a matter of many miles. When he reached the master's presence, very dusty and very proud, he breathlessly explained what he had done. "Young man," said Ruskin, "abuse railways, but use them."

Black Bear Likes Ants

The black bear, though relishing a great variety of things as food, from centipedes to skunk cabbage roots and from toads and field mice to honey, is especially fond of ants. His method of obtaining these choice morsels is to run his paw down into an anthill and leave it there until the ants swarm up on it where he can lick them up.

Harbor Pollution

A report on harbor pollution by oil from passing liners states that a film extends out over the ocean for 500 miles from both New York and Cherbourg. In some areas the oil is so thick and gummy that numerous birds have been stuck in it—and have starved to death.—Collier's Magazine.

COSTLY STUMP

In the long run it pays to get stumps and stones out of the fields so that it will be possible to operate machines more efficiently, says George R. After the blast he found 15 plow points stuck in that stump and in the roots around it.—Missouri Farmer.

$243,000 FOR FORT STANTON

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The treasury department has advertised for bids for additional buildings at the Fort Stanton, New Mexico, Marine hospital, the cost being limited to $243,000. Bids will be opened here on November 20.

Reports recently were to the effect that Fort Stanton was to be abandoned and the patients were to be transferred to the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Fort Bayard, New Mexico. Announcement of planned expenditure of nearly a quarter million dollars at the Lincoln county post is sufficient refutation of these reports.

Japan an Age-Old Empire of Countless Paradoxes

Many people think of Japan in terms of gayly painted fans, picturesque structures with upturned eaves, jiririkishas, vivid temples and the everlasting natural gorgeousness of Mount Fuji.

Japan is an empire of paradoxes. It is ancient and modern. It is tiny and tremendous. It is carefree yet grimly determined. It is a land of modern factories, of tea rooms and telephones, of Tenth Century courtesy and latter day bustle and efficiency.

The main streets of Japan's cities may be named Showadori, Marunouchi, Ginza, Moto-machi. They are flanked with smart shops—most of them executed in the "modern style of architecture with artistically arrayed merchandise."

Restaurants and hotels, not to be outdone, have sent corps of men to Paris, London, Vienna and Rome to study, improve upon and combine with Japanese ingenuity the gustatory delights of the western world.

Out from Tokyo, the excellent government railway lines reach in all directions. And here again the Japanese have scored a triumph. English style locomotives draw American type pullmans that are built with every conceivable thought for western comfort.

English has become the second language with the Japanese—on trains, ships or wherever travelers gather, for English is a compulsory course in all Japanese middle schools and most colleges.

Waldseueller Map First to Bear America's Name

Map-making received a new impetus with the discovery of America. Each returned explorer, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, brought tales of a new found land which caused many changes and alterations. And until the time of Mercator—in the Sixteenth century—all maps were embellished with all sorts of fantastic creatures that were supposed to inhabit the little known world. Here were to be found men with dog's heads; men with no heads at all but with eyes, nose and mouth implanted in their chests; men who used one big foot for an umbrella; cows with wings; roosters as big as horses, Noah's Ark with dormer windows. Mercator broke with such traditions and drew a world chart on the "Mercator Projection" which in modified form is still in use today.

There was the Waldseueller map of 1507, the first to bear the name of America. It was lost for centuries until discovered in a German library in 1901 by an Austrian professor. And then there was Ortelius, whose "Theater of the World" ran into thirty-three editions, starting in 1570. It is regarded as the parent of the modern Atlas.

Bats Eat Many Insects

Even if it didn't have the Alamo, San Antonio would be famous as the only city in the world with a municipal bat roost, notes a writer in the Detroit News. Since it towers 73 feet in the air, and has to be cleaned occasionally, life isn't all cakes and ale for the bat boy. The only reason bats are officially welcomed to this progressive Texas municipality is that they rid the summer air of mosquitoes and night-flying insects. Less forward-looking communities in that section calculate as how they'd as leave have mosquitoes and night-flying insects as bats.

It has been scientifically estimated that a good Mexican free-tailed bat can eat three times his own weight in insects in one night.

SOUTHEASTERN N. M. GRAZING ASS'N HAS MEET AT ROSWELL

Approval of by-laws, confirmation of the board of directors and members of the executive committee and the acquisition of about 20 new members featured the meeting of stockmen of the Southeastern New Mexico Grazing Association at Roswell Friday afternoon.

The meeting was held in the Chavez courtroom of the district court in the courthouse, with Burton C. Mossman presiding.

Attending stockmen ratified the petition which will be sent to Secretary of the Interior Ickes asking for recognition of the association and the creation of the grazing district. The by-laws were read by Harold Hurd, secretary-treasurer of the association, and adopted by a unanimous vote.

The majority of those present paid their assessment of one-tenth of one per cent per acre of grazing lands held by them which is to be used for expenses of the organization.

Only a few steps now remain for putting the association and the grazing district into operation. A questionnaire will be sent next week to all members asking for the approximate number of acres of land which they hold, private land, public domain, leased land and state land. When this information is gathered the petition will be sent to Ickes asking for recognition of the organization and the creation of the grazing district.

It is said that opinion in Washington is very favorable to the recognition of the association and stockmen are hoping that approval will be forthcoming shortly.

The creation of the grazing district will mean that the fence order which has caused so much antagonism in the ranks of the stockmen will not be effective, and the fences in the land taken in by the grazing district will not be torn down.

The members of the board of directors confirmed at the meeting were: Burton C. Mossman, J. B. Armstrong, A. E. Ingham, Joe Lane, R. C. Worswick and J. R. Cauhoppe, all of Roswell; Frank Joyce, John Lusk and W. H. Merchant, all of Carlsbad; Joe Clements of Hope, R. D. Lee of Lovington, and J. H. McCamant of Corona.

Members of the executive committee confirmed were: Lane, Merchant, Lusk, Ingham, Joyce and Armstrong.

GIRL SWIMS CHANNEL $2.50 PER GALLON LIQUOR TAX PLAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—The government's chant that Alcatraz Island, in San Francisco bay, is to be made the permanent abiding place of desperate criminals because it is escape proof, was shown not to be escape proof by a 17-year-old girl, weighing only 112 pounds—Miss Babe Scott.

The girl swam from the island to the mainland in 47 minutes. A flood tide created currents more difficult to master than usual. But Babe said: "I could jump in and swim right back."

Alcatraz was designated recently as a federal prison for hardened criminals. It has been a military prison since the Civil war. No prisoner has escaped by swimming.

Babe is the daughter of Staff Sergeant George Scott, stationed at Alcatraz.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, distaste, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run you down.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and they don't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all. Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. Bid at drug stores. Refuse "something just as good," for it may grip, loosen teeth or acid stomach. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933, C.M. Co.

Love and Salesmanship

By FRANCES COWLES

JUSTINE CARR was certainly not made of the stuff whereof good salesmanship is compounded. But it was absolutely necessary for her to work that summer, and the only job available that promised more than a bare living was this job of taking orders for women's gingham dresses. It was in the real country where she got most orders, but there she had to walk endlessly to get to the next house. Really, she ought to have had a flivver.

One very hot day in June she was "doing" the country section near Melrose. She had spent a day and a half without a single order and she had to pay for a night's lodging in Melrose besides. Justine wore a fresh pink frock herself. One of the sort that sold for $2.98. She looked so fresh and pretty in that inexpensive dress that women seemed to want to buy one like it. But the woman at the last farmhouse had slammed the door in her face, and she had walked a good half mile to the next house. She rang an old-fashioned doorbell. After waiting quite a while the door was opened and there appeared a very warm-looking young man, holding a frying pan in one hand and a broom under his arm.

"Good morning," said Justine, using the most ingratiating tone of voice. "May I have just a word with your wife?"

"You could if I had one," said the young man bluntly.

"I should have known," said Justine—"then the lady of the house."

"The lady of the house, if that's what you call her, has gone to Europe. Personally, I think she was no lady."

"Maybe there's some other lady here," purred Justine. "You see, I'm taking orders for gingham dresses. This is one I'm wearing—it costs only $2.98."

The young man whistled. "Gee," he said, "it looks like a hundred dollars to me. But I'm sorry there isn't a lady or a woman in the whole house."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Justine, throwing aside her suave manner. "About how far is it to the next house in that direction?" She waved her hand toward the dusty road beyond. Meanwhile she sat down her portmanteau and mopped her brow with a dainty handkerchief.

"About a mile," said the young man. "You don't mean you're taking it on foot? Great Scott!"

"Oh, I don't mind the walk—only no one seems to want to order any dresses."

"That certainly is a fine dress you're wearing," he said, and then: "Say, it occurs to me that maybe I might order some—I know my sister would like them. You come on in and get a drink of ice water."

"You see, my sister wanted to go abroad with her husband," the young man called from the kitchen while he was getting the water, and then resumed as he came in the living room, "and she asked me to come out and hold the house down. She had a cook and another girl—said they had promised to stay. You see, there are three children. Well, I was going to spend three months writing a survey of an expedition I took in South America last winter. I thought I could do my work here as well as anywhere. Well, I managed all right until last week. Then the girls had a row with each other and it ended by their both leaving. They hate it off here in the country. I can't get anyone to come out and help me for love or money. I'm doing all the work."

There was a pause and then the young man and Justine spoke at once, and each said, "I was thinking—" Peter said that he was thinking that he could get away long enough to drive Justine up to the next farmhouse. It was a shame to think of her walking on such a day; and Justine said with some confusion that she was thinking that if Peter really did need a woman to work for him she would be willing to take the position. "I can cook and wash dishes and look after the children," she said.

So Justine stayed. She just took off her hat and went out into the kitchen, found an apron and began washing dishes. Later she sent home for a few belongings. Peter insisted on paying her the salary that had been left for the two maids who had departed—because as a matter of fact she was doing as much as they both had done—and Peter was left undisturbed to work on his survey. Only sometimes he chose to go into the kitchen and dry dishes for Justine. One day he told her he loved her. He finished drying a plate and then said he wanted to marry her. Justine went on washing dishes. Then he put down the dish and pulled her away with her hands all covered with soap suds and dripping with water, and held her in his arms.

"But just think what a shock it would be to your sister to come home and find that you'd got engaged to the cook!"

"Well, then, let's spare their feelings. Let's get married—and when they get home I'll just say that I got married and my wife came home to help hold the house down."

Walacheren Natives Are Happy as They Dream On

An island the Dutch wrested from the sea remains as one of its prized sections. Long before Hendrik Hudson, some 320 years ago, set out on his voyage to the western world the Dutch were extending their national shores by fighting the sea, and Walcheren stands as part of the result of their efforts.

Life in Walcheren lets the rest of the world go by willingly and freely. Walcheren's natives are content to live in their dreamy way—wooden shoes, old Dutch customs and dress, windmills, ancient churches and plenty of cheese.

There is no night-life gayety in Walcheren. To be sure, but there's a little bit of bad in every good little girl, and so, while the signs of the beach say "Verboden te Baden" (forbidden to bathe), the girls roll up their dresses and go wading. But lipsticks and powder are still foreign things to them, and as they congregate outside their churches Sunday mornings they all have healthy, rosy complexions, but not bought and paid for in a drug store.

Guardian of Mankind

Akbar, famed Mongolian emperor, won the title of Guardian of Mankind, because of the benevolence of his rule and at the same time the devoted zeal in which he sought to regain lost sections of the once vast empire which had broken away under long periods of misrule before Akbar ascended the throne. He devoted himself to the development of commerce with the lost provinces until the ties of business interest were so great the further tie of political interest was easily accomplished.

During his reign, he fostered religious tolerance among the many conflicting religions of Mongolia and he established and developed a school system which went far toward earning him his title of guardian. For many generations after his death in 1605 he was held up as a model of rulers throughout India and other portions of Asia.

Briton Became Pope

Adrian, the name chosen by six popes, was the name of the only British churchman to become head of the Roman Catholic church. Adrian IV was the son of a poor English family named Breakspere, he being baptized Nicholas. Seeking his fortune in Paris, he became an excellent and gifted student, noted for his zeal and learning. He entered the priesthood and eventually became an abbot. His next step upward was to the Sacred college, and in 1154, he became pope. He was vigorous in his religious leadership and strict in upholding all the power and authority which his holy office gave to him. He died in 1159.

Worm-Catching Plants

Persons who may have thought that ferocious plants which capture and devour animals exist only in stories and the minds of their authors will be interested in a report by an official of the bureau of plant industry. These plants and their victims, he says, are so small as to be seen only through microscopes. They form a jungle from which they extend their feelers or limbs to capture the small worm-like animals as they pass along. The plant then releases a chemical strong enough to quickly dispose of the unlucky prisoner.

The Chihuahua Dog

One prominent dog authority has said that there is no other dog known to man that has had so much nonsense and ignorant misconception written about it than the Chihuahua. It was supposed to have been the product of cross breeding between various wild animals, including the Mexican squirrel, but this is all fallacy.

"Breeches Bible" First Printed in Roman Type

The "Breeches Bible," more properly known as the Geneva Bible, was an immensely popular English version which was the immediate predecessor of King James, or Authorized Version, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

During the reign of Queen Mary (1553-58), the Scriptures were proscribed, and many English Protestant leaders fled to the continent. A number settled in Geneva, Switzerland, and there several undertook a new revision of the Bible in English, which they published in Geneva in 1560. It was chiefly the work of William Whittingham, assisted by Anthony Gilby and Thomas Sampson.

The Geneva Bible was novel in several respects. It was the first English Bible to be printed in roman type instead of the old black letters. The first in which the chapters were divided into verses; and the first in which italics were used for explanatory and connective words and phrases.

A peculiarity of text in the rendering of Gen. 3:7, gave it the popular name of the "Breeches Bible." Its rendition is "The eyes of them both were opened . . . and they sewed figge-tree leaves together, and made themselves 'breeches.'" This reading occurs in every edition of the Geneva Bible, but is not in any other version.

FRENCH CABINET GOES OUT

PARIS—The French cabinet headed by Premier Daladier was overthrown by a vote of 329 to 241 in the chamber of deputies early Tuesday and its members will resign.

Premier Daladier went down to defeat fighting to the last for a balanced budget to save the franc. He immediately prepared his resignation.

The chamber threw the ministry out, unmoved by Daladier's impassioned warning that failure to strike a budgetary balance would mean inflation was inevitable "within five or six weeks."

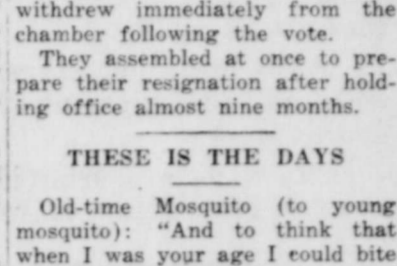

The deputies refused Daladier's proposal to cut the salaries of government functionaries.

The members of the cabinet withdrew immediately from the chamber following the vote.

They assembled at once to prepare their resignation after holding office almost nine months.

Cotton became active this week following the president's announcement that he would establish a market to buy and sell gold both at home and abroad. Such action had become almost necessary to keep our gold at home and it will now be possible to regulate commodities values by pricing gold. Many have for a long time favored making our dollar flexible rather than having such wide fluctuations in the values of commodities. This is a step in the right direction. The ten cent loan plan can have but little effect on the market beyond the ten cent line and if it should not meet with very general cooperation would not even have any sustaining effect. At present it is slightly bullish.

A larger report is expected next November 8th, and it will tax cotton heavily to stay above ten cents. Ultimately however, the administration is determined to raise values, "if not one way then another." "It will be done," says President Roosevelt.

Use for Elder Stalks

Elderberry is named Sambucus from the Greek name of an ancient stringed instrument, probably of Semitic origin, a harp with cords of different substances and lengths, but very unlike our modern harps, but made of the elder stalks. Some were small, like the Welsh harp, and others powerful and as big as the modern instrument. The sambuca was, in Greece, female harpists who mostly came from Egypt or from Asia and who played standing or sitting. Greek dancing girls who swayed to the music of the sambuca were of indifferent morals, often, but always beautiful. They swathed their bodies in a square white cloth which was held by fingertips.

Rose of Jericho

This annual, found in northern Africa, Syria and Arabia, acts strangely when the pods begin to ripen at the approach of dry weather. The branches drop their leaves and curl inward, appearing like dead twigs. When completely ripe it looks like a ball of wicker work on a short stem. The roots die, and the apparently dead ball is carried to a lake or other water, or becomes wedged somewhere till a rain comes. Then the dried ball unbends, the branches resume their proper place, and the pods open and discharge their seeds miles from the place of original growth.

The "Tow Bug"

The "tow bug" is also known as the cigarette beetle, and is found in stored tobacco and other stored products, such as the tow in over-stuffed furniture. The larva is a white, fleshy, tiny grub. The adult is one-sixteenth of an inch long, brownish, its head bent back under its thorax. The larvae feed here and there through the food substance, and the beetles make small round holes in emerging. There are several generations annually under suitable conditions.

Strange Underground River

An underground river flows in South Australia. Nobody seems to know its source or outlet. At the farthest point explored there was no diminution in the size of the passage or the depth of the water, which flowed as if it had some clear outlet. Years ago a canoe was lowered into the river and its course was followed for some distance.

Swing Your Partner

The list of national dances is large, but the most representative are the seguidilla, cachucha, fandango and bolero of Spain; the tarantella, the saltarello and the forlana of Italy; the mazurka and the polonaise of Poland; the caicna of Russia; the reel and highland fling of Scotland, and the jig in Ireland and Wales.

Don't Ring Knock

A doorbell that rings only after a coin is inserted in the slot is used throughout Holland to discourage canvassers and peddlers and to make them repay the housewife for her time and trouble. Coins used by friends, of course, are returned.—Collier's Magazine.

HEALTH COLUMN

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Earp, Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health.

"Better is a dry morsel and quietness therewith than a house full of feasting with strife." Many people blame the food they have eaten when they should really blame the state of mind they were in when they ate it.

Physiologists have proved that the digestive organs are easily and seriously disturbed by emotional states, such as worry, fear, anger and grief. The digestive juices are not secreted, the normal movements of the stomach and intestines cease or are changed into spastic contractions that give us the "cramps."

In many cases quietness with our meals and after them would be more effective than potions or pills. It is a notable fact that the number of deaths from gastric ulcer has increased by 25 per cent since the beginning of the depression.

For some men a meal in company is a good thing because it diverts their minds from the cares of business. Others find solitude a relief. The important thing is that the mind should be at rest. This is of special importance in diseases such as tuberculosis, which affect nutrition. Worry kills appetite as well as spoiling the digestion.

Children should not be allowed to get excited at meal times, nor should they be badgered or browbeaten. Neither child nor adult should eat while he is emotionally upset. It is far better to get over the disturbance and join in happily in the next meal.

TO STOP CHISELERS SAYS SEC. ICKES IN SPEECH TO OIL MEN

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, administrator of the oil industry's NRA code, promised the oil men yesterday at Chicago that "cheating and chiselling" would be stopped.

"The administration means business," secretary Ickes told 1,000 leaders of the industry, in a speech before the American Petroleum Institute's convention.

Unless the government's production orders, setting the amount each state can produce, were carried out, said Secretary Ickes, he would invoke the drastic powers given him by the oil code. The big stick in the code bag is government licensing. The secretary did not specifically refer to this.

"I am informed that there is still too much oil being produced," he said. "Unless production is restricted to the figures permitted by my last order, I intend to exercise the drastic powers given me by the oil code."

"If necessary, I will invoke these extraordinary powers on November 1, next year. Fair notice has been given that when it puts a limit on the crude oil to be produced the administration means business."

Some of his hearers, among them Louis Titus, Washington attorney and advisor to the code authorities, expressed belief that the first of the "extraordinary powers" Secretary Ickes might invoke would be the power to cross state lines, where states themselves have failed to carry out his production orders, and issue quotas to the individual fields himself.

"I regret to say that in spite of the fair attitude of the government with respect to production, there has been some cheating," Ickes said.

Cotton became active this week following the president's announcement that he would establish a market to buy and sell gold both at home and abroad. Such action had become almost necessary to keep our gold at home and it will now be possible to regulate commodities values by pricing gold. Many have for a long time favored making our dollar flexible rather than having such wide fluctuations in the values of commodities. This is a step in the right direction. The ten cent loan plan can have but little effect on the market beyond the ten cent line and if it should not meet with very general cooperation would not even have any sustaining effect. At present it is slightly bullish.

A larger report is expected next November 8th, and it will tax cotton heavily to stay above ten cents. Ultimately however, the administration is determined to raise values, "if not one way then another." "It will be done," says President Roosevelt.

Use for Elder Stalks

Elderberry is named Sambucus from the Greek name of an ancient stringed instrument, probably of Semitic origin, a harp with cords of different substances and lengths, but very unlike our modern harps, but made of the elder stalks. Some were small, like the Welsh harp, and others powerful and as big as the modern instrument. The sambuca were, in Greece, female harpists who mostly came from Egypt or from Asia and who played standing or sitting. Greek dancing girls who swayed to the music of the sambuca were of indifferent morals, often, but always beautiful. They swathed their bodies in a square white cloth which was held by fingertips.

Rose of Jericho

This annual, found in northern Africa, Syria and Arabia, acts strangely when the pods begin to ripen at the approach of dry weather. The branches drop their leaves and curl inward, appearing like dead twigs. When completely ripe it looks like a ball of wicker work on a short stem. The roots die, and the apparently dead ball is carried to a lake or other water, or becomes wedged somewhere till a rain comes. Then the dried ball unbends, the branches resume their proper place, and the pods open and discharge their seeds miles from the place of original growth.

The "Tow Bug"

The "tow bug" is also known as the cigarette beetle, and is found in stored tobacco and other stored products, such as the tow in over-stuffed furniture. The larva is a white, fleshy, tiny grub. The adult is one-sixteenth of an inch long, brownish, its head bent under its thorax. The larvae feed here and there through the food substance, and the beetles make small round holes in emerging. There are several generations annually under suitable conditions.

Strange Underground River

An underground river flows in South Australia. Nobody seems to know its source or outlet. At the farthest point explored there was no diminution in the size of the passage or the depth of the water, which flowed as if it had some clear outlet. Years ago a canoe was lowered into the river and its course was followed for some distance.

Swing Your Partner

The list of national dances is large, but the most representative are the seguidilla, cachucha, fandango and bolero of Spain; the tarantella, the saltarello and the forlana of Italy; the mazurka and the polonaise of Poland; the calca of Russia; the reel and highland fling of Scotland, and the jig in Ireland and Wales.
