PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN.

The Carrizozo public schools opened Monday, with four teachers at their desks. The enrollment went beyond 200, and this has been considerably increased during the week.

E. B. Chapman is principal, and will have charge of the upper grades and the high school department. Miss Elsie Mountz handles the intermediate grades, Mrs. Elizabeth Gumm the primary, while Miss Anne Hensler conducts the school south of the railroad.

The enrollment is so large that the board finds it necessary to employ a fifth teacher, and hopes by next week to lighten the burden of the teachers in the present state of congestion. The two lower rooms in the main building are now so densely packed that floor space is at a premium and desks for all is out of the question.

Classes in the high school work have been organized by Prof. Chapman, and the enrollment in this department is expected to increase rapidly. This will be the only high school in the county, and it is believed that this department will prove of great interest throughout the county.

Prof. Chapman is a graduate of Mississippi College, Clinton, Mississippi, has taught for ten years in that state, and brings the best of references. He is a gentleman of attainments, is possessed of energy and an ambition to succeed; therefore, we see no reason why a high school should not be built up here that will be a pride to all.

Miss Mountz and Mrs. Gumm are not new in the schools of Carrizozo, and their re-employment is sufficient evidence of past satisfaction. Miss Hensler is teaching her first school here, but her references and general knowledge, combined with her experience in teaching, induce the belief that her department will be satisfactorily conducted.

Do not forget that, in order to have a successful school, teacher and pupil must work in harmony, and both require the undivided support of the patron. Let us all pull together for a successful term, a long term, and let us lay the foundation of Carrizozo's future in the upbuilding of a magnificent school.

COURT WILL BE HELD AT CARRIZOZO.

Pursuant to call, the citizens of the town met last Saturday night to hear the report of the committee, which had been appointed at a previous meeting to secure a building in which to hold the next term of the district court in this county. The committee made a report of its investigations, announcing that it had three places under consideration, viz: the Skinner building, the Bank building and the Public School building, and recommended that all three propositions be placed before the judge. The report of the committee was duly adopted, and the committee was instructed to proceed to Alamogordo and present the different locations for the consideration of the judge.

The question of the care of the prisoners arising, the suggestion was made that the Skating Rink might be secured for this purpose. After some discussion, a motion was adopted authorizing the committee to include the Rink in the proposition.

The committee left Monday morning for Alamogordo, but before going had received assurances from Judge Cooley that court would be held in Carrizozo. Arriving at Alamogordo, the committee met the judge, and went over the propositions it had to offer. Judge Cooley indicated a preference for the Skinner building or the Bank building, and notices were accordingly posted on these buildings.

The jail question was disposed of by the judge declaring that he would take this matter up with Sheriff Stevens; thus relieving the committee and the citizens of this responsibility.

The venires will be drawn at Alamogordo October 2, and the term of court will begin here the first day of November. Judge Cooley anticipates a three weeks' term of court, and feels that, even with that length of term, owing to the long interval between courts, it will require active work to dispose of the heavy docket.

THE ROAD SURVEY IN PROGRESS.

Assistant Territorial Engineer Lewis, who is in charge of the the corps surveying the Roswell-Carrizozo auto and wagon road, has completed the survey from Roswell to Lincoln, and expects to reach Carrizozo within two weeks, soon after which the actual work of grading will begin. The greatest obstacle to the survey, so far encountered, was what is known as the "Big Hill," below Picacho, and the survey cut that down to a nine per cent grade.

From Lincoln this way the work of the surveyors will be light until they reach the Nogal Hill, about twelve miles east of Carrizozo, and there the skill of the engineer will again be put to the test. That hill has been a terror to teamsters since Adam was a boy. However, by circling and bridging it is believed they will get around or over the hill with a tolerable grade, and lessen the distance considerably. The survey from Nogal to this point presents no difficulties to the engineer, and the survey, no doubt, will follow the present road.

The construction of this road means a great deal to Lincoln county, in that it will make more accessible points that are far apart and difficult to reach, and at the same time arouse a public spirit throughout the county that will result in a general building of good roads. The building of this road will require quite an outlay of money, but the territory will aid, either by convict labor, by an appropriation or by both. It is estimated that eight months will come and go before the work is completed.

MASONIC MEETING.

The regular communication of Carrizozo Lodge A. F. & A. M. will be held at the Masonic hall, tomorrow night, Sept. 25th, at 7:30 o'clock. Work in the first and second degrees. As this will be our last communication under the existing dispensation, all members are requested to be present, as business of much importance will be brought up. Visiting Masons cordially invited.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE STORK.

Sunday morning at an early hour, the proverbial stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland, and quietly deposited a nine-pound baby girl. It is said to be a cute little bit of humanity, and has been christened Helen Frances, in honor of relatives. The little girlie has begun to enjoy life, and papa and mama are well and happy. Congratulations to all, and may the little one grow to womanhood in the new county seat of Carrizozo, and may she and it grow until they become the fairest and best in the whole land of the mañana.

LINCOLN LOCALS.

J. G. Riggle will move his family from Capitan to Lincoln next week.

Postoffice Inspector Crawford was checking up the local office this week.

Probate Judge Lucero was in town this week attending to some probate business.

H. O. Hunt carried two prisoners from Carrizozo Saturday, and returned Monday morning.

Attorney Sherry of Alamogordo was transacting legal business at the clerk's office Monday.

A force of carpenters is at work shingling several business houses this week, among them the Aragon house and the Exchange buildings.

Sheriff C. A. Stevens and wife, and County Treasurer Watson and wife took a spin in an auto to the surveying camp near Hondo last Sunday.

The Most Rev. Pitival, archbishop of Santa Fe reached town Saturday afternoon. On Sunday he administered the sacrament of Confirmation to a large number of children at the church. About 500 people attended the service.

Miss Mary Walter has received her commission as postmistress of Lincoln, and will assume the duties of her office on the first of October. The new postoffice, located east of the hotel, is being renovated, and new fixtures have been ordered, which are expected to arrive in a few days.

Deputy Territorial Engineer Lewis, with four assistants, has pitched tent on the courthouse lawn. They are engaged in the survey of the Roswell-Carrizozo road and expect to be Carrizozo in about two weeks. Sheriff C. A. Stevens arranged a social in their honor Monday night at which quite a good crowd was present and a few hours spent in dancing.

ENOCH ARDEN WHO RETURNS TO SAVE

REAPPEARS WHEN WIFE OF YEARS AGO IS DEPRIVED OF SECOND HUSBAND.

KEEPS SILENT FOR 20 YEARS

John Taggart, Former Pastor, Wandered in Strange Lands, But Never Lost Trace of the Woman He Loved.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—Presumably dead for 20 years, Rev. John Taggart, at one time pastor of a Methodist Protestant church at Glen Lyon, this county, who has with silent resignation endured the role of an Enoch Arden for a greater part of that time, has now reappeared just in time to save the wife of his youth from poverty. Her second husband, whom she married after she was convinced that Taggart had perished in the Johnstown flood, is in jail in consequence of a domestic crime that has completely estranged him from his family. Therefore, Taggart appears as a helper and a savior, to take back the wife of his youth and to provide for her and her children by her second marriage.

Taggart's history is a strange one, and not the least interesting feature of it is the fact that for years, he has known that his wife was married again; yet he has been silent and has always managed, no matter how far away he was, to somehow keep in touch with affairs here.

Why Taggart left this section has long been a mystery, and it is still unexplained. He was a prominent pulpit orator and a great favorite with the Glen Lyons flock. Handsome and ambitious, he seemed destined for a high church career. He fell in love with Miss Eliza Ivey, one of the prettiest girls in Bloomsburg, and they were married. Though they were devoted lovers their romance was in some way an unhappy one. A great deal of gossip arose regarding it, and about the time their little son Elmer was born the young minister disappeared. He says that at that time he had to bear a burden of trouble that was too much for him, and he left home to escape it. Afterward he resolved to return and fight out his troubles, but when he was about to start back he learned that the bride he had left was already the wife of another man, John Van Horn. His wife had heard that he had perished in the Johnstown flood and mourned him as dead and had then married again.

Taggart resolved not to complicate matters. Remorseful over his abandonment of his family, he felt that he had no right to return and make new trouble. Therefore he went to the far west and became a wanderer upon the face of the earth.

Some time ago, how he will not tell, he learned that serious domestic trouble had arisen with the result that John Van Horn, his wife's second husband, had been sent to Columbia county jail to serve a sentence for a serious crime, and that his wife and children were in precarious circumstances.

The sequel was the appearance recently of Taggart at the Van Horn home, about three miles from this place. With her were Taggart's son, Elmer, and her two children by her second marriage. He immediately proposed that his wife and her children should leave this section and go with him to the west, there to start life anew. This the woman agreed to do.

OFFICER CATCHES CHILD FALLING FROM WINDOW

HORRIFIED MOTHER RUSHES WILDLY FROM BUILDING TO FIND HER CHILD SAFE.

Philadelphia.—Caught by Policeman Jackson of the Third and Fairmount avenue police station as he fell from the second-story window of his home in Phillip street, three-year-old Walter Smith is back again in his mother's living room as sound as a dollar and as happy as a three-year-old boy can be.

Walter was in a fine good humor and his mother had her hands full trying to restrain young hopeful.

For a single moment the mother's back was turned. She heard a pleased gurgle and turned to see what mischief he was into.

He had reached the open window and was leaning far out over the sill. The mother screamed and the baby, leaning farther out, lost his balance and fell. The horrified woman rushed downstairs, sick with fright, sure she would pick up her son crushed and dying.

But she had not reckoned with fate and Policeman Jackson.

Jackson was plodding along his beat at the lucky moment. He did not see the baby. He heard, from somewhere up in the air, a lusty crow.

He looked up and a white, fat bundle shot past his nose and struck him squarely on the shoulder. It bounced half a foot, glanced off and was continuing on its way toward the pavement when the astonished policeman put out his arms and caught it.

Snake in a Berry Box.

Chester, Pa.—Considerable excitement was caused on Third street near Franklin early the other evening when a snake, measuring about three feet in length, escaped from a load of strawberries being hauled to customers by William Lewis Zebley, a farmer of Bethel township.

The snake darted from the wagon and squirmed to the pavement, causing consternation among a number of women pedestrians, several of whom ran screaming into the stores along Third street.

The general commotion and shrieks of the women attracted the attention of Mr. Zebley, who, arming himself with a hatchet, chased the reptile for nearly half a square, and chopped off its head.

The snake had evidently crept into the crate while it was in the berry patch and gone to sleep in one of the boxes.

WANTS TO DIE POOR

Dr. Pearsons About to Give Away Last of His Wealth.

Has Donated $4,000,000 to Smaller Colleges and Universities During Last 25 Years—Won Riches in Real Estate.

Chicago.—Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons is going, in a way, to outdo Andrew Carnegie. He is going to give his last million dollars away before the fourteenth of next April, when, nothing happening, he will celebrate his ninety-third birthday. He will keep only a sum which he thinks is sufficient to pay his simple way for the few years longer he expects to live.

When he gives away his last million he will have disposed of $5,000,000 in the last 25 years. The greater part of it has been unloosened in the last 15 years. His policy is to give to the small college. The wealthy institutions, with powerful alumni associations, receive none of his money. He believes the small and needy denominational colleges throughout the country are doing more for the poor boy and turning out a better class of American citizens than the more celebrated universities.

For 60 years Dr. Pearsons has been a noted character in and about Chicago. He is more than six feet in height, and not even his 89 years have eradicated the atmosphere of physical and mental power which he carries. His early education was limited to a short college course which proved of great value to him in his subsequent successful career.

He has no family, and but few distant relatives. So far the only objection to his philanthropy has come from institutions that for one reason or another failed to get his money.

In a quaint, ancient house in the suburb of Hinsdale Dr. Pearsons lives. It is embowered in massive trees, with a wide sweep of lawn studded with flowers. For scores of years he was a daily passenger on commuter trains to and from the city. That was when he was in the real estate business. He has now given up business and is devoting all his time to solving the puzzle how to give away his money so that it will do the most good.

This last ten hundred thousand dollars he has announced he will give to Chicago. His home city has been cut out of his benefactions largely because there are no small colleges in it. He refuses to say how he is going to give his last million or who will be the beneficiary.

Dr. Pearsons made his money in real estate in the early days of Chicago. He not only dealt in city real estate, but made a specialty of farm lands. He represented the Illinois Central railway in disposing of millions of fine farms in its land grant, given by the state when the road was constructed. For almost 60 years Dr. Pearsons has been active in real estate. Investments that he made in Chicago in the early years increased a thousandfold and have now been sold.

Mr. Pearsons gives the credit for his philanthropic interests largely to his wife, who died three years ago.

"It was her idea," he said. "She was a keen business woman and she wanted what money we had to be spent as wisely as possible. Therefore we began a systematic study of the regions which seemed to be most in need of better facilities for the making of citizenship."

More than $4,000,000 has been distributed among 47 institutions. Among the colleges which have benefited are Lake Forest university, Beloit college, Knox, Chicago Theological seminary, McCormick Theological seminary, Drury college, Yankton college, Colorado college, Fargo college, Mount Holyoke seminary, Berea college, Marietta, McKendree, Grand Prairie seminary, Whitman college, Olivet college, Fairmont college, Carleton, and Anatolia college in Turkey, which has received over $100,000. At one time Mr. Pearsons had more than $150,000 loaned to needy students.

UNDER THE SEA 20 CENTURIES

Vase Which It Is Believed Dates Back to 126 B. C., in Possession of Massachusetts Man.

Boston.—Here is a vase which is well worth study, for if the stories told about it are true, it is a find of interest to archeologists, for it probably dates back to at least the year 126 B. C. It is now in the possession of John Quadara, of Somerville, and he has been offered $400 for it, but has spurned the offer, claiming he desires to retain it for himself.

The story of the vase, as he tells it, is interesting in the extreme. He says that four years ago this month, Sicilian fishermen plying their calling were one day delighted to feel a severe tug on their deep line, which was dragging bottom at a depth of 450 feet, just off Panaria, among the Lipari islands, north of Sicily.

Upon pulling in the line their joy was turned to chagrin when they found they had hooked not a fish, but some sort of old jar, the graceful outlines of which were almost concealed by the growth of coral and barnacles which adhered to it. The interior of the vase was filled with mud, which made it very heavy and had given rise to hopes of a large fish, when they first hooked it.

The vase bore every evidence of having been on the bottom of the sea for centuries, but that fact did not greatly impress the fishermen, who, however, did think enough of it to carry it ashore. Later they carefully chiseled away as much of the marine growth from its sides as possible, as well as from the inside neck, and then worked the mud out from the bowl of the vase. This done, they considered its appearance much improved.

They were about to present it to a wealthy merchant of the Panaria island when they changed their minds.

John Quadara had taken a vacation from his little shoe shop in Somerville and had gone to Italy to visit the scenes of his boyhood. While at Sicily he learned of the vase found by the fishermen and went to see it. He is no authority on ancient relics, but he had an idea that the vase was worth something. Learning the fishermen intended giving it away, he offered a small sum for it, and it became his property.

A Full Comprehension.

"My dear, I had a corking good time last night with the boys."

"Indeed? From the way you came home I should have thought it an uncorking good time you had with the boys."

The Difference.

"So the heroine of that divorce case is going on the stage. Notoriety pays, doesn't it?"

"No; the public does."

"Shakespeare, it is said, never repeated."

"He didn't have to run a daily humorous feature."

"But Montaigne, whenever he saw a good thing, annexed it."

Unite to Fight the White Plague.

Confirming the recent statement of Dr. William Osler that the anti-tuberculosis campaign is no longer a battle for the doctors only, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis issues a statement in which it is shown that 45 per cent. of those enlisted in the white plague war are laymen.

Strictly After Nature.

A public building was in course of erection in one of the western towns of Scotland, in front of which a bust of The Bruce was being carved. A well-known bailie halted opposite the sculptor one day and called out:

"I say, sculptor, d'ye no think ye hae that beard inclining a wee thing to the left?"

"Man, bailie," said the sculptor, "d'ye no see the win's blawin' up the street the noo?"—Tid-Bits.

ON FOOD

The Right Foundation of Health.

Proper food is the foundation of health. People can eat improper food for a time until there is a sudden collapse of the digestive organs, then all kinds of trouble follows.

The proper way out of the difficulty is to shift to the pure, scientific food, Grape-Nuts, for it rebuilds from the foundation up. A New Hampshire woman says:

"Last summer I was suddenly taken with indigestion and severe stomach trouble and could not eat food without great pain, my stomach was so sore I could hardly move about. This kept up until I was so miserable life was not worth living.

"Then a friend finally, after much argument, induced me to quit my former diet and try Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had but little faith I commenced to use it, and great was my surprise to find that I could eat it without the usual pain and distress in my stomach.

"So I kept on using Grape-Nuts and soon a marked improvement was shown, for my stomach was performing its regular work in a normal way without pain or distress.

"Very soon the yellow coating disappeared from my tongue, the dull, heavy feeling in my head disappeared, and my mind felt light and clear; the languid, tired feeling left, and altogether I felt as if I had been rebuilt. Strength and weight came back rapidly and I went back to my work with renewed ambition.

"To-day I am a new woman in mind as well as body, and I owe it all to this natural food, Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A new clerk in the statistical department asked the meaning of "deficit." "A deficit," answered Mac, "is what you've got when you haven't got as much as if you just hadn't nothing."

President Taft praises the Payne tariff bill. He admits that it has some defects, but says it would be an ideal law if the manufacturers had not been permitted to write the woollen schedules and if the duty on a great many other articles had been lowered instead of raised. Minnesota mourns the loss of her popular governor, John A. Johnson, who died this week as the result of an operation. His death is a distinct loss to his state and to the nation. Had he lived, his nomination for president in 1912, at the hands of the democratic party, was almost inevitable, and his strong character and personal popularity would have made him a strong candidate. But it was not to be so. The grave has closed over his hopes and aspirations, and an entire country weeps at the bier of an honored son and a trusted official.

Five years ago Pennsylvania completed her state capital at a cost of $4,000,000. That sum was appropriated by the legislature. The question of furnishing the building was not considered by the legislature, and that was farmed out among the faithful. When the furnishings had been completed it was discovered that they had cost the state the tidy sum of $9,000,000. An investigation was made, and it was shown that $6,000,000 was absolutely thrown away, squandered, gone into the capacious pockets of the grafters. Yet, notwithstanding this stupendous fraud and a knowledge as to who were the perpetrators, not a single grafter has donned prison garb. This condition was made possible by the existence of the Quay machine, of which New Mexico has such a distinguished type to represent her in the United States congress. The charge that this territory is an appanage of Pennsylvania seems well founded from the manner in which we cling to "Bull." Or, perhaps, some of that easy $6,000,000 was poured into New Mexico to make possible the election of one of Quay's lieutenants.

Notice to Stockholders.

The walls of Dr. Paden's drug store and hospital are mounting skyward. The material used is a brick tiling. S. A. Neid, assisted by a mason from El Paso, is erecting the walls, while Harry Little is in charge of the framework, with sufficient mechanical help to keep pace with the masonry work.

John P. Murray, president of the Murray-Slease Mining company, was in the city yesterday. ### NOTICE.

It appearing that a certified copy of the order of this board, made on the 7th day of July 1909 calling an election to be held on the 17th day of August 1909, on the proposition to remove the county seat to Carrizozo in said county has been published for four consecutive weeks immediately prior to such election in the CARRIZOZO NEWS, a newspaper of general circulation published in said county, and by hand bills posted up at three of the most public places in each precinct at least four weeks prior to said election, held on the 17th day of August 1909.

And it further appearing that the returns of said election held in said Lincoln county, pursuant to said order aforesaid, on the 17th day of August 1909.

The Board, acting as a board of canvassers, duly proceeded to carefully examine the poll books and certificates of each precinct in said county, and continued in session for the purpose of such examination, canvass and ascertainment continuously.

That said board having duly canvassed and ascertained the results of said election as shown by the face of said returns from the voting precincts of the county upon the question whether the county seat should be removed from Lincoln to Carrizozo in said county, do find as the result of said canvass and ascertainment that 900 votes were cast for Carrizozo, and 613 for Lincoln, and that the total number of votes cast upon the proposition was 1,513,—a majority of 287 of the vote, cast being for the removal of the county seat to Carrizozo. It is therefore considered, ordered and declared by the Board of County Commissioners that Carrizozo is the county seat of the county of Lincoln, territory of New Mexico.

Women Suffer Agonies from Diseased Kidneys

And Most Women Do This Not Knowing the Real Cause of their Condition

These poor, suffering women have been led to believe that their misery of mind and body is entirely due to "ills of their sex." Usually the kidneys and bladder are responsible—or largely so. And in such cases, the kidneys and bladder are the organs, that need and must have attention.

Those torturing, enervating sick headaches, dragging pains in back, groin and limbs, bloating and swelling of the extremities, extreme nervousness or hysteria, listlessness and constant tired, worn-out feeling—are almost certain symptoms of disordered and diseased kidneys, bladder and liver.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have, in thousands of cases, been demonstrated as remarkably beneficial in all such conditions of female organism—affording the most prompt relief and permanent benefit.

As an illustration of what these Pills will do, Mrs. P. M. Bray of Columbus, Ga., writes that she was very ill with kidney trouble, and that she is now well—and that these Pills are what cured her.

They are very pleasant to take, and can in no case, produce any deleterious effects upon the system—as syrupy, alcoholic, liquid preparations are apt to do.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail post-paid. Do it to-day.

William Kahler, Sr., is chief of the Outlook's editorial staff, having gotten astride the tripod this week. If the old veteran is as handy with the pen as he was with the sword in the 60's, he should have no difficulty in maintaining the usual standard of the Outlook.

Lee Singleton, one of the Bar W outfit, was thrown from his horse last Sunday morning, the fall breaking his right leg about three inches above the ankle. He was alone at the time of the accident, but managed to crawl a couple of miles to the Grumbles ranch. The following morning he was conveyed to the Bar W ranch, where the broken leg was set and dressed. It will probably be several months before he is able to take his place in the round-up.

A TRIP TO NORTHERN CANADA

OPENING TRAILS IN SPRING

JUNCTION OF THE MACKENZIE AND LIARD RIVERS

MOUNT SIR DONALD, CANADA

We pitched our first camp on February 15, 1909, and from then until we struck the Montreal river on March 16 we pitched camp 12 times. We started on February 14 and the first night found an old tent that had been up all winter. Being rather tired after our first day's journey, we decided to camp there rather than go to the bother of pitching our own tent. The tent was rather small and we were somewhat crowded in our close quarters. In turned bitter cold that night, and we had difficulty in keeping warm. The next morning, after breakfast, we packed our toboggans and moved about half a mile farther south and pitched the camp.

We had no dogs, and as our load was rather large and heavy, we were forced to split it and take part ahead and cache it and then take the remainder when we broke camp. The trails were very bad in places and then again there were no trails at all and we were forced to cut our own. This made pretty slow traveling, and from February 14 to until March 15 we traveled about 25 miles, or about a mile a day.

During the winter it is a very common sight to see a prospector along the trails in Canada. The packs vary in weight from 25 to 100 pounds and the toboggans carry between 50 and 150 pounds, so, between the two, a man has a pretty good load. If the trails are good, the pack can be put on the sled, but if the trail is at all uneven the load is very apt to tip over and cause more inconvenience than if the pack were carried. The packs are usually carried well up on the shoulders and then supported by a tump line, going over the forehead and sometimes balanced by two shoulder straps. In this way the man has free use of his arms.

On May 6 we were at Smoothwater lake. Although that late in the season, the river froze at night and left about a quarter of an inch of ice. We were there about a week after the spring breakup started and at this time the ice was all out of the river; but in the lakes the ice had not started to go. Furthermore, it had not disappeared until about two weeks later. Several times in May we took our canoe on the river and then had to use snow-shoes in the woods in order to get around.

Last of a Vanished Race

"Strongback," Once King of Detroit Dockwallopers, Exponent of a Type That Has Gone.

Last of his race is "Strongback," reminder of the days when dockwallopers were a vastly different class from the industrious, peaceable men now employed along the water front.

There isn't a man who has been identified with shipping interests in Detroit for any length of time who doesn't know "Strongback." And a still smaller number whose memories run back to the time when he first made his appearance on the docks.

John Droback is his name, but because of prodigious strength when in his prime he acquired the sobriquet of "Strongback," which has clung to him ever since. He admits having worked on the docks for 40 years, and no one essays to dispute his claim, he having been a familiar figure when the first of the present generation of marine men arrived on the scene.

In his earlier days "Strongback" performed several feats, once saving a life by plunging into the river, and Latchford were not frozen over on February 8, yet the temperature was 14 degrees below zero. The rapids never freeze during the coldest weather. The railroad bridge crosses the river at this point.

There was a bad fire in Gowganda on May 26. The fire was started by sparks from a campfire used for outside cooking. First it took a tent and all its contents and then jumped to a log cabin and in half an hour there was nothing left but a pile of charred logs. A strong north wind was blowing away from the town; had it been in the other direction there would have been no city to tell the tale.

A greater sight which we saw was a forest fire on Lake Kawakanika. Forest fires are started, sometimes by carelessness and sometimes on purpose. This particular fire burned all around this lake and finally burned itself out in a swamp. There were a number of bad fires on Lake Obuskong, there being five in one day. A number of men have lost all their belongings in these fires. The flames travel so quickly they are very dangerous.

A favorite way of travel between Latchford and Elk lake during the summer months is by steamer. The trip is about forty-five miles and takes nine hours. There are mountain chutes, flat rapids and other rapids between Elk lake and Latchford and as the boats do not run them, there has to be a boat at each portage, to make connections. The engines on the boats are all wood burners and run quite slow, so it makes the trip rather tiresome.

It was in 1670 that Charles II. gave to his cousin Prince Rupert—the bold but none too successful cavalier of the civil war—the exclusive right to trade with the Indians in that great stretch of country whose rivers run down to Hudson's bay. The Hudson's Bay Company was formed by Prince Rupert and his associates, who exploited the concession, and its history for nearly two-and-a-half centuries has been one of astonishing boldness and success. Furs were the company's main concern in its early days. Its agents, established in factories or forts, traded with the Indian hunters, collected the pelts, and dispatched them by the inland waterways on the long and perilous route to the coast for transmission to England. Even to this day the company's fur trade is being carried on in like manner, though in more northerly regions, for the settlement of population in the south has driven the fur-bearing animals to the primaeval solitudes beyond. In unbroken sequence for about a century the company's fleet has sailed from Edmonton down the Athabasca into and on down the Great Mackenzie river to the Arctic ocean, returning in the autumn with the furs taken ten months before.

again preventing a disastrous conflagration in the D. & C. warehouses. Although only a shadow of his former self, he still retains much of his strength, and few would care to mix things with him.—Detroit Free Press.

Reminded Him of Home.

A man whose boyhood had been spent within a stone's throw of Beacon hill and that mighty edifice in which the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is yearly saved, was recently summoned to admire his wife's new hat. Round and steep and brilliantly yellow it was—the "very latest" cabriolet. The man looked at it long and thoughtfully, and then, "That takes me back," he breathed.

"What do you mean?" inquired his puzzled wife, who had been prepared for sarcasms, but not sighs.

"Why, the hat's the living image of the dome of the Boston statehouse—if you'd only had it just a little bigger!"

And as he made his escape she heard him humming: "How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood!"

Some time later a humor broke out behind her ears and spread up on to her head until it was nearly half covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky, clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every spring. I always used Cuticura Soap and Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The last time it broke out it became so bad that I was discouraged. But I continued the use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent until she was well and has never been troubled in the last two years. Mrs. M. A. # The Wildwood Limited

By Cy Warman

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Henry Hautman was born old. At 15 he had the face and figure of a voter. His skin did not fit his face—it wrinkled and resembled a piece of rawhide that had been left out in the rain and sun.

Henry's father was a freighter on the Santa Fe trail when Independence was the back door of civilization, opening on a wilderness. Little Henry used to ride on the high seat with his father, close up to the tail of a Missouri mule, the seventh of a series of eight which his father drove in front of the big wagon and the trailer. It was the wind of the west that tanned the hide on Henry's face and made him look old before his time.

At night they used to range the wagons in a ring, in which the freighters slept.

One night Henry was wakened by the yells of Indians and saw men fighting. Presently he was swung to the back of a cayuse behind a painted warrior, and as they rode away the boy, looking back, saw the wagons burning—and guessed the rest.

Later the lad escaped and made his way to Chicago, where he began his career on the rail and where this story really begins.

It was extremely difficult, in the early days, to find sober, reliable young men to man the few locomotives in America and to run the trains. A large part of the population seemed to be floating, drifting west, west always west. So when this stout-shouldered, strong-faced youth asked for work the round-house foreman took him on gladly.

Henry's boyhood had been so full of peril that he was absolutely indifferent to danger and a stranger to fear. He was not even afraid of work, and at the end of eighteen months he was marked up for a run. He had passed from the wiping gang to the deck of a passenger engine, and was now ready for the road.

Henry was proud of his rapid promotion, especially this last lift that would enable him to race along the steel trail, though he recalled that it had cost him his first little white lie.

One of the rules of the road said that a man must be 21 years old before he could handle a locomotive. Henry knew his book well, but he also knew that the railroad needed his service and that he needed the job; so when the clerk had taken his "personal record"—which was only a mild way of asking where he would have his body sent in case he met the fate, so common at that time on a new line in a new country—he gave his age as 20, hoping the master mechanic would allow him a year for good behavior.

Years passed, as did the Indian and the buffalo. The railway reached out across the Great American Desert. The border became blurred and was rubbed out. The desert was dotted with homes. Towns began to grow up about the water-tanks and to bud and blow on the threeless plain.

Henry Hautman became known as the coolest and most daring driver on the road. He was a good engineer and a good citizen. He owned his home, and while his pay was not what an engineer draws to-day for the same run made in half the time, it was sufficient unto the day, his requirements and his wife's taste.

Only one thing troubled him. He had bought a big farm not far from Chicago, for which he was paying out of his savings. If he kept well, as he had seen all his life, three years more on the limited would let him out. Then he could retire a year ahead of time, and settle down in comfort on the farm and watch the trains go by.

It would be his salvation, this farm by the roadside, for the very thought of surrendering the La Salle to another was wormwood and gall to Henry. But there was the law in the book of rules—the Bible of the C., M. & W.—and no man might go beyond the limit set for the retirement of engine drivers. And Henry Hauptban, the favorite of the "Old Man," would take his medicine.

Time winged on, and as often as Christmas came it reminded the old engineer that he was one year nearer his last trip, for his mother, now sleeping in the far west, had taught him to believe that he had come to her on Christmas eve.

One day when Henry was registering in the roundhouse he saw a letter in the rack for him, and carried it home to read after supper.

When he read it he jumped out of his chair. "Why, Henry," said his wife, putting down her knitting, "what ever's the matter, open switch or red light?"

"Worse, Mary, it's the end of the track!"

The old engineer tossed the letter over to his wife, sat down, stretched his legs out, locked his fingers, and began rolling his thumbs, one over the other, staring at the stove.

When Mrs. Hautman had finished the letter she stamped her foot and declared it an outrage. She suggested that somebody wanted the La Salle. "Well," she said, resigning herself to her fate, "I bet I have that coach seat out of the cab; it'll make a nice tete-a-tete for the front room. Superannuated!" she went on, with growing disgust. "I bet you can put any man on the division down three times in five!"

"It's me that's down, Mary—down and out."

"Henry Hautman, I'm ashamed of you! You know you've got four years, come Christmas. Why don't you fight? Where's your Brotherhood you've been paying money to for 20 years? I bet a 'Q' striker comes and takes your engine."

"No, Mary, we're beaten. I see how it all happened, now. I began at 20 when I was really but 16, that's where I lose. I lied to the Old Man when we were both boys. Now that he comes back to me, as a chicken comes home to roost."

"But can't you explain that now?"

"Well, not easy. It's down in the records—it's Scripture now, as the Old Man would say. No, the best I can do is to take my medicine like a man; I've got a month yet to think it over."

After that they sat in silence, this childless couple, trying to fashion to themselves how it would seem to be superannuated.

The short December days were all too short for Henry. He counted the hours, marked the movements of the minute hand on the face of his cab clock, and measured the miles he would have, not to "do," but to enjoy before Christmas. As the weeks went by the old engineer became a changed man. He had always been cheerful, happy, and good-natured. Now he became thoughtful, silent, melancholy. There was not a man on the first division but grieved because he was going, but no man would dare say so to Henry. Sympathy is about the hardest thing a stout heart ever had to endure.

While Henry was out on his last trip his wife waited upon the master mechanic and asked him to bring his wife over and spend Christmas eve with Henry and help her to cheer him up, and the Old Man promised to call that evening.

Although there were half a dozen palms itching for the throttle of the La Salle, no man had yet been assigned to the run.

Henry saw the La Salle cross the turn-table and back into the roundhouse, and while he "looked her over," examining every link and pin, each lever and link-lifter, the others hurried away, for it was Christmas eve, and nobody cared to say good-by to the old engineer.

When he had walked around her half a dozen times, touching her burnished mainpins with the back of his hand, he climbed into the cab and began to gather up his trinkets, his comb and toothbrush, a small steel monkey-wrench, and a slender brass torch that had been given him by a friend. There he sat upon the soft-cushioned coach seat that his wife had coveted and looked along the hand-railing. He leaned from the cab window and glanced along the twin stubs of steel that passed through the open door and stopped short at the pit—symbolizing the end of his run on the rail. The old boss wiper came with his crew to clean the La Salle, but when he saw the driver there in the cab he passed him by.

Presently the lamp-lighters came and began lighting the oil-lamps that stood in the brackets along the wall, but before their gleam had reached his face the old engineer slid down and hurried away home with never a backward glance.

That night when Mrs. Hautman had passed the popcorn and red apples and they had all eaten and the men had lighted cigars, the engineer's wife brought a worn Bible out and drew a chair near the master mechanic. The Old Man, as he was called, looked at the book, then at the woman, who held it open on her lap.

"Do you believe this book?" she asked, earnestly.

"Absolutely," he answered.

"All that is written here?"

"All," said the man.

Then she turned to the fly-leaf and read the record of Henry's birth, the day, the month, the year.

Henry came and looked at the book and the faded handwriting, trying to remember, but it was too far away.

The old Bible had been discovered that day deep down in a trunk of old trinkets that had been sent to Henry when his mother died, years ago.

The old engineer took the book and held it on his knees, turned its limp leaves, and dropped upon them the tribute of a strong man's tear.

"The Old Man," called for the letter he had written, erased the date, set it forward four years, and handed it back to Henry.

"Here, Hank," said he, "here's a Christmas gift for you."

So when the Wildwood Limited was limbered up that Christmas Henry leaned from the window, leaned back, tugged at the throttle again, smiled over at the fireman, and said: "Now, Billy, watch her swallow that cold, stiff steel at about a mile a minute."

Scotland's Treeless Hills.

Afforestation has lately been proclaimed as a crying need now in Scotland, but early travelers in that country seem to have made many comments on the treeless aspect of the country. The Glasgow News quotes Sir Anthony Weldon as protesting in 1617 that if Judas had been a Scot he would have experienced difficulty in securing a tree to hang himself.

Another Englishman who lived during the same period writes "that he had diligently observed but cannot see any timber in riding 100 miles." Perhaps this was largely due to the fact that efforts to adorn the landscape met with little appreciation.

In one of his letters the second Earl of Stair asserts "that the common people have a natural aversion to all manner of planting, and do not fail in the night time to cut even with the root the prettiest and strongest trees for staves and plow goods."

September 21, 1909.

Never in the history of New Mexico has there been such widespread interest in the annual fair as is being shown this year. Even last year when the National Irrigation Congress gathered here there was no such unanimous spirit of interest and co-operation as is now apparent in the flood of correspondence coming into the Secretary's office each day. It comes from all sections of the territory. It tells of prosperous conditions and good crops, and promises large exhibits and big crowds for the fair.

The coming of President Taft during the fair week has had its effect in arousing interest. It is not unlikely that the President will take the occasion to tell the people of New Mexico what he thinks of statehood, and this possibility alone is enough to make this occasion of keenest interest.

But aside from this there has never been a more promising list of sports than is offered or a better outlook for extensive exhibits. The fair this year will have two full companies of United States Cavalry, brought as a special escort for President Taft, five full days of splendid racing with large purses and the fastest line of horses ever attracted to New Mexico. Pushball, most exciting of latter day sports, will be introduced for the first time in New Mexico. There will be the usual baseball tournament, composed strictly of home teams, each team backed by its corps of faithful fans; and last but not least, the great old Nat Reiss Carnival company, the biggest amusement institution of its kind in the world.

This list does not include such special attractions as the airship which will make three flights over the city daily, the last being at night, when a huge searchlight traces the ship as it sails through the air. In a word, the fair this year is going the old time successes several better. It is going to furnish amusement and entertainment for thousands, and the present indications are that the whole territory will be here.
