Exposition To Have Exhibits

Stamford, Dec. 7.—Under the leadership of its regional chamber of commerce, West Texas will participate next year in the Texas Centennial—in a big way. The plan has been announced by Ray H. Nichols, WTCC president and chairman of a newly-formed exhibit committee acting for the regional chamber; other members being P. G. Haines, chief of vocational agriculture for the state department of education; Max Bentley, of Abilene; and D. Bandoen, WTCC manager.

The committee's first announcement said:

"The use, for exhibit purposes, of about one-fourth of the vast Agricultural building, now farthest advanced in construction of the Centennial grounds in Dallas, has been tendered to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce by the Central Exposition authorities. The space tendered occupies more than 6,000 square feet. It is our plan to divide this into ten spaces of equal size, 36x8 feet, for the showing of ten related parts of our unified region-wide exhibit, each part to be sponsored by one of our ten administrative districts, and each dealing with one phase of West Texas life.

Towns To Have Space

"In addition, we will allot space to each one of our 195 affiliated towns where, on panels serving as a background to the region-wide exhibit, they may tell their individual stories to the estimated 10,000,000 persons who will visit the Centennial during its six months.

"Each panel will occupy a space two feet wide, and by six feet high. If the towns were to buy it the cost to each would be $72, at prevailing costs for exhibit space in the Centennial; but the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will defray that cost, the town's expense being the preparation of its own panel. Subject matter to be depicted on the panels is not to be necessarily limited to agriculture. Towns may choose their own subjects for exploitation—anything and everything having to do with agricultural, industrial and commercial development and growth."

Nichols Sends Details

President Nichols has sent details of the plan to the WTCC's directorate. The director in each affiliated town has been appointed chairman of his local Centennial exhibit committee, and has been asked to in turn appoint three of his fellow townsmen to serve with him. The committee's job is to get up its town panel.

The WTCC directors for Lubbock are Chas. A. Guy, S. A. Wells and W. G. Alderson.

The ten related exhibits will be prepared by district committees—one for each of the ten districts. These will be appointed, with final details worked out, in a series of district meetings to be conducted by President Nichols and his general exhibit committee. Nichols said the time and place for the district gatherings will be announced within a week.

"Working through their regional chamber of commerce, the citizenship of West Texas will present to the millions of Centennial visitors an intelligent, truthful, integrated and stirring picture of what we were out here in years gone, what we are today, and what we expect to be in the future," Nichols said. "The West Texas exhibit will not be historical except as our yesterdays bear direct relation with our today and our tomorrows. It will be designed frankly with primary purpose of attracting outside capital and colonization from among the millions who will go through it. Claiming to be the 'Raw Materials Capital of the World,' we will set out to prove it."

Here is the detail of the plan as announced by the General Committee.

(1) The general committee will lay out 360 lineal feet of exhibit space in the Agricultural building, eight feet in depth with a back wall eight feet high. Then the 360 feet will be cut into ten booths, each 36 feet long by eight feet deep: one for each of the ten districts. Ample aisle space will be provided to afford easy progress for visitors as they go through the exhibit. Space will be provided for showing adequately—with sunken garden and lighted effect—the WTCC's large West Texas relief map. The map was made by faculty members and students of Texas Technological college for display in Chicago's Century of Progress, where it attracted marked attention; and since has toured many large gatherings—conventions and such—over the state.

(2) The organizational set-up provides that each town affiliated with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce shall have its own local exhibit committee preparing the town's panel and also cooperating in the preparation of the exhibit sponsored by the district in which the town is situated. Each of the ten districts will appoint a committee to plan, gather, build and be in charge of the district exhibit. This committee shall be composed of a Board of Control of at least three WTCC directors and five secretaries, county agents, home demonstration agents within that district. On the technical staff will fall the actual job of preparing the exhibit.

Thus the Westex story will be unfolded for Centennial visitors in ten subjects—a continuing, related picture of what the section has to offer the prospective investor and homeseeker. The ten subjects tentatively selected, one to be sponsored by each district are: (continued next week)

1917 STUDY CLUB HOLDS LAST MEETING OF THE YEAR

The 1917 Study Club held the last meeting of the year, Tuesday evening at the home of the president, Mildred Andrews, entertaining with a Christmas program.

Places at table were found by unique nut cup place cards of the Christian name only and as a means of raising revenue at the suggestion of Bennie Jennings, each member must write a five cent due bill for each offense of using the courtesy title of Miss or Mrs. and believe it or not, Bennie paid more forfeits than any other member present. Linnie Rochat was in charge as leader.

Texas Centennial Exposition, Dallas

Two high officials of the Federal Government, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and AAA Administrator Chester C. Davis, see the Texas Centennial Exposition as the Southwest's most important event in decades.

Each, in Dallas on governmental missions, looked upon the Exposition from different angles—Mrs. Perkins from the standpoint of increased employment and Chester Davis from its agricultural and educational viewpoint.

Announcing the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is going to cooperate in the agricultural exhibit to the fullest extent, with exhibits designed to show the Texas adjustment in farming and business during the last three years, Secretary Davis said:

"Plans for the agricultural exhibits impressed me greatly. No other exposition ever has given such attention to livestock and agriculture. The fact that it is to be done here without lessening the industrial, scientific and mechanical phases adds to the Exposition's attractiveness."

"Another thing that impressed me is the plan to gather 50,000 Texas farm boys and girls at the Exposition. It cannot help being anything but an educational inspiration to these youngsters upon whom the future of the Southwest's agriculture soon will rest."

Secretary Perkins was interested in the building program at Exposition Park which will employ from 9,000 to 10,000 workers when the peak rush is reached. These workers will be busy on Exposition, City and Federal contracts, all of which must be completed before June 6, opening date of the Exposition.

Mrs. Perkins also revealed the U. S. Department of Labor is preparing a special exhibit for display in the $325,000 Federal Building upon which work soon will start.

Miss Adrian Jenkins, of Henrietta arrived in Spur Monday for an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Layfetta Robinson and Mr. Robinson and Orville.

SUMMARY—

sleeve ironing boards were made this year; 45 shoe racks made this year added to the 67 made last year makes a total of 112 in the county.

A total of 125 foundation patterns were fitted this year. That makes 502 foundation patterns made the past three years. The club women exhibited 73 dresses and slips in the county clothing contest in June. A total of 279 dresses have been exhibited by the women in the county contest the past four years.

Five clothing demonstrators and 12 cooperators in the five girls clubs kept a record of their clothing expenses from the first of September through June as a part of the work in the clothing demonstration. The five demonstrators spend an average of $30.37. The twelve cooperators spent an average of $21.46.

The three goals in clothing for the cooperators were to make a collar, a slip and a school dress. The 57 club girls have made 56 collars, 58 slips and 45 dresses in the clothing work.

Eight yard improvement demonstrators completed their year's work at achievement programs held in their homes in October. The demonstration is a two-year work and none had completed her improvements as planned at the beginning of the year but will complete the planting plans this winter.

The eight demonstrators soddied their lawns, five using bermuda grass and three native mesquite grass. They set and have living 58 nurseries and 105 native shrubs, 27 trees and six roses. They laid 23 flagstone walks and four built sanitary toilets.

The yard improvement demonstration has been planned for a three-year program in the county with the county with goals for the cooperators planned so that at the end of the three year period each club woman who has reached the cooperators goals each year will have a well-planned and planted home. The goals for this year were to remove the rubbish and repair fences, lay a flagstone walk, learn and locate five native shrubs to be used in foundation plantings next year. Sixty-three cooperators reported that 61 flagstone walks and 63 learned and located five native shrubs.

The productive demonstration for the girls this year was gardening. Each demonstrator planned the family garden with the help of her mother and the home demonstration agent. The records of the five demonstrators show that they produced 26,000 pounds of vegetables valued at $512.35 at a cost of $43.10. The goals for the cooperators were to grow 50 feet each of carrots and beets and 20 feet of okra, make a garden plan of other vegetables and make 15 jars beet pickles, can 10 jars carrots and dry two yards okra. Only five girls reached all of these goals. Most of the girls grew the okra and dried it, but they were not able to grow the beets and carrots. The five demonstrators report that 832 quarts of vegetables were canned from their gardens. The total canned food in their pantries is 1,329 quarts valued at $476.40. The demonstrators assisted their mothers in all this canning. Reports from 33 cooperators show that they helped to can 5,829 quarts.

During the year through the combined efforts of the club women and the home demonstration agent 897 families or 84.2% of the farm families in the county were benefited by the Extension Service. No doubt there were others helped through the newspapers and personally that were not reported.

Not a small part of the year's work has been the achievement days in June, October and November, the clothing contest in June and the canned food exhibit in October. These contests and exhibits have done much to arouse the interest of non-club people in Extension work. During the year one new home demonstration club has been organized.

The county home demonstration Council and the county agriculture and home demonstration agents have had hearty cooperation of the local people and especially the business men and women of Spur and the Commissioners' Court.
