In other business in the special session, the Commissioners met with architect Gary Donaldson concerning the construction of a new building to house the Tax

Appraisal District budget approved

The proposed 1982 budget for the Runnels County Tax Appraisal District was approved last week in a regular meeting of the board of directors of the Appraisal District.

The budget for the next fiscal year totals $265,575.48 and includes two increases from the original budget presentation. Included in the increases is a raise in the amount set aside for legal fees to a top of $5,000 and the addition of $3,629 for insurance to cover appraiser error and omissions and would not only cover the appraiser, but the board of directors and the board of review who has the final decision on any question concerning appraised values.

The total budget is divided among the twelve participating taxing entities in the county. The share to be paid by the City of Winters will be 3.27 percent or $8,684.32, the Winters Independent School District will pay 26.24 percent or $69,687.01, the North Runnels Hospital District 6.45 percent or $17,129.62, the Wingate Independent School District 3.20 percent or $8,498.42, and the Elm Creek Water Control District 2.16 percent or $5,736.43. The amounts assessed each taxing entity is based on its percentage of the 1981 tax appraisal.

Runnels County will be assessed 24.35 for a total of $64,667.63, the Ballinger Independent School District will pay 21.12 percent or $56,089.54. The remainder of the budgeted funds will come from the City of Miles, the Jim-Ned School District, Miles School District, and the Olfen School District. Approximately $9,000 in additional funds will come to the appraisal district from state funds and will be placed in a contingency fund.

The district's chief appraiser Clayton Brazelton said that at the end of the fiscal year any funds left over will be credited to each participating tax entity against their share of the next year's operating cost of the appraisal district. Brazelton said the amount of credit would be based on the same percentage as the cost assessment.

Buddy Poppy Sale to be conducted Nov. 13-14

The Winters Post 9193 and its Ladies' Auxiliary will conduct their annual Veteran's Day Buddy Poppy Sale, Friday afternoon, Nov. 13 and Saturday, Nov. 14 with the Winters High School Future Homemakers volunteering their help.

An interesting story and purpose precede the Buddy Poppy sale.

In 1899 the Spanish-American War Veterans had just returned home from the Cuban and Philippine battle fronts. They had been victorious against foreign enemies. They received their discharge pay of $15.60 per man, and were turned loose as civilians. They were young men, but had been prematurely aged by the ravages of tropical fever, bad food and medical neglect. Some were desperately ill, too sick to work steadily, and quickly became penniless, with no helping hand and no financial assistance. They were the forgotten men, and no one seemed to care what happened to them.

James Romanis, a veteran of the Cuban Campaign, living in Columbus, Ohio, became so disturbed by seeing his suffering comrades going to the poorhouse and dying in squalor that he asked twelve of his veteran friends to meet with him on Sept. 29, 1899 in the back room of a tailoring shop. There they discussed the plight of the returned men, organized a club and called it the "American Veterans of Foreign Service." Membership was limited to overseas veterans, and members pledged "to help one another and to work together for the benefit of our country and for the men who fight for this nation."

On Dec. 1 of the same year, 1899, another group of Spanish-American War veterans held a similar meeting in Denver, Colo. Those men organized the "Colorado Society of the Army of the Philippines" under the leadership of General Irving Hale. They adopted as their principles — comradeship, perpetuation of the memory of departed comrades, and assistance to their widows.

Those two organizations were the first foundation stones of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Others were units organized in Altoona and Pittsburgh, Penn. in 1901 and in Philadelphia during 1902. A charter was granted to the Veterans of Foreign Wars by the 74th Congress of the United States.

In 1923, the VFW evol-

Estate planning program set for Tuesday night

Robert Kensing, Area Economist-Management Specialist, will be the featured speaker at an Estate Planning and Financial Management program scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 17 at the Winters Vo-Ag Building.

Kensing is recognized as one of the leading authorities in this area of agri-business management and is especially well-qualified to speak to people in agriculture. Several new laws have been passed that influence estate taxes, including the Economic Recovery Act of 1981. Far too often, we hear of incidences where a person loses a sizeable portion of an estate because there was little or no advanced planning.

The program will include an introduction to estate planning and financial management, importance of wills, and the Economic Recovery Act of 1981.

ved the idea which resulted in the VFW "Buddy Poppy". They were the first organization to promote a nationwide sale of poppies, made by disabled and needy veterans, who were paid for their work in assembling the buddy poppies.

In February, 1924, the VFW registered the name "Buddy" Poppy with the U.S. Patent Office.

Since May, 1924, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has annually conducted "Buddy" Poppy sales with the slogan "Honor the dead by helping the living."

Money derived from the sale of the Buddy Poppies is very carefully put to use. Your VFW Post pays a set amount to the National VFW Rehabilitation Service for the Buddy Poppies they distribute. Any profit made is put in a relief fund. This fund is available to meet any calls for relief of our local veterans.

The Winters VFW asks that you support the uniformed lad who may never again be physically fit, by showing your gratitude by buying a Buddy Poppy with a smile, and proudly wearing it.

Lone Star Gas files for Novice rate increase

Lone Star Gas Company Manager, F. J. Malicoat, recently filed an application for a rate increase which would raise the average residential customer's monthly bill in Novice about $3.54 in the winter and $1.54 in the summer.

Based on Lone Star's rate application, a residential customer who uses an average of eight thousand cubic feet of gas a month paid $29.30 for gas service in the winter. Under the requested rate, the same customer would pay $32.84.

Commercial gas customers' rates would also increase under the requested rate schedule.

"Our customers are accustomed to dependable natural gas service," says Malicoat. "This rate increase is necessary to continue a high performance level and for other necessary expenses, such as maintaining and improving the local pipeline distribution system, which are vital to dependable service."

Lone Star's last rate increase in Novice became effective November, 1979.

"Since that time, every business, including Lone Star, has experienced increased operating expenses," says Malicoat. "And, of course, unlike other businesses that can raise their prices as expenses go up, we must apply to the city council for a rate increase. No one likes rising prices, but any business must earn enough money to meet operating expenses and still achieve a reasonable profit. Even though our expenses have gone up, Lone Star still has one of the lowest average operating costs per customer when compared to any of the other major gas utilities in Texas."

The Battle of Bunker Hill was unique in that thousands of spectators in the Boston area had ringside seats for the spectacle. They sat on rooftops, in treetops, on church steeples, and in the rigging of the ships in the harbor.

The first long-playing records were produced by the Neophone Co. of Finsbury Square, London, from 1904 to 1906, and consisted of 20 in. discs with a playing time of up to 12 minutes.

Poe's Corner

The Land of Enchantment

The Aspen trees have turned golden in the mountains and are beautiful this time of year as those who attended the Aspen Bible Conference at Glorieta, New Mexico in October discovered.

In the group of 15 from the First Baptist Church attending, there were four newcomers. Most of us return year after year to Glorieta, located in historic Glorieta Pass, for fun, study, and recreation.

Each morning began with singing and a warm-up prayer. We all learned to do the Baptist (armchair) boogie! Woogie! but I doubt if any would be willing to teach it.

The Bible study consisted of "Discovering Deuteronomy" and "Reflections on Romans", with a coffee break in between periods. This was followed by J. Earl Meades inspirational message.

On one of my trips for refreshments, I met the former Lois Riddle, now Mrs. Meade, pouring coffee. She was the daughter of Rev. C. H. Riddle, pastor of the Winters Baptist Church from 1918-1922, and she graduated from Winters High School in 1922.

Upon learning I had married a Poe, she asked about Eva Poe who was her classmate. When I told her that Eva (Mrs. James Cook) lived in Albuquerque and was coming to see me the next day, she wanted to talk with her. They hadn't seen each other since finishing high school, and tried to catch up on all that had happened since then. I added information about people they mentioned.

Lois had married A. C. Harper after finishing Hardin-Simmons University and was left with a 12-year-old daughter when he was killed in a car wreck. She later married Mr. Meade and now has four grandsons. Both Lois and Eva had played on a winning basketball team in high school, Eva pitched goals and Lois said she was side center guard. A position no longer used in ball games. They inquired about classmates such as Jewell Nance, Bonnie Davidson, Bonnie Rives, the Gammaway girls and others.

With free time in the afternoon, what better way to spend it than by sightseeing. We visited the town of Santa Fe, which is at the end of the old Santa Fe Trail. It has many historic and interesting sights: the town square and the Indians who display and sell their jewelry; the shops around the square; the Canyon Road Art Colony; the New Mexico Capitol compound.

Although I have been to Santa Fe several times and visited the Palace of the Governors on the Plaza, I was more interested in the Indians who sat on the portal (roofed porch) and marketed their wares. But, since becoming interested in museums, I was pleased to know that it has been the home of the Museum of New Mexico since 1913 and was dedicated as a National Historic Landmark in 1961.

The Palace was constructed in 1610 by Governor Don Pedro de Peralta when New Mexico was a frontier outpost of the Spanish Empire. It has a double distinction: it is the oldest public building in the United States and in this country the only surviving example of the Spanish Casas reales (Royal houses). The Palace was the major seat of both Spanish and Mexican governments in what was to become the American Southwest.

In 1909, the Territorial Legislature designated the Palace as the first building to house the museum. Palace history and early Colonial days in New Mexico are depicted in its exhibits. Recent extensive excavations beneath its modern floors unearthed frontier, Mexican and Spanish artifacts, and relics from the buildings occupation by the Pueblo Indians in the years following the Pueblo Revolution (1680).

"The absent have a ringing in the ears when they are talked about." Pliny the Elder

The Indians cannot be blamed for their revolt. The governors, good or bad, attempted to make their office produce financial benefit for them. Governor Ceballos forcibly seized hundreds of cows and mares from the inhabitants. The viceroy in 1634 ordered the livestock returned. The next governor forced the Indians to gather pinon nuts, which they carried to the governor's warehouse, to trade for hides, to weave and paint Mantas; and for all these labors they were paid less than current prices. The succeeding governor, Luis de Rosas, alienated both church and people. His greed was endless. An additional cause of the rebellion was the attempt to stamp out witchcraft and sorcery among the Indians.

Spain's second attempt at conquering New Mexico came in 1693. It was not until the end of 1696 that peace was finally achieved.

During these years Spain was losing its grasp on the vast empire in America. In 1821 Mexico achieved its independence from Spain. The news was received with jubilation in Santa Fe.

Mexico was going through a period of change and turmoil. After Manuel Armijo became governor, a state of war existed between Mexico and the United States. General Kearney's forces reached Santa Fe on August 18, 1846, without firing a shot. At sundown the United States flag was hoisted over the palace.

The sad condition of the Palace did not detract from the meaning of the building. There were various proposals for use or disposal of the building.

The destiny of the Palace was at last decided by the legislature in an act of 1909, establishing the Museum of New Mexico, which took charge of putting the famous building in condition.

SOUTHERN COOKING: A COMBINATION OF THE BEST

Mention the South and two things immediately pop to mind: The graciousness of the people and the delicious regional dishes. To many, Southern cuisine is the most distinct of the American regional foods. Like our nation, Southern cooking is a combination of the best of many nationalities. It combines the influence of early settlers from England in our original colonies such as Virginia and the Carolinas with the spirited pioneer cooking as the settlers pushed west toward Kentucky and Tennessee. It's the unique combination of French, Spanish and African foods that grew up with Louisiana. It's a touch of the Mexican and Indian cultures from the Southwestern regions such as Texas. And it's a cuisine that takes advantage of a long growing season for fresh fruits and vegetables as well as an easy access to the seacoast. Just as Southern cooks combined the best of many different cuisines, so have they combined the best of the old and new by taking traditional Southern recipes and adapting them to the ease of convenience mixes as a shortcut to cooking. Bisquick® buttermilk baking mix has been part of Southern cooking traditions for more than a half century. As a special salute to Southern cooking, Bisquick has compiled a free recipe brochure highlighting some favorite recipes of the South.

To order, send your name, address and zip code to: Southern Traditions with Bisquick, Box 5401, Dept. 801, Minneapolis, MN 55460.

This Easy Apple Dumplings recipe is just one of the recipes from this leaflet.

EASY APPLE DUMPLINGS

6 apples, pared and cored
3 tablespoons raisins
3 tablespoons chopped nuts
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 cup Bisquick baking mix
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 tablespoon margarine or butter, melted
1/4 cup milk

Heat oven to 425°. Grease rectangular baking dish, 12x7 1/2x2 inches. Arrange apples close together in pan. Mix raisins and nuts; fill each apple. Pour water over apples. Mix 1/2 cup granulated sugar, the brown sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over apples. Bake uncovered 20 minutes.

Mix remaining ingredients until soft dough forms; beat vigorously 20 strokes. Gently smooth dough into ball on cloth-covered board well dusted with baking mix. Knead 8 to 10 times. Roll dough into rectangle, 11x7 inches; place over hot apples. Cut small crisscross in dough on top of each apple. Bake until brown, 20 to 25 minutes. Spoon sauce over top and serve with ice cream if desired. 6 servings.

Hunter influences taste, quality of deer meat

Deer hunting provides many hours of outdoor recreation for Texas sportsmen each year. Besides providing recreation, deer harvested also yield a huge resource in terms of table fare — venison.

The potential yield runs in the neighborhood of 11 million pounds of boneless deer meat annually, points out Dr. Milo Shult, wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Quality of venison is not determined solely by the culinary talents of the homemaker, Shult emphasizes. "The entire process of handling the carcass from field to table can add or detract from the desirability of the final product. The hunter plays an important role in determining whether a deer steak is tender and tasty or tough and bad-flavored," says Shult.

A result demonstration conducted by a group of specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service emphasized the effects of handling on deer meat quality. Thirty-six deer were collected on a permit obtained from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. These deer were treated in several ways with each group of six deer receiving the same treatment.

"Since the hunter cannot control all factors which affect deer meat quality — for example, age of the animal harvested and the like — the treatments were designed to look at only those things which the hunter can control," says the Texas A&M University specialist.

Of the tests run on the carcasses, one of the most interesting was the taste panel test. A panel, consisting of five to eight people, was trained to evaluate meat quality, then given samples of venison from the various treatment groups.

"Only ham and backstrap muscles were used for testing and each sample was cooked to uniform internal temperature. At no time did panel members know what sample or samples they were evaluating. The panel rated each sample on the basis of flavor intensity, flavor desirability, juiciness, tenderness and overall satisfaction," Shult points out.

Based on evaluations by the panel, the following general recommendations can be made for Texas conditions, says Shult.

1. Whenever a choice is available, select a female animal for less flavor intensity (gaminess). This does not mean that male animals provide undesirable meat, but rather that most consumers may prefer the less intense flavor of the female.

2. Whenever possible place the shot in the neck or head to insure a clean, rapid kill. This prevents post-shot stress and also reduces tissue damage considerably.

3. Field dress the animal as soon as possible. If contents of the intestine or paunch have been spilled, the carcass should be rinsed with water. A publication, L-634, entitled "Field Dressing Big Game" is available from local county Extension offices and provides more information.

4. When weather permits, leaving the skin on the carcass will help conserve moisture. However, a little common sense dictates that carcasses should be skinned and covered with a fly proof bag in hot weather if a cooler is not accessible. Also, a male in the rut may have a strong urine odor on the hind legs and probably should be skinned prior to storage.

5. If the family prefers a somewhat more intense flavor which is similar to aged beef, the carcass may be hung in a locker for about a week before final processing. Again, common sense dictates storage in a clean locker which eliminates contamination of odors from poorly handled carcasses.

These recommendations are not the only way to handle carcasses, Shult emphasizes. For the hunter who has a preferred method which differs somewhat from these recommendations, but whose family is very satisfied with the venison brought home, change is unnecessary.

"If a hunter has no experience in handling deer carcasses, or has had a bad experience with deer meat, these suggestions may provide a means of increasing the utilization of the deer resource. Further suggestions on care and cooking of venison can be found in the publication MP-1333, "Big Game Cooking Care"

A bulb-making capacity and the six petals to all its blooms mark all the members of the lily family. Thus, the calla, with its single bowl, is not a member of the lily family at all.

The longest lived birds are the ravens, which have been known to live to age 69.

which is also available from the county extension office," Shult reminds.

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

When the annual fall rains failed to come to West Texas in September, but finally arrived in October, old-timers said it was too late to grow any winter grass supply.

But because of general rains as a result of a late hurricane, followed by unexpected warm days, plenty of grass and other vegetation waves in the autumn winds. And although no frost of any consequence has been reported, the reds, greens, browns and yellows of the season are showing face across the Southwest.

Autumn being my favorite time of the year, I have noted on my travels about the country, the exciting colors sprinkled with a mixture of green cedar and oak patches. Splashed across the terrain against a blue sky — as if an artist had planned it that way with the magic of a talented brush — runs fat deer and turkey.

Yes, I have been in the Hill Country and in Central Texas, among other waterholes of West Texas. The people with whom I visited in those locations best tell their stories.

One of those is Wayne May of Brownwood. Better known as a livestock auction owner in Brownwood and Lubbock, he is now living back on Lake Brownwood and resides in the oil business. Wayne says Brown County is in the best shape he can remember in years. When I asked him how he liked the oil business, he replied: "If my luck holds like it did in the cow business, I'll have these oil prices much lower in no time!"

Art Mudge, Kimble County ranchman, told me in Junction the other day that "no frost had appeared along the Llano River Valley yet. I hope it holds off a little longer so we can grow more grass."

Foster Price of Sterling City, was visiting with folks at the Concho Hereford Sale about the depressed cattle market and the excellent range conditions.

Steve Elkins of Barnhart chimed in concerning the "fine conditions of the ranchland all the way past Big Lake." John Dublin rounded up cattle at the Dublin spread and witnessed "top range coverage." John cut out a bunch of mother cows and brought to market, "they sure wouldn't make it thru another winter out there."

Mrs. Dobbs Hermann said Rocker B Ranch cowboys had to go back to riding horses, after six inches of rainfall in 48 hours washed out most of the roads on the Barnhart ranch. "It was so muddy we couldn't get out for several days," she added.

Henry Clark of Del Rio tells the story about Loma Alta country receiving so much rain that moss is growing on the rocks. "It's the most green I have ever seen," he smiled. "If I owned any of it I would sure have it on the market while it had it's Sunday clothes on!"

Talking about muddy roads, former world champion calf roper Jim Bob Altizer ranches in the Del Rio area and has experienced his share. A day or so between the big October rains, Jim hired a maintainer to re-do the roads. "Well, we got the grader in for the night and the downpour started. The rains washed out the roads more...to the point that we couldn't get back to town in the pickup to get fuel to operate the heavy equipment. Finally, a barrel of diesel had to be flown in by helicopter."

With all the rain, London, Tx. farmer Frank Cox was able to move his pumpkin patch to San Angelo for the eleventh season, in time for Halloween. He will be back on Thanksgiving with apples and oranges from New Mexico and Christmas trees from wherever he gets them.

As we move toward that joyful time, feeling somewhat snug because of the good moisture, ranchmen have high hopes that interest rates will come down and cattle prices go up. That would close out a wonderful year in a good way, wouldn't it?

The Blizzards add more rushing yardage against the Pied Pipers of Hamlin.

Hamlin 14 Winters 3

The Winters Blizzards gave the Hamlin Pied Pipers a scare last Friday night. The Blizzards played tough, hard hitting football on defense, but they just couldn't move the ball on offense consistently enough to win the game.

The Blizzards were the first to score in the game when Donnie Daily kicked a 22 yard field goal. The three-point tally came after an offensive drive died on the five yard line. Winters' score came at the start of the second quarter.

First Downs	10	12
Yds. Rushing	144	216
Passing	5/14:44 yds.	4/9:41 yds.
Turnovers	2	1
Penalties	4/20	7/65
Punts	4/37	4/39

Mid-way through the second period the Pied Pipers scored to leave the score at half-time at 7-3.

Hamlin scored again on the last play of the third quarter following a Winters turnover on their own 25 yard line. The score was Hamlin 14 and Winters 3. Hamlin's second touchdown marked an end to the scoring in the game.

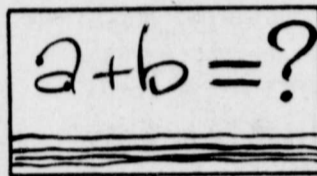

The Winters defense held Hamlin in check all night as they contained Hamlin's high scoring offense. Kent Billups, Jerry Vinson, Ralph Austin, Joe Escolona, Frank Murphy, Don Kvapil, Andy Smith, Ronnie Lujano, Margarito Rocha, Perry Bedford, and Jeff Butts played a very good defensive game.

"The team played well and with a lot of heart," Coach Dan Slaughter said. "They exhibited the Blizzard Pride that the team is trying so hard to revive in the football program at Winters High School."

The 1981 Blizzards are a team that Winters can be proud of for the effort they put into the game.

The Blizzards finish the season Friday with the Anson Tigers. Coach Slaughter said, "Anson has a good ball club, but with the spirit the Winters team has, the Tigers could fall prey to the Blizzard Pride." Winters is now 3-6 for the year and Anson is 6-3. Everyone is invited to support the Blizzards in their final game of the season.

The first equals sign denoted by = was used by Robert Record in his algebra text The Whetstone of Witte, London, 1557. He chose the symbol because "no two things can be more equal" than two parallel straight lines.
