Top stories, people and sports activities for 1991

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpts were taken from local stories published in the January, 1991 through December, 1991 editions of The Enterprise.

Voters approved a $1.75 million school bond issue, by a vote of 354-74 in January. The bond was to finance renovation work at the primary/elementary school. The renovation work began in June and is nearing completion. Kindergarten and first grade students were bused to Wingate in the interim and hopefully they will be able to move back into the building very soon.

Winters and Wingate school boards voted to merge into one school district. The Wingate district had problems related to the low number of students and the financial hardships involved in continuing to operate. The Wingate school completed 100 years of education on May 29, 1991, and merged with the Winters school district in the fall of 1991.

A thunderstorm with high winds damaged property and broke over some trees on Saturday, June 15. The roof of Winters Paint and Body Shop was blown off and into the middle of Wood Street. Some trees were blown over or struck by lightning in other areas of the town.

Gilberto Jimenez turned himself into the Runnels County Sheriff's Department on Thursday, July 4, after being the subject of a three day search by up to 50 law enforcement officers. Jimenez was charged with capital murder of Jerry Munoz of San Angelo and aggravated kidnapping of Mary Santoya of Winters on Sunday, June 30. Jimenez pled guilty to murder charges and was sentenced to life in prison.

In August, Randy Nolte, former operator of North Runnels Emergency Service in Winters, was found guilty on 12 counts of sexually assaulting four boys between the ages of 11 and 16. Nolte was sentenced to a total of 300 years in prison and assessed $120,000 in fines by a 119th District Court Jury in Ballinger. His house at 1102 N. Concho in Winters was seized as contraband by the District Attorney's office in conjunction with the Runnels County Sheriff's Department.

Billy Wayne Neal of Winters was arrested by local deputies of the Runnels County Sheriff's Department, October 9, on a criminal solicitation to commit capital murder charge. Neal was accused of trying to employ someone to kill Willie Wright, also of Winters.

A severely decomposed body was found north of Winters on Saturday, October 19, alongside U.S. Highway 83, by an Abilene man and his son. The body was taken to San Antonio to an anthropologist for study. Later on, the body was identified as Salvador Gutierrez, a Mexican national from Juarez, Mexico. He had been last heard from in the middle of July. His death was ruled a homicide and was being investigated by local authorities.

An unseasonable fall storm struck Runnels County on Saturday evening, October 26, destroying millions of dollars of cotton, damaging residences and businesses and causing power outages. A freakish hailstorm devastated some of Runnels County's finest cotton fields. The hail cut a swath 20 miles long and damaged between 7,000 and 8,000 acres of cotton. The north end of Winters suffered extensive damage when high winds or a small tornado (as some believed it to be) hit the area. Roofs of buildings were lifted off, trees uprooted, buildings lifted off of supporting structures and large tanks turned over. WTU crews from all over the area worked approximately 28 hours to restore power to the area. No serious injuries were reported.

Thousands of dollars in stolen merchandise was recovered at an East Pierce Street residence by the Winters Police Department in conjunction with the Runnels County Sheriff's Department and the Rio Concho Multi Agency Drug Task Force. The merchandise had been stolen from Farmers Seed and Supply and Bradley Grain Storage Systems over a period of a year. Steve Soto, an employee of Farmers Seed and Supply, was arrested and charged in conjunction with the case.

On December 4, Texas Water Commission refused a motion by North Runnels Water Supply Corporation for a rehearing of their rate case against the City of Winters. TWC had ruled in October and set a rate in the case of $2.468 per 1000 gallons for the city to charge North Runnels. The rate case stemmed from a petition by NRWSC for relief from the rate set by the City of Winters in February, 1990, raising the rate paid by NRWSC from $1.85 per thousand to $2.05 per thousand gallons.

People making the news included Gloria Poehls and Gary Moore. Poehls was named Winters' female citizen of the year and Moore was named Winters' male citizen of the year at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in January.

Rodney and Bernie Faubion and sons, Gene and Brian were named the 1991 Runnels County Farm Family of the Year at the Runnels County Ag Day held in March.

James Blankenship of Bracketville was hired as the new City Manager and began his duties on September 3. He replaced Charles Ludwick who resigned to pursue personal business ventures.

Freddie, Rodrick and Malcolm Bredemeyer were chosen to receive one of the 25 awards given this year by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The award was presented to the Bredemeyers during the second annual Farm and Ranch Awards Program held in Fort Worth in January.

Johnny Bob Smith retired as WISD Business Manager on June 30, after 37 years with the school system. Jimmy N. Butler Jr. was hired to succeed him.

Marvin Bedford was presented a certificate from the Congressional Fire Service Institute for his 51 years of service to the Winters Volunteer Fire Department during Mayfest. (See top stories page 8)

Thanks and a Happy New Year

As we begin our third year of publication here at The Winters Enterprise, we would like to say thanks to everyone who helped to make 1991 a good year. Thanks to all of our subscribers and other readers; thanks to all of our advertisers in the newspaper; and thanks to our print shop customers. We look forward to serving you in this new year of 1992. We will continue to strive to put out the best weekly newspaper in the West Texas area, for the reading enjoyment of our subscribers and readers.

1991 was a good year for some and a bad year for others, and if we are to believe what all the economists are saying, 1992 promises to be a hard year for everyone across the nation. It is a time for friends and neighbors to join together in trying to make this a good country in which to live.

The Boles family and the staff at the newspaper would like to join in wishing everyone in the community a "Very Happy and Prosperous New Year."

City hires new policeman

In a regular meeting held Monday, December 23, the Winters City Council hired John Windham as a policeman. Windham comes from the San Saba sheriff's department and will officially begin his duties with the city of Winters on January 2, 1992.

The contract between the City and Jim Beasley was terminated, effective 1/31/92. Beasley has served as lakekeeper at Elm Creek Reservoir.

An audit report was given by Don Ashmore of Davis, Kinard and Co. Ashmore stated that the city is in good financial shape at this time. Some suggestions were made by the accounting firm to make the bookkeeping easier. The audit report approval was tabled for further study by the Council.

An ordinance setting the rate for water sales to North Runnels Water Supply Corp. was approved. The ordinance nullified the present $2.56 rate and set the new rate at $2.468. This is the rate set by the Texas Water Commission.

A discussion of an airport board and manager ended in no action being taken. City Administrator James Blankenship was to investigate several points brought up by the Council while City Attorney Ken Slimp was to check if an ordinance is needed.

In other business, Debbie Sudduth and Austin Johnson were appointed to the Housing Authority Board to fill the vacancies by Buford Baldwin and Emily Pendergrass who have retired from this board.

NURSING HOME CHRISTMAS PARTY — The Senior Citizens Nursing Home held its annual Christmas party and family night, Thursday, December 9, with a visit from Santa Claus and a Christmas dinner for the residents and their families, with lots of presents for everyone. In the photo, resident Reba Morris was caught by surprise opening one of her many gifts. In the background other residents open gifts as family and friends look on. (See related pictures on page 6)

OIL BUSINESS

© By Reg Boles 1991

There are three major items that will have a great impact on the oil business in 1992.

There are other important events that will shape the new year, but I believe that the following three are the most important.

Many far-flung consequences will roll-off capitol hill depending on the decisions made on Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) drilling, hazardous waste designations for common oil field fluids, and tax code provisions on intangible drilling costs etc.

Let's take them one at a time. The ANWR is considered a big geologically attractive exploration venue by most major companies. The outer continental shelf is another very attractive prospective reserve center.

Unfortunately, most of the outer continental shelf is being made off-limits to drilling. With that out of reach, several majors and some large independents are looking for a chance to explore the ANWR.

Not that the ANWR is the last place to look, it is just that it is so darned attractive and potentially lucrative. As a result, most majors are looking at the ANWR as an "either-or" proposition.

In other words, if they can't have ANWR, heck, they would rather go overseas where the same caliber of reserves is available with much less hassle. It is turning into a watershed decision that oil companies are looking to as the real indicator as to how serious the U.S. is about a National Energy Policy.

Congress is considering the opening of ANWR as part of the current National Energy Policy legislation package. The environmental lobby is ferocious and well-funded. Things don't look real good at the moment as far as opening up ANWR in any way—not even a limited opening.

As a result, many majors are dismantling their ANWR exploration teams and moving them to Aberdeen and Equador. A defeat here, could mark the beginning of a much smaller domestic petroleum industry, with majors centering their main work, expenditures and employment overseas.

Moving on...

The EPA and other quasi-governmental bodies are considering (at the behest of Californian and Northeastern Senators) a new set of regulations for the handling of oil field wastes (oil, gas, salt water, fresh water, drilling mud, cement, spent acid, etc.). The new set of regulations would be derived from those currently in use for highly toxic chemicals and nuclear waste.

The method of instituting these new regulations would be to simply label oil field wastes officially as "dangerous and hazardous" waste. This would automatically institute the new regulations on the oil patch.

The new regulations have been considered and discarded as "overkill" several times before, but lobbyists never give up. So, the new designation is under consideration, again.

If the rules are passed, ordinary produced water disposal could go from 25 cents per barrel to $5 per barrel if the regulations are instantly and severely enforced. This means most stripper wells with water production would be shut-in as uneconomic, and drilling operations would be even further curtailed as drilling prospects would be hammered by high costs.

Last, but not least, the tax code considerations for oil and gas drilling are crucial to a revival of the shrinking domestic production industry, as well as the domestic service industry.

As we have discussed, the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) is making oil and gas investing and capital generation difficult. Some in Congress are trying to make the consideration of these factors part of the National Energy Policy debate.

Those same lobbyists that are pushing more regulation and less opportunity are trying to keep favorable tax considerations for business, especially the petroleum industry, out of the debate.

Think about where you stand on these issues as the new year spreads out before you and let your Congressmen know about it. Good luck with all of your 1992 ventures.

VFW Post 9193 hosts Christmas party

by MARY KURTZ
The Winters Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9193 and the Ladies Auxiliary celebrated Christmas 1991 by bringing joy to others in the community. A Christmas party was held for children of the community at the Post home on Friday night, December 20. Santa Claus (Manuel Esquivel) was present to talk to each child and give them a Christmas sack. Sixty children attended and reported having a great time. Christmas sacks were donated to the children of St. John's Christian Preschool, Wee Care School, Winters Headstart and Winters Public School Skill Class. A donation of food and candy was given to the Winters Food Bank to be distributed for Christmas cheer. In appreciation to the people who, by playing bingo, help the VFW have money to donate to community projects, a buffet supper was served at break time Friday night, December 20. Everyone thought that this was a great idea and are looking forward to next Christmas.

Methodist ladies share Christmas stories at meeting

The United Methodist Ladies met December 17, in the home of Odessa Dobbins. Lois Jones led the opening prayer. After a business meeting, Billie Middlebrook gave a Christmas story, "The Christ Child;" Dorece Colburn told about "The Christmas in Norway in Olden Times;" and Pauline Johnson told of "The Christmas in Norway Today." Spirit Filled Happenings
By Dixie Leverett, Church Editor
Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church

An unoccupied house quickly deteriorates. The combination of heat in the summer and the cold in the winter causes the walls to peel and mold, while dust settles on the floor and the carpet. Cobwebs spring up everywhere. The exterior seems to sag and the doors and windows look like a sad face. The yard is unkept and overgrown. Oh! But you let a family move in, clean the house, yard, and take care of its surroundings and it will begin to shine and come alive.

Did you know that it is no different with people? If we would only let Jesus Christ come into our heart and live, we would stand taller and carry a big smile while our eyes are all aglow. You look and feel better about yourself having the knowledge of receiving the gift of everlasting life. Praise God! Ephesians 3:17 "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love."

Guiding Light Spirit Filled Baptist Church is located at 1017 N. Cryer in Winters and is a spiritual light through Jesus Christ growing ever brighter in a seemingly darkened world.

Saturday, January 3, our young people will go on a skating trip to Ballinger. Our children are so faithful and special, we praise God for them.

Morris Edwards

by JOHN-MORRIS EDWARDS
I would like to tell you about a man who I am very interested in. He is my great-grandfather, Morris Edwards.

James Edwards was killed in the Civil War. He fought on the Confederacy's side. He was very wealthy in Confederate money. He also owned a lot of slaves. In fact, he owned forty! But after the Civil War, his money was worthless and his slaves were lost.

James' wife, Nancy, moved to Texas with her children after the Civil War.

Two of James' brothers, doctors in Texas, gave money to Nancy. She settled in Cameron, Texas.

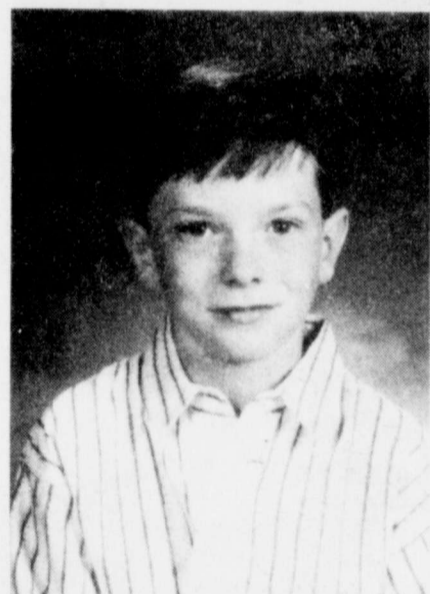

One of Nancy's seven children was named John Edwards. In 1889, John and one of his brothers bought land near the small community of Eula, in West Texas.

John had nine children, including three sets of twins. One set was Morris and Murray.

Morris lived in Eula until he was about twenty. Then, he moved to Montana to work in the gold mines. Later, in Montana, he joined the Army. He was in the last division of "Mounted Scouts." The Mounted Scouts were a group of soldiers who rode on horses and scouted for Indians and outlaws. He was a great shot and a "Sharpshooter." Any time someone would compete against him in rifle shooting, he always won.

He came back to Texas and rented a farm to earn a living. Then, he finally bought one of his own. He dug up trees and started farming it. Then he bought the Spur Ranch. He started raising cattle to expand his farming business.

Then he married Hatti Suggs in 1917. They had two children named Weldon and La Verne.

JOHN-MORRIS EDWARDS

His wife died in 1952.

From 1952-1957, he traveled around the world. He hunted for wild game on these trips. He made four trips to Africa and he went to Canada, Alaska, India, and many other places.

Finally in 1957 he remarried and moved to Abilene, Texas. He died in 1972. Weldon married Dorothy Jean Soules. They had three boys named Weldon-Lynn, Murray and David.

Weldon-Lynn has two girls named Ashley and Regan. Murray has three children, one girl and two boys, named Rachel, John-Morris, and Lincoln. David died of cancer in 1986. He was not married.

I would like to thank my grandfather, Weldon for taking the time to tell me about Morris.

Preschool celebrates Christmas with a "Birthday Party for Jesus"

Pupils of St. John's Christian Preschool celebrated Christmas with a "Birthday Party for Jesus". Each child held a decorated cupcake with a lit candle as they sang "Happy Birthday Dear Jesus". Instead of exchanging gifts, the children each brought cans of food to help someone else have a better Christmas.

To the surprise of the children, Santa Claus (Elaine Miller) stopped by for a visit and talked to each child. The children received presents from their teachers, Mary Kurtz and Pat Young. They also received Christmas sacks from the Winters Veterans of Foreign Wars of Post 9193 and the Ladies Auxiliary.

Games were played and Christmas songs were sang with everyone having a great time.

"Sing Christmas"

Kindergarten and first grade students presented their Christmas program, "Sing Christmas," on Thursday night, December 19, at the Wingate school auditorium. Despite the bad weather, families and friends turned out by the numbers and the students played to a full house, giving a splendid performance. Teachers, Brenda Bahlman, Cheryl Butler, Joyce Krause, Fran Kidwell, Dianne Davis and Nancy Randolph were all instrumental in assisting the children to learn their songs and get ready for the program. Because of illness and the birth of a new baby, Dianne Davis and Nancy Randolph were not able to attend the play, but substitutes Lisa Nitsch and Linda Connor stepped in and helped carry on the show for them.

Poe's Corner

by Charlsie Poe

The last survivor

The subject of my book, Samuel Thomas Privett, better known as Booger Red, has one living survivor, his daughter Alta Futch, who lives in the nursing home of the Baptist Memorial Center in San Angelo.

Alta, a little redhead, was born August 8, 1908 and was so well behaved, she soon had the nickname of "Lady." Luther, her older brother, was so happy to see her. He thought she was his twin sister who had died and had come back to him. He stayed close by her side constantly. Alta and Luther were close for the rest of their lives.

Booger Red's wife, Mollie, had been forced into semi-retirement from the Wild West Show since the birth of the twins in 1906, then Alta was born two years later. Mollie stayed at home with the twins. The little girl died when she was 13 months old. Mollie contrived to remain at home with Luther and Alta and kept them in school.

The children heard many tales about the show and were anxious for the time to come when they could be a part of it. Alta was only seven and Luther nine when their chance came.

The year of 1915 was one of upheaval for the Privetts. The small Wild West Show was on its way out and Booger Red sold everything but his bucking horses to the 101 Ranch before he went with them to the World Fair in May. After his World Champion Bronc Buster Award, Booger received an offer from the Barnes Circus to do a Wild West Show for them. So he sold his ranch and moved his family to Caddo, Oklahoma.

Luther and Alta were excited about their careers in the circus as substitutes for the midgets who had quit from the side show at the Barnes Circus. The children were very small with little feet and hands and could easily substitute for the midgets.

The first night, Mr. Barnes watched the act closely. Alta had on false breasts and one slipped under her left arm. Barnes reached around and pushed it back. Alta saw the accident, but compensated by slapping his hand and saying, "Keep your hands to yourself."

Once when there was a substitute for the trainer in the Kangaroo Act, the kangaroo ran off with the stool he was tied to and ran toward the midget act. Alta started hollering, "mama, mama!" Mrs. Barnes ran out of the ticket booth to Alta, trying to calm her down, whispering, "Don't forget you are a grown woman." (A seven year old subbing for a midget).

Alta attended school in Ada, Oklahoma. She was only seventeen when her daddy died and was new to the circus world, but loved the travel and excitement. Before she quit, she had been all over the United States and to Montreal, Canada, where the troupe performed two weeks in the coliseum.

Alta's accident happened on May 9, 1928, during the morning show at Uniontown, Pennsylvania, when a horse kicked her and broke her left leg, one bone twice. She was in the hospital thirteen weeks and had two operations in nine weeks. The circus paid all expenses and her salary right along with it.

Her mother, Mollie received a letter from the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce, assuring her there was no occasion for alarm about her daughter's condition. Alta was attended by two competent physicians and her sister, Mrs. Ella Lentssen, also of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus. The story was carried in the San Angelo Standard Times and stated that her two brothers, Thomas and Luther Privett, were riders with the Robbin Brothers Circus. They joined the circus with their sisters on July 16, 1928, at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin.

Alta was never comfortable performing after her accident and her leg always pained her. She showed the last time out in the ballpark at the Dallas Fair. Alta had known John Futch, a San Angelo doctor and widower with three children, since 1927, and after she returned, they began dating. They were planning to marry sometime later and did in 1934.

John Futch died in San Angelo, December 27, 1967, and was buried in Fairmount Cemetery.

Alta has been a patient in the Baptist Memorial Center for three years.

The family night supper and Christmas program was well attended on Thursday evening. Santa Claus and his wife made an appearance and passed out gifts to all our residents. There were gifts galore for everyone and lots of food.

There are many people who deserve a big "Thank You" for all you did to make it a big success. Some names may be left out, but it won't be intentional.

Starting with those who have remembered us who work here are: Ruthie Alexander for bringing cookies; Carlene Golson, candy; Wilma Higgins, popcorn; Mike Meyer, ham; Gray Gardner, caramel corn; the Family Group, gifts for employees.

The nursing center welcomes four new residents. They are Irma Ueckert, Serena Ueckert, Lonnie Hancock and J.B. Belew.

Heavy rainfall contributes to main water pipeline break

Heavy rains, with reports of up to 10 inches, hit the Winters area the week before Christmas, causing flooding in some low lying areas.

The heavy rains were believed to have contributed to a main water pipeline break that was reported at approximately 4:30 p.m. Friday, December 20. Water superintendent Jack Davis said that the heavy rain washed dirt out from around the pipeline, causing it to split.

The city had enough water stored to last approximately three days with moderate usage, so water curtailment was not mandatory. The city did however, ask consumers to cut back on their water usage on a voluntary basis.

It was Sunday morning before the creek went down enough to enable city workers to assess the damage and determine what repairs were needed. Workers had the break repaired by 3 p.m. later that day.

Stuff 'n Such

by Joyce Jones

With the beginning of this new year, comes a new column, "Stuff 'n Such." You're probably wondering about the name of it, well I pondered on that for a while and decided that since it would be filled with stuff 'n such, that is what I would call it, anyway I hope you will enjoy it.

So to begin this new column in this new year of 1992, I want to wish everyone a "Happy and Prosperous New Year." I would also like to thank everyone here at The Enterprise and all of you in the community who have welcomed me and made me feel at home. There is just no place like West Texas for friendly outgoing people.

I have traveled a lot across the United States and have lived in several other states, but I've found there is no place like West Texas.

Now there are those people who ask, "Why would anyone want to live in West Texas, there's nothing there but wind, sand, tumbleweeds, horned toads and rattlesnakes." True, we do have all those things, but we also have hills, trees (maybe not as many as in other parts of the country), rivers, lakes, cotton, grain, cattle and horses. We also have the one thing that no other part of the country has, wonderful, friendly people.

In West Texas, people are never too busy to stop and help their neighbor or talk to a friend or even a stranger; and if you act like you have a few minutes to spare, they'll downright talk your ear off. Sure we have a few old grouches and our share of those uppity snobbish people, but for the most part the people of West Texas are the best to be found anywhere in the whole United States of America.

The week prior to Christmas, I had the occasion to get out and about in the community and meet a lot of nice people. I went to the Senior Citizens Nursing Center for their Christmas party, enjoyed a very delicious meal and stuck around for Santa Claus, so that I could take some pictures. Thanks to Billy Ruth Bishop and the rest of the staff for inviting me over.

On the same night, I also drove over to Wingate, in the middle of a downpour, and took pictures at the kindergarten and first graders' Christmas play. Sure was lots of people who braved the bad weather to go and enjoy the event. It is certainly good to see so many parents, grandparents and friends supporting the school activities going on all during the year.

Many of you who read The Enterprise may know Dean Peacock, who runs the Fishhook Ranch in Nolan County. Well, Dean has been diagnosed as having a brain tumor and is in and out of the hospitals in Houston and Dallas, taking chemotherapy treatments. I spoke with Mrs. Paige Baize at Wingate and she told me that he did get to come home over the holidays for a few days, but will probably have to go back for more treatment. Area ranches got together at Sweetwater on the Saturday before Christmas and held a benefit roping to help with some of his expenses, and according to all reports, they were able to raise $6000 and some money is still coming in. There will be another benefit at a later date, which will be scheduled when the weather cooperates a little. I had the opportunity to meet Dean a few years back, when I covered a spring roundup on the Fishhook Ranch. He is a super person and when you meet him, you are reminded of cowboys out of the old west.

To anyone who would like to drop Dean a card or letter, which I'm sure he would enjoy getting, his address is:

We've had some nice compliments about the newspaper from lots of people. I hope everyone will continue to enjoy reading it, we will try to make it interesting for everyone.

As we move into the New Year here at The Enterprise, we will be adding some new features from time to time, so if you have any suggestions on reading material, please let me know.

One of the new features will be a monthly spotlight on a senior citizen in the community. Too often, all of us tend to forget the very people who have paved the way for us and are our reason for being here on this good earth. So you senior citizens out there, don't be surprised if you get a call from me wanting to come and sit a spell and chew the fat and take some pictures.

I also want to do some human interest feature stories on interesting people or events, so if any of you know of someone or something in that category, give me a call. We can't please all of the people all of the time, but we want to try and please some of the people part of the time; however, we would like to print newsworthy articles that are of interest to all of the readers, not just a select few.

Give me a call and let me hear from you with your comments and suggestions.

Best Wishes in '92

Between the Bookends

by Melvin Mathis, Friends of the Library

Very soon I want to start conducting you, if you are not too familiar, through the various areas of the Winters Public Library. But, for this time, allow me a little peek at seeing this world through the eyes of literary masters and a reminder of another country where the people are known for their generally high level of literacy.

It was a misty morning in 1889. The mountains on the west side of the highway between Bronte and San Angelo were ringed with moisture. I said to myself, "That looks like Scotland!" Of course these big hills were much lower in height than Scotland's mountains. So, what brought about this association?

One of my favorite books — purchased very cheaply in Odessa — is "Victorians All," written by Lora Masson, first published in 1931. It is about England and Scotland in the 1870's and has helped my enjoyment since 1982. Its characters are chiefly upper class, and quite literate. A favorite of these people is Robert Louis Stevenson, then quite sprightly and very fond of his father, with whom he has sharp differences, yet with great mutual respect. (The "Boy" usually proved correct). At the time I saw the misty hills I was living at Bronte, which is associated by literary folk with the famous sisters of that name in England, with the "e" accented. Also, only ten miles away is Tenyson, bringing up memories of the famed English poet of that name.

Knowing the context of books often leads us to associate certain literary persons, or even infamous characters in history, with terms we may know: thus, "He's a Benedict Arnold, a Quisling, A Judas," these terms are generally recognizable as traitors. A founding father in a country is often called its "George Washington." In due time, many a leading woman in politics will be known as "the Indira Gandhi" or the "Margaret Thatcher" of a nation. We want to remember that the Mississippi River of our geography books, of Mark Twain's stories, and of the Civil War are the same! It's not only helpful economically and socially to be literate: it's also more fun! Friends of the Library of Winters Public Library are hoping that you will make your way around in life, reading a good book, magazine, newspaper — that you may find your charmed "Scotland," whatever and wherever it may be.

In Appreciation

The City of Winters would like to express their appreciation to all of the citizens who cooperated by curtailing their water usage this past weekend. Without your cooperation we would have probably been without water before the broken line was repaired. Thankfully we found that the line had only broken at a connection and were able to make a repair much sooner than if we had to reroute part of the line. As of Monday morning we were able to supply water for resumption of normal usage.

Thank you again for your cooperation.

Farm Credit names new executive chief officer

Austin — Arnold R. Henson became chief executive officer of the $4.7 billion Farm Credit bank of Texas on January 1.

Henson, a 20-year veteran of the Tenth Farm Credit District, succeeded Donald R. Rogge, who announced his retirement last fall after 30 years with the bank.

Since 1988, Henson has held the position of senior vice president and chief financial officer of the bank. In that capacity, he has been instrumental in a number of national Farm Credit issues.

Henson served on the national committee charged with developing a process for the Farm Credit System to repay federal assistance provided through the 1987 Agricultural Credit Act.

In 1991, he was the Tenth Farm Credit District's representative to the national committee which guided the development of a system for ensuring on-going financial monitoring of all Farm Credit Banks.

He also helped negotiate a settlement over funds that had been set aside for ailing Farm Credit Banks, resulting in a $2.5 million savings for the Tenth District.

A native of Grapeland, Henson is a graduate of Sam Houston State University. He joined the Federal Land Bank of Houston's accounting department in 1972.

Since then, he has held positions as assistant vice president, assistant treasurer, associate treasurer and vice president/treasurer.

The Tenth Farm Credit District comprises the Farm Credit Bank of Texas, headquartered in Austin; 50 Federal Land Bank Associations which make long-term agricultural loans in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas; and 18 Production Credit Associations in New Mexico and Texas that make short-term production loans.

Together, the bank and associations have approximately $3.7 billion in loans outstanding and total assets of $4.7 billion.

Disability reviews underway for thousands of children

Deciding today if a child was disabled based on an application for benefits that was denied as far back as 1980 is a demanding task. But that is exactly what the Social Security Administration (SSA) is doing. It's looking at the claims of more than 200,000 children who requested reviews because of a new rule for deciding whether a child is disabled.

Children who qualify for reviews must have had their SSI disability claims denied or benefits terminated between January 1980 and February 1990. Now, because of the Supreme Court decision in Sullivan v. Zebley, children who are eligible under the new rule may be able to receive retroactive benefits.

Everyone whose claim was denied and who asks for a review will be interviewed to find out as much as possible about the child's medical conditions and how they affected the child's functioning. Those people bringing the needed information to the interview can keep the process moving along.

People need to tell Social Security how and where to get the complete record of the child's medical history. They will not be expected to obtain the records; Social Security will get them. However, they should supply the complete names, addresses, telephone numbers, and record numbers of all medical sources as well as the dates of treatment. If all of this information isn't available, they should bring whatever they have to the interview.

Nonmedical sources of information are also needed. Information about the child's ability to perform everyday tasks normally done by children in the same age group is wanted. Such sources can include teachers, schools, babysitters, daycare providers, counselors, therapists, coaches, and Scout leaders. Social Security will need their names, addresses, and telephone numbers, too. These sources will be asked to provide information about the child's activities throughout the course of an entire day.

Finally, they should bring along any papers, such as school test results from standardized test, school records like report cards or the Individual Education Plan, or similar information that can help Social Security assess the child's abilities.

Information about the new rule is available at any Social Security Office. The San Angelo office is located at 2214 Sherwood Way and the telephone number is 949-4608.

Runnels Soil Conservation News and Notes

Windbreak trees available from RSWCD

by DON HALEY
RSWCD District Technician

The Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District (RSWCD) continues to offer windbreak tree seedlings to area producers and residents through its annual Windbreak Tree Program. So far this year, 58 residents have purchased almost 3400 trees for planting this spring.

Seedlings are available in both hardwood and evergreen species. The hardwoods, approximately 24 inches in heights, may be purchased in groups of 25 for $15. Offered species include native plum, catalpa, cottonwood, desert willow, green ash, honeylocust, walnut, osage orange, pecan, red oak, Russian Olive, sandcherry, skunkbush sumac and nanking cherry.

Wildlife packets, which consist of 100 trees in four different species, are available in four types: quail and pheasant, squirrel, turkey and deer. These packets contain species that are beneficial to wildlife habitat and nutrition and are available for $40 per packet.

A limited number of 12 inch evergreen seedlings are still available. Austrian pine (130 in stock) and red cedar can be purchased in groups of 20 for $30. Afghanistan pine "bullet" conifers (170 in stock) may be purchased in groups of 20 for $20. These bullet conifers are 12 inches in height, but have smaller root volumes.

The trees will arrive at the SCS office in Ballinger on February 19, 1992. Please stop by the SCS office in Ballinger or call 365-3415 for more information.

FERTILE RUNNELS COUNTY SOIL — By proper planning for tomorrow as well as today, by utilizing the best conservation farming practices and by protecting the soil from wind and water erosion, our productive lands will continue to produce efficiently for generations to come. For technical assistance with any conservation question, contact the SCS office in Ballinger. (Photo courtesy of SCS)

CONSERVATION COMIC BOOKS — These three Winters Elementary 5th graders learn resource management concepts by reading conservation comic books provided by the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District. Students then used their ideas to participate in the annual poster contest sponsored by the Runnels SWCD. From left to right are Cody O'Dell, Kourtney Cathey and Jamie Bishop.
